RINGERS' INTEREST IN THE COUNCIL

Among the motions down for discussion by the Central Council at Whitsun is one designed to give representatives on the Council a better opportunity of ascertaining the feelings of their members on any point which may arise. At present one month's notice of any motion has to be given, and the agenda usually appears about three weeks before the Council meeting. The new proposal is to require three months' notice, with a correspondingly earlier publication of the agenda, so that the various associations may have the opportunity of discussing the items and giving expression to their views as a guide to their Council representatives. The existing arrangement practically precludes this, and there has been more than one instance where a subject has been discussed by the Council and deferred for a year, in order to give members time to consult their respective associations.

The question is being brought up as the result of discussion at the last annual meeting of the Winchester Diocesan Guild, when it was felt that if ringers generally had the opportunity of talking over proposals that were to come before the Council, there would be a much wider interest taken in the work of the central body. A very considerable number of the affiliated societies meet at, or soon after, Easter, and the publication of matters, which the Central Council will debate, in time for review by the various county and diocesan guilds should tend to deepen the interest of the ordinary ringer in the Council's proceedings. That such an extension of general interest is desirable no one will dispute, and the proposal now made should be worth a trial. Any step that may bring the rank and file of the Exercise into closer touch with the work of the Council deserves every support, and any administrative difficulties which might arise through adoption of the Winchester Guild's proposal ought readily to be overcome. What is wanted is that the agenda and any controversial reports by committees should be published before Easter. Even this, of course, would not enable all affiliated bodies to have the Council's business before them at their annual meeting, but with three months' notification practically every society could discuss the items of the agenda at district or quarterly meetings, even if the annual meeting were ruled out. The Winchester Guild's proposal, therefore, has a good deal to commend it. There is still a far too widespread indifference to the Council's work, which many ringers look upon as something apart from their common interests. If greater opportunity is given to show that the Council is working for the good of the Exercise and the advancement of the Art, and that many of the questions with which it deals are, after all, matters concerning ringers in general, a useful step will have been taken. When this has been secured, it will be up to the elected representatives to endeavour to infuse into their associations some of the interest which they themselves should take in the Council.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

MEETING AT PINNER.

The North and East District of the Middlesex County Association and London Diocesan Guild held a very successful meeting at Pinner on Saturday, May 14th, when some 45 members put in an appearance. Divine service was held at 5 p.m., when the Rev. D. S. Carey (curate) preached a very interesting sermon, which was greatly appreciated. After an excellent tea, the usual business meeting was held. The chair was taken by the Rev. D. S. Carey, who was supported by the Rev. C. S. Durham (Harrow Weald), Mr. W. Pye, Mr. J. C. Jackson, etc.—It was decided to send a letter of sympathy to Mr. W. Pickworth (vice-president), who was prevented by an attack of pleurisy from attending.

A vote of condolence to the relatives of the late Mr. C. Dickens, a member of the association since 1904, was passed by those present standing in silence for a few moments.

The Vicar of Pinner (the Rev. C. E. A. Rowland) was elected as an honorary member, and six ringing members were admitted.—It was decided to hold the next meeting at Harrow Weald and Stanmore on July 9th.

A hearty vote of thanks was proposed by the Hon. Secretary to the Vicar for the use of the bells, to the Rev. D. S. Carey for his address at the service and for so ably presiding at the meeting, and to Mr. J. C. Jackson for making excellent arrangements. The Hon. Secretary also expressed his pleasure at the progress made by the Pinner band during the last few months under the guidance of Messrs. G. and H. Kilby.

The Rev. C. E. A. Rowland, who had arrived during the course of the meeting, replied, thanking the association for the help given to his ringers, and extending to the members a hearty welcome.

The bells, which are a very fine peal of eight, with a tenor of 19 cwt., were retained and rehung by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank in October last, and they were greatly admired. During the afternoon and evening many touches in a great variety of methods were rung, including Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob, Double Norwich, Superlative, Cambridge, London, and Bristol Surprise Major.

SOUTH AND WEST DISTRICT.

A meeting was held at Feltham on Saturday, May 14th, when good practice on the bells was had during the afternoon. The Rev. E. P. Cole Sheane, Vicar of Twickenham, visited the tower and rang the tenor to a touch of Stedman. A short service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. J. Browell, after which the company adjourned to the Church Hall, for tea, business meeting and social. Mr. and Mrs. Horace Belcher and family entertained the company to several selections on the handbells, which were greatly appreciated.

Mr. R. Holloway (Ringing Master) presided, and 33 members and friends sat down to tea ably served by Mrs. Cromwell.

After the routine business had been transacted, thanks were accorded to the Vicar, Mr. and Mrs. Belcher and family, Mr. Lewis, of the local band, and the hostess and her assistants.—The Vicar, in reply, said it was a very great pleasure to him to welcome the association again to Feltham on such an occasion.

A touch of Grandsire Caters on the handbells and more selections were followed by another visit to the tower. The total attendance during the meeting was 38.

LAMBETH RINGER'S DEATH.

LINK IN LONG CHAIN BROKEN.

The death of Mr. William Stoneman at the age of 68 on April 5th last ends a long family connection with the bells and steeple of the Parish Church of St. Mary, Lambeth. The late Mr. Stoneman retired from ringing through ill-health in 1921, after 32 years as steeplekeeper, in which office he followed his father, who put in 40 years. He in his turn took the office from John Jagers, his father-in-law. At least three generations of the Jagers family served the church as bell ringers and steeplekeepers, the name appearing on old peal boards in the belfry as far back as the end of the 18th century.

The late Mr. Stoneman took part in several peals in his earlier days, always ringing the tenor behind. He was a member of the old St. James' Society.

On Sunday, April 10th, the bells were rung half-muffled before evening service. After service, the whole pull and stand was rung by the local ringers, assisted by Mr. T. H. Taffender and Mr. S. Moye: T. H. Taffender 1, F. Holand 2, C. Maul 3, S. Moye 4, W. A. Batten 5, W. Hardy 6, T. W. Wyatt 7, H. Bell 8.

The funeral took place on April 12th, at Tooting Cemetery. The first part of the service was taken at the Parish Church by the Rev. K. E. N. S. Lamplugh, chaplain to the belfry. Several of the local ringers and a number of the parishioners were present.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A successful meeting of the Western District was held at Chester-le-Street on Saturday, May 14th, when some good ringing was done. Touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples, Kent and Plain Bob were rung. Members attended from Whitley Bay, Durham, Houghton-le-Spring, Consett, Tanfield and the local ringers. Tea was served at the Crown Hotel, and it was arranged to hold the next meeting at Consett Parish Church on Saturday, July 2nd.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A well-attended quarterly meeting of the Western District was held at Horsham on Saturday, May 21st, between 40 and 50 members and their friends being present from Heene, Pulborough, Crawley, Billingshurst, Warnham, Slinfold, Lower Beeding, Shipley, West Grinstead, West Tarring, Shoreham, Rudgwick, Itchingfield, Merstham and members of the local band. Some very good courses and touches were rung in the standard methods during the afternoon.

After a substantial meat tea at the Queen's Head Hotel, a short business meeting was held, Mr. Walt Charman presiding.—No new members were forthcoming.

It was proposed to hold the next meeting at Easebourne. This is a new tower for this division, the whole band having been made members of the association at the Central Division meeting held at Henfield a few weeks ago.

After votes of thanks to the chairman for presiding, and to Mr. S. Paice for making the necessary arrangements, some of the company visited the tower again for further ringing, whilst others, on their way home, visited Warnham and Billingshurst towers.

Thanks are due to Messrs. W. Charman and J. Burdfield for obtaining permission to ring at these places.

TRURO DIOCESAN GUILD.
INCREASING MEMBERSHIP.

The Truro Diocesan Guild has 'come of age,' and the 21st annual report, just issued, is a cheering document for those who, like the Master, Dr. J. Symons, have laboured so long in the cause of change ringing in Cornwall. In an area where it is necessary to point out the rules that the Guild 'does not exist for the encouragement of competitive prize ringing,' and where there is one rival organisation, if not more, which puts prize ringing first, it will be realised that the Truro Diocesan Guild has uphill work. The committee, however, report continued progress, and during the past year five fresh towers have become affiliated, viz., Mabe, Illogan, Gwennap, Zennor and Altarnun, while the membership of the Guild has increased by about fifty, the total roll being now about 650. The finances of the Guild are also in excellent condition.

The report refers to the visit of the ringing tourists last year, who rang six peals in methods unfamiliar to Cornwall.

The committee emphasise the value of the Minor Festivals, and remark that those held last year were well attended.

Mr. W. H. Southard (Truro) has been appointed representative of the Guild on the Central Council.

GLOUCESTER & BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

The monthly meeting of the Bristol Branch was held at Winterbourne on Saturday last, when about 30 members attended, representing 11 towers. The bells were raised in peal at 3 p.m., and good practice was made (especially for the learners) until 4.30, when service was conducted by the Rev. P. Gay, who gave an interesting address. After the service, an adjournment was made to the schoolroom, where tea was awaiting the visitors. At the business meeting which followed, the secretary stated he had received a telegram that morning from the chairman (Mr. J. Gould), saying he was unable to attend. The Rev. T. C. Fowler (vice-president) was therefore elected to the chair.

Mrs. H. Way was elected an associate member, and Mr. Cornish (Winterbourne) a performing member.

The Secretary stated that the annual summer meeting to Dyrham Park was fixed up for the usual Saturday (the last in June), and he hoped all those intending to be present would signify their intention in good time, especially for the seats in the motor.

Mr. H. Way, proposed, and Miss E. Smith seconded, a hearty vote of thanks to the Rector for the use of the bells, and also to the Rev. P. Gay for taking the service, to the organist and organ blower, to the ladies for assisting at the tables, and Mr. E. Thomas and the local band.—This was carried with acclamation. The Rev. P. Gay responded in a humorous speech. Mr. Thomas also thanked the association for coming there and giving them such good practice in change ringing.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman, who was always willing to come to their meetings to assist them. Good practice was again made in the tower, and the bells were rung till 8.45.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A very successful meeting was held at Offley on Saturday, May 21st, ringers being present from Hitchin, Great Wymondley, Graveley, Kimpton, King's Walden, and a number of the local band, who as yet are not very far advanced in change ringing. The bells are a handy ring of six, and were kept going during the afternoon and evening with just a break for tea excellently prepared at the Red Lion, and at which 20 members sat down.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells, and there was then a hurried retreat for the tower. Methods rung during the day were Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, Oxford Bob, Double Court, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, London and Cambridge Surprise. About 7 p.m., two ringers from Stapleford called in, and some good Surprise ringing was done during their short stay. During the day some of the local ringers rang their first courses.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Mr. E. A. Young, the hon. secretary of the Council, is now out of hospital. While still very weak, he is progressing satisfactorily.

A peal of Ipswich Surprise, a method by Mr. Arthur Craven, published in the recently issued 'Surprise Methods,' has been rung for the first time by a Lancashire Association band under the conductorship of Mr. E. Jenkins.

A 'Joseph' peal has now been rung. There have been previous attempts, but none of them successful. One member of the band started for a 'name' peal twenty-four years ago, and has had to wait until now to put it in his book.

As no further peals will be rung on the bells of St. Martin's, Birmingham, until their restoration has been completed, a half-muffled peal of Stedman Cinques in memory of Mr. Charles Dickens, an old member of St. Martin's Guild, and one of its officials, was rung at West Bromwich. The peal was called by Mr. Tom Reeves, and one of the ringers was Frederick Price. It is interesting to recall that 35 years ago Samuel Reeves and Charles Price, the respective fathers of these two ringers, rang together in a peal of Grandsire Caters in the same belfry.

Sixty-five years ago to-day the bells at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sydney, New South Wales, were opened.

The first peal of Stedman Caters, which a hundred years after turned out to be false, was rung at St. John's, Horsley Down, London, on May 28th, 1787.

The Bristol Surprise Major record was made fifteen years ago to-morrow, when Mr. W. Pye called the 15,264 at Hornchurch, Essex.

To-morrow is also the anniversary of the first Surprise peal rung out of England (Superlative at Bray, Ireland), and Sunday the anniversary of the only peal rung on the sea (Stedman Caters, between Ireland and England), and the first Surprise peal in Wales (New Cambridge at Bangor). These three peals were rung in the year 1901.

The first peal of New Cumberland Surprise was rung at Burton-on-Trent on May 31st, 1886.

CHEAP RAILWAY TICKETS.

All ringers visiting London for Whitsun and returning after the Central Council meeting on Tuesday should apply at once to the hon. secretary (Mr. E. A. Young, 155, Rushey Green, Catford, S.E.6) for vouchers enabling them to obtain return tickets at single fare and a third. These tickets, which are available also for wives and friends, extend until Wednesday; Whitsun excursion tickets are only available until Tuesday. A minimum issue of 200 is necessary to secure continuation of these facilities in future years, and ringers should support this effort to obtain a cheap rate of travelling for them. The programme arranged for the holidays will provide plenty of entertainment for visitors, apart from the multifarious attractions which London has to offer, and ringers who are not actually members of the Council will find during Whitsun congenial company and varied amusement in the Metropolis.

COVENTRY'S LOSS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—You will remember that the famous peal of ten English bells of the Coventry Cathedral has lately been recast by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston on the Simpson principle. The new peal was dedicated on Easter Eve.

In my opinion, the change is deplorable, and the worst fears of those who opposed it appear to have been realised.

The general opinion among local people old enough to remember the former peal when it was rung is that the tone and virility of the original bells have been lost to a considerable extent, and that we are left with a set of 'chimes' instead of the magnificent peal of bells now irretrievably lost.

The only good that can come out of our evil case is that other people may take warning by our example.—Yours truly,

RICHARD CALDICOTT.

29, High Street, Coventry.

GAINFORD BELLS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—My attention has been drawn to a paragraph in your issue of April 8th, giving some account of a visit paid to our bells on Saturday, March 5th, by ringers from Darlington and Hurworth. I do not know who sent you the paragraph, but it was worded in such a way that it seemed to cast some reflection upon the way in which Messrs. Taylor and Sons, of Loughborough, had carried out their work. I therefore write to say that the difficulty experienced on that occasion of the first two bells casting their ropes was entirely due to the stiffness of the new ropes, and now that the ropes have had more use there has been no further trouble in this respect. Further, I wish to say that our ringers, the Church Council and myself are thoroughly satisfied with the way in which Messrs. Taylor and Sons have carried out the work of re-hanging our bells.

I trust that in fairness to Messrs. Taylor you will give this statement the same publicity as the previous one.—Yours faithfully,

R. A. BIDWELL.

DEVON GUILD.FUNDS SPENT ON TUITION.

'Steady progress' is the keynote of the report of the general committee of the Devon Guild for 1926. Sunday ringing and weekly practices have been the rule in all branches.

The monthly Cathedral practices have not been so well attended as expected, and the committee urge on all members, who feel themselves capable, to unite and attend regularly.

The South-West Branch are to be commended for their enterprise in the practice of higher methods, and it is hoped that similar practices will be initiated in other branches, thereby carrying into effect the Guild's motto, 'Perseverentia omnia vincit' (perseverance conquers all things). Three new bands were affiliated during the year, making a total of 59, and the support given by honorary members is much appreciated. Forty-six certificates were issued to performing members. Twenty-two peals were rung by affiliated bands, 16 in Grandsire, four in Stedman and two in Plain Bob methods, also six peals in various methods by non-resident members who visited Devon and Cornwall on a tour organised by Mr. W. H. Fussell, of Slough.

The statement of accounts, although showing a diminished balance, is considered to be satisfactory.

The year began with a balance of £51 6s. 9d., and ended with £38 17s. 2d., the receipts being £43 15s. 6d., and the expenditure £56 5s. 1d., no less than £10 having been granted to the Exeter and Mid-Devon branches for the excellent purpose of tuition. Altogether the Guild spent £12 6s. 4d. in travelling expenses for instructors.

WEDDING BELLS.

At the Parish Church, Witham, Essex, on Saturday, April 30th, on the occasion of the wedding of one of the local ringers, Mr. P. Ashcroft, who was married at All Hallows' Church, Tottenham, 720 Oxford Treble Bob Minor and 720 Double Court Minor: V. Glass 1, W. Butler 2, W. Mellin 3, A. Evers 4, W. S. Butler 5, E. Bright (conductor) 6. The bells were afterwards 'fired.'

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD. ANNUAL FESTIVAL.

Members of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild gathered in considerable numbers at Wimborne on Saturday, May 14th, when the annual festival was held. Service was held in the Minster at mid-day, and was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. A. Keith), the lesson was read by the Earl of Shaftesbury, president of the Guild, and prayers were said by the honorary secretary and treasurer. The organist and choir kindly gave their assistance, and the service was fully choral. The Vicar gave a short address based on the text, 'I will magnify my office' (Romans xi. 13), and referred to the fact that the offertory would be devoted to the Guild's war memorial in Salisbury Cathedral.

Luncheon in the Masonic Hall, at which Lord Shaftesbury presided, was followed by the annual business meeting.

Lord Shaftesbury, in offering the delegates a warm welcome to that corner of the diocese, said it was some time now since the Guild came to Wimborne, but the more often they could come the more they would be pleased. There were several towers in the neighbourhood which were looking forward to a visit from them that afternoon, amongst others that of Wimborne St. Giles, which he hoped they would include in their itinerary and persuade the ringers there to join the Guild and benefit by their methods. He was glad that the Guild was extending its prestige and also its numbers. It was to him a very attractive body, because he thought there was no association of men or women which were more constant in their devotion to their duties, duties of a voluntary character, than the bell ringers of the diocese (applause). It was only the other day in a village in that county the Rector assured him his six ringers had been ringing there without interval or break getting on for fifty years. Lord Shaftesbury confessed that he was a 'rather old rusty bell ringer,' because he was afraid he was rusty for the want of practice. He loved the bells, and he hoped that Guild would always continue to flourish, and they might go on adding towers to their numbers in the diocese, ringing forth peals as they ought to ring and as they looked to them to do (applause).

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

The balance sheet for the year indicated that the receipts amounted to £122 5s. 10d., which included a sum brought forward of £60 11s. 4d. Expenses totalled £49 0s. 2d., leaving a balance in hand of £73 5s. 7d.—The statement was adopted.

On the proposition of Captain J. B. M. Ridout (Swanage), those present testified their appreciation of the excellent work the officers had done by re-electing them en bloc—the Master (Rev. R. H. Gundry, Shroton); hon. secretary and treasurer (Rev. F. L. Edwards); hon. assistant secretary (Mr. T. Hervey Beams, Bradpole); and the hon. auditors (Rev. A. Allan, Wimborne, and Mr. H. M. Hopkins, Kingston Magna).

The Master, in acknowledging the compliment, having incidentally paid tribute to the keen interest taken in the Guild by Lord Shaftesbury, assured the members that he (the speaker) would be delighted to do all he could to help them in the great work they had before them. He was very glad to note that the Guild was going strong, and that there was an increase in the number of towers which had become affiliated. It was especially gratifying to note the increase of younger members, who would doubtless take the place of the older ones when they were past the work. He felt there was a great opportunity for the Guild, and the stronger they could make it the stronger their position would be and the greater good they would be able to do. The work of the Guild first and foremost was the work of the Church, and he felt that members, when carrying out the duties of ringers, were indeed doing that work in a very forcible and practical, and, indeed, a very manly way, putting Christianity before the world in a way which would appeal to all men of the country. He wanted them to feel, he added, that they were doing an excellent and influential work, and work which was going to do a tremendous lot of good not only for themselves but for their country. The work was also good for themselves bodily, as ringing was one of the finest exercises—it trained the mind, eye, and kept the body fit. What could they have better? (applause).

The Rev. F. L. Edwards and Mr. Beams also acknowledged their election. The latter wished the individual members would take a little more personal interest in the Guild and not leave quite so much to the officers (hear, hear). The Guild would then grow far more in numbers and greater in influence.

The committee chosen (in addition to the officers of the Guild and of the branches) were the Rev. C. Wood, Mr. J. R. Jerram, and Mr. E. B. Barter.—The Secretary announced that the committee had appointed Mr. Wm. Shute (Buckhorn Weston) instructor to the Guild.—Representatives on the Central Council elected were Mr. Hervey Beams, Rev. C. C. Cox (West Moors), the Rev. F. L. Edwards, and Mr. S. Hillier (Devizes).

It was decided that the War Memorial Fund should remain open for another year, and that a final appeal should be made to the towers which had not yet subscribed.

BELL RESTORATIONS.

The Secretary announced the receipt of applications from the towers of Loders, Coombe Bissett, and Market Lavington for grants towards the cost of the restoration of bells. Each one of those cases, he said, was thoroughly deserving, and his proposition that a grant of two guineas to each should be made was agreed to.

It was decided the secretary should forward the Guild's congratulations to Mr. H. Brownlee West, of Devizes, on the occasion of his recent golden wedding.

On the proposition of Mr. C. D. Heginbotham (Devizes), seconded by Mr. A. F. Martin Stewart (Ferndown), a cordial vote of thanks was tendered the Vicar, organist, and other church officials of the Minster, the incumbents of neighbouring towers, and all others who had helped towards the success of the re-union. Mr. Stewart (a past Master) mentioned that the Minster tower could vie with any other in regard to the long service of its ringers. Mr. Alfred Osman not only had rung for 50 years, but his father before him held a similar record, whilst Mr. Edward Tubbs also had seen 50 years' service in the belfry. Unfortunately, they were now unable to ring as often as they would like, but their services had been greatly appreciated. The Guild, too, greatly appreciated the welcome extended them that day by the Minster ringers (of which Mr. F. Hart is captain).

A cordial vote of thanks was also tendered the president for his appreciated presence and help, on the initiative of Mr. Hervey Beams, and Lord Shaftesbury responded. It would be his pleasure always to do all he possibly could for that excellent Guild (applause).

Afterwards there was ringing in several methods at various towers in the district, and as far distant as Fordingbridge, the methods including Grandsire, Stedman (Triples and Caters), Kent Treble Bob and Gambridge Surprise Major.

DEVIZES BRANCH.

By the kind permission of the Vicar, a combined practice, in connection with the Devizes Branch of the Salisbury Guild, was held at Erlestoke on Wednesday, May 18th.

Ringers were present from Devizes (including Mr. C. D. Heginbotham, chairman of the branch, and Mr. E. Green, secretary), Bratton, Westbury and Trowbridge, and Mr. H. Sturgess, captain of the local band. Touches of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob Minor and Kent Treble Bob were rung.

Erlestoke is a pretty village, and was formerly the property of the Watson-Taylor family who lived at Erlestoke House. The church contains six bells, and a brass plate in the porch records: 'This church, consecrated under the name of the Holy Saviour, was built to the glory of God, by the Lady Hannah Charlotte Watson-Taylor, wife of Simon Watson-Taylor, of Erlestoke Park, in memory of her father, George, 8th Marquis of Tweeddale. A.D. 1880.'

SIX BELLS FOR GOODRICH, HEREFORDSHIRE.

NEW TREBLE DEDICATED.

A new treble bell was dedicated at the Parish Church, Goodrich, Herefordshire, by the Rev. H. L. Bickley, Vicar, on Saturday, May 14th. The Rev. Preb. H. E. Probyn, Rural Dean, and Vicar of Bridstow, and Preb. G. W. Turner, Vicar of Madley and hon. secretary of the Hereford Diocesan Guild, were also present. About 40 ringers from various towers in the Ross district attended the service, which commenced with the hymn 'Ring forth, holy bells,' followed by prayers and Psalm 150. The lesson was read by Preb. Probyn, and after the Magnificat and Creed the dedication took place, followed by a few rounds rung on the bells by the local band.

The address was given by Preb. Turner, who took for his subject 'Bells, and the way in which they are rung.' Mentioning that bell ringing was a subject on which people were ill-informed, Preb. Turner gave a description of how bells were rung, how changes were produced, and said that, owing to the great difficulties of ringing, in his opinion only a small proportion of men became really proficient ringers. He appealed to those parishioners present to take an interest in their ringers, who were not seen at their work like choirmen, but with them contributed equally to the good of the Church.

The service terminated with the singing of the hymn 'Angel voices ever singing' and the Blessing pronounced by the Vicar.

Immediately following, 240 Grandsire Doubles were rung by a selected band. All the ringers present were entertained to tea by the Vicar on the Vicarage lawn, and, following this, the quarterly meeting of the Ross District of the Hereford Guild took place.

The Vicar expressed the regret of all present at the approaching departure of Preb. Probyn for St. Andrew's, Oxford.

Business concluded, ringing was resumed, short touches being the order of the day. All present had an opportunity of ringing in Grandsire and Stedman Doubles and Bob Minor, the Vicar himself ringing the tenor very well to 120 of Doubles.

The work of adding the new treble has been efficiently carried out by Mr. J. E. Groves, of Birmingham, who a few years ago rebung the old five bells in a new iron frame. The 'go' of all the bells was quite satisfactory to the ringers present, and Goodrich now possesses a very musical ring of six bells with a tenor of about 11 cwt.

DEATH OF MR. CHARLES DICKENS. A TRUSTEE OF ST. MARTIN'S GUILD.

Friend after friend departs;
Who hath not lost a friend?—Jas. Montgomery.

As briefly announced in our last issue, Mr. Charles Dickens passed away on Sunday, May 8th, at his residence at Sutton Coldfield. A few months ago Mr. Dickens had a serious illness, only just escaping pneumonia, but he had apparently recovered his usual robust health, and his death from heart failure, which occurred with tragic suddenness in the early hours of the morning, came as a great shock.

Born on March 2nd, 1817, Mr. Dickens, with his brothers Fred and Harry, were members of the Parish Church choir as boys, and curiosity led them to the belfry, where there was at that time a 'stony' band. Their interest being roused, they purchased a set of handbells from Barwell's, and so came in touch with Mr. W. H. Godden (then, as now, employed by Messrs. Barwell). Through this acquaintance they became imbued with a desire to learn change ringing, and eventually Mr. William Kent was engaged as instructor to a band of youngsters, and started them straight away on Stedman, and in a few months they rang their first quarter-peal, which was listened to outside by the late Henry Johnson, Alfred Thomas and Mr. Godden.

Charles Dickens became an excellent ringer, judged by that best of all standards—striking, at which he was an artist. Being a good striker himself, he was impatient with bad or indifferent ones, and nothing annoyed him more than when, meeting for a peal, he would find someone included in the band who was not, in his opinion, a first-class striker.

He had taken part in some noteworthy peals, but had never concerned himself with conducting.

He was also a keen business man, and had built up a good and lucrative business as a painter and decorator. Of late years this business had made such calls upon his time that he had few opportunities for peal ringing, but he had compiled a total of approximately 250, more than 200 of which were rung for the St. Martin's Guild, the rest being rung for the Staffordshire, Worcestershire, Midland Counties and Middlesex County Associations.

Mr. Dickens took part in the 11,111 Stedman Cinques at St. Martin's, Birmingham, on December 26th, 1901, in 8 hrs. 2 mins., also the first peals of Cambridge in the City of Birmingham and Bristol in the county of Warwick. His first peal was one of Stedman Triples at Perry Barr, on July 27th, 1889.

He was elected a trustee of St. Martin's Guild in 1912 on the death of Thomas Reynolds, and held this office till the end.

Of powerful build and genial disposition, he was a well-known figure at Birmingham ringers' gatherings, and will be sadly missed by many.

The funeral took place at Sutton on Thursday of last week, the Rector officiating. After the committal sentences, a course of Grand sire Triples was rung round the grave by A. Walker 1-2, T. Russam 3-4, G. F. Swann 5-6, J. George 7-8. In the evening, a quarter-peal was rung on the Parish Church bells half-muffled, also the 'whole pull and stand' 56 times, denoting the age of deceased.

Chief mourners at the funeral were the widow and son (Maurice), Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dickens, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dickens and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dickens, Mrs. Woodford (London) (brothers and sisters-in-law); Mrs. E. Hall and daughter, Cheltenham (sister and niece); and Mrs. C. E. Hosted.

The bearers were Messrs. T. Hardy, P. Cassidy, A. Jeffs, George Smith, W. Betts, and G. Swann.

Among others present were Mrs. B. Witchell, and Messrs. Simpson, J. Adcock, Frank Lamb, D. Whittaker, J. Stevens, J. and A. Wood, and S. Tiribby.

On Tuesday evening, several touches of Stedman Cinques were rung on the half-muffled bells of St. Martin's, also the 'whole pull and stand' 56 times by the following: P. O. Laffin 1, E. T. Allaway 2, Fred Dickens 3, Albert Walker 4, James George 5, Morris J. Morris 6, F. Price 7, J. Pemberton 8, Ernest Mansell 9, John Neal 10, A. Paddon Smith 11, W. T. Froggatt 12.

And thus the Guild says 'Goodbye' to one who had been a loyal, capable and highly esteemed member for nearly forty years.

Charles Dickens was called away when he was apparently enjoying the best of health, at the comparatively early age of 56, leaving a widow and one son to mourn their loss.

Catch, then, oh catch the transient hour;

Improve each moment as it flies!

Life's a short summer, man a flower;

He dies—alas! how soon he dies!

Samuel Johnson.

'SPliced' MINOR.

At Stapleford, Cambs, on Wednesday, May 18th, a spliced 720 of London and Wells Surprise: E. G. Hibbins 1, Miss K. Willers 2, W. A. Tack 3, A. E. Austin 4, R. Howard 5, E. H. Finch (conductor) 6. First 720 of spliced Surprise by all, and rung at the first attempt. Rung as the result of a visit to Chigwell on May 7th of two of the band, who wish to express their appreciation of the welcome received and the trouble taken to explain method splicing.

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD. PORTSMOUTH DISTRICT'S RECORD MEETING.

A quarterly meeting of the Portsmouth District was held at Hambledon on Saturday last, and although the weather was somewhat uncertain, over 60 members and friends were present from Alverstoke, Bramshott, Fareham, Havant, Hambledon, North Stoneham, Netley, Portsmouth (St. Mary's and St. Thomas'), Swanmore and Wickham, together with the Master and general secretary. The peal of six were kept busy during the afternoon until 4.30, when a very enjoyable service was held in the church, at which the Vicar (Rev. E. Kynaston) officiated. An excellent tea was provided at the George Hotel, and although more attended than was expected, they were all provided for in a short time.

The business meeting, which followed, was presided over by the Vicar, who is an honorary member of the Guild. Two probationers from St. Mary's, Portsmouth, were elected.

It was a very pleasant surprise to the members to see their old district secretary, Mr. E. J. Harding, sen., with them again, after an absence of over two years, and the Master said that it gave him great pleasure to propose that Mr. Harding be re-elected a member.—Mr. F. S. Bayley (Fareham) endorsed the Master's remarks, and the meeting unanimously supported the election.—Mr. Harding replied, saying that he was very pleased to be with them all again, and he hoped he would be spared to be amongst them more in the future.

Petersfield, Curdridge and East Meon were proposed as the venue of the next meeting, and on being put to the vote it was decided to hold it at East Meon on August 20th, due notice of which will appear in 'The Ringing World.'

The question of the Guild certificates was raised by Mr. W. E. Hunt (Hambledon), and the general secretary replied that he was only awaiting the signature of the Bishop, which is usually attached to them, before he distributed them to the district secretaries.

On the motion of Mr. T. Taylor, the meeting extended congratulations to Mr. G. Williams on his 70th birthday, which took place recently.

Votes of thanks were accorded the Vicar for the use of the bells and also to the organist, and before the meeting closed a course of Grand sire Caters was rung in hand by F. A. Burnett 1-2, F. S. Bayley 3-4, G. Williams 5-6, F. W. Rogers 7-8, T. R. Taylor 9-10, at the local ringers' request. The members then returned to the tower for further ringing in various methods, including Cambridge Surprise.

As there was such a large gathering, the Portsmouth contingent, who had made the journey by road, together with Messrs. Williams, Pullinger, Bayley and Linter, visited Soberton, where ready permission was given to ring, and an enjoyable hour was spent in methods from Stedman, Double Norwich, Cambridge and Bristol Surprise Major.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD. NORTHERN BRANCH AT SLEAFORD.

For the first time since the formation of the new district for Sleaford, the annual meeting of the Northern Branch was held at that place on Saturday, May 14th. The hearty welcome extended by the members of that tower, and the excellent arrangements made for the comfort of the visitors, could not otherwise than impress gratitude and pleasure. Amongst the towers represented were the following: Basingham, Blankney, Branston, Ewerby, Gainsborough, Hale Magna, Heckington, Lea, Lincoln, Ruskington, Timberland, and Washington, in addition to the local company. Members of the Guild were also present from Pinchbeck, Spalding, and Surfleet of the Elloe Deaneries Branch, and Folkingham and Hough-on-the-Hill of the Southern Branch. An apology for absence was announced on behalf of Messrs. H. I. Bingay and C. W. Taylor, Grimsby. The bells of St. Deny's, a nice ring of eight, were available, and were kept going in various methods during the afternoon and evening. Evensong was held in the side chapel, and very well attended. The Vicar of Sleaford (Rev. W. Norton Howe) officiated, and Mr. R. Scott (secretary of the Sleaford District) presided at the organ. A most attractive address was delivered by the Rev. H. Law James (Guild Ringing Master).

Subsequently, between eighty and ninety members and friends adjourned to the Church Hall, where they partook of an excellent tea.

The business meeting followed, at which Mr. F. F. Linley (Northern Branch president) took the chair, being supported by the Rev. R. Bond (president of the Lincoln District) and members of the committee. The whole of the officers were re-elected. Six new honorary and thirteen performing members were elected.

On the recommendation of the committee, Mr. J. A. Freeman, proposed and Mr. E. Dawber seconded, that a grant of £3 5s. be made from the Northern Branch funds towards the re-hanging of Heckington bells.—On being put to the meeting this was carried.—A collection for the same purpose was taken at the service and tea tables, which realised the sum of £1 17s. 3d., thus bringing the amount to £5 0s. 3d.

In response to a desire from the members present, the president gave an account of the progress being made respecting the augmentation of the Cathedral bells, which proved most satisfactory.

Votes of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells, the Rev. H. Law James for his address, Mr. R. Scott for presiding at the organ and making the necessary arrangements, the caterers and Mr. Linley concluded the business.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

The annual meeting of the North Berkshire Branch was held at Blewbury on Saturday, May 21st. By 3 p.m. there was a strong muster of ringers, and some well-struck touches were rung for the service, which was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. J. Smith, and the Rev. C. W. O. Jonkyn, M.C., Master of the Guild, who gave the address. After service, about 60 members and friends were very kindly entertained to tea in the schoolroom by the ladies and churchwardens.

At the business meeting which followed, the secretary and treasurer's report showed the branch to be in a flourishing condition, both as regards members and funds, though during the year no less than £8 was spent in grants towards restorations and repairs of peals.

It was decided to hold next meeting at Stevenon in September.

LADIES' GUILD.

A quarterly meeting of the Southern District was held at St. Peter's, Staines, on Saturday last, ringers attending from Aldershot, Ash, Brixton, Cranleigh, Enfield, Feltham, Guildford, Hounslow, Hillingdon, Norwood, Uxbridge, Seale and the local towers.

Various touches (including two by a band of ladies) were rung, and then the Guild service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. F. Marriott).

The members were afterwards entertained by the Vicar to a splendid tea.

At the business meeting, with Miss E. K. Parker in the chair, Miss Hodgson, of Staines, and Miss Bailey, of Ash, were elected members, and Leatherhead chosen for the next quarterly meeting in September.

St. Mary's Church was then visited, and the bells kept going until members were obliged to catch trains, etc.

ANOTHER RING OF SIX FOR HANTS.

On Easter Sunday, during morning service, a new treble bell at the Church of SS. Peter and Paul, King's Somborne, Hants, was dedicated by the Vicar.

The old ring of five bells have been away to the Croydon Foundry to be retuned and the new treble added by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, who have made a good splice and carried out the job in their usual excellent style, and King's Somborne now possesses a handy ring of six with a tenor of 12½ cwt.

A special service was held in the evening, the preacher being the Bishop of Southampton. A service touch of 720 Bob Minor was rung by the following members of the Winchester Diocesan Guild: H. C. Nettie 1, G. Pullinger 2, H. Cook 3, G. Noice 4, A. Goulding 5, W. Andrews (conductor) 6.

Prior to the service, the ringers were very kindly entertained to tea by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Smith. The Vicar presided, and mentioned that although a brass tablet in the church stated that the new treble bell was given by public subscription, it was due mainly to the efforts of Mr. Smith that it was accomplished.

The bells were open for ringing on Easter Monday, and Mr. C. Johnston kindly travelled all the way from Coventry in order to be present, and members of the Guild attended from Winchester Cathedral and Stockbridge, good use being made of the bells.

Messrs. Gillett and Johnston have in hand the recasting of the six bells at Ropley, Hants, which are to be dedicated by the Bishop of Winchester on May 4th.

THE SUPERLATIVE CONTROVERSY.

The Central Council will be asked to solve a pretty little problem at its meeting next Tuesday, when the Rev. H. Law James will request the members to say, in effect, that the peal of Maximus recently rung at Ipswich was not Superlative Surprise. His motion is: 'That since William Shipway extended Superlative Surprise Major to Royal and the first peal of Royal was rung at Wakefield in 1826, the Council cannot accept any extension to Maximus which does not agree with the Major and Royal.' Will the Council once again have to admit its inability to settle the dispute? This is not the first occasion on which the extension of Superlative has been before the central body. In 1912, at Newcastle, Mr. James brought forward a motion designed to establish that Shipway's Superlative Royal was the correct extension of the Major. It was adjourned for a year to give the members time to consider the question, and at Winchester it was withdrawn after an amendment had been suggested that the Council did not feel competent to decide the matter.

Since that time various things have happened. The discovery was made that Shipway's Royal had been rung at Wakefield and recorded as Superlative, and a peal in the same method has been rung at Surfleet. Great controversy raged round the question, a rival school of thought contending that Shipway's extension is not the true extension. Then came the peal of Maximus at Ipswich, in a method different to Shipway's, and held to be the correct extension from the Major by those who differ from Mr. Law James. It is hardly possible, we think, for a large gathering such as will be present at the Mansion House on Tuesday to sit in judgment on such a contentious matter. To settle questions of this kind it needs, in the Council's organisation, a kind of Court of Appeal, which should consist, as it were, of the 'Law Lords,' that is of those members of the Exercise—not necessarily members of the Council—who have a really intimate knowledge of the technicalities of matters of this kind. They could hear the arguments and examine the figures of both sides, and then embody their views in the report to the Council. There are at least a dozen men in the Exercise capable of dealing with a subject such as this, and the Council, in forming its 'Court' to settle a controversy, could draw upon those who have remained outside the discussion.

At present, of course, no such means of settling disagreements in the Exercise exists, and a very few members of the Council will feel justified in giving a vote on such a subject unless confronted with overwhelming evidence. In the case of Superlative Surprise, the Council is facéd with the fact that the name of 'Superlative Royal' was given to a method rung over a hundred years ago, and we have had strong evidence recently that it has no desire to interfere with names given to methods by our ancestors, or even by our contemporaries if they can get their peal in first. The members are asked to make up their minds whether Shipway and Mr. Law James are right, and the several authors who independently evolved the Maximus are wrong; or whether the reverse is the case. In our view the mere ringing of a peal under some particular name does not necessarily justify the perpetual adoption of that name, but whether the Council will feel able to say which side is right and which is wrong in the Superlative controversy is doubtful.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

A QUAIN BOOK.

BY J. ARMIGER TROLLOPE.

At the end of Mr. Lukis' article, to which I have referred in previous 'Notes by the Way,' is a list of works on bells published up to that time (1855). This was supplied by the Rev. H. T. Ellacombe. The first thirty-nine books on the list were published abroad, chiefly in Germany or Rome. More than half the number are written in Latin, and are evidently very learned works. Copies of these can occasionally be picked up, and recently the catalogue of a Cambridge bookseller was sent to me which contained a couple, both in Latin and both early seventeenth century. The prices, if I remember, were quite moderate.

The list of English books on ringing is interesting, and I give it in full:—

Tintinnalogia, or the Art of Ringing improved, by T. W(hite). 18mo. 1668. This is the book alluded to by Dr. Burney in his History of Music, vol. iv., p. 415.

Campanalogia, or the Art of Ringing improved. 18mo. This was by Fabian Stedman.

Campanalogia improved, by I. D. and C. M., London Scholars. 18mo. 1702.

Ditto, second edition. 12mo. 1705.

Ditto, third edition. 12mo. 1733.

Ditto, fourth edition. 12mo. 1753.

Ditto, fifth edition, by J. Monk. 18mo. 1766.

The School of Recreation, or Gentleman's Tutor in various exercises, one of which is ringing. 1684.

Clavis Campanalogia, by Jones, Reeves and Blackmore. 12mo. 1768. Reprinted in 1796 and 1800?

The Ringers' True Guide, by S. Beaufoy. 12mo. 1804.

The Campanalogia, or Universal Instructor in the Art of Ringing, by William Shipway. 12mo. 1816.

Elements of Campanalogia, by H. Hubbard. 12mo. 1845, 1854.

The Bell, its origin, history and uses, by Rev. A. Gatty. 12mo. 1847.

Ditto, enlarged. 1848.

Blunt's Use and Abuse of Church Bells. 8vo. 1846.

Ellacombe's practical remarks on Belfries and Ringers. 8vo. 1850.

Ellacombe's Paper on Bells, with illustrations, in the Report of the Bristol Architectural Society. 1850.

Croome's Few Words on Bells and Bell Ringing. 8vo. 1851.

Woolf's Address on the Science of Campanology. Tract. 1851.

Plain Hints to Bell Ringers. No. 47 of Parochial Tracts. 1852.

The Art of Change Ringing, by B. Thackrah. 12mo. 1852.

Quarterly Review. Art. Church Bells. September, 1854.

Osborn's Manuscripts. Additional MSS., Nos. 19,368 and 19,373.

At the time this list was drawn up Mr. Lukis evidently had not yet obtained possession of his copy of the 'Tintinnalogia,' for it is said to be by T. White. White's book, 'A Rich Cabinet of Inventions,' was published in 1677, and the chapter on change ringing was re-issued about 1700 under the title of 'Tintinnalogia.' I have never seen a copy of Beaufoy's 'The Ringer's True Guide,' nor yet of Blunt's, Croome's or Woolf's books. It would be interesting to know if any ringer owns one, or if they are in any public library.

Yet another has to be added to this list. This is a book entitled 'The Shepherd's Kalender or the Citizen's and Country Man's Daily Companion.' It is a little book of 157 pages, and is dated 1702. I know of only one copy. It belongs to Mr. E. M. Atkins, and was picked up some years ago in the sixpenny box of a second hand book shop. In the preface the author tells us that: 'In this Labour'd Work you will find so many Useful and Profitable Things, that I am persuaded to be Constrained to acknowledge you never before found the like in any (of what Volume soever) and I have digested them into so Easie a Method that any ordinary Capacity may Comprehend what has so long been handled in Ambiguous Sentences, Dark and Abstruse, to keep all but those that are very learned in Ignorance.' What these so many Useful and Profitable Things are we may learn from the title page, where they are given as 'many Things that are Useful and Profitable to Man-kind with above Two Hundred Wonderful Curiosities, never before Published. Also, a Discourse of the Eclipses of the Sun and Moon with Rules to know when they will happen. Infallible Signs of the Weather. To know when Wet or Dry, and when sudden Storms arises. Hot or Cold Weather by living Creatures, A Curious Observation never made Public before.

'An Account of the Lucky and Unlucky Days throughout the Year. The Mosaick Wand to find out Hidden Treasures; The Calculation of Nativities and to Resolve all Lawful Questions.

'To which is added,

'The Country Man's Almanack, Directing when to Bleed and Dyet the Body; A Treatise of Bees, Warrens, ordering of Cattle, Hawks, and how to Kill Vermin. The Measuring Land and Timber: The Art of Ringing: The true Value or Worth of a Single Penny: Or a Caution to keep Money.

'Being above Forty Years' Study and Experience of a Learned Shepherd.'

If I had space I should like to quote some of the many recipes given, and perhaps some of my readers might put them in practice and see how they worked. For instance, if you want to stop a dog barking at you in the night time you must take the skin off the Forehead of an Hyena, boil it and smock it over the burnt Hoof of a Cow twice or thrice, and so carry it about with you, and so long as you do this the dogs will not only be silent, but run away from you as fast as they can. Which is a very useful thing to know. So, too, are the rules for keeping away ghosts and how to know what to do when you are in love, and much more.

Among all this quaint matter a treatise on ringing seems odd enough, but our learned shepherd was evidently a keen member of the Exercise and could not forbear to include a chapter on his favourite pastime. He promises us a plain and easie Introduction to the Most Curious Art, and healthful Exercise of Ringing Musically on 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 or 9 Bells. But he hardly keeps his promise. He goes no further than 'The Old Trebles and Doubles on Six Bells,' which is a plain course of Bob Minor. He thus begins his chapter: 'Since a Knowledge of this Art has been much desired by many and is a very Healthful as well as Pleasant Exercise, I have placed an Introduction to Young Ringers in this so useful a Book of Rareties, though at first sight it may appear a Digression from the rest; however since I have designed this Work to fit every one as near as may be I cannot but Conclude that this will be desired by many and cannot be hurtful to none.'

BARNSELEY AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

The monthly meeting of the Barnsley and District Association was held at Felkirk on Saturday, May 14th, when members attended from Barnsley, Wath, Sandal, Horbury, Royston, Crofton, Wortley, Armley, Hoylandswaine, Cawthorne, Darfield, South Kirkby, and the local company. Ringing commenced at 3 p.m., and at the invitation of the Vicar (Rev. H. S. P. Coster) a short service was held, which was well attended. Tea followed in the old schoolroom, to which about 30 sat down.

At the business meeting, the Vicar presiding, a vote of condolence was passed with the relatives of Mr. F. Edwards, a late member of the South Kirkby company and a chorister, the members standing for a few moments in silence.

Wentworth and Shelley were proposed for next meeting, Wentworth being selected by 15 votes to 8.

A hearty vote of thanks was unanimously passed to the Vicar and churchwardens, and to the local company for their hearty welcome.

Afterwards, ringing continued in various methods until 9 p.m., when the members made tracks for home highly satisfied with the day's proceedings.

SWANSEA AND BRECON DIOCESAN GUILD. THIRD ANNUAL RINGING COMPETITION.

To comply with the general request that the annual ringing competition be held on the Saturday nearest Empire Day, the third contest was held at the tower of St. Elli's Church, Llanelli, Breconshire, on Saturday, May 21st. The church is delightfully situated, overlooking the valley, leading from Crickhowell to Abergavenny, and possesses a fine peal of six bells, the tenor being between 400 and 500 years old. The competition was open to members of the Guild, a shield being presented to the winning band. Several bands (competitors last year) were unable to attend this year's competition. The Guild was again fortunate in getting Mr. W. H. Fussell, of Slough, to act as adjudicator, and he carried out his duties in his usual satisfactory way. The order of ringing and the points obtained by the several bands were:—

St. David's, Brecon	191
Cadoxton	227
Llanelli	231
St. Mary's, Brecon	186
Llangatlock	201
Baglan	216

The maximum number of points obtainable was 240. Llanelli headed the competition, but owing to a rule that a local tower should be handicapped nine points, they were relegated to second place. Cadoxton were thus the winners, and they have now won the shield two years in succession. Certificates were presented to the first three teams.

Mr. Fussell, in his report, complimented the Guild on such a good muster, and stated that the standard of ringing was not up to that of previous competitions. Several of the bands competing last year have broken up, and the new ringers have made great strides in the art of change ringing. The teams kept fairly good compass, and were fairly efficient in the methods rung.

The company present were entertained to a cold luncheon at the Church Hall, when the Rector, the Reverend W. Gurnos Davies, was in the chair. He was supported at the cross table by the Rev. T. W. B. Thomas (curate), Rev. E. R. J. Jones (Brecon), Rev. H. C. Willis (Brynmawr), Mr. W. R. Williams (churchwarden), Mr. W. H. Fussell (adjudicator), Mr. Charles Powell (hon. treasurer), and the hon. secretary stated that the completed design had that day been handed him.

The competition commenced at 11 a.m., and terminated at 4 p.m. Tea was served at 6.30 p.m., the adjudicator afterwards delivering his award. The shield was presented to Mr. J. E. Bloxham, the captain of Cadoxton band, by Mrs. Davies, the Rector's wife, whilst the certificates were presented by Mr. W. R. Williams (churchwarden).

The thanks of the ringers were heartily accorded the Rector, Mrs. Davies, and the ladies who were responsible for the catering, on the proposition of Rev. T. R. Jones. After the Rector and his warden had responded, three hearty cheers were accorded them all. Mr. W. H. Fussell came in for very special thanks, and the hon. secretary, in proposing them, remarked how greatly they were indebted to Mr. Fussell for having journeyed from Slough at great inconvenience to fulfil his duties so well. Mr. Fussell had previously promised to present the Guild with a design for their membership card, and the hon. secretary stated that the completed design had that day been handed him by Mr. Fussell, who, it may be added, had spent a great deal of his time in executing the beautiful and appropriate work shown thereon. Members present were afforded an opportunity of inspecting the design. It is hoped to have the certificates ready for the annual meeting, when the Lord Bishop has intimated his desire to present them to the captains of the several towers.

Led by the Rev. W. Gurnos Davies, three hearty cheers were accorded Mr. Fussell for the great interest he has taken in the Guild since its formation four years ago, to which he suitably responded.

GARSTON BELLS REHUNG.

Garston Parish Church bells have been rehung in ball bearings by a local firm, and they were opened for ringing on Saturday last. Ringers attended from Grassendale, Halewood, Hale, Birkenhead, Woolton, Frodsham, and the local company. A service was held, in which Archdeacon Howson and Canon Rowe took part, and an address was given by Canon Elsee (president of the Lancashire Association).

Touches in a variety of methods were rung on the bells, and the 'go' gave satisfaction to all present.

DARLINGTON RINGER'S FATAL FALL.

Mr. Fred Cooke, a member of the band of St. John's, Darlington, died in Greenbank Hospital, on May 21st, as the result of a fall. The deceased, who was 51 years of age, was by trade a joiner, and was fixing new spouting to the roof of a house when the ladder on which he was standing slipped, and he fell to the ground. He received severe head injuries, to which he later succumbed.

He was a member of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association and the Cleveland and North Yorkshire Association, and will be much missed in the belfry at St. John's.

On Sunday evening, May 22nd, his colleagues rang a half-muffled touch of 1,008 Grandsire Triples: T. Scollick 1, A. Coates 2, F. W. Johnson, jun., 3, F. W. Johnson, sen., 4, J. W. Dawson 5, W. Broadley (conductor) 6, H. Taylor 7, H. Broadley 8.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Mr. E. H. Lewis, who from 1914 was works manager of the Glasgow Iron and Steel Company, Ltd., one of the most important under-ribs of its kind in Scotland, has been appointed general manager. For four years Mr. Lewis was president of the West of Scotland Iron and Steel Institute, and as a speaker and writer on matters relating to the industry has made valuable public contributions.

As a ringer, Mr. Lewis has also done a great deal of work for the Exercise, the most important, perhaps, being his investigations into the strains and stresses set up by bells in motion, and their effects upon church towers. Mr. Lewis represents Cambridge University Guild upon the Central Council, and is a member of the Methods Committee and the Towers and Belfries Committee. The great claims of business have prevented him taking much active part in ringing in recent years.

Some idea of the importance of the concern of which Mr. Lewis is now the head may be judged from the fact that the company works six collieries at Wishaw and Motherwell; the Wishaw Iron Works, Wishaw Cement Works, Wishaw Ammonia Works, Harburn Limestone Mines, in Midlothian; and the Lamplugh Iron Ore Mines in Cumberland.

Mr. Edwin Shepherd, who has been for so many years a stalwart in the Devon Guild, and who is chairman of the Exeter Branch, reached his 100th year for the Guild last Saturday, and is, we believe, the first to do so, although Mr. F. J. Davey, if he has not actually reached the century, is very close indeed.

It is never too late to begin ringing, or to ring one's first peal. Mr. George Henwood, of Milton, Berks, has rung his first 5,040 when in his 70th year.

A secretary for the Canterbury District of the Kent County Association has at length been found, the duties, which for some time have been temporarily discharged by the general secretary, the Rev. F. J. O. Helmore, having been taken over by Mr. Percy Smith, of Fairview, Littlebourne.

A sum of about £350 is required for the restoration of the tower and bells at Tilsforth, a little Bedfordshire village with about 160 inhabitants. A fete in aid of the fund is to be held to-morrow, and ringers will be welcome. Those who cannot go, can send their contributions to the Vicar. Any help will be much appreciated.

A new banking company, writes a correspondent, has been formed for the special benefit of bell ringers, with offices at Warrington—Messrs. Soundbow, Headstock and Co., Ltd.

Mr. Wm. Keeble, of Kelvedon, Essex, recently lost his eldest son, killed on the road by a motor lorry whilst cycling to his work. All ringers will sympathise with the family in their bereavement.

A team of touring ringers propose to visit Scotland in June, and hope to attain the distinction of being the first peal band to ring in kilts. The company will include such well-known men as 'Harry,' of Manchester, and it would be worth a long journey to see him ringing in the Scots' national dress, complete with sporran.

At the annual meeting of the Beaconsfield company on May 23rd, Mr. R. Buckland was elected to the office of foreman of the belfry for the year.

STEDMAN DOUBLES.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Your readers may be interested to have a few details of the arrangement of the six-scores rung in the peal of Stedman Doubles at Bishop's Hull on Empire Day. Some five or six years ago I worked out the whole extent of Stedman Doubles. Fifteen 120's were well known at the time, viz., 10 with two singles and five with four singles. To these I added 165 more, starting from the 11 remaining ways, making a total to be rung with two singles 120, and another 60 with four singles, grand total 180.

The peal at Bishop's Hull was selected from these. The calling of each was strictly adhered to, viz., singles on 1-2, 1-3, 1-4, 1-5, 2-3, 2-4, 2-5, 3-4, 3-5, and 4-5; and two 120's with four singles, 1-2, 3-4 repeated; 2-3, 4-5 repeated. I may add the peal was not rung at the first attempt.—Yours faithfully,

Taunton.

JAMES HUNT.

HOYLANDSWAINE RINGER WEDDED.

On Easter Monday, the marriage took place at St. John's Church, Hoylandswaine, of Miss Alice Simpson and Mr. Fred Broadhead, the ceremony being performed by the Vicar (Rev. J. Hewetson). The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. W. Simpson, is a Sunday School teacher attached to the above church, and the bridegroom, the eldest son of Mr. W. Broadhead, is a local ringer and a member of the choir. Immediately after the ceremony, the bells pealed forth their joyful music, and 720 of Oxford Treble Bob Minor was brought round by: W. Marsden 1, L. Wilkinson (conductor) 2, W. Chappell 3, E. Crosland 4, S. Fielding 5, E. Brookes 6.—A 360 in the same method was also rung by: E. Crosland 1, L. Wilkinson (conductor) 2, W. Chappell 3, S. Fielding 4, T. Noble 5, E. Brookes 6. Afterwards, the ringers adjourned to the Rose and Crown, the bride's home, where a reception was held, and were just in time to convey to the happy couple their best wishes for their future happiness, before their departure for Blackpool, where the honeymoon is being spent.

The ringing was also in honour of the 21st anniversary of the conductor's wedding day.

THE CENTRAL COUNCIL. WHITSUNTIDE ARRANGEMENTS.

Among the arrangements which are being made for the enjoyment of visitors to London in connection with the Central Council meeting, are river trips, social gatherings, and plenty of opportunities for ringing.

The private launch, 'Sovereign' (accommodation about 65), has been reserved for the Council. The party will leave Westminster on Sunday afternoon at 2.25 sharp, and, proceeding down the river for Greenwich, will leave to at Bankside for the purpose of hearing St. Paul's bells from the water. The famous Greenwich Naval Hospital will be visited, also Greenwich Park and Observatory, and the party will return at 6.30. Charge, including tea, about 4s. (according to number). Names to be given in early to the hon. secretary, Mr. E. A. Young.

A personally conducted party, provided sufficient number of names are sent in, will be taken to Kew Gardens on the Bank Holiday afternoon. In the morning, a visit to the dome of St. Paul's, or other place of interest, will be arranged if a sufficient number so desire.

RINGING.

The following towers will be open for ringing:—

Sunday, June 5th: St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, 5 p.m.; St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, 5.15 p.m.; St. Giles', Cripplegate, 5.30 p.m.

On Saturday, June 4th, visitors will be welcomed at St. Mary's Church, Ealing, between 6 and 9 p.m.

Mr. W. E. Garrard will be pleased to welcome visiting ringers to St. Mary Abbots, Kensington, on Whit Sunday, at 10.50 a.m. and 5.45 p.m., and on Whit Monday at 10.30 a.m.

Should any of the Central Council members care to visit one of the rural beauty spots of Kent, there will be ringing at Chislehurst Parish Church on Whit Sunday, at 9.30 a.m. and 5.30 p.m. Trains every half-hour from Charing Cross and London Bridge (ten miles).

Visitors will also be welcome at All Saints', Fulham, on Sunday, from 4.30 to 6.30 p.m.

THE COUNCIL'S BALANCE SHEET.

The balance sheet for the year ending Whitsuntide, 1927, is as follows:

Receipts: Balance in bank £67 6s., affiliation fees £14 2s. 6d.; interest on stock £4 2s. 5d., sale of publications £7 10s. 5d.; total, £93 1s. 4d.

Expenditure: Committee expenses, Rev. A. T. Beeston (records) £1 17s. 2d., Mr. E. A. Young (postage, stationery, etc.) £7 9s. 4d.; 'Ringing World' (printing) £38 16s.; balance in bank £44 18s. 10d.; total, £93 1s. 4d.

ANOTHER LONG PEAL ATTEMPT IN LANCASHIRE.

A RECORD LENGTH.

All being well, eight members of the Lancashire Association intend to attempt on Saturday, June 11th, at the Church of St. Leonard-the-Less, Samlesbury, near Preston, a long peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major, 22,086 changes, starting at 7 a.m. The tenor here is 18 cwt.

Mr. E. Jenkins writes that some apology is perhaps due for this rather late notice. Application was made for Mottram bells on May 3rd for this event, but the answer 'No' did not arrive until May 21st, which has left very little time to arrange for another tower. Samlesbury are 'O.K.' except the ropes, but it is hoped to obtain a new set in time for the peal.

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

On Saturday, May 28th, a quarterly meeting of the Christchurch District was held at Fordingbridge, those present including Mr. G. Williams (Master), Mr. G. Pullinger (general secretary), Mr. Preston (district secretary), Mr. Townsend (Poole), Mr. Romaine (Salisbury), and members from Brockenhurst, Bournemouth, Christchurch, Ringwood, Fareham, North Stonham, Poole and Salisbury. Mr. J. H. Shepherd, of Swindon, was also a very welcome visitor, and added one more to his already long list of towers.

The bells have recently been put in order by Messrs. Taylor and Co., the fifth, sixth and seventh have been recast, the others retuned and the whole rehung with ball bearings, and the work has been carried out in the usual excellent style of this firm. Fordingbridge now possesses a very musical octave with a tenor of 14 cwt.

At the business meeting, which was presided over by the Master, it was decided to hold a meeting at Milford-on-Sea in September, the date to be left to the discretion of the district secretary.

Mr. Rolls (Salisbury) was elected a compounding member, and votes of thanks passed to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells. The methods rung were Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob, Kent, Double Norwich and Cambridge Major.

SPICED SURPRISE MAJOR.

5,408 OF LONDON, SUPERLATIVE, CAMBRIDGE AND BRISTOL.
BY THE REV. H. LAW JAMES.

The plain course: 2345678

4263857 London.

3527486 Cambridge or Superlative.

23456 M W H

The second W and the second M are produced by inserting a lead of Bristol.

Four times repeated.

Also five more parts starting from 54326.

Join the two five parts together by omitting the 2W in the first course of any one of the first five parts (omitting the lead of Bristol), which comes to the W in one of the second five parts. Ring these five parts and omit the W to get back into the first five parts.

Reduce to 5,024 by omitting the last two M in a part and the first M in the next part, and do this a second time.

This ingenious production by the Rev. H. Law James will be studied with interest by Surprise ringers. That a true peal containing these four methods is possible will come as a revelation to many.

An attempt was made to ring it at Warnham, Sussex, on Saturday, but, although the band were experienced Surprise ringers, they were unsuccessful.

BIRMINGHAM AND SHEFFIELD RINGERS.

FRATERNAL MEETING AT DUFFIELD.

For very many years, a great bond of friendship has existed between Sheffield and Birmingham, and periodical visits by Birmingham men to Sheffield, and vice versa, have been paid.

Thanks to a happy thought on the part of Mr. Albert Walker, Birmingham, this feeling of friendship was still further cemented by a gathering which took place at Duffield on Saturday, May 28th.

A more ideal place could hardly have been conceived, for Duffield lies practically half-way between the two towns. Not only was it suitable by virtue of position, but Duffield was for many years the home of the late Sir Arthur P. Heywood, and meeting together on this spot conjured in the minds of many of those present many incidents and associations in connection with that past giant in the art.

Upwards of 50 ringers were present—22 from Birmingham, 20 from Sheffield, and the remainder from Derby and Duffield. The Birmingham contingent called at Derby on their way to Duffield, and arrangements had been made for them to ring at St. Andrew's, where they found an excellent ring of ten bells recently augmented and retuned by Messrs. Taylor and Co. These bells called forth a good deal of admiration, and Stedman Caters and Cambridge Royal were soon brought round.

Thanks were expressed to the Ringing Master of St. Andrew's, Mr. C. E. Hart, for arranging for permission to ring, and to Messrs. A. H. Ward, W. Wallis and C. Draper for meeting the visitors.

The party then proceeded by bus to Duffield, where the Sheffield men were waiting. Ringing in various methods took place, including London Surprise Major, Cambridge Royal, Duffield Royal, Stedman and Grandsire Caters, etc.

A substantial meat tea was awaiting the visitors at the Bridge Inn, and afterwards Alderman J. S. Pritchett, Ringing Master of St. Martin's Guild, briefly referred to the happy relations between Sheffield and Birmingham. He said he was glad to have the opportunity of visiting Duffield, and to pay a tribute to the splendid work done by the late Sir Arthur Heywood. They were also pleased to see with them that day Mr. Thos. Russam, a well-known and respected Birmingham ringer.

Mr. Percy J. Johnson and Mr. S. F. Palmer also expressed the pleasure of the Yorkshiremen at being present, Mr. Palmer saying that all credit for the organisation of the gathering was entirely due to Mr. Albert Walker.

Mr. Walker expressed thanks to the Vicar of St. Andrew's, Derby, and to the Vicar of Duffield, for so readily giving permission to ring, and specially thanked Mr. and Mrs. S. Dawson, of Duffield, for making such splendid arrangements for the comfort of the visitors.

During the afternoon, a collection was made towards the restoration of Duffield bells, and a pleasant evening was afterwards spent renewing old friendships and with the handbells. It was decided unanimously to make the affair an annual event.

LONG SERVICE.

At St. Mary's Church, Broughton Astley, Leicestershire, on May 25th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles (1,260 changes) in 48 mins.: W. Arnold 1, J. Brunt 2, C. Carr 3, A. Bodycote 4, H. Bird (conductor) 5. Rung on his 70th birthday, as a compliment to the ringer of the 2nd, the captain of the local band and a service ringer at the church for 54 years.

NORTH NOTTS ASSOCIATION. ANNUAL FESTIVAL.

The 41st annual festival of the above association was held at East Retford on Saturday last, when ringers were present from Anston, Barlborough, Collingham, Cuckney, Edwinstowe, Gamston, Gainsborough, Rotherham, Tickhill, Shireoaks, Sutton-on-Trent, Misterton, Wheatley, Warsop, Worksop, East Retford and Ordsall. The three towers, East Retford (10), Ordsall (6), and West Retford (6), were available, by permission of incumbents, from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m., and the following methods were rung: At East Retford, Grandsire Triples, Grandsire Caters, Stedman Triples, Bob Major and Kent Treble Bob Major; and at West Retford and Ordsall, methods from Plain Bob to Cambridge Surprise. At the service an eloquent and appropriate address was delivered by the Rev. Alfred Parkinson from St. Luke xiv. 17. The preacher dealt with the duties of ringers and the encouragement they should receive from the clergy, the disappointments the enthusiasts had to put up with in all games and pursuits of life. Being a great footballer and cricketer himself, he knew how trying it was for half a dozen men only to turn up to time for a game where 11 players were required, and the other five to come later or send the most frivolous excuses for absenting themselves. The leaders had to enlist the service of substitutes, and carry on the game with a brave spirit and make many sacrifices. Was it not the same in bell ringing, and more difficult, too, where substitutes could not be found? Yet the leaders went on year by year in country villages and towns, and tried to carry on bravely. He appealed to all present to take the greatest interest in their noble art, and to put life and inspiration into their leaders by attending all practices and Sunday ringing regularly and punctually.

Tea was served at Cooke's Cafe, where 55 sat down, presided over by the Rev. A. Parkinson. At the business meeting which followed, the hon. secretary's report was accepted. It dealt with the year's work in detail, and hinted at his resignation on account of increasing ties and advancing years.

The hon. secretary, however, agreed to accept office for another two years, and all other officers, including the president, vice-presidents, and assistant secretary, were re-elected on bloc.

The next meeting will be held at Edwinstowe on June 25th.

Seventeen new members were duly enrolled, and the question of a competition for the new silver cup, which Mr. Crawford, of Rampton, had offered in memory of his late father, who was an enthusiastic ringer and a committeeman, was left in the hands of a small committee of five to draw up rules, etc., and report as early as possible.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Vicar of East Retford for his address and for the use of bells and presiding over tea and meeting. Also to the Rev. R. F. Wilkinson and Rev. G. E. Summers, of Ordsall and West Retford respectively, for the use of the bells. The former sent an apology for absence from the meeting, as he was away from home, and wished the association every success.—The Chairman briefly replied, and the meeting terminated. The towers were then again visited, and ringing continued until 8.45 p.m.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION. LICHESTER DEANERY BRANCH.

A well attended meeting of this branch took place at Langport on Saturday, May 21st. Over 30 sat down to tea in the Church Room, ringers being present from Yeovil, Martock, Stoke-under-Ham, Ilminster, Drayton, Curry Rivel, Street, and from such distant Dorset towers as Dorchester and Buckhorn Weston. The president of the branch (the Rev. G. W. Saunders) conducted a short service in the Parish Church, assisted by the Vicar (the Rev. J. W. Plaxton).

A business meeting followed the tea, the president being in the chair, supported by the vice-president (the Rev. A. Rhys James, Vicar of Drayton) and the Vicar.

The Chairman said he was most pleased to see such a good meeting. He thanked the Vicar for the use of the bells and for making all arrangements, especially for arranging for them to have a choir. He was pleased to see the choir boys had come to tea, and he thought they must intend to become ringers, as they had stayed on for the meeting. He also thanked Mrs. Plaxton for playing the organ, and ladies who had provided such an excellent tea.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Ilminster.—The Misses Eva Sibley and Jessie Bailey and Mr. J. Rice, all of Ilminster, were made members.

The President read a circular letter from the general secretary (Mr. J. T. Dyke), which is being sent to the clerks of all Church Councils in the diocese, asking their support to a scheme of insurance of ringers. He brought this to the notice of the ringers because clerks of parochial councils, as well as Vicars, sometimes possessed waste-paper baskets, so he advised the members to see that it was brought before their Councils, and to do their utmost to support it.

By kind permission of the incumbents, the bells of Curry Rivel and Drayton, Machelney and Huish Episcopi were available. The Secretary (Mr. F. Farrant) expressed the thanks of the meeting for the privilege.

Langport and Huish bells were made good use of until late, the methods rung including Kent and Oxford Treble Bob and Stedman.

NEW PEAL OF EIGHT AT SWINDON. NEW TREBLES GIVEN BY RINGERS.

Two new treble bells have been added to the six in St. Mark's tower, Swindon, and were dedicated by the Archdeacon of Swindon (Dr. R. T. Talbott) at the monthly meeting of the Gloucester and Bristol Association on Saturday, May 21st. One new bell was the gift of the late Mr. O. W. Layng, a former Swindon ringer, and the money for the other was raised by the local ringers. The Archdeacon, in his address, said the augmented peal would be a valuable asset to the town and neighbourhood of Swindon, in the same way as the peal which was recast and rehung in the Parish Church, and it was a beautiful thought that the bells of both parishes would be pealing out a welcome and answering each other, filling the whole district with beautiful sound. The ringers had a very sacred and happy work to perform in calling people to worship on Sundays, but chiefly he wished them to associate the bells with three great events—Christmas, Easter and Whitsuntide.

After a few touches of Grandsire Triples, etc., on the bells, tea was partaken of in Maxwell Street Schools, the catering being admirably done by the wives of St. Mark's band, under the supervision of the captain's wife (Mrs. G. Lawrence).

After tea, the Vicar (Canon A. G. G. Ross) thanked the Archdeacon for his presence and for dedicating the new bells.

The Archdeacon, in responding, said it gave him great pleasure to be in the company of so many efficient campanologists. They had with them that afternoon Mr. Hopper, who had acted as hon. secretary to the scheme to raise the money for the new bells, and within a very short period had seen the consummation of his work, and he hoped this would be acknowledged. Ringers were artists in a very fine sense. Ignorant people said that anyone could ring bells, but this was not so. Only a trained person could ring in a skilled sense.

Mr. Ernest Bishop congratulated the St. Mark's parish on completing their peal of eight, which he considered were of a very fine quality.

After tea, a return to the tower was made, and ringing in various methods was continued until 9 p.m.

Messrs. Mears and Stainbank are to be congratulated on the perfect splice, which goes to make a nice light peal of eight, tenor 11 cwt. The following towers were represented at the dedication: Bristol, Gloucester, Faringdon, Stratton (St. Margaret's), Barcote, Elkestone, Devizes, Swindon Parish Church and the local band.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE ATTENDANCE AT THE ANNUAL FESTIVAL.

The spring meeting of the Witney and Woodstock Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild was held at Combe, near Woodstock, on Saturday, May 21st, when the following towers were represented: Aston Bampton 1, Combe 8, Barton 6, Ducklington 1, Eynsham 1, Freeland 2, Yarnton 2, Wootton 1, Woodstock 1, Witney 3, Steeple Aston 2, Rousham 6, Standlake 1, Stonesfield 2, Stanton Harcourt 1, and Kidlington 2. Among others present were the Revs. G. Ward-Jackson (Rousham), H. K. Norton (Stonesfield) and C. Tristram (Ducklington). The meeting began with a ringers' service at Combe Church, and the Vicar of Combe, the Rev. J. H. Pearson, preached an inspiring sermon from the text, 'Fellow workers in the Kingdom of God,' in the course of which he spoke of the valuable work which ringers and Guilds like the Oxford Diocesan Guild were doing.

After tea, a business meeting was held at which the Rev. F. R. Marriott (Rector of Wootton and Rural Dean), chairman of the branch, presided. He welcomed all new members of the Guild, and expressed gratitude to all who had made the meeting a success.

The Secretary (Mr. W. Everts, jun.) reported an increase in the half-year of 24 new members, three towers and one honorary member. Last year the amount collected from 21 hon. members was £5 13s., and from 17 towers £9 17s., a total of £15 10s., half of which was due to the general Guild. At the end of 1926 the balance in hand was £20, and after certain expenses, which would not be so heavy in a normal year, they were now left with a balance in the bank of £23 8s. 9d.

On the proposition of the Chairman, who thanked Mr. Everts for carrying out the double position of secretary and treasurer, the report and balance sheet were adopted.

It was decided to hold the autumn meeting at Aston Bampton.

Mr. T. W. Bond reported that he had attended the Guild committee meeting at Reading in April, and the Master had then remarked on the falling off of the attendance at the Guild's annual festival. Their branch was spoken of as a growing and strong branch, and he (Mr. Bond) appealed to the members to attend the festival, which would be held at Oxford.

Several new members were elected to the Guild, after which Mr. Everts called attention to the death of an old hon. member, the Rev. W. Bryant. It was agreed to send a letter of condolence to his relatives.

The question of making a donation to the General Restoration Fund was referred to the annual meeting.

The Secretary spoke of the advisability of obtaining more young members, and emphasised the desirability of getting members to attend the service after ringing, a view with which the Chairman concurred. He advocated the making of a rule that where possible ringers should attend once on Sunday.

SUPERLATIVE SURPRISE EXTENSION. CENTRAL COUNCIL TO BE ASKED TO DECIDE.

The Central Council next Tuesday are to be asked for a decision upon the much discussed question of the true extension of Superlative Surprise. Since the last meeting, a peal of Royal, which is Shipway's method which was rung over a hundred years ago at Wakefield, has been rung at Surfleet, and a peal of Maximus in a different method, but also designated Superlative, has been rung at Ipswich.

The Rev. H. Law James, the advocate of Shipway's extension, has given notice of motion: 'That since William Shipway extended Superlative Surprise Major to Royal, and the first peal of Royal was rung at Wakefield in 1826, the Council cannot accept any extension to Maximus which does not agree with the Major and the Royal.'

'Owen Kay' now writes that like a war horse he 'scents a battle from afar,' and as he is not able to take a part in it, he wishes to do 'the next best thing,' i.e., to see that those who do are well armoured to meet the onslaught of the opposing forces.

To this end he draws the attention of friends, who value truth and order, to the lead heads produced by the first five constructional places of 'Superlative' Major, and the first five constructional places of Shipway's Royal.

The figures which follow, he says, will speak for themselves:—

SUFFOLK GUILD.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT HAUGHLEY.

On Saturday, May 28th, a district meeting was held at Haughley, which was surprisingly well attended considering it is only a five-bell tower. Members were present from Stowmarket, Debenham, Stoke Ash, Thornham, Marlesford, Leiston, Campsey Ash, Ufford, Sproughton, and other places, including two visitors from Cambs.

A committee meeting was held in the study at the Vicarage, by kind permission of the Vicar (the Rev. W. G. White), over which the genial and popular president, Archdeacon Farmiloe, presided.

Tea was served on the Vicarage lawn, to which about thirty-five sat down, after which the company were invited to face the camera.

The bells were kept going during the afternoon to Stedman, St. Simon's, Grandsire, and Plain Bob, in which some of the local band took part.

The bells of Wetherden (advertised as five) were at the disposal of members during the afternoon, and to many it came as a surprise to find the tower contained six bells. Touches of Oxford Treble Bob, Cambridge Surprise and Bob Minor were brought round.

A move was then made to Stowmarket, where the eight bells were available during the evening, touches in various methods being rung.

It is desired to thank the incumbents for the use of the bells, and to all concerned in making the arrangements for what proved to be a most pleasant afternoon. This result should act as a stimulus to further effort in this direction.

LAVENHAM DISTRICT AT LITTLE WALDINGFIELD.

A meeting of the Lavenham District was held at St. Lawrence's Church, Little Walsingham, on Saturday, May 21st. Twenty-five members attended from Lavenham, Long Melford, Monks Eleigh, Great Henny, Sudbury, Acton and the local band. A service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. E. H. Melling), who gave an interesting address on the duties of bell ringers. Tea was served in the Parish Room, the Vicar presiding.

On the proposition of Mr. A. Symonds, seconded by Mr. S. Gridley, Preston was chosen as the next meeting place in July, and it was also decided to leave the actual date to the secretary, so as to avoid the clashing with neighbouring meetings, as was the case that day.

Four new ringing members were elected, and Mr. F. Johnson, churchwarden, kindly consented to enter as an honorary member.

Mr. W. R. J. Poulson proposed, and Mr. A. Symonds (district secretary) seconded, a hearty vote of thanks to the Rev. E. H. Melling for presiding and for the use of the bells, also to the ladies for arranging the excellent tea.

The Vicar, in replying, said how pleased he was to meet the ringers at that the first meeting ever held at Little Walsingham. He hoped he would soon be meeting them there again.

A collection was taken for the Church Restoration Fund, and amounted to 14s. 7d.

The touches rung during the day were very short and few, owing to the bad 'go' of the bells, an unmusical peal of five, but a quickly arranged musical evening more than compensated those members who stayed an extra hour.

THE BELLS OF DEVON.

A 'RINGERS' GUIDE.

There has just been published a revised list of church bells of Devon corrected up to date. It is published at 1s. 6d. by Messrs. W. Pollard and Co., of Bampfylde Street, Exeter, and should be of great value and interest not only to Devon ringers, but also to ringing visitors to the county. This new addition has been prepared by the Rev. Maitland Kelly (ex-president), Rev. E. S. Powell (president), and Mr. T. Laver (secretary of the Devon Guild). It contains a list of all the churches in Devon with three bells and upwards, giving in each case the weight of the tenor, the date when any work was last done, and by whom. This last information is, of course, of great importance to any touring ringers, as it enables them to judge what prospect they may find of a ring of bells being fit for a peal. Great care has evidently been bestowed upon the work to make it as accurate as possible.

It is interesting to quote from the Preface: An inventory of church bells throughout England was ordered to be made in Edward the Sixth's reign, in the year 1553. Subsequent to this date no further general record of bells in the county of Devon was made until the middle of the 19th century. In the years 1864-1865 the Rev. H. T. Ellacombe, although well over 70 years old, ascended every church tower in the county, with but two or three exceptions, and catalogued the inscriptions and measurements of the bells. This monumental work was published by the Exeter Diocesan Architectural Society, and it must always remain as the basis of all further publications on the subject. But it is a book which can hardly become generally accessible, and on this account Mr. C. Pearson published an abbreviation of Ellacombe's list in 1888, brought up to date and bearing the title, 'The Ringers' Guide to the Church Bells of Devon.' A supplement to this book was published by him in 1900, and it is this supplement revised to date that the present editors are now offering to the ringing Exercise and others interested in church bells, with the permission of Mr. Pearson. In order to keep the book within limits of the smallest purses, and thus render its contents of wider circulation, this edition is confined strictly to an actual catalogue of the bells in the various towers. Fuller information can be obtained from Mr. Pearson's book, which is still obtainable from the publishers.

The following comparative list of the church bells in the county of Devon in the years 1553, 1865, 1900 and 1927 is interesting:

Rings of	1553.	1865.	1900.	1927.
Twelve bells	—	—	—	2
Ten bells	—	1	4	4
Eight bells	—	19	52	75
Six bells	—	137	183	228
Five bells	35	122	93	66
Four bells	216	64	37	22
Three bells	183	96	75	57
Total	434	439	444	454
Number of bells in rings of three to twelve	1,588	2,139	2,393	2,624

It will be observed that while the number of towers in which there are installed three or more bells has remained almost constant during four centuries, there has been a steady tendency to increase the number of bells in the respective bellfries. Previously to the middle of the last century, this desire generally took the form of recasting the few, though often heavy, bells, number three or four, into a new peal of five or six. In the last fifty years the influence of half-pull change ringing has made itself felt with the demand that more opportunity for variety should be given, and has thus fostered the increase to eight and more bells in a tower. In this respect, as in many others, the beneficial effects that have issued from the establishment of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers in the year 1874 can be seen.

FORTY YEARS ON.

Forty years ago on Whit Monday, May 30th, 1887, twelve members of the Ancient Society of College Youths attempted to ring Mr. H. W. Haley's peal of 10,030 Stedman Cinques at St. Michael's, Cornhill, London, but, unfortunately, got out in the last course after ringing upwards of 9,900 changes in 7 hours and 35 minutes: J. Pettit (conductor) 1, H. Springall 2, S. E. Joyce 3, C. F. Winney 4, E. Gibbs 5, G. T. McLaughlin 6, F. E. Dawe 7, E. E. Clark 8, W. Greenleaf 9, F. G. Newman 10, E. Horrex 11, J. M. Hayes 12.

When the band came out of the tower they were met by Mr. A. P. Heywood (as he then was), of Duffield Bank, who had journeyed to London to hear the ringing. After expressing his sorrow at their bad luck, he kindly invited them to the Bell Tavern to partake of a substantial meat tea, which he had liberally ordered for them. Few of this band are now left.

RINGING COMPETITIONS.

Prize ringing in the old days led to many abuses, and competitions, into which entered monetary consideration, have been one of the things which belfry reformers in the last fifty or sixty years have done their best to eliminate. If prize meetings of this description exist to-day we hear little or nothing of them, and such competitions as there are are carried on from higher motives. There is still, however, in some quarters a strong dislike to anything in the nature of the competitive spirit entering into ringing, and yet there is something to be said on the other side. Carried out in what, for want of a better term, we will call the spirit of pure amateurism, in which the only object is the production of the best ringing, we think there is something to commend such competitions as those held, for instance, by the Swansea and Brecon Guild or the Halifax Association. The desire at the bottom of these contests is to encourage the members to improve their ringing capabilities, and competition gives just that stimulus which is so often needed to induce men to rise above the multitude of their fellows. There is no doubt that the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race, for example, raises the general standard of rowing at the universities, from the fact that every aspiring oarsman knows that to secure his 'blue' he must excel in the sport of his choice. Similarly choir competitions unquestionably raise the standard of singing in those churches whose choirs take part in the contests, and if the competitive spirit for the honour of being the best choir in a district is permissible, there can be little real objection to a like desire among those who ring the church bells. The only ground that we can see for real opposition to ringing contests, carried out with the sole intention of raising the quality of striking, seem to be that a church is not the place where competitions should be held. Choirs can, of course, meet for their contests in other buildings than churches, but the instruments of the ringers cannot be carted from place to place, and with one or two exceptions there are no bells where rival companies can pit their skill against each other, except in consecrated church towers. But, after all, is it any desecration for hands, imbued with the right spirit, to enter a tower and do their ringing with the knowledge that the best shall hold a trophy for a year? Is it any worse than a mixed lot of ringers taking their turns at the ropes and providing what is not an unusual feature, at meetings, several hours of bad or indifferent ringing, but without reward at the end? Encouraged on the right lines, we believe that ringing competitions would tend to improve the standard of service ringing.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY J. ARMIGER TROLLOPE.

Our learned shepherd, having first stated the number of changes to be had on different numbers of bells, proceeds to give a short discourse 'Of Peals.' The Musicalness of the Changes not being very intelligible to ordinary Ringers and the best many times Puzzled and at a loss to find them out, the more Judicious Professors concluded it necessary to cast Peals that so Musical Notes might the better strike the Fancy and lead them to a more feasible and easier to a true understanding in Ringing rendering it (for their Encouragement) the more taking and delightful for every Peal on Bells Tuned, to the Principals of Musick express the Notes for in a Peal of Six Bells. You have exactly the six Musical Notes, viz., La, Sol, Fa, Mi, Re, Ut. But to make them charming and harmonious they must be struck with skill and deliberation gradually striking or leading with the lowest Note and so rising up to the highest, and then down again to the lowest, causing the Fourth Bell to Hunt up to the Seventh; and then dog'd, unless prevented by the Treble and so any other of the number Seven, so that in the compleat number of Changes of the first striking there shall not be rung over twice the same. And in this doing you must have a Musical Ear, and a Steady Hand to observe the least Defect and mend it: to mend or reverse it by dodging or falling in course as the Bells hunt up or down by putting in between or taking place in a compleat Harmony.

I confess I am at a loss to follow much of this paragraph, and I suspect that our author was not quite such an authority on ringing as he would suggest. It was not like this that Fabian Stedman wrote. You have no doubt to pay close attention to what he says, and at times read him slowly and carefully; but if you do you can always be sure of what he means. Stedman was a first-class writer. Our learned shepherd, for all his brag, is in quite another class. And, perhaps, the chief difference between the two is the perpetual one—clear and exact writing necessitates clear and exact thinking, and the reason why so many men's writing is so difficult to follow is just because their thinking is neither clear nor exact.

The next thing our author deals with is Cross Peals. 'Having,' he says, 'already laid the Ground Work for plain peals to introduce the Learner, I now proceed to Cross Peals. These are so Termed because of their Intricacy or Cross method wherein divers Notes moving as it were at once Cross each other, some moving up and others down at the same time; and that the Learner may the easier find it out and comply with it let him observe that one Note carried (called) the Hunt is a Guide to the rest, making one constant motion and uniform throughout the Peal, differing from that of the other Notes through keeping a Continual Motion through the several Notes stricken, viz., From the leading to the striking behind and so thence to the Lead, which Motion up and down is reckoned the compleat Course, tho' some Peals on Five Bells as the Old Doubles, etc., consist only of single Courses, every single Course admitting 10 Changes; and twelve Courses are a compleat Peal; other Peals on Five Bells as the London Paradox, etc., consist of Double Courses 20 Changes going to every Course, and 6 Double Courses to the Peals; but on 6 Bells there are double and single Courses, viz., 12 Changes to every Single Course as in Grandsire Bob, etc. The Change in which the Hunt leaves leading is properly the first Change in every Course and in Cross Peals all the Courses agree in three Respects (1) in the motion of the Hunt, (2) in the Motion of the remaining Notes, (3) in the making of the Changes which being exactly taken Notice of may serve as a certain Guide to the Rest some few Changes in each Peal Excepted.'

An example is then given in New Doubles, which, spite of its name, is one of the oldest methods that was ever practised. We have descriptions more or less muddled of Doubles and Singles on Four Bells, and 'the Peals called the Old Doubles and singles on Five Bells.' In this there is a curious direction that 'the Treble Moving down out of the Fifth Place, the bell that comes into it must Remain Silent till the Treble Hunts up to it again.' It looks as if each bell was set up in turn for eight changes, all the five being rung only when the treble was in fifth's place. If so, this was a rather interesting experiment to get more variety in five bell ringing, but probably was never more than a local experiment.

There is no mention of any similar thing in Stedman, nor, I think, in any other ringing book, and our author is so obscure that one cannot be quite sure what he does mean. Unfortunately, he gives no figures.

The extracts I have given are a fair sample of the book. As an explanation of ringing, even of ringing in the late seventeenth century, it is of no value, but it is a quaint and interesting survival from the early days of the Exercise.

LAVENHAM RINGER HONOURED.

PRESENTATION TO MR. A. SYMONDS.

There was a happy gathering at the Cook Inn, the headquarters of the Lavenham ringers, on Saturday, May 28th, when a social evening was held in honour of Mr. A. Symonds, the change-ringing instructor, who has now completed fifty years' ringing at SS. Peter and Paul's Church. The chair was occupied by Mr. W. R. J. Poulson, and the vice-chairman was Mr. F. A. Turner. Mr. F. A. Poulson was steward. Mr. F. G. Symonds, of London, was also present. The programme commenced with a course of Grandsire Triples on the handbells by Messrs. F. A. Turner, M. T. Symonds, F. Leeks, F. F. Mortlock, and F. A. Poulson. Mr. K. Loveday rendered 'My Irish home, sweet home' as a vocal solo. Bow bells were heard 'as rung by the Ancient Society of Collogo Youths,' this being given from a Columbia gramophone record. Selections on a peal of sixteen handbells were cleverly rendered by Messrs. M. T. and S. H. Symonds, F. A. Turner and F. F. Mortlock, the items including 'Drink to me only,' 'Last Rose of Summer,' 'Blue Bells of Scotland,' etc.

Mr. F. A. Poulson submitted the toast of 'Absent Lavenham ringers,' while 'The SS. Peter and Paul's Society' was proposed by Mr. F. A. Turner, who coupled with it the name of Mr. Arthur Symonds, and congratulated him on ringing that afternoon a bell of nearly one ton in weight, despite his being in his 70th year.

The chairman then presented Mr. Symonds with a framed photograph of the present Lavenham company, adding that he hoped Mr. Symonds would be spared to add many more years to his ringing career.

Mr. Symonds, in reply, thanked the ringers for their kindness, and especially their loyalty to him. His teaching of upwards of fifty ringers had been a real labour of love to him.

The company then accorded Mr. Symonds musical honours, and the pleasant evening terminated with the 'linking of hands' and the singing of 'Auld Lang Syne.'

Mr. Symonds' family has a long record in the ringing world; Mr. A. Symonds' father, grandfather, and four uncles were ringers before him. His three sons, two daughters, two grandsons and four cousins are also ringers.

'LADS' AT LOUGHBOROUGH.

CHESTER RINGERS' VISIT TO LEICESTERSHIRE.

Six 'lads' of the Chester Diocesan Guild, Messrs. H. W. Wilde, J. Morgan, G. Jones, A. E. Richards, W. Thomas and J. W. Clarke, went to Loughborough for a week-end among the bells. Five of the company viewed the countryside in state from an Austin 'Twelve,' while the other one viewed the dust they made from the saddle of a Rudge motor-cycle. Speeding along at about 90 miles per hour (more or less), they viewed the ever-changing scenery—meadows and woods, villages and wireless aërials, petrol pumps, and inns sped by in their turn. Some may doubt that all these delightful scenes were passed by, but in spite of the pathetic appeals—written in large letters—of the petrol pumps to 'fill up your tank,' and the equally pathetic, but unwritten, appeals of the inns to do the same thing, no tank received any attention until much later in the day. A halt was made at Uttoxeter, where a course of ham and tongue was called and quickly brought round. On reaching Derby just before 7 p.m., the aforementioned 90 miles per hour had to be somewhat modified, as one or two policemen, with bobs 'before,' put the whole band into the 'slow.' However, Loughborough was reached about 7.30, and after coursing round the town for nearly half an hour, the hiding-place of the Bell Foundry was at last discovered. Here the party was met by Mr. J. P. Fidler, who, pausing only to tap Mr. Richards a few rounds on Farndon bells, led the way to Stamford, where Mr. Reader joined in, and the delightful ring of eight were soon ringing out the tune of Kent. This was followed by touches of Grandsire, Stedman, and Double Norwich. By 9.30 p.m., a jolly company were settled at the Great Central Hotel, Loughborough, the headquarters for the week-end, and a long-felt want was put right by a few courses of that very old method, 'What's yours?' And so to bed.

Some were up early next morning—and some were not. However, after doing full justice to the excellent breakfast fare provided, and visiting some of the important sights of the town, including the Post Office and Woolworth's, the Bell Foundry was reached about 10 a.m. Here, by the kindness of Messrs. John Taylor and Co., a delightfully interesting morning was spent in watching the progress of the many and varied jobs the firm has on hand. The bells of Farndon Church, Cheshire, which are at present at the foundry for tuning, were again 'lapped' by Mr. Fidler for the edification of Mr. Richards, himself a Farndonian. Mr. Jones, not to be outdone by Mr. Fidler, took up the hammer and tapped the tune, 'Now the day is over.' Perhaps the tune was a little inappropriate for the time of the day, but ringers, like sailors, don't care!

Passing through the various departments, the carillons for Shanghai and America were seen in course of construction, and 'Great Peter,' the giant of 12½ tons for York Minster, was seen on the tuning machine. On reaching the foundry carillon, Mr. Richards, as an organist, was asked to render an item, but as he had unfortunately forgotten his music he was unable to oblige. Before leaving, the fascinating little ring in the campanile was 'sampled,' touches in several methods being rung on both the front and back six.

After lunch, the campanile was again visited, and a peal of Minor in four methods was rung in 2 hrs. 27 mins. This was the first peal for the Chester Diocesan Guild in Leicestershire. Mr. W. Thomas, who rang the treble, felt that his three weeks of hard training to be 'in form' for the task had not been in vain!

Some few minutes were spent in listening to the peal of Royal which was in progress at the Parish Church, before Mr. Fidler piloted the party to Kegworth, where there was a ringers' meeting in progress. On the fine old ring of six, some enjoyable touches were brought round, including Cambridge and Spliced Treble Bob. The Rector welcomed the visitors at tea, and a pleasant few minutes were spent in a friendly chat.

Mr. Fidler had arranged for the bells of Disworth, a new ring of six, to be available in the evening, and, as Mr. Sutton and four lady ringers decided to join in, some little skill in packing was required to get everybody into two cars. However, with a little squeezing it was managed, and the quaint old-world village of Disworth was soon reached. Touches of Double Bob, Woodbine, Spliced Treble Bob, Cambridge and Plain Bob were rung. Before leaving, the Rector was good enough to show the visitors some of the interesting sights of the village, including, with the kind permission of the tenants, the interior of a beautiful old thatched house.

The packing process had then to be repeated, and, in spite of the difficulty the drivers had to get to the controls, Loughborough was safely reached about 9.30 p.m.

Mr. Fidler took charge again quite early on Sunday morning, and introduced the 'lads' to the band at the Parish Church. The opportunity to join in the ringing on this fine-toned ring of ten was greatly appreciated.

After dinner, preparations were made, rather reluctantly, for the return journey. Bags were tied on, carburettors flooded, and Mr. Fidler waved farewell to his fellow-countrymen.

The first stop was made at Trowell, where the band was welcomed by the Rev. C. M. V. Hickey, who has recently moved there from Christleton, Chester. A touch of Spliced Treble Bob was rung before tea, very generously provided by Mr. Towleson. It was strange that Mr. Hickey should leave a parish where the bells are much out of tune and arrive in another where the same state of things exists.

The clerk of the weather, who had so far been exceedingly kind, at this point decided to make a change, and by the time Uttoxeter was reached rain was falling steadily. The acquaintance of the Uttoxeter Parish Church ringers was made, and half an hour's ringing enjoyed before pushing on towards home. The five gentlemen in the car smoked in peace under the shelter of the hood, but the motor-cyclist received a free bath.

The company would like to take this opportunity of expressing their grateful thanks to all those who helped to make the week-end the success it was, and especially to Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. for the privilege of viewing the foundry and for the use of the bells, and to Mr. J. P. Fidler, whose unsparring efforts did so much towards the making of an ideal week-end.

DEATH OF MR. WILLIAM LAMBERT.

WELL-KNOWN BOLSOVER RINGER'S LONG CAREER.

Ringers in the Midlands will regret to hear of the death of Mr. William Lambert, of Bolsover, who passed away at the age of 71 years on Tuesday, May 31st, after a short illness. Mr. Lambert rang his last peal, one of Superlative, on March 12th this year, and only rang once after that date for Sunday service.

Coming to Bolsover in 1902 from South Yorkshire, Mr. Lambert has been one of the mainstays in the Bolsover band during the whole of the 25 years. Besides being most regular in his attendance for Sunday service ringing, he had also taken part in many of the notable peals rung in the district. He took part in the first peals of Yorkshire and Peterborough Surprise ever rung, the first peals of Norfolk, Pudsey, Rutland, Cambridge Royal, Double Norwich Caters, and Royal, the first of Bristol and London Major by the Sheffield District Society.

In his day, the late Mr. Lambert was a really good handbell ringer, having rung peals of Double Norwich, New Cambridge and Superlative.

Commencing to ring at the early age of 10, Mr. Lambert could lay claim to having been a ringer for 61 years.

He was borne to his last resting-place in the Parish Churchyard on Saturday last by his fellow ringers, others attending from Chesterfield, Sheffield Cathedral, Rotherham, Ecclesfield, Staveley, Eckington, Mansfield, Killamarsh, and North Wingfield to pay their last tribute to so worthy an example in the Exercise.

A course of Grandsire Triples was rung over the grave by Jesse Moss, Arthur Craven, Arthur Knights, and George Lewis. Owing to illness near the church, only one course of Treble Bob could be rung with half-muffled clappers. The bells were again rung half-muffled for service on Sunday.

Wreaths were sent from the Sheffield District Society and the local company.

Mr. Lambert had rung 353 peals, made up as follows: Bob Minor, on handbells 1; Treble Bob Minor, tower bells 28, handbells 1; Surprise Minor, 6; Kent Treble Bob Major, 35, on handbells 4; Kent Treble Bob Royal, 25, on handbells 1; Oxford Treble Bob Major, 10, on handbells 2; Oxford Treble Bob Royal, 5; Grandsire Triples, 2; Grandsire Caters, 7; Bob Major, 14, on handbells 4; Bob Royal, 5, on handbells 1; Double Norwich Major, 53, on handbells 1; Double Norwich Caters, 1; Double Norwich Royal, 3; Stedman Triples, 5; Stedman Caters, 10; Stedman Cinques, 1; Spliced Treble Bob Royal, 1; Superlative Surprise Major, 54, on handbells 3; Yorkshire Surprise Major, 16; Peterborough Surprise Major, 2; Cambridge Surprise Major, 3; Cambridge Surprise Royal, 1; New Cambridge Surprise Major, 13, on handbells 1; London Surprise Major, 14; Bristol Surprise Major, 1; Norfolk Surprise, 14; Rutland Surprise, 2; Pudsey Surprise, 2; Forward Royal, 1; total, 334, on handbells 19.

EIGHTY YEARS A RINGER.

MR. G. SLINGSBY'S LONG CONNECTION WITH ALDINGTON CHURCH.

The monthly meeting of the Romney Marsh Guild was held at Aldington on May 28th, by kind invitation of the Rector, the Rev. G. S. Long, to celebrate the 90th birthday of Mr. G. Slingsby, who has been a ringer at the church for 80 years. The bells were raised soon after 3 p.m., and a 120 of Bob Minor was rung, Mr. Slingsby ringing the treble, followed by a good 720 of Kent Treble Bob: F. Good 1, J. Garrett 2, G. Swaffer 3, C. W. Everett 4, H. C. Castle 5, E. Powell (conductor) 6. First 720 by ringers of 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

Tea was provided at the Rectory, and was followed by the business meeting, when it was decided to hold the next meeting at New Romney on June 11th and the outing on July 16th.

Mr. Slingsby has been presented by the Rector with a small model of the Aldington treble as a memento of his long connection with the church and bells.

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY.

At Barnes, on June 3rd, in honour of H.M. the King's birthday, 1,260 Stedman Triples: H. Belcher 1, H. Barrett 2, H. Cook 3, H. Dyas 4, C. Hunt 5, F. Skevington (conductor) 6, G. C. Rice 7, P. Stratton 8.

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.RESIGNATION OF YORKTOWN DISTRICT SECRETARY.

A meeting of the Yorktown District of the Winchester Diocesan Guild was held at Farnborough on Saturday, May 28th, when members were present from Chertsey, Weybridge, Hawley, Farnham, Bagshot, Yorktown, Pirbright, and the local band. Ringing during the afternoon on the five bells included Stedman, Grandsire and Bob Doubles. The service was taken by the Rev. Canon Chalacombe, who also kindly provided tea on the Vicarage lawn. Canon Chalacombe presided at the meeting, supported by the Rev. Ellswood, of Hawley.

Mr. Nye gave a brief account of the business transacted at the committee meeting of the proposed Guildford Diocesan Guild held the previous Saturday.

It was proposed to give £1 to Mr. B. Hawkins, of Hawley, for instruction given to the Yorktown band.

It was with great regret that the meeting was asked to accept Mr. J. B. Hessey's resignation as hon. secretary on the ground of ill-health. The Chairman asked Mr. S. G. Armstrong (the Ringing Master) to convey his and all the members' wishes for a speedy recovery.

Mr. H. J. Chaffey was elected to carry on the secretary's duties to finish the year, and Mr. Armstrong offered to help with the work.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the chairman for his kindness in providing the tea, officiating at the service and presiding at the meeting.

Afterwards, Canon Chalacombe invited the 17 members present to a game of bowls on the lawn, and after a pleasant game more refreshments were served, and time came all too soon for the 'trek' home at the close of one of the most pleasant meetings.

MUNIFICENT GIFT TO BRAINTREE AND BOCKING.

On Saturday, May 28th, at St. Mary's Church, Bocking, 1,280 Double Norwich Court Bob Major: G. Wiffen 1, L. Wiseman 2, W. J. Nevard 3, W. Arnold 4, F. Claydon 5, W. Keeble (conductor) 6, A. Saunders 7, L. W. Wiffen 8. Rung on the occasion of the opening of a recreation ground for Baintree and Bocking, presented and endowed by Mr. William Julien Courtauld, J.P., C.C., at the cost of £20,000. The same gentleman has recently built for the district a cottage hospital costing £30,000, and his latest gift is a town hall for Baintree, now in course of construction, the contract price of which is over £40,000. The town hall will be surmounted by a tower containing clock and Westminster chimes. The heaviest bell is to weigh 39 cwt. The work of erecting the clock and chimes has been entrusted to Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, Croydon, who have also in hand the re-hanging in an iron frame the ring of six at Stisted, an adjoining village.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.NORTH DORSET BRANCH.

A quarterly meeting of the North Dorset Branch was held at Bourton, on Saturday, May 28th. In the absence of the Vicar, who was away in Cheshire for the baptism of his grandchild, the Guild service was read by the Master, Rev. R. H. Gundry, and a stimulating address was given by the branch secretary, Rev. R. E. P. Gorringe. The churchwardens were in attendance, and the singing, which was of remarkably hearty character, was accompanied with marked ability by Mr. W. Hosmer, the organist, who is himself a ringer.

Ample justice was done to tea in the Vicarage Room, and during the course of the proceedings a telegram was read from the Vicar, wishing those present a happy time.

At the subsequent business meeting it was decided to continue monthly practices during the summer, except in July.—A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Vicar and churchwardens, the local ringers, the organist and the preacher.—Mr. W. Hosmer briefly replied, and extended a cordial welcome to the visiting ringers.

Some sixty ringers were present from all parts of the county. The towers of Mere, Buckhorn Weston and Kington Magna were available, besides the tuneful ring of six at Bourton. Good practice was obtained in Grandsire, Stedman, Bob Minor, Double Court, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, and several beginners were successfully piloted through their first Plain Course or six-score.

A NEW COUNTY BORDER ASSOCIATION.FORMATION OF EAST GRINSTEAD AND DISTRICT GUILD.

A meeting was held at Placelands, East Grinstead, on Saturday last, when a new society, to be called the 'East Grinstead and District Guild of Bell Ringers,' was formed. Its main object is to encourage the art of bell ringing by giving opportunity for learning new methods, by helping struggling bands and by bringing the skilled and unskilled ringers together for practices. The Guild will in no way interfere with the existing county associations; in fact, it should help them, as its members should be able to go to the county meetings, feeling more confidence, having improved their ringing 'at home,' so to speak.

The following towers sent delegates to the meeting: Penshurst, Oxted, Coleman's Hatch, Chiddingstone, Cowden, Turner's Hill, Balcombe, Crawley, Hartfield, Cuckfield and East Grinstead.

Mr. Oliver Sippetts (Crawley) was unanimously elected Master of the new Guild.—Any ringers in the neighbourhood are welcome to join the Guild, the hon. secretary of which is Mr. G. Lambert, Drummond Hay, East Grinstead.

The report of the hon. librarian, showing a sale of 150 of the new Major and Cater Methods, and about the same number of the other publications as in previous years, was adopted.

At the suggestion of the librarian, a committee was formed to go through certain papers and books in his keeping to see if they were worth preserving.

The following hon. members retired by rotation: Rev. C. D. P. Davies, Messrs. J. S. Pritchett, J. A. Trollope, J. H. B. Hesse, J. Griffin and E. A. Young, and they were re-elected. The Rev. A. T. The Standing Committee was elected as follows: The president, Canon Elsee, Revs. C. W. O. Jenkyn, H. Law James, and C. D. P. Davies, Messrs. W. T. Cockerill, J. Griffin, E. A. Young, J. S. The Rev. F. L. Edwards presented the report of the Literature and Press Committee, whose principal work during the year had been to collaborate with the secretary in revising 'Rules and Decisions.' The Methods Committee, Rev. H. Law James, Messrs. E. H. Lewis and J. A. Trollope, were re-elected with the addition of the Rev. E. S. Powell, and authority given to the committee to re-issue the 'Collection of Minor Methods' after revision.

The report of the Peals Analysis Committee, as already printed in 'The Ringing World,' was adopted, and the committee re-elected as follows: The Rev. A. T. Beeston, Messrs. J. W. Parker and G. Williams and Miss E. K. Parker, with thanks for the great work they had again done.

Reports of the Towers and Belfries Committee were made by Major Hesse and Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, and a letter was received on the subject from Mr. E. H. Lewis. Rev. C. D. P. Davies, Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, Messrs. E. A. Young and J. H. B. Hesse were re-elected.

The Records Committee report was presented by the Rev. A. T. Beeston and adopted, and the members re-elected, viz.: Revs. A. T. Beeston, H. Law James and Mr. T. H. Beams.

The Nomenclature Committee, Rev. H. Drake, Messrs. G. P. Burton, A. D. Barker, T. H. Beams and A. L. Coleman, reported through Mr. Drake that in view of the resolution carried at the last meeting the committee had been unable to do anything during the past year.

After a long and animated discussion as to the reappointment of the committee, it was resolved to thank the committee for their services, and that the committee be dissolved.

The revised copy of the Council's 'Rules and Decisions' was presented by the hon. secretary, and instructions given for printing a second edition of 300 copies.

On the motion of Mr. T. H. Taffender, seconded by Mr. A. D. Barker, the following resolution was passed: 'That the Council approach the British Broadcasting Company with a view to the broadcasting during the evening programmes of a series of instructional talks on change ringing, with handbell demonstrations.'

A committee was appointed to give effect to the resolution, consisting of Messrs. Taffender, Cockerill, Hughes, Matthews and Young.

A resolution was moved by Mr. G. Williams, and seconded by Mr. A. H. Pulling, to amend the rules of the Council in order that the agenda might be published twelve weeks instead of two weeks before the Council meeting, the proposed change involving as a consequence the sending of notices of motion three months instead of three weeks before the meeting.

The motion was carried by a large majority.

The Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn proposed 'That the Council shall issue, at a small charge, peal diplomas for the encouragement of young ringers.'

After discussion, in view of the diversity of opinion prevailing, it was decided to postpone the matter for a year, to enable representatives to consult their associations.

In accordance with notice, the Rev. H. Law James proposed, and Mr. R. Richardson formally seconded, 'That since William Shipway extended Superlative Surprise Major to Royal, and the first peal of Royal was rung at Wakefield in 1826, the Council cannot accept any extension to Maximus which does not agree with the Major and the Royal.'

This led to a lengthy debate, in which wide divergence of view was revealed among the 'experts,' and eventually an amendment was carried to the effect that in view of this disagreement no good purpose would be served by coming to a definite decision on the subject.

On the proposition of Mr. J. A. Trollope, seconded by Mr. A. A. Hughes, it was resolved: 'That a committee be appointed to report to the Council on the legal relationship between (a) bells, (b) ringers and (c) ringing respectively on the one hand, and (d) the incumbent, (e) the churchwardens and (f) the parochial councils respectively on the other hand, and any other legal matters affecting the Exercise. And, further, to consider the advisability of issuing a statement on these matters for the guidance of ringers and other persons affected.

The committee of lawyers was appointed, consisting of Alderman J. S. Pritchett, Mr. F. A. Milne and Mr. E. W. Elwell, to carry out the task.

The Standing Committee recommended Hereford as the place of next year's meeting. Mr. W. A. Cave proposed Bristol, in view of the Diocesan Association's jubilee festival next Whitsun; and the Rev. E. S. Powell suggested Plymouth. On being put to the vote, Hereford was selected.

The meeting closed with votes of thanks to the Lord Mayor and Archdeacon Holmes, also to Sir Frank Dyson, the astronomer, who on Sunday afternoon personally conducted a party round Greenwich Observatory, and to the president of the Council.

Social gatherings in connection with the Council were held at the Coffee Pot on Monday evening and at the Bedford Head on Tuesday evening, while St. Paul's Cathedral and St. Clement Danes' bells were utilised after the meeting.

WEDDING BELLS.

The wedding of Mr. Edmund J. Hobbs, the well-known and greatly respected ringer of Husborne Crawley, Bedfordshire, to Miss Rose A. Wright, took place at the Parish Church, Husborne Crawley, on June 1st. The bride was given away by Mr. C. Matthews, a member of the Woburn company, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Rust, a former secretary of the Beds Association.

As the happy pair left the church, the bells were fired and rung to a touch of Minor by the Woburn company, who were all present. In the evening, the Husborne Crawley company intended to go for a peal, but owing to the indisposition of the ringer of the 3rd a quarter-peal of Bob Minor (1,260) was substituted: Albert Fleet, sen. 1, Albert Fleet, jun., 2, Cyril Sinfeld 3, William Peacock 4, Harry Fleet 5, Horace H. Smith (conductor) 6.

On the previous Monday the Woburn company presented Mr. E. J. Hobbs with a beautiful clock as a mark of their great esteem.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

NEW CANTERBURY DISTRICT SECRETARY.

At a by-meeting of the Canterbury District, held at Chartham, on Saturday, May 28th, the difficulty of finding a district secretary was overcome by a proposition, made by the chairman (Rev. Canon F. J. O. Helmore) that Mr. Percy W. Smith, of Littlebourne, Canterbury, should be elected to the office. This was duly seconded and carried by the meeting.

Before tea, which was held at the Railway Tavern Hotel, Chartham, numerous touches were rung on the six bells, including the following methods: Plain Bob, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, Stedman and Grandsire. Cambridge Surprise was also attempted, but the result would not merit its being called successful!

The following towers were represented at the meeting: Canterbury, Wingham, Wye, St. Nicholas', Wickham, Folkestone, Braybourne, Littlebourne and Sturry.

A NEW LEICESTER VICAR.

The induction of the Rev. H. Hurst, the new Vicar of St. Margaret's, Leicester, took place on June 3rd, and a special touch of Grandsire Caters was rung for the service by G. Humphries 1, G. S. Morris 2, A. Ballard 3, E. Whitehead 4, R. Barrow 5, E. Bagworth 6, A. Disney 7, N. S. Bagworth 8, E. Morris (conductor) 9, R. Grant 10. On June 4th an attempt for 5,016 Grandsire Cinques was unfortunately lost after 1½ hours' excellent ringing, owing to tenor clapper breaking: G. Humphries 1, E. Whitehead 2, E. Morris (composer and conductor) 3, J. Morris 4, A. Disney 5, R. Barrow 6, E. Bartram 7, A. Cattell 8, R. H. Bartram 9, G. S. Morris 10, J. E. Sykes 11, J. Grant 12.

A GRANDFATHERS' PEAL.

The grandfathers of the Royal Cumberland Youths met at Shore-ditch on Saturday, and rang a peal of Stedman Caters—it would have been more appropriate had it been Grandsire—and it was probably the first time such a peal has been rung. It was intended to ring Cinques, but the illness of one of the band at the eleventh hour caused the substitution of Caters.

The idea of this peal was conceived with the view of marking the 80th birthday of the 'father' of the Cumberland, Mr. Ben Foskett, in November last, when it was lost. The band, nevertheless, wish to convey to him their best wishes for many more birthdays. The average age of the company is over 59 years, and their average of membership of the society over 31 years.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The agency for bell inkstands, those prettily-designed and useful articles so suitable for presentation, has been taken over by Mr. T. E. Russell, jeweller and silversmith, of Chertsey Road, Woking. Particulars of sizes and reduced prices will be found in an advt. on the back page.

The last annual meeting of the Winchester Guild as at present constituted is to be held on July 2nd at Guildford. The Southern Railway Company have consented to issue day return tickets at single fares on production of a voucher. Early application for these vouchers should be made to the general hon. secretary.

The first twelve-bell peal in Birmingham was rung on June 3rd, 1773. This was a 5,324 of Grandsire Cinques.

The opening of the bells at St. Nicholas, Liverpool, took place on June 4th, 1814. It was on June 4th, 1762, that the new peal of ten bells at Bow, Cheapside, by Lester and Pack, were rung for the first time.

Next Monday is the anniversary of the 16,608 Oxford Treble Bob, rung at Debenham in 10 hrs. 32 mins. in 1892.

The first peal in America was rung at Christ Church, Philadelphia, where Henry Haley called Holt's ten-part peal of Grandsire Triples on June 9th, 1850. The tenorman was changed during the course of the peal, R. Dodd, a man with only one leg, ringing for the first 2½ hours, the peal being then finished by J. Davey.

Harold Kest, one of the young ringers at Bolsover, who commenced to pull a bell in October, 1925, has now rung eight peals in the following methods: Bob Major, Double Norwich, Cambridge Surprise, two peals of Superlative Surprise, New Cambridge Surprise, Yorkshire Surprise and Norfolk Surprise. All were rung at the first attempt without any practice except Bob Major and Cambridge. He is 16 years of age, and his performances must, we think, constitute a record.

A RINGERS' GUIDE.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I ask you to insert a final appeal for the particulars for my handbook on the rings of bells?

A number of secretaries have sent me the required information, and have stated that they have other information they could give me if I would like it.

I should be glad of every bit they could send; it will all help to make the book useful. It would take a long time for me to write in person to all those who have so kindly written, so I want to thank them all through the medium of 'The Ringing World.'

The required information is place, county, name of church, number of bells, weight of tenor, and practice night.—Yours truly,
60a, Fairfield Road,
Bromley, Kent.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

WESTERN DISTRICT.

An excellent meeting was held at Tring on May 21st, members and friends attending from Berkhamsted, Linslade, Bletchley, Hemel Hempstead, Apsley, King's Langley, Bushey, London and the local tower. Good practice was obtained from rounds to Double Norwich, both before and after tea.

A short service was conducted by the Vicar, and an excellent address given by the Rev. B. H. Tyrwhitt Drake. Tea followed in the Co-operative Hall, presided over by the Vicar, who had invited the ringers to be his guests. The president of the association (Mr. F. Smith, of Bushey) also honoured the meeting with his presence.

After a sumptuous tea had been put 'out of course,' the Vicar was unanimously voted to the chair, and was elected an honorary member of the association.

Redbourn (six bells) was chosen for the next meeting, to be held at the end of June. A practice meeting was fixed for Apsley, on June 1st.

Very hearty votes of thanks were accorded the Vicar for the use of the bells and his generosity, to the organist for her services, the preacher for the real 'ringers' address, and the president for his presence.

A course of Grandsire Caters 'in hand' being completed, the ringers returned to the tower to finish off the best meeting Tring has had for a very long time.

BELLS RESTORED AT ST. MARY'S, EALING.ARCHDEACON'S ANSWER TO CRITICS.

'To those who would say it was waste of time and hard-earned money to provide church bells, and that it were better to sell them and divert the money to some worthier purpose, he would reply, "Man does not live by bread alone, but by the more spiritual and elevating, softening, and ennobling elements that enter into his life." For one man or woman to whom the sound of bells is disturbing, there are ninety-nine to whom they appeal with a sense of gladness, pathos, peace, and solemnity.'

This was the answer to those who criticise the spending of money on church bells given by the Archdeacon of Middlesex on Sunday week, in a sermon which he delivered after dedicating the recast bells at St. Mary's Church, Ealing.

He preached from the text, 'To what purpose is this waste?' This cry of the disciples when applied to many things in life, he said, was very plausible, but mischievous. Each had his own gifts, and it was shameful if any became so infatuated with his own ideals that he could not conceive of any task or aim in life that was of the least importance except his own. There were many who would do well to remember that the very best work done in this world seldom had any visible, tangible, or immediate result, and that the influence of beauty, whether it be beautiful art, beautiful music, beautiful literature, or the chiming of beautiful bells, was an unseen and subtle influence, infinite and imponderable. The poet, musician, and artist had a noble part to play in this world: it was theirs to instruct, to elevate, to soothe, and humanise. It may be said that the bell is a singularly sympathetic instrument. You may have realised this, as I did on visiting a famous foundry wherein, as one spoke, bell after bell caught up some little tone of one's voice that harmonised and broke the silence with faintly sweet vibration. This vocal sympathy extends to every department of our life and experience. For any one who has a spark of historic sensibility, the sound of bells cannot but recall the distant past. Bells, indeed, are the sole audible witness of those remote Middle Ages that first used them as we use them now, and the old English from whom we have descended and to whom we owe so much. Bells, again, for many of us, are eloquent of home memories, especially when we are away from home: of happy years of childhood in some remote town or village in a distant shire. They help us to celebrate great national events as perhaps no other vocal agent can; they sound the hope of every new-born year, the joy of the marriage feast, the desolation and yet the hopefulness of the hour of death. And for multitudes who seldom or never enter a place of worship, the daily or weekly call to prayer that echoes from the innumerable spires and towers of our great cities brings its messages of gentle reproof and serious reminder of higher things. The Passing Bell, the Curfew, the Sanctus, the Angelus—what varied associations are not awakened in every mind by these familiar names? For bells are surely in the truest sense religious things in a pre-eminent degree, and it is as such that they should ever be used. Faber has not hesitated to give them this divinely symbolism of all when he says, in the well-known hymn:

'Far, far away, like bells at evening pealing,
The voice of Jesus sounds o'er land and sea.'

I would ask you, concluded the preacher, to remember at all times this sacred meaning of bells, and to find in the pealing and the chiming of them something of that sense of self-consecration which should belong to all we do for the service of man and for the worship of God.

The dedication service will long be remembered by those who were privileged to be present. After a shortened evensong, the choir rendered the anthem, 'Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky' (part of Tennyson's 'In Memoriam'). The hymn, 'Immortal, invisible God only wise,' was sung while the choir was proceeding to the west end of church, where Archdeacon Bevan dedicated the bells, after which they were rung for two minutes. At the close of the service, Julia Ward Howe's battle song, 'Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord,' was sung, and after the blessing the bells pealed forth to touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples.

For a number of years it was known that something must be done to the bells at St. Mary's. The 'go' had become very bad, and a crack developed in the tower. It was decided last year to call in experts, and they were firmly of the opinion the bells should not be further rung until restoration had taken place. The old frame had done service for about 80 years, and although it had been strengthened from time to time, it was felt that to make a good job of it the whole frame must come out and an entirely new one put in. In the meantime, the repairs and strengthening of the tower were put in hand under the able supervision of Mr. Bradley, one of the churchwardens.

Messrs. Taylor and Co. were entrusted with the work of retuning and rehanging the bells. The whole massive cast-iron frame and fittings are of the very latest modern type, and are carried on 15in. girders built firmly into the walls of the tower. The bells are hung on ball bearings.

On Saturday, June 4th, members of the Central Council in London for the annual meeting were invited, with all ringing friends, to try the bells from 6 till 9 o'clock, and between 50 and 60 availed themselves of the opportunity. All were loud in their praise of the easy going and great improvement in tone which has been effected. St. Mary's ringers were congratulated again and again upon being in possession of such a fine ring.

Mr. Fidler, representing the founders, came specially down from Loughborough for the occasion. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Messrs. Dick Lane and G. Smith in charge of the work, which was a most difficult undertaking. Owing to the position of the tower, the bells, framework and girders had to be taken into the body of the church and special scaffolding erected to take it all over the gallery to a position under the tower. In addition, owing to complaints from near residents (the tower overshadows a large number of houses), the louvres have been boarded up, so that it is hoped that in future there will be less grumbling than formerly. Although peals will be restricted, there will be plenty of ringing. For years St. Mary's company have regularly rung for service from 10 till 11 a.m., and 5.30 till 6.30. There is also a practice night once a week from 7.30 till 9 p.m., and visitors are always welcome.

COVENTRY CATHEDRAL BELLS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—My attention having been drawn to the letter of Mr. Richard Caldicott in your issue of May 27th, re Coventry Cathedral bells, I feel that it is due to your readers that certain erroneous impressions which it creates should be corrected.

Mr. Caldicott states that 'we are left with a set of chimes instead of the magnificent peal of bells now irretrievably lost.' Now, our Cathedral tower not being strong enough to withstand the strain set up by a peal of bells rung in the English manner, it is impossible to have them thus hung, but the present peal, which consists of the original ten bells recast, with two additional ones, making 12 in all, has been cast on the five-tone principle in ringing sizes, with the holes drilled ready to receive the bolts for the attachment of the headstocks necessary for ringing purposes, should a suitable campanile at any subsequent period be built.

The antithesis drawn by Mr. Caldicott between the former peal and the present chimes is therefore entirely erroneous. The bells are not a mere set of chimes, but a ringing peal, ready at any time for the addition of the wheels and headstocks. I would also point out that Mr. Caldicott appears to draw no distinction between volume and quality in relation to the tone of bells.

Any comparison between the volume of sound produced by ringing and by chiming is entirely misleading, and this is obviously the comparison to which Mr. Caldicott refers; but the beautiful mellow quality of tones of the present peal is universally acclaimed as immeasurably superior to that of the former one, and this opinion is endorsed even by those who at first were strongly opposed to the scheme of recasting. How glorious, therefore, would be the combination of lovely mellowness of tone with majestic volume of sound produced by this peal, if at any time it could be hung for ringing!—Yours faithfully,

W. H. BRAZIL, M.D.

The Quadrant, Coventry.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Tonbridge District was held at Horsmonden on May 28th, and, considering the somewhat remote position of the church, was well attended. Upwards of 20 members attended from Lamberhurst, Penshurst, Frittenden, Plaxtol, and Tunbridge Wells. Service was conducted by the Rector (Rev. H. Smith-Marriott), and this was followed by the business meeting in the schoolroom, the Rector presiding. Five new members of Hawkhurst band, two of Marden, and one of the local band, were elected.

In replying to a vote of thanks for the use of the bells, for conducting the service, etc., the Rector expressed his pleasure at meeting the members. He had been told by their district secretary that it was thirteen years ago that they met there, and he was very glad to see so many members present. He was sorry that, owing to the distance from the village to the church, they had been unable to provide a tea, but he did not like the idea of the members going away without some refreshment, and he therefore asked their district secretary to see that they had some, and he would be pleased to defray the cost.

This concluded the business, and the members adjourned to the tower, where touches of Minor from Plain Bob to London were rung.

The bells have recently been rehung by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., and the 'go' of them is excellent.

A very successful meeting of the Ashford District was held at Rolvenden on May 21st. Ringing commenced at three o'clock, and service was conducted by the Vicar, Rev. G. Andrews. The organist, Mr. Ward, also kindly accompanied the singing. Tea was partaken of at the Bull Hotel, where 30 members and friends representing four different districts sat down.

Mr. F. White presided at tea and the business meeting, at which Brabourne was selected for the next meeting in June.

Mr. Tribe welcomed the visitors, and the tower was afterwards visited till about 9 p.m.

This was a record meeting for the district, and eight methods were rung.

Thanks were accorded to the Vicar and all who made the meeting such a success.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION. SOUND FINANCIAL POSITION.

The forty-second annual general meeting of the Sussex County Association was held at Brighton on Saturday, May 28th. The towers of St. Peter's and St. Nicholas' Churches were open for ringing from 2 till 3.30 and at 3.45. There was a good attendance at a special service in the Parish Church (St. Peter's), an able address being given by the Vicar of Brighton (Canon F. C. N. Hicks, D.D.) on the text, 'That ye may be able to stand in the evil day, and, having done all, to stand.' Afterwards, between 70 and 80 assembled at St. Nicholas' Hall, where an excellent tea had been prepared, and was much enjoyed by all, the Vicar of Brighton presiding.

At the business meeting which followed, the Vicar was nominated to the chair, and was supported by Mr. J. T. Rickman (Master) and Mr. F. B. Tompkins (vice-president).

The following new members were elected: The Vicar of Brighton (Canon F. C. N. Hicks, D.D.), vice-president; Messrs. D. Streete, T. Fieldwick, F. Pollard (Turner's Hill), H. Bissenden and C. Payne (Christ Church, Blacklands), H. Colley (Heene), and F. Pocock (Battle).

The report, which has already been published in these columns, and balance sheet were adopted, the sound position of the association's funds being greatly appreciated, there being £107 12s. 3d. in hand on general account, £50 in reserve fund, and £62 1s. 6d. in benevolent account.

The president and vice-presidents were re-elected, also the following: Master, Mr. J. T. Rickman; hon. treasurer, Mr. Ellman Brown; hon. general secretary, Mr. A. D. Stone; hon. peal secretary, Mr. F. Bennett; hon. auditors, Messrs. W. C. Hart and R. J. Dawe.

The meeting decided to invest a further £50 in War Loan Stock.

The motion to discontinue the analysis of peals rung and points per tower was carried, thus eliminating the competition for the challenge bell. The rules will be altered accordingly.

The Master (Mr. J. T. Rickman) was re-elected to represent the association on the Central Council.

Lewes, Brighton and Eastbourne were mentioned for the annual general meeting in 1927, the voting result in favour of Brighton.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar of Brighton for the use of the bells, the service at St. Peter's, and his very helpful address was enthusiastically passed; and, on the motion of the Master, this was extended to the Vicar of St. Nicholas' for allowing the use of his bells and St. Nicholas' Hall for the tea and meeting.

Ringling was again resumed and continued until close on 9 o'clock.

The following towers were represented: Angmering, Battle, Bolney, Brighton (St. Peter's and St. Nicholas'), Burgess Hill, Chichester, Christ Church (Blacklands), Chiddingly, Eastbourne (St. Saviour's), East Grinstead, Heene, Heathfield, Keymer, Lower Beeding, Lindfield, Seaford, Shoreham, Slinfold, Turner's Hill, Uckfield, Warnham, West Grinstead; also non-resident members.

LONDON COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

NORTHERN DISTRICT AT WALTHAM ABBEY.

The inclemency of the weather was no doubt partly to blame for the somewhat small attendance at the meeting of the Northern District of the London County Association at Waltham Abbey, on Saturday, May 21st, but those members who braved the weather were well rewarded. Proceedings opened with a touch of Stedman Triples, followed by Kent Treble Bob Major, but Double Norwich failed to materialise. More members having arrived, Stedman Caters was the order. At the Cock Hotel an excellent tea was successfully 'turned in' by all present. At the subsequent business meeting, the District Master (Mr. L. Gray) was in the chair, and three new members were proposed, but owing to some complication in the rules of the association their elections were held over.

The meeting closed with a very hearty vote of thanks to the Clergy for so kindly giving permission to ring, and to the local ringers who arranged the meeting.

The company then dispersed, some to look around the town, others to enjoy the 'supreme delights of Ye Olde English Fayre,' while a few enthusiasts climbed the steps to the top of the tower to enjoy the excellent view. At 6.30 the bells were again set going, and touches in most of the standards were brought round.

Between 25 and 30 members attended the meeting, and it was a great pity that a 'Cinques' band could not be mustered.

That there is a growing interest in and appreciation of the work of the Central Council was manifest by last week's gathering in London, at which not only was there a record number of members present, but more associations were represented than ever before, while the Hon. Secretary was able to announce that no fewer than five fresh societies had become affiliated during the year. This shows that the many ringing units throughout the country increasingly recognise the value of having a central body which, without actually controlling the Exercise, can advise and guide it, and in many ways, notably in the publication of books and pamphlets connected with the practical side of ringing, render a service which neither individuals nor associations would be prepared to undertake. There was a period when the Council appeared to be losing its hold upon the concerns of the Exercise; it was composed largely of men out of touch with the rising generation of ringers, and there was danger of it dying from atrophy. Since the war, however, there has been a marked change. New members with new ideas have been elected, and if they are not all orators, they are men of practical knowledge of one or more of the varied branches of our Art, and are cognisant of the advances which are being made in ringing and of the aspirations and needs of ringers.

The first meeting of any new Council, such as that in London last week, is always largely concerned in routine business, but nevertheless it provided animated discussion on more than one question, and to these matters we hope to be able to revert later. For the moment, however, let us say that on the whole the meeting was one of the most successful of the long series, and if only the associations would give a little more active assistance in providing the Council with useful work, the value and the prestige of the central body would be enhanced still further. After all, the Council can only be what the affiliated organisations make it. It exists to serve their interests through the interests of the Exercise as a whole, and the more the associations individually help the Council the more are they likely collectively to benefit. As for the social side of the gathering, never was it more cordial than this year. Hitherto in London, members have been left very largely to their own devices in finding entertainment, but thanks to the organising skill of the Hon. Secretary, and his genius for getting into touch with the right people, there was this Whitsuntide a round of engagements, which were enjoyed and appreciated by all who took part in them. To those who think that such things as Central Council meetings should be confined to only £9 in hand in the bell repairs fund, and unless something very pressing arose, it would be advisable to let that accumulate before making grants. The meeting unanimously endorsed the decision of the committee.

Mr. E. J. Butler, South Western Division, moved that in future, with the permission of the incumbents and Parochial Church Councils, collections should be taken at the annual general and annual district meetings for the bell restoration fund.

The Master thought the idea an excellent one, and it would avoid the appeals to individual towers.—Mr. T. Faulkner said he felt some parish might object to money being collected in their church and taken away for non-parochial purposes.

Canon Lake said he saw no difficulty in making the collection at the Cathedral service, for 99 per cent. of those present were members of the Ringers' Association.

Mr. W. Keeble seconded, and the proposition was carried.

Upon the suggestion of Mr. L. W. Wiffen, a discussion took place on the agenda of the Central Council.

The Master proposed thanks to Canon Lake for the use of the Cathedral, and to Canon Macdonald for his helpful address.

Canon Lake, in reply, said the ringers were always welcome at the Cathedral. He congratulated the association on the increased interest in ringing throughout the diocese, and the number of restorations which were being carried out. The association could be assured that whoever was Sub-Dean at the Cathedral in two years' time, there would be a hearty welcome for the association's jubilee celebration (applause).

The members took lunch together, and there was ringing during the day in the following towers: Cathedral (12), Writtle (8), Widford (8), Galleywood (8), Great Haddow (8), Great Waltham (8), Broomfield (8), and Boreham (8). The methods rung included Stedman Cinques and Triples, Cambridge Royal, London, Superlative and Cambridge Surprise Major, Double Norwich, etc.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

JUBILEE AND MASTER'S COMING OF AGE TWO YEARS HENCE.

On Whit Monday, members of the Essex Association gathered at Chelmsford in large numbers from all parts of the county for the 48th annual meeting of the association. The interesting announcement was made that in two years' time, when the Essex Association will celebrate its jubilee, the present Master, Mr. C. H. Howard, will celebrate his coming of age in the office, and arrangements will be made for the double celebration. Proceedings at the meeting opened with service at the Cathedral, which was conducted by Canon Lake, Rector of Chelmsford and Sub-Dean of the Cathedral. There was a large attendance of ringers. The sermon was preached by Canon F. C. Macdonald, Rector of Furseleigh. The Rev. J. W. Horsley, St. Peter's, assisted, and the lesson was read by Mr. C. H. Howard.

After the service, the annual meeting was held at the Cathedral Hall. The Master presided, supported by Canon Lake, Canon Macdonald, and Mr. F. J. Pitstow, hon. secretary and treasurer.

The Master presented his report as follows:—For the two previous years we have had to record a decline in our membership. This year we have the pleasure of announcing an increase. The total membership of 1,032, although not a record, is evidence that we have arrested the decline, and we may again look to the future with confidence. 99 towers are now affiliated. Great Totham has ceased to be in union, but Colchester St. Leonard, Farnham, Fyfield and Chigwell appear as new towers. We deplore the loss by death of several of our very old and esteemed members: Canon Papillon, who occupied the position as honorary secretary in the early days of the association, and afterwards became its first Master, did much to raise the status of ringers in his day. The Rev. H. T. W. Eyre was for many years hon. secretary, succeeding Canon Papillon. Since relinquishing office he had kept up a lively interest in the work of the association, and his frequent presence at such meetings as his age would allow him to attend, was much appreciated by his old friends and colleagues. The memory of both of these past officers will ever be held in grateful remembrance for the vast amount of work they did for the association in their time. The Rev. E. Lees, Vicar of Brentwood, and the Rev. C. H. Holt, Vicar of Hornchurch, were both lovers of bells, and took a great interest in ringers and ringing. We have lost in these two warm supporters. Mr. Hugh T. Scarlett was for many years closely connected with the Walthamstow St. Mary band. In his early days he was very instrumental in teaching and coaching young bands, and his name frequently appeared in the peal column. We have also lost Mr. C. A. Wendon, of Great Bromley, an old supporter; Mr. A. Wright, of Chelmsford; and Mr. W. Jay, who were all members of long standing. Mr. F. W. Coster, a young and promising ringer, who soon after joining the Romford band, rang his first peals of Stedman, Double Norwich, and Treble Bob. Mr. W. H. Dyson was one of the founders. Up to the time of his death he was honorary secretary of the Northern Division. His efficient services and influence will be much missed, and his demise has caused a vacancy that cannot be easily filled. Sixty-nine peals have been rung during the year—60 on tower bells and nine on handbells, viz.: Stedman Cinques 1, Stedman Caters 2, Bob Royal 1, London Surprise 12, Superlative 12, Cambridge 6, Double Norwich Court Bob Major 8, Treble Bob Major 2, Bob Major 1, Stedman Triples 2, Grandioso Triples 1, Surprise Minor 4, Minor in seven methods 2, Minor in one or two methods 3, and Doubles 3. Of the nine on handbells, two were Treble Bob Major, and four Bob Major. Mr. W. Keeble again heads the list of conductors with 42 to his credit. The majority of the peals were of a very high standard. No less than 30 were rung in Surprise Major methods, an indication that our younger members are not aspiring to peal ringing in the simpler methods, which, if practised more, would stimulate interest, and improve the quality of the striking. The attendance at meetings has been excellent. Quite a number of restorations have been carried out during the year. At Wanstead, the bells have been overhauled, a new treble added at St. Leonard's, Colchester, and two troubles at Kirby-le-Soken to complete the octave. The ring of six at Newport has been rehung; much needed rope guides have been fixed at Farnham, and two trebles added to the ring of six at Dunmow, making one of the finest rings of eight in the county. The ring of eight at Baintree is to be rehung in a new frame. At Stisted, the ring of six is to be tuned and rehung in an iron frame and provision made for two trebles to be added at a later date. The rings of five at Rickling and Great Easton are to be rehung in new frames. At Fyfield the bells are to be rehung and frame strengthened. Our finances are very satisfactory. The income from subscriptions and peal booking fees is £61 19s. 9d., and expenditure £48 2s. 1d. A sum of £20 has been placed to the reserve fund, leaving a balance in hand of £21 18s. 1d., against £28 0s. 5d. brought forward from the previous year. The Reserve Fund has increased from £121 17s. to £147 9s. 10d., of which £9 is earmarked for bell restoration purposes. Our healthy financial position is very largely due to the officers of the association for the care and attention they give to their respective duties, and we tender to them our best thanks for their untiring efforts to increase and extend the usefulness of the association in the diocese. Finally, our grateful thanks are due to the clergy for the hearty welcome we receive at our meetings, for the use of their bells, the arrangements for services, and for the helpful and encouraging addresses. Without their aid and co-operation it would be impossible for us to carry on our work.

The Master added that the association was in a strong financial position. After meeting expenses they had been able to set aside £20 to the reserve fund. The bell restoration fund was increased by £5 2s. 8d., the interest on £100 the association last year decided to devote to bell restorations. The membership was steadily increasing; for a few years they decreased, but this year there had been a considerable increase to 1,032, which was within five of the highest number the association ever touched. While the members could congratulate themselves on the increase, there were still many towers not in union with the association.

'TOO MUCH MONEY.'

Mr. T. Faulkner moved the adoption of the report and balance sheet, and congratulated the district hon. secretaries and Masters on their economic use of the association's money. To his mind, these district officers hardly spent enough, and he suggested more money should be spent in missionary work by holding meetings at the towers which were not in the union, in an endeavour to interest ringers in the association. He considered the association was accumulating too much money in the reserve fund; so long as the association was poor and happy he should be very sorry to see a great accumulation of money. The prosperity of the association did not rest in the accumulation of money; so long as the work was paid for, and a small balance remained he thought the money could be more usefully employed than being in the post office at 2½ per cent.; the association might get 100 per cent. from missionary work.—The report and balance sheet were adopted.

The Master said he had tried to pile up a reserve because he believed in having a reserve, and in the many concerns to which he belonged he always looked for a reserve, because no one knew when an evil day might come. In an association like theirs it was not necessary to go on piling up the reserve. Last year it was decided to start a bell restoration fund, and £100 of the reserve fund was invested in 5 per cent. War Loan, not 2½ per cent. as previously stated by Mr. Faulkner, and the interest credited to that fund. He always felt that £150 might be the sum to aim at as reserve. When he became Master the reserve was very low; his ambition then was to see 1,000 members and £100, and both these had been exceeded now, the reserve being £147 9s. 10d. and the total worth of the society £157 9s. 10d. There was a good deal of missionary work going on, although more might be done. Many of the district secretaries had arranged meetings for the purpose of bringing other towers into the association. The officers worked the accounts most economically, and some refused to take anything for their expenses. The association was indebted to the officers for the strong financial position.

THE OFFICERS.

The election of officers followed. The Master quitted the chair, which was occupied temporarily by Canon Lake, for the election of Master for the coming year. Mr. C. H. Howard was unanimously re-elected for the 19th year.

Canon Lake said he wished to congratulate the association upon securing Mr. Howard again. No one was more keen on bells than Mr. Howard had been. He was a member of the Diocesan Advisory Committee, and members felt his experience when bells came to be considered. The Master was most keen about his work, and was most delightful to all the members of the Diocesan Committee.

Mr. Howard, in returning thanks for his re-election as Master, said he was extremely thankful for the confidence shown in him. This was the 19th year he had been elected Master, and in two years' time, when they hoped to celebrate the jubilee of the Essex Association, he should be celebrating his coming of age, so if he then asked for his pension the members must not be surprised (hear, hear). The question of the jubilee had been discussed by the committee, and by next year the association would be called upon to elect a committee to carry out the celebration. He well remembered celebrating the coming of age of the association: they had Canon Lake with them then. He hoped that he would be Rector and Sub-Dean to welcome them at their jubilee. The Master said he was looking forward with great pleasure to the jubilee of the Essex Association, and he was sure all the members were likewise interested (applause).

Mr. F. J. Pitstow (Saffron Walden) was unanimously re-elected hon. secretary and treasurer. The Master thanked Mr. Pitstow for what he had done for the association, and said they were very fortunate in having such a capable secretary to succeed the Rev. H. T. W. Eyre.

Mr. Pitstow returned thanks for his re-election, and said he should continue to do his very utmost for the association. Thanks were also due to the district secretaries for all the work they did.

The General Committee was appointed as follows: Dr. P. T. Spencer Phillips, Messrs. W. Lincoln, T. Faulkner, F. Donch, W. Keeble and the officers; Peal Committee, Messrs. F. Pitstow, T. Faulkner, G. R. Pye, W. Keeble. Messrs. W. H. Theobald and G. W. Faulkner were re-elected auditors and thanked for their past services.

Mr. F. E. Haynes, Cambridge, was elected a non-resident life member; Mr. A. Meadowcroft, Galleymoor, was elected a member. Mr. J. Brewster, Harwich, one of the oldest members of the association, was elected a life member.

RESTORATION FUND NOT INTENDED FOR ROPES.

The Master reported that the General Committee had considered an application for a contribution to the new bell ropes at Harwich Church, and they came to the conclusion that the bell restoration fund was not exactly created for supplying new ropes, and stated that there was (Concluded on previous page.)

PETERBOROUGH DIOCESAN GUILD.PRESENTATION TO LATE GENERAL SECRETARY.

The fourth annual meeting of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild was held at Northampton on Whit Monday. The Guild service was conducted in the beautiful and ancient Church of Holy Sepulchre, one of the very few round churches in the country, by the Vicar (Rev. Canon F. S. Keysell), who also gave a very able address. Luncheon was served at the Plough Hotel, 74 sitting down, and this was followed by the business meeting, which was presided over by the Master, Mr. F. Wilford, others present including Canon F. S. Keysell, Rev. J. O. Hichens, Rev. J. White, Rev. C. H. L. Hopper, Rev. E. C. C. Channer, Messrs. W. T. Wilson (treasurer), S. F. Millward (auditor), R. G. Black (general secretary), F. Barber, H. Baxter, T. Tebbutt and W. Bost (branch secretaries).

Apologies for absence were received from the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Peterborough, Rev. R. C. Thursfield, Miss Thursfield, Miss Hepburn, Rev. A. M. Johnson, Rev. J. P. de Putron, Rev. L. C. Shreatfield, Rev. C. J. Watkins, Canon J. P. Frend.

The secretary's report and statement of accounts were adopted, as was also the auditor's report.

There being no new nominations sent in for officers, the whole were re-elected en bloc, as follows: President, the Very Rev. the Dean of Peterborough; Master, Mr. F. Wilford; treasurer, Mr. W. T. Wilson; general secretary, Mr. R. G. Black; auditor, Mr. S. F. Millward.

A presentation was made by the Master on behalf of all the members to Mr. D. J. Nichols, for several years secretary of the Central Northants Association, and, later, of the Peterborough Guild, from its formation until he was obliged to retire owing to ill-health. The presentation took the form of a roll of notes (£31), accompanied by a framed certificate, placing on record the Guild's sincere appreciation of the services Mr. Nichols had rendered to the old association and the Guild, the formation of which was largely the result of his efforts. The Master briefly recalled the work Mr. Nichols had done, and said that although he had been obliged to resign his office, the memory and the value of his work would remain.

Mr. Nichols, in reply, thanked the members for the presentation, and the Master for his kind remarks as to what he had done for the Guild, and added that he began to serve in the belfry when he was nine years of age, and ringing had been a real joy to him. All he had done was for love of the church and of ringing. He was pleased to say he was in a little better health (applause), and he had not abandoned hope of once again taking his place as a ringer.

On the committee's recommendation, a grant of £5 was made from the Belfry Repairs Fund to Kingsthorpe for improvements in the ringing chamber.

It was decided to hold the next annual meeting at Thrapston.

The Master stated that the new Bishop of Peterborough had expressed a wish to meet the members of the Guild, and it was decided that his Lordship be asked to fix a date during the summer months and a meeting arranged.—The General Secretary suggested it might be made an annual event as a summer festival.

Mr. F. Barber moved a vote of thanks to the clergy for the use of the several rings of bells that day, to Canon Keysell for conducting service, and for his address, to the officials of the Northampton Branch, and the general secretary for the splendid arrangements they had made for the meeting, which undoubtedly was a success.

Mr. Nichols congratulated the general secretary on the able manner in which he had discharged his duties during his first full year of office.—Mr. S. F. Millward supported this.

During 1926, forty-one branch meetings were held, and the attendance was above the average. Fifty-nine peals were rung, an increase of 12, there being 16 different conductors, 21 members rang their first peal, and received certificates, 71 rang their first in a method or number of methods, and 130 different ringers took part in these peals, which were rung in 41 different churches.

The first peals of Treble Ten and London Surprise Major by the Guild were rung during the year. There are 97 towers in union with the Guild, an increase of three, 74 honorary members and 619 ringing members, an increase of 38, and 129 non-resident life members, making a grand total of 822.

The collections at the services for the Belfry Repairs Fund amounted to £15 16s. 5d., and the balance in hand on that fund is £69 7s. 5d. The receipts on the general account were £41 2s. 4d., and the expenditure £31 2s. 4d., which shows £10 balance on the year's working, this being considered very satisfactory.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Master for presiding.

LOUGHBOROUGH BELLS FOR AMERICA.

America's love of British bells is shown by the contracts from over the Atlantic placed with Messrs. J. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough. The firm are now casting a carillon for the Florida home of a prominent American citizen. It will consist of sixty-one bells. Another order is for forty-eight bells for a carillon at Germantown, Pennsylvania, and a carillon is being shipped to the City Hall at Albany, New York. This carillon is practically a replica of the famous one at Bruges.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The Rev. T. L. Jones, of Bangor, president of the North Wales Association, and until recently an active ringer, is shortly to be married to Miss Thomas, a member of the teaching staff of the Sunday School attached to his church. Mr. Jones is 86 years of age, and takes a keen interest in the North Wales Association, of which he was one of the founders.

We regret that in our issue of June 3rd, through a slip on the part of a correspondent, it was stated that Mr. W. Keeble, of Kelvedon, had lost a son in a motor accident. The fatality befell the eldest son of that other well-known Kelvedon ringer, Mr. W. Elliott, with whom much sympathy has been expressed.

The peal of Stedman rung at St. Martin's, Epsom, by the College Youths, on May 21st, was Thurstans' four-part. The ringer of the 4th was G. W. Frayne.

'Uncle Joe' Sykes says he had a rollicking time at Whitsun in 'peal ringing.' On Saturday, after 1 hr. 40 mins. for Cinques at Leicester, the tenor clapper broke; on Monday, a change course occurred after 2 hrs. 40 mins. in Stedman Cinques at Wolverhampton; Cambridge Surprise Minor at Fillongley, on Tuesday afternoon, was stopped after an hour on account of a neighbouring fete; and they met one short at Exhall in the evening. He managed a peal at Higham-on-the-Hill on Wednesday morning, a funeral prevented a start at Bulkington in the afternoon, and they were one short at Bedworth in the evening. Yes, Joe; you did have a rollicking time.

'Curious' wants to know why the band at Frinsted, Kent, had to have six attempts before they could ring one 120 of Stedman, as all of the band have rung a peal of Stedman Triples. He would also like to know why three of the band of five fell off their bicycles on the way home. Were they really looking at an owl overhead?

Jasper Snowdon was born at Ilkley on June 18th, 1844. On June 20th, 1790, a peal of 6,016 Oxford Treble Bob Major was rung at St. Mary's, Battersea, 'being the most ever rung true on the bells.'

Forty-five years ago next Thursday the first peal was rung by the Midland Counties Association. This was a peal of Grandsire Triples at Derby.

THE FIRST PEAL OF ST. BLAISE SURPRISE.

The first peal of a new Surprise method has been rung at Holy Trinity Church, Guildford, as recorded elsewhere in this issue. The method was produced by the Rev. E. Bankes James as a rival to Superlative, but, although the 2nd and 3rd never get behind with the tenor, there is, we are informed, a difference of opinion as to which method gives the better music.

The name was suggested by the Rev. Canon E. C. Kirwan, Rector of Holy Trinity (the pro-cathedral of the new diocese), St. Blaise having been associated with the ancient town of Guildford.

The figures of the method will be published as soon as space permits.

DEATH OF A LOUGHBOROUGH RINGER.

It is with deep regret we have to record the death of Mr. Samuel Smith, of Loughborough, Leicestershire, who passed suddenly away on Sunday morning, June 5th. Deceased was working up to Saturday dinner time at Messrs. J. Taylor and Co's Foundry, where he had been employed for some forty or more years, as foreman in the joinery department, and appeared to be in his usual health. About five o'clock on Sunday morning he complained of feeling a little cold, and before the doctor had arrived he had passed peacefully away.

'Sam,' as he was known, was a safe ringer and an excellent striker, and was always willing to help a learner up the steps which he found rather a task to climb.

He had been a member of the Midland Counties Association and All Saints' Society, Loughborough, for 44 years, ringing some 60 peals, including the record length, at that time, of Superlative Surprise Major on Whit Tuesday, 1894, on the bells of the Parish Church.

Deceased, who was 67 years of age, leaves a widow, son and daughter to mourn their loss.

He was laid to rest on Wednesday, June 8th, the service being of a quiet and impressive character, conducted by Rev. Canon G. W. Briggs. With those present at the service were Mr. E. Denison Taylor and Mr. J. Oldham, representing the firm. In the evening, 1,277 of Grandsire Caters was rung with bells half-muffled as a last token of respect by his fellow ringers, and this was followed by the 'whole pull and stand': J. Onslow 1, W. Thorley 2, J. Saddington 3, E. Cartwright 4, J. Grundy 5, C. Harriman 6, E. Leslie 7, J. Hutchby 8, E. Reader (conductor) 9, H. F. Stubbs 10.

ICKLETON CHURCH BELLS.

CENSURE ON CHURCH AUTHORITIES.

CHURCHWARDENS SUSPENDED; VICAR REPORTED.

A serious situation has resulted from the steps taken to restore the bells at Ickleton, Cambs. It will be remembered that the tenor broke and put an end to the ringing of the peal of six. At first it was proposed to recast this bell and rehang the rest. When the bells were taken out it was found two others were cracked, and it was then decided to recast the whole and, if possible, add two trebles to make eight.

A faculty had been obtained for recasting the broken tenor, and on Thursday of last week, the Chancellor of the diocese (Mr. Kenneth M. MacMorran) presided at a Consistory Court, held in the south transept of Ely Cathedral, when the Vicar of Ickleton (Rev. P. H. Cooke) asked that the petition might be amended for the recasting of the whole of the bells of the church.

Mr. Cooke said it was originally decided that one bell be recast. Mr. Weir saw the bells, and when they were taken out two more were discovered to be cracked. Afterwards, when they got them to the foundry, Mr. Johnston advised them to have the whole six recast, and he (Mr. Johnston) would arrange to give them a much better peal, and that they decided to do. So that what they asked was that the application be changed for the recasting of the six bells instead of one.

The Chancellor said he understood the bells had already been recast. The faculty, for one, was dated January 21st. Mr. Cook and his churchwardens were the trustees and guardians of those bells. What did they mean by sending them to a bell founder without referring to anybody?

Mr. Cook said they carried out the advice given them. The Chancellor pointed out that the advice was that one bell be recast.

In reply to a question by the Chancellor, the Vicar said the bells were moved about last November from the belfry.

The Chancellor: It is rather serious, you know. He added that the mischief had been done some months before the petition was delivered.

Mr. Cooke said the bells were taken away then, but were not recast until about a month ago.

The Chancellor: What right had you to take the bells away from your town? They were not your bells.

Mr. Cooke said he did not act on his own opinion.

The Chancellor said he did not know whether Mr. Cooke realised that he could be deprived of his living—not by him (the Chancellor), of course. He saw they had the bells from 1729 to 1755. On account of that wrongful action the bells were lost for ever, and, of course, no order that he could make would restore them. The less he said about the founders the better, because he would never have allowed them to touch those bells in any circumstances. 'You people seem to think you can do any mortal thing you like,' added the Chancellor. It was perfectly idle to ask him for a confirmatory faculty. Mr. Cooke might tell his churchwardens they were suspended from office, and he would report them to the Archdeacon and tell him they were not fit and proper persons to hold office, and he would report him (Mr. Cooke) to the Bishop for acting in a most improper way.

THE RECORD PEAL ATTEMPT.

EARLY END IN SAMLESBURY RINGING.

The attempt to ring a peal of record length at Samlesbury, Lancs, on Saturday, came to an early end. The peal was a 22,096 Double Norwich Major by Mr. Gabriel Lindoff, but only about 22 courses had been rung (with the tenors parted) when 5 and 8 'shifted'—when dodging on the front, and it was not noticed until the 5th was going out behind, too late to rectify the error. Ringing had then been in progress 1 hr. 22 mins.

Time would still have permitted of an attempt for a record length, but the band were unanimous in declining to start again. Perhaps a little excuse will be pardoned. The bells are tremendously noisy in the ringing chamber, and that is why the band would not start again. Had nothing occurred, the conductor would certainly have called the bells round when the tenors came together at a little over 9,000 changes, as it would have been impossible to stand the strain of that terrible din for 13 hours.

The Vicar has promised to do his best to have the bells quietened in the ringing chamber, and expressed the hope that the attempt would be made again, if possible, under better conditions.

The band would like to express their appreciation of the promptitude of Messrs. Taylor and Co. in the quick despatch of the ropes, which were delivered a day before the promised date, and also to the Vicar and the local band, who did everything that was possible to ensure the success of the peal.

The thanks of the band were also expressed to Messrs. H. Langdon, W. Wilson, E. Morris, J. W. Parker, H. W. Wilde and many others for their good wishes.

Suffice it to say, the band are not downhearted and by no means beaten. Should favourable circumstances arise, the attempt will be made again.

The band comprised Messrs. E. Cutsforth, T. B. Worsley, J. E. Bibby, T. Barlow, J. H. Riding, G. Lindoff, A. E. Peglar, and E. Jenkins (conductor).

SPliced SURPRISE MAJOR.

A PEAL RUNG IN FOUR METHODS.

Although method 'splicing' opened up a new field of enterprise for ringers and the linking of different methods on six, eight or ten bells, has resulted in a number of peals on this plan being rung, it is not long since that the splicing of the popular Surprise Major methods was looked upon as something outside the realm of practical achievement. Then came the production of a peal of Spliced Superlative and Cambridge, but the ringing of it seemed a bit of a 'facer', and no hand appears even to have put it into practice. Recently, the Rev. H. Law James dropped a bombshell into the Exercise by composing a peal in which London, Superlative, Cambridge and Bristol Surprise Major were all united in a five thousand. It is a masterpiece of construction, and ringers have had the opportunity of studying it, since it appeared in the columns of 'The Ringing World' a fortnight ago.

Unlike some of the peals lately rung in more than one method, where there has been half a peal of one and half a peal of another, this composition in fifty courses has at least two methods and sometimes three in each course. From start to finish, there are in the 169 leads no fewer than 119 changes of method, sometimes at bobs, sometimes at plain leads. The first and last leads of the course are London, and the main plan is to join them with a lead either of Superlative or Cambridge. Bristol, the sauce piquant of the composition, is not added with the same regularity, for on one occasion in each of the ten parts it occurs after the Superlative or Cambridge, and on the other occasion in each part it is put in before the Superlative or Cambridge. The composition itself is in two separate halves, to join which one lead of Bristol has to be sacrificed, so that the peal can be rung to contain 100 leads of London, 25 leads of Superlative, 25 leads of Cambridge and 19 leads of Bristol.

These are some of the facts about the extraordinary composition by the Rev. H. L. James. It presented to an enterprising band a unique opportunity, which was seized by a company of which Mr. A. H. Pulling, of Guildford, is the conductor. They met on May 28th at Warnham to attempt to ring it, and found the task not less difficult than they anticipated. The first start ended at the second lead-end: the next lasted ten minutes; then came half an hour's ringing, and afterwards the bells got away again, and there seemed every hope of completing the peal, but a shift course occurred, and the bells were stopped at the ninth part end after almost three hours' ringing, much to everyone's disappointment.

The ringing was not without its incidents, some of them amusing, as, for instance, when, on one occasion the conductor, in turning the bells out of London, called 'Superlative—no, Cambridge—No-o-o, bust it! Bristol.' Everybody laughed, but they made it Bristol in the end. Even though the conductor calls all the changes of method, the switch over is not quite a simple matter; in effect, it introduces work which seems strange, as, for example, when the bell that has done trouble work behind in Cambridge or Superlative has one blow in 3rd's and runs straight back up to 8-7-8 when turning into London at a plain lead, or when, after 7-8-8 in London, a bell goes down to one blow in 5th's and returns to a dodge behind in the intermediate work of Cambridge. Moreover, the complexity of the job is not simplified by the fact that in going into or out of London the hunting course of the bells is suddenly reversed; or by the fact that there are, in a sense, 56 different 'switches.' Thus one may go from each of five different positions in London to the five corresponding places in each of Cambridge, Superlative and Bristol. Similarly, there are five from Bristol to London, Cambridge and Superlative; five from Cambridge and five from Superlative to London and Bristol respectively, and in Cambridge and Superlative there are, in addition, three plain-lead switches to London. Each 'switch' gives its own different little sequence of work, and as there are only 119 switch places, it is obvious the work never gets monotonous from repetition. Indeed, it is continually springing surprises on the ringer, and is fine exercise in mental acrobatics.

Well, having got 'so near and yet so far' on the first occasion, it was only natural the band should desire to make another attempt, and they met last Saturday for the purpose. There was no second start this time. Except for slight trips, caused by momentary hesitations, the ringing went well, and the striking for the most part was of a high order. At the end of three hours and twenty minutes the bells ran round, and another mark in ringing history had been made. The band were justifiably pleased with their performance, and appreciated the congratulations of three well-known London ringers (who motored down to hear some of the ringing, and pronounced what they did hear as 'excellent'), and of members of the Warnham company, to whom, and to the Rector, thanks are given for the use of the bells.

The peal, as rung, contained 3,200 changes of London, 800 changes each of Superlative and Cambridge, and 608 changes of Bristol. Superlative and Cambridge were rung in alternate parts.

WEDDING BELLS.

Wedding bells rang out merrily at St. Catherine's, Feltham, on Saturday afternoon, June 11th, when Mr. A. J. Lewis, a much respected member of the local band, was wedded to Miss D. E. Staniford. After an unsuccessful attempt for a peal by the Middlesex County Association, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples was rung in 40 mins.: W. H. Hollier 1, A. Cutmore 2, A. H. Fulwell 3, R. A. Fardon (conductor) 4, C. W. R. Grimwood 5, H. Belcher 6, A. J. Trappitt, sen. 7, F. Corko 8.

THE CENTRAL COUNCIL.

SPECIAL REPORT OF THE WHITSUN MEETING.

The most largely attended meeting in the history of the Central Council was that held at the Mansion House, London, on Whitsun Tuesday, when nearly a hundred members were present, representing 38 societies. The meeting was opened with prayer, offered by the president (Canon G. F. Coleridge), who said it was his pleasant duty to inform them that the Lord Mayor of London and the Archdeacon of London had come to welcome them. It was exceedingly kind of both to spare a few moments from their many pressing engagements to come there to greet them (applause).

The Lord Mayor, who was received with applause, warmly welcomed the Council to the Mansion House. The ability and distinction with which the bell ringers of this country carried on their calling was, he said, well known, and in no other part of the world were bells so well rung as they were in England. He had just returned from Belgium, where there were a great number of bells, but the bells of this country were unequalled in many ways (hear, hear). He should have been sorry to miss that meeting, because he felt they represented a body doing a valuable work in connection with the Church by ringing the bells which pealed throughout the land (applause).

The Lord Mayor having left to keep another engagement, Archdeacon Holmes welcomed the Council as the representative of the Bishop of London, and in the name of the Church. Bell ringers, he said, combined in their activities the two elements of Church and State. Bells were used wondrously in connection with both, and they had a great influence, whether heard above the clash and clamour of a noisy city like London, or in the quiet of the country villages and lanes, and to all who heard them they carried some message, although the recipient might hardly be conscious of it. Wherever they went they felt always at home when they heard the bells beginning to ring—bells were a great national instrument. The Archdeacon added that he wanted to leave one thought with them; it was the necessity for throwing oneself enthusiastically into one's local work; if they did that, their interest and influence would extend through the whole area in which their society operated. Thus they would be able to take part in the bigger work and give a helping hand to those who had not had the same opportunities as themselves. In the name of the Bishop of London he gave them a most hearty welcome to the diocese (applause).

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

The Council then proceeded to the business of the day.

The Hon. Secretary (temporarily in the chair) said only one nomination had been received for the office of president, and he had great pleasure in announcing Canon Coleridge duly re-elected. He trusted he would have another happy term of office (applause).

Canon Coleridge, in acknowledging his re-election, thanked the Council for the honour they had again conferred upon him. He told them three years ago he was getting much too old for that chair ('No, no'). There were many others far more competent than himself to occupy it ('No'). He would do his best during the next three years, or during such part of it as he might be alive. Although he had plenty of energy yet, they knew perfectly well he was not up to the mark in ringing circles, because he could not get about as much as he used to do. As for these new developments which came crowding upon them, they were told in Standing Committee that only five people understood some of them. He (the speaker) was not one of the five (laughter). Continuing, the President said that only one nomination for the office of hon. secretary and treasurer had been sent in, and that was on behalf of the present holder of the office. He was sure they could not have a better (applause), and he declared Mr. Young duly elected by acclamation (applause).

Mr. Young thanked the members, and said the Council's wishes and work were nearest his heart. The years were passing, and he thought they should be scanning the faces of some of the younger men who would be able to take over the duties and carry them out better than he had done. Perhaps in three years' time, now that he had given them due warning, they might think of that.

The President congratulated Mr. Young upon his recovery from a painful illness. When he saw Mr. Young in hospital about three weeks earlier he had doubts whether he would be able to carry on and be present that day. He had a most valuable assistant, and they were much indebted to her for all she had done for them. Mr. Young's recovery had, happily, been rapid, and they were all delighted to see him in his old place (applause). Many of them must also have been thinking of their former secretary, who had likewise recovered from a serious operation recently undergone. They were delighted to see him with them after apparently a perfect recovery of health (applause).

One nomination only had been received for the post of hon. librarian, the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn being re-elected.

Apologies for absence were then read, and letters received from relatives of three deceased members acknowledging expressions of sympathy and condolence sent by the hon. secretary.

On the motion of Mr. W. T. Cockerill, seconded by Mr. A. A. Hughes, who had audited the accounts, the balance sheet was adopted, the Secretary pointing out that five fresh associations had joined during the year. A special welcome was extended to the representative of the Truro Diocesan Guild, the affiliation of which carried the territory of the Council into Cornwall.

THE LIBRARIAN'S REPORT.

In his report the Hon. Librarian said: Except for the business done with the newly-published 'Major and Cater Methods,' the sale of publications has been much the same as last year. There was a brisk demand for this book in the first few weeks after publication, but there has not been very much since. However, it is gratifying to be able to hand over a cheque for £7 10s. 5d. as the result of the year's sales instead of drawing upon the funds of the Council, as I have been compelled to do in the past few years. The stock of publications at present amounts to 34 copies 'On the Preservation of Bells,' 264 copies 'Cards of Instruction on the Care and Use of Bells,' 117 copies 'Rules and Decisions of the Council,' 1,238 copies 'Glossary of Technical Terms,' 43 copies 'S.P.A.B. Conference Report,' 280 copies 'Peal Collection, Section I.,' 481 copies 'Peal Collection, Section II.,' 685 copies 'Peal Collection, Section III.,' 219 copies 'Major and Cater Methods,' and a large supply of Corrigenda Leaflets of the Peal Collections. As to the library proper, it fulfils the purpose for which it was intended, though the number of those who make use of it is not very great. It is still short of the following numbers of 'Bell News' in the years when that paper overlapped 'The Ringing World': 1912, Nos. 1561, 1594, 1595, 1596, 1598, 1913, Nos. 1605, 1606, 1625, 1631; 1914, Nos. 1658, 1675, 1677, 1678, 1679, 1680, 1687, 1688, 1689, 1696, 1697, 1700; 1915, Nos. 1717, 1729, 1735, 1737, 1739, 1741, 1755, any of which I shall be glad to receive. There are one or two books, and there is a considerable amount of written work by the late Sir Arthur Heywood and others, as to the value of which I am very doubtful. I should not, however, care to undertake the responsibility of destroying any of this. But I would suggest to the Council that it should appoint one or two experts in these matters who would go through the contents of the library with me, and report as to their value.

The report was adopted.

Mr. C. H. Howard raised the question of reprinting the pamphlet 'Rules for a local company,' for which, it was pointed out, there was a demand.—It was resolved that the Rules should be revised and reprinted, and the following committee was appointed to carry out the work: Canon H. J. Elsee, Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, Mr. E. W. Elwell and Mr. H. W. Wilde.

It was also announced that the Rev. E. S. Powell and Mr. J. A. Trollope would go through the books and papers with the librarian to dispose of those not worth keeping.

NEW HONORARY MEMBERS.

The President said the Standing Committee had considered the question of how best to fill up the vacancies among the hon. members. They recommended that the Rev. A. T. Beeston and Mr. Cyril Johnston (who were not now representatives of an association) should be elected; that would leave one vacancy in case they wanted to elect someone specially to the Council.

Mr. A. Paddon Smith proposed that Mr. J. S. Goldsmith, Editor of 'The Ringing World,' should be elected to this vacancy, and the suggestion was at once agreed to, and the three gentlemen mentioned were unanimously elected.

After the introduction of new members to the president, the election of the Standing Committee took place. The president, Canon Elsee, Revs. C. W. O. Jenkyn, H. Law James, and C. D. P. Davies, Messrs. W. T. Cockerill, J. Griffin, E. A. Young, J. S. Pritchett, A. A. Hughes, C. F. Johnston and Pryce Taylor were re-elected, and Messrs. W. A. Care, C. T. Coles, J. D. Matthews, A. Paddon Smith and the Rev. A. T. Beeston were added to the committee.

COMMITTEES' REPORTS.

The Council next turned to the consideration of committees' reports, the first being the Peal Collection, presented by Miss E. K. Parker. Since the last meeting of the Council, the committee stated, a final appeal was made in 'The Ringing World' for one-part compositions of Treble Bob, which resulted in about 500 further compositions being sent to the chairman, the Rev. H. S. T. Richardson. This entailed a great deal of work in discovering duplicates, etc., and the work was practically completed and ready for typing, when Mr. Richardson removed to Hereford. In consequence, the completion was delayed for a time, but the committee hope to present the completed collection at the next meeting.

The report was adopted, and the committee re-appointed as follows: Revs. H. S. T. Richardson and E. S. Powell, Messrs. J. A. Trollope, H. W. Wilde, J. W. Parker and Miss E. K. Parker.

The report of the Literature and Press Committee, presented by the Rev. F. L. Edwards, must needs begin, it said, on a sad note. Since the last meeting of the Council, the committee stated, the hand of death has bereft us of our convener, the Rev. C. E. Matthews, and our first duty is to pay tribute of respect to the memory of one esteemed and beloved by a wide circle of comrades in the art of ringing. During the past twelve months the committee has continued to collaborate with the hon. secretary of the Council in the preparation of a revised edition of 'Rules and Decisions.' A draft copy of the revision will be presented to the Council and suggestions for certain alterations and additions will be submitted for approval. There has been little else to call for action on the part of the committee. Individual members have kept in touch with the British Broadcasting Company and have used their endeavours to obtain due recognition for change ringing. At the same time, we have the satisfaction of noting that one of the main purposes of the establishment of this committee is being in large measure achieved. Both the London and provincial Press has in recent times devoted far more attention to bells and bell ringing than was the case a few years ago, and statements with reference to change ringing have shown a great advance in the matter of accurate information. Even that familiar feature of popular literature, the 'Triple Bob Major,' is seldom encountered in print nowadays, and the appearance from time to time of quite well-informed articles or paragraphs affords welcome proof that the ideals of the Council are being attained to a gratifying extent.

The report was adopted and the committee were re-elected: Revs. F. L. Edwards and A. T. Beeston, Messrs. G. P. Burton, W. Willson and A. Paddon Smith, and Mr. J. S. Goldsmith was added.

'MINOR METHODS' TO BE REPRINTED.

The Rev. H. Law James reported for the Methods Committee. As they all knew, he said, the Collection of Plain Major Methods was in print and on sale, and he was very pleased to hear that a large number of copies had been sold. So far as last year was concerned, they were very well pleased. With regard to the future, he understood that the 'Collection of Minor Methods' was to all intents and purposes out of print. There were two things to which the committee might turn their attention in the immediate future: the reprinting of the Minor Methods, with the addition of bobs and singles, and 720's; or they might go on to the Treble Bob Major methods. Having published the Plain methods, he thought it was only fair to the Exercise that they should reissue the Minor methods, and he hoped the Council would empower them to do so during the coming year. He had had a letter from Mr. Lewis saying that his time was so much occupied that he would only be able occasionally to give them help. As, therefore, the committee could not expect much from Mr. Lewis, they suggested that the Rev. E. S. Powell should be added to the committee. They would still have Mr. Lewis in the background, but the three other members would do the work and submit it to Mr. Lewis for his final approval.

Mr. J. A. Trollope asked the Council, and through it the Exercise, to let the committee know, in view of the reissue of the Minor methods, if the six-bell ringers had any suggestions to make with regard to what should be put into the book, and the way in which bobs and singles should be shown. Three years ago one of their members rather criticised the book, and in issuing the Major methods they adopted some of the suggestions made. If the six-bell ringers wanted anything included in the reprint, as far as it was possible to be done, they should let the committee know, and not wait until after it appeared and then complain about it.

The President emphasised this appeal to the six-bell ringers. He said that until the committee knew what the six-bell ringers wanted they would be working somewhat in the clouds; what they would like to do was to come down to realities.

The committee's report was adopted, and it was agreed that a reprint of the 'Collection of Minor Methods' should be proceeded with. The committee, consisting of Rev. H. Law James, Messrs. E. H. Lewis and J. A. Trollope were re-elected, and the Rev. E. S. Powell added.

The Rev. A. T. Beeston moved the adoption of the Peals' Analysis Committee's report, which was printed in 'The Ringing World.' He said the committee were grateful to the Exercise for the care which had been taken in sending reports of peals for publication. He was sorry to say that there had been a number of omissions of conductors' names. Perhaps the mention of this fact would lead to greater care.

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith said that when defective reports were received, they were returned to the sender for correction, whenever possible, but in some cases no address was enclosed, and this course could not then be followed.

The report was adopted, and the President thanked the committee for their work.

THE SOCIAL SIDE.

Members began to arrive in the Metropolis on Saturday, and on Sunday many found their way to the various belfries. For the afternoon, arrangements had been made by the hon. secretary for a river trip to Greenwich and a visit to the Observatory. A party of 26 availed themselves of the opportunity, and boarded the steamer 'Ich Dien' at Westminster, leaving at 2.30. Going down river, great interest was taken in the various wharves, docks, shipping and bridges, especially the Tower Bridge, which happened to be opened for a Swedish steamer as they passed.

By the courtesy of the Astronomer Royal, Sir Frank Dyson, the Observatory was opened to the party, and he himself met them and personally conducted them over the most interesting of the buildings. The description of the giant telescopes and how they are worked was closely followed, and all felt that they had been the recipients of very rare and great honour. At the end of the visit, Mr. E. Alex. Young, on behalf of the party and also the Central Council, expressed their warmest thanks to the Astronomer Royal for his kindness.

A further walk through the beautiful park and gardens brought the party to the Rangers' House, where, in this fine old Georgian building, tea had been provided for them. The ladies of the party wandered back through the charming flower gardens and avenues, whilst also enjoying the distant music of St. Alphege's (Greenwich) bells, to which church most of the men folk had gone to ring for evening service, the bells having been placed at their disposal through the forethought of Mr. Thornton, who joined the party on their arrival at Greenwich. A return to Westminster by water ended an enjoyable and memorable day.

On Monday afternoon, another party enjoyed a trip by river to Kew Gardens, and there were also certain unofficial visits to spots of interest in and about the city, with Mr. Young as guide. His great knowledge of the antiquities and history of these little-known corners of London was interesting and instructive, and his kindness was highly appreciated.

In the evening there was an enjoyable party at the renowned 'Coffee Pot,' the headquarters of the College Youths, and after the Council meeting on Tuesday, there was a large gathering at the Cumberlands' headquarters, the Bedford Head. Canon Baker was in the chair, and handbells and songs, as well as friendly intercourse, caused a pleasant evening to pass all too quickly.

A REMINDER TO MEMBERS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—On comparing the number of signatures on the roll with the number of members which I made during the day, I am of opinion that four or five members at the Mansion House on Tuesday, did not sign their names as requested. If they will notify me, I will see that their names are entered on the official minutes.

I take the opportunity to remind a few of the members that the following payments were not made to my secretary as requested, viz.: 33 railway vouchers at 2d. each, and five bottles of ale at the luncheon at 6d. each still remain unpaid. I trust it is only necessary for me to issue this reminder.—Yours faithfully, E. ALEX. YOUNG.

SHEFFIELD DISTRICT SOCIETY AT CRESWELL.

On Saturday, June 4th, about 40 members of the above society turned up at a meeting at Creswell, from Anston, Bolsover, Dore, Eckington, Ecclesfield, Handsworth, Killamarsh, Pudsey, Rotherham, North Wingfield, Wortley, Worksop, Norton, Sheffield Cathedral, St. Mario's and Whittington. The fine little peal of eight recently installed by Messrs. Taylor and Co. were in great demand during the afternoon, practically every touch being successfully brought round.

The peal is hung in a very attractive brick tower faced with stone, and the ringing chamber is approached by an excellent staircase of cement and steel chippings. Electric light is installed and windows are on all sides of the ringing chamber. Not every tower with a new peal has had such attention paid to details which affect the ringers' comfort as has been shown at Creswell, and any incumbent with little experience of bells and their appurtenances, who is thinking of having a peal, would lose nothing by paying a visit to this little country village tower.

Tea was provided in the local church school through the good offices of Mr. Bacon, of the local company, and several ladies, when a party of a dozen or so rolled in from Bolsover, who had been present at the interment of the late Mr. William Lambert, whose death was notified in our columns.

The business meeting was carried through according to programme, when four new members were duly elected, and the secretary was requested to convey the society's sympathy to the widow and family of the late Mr. Lambert.

A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector, who had so unhesitatingly granted use of the bells at short notice (owing to illness at Bolsover), and to the local company and ladies for their efforts to make the visit a success.

Ringing was further indulged in, from Bob Minor to London Surprise, until bus and train time necessitated an all too hasty parting from this fine little peal of bells.

MR. W. KEEBLE'S HANDBELL RECORD.

Mr. W. Keeble, of Kelvedon, has completed one hundred peals on handbells, and his list of performances includes the greatest number of Surprise peals rung 'in hand' by any ringer; also the greatest number of Major methods yet rung on handbells. These handbell peals have been rung with 50 ringers, including three brothers of three different families.

GLOUCESTER & BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.ANNUAL MEETING DISCUSSES JUBILEE YEAR ARRANGEMENTS.

The annual meeting of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association was held on Whit Monday at Bourton-on-the-Water. The Bristol contingent had a beautiful run from the city, leaving at 7 a.m., travelling through the delightful scenery of Didmorton towards, and through, Cirencester, thence on to Northleach, where some excellent change ringing was done. Then another nine miles of the most beautiful part of the famous Cotswold Hills and Stow was reached. Proceedings commenced officially with ringing and lunch at Stow, where Mr. Withers, of Birmingham, gave the writer good proof that the reputed weight of the tenor, 28 cwt., is more likely to be 21 cwt. or even less. There was a very happy meeting with an old friend, founder and pioneer, the Rev. C. D. P. Davies, and this gathering revived the historical work of the association. The next move was to Bourton-on-the-Water, where a service had been arranged for 3 p.m. by Canon White, of Bourton-on-the-Water, and the sermon was preached by the Ven. Archdeacon of Cheltenham, who, in the course of his address, made a suggestion that ringers might consider a plan of ringing whereby the uninitiated might know whether the bells were being rung for practice or for a useful purpose.

The business meeting followed in the Parish Rooms. The hon. treasurer was able to report progress in all directions, and the annual accounts showed an increased balance of £10 5s. 5d. upon the year's work. It was agreed by a 20 per cent. vote to allow incumbents to become members upon the basis and payment of performing members. They will now pay 1s. 6d. per annum instead of 5s. as before.

A question of insurance of bell ringers whilst 'within the church' for the purpose of ringing bells, at 6d. per annum, was allowed to 'lie on the table.'

It was unanimously agreed that a memorial tablet to the late Mr. G. H. Phillott, of Cheltenham, a foundation member, be placed in St. Mary's Church, Cheltenham, as a recognition of his valuable work.

The jubilee meeting of the association, which will occur next year, was discussed, and the arrangements of the Bristol United Guilds were fortified.

Rev. C. D. P. Davies (foundation member and Past Master) was elected Master for the jubilee year. In acknowledging his election, he said he felt after the kind way he had been elected to the mastership he would be ungrateful not to accept, and thanked the meeting for the great honour conferred upon him.

Mr. W. Cave was appointed to take charge of ringing during the jubilee year meeting.

All the other officers were re-elected.

A vote of thanks to the Ven. Archdeacon of Cheltenham, Canon White, of Bourton-on-the-Water, Mr. B. Phillips, and the organist, for their kind help, was proposed by the hon. secretary and seconded by Rev. C. D. P. Davies, and carried unanimously.

A vote of thanks to the retiring Master, Mr. A. Wright, was also given.

Tea was then partaken of, and after further ringing the visitors dispersed. At this stage the Bristol charabanc was converted into a pantechmicon. It was a most enjoyable day.

MIDLAND COUNTIES ASSOCIATION.BURTON-ON-TRENT DISTRICT.

A successful district meeting was held at Overseal on Saturday, June 11th, when about twenty ringers were present from Burton (St. Paul's), Ashby, Newhall, Seales, Appleby Magna, Melbourne, and Higham-on-the-Hill. The light peal of eight were kept going during the afternoon in Doubles, Triples and Minor, two ringers scoring their first touches of Bob Minor.

An excellent tea was provided in the schools, this being followed by the usual business meeting. The Rector (the Rev. H. E. Worthington), on behalf of the visitors, thanked the lady helpers for providing tea, and also welcomed the newly-appointed Rural Dean, the Rev. J. N. Philpott, of Coleorton, who subsequently became an honorary member of the association. One ringing member was elected, and the next meeting fixed for Coleorton on July 23rd, on the invitation of the Rector.

The Rev. J. N. Philpott gave a short address at the service which followed, after which further ringing was indulged in.

The two clergy then placed their cars at the disposal of the ringers, and conveyed a party to Netherseal, where further ringing brought the meeting to a close.

THE ICKLETON CASE.

The censure passed by the Chancellor of the Diocese of Ely in connection with the recasting of Ickleton Church bells was severe, and Vicar, churchwardens and bell founders came under the condemnation of Mr. MacMorran. In as far as the church authorities failed to comply with the requirements of ecclesiastical law, it is not for us to question the judgment of the Chancellor. From the reports which we have read, he does not seem to have entered into the merits of the case, but to have decided off-hand to suspend the churchwardens and report the Vicar to the Bishop for their failure to apply for the faculty before the work was done. In view of his comments, however, it would have been interesting to know what would have been his attitude towards the proposed restoration of the bells, had he gone into that side of the question, when faced with the fact that the tenor was actually broken and two other bells were cracked; while the frame was in such a condition that it was damaging the tower. Obviously neither the bells nor the frame could be left as they were, unless they were to remain in perpetual dilapidation. Even the most rabid desire for the preservation of ancient bells and buildings could not overlook the fact that at any rate half the bells must be recast; and that the safety of the fabric required a new frame. If the church authorities erred at all, therefore, it was only in their zeal to do the best they could with the least loss of time.

The censure of the bellfounders, however, is, we think, upon altogether another footing, and totally undeserved. It is not their business to apply for the faculty, nor is it their responsibility to see that one is obtained before they begin the work entrusted to them. They merely carry out the instructions given to them, and if the work done is something which they may have recommended, it does not make them any the more liable for seeing that the legal requirements are carried out. We are still wondering why (if he was correctly reported) the Chancellor said: 'The less I say about the founders the better.' I should never have allowed them to touch these bells in any circumstances.' According to one report which we have seen he also said that the Press would be doing him a great service if they reported that Messrs. Gillett and Johnston were in no circumstances to be authorised by faculty in that district to interfere with any bells or church towers. If the Chancellor really did say this, and we can hardly believe it is a figment of the imagination of the reporter, words fail to express our surprise. One may well ask what this well-known and reputable firm has done which should debar them from making contracts in the Ely Diocese? The Chancellor spoke from a privileged place on a privileged occasion, but having asked the Press to broadcast such a statement, it would have been but bare justice had he given his grounds for such a sweeping ban. He certainly could not have pronounced this judgment from the case before him, for, as far as we can gather, he had not even heard the evidence of Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, and it is English law as well as English justice that a person should be heard before he is condemned. What, then, was the information upon which Chancellor MacMorran acted, and who was his informant? The public, we think, have a right to know. The position, as the Chancellor left it, is a threat to the whole progress of bell restoration and to the initiative of bell foundries, at any rate in the Diocese of Ely, and we hope this matter may be carried further.

DUDLEY & DISTRICT GUILD.

A quarterly meeting of this Guild was held at All Saints' Church, Sedgley, on Saturday, June 11th, in beautiful weather, and upwards of forty members attended. The bells were at the disposal of the members from three o'clock, and they were kept merrily going in various methods until service was held in the church, conducted by the Rev. G. H. Maydew (curate). The Vicar, the Rev. Dr. T. G. Swindell, D.D., read the lesson and also gave an eloquent address. After service, an adjournment was made to the schoolroom, where a bountiful tea was in readiness. The business meeting followed, at which the venerable Vicar presided, being supported by the Rev. G. H. Maydew and Mr. E. A. Babbs, churchwarden. Apologies were announced from Mr. H. Mason and Mr. A. J. Skelding.

Business of a routine character having been disposed of, three new honorary and several performing members were added to the roll.—It was proposed to hold the next meeting at Hagley, subject to the usual permission being obtained. The quarterly peal will be attempted at Sedgley, and the arrangements are left in the hands of the Ringing Master.

At the close of the meeting, a hearty vote of thanks was given to the Vicar for permission to hold the meeting at Sedgley, for the service, for his inspiring address, for the use of the tower and bells and schoolroom, and for his courteous conduct in the chair at the business meeting; also to his colleague, the Rev. G. H. Maydew, and to the organist, who, although blind, ably played for the various hymns and other parts of the service, and the ringers are more than grateful to him. Thanks were also given to Mr. B. Fullwood for the part he played, he having everything in readiness, and to his loyal band of ringers; also to Mrs. Fullwood for preparing the tea, and to those ladies who assisted her in looking after the wants and comfort of the visitors, also to all who had in any way assisted in making the meeting a successful and happy one.—The Vicar replied on behalf of all concerned, and then closed the meeting with prayer.

RE-OPENING OF ROPLEY (HANTS) BELLS.

INCREASED FROM FIVE TO SIX.

Tuesday, May 31st, was a day to be remembered by the inhabitants of Ropley, Hants, the occasion being the dedication of the church bells after restoration and an addition of a treble to make a ring of six. The whole cost of the work has been defrayed by Miss Hagen, 'in memoriam of friends of the donor.'

The old five were in a bad state, and had not been rung for a long period. Their silence was, however, joyously broken on May 31st by members of the Winchester Diocesan Guild collected together by the Master at very short notice, owing to the date (May 4th) originally fixed for opening having been postponed by the Bishop. The old bells have all been recast (each bell retaining its old inscription) and rehung by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon. They are mounted on a steel frame with ball bearings. The tenor is 15 cwt. 0 qr. 23 lb. in F sharp; diameter, 43 inches. The total weight of the bells is 50 cwt. 2 qr. 6 lb.

Mr. F. E. Collins represented the founders at the opening. The ringers, as well as parishioners, were all entertained to tea before the dedication service, which was fixed for 7 p.m.

After the dedicatory prayers had been read by the Bishop, a few rounds on the bells were rung. In addition to the Lord Bishop, other clergy present were the Vicar (the Rev. H. W. C. Geldart), the Rural Dean (Rev. E. C. Peakes), with Rev. H. M. Lewis and Rev. R. T. Shea (Four Marks), and the Rev. C. Trumbrell (Beauworth), while Mr. R. C. Turner was at the organ. The Bishop's address on bells and their message was an interesting and inspiring one.

Immediately after the service, and as the congregation dispersed, the bells were heard in Bob Minor for the first time, a well-struck 720 being brought round by the following members of the Guild: R. Linter 1, G. Williams (conductor) 2, G. E. Chappell 3, F. S. Bayley 4, F. E. Collins 5, J. H. Shepherd 6. Short touches in others methods were also rung by other ringers present who were able to stay, amongst whom were the hon. general secretary (Mr. G. Pullinger), Messrs. Noice and Paine (Winchester), Nash (Southampton), and W. Linter, son, (Swanmore).

The whole work in connection with the restoration has been excellently carried out by the well-known Croydon firm, and it is hoped a band of ringers will soon be organised locally.

It should be added that a brass plate has been fixed on the south wall of the church, which is inscribed: 'To commemorate the gift of Marianne Sophia Hagen of the church bells, and the provision of a new treble bell, this brass is dedicated by Ropley parishioners, 1927.'

THE TILSWORTH BELL FUND.

At the fete held at Tilsworth, Beds, on Saturday, June 4th, in aid of the fund for the restoration of the tower and bells, the sum of £153 was cleared, which, with about £47 already in hand, brought the total to £200. Collecting cards have been circulated for this fund for a long time, and the committee are now anxious to get them in, and hope to realise another £100 from this source.

If their hopes are fulfilled, they will only need about another £50, unless they decide to add another bell. The committee thank all who have helped them in the past.

'THE ANTIENT ORDER OF PEAL SNATCHERS.'

FALLING BRICKS CAUSE ADJOURNMENT.

On Saturday, ye daye of grace, ye convector of 'Ye Antiient Anathematised Order of Free Peal Snatchers' did order ye members of ye 'Lodge of Light' to foregather in ye steeple of Barston, of good fame and fayre cuntrye.

Someone said it was only one mile from the station, and after one hour's walk through truly beautiful lanes, alongside which the harebells waxed amazing plentiful, oh, good augury, we wished we could meet ye one-mile merchant! Then 'ye Grand Prime Peal Snatcher' opened the lodge on the first degree, known as 'the degree of steeple keepers,' and after working this interesting degree through all its stages, viz., oiling really rusty gudgeons, raising ropes used only for foot chiming, adjusting slide bolts, etc., all of which was made the more interesting inasmuch as the bells had never been rung for ages. The gudgeons were the rustiest the lodge had even seen, the ropes were so hard that even the Past Grand Rope Smith had to use the gravedigger's pick as a marlinespike. The G.P.P.S. then opened on the second degree, known as the 'Degree of Stay Busters,' and explained the system of stays in this steeple, stays fixed by Bagley when he fixed the bells. Before closing on this degree, the lodge, as a body, anathematised the gentleman who cracked the third. The lodge then opened on the third, or 'Gudgeon Benders' Degree,' and with due solemnity rang just ten whole pulls, with all the pomp and panoply which is meet and proper for such an occasion, before passing on to the 'Grand Sublime Degree of Tower Twisters.' Immediately on opening in this difficult degree, to which only the most intrepid brethren of this antiient order are admitted (few are read in, but many read out), two bricks fell out of the tower wall and dropped on the floor just above the treble ringer's head, loosening showers of mortar and the dust of ages on all concerned. This caused the G.P.P.S. to adjourn from gudgeon bending to refreshment, more safety and pleasure being the result thereof. The lodge then ascended the steeple, and the 'Past Grand Clapper Turner' showed the brethren several more 'courses' of loose bricks ready to be shaken down, and ably illustrated to the brethren the results obtained when these fell in the proper place, by dropping one of these bricks on the patriarchal belfry spider. On the way to the house of call, named very appropriately the 'Brickmakers' Arms,' the G.P.P.S. expounded to the brethren the wonderful proposition, 'Peals Asinorum,' viz., 384 bricks equal one cubic yard, one brick falls each ten changes, twelve bricks fall per six-score, 504 bricks fall per peal, so that, at the rate of one peal per week, in ten years there would be no steeple. He was just going on to explain the difference in the gravity of a brick which dropped from the clock chamber to the treble ringer's 'think box,' to a brick which dropped on the ringer who missed his last half turn, when the brethren arrived at the Rest House, and proceeded to discuss the gravity of something else, and the discovery that the ale here also cost 6d. So the lodge did reopen on the highest, or 'Peal Washers' Degree.' In the opinion of the G.P.P.S., this is the most pleasurable degree to work of all the degrees, as it never causes aches or pains to anything except the right elbow. The lodge was declared closed after the singing of 'The shades of knights were trooping past'; and, good Sir, he it known that all the brethren paid for their beer—why? because Boniface was looking.

UNCLE JUSTACUSS.

P.S.—The harebells on the roadside were in ringing order. Poor Bagley's bells were not. Would that the parish paid more attention to centennials than the annuals.

DEVIZES BRANCH.

The monthly meeting of the Devizes Branch was held at Steeple Ashton on Saturday, June 11th. Ringing commenced at 3 p.m., the Guild service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. Canon Knubley, M.A.), and tea was provided in the Parish Room, and followed by a short business meeting, Mr. G. D. Heginbotham (chairman of the branch) presiding.

The election of the two new members elected at the special meeting was confirmed, and Mr. Frank Penn, of Westbury, was elected an unattached member.

The Chairman expressed the thanks of those present to the Vicar for the use of the bells and conducting the service, to the organist, and to those who arranged the tea.

Canon Knubley, in reply, said how pleased he was to have the meeting there, and said he would convey the thanks to the organist. He invited those present to walk round the Vicarage garden.

Ringers present included Mr. T. King, of Bath, and Mr. J. P. Fidler, Loughborough, and members from Steeple Ashton, Bishop's Cannings, Bratton, Devizes (St. Mary's and St. John's), Erlestoke, Keovil, Holt, Westbury, Warminster and Trowbridge.

Touches of Stedman and Grandsire Doubles, Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob were rung, and ringing also took place at Keovil, where the bells were available for the evening.

A special meeting of the branch was held at Bromham on Saturday, May 28th, when ringers were present from Bromham, Chippenham, Chirton, Devizes (St. Mary's and St. John's), Holt and Rowde. Touches of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob were rung, and two new members were elected to the Guild.

SALISBURY GUILD'S LOSS.DEATH OF MR. WALTER BISHOP, OF SWANAGE.

The Wimborne Branch of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild has suffered a great loss by the death of Mr. Walter G. Bishop, who passed away at Swanage from heart failure on Trinity Sunday. He had attended the branch meeting on the Saturday evening, and was walking home when he collapsed at the top of a steep hill. He was helped home, but died on the following morning.

Walter Bishop was one of the mainstays of ringing in the Wimborne Branch, and had been for thirty years a member of the Swanage tower, where he did most of the conducting. He was in charge of the bells, and made it his duty to see that everything in the tower was kept clean and in good order. He always gave of his best, and nothing that required attention was too much trouble to him. He was chiefly responsible for training the young ringers, and many ringers, not only at Swanage, owe their skill to his painstaking tuition. He would be found in the tower whenever there was anyone to teach, sometimes four evenings a week, and never seemed to grudge the time. It must have been disheartening when pupils to whom he had given hours of his time got slack, or dropped out; but if he felt it he never showed it—he was as ready as ever when any new 'colts' came along.

Always willing, always hardworking, always even-tempered, always courteous, Walter Bishop's death has come as a great blow to his many friends, outside as well as inside the tower; and in the latter has left a gap which it will be impossible to fill, and an example which all would do well to follow. He is mourned as one who was, in every way, a good man.

PRESENTATION TO MR. A. H. PULLING.

A pleasing little ceremony took place at Bramshott Parish Church, Hants, on Wednesday evening, June 15th, when Mr. Alfred H. Pulling, conductor of the Holy Trinity Guild, Guildford, who has been acting as honorary instructor at Bramshott, was presented with a solid oak copy of an old English bracket clock, in appreciation of his valuable services. The clock bore the following inscription: 'Presented to Mr. A. H. Pulling by the Bramshott church ringers and friends, in appreciation of his valuable services, generously given, as instructor, June, 1927.' The presentation was made by Mr. W. H. Wright, churchwarden, and Mr. Pulling suitably replied.

TOTTENHAM.—At All Hallows', on Thursday, April 21st, for a wedding, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples: H. W. H. Strickland 1, H. A. Barnett 2, Miss Upsher 3, S. W. Crabb 4, C. A. Button 5, J. G. Nash 6, J. Armstrong (conductor) 7, N. Tomlinson 8.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.NORTH BUCKS BRANCH.

The annual meeting of the North Bucks Branch was held at Bletchley, on Saturday, June 4th, when about 50 members attended, representing Bletchley, Beachampton, Fenny Stratford, Loughton, Newport Pagnell, Stony Stratford, Simpson, Shenley and Woughton, with visitors from the Herts, Bedfordshire and Northants Associations. The bells were ringing from 2.30, and the members attended service. The choir was in attendance, and the singing was of a very hearty character. The address, given by the Master, the Rev. G. W. O. Jenkyn, completed a most enjoyable service. Tea was served on the Rectory lawn, and was followed by the business meeting, the Rev. L. Moxen, of Newport Pagnell, being in the chair.

The Secretary (Mr. W. Sear) presented the report of balance sheet, which showed the branch to be in a good financial position, having £10 invested and £12 ls. 8d. balance in hand.

The Rev. L. Moxen was again re-elected president, and Mr. W. Sear secretary and treasurer, with the thanks of the meeting for services rendered during his 13 years of office.

The places of meeting were chosen for the year, and Bletchley was once again selected for the annual festival next year.

The Master complimented the branch on its financial position, and spoke of what had been suggested in other branches of the Guild as to utilising some of the money to assist to convey parties of ringers to other parts of the branch to teach change ringing in those towers where there was a desire to learn. After a discussion, the proposal had the approval of the meeting, and the Secretary suggested that it should be left to him to arrange matters when required.

The usual vote of thanks was passed by the Chairman, Rev. L. Moxen, to the Master for preaching, the choir, and to the ladies for providing tea.—This was suitably responded to.

It is interesting to relate that one young enthusiast walked that day from St. Albans to Bletchley, a distance of 27 miles, and enjoyed the ringing, staying to the last, and then joined the train for home. This concluded a very happy meeting. Ringing during the afternoon was up to the standard, the methods ranging from Grandsire and Stedman Triples to London Surprise Major.

FINCHLEY, MIDDLESEX.—On Thursday, June 16th, a quarter-peal of Bob Minor (1,260 changes) at St. Mary's Church for the wedding of Miss E. Mildash and Mr. Scott: G. Saunders 1, W. Webb 2, F. Tubb 3, F. Cherritt 4, B. Tubb 5, F. Barker (conductor) 6.

HESWELL, WIRRAL.—On Bank Holiday, June 6th, a quarter-peal of Bob Doubles (1,440 changes) in 48 mins.: W. Jones 1, J. Smith 2, G. R. Edwards (conductor) 3, J. Lea (longest length) 4, R. G. Edwards 5.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The peal at Tipton on Saturday was rung as a birthday compliment to the conductor, Mr. Alfred Rowley, who is a member of the local band. He has now called a peal of Bob Major from each bell in the tower, each peal a different composition. He has rung 50 peals and called 25 different peal-compositions in the four standard methods on these bells.

The only peal on fourteen bells, Stedman Sextriples, was rung at Birmingham five years ago to-day.

The peal of ten at Taunton were opened on June 25th, 1885. Taunton is one of the most recent additions to the rings of twelve.

Ninety years ago next Tuesday, Henry Dains was born.

On June 30th, 1833, Elijah Roberts 'tapped' a peal of Stedman Cinques at Birmingham.

CENTRAL COUNCIL LIBRARY.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I make known to the Exercise, through your columns, that since your last issue I have received for the Central Council Library those numbers of 'Bell News' which were required, and that that collection is now completed.

At the same time I should like to suggest that if any reader of 'The Ringing World' can offer or obtain the offer of any book or other publication which might be of value to the library, I hope he will communicate with me.—Yours truly,

CYRIL W. O. JENKYN.

SPLICED SURPRISE MAJOR.

Quite unintentionally we did an injustice last week to the Whitley Bay company, when we stated that the peal rung at Warnham, on June 11th, was the first peal of Spliced Surprise Major. On May 14th, 1924, the Whitley Bay band rung Mr. J. W. Parker's 5,056 of Spliced Superlative and Cambridge, and the writer of last week's article must apologise to that talented company for the oversight. It is another illustration of the shortness of human memory. The footnote to the peal of Spliced London, Superlative, Bristol and Cambridge should have said: 'First peal of Spliced Surprise Major in four methods.'

DEATH OF MR. H. G. PARSONS.

RINGER AND COUNTY CRICKETER.

On Friday, June 10th, at the advanced age of 87 years, Mr. H. G. Parsons ('old Harry') received his last call. In spite of his great age, he was quite active until a few months ago. Although not a great ringer, he was, in his younger days, a regular Sunday ringer at St. Mary's, Ealing, where he was steeplekeeper for about 30 years.

He was also a well-known figure in cricket circles in the earlier part of his life, having played for Middlesex as far back as 1863. He was also coach to many famous cricketers, including the three brothers Studd, and from 1872 to 1914 he was umpire for the Marlborough Blues.

He was interred in the Ealing Cemetery on Monday, June 13th, and in the evening a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung half-muffled on his favourite bells by the following: F. S. Palmer 1, E. J. Walton 2, P. E. Clark 3, J. H. Hunnisett 4, R. Thompson 5, H. J. Hunnisett 6, F. Goodfellow (conductor) 7, E. Harris 8.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

A JOINT MEETING OF SOCIETIES.

The annual joint meeting of the societies in the Southern Area of Yorkshire was held at Conisborough on Saturday last, when upwards of 50 members attended, each district being well represented. The fine peal of eight were kept very busy until five o'clock, when a short service was held, conducted by the Vicar of Conisborough (the Rev. H. Lee), who gave the ringers a very hearty welcome, this being the association's first visit since his induction as Vicar. An excellent tea was provided by the local company in the school adjoining the church, to which about 60 sat down.

The business meeting was held immediately after tea, the Vicar taking the chair. Eight new members were elected, these being Messrs. R. Fletcher and T. Cooper (Rawmarsh), G. Turner (South Auston), T. Huddleston, S. Huddleston, J. Myers, K. Jubb and A. Hague, of Ecclesfield. The Vicar and his churchwarden, Mr. H. Thirlwall, were elected as hon. members of the association.

An invitation given by Rawmarsh to hold the next meeting at that place was accepted, the date being fixed for October 22nd.

The Secretary gave a report regarding the testimonial to the late vice-president, Mr. F. Willey, and the meeting fully endorsed the manner in which the committee had used the money subscribed, and the hope was expressed that Mr. Willey's stay at Southport would be of great benefit to him and restore him to health again.

A vote of condolence with the relatives of two old members of the Yorkshire Association, Mr. W. S. Plant (Ranmoor) and Mr. W. Lambert (Bolsover), was passed by all standing in silence for a few moments.

Votes of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells and the schools, to the ladies for their services at tea, and to the local company, were heartily carried, and replied to by the Vicar and Mr. Harrison. This brought a very enjoyable meeting to a close.

ICKLETON CHURCH BELLS.

To the Editor.

Sir,—The sympathy of all ringers, clerical and lay, will be extended to the Vicar and churchwardens of Ickleton in the painful position in which they have been placed by the surprising judgment delivered by the Chancellor of the Ely diocese, reported in your last issue. In view of what has been said, it may be well to give the dates and founders of the bells from 'The Church Bells of Cambridgeshire':—

Ickleton 6. Tenor F, etc.

1. Lester and Pack, 1761.

2. Thomas Newman, of Norwich, 1729.

3. William Chapman, London, 1781.

4. Lester and Pack, 1755.

5. Newman, of Norwich, 1729.

6. Thomas Lester, of London, 1751.

Now, it will be evident to anyone who knows anything about the subject that these bells have very little archaeological value or interest; in fact, for practical purposes, none at all. And yet we have an official in the responsible position of a diocesan chancellor speaking of them as being 'lost for ever,' etc.—language of gross exaggeration, and quite absurd when one considers that three or four of these priceless antiques were found to be cracked! The Chancellor is a lawyer, and cannot, of course, be expected to be a bell expert. In dealing with matters connected with bells he has therefore to rely upon information and advice supplied by others. In this case his mentor was a well-known architect connected with the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings, who had been employed by the Ickleton folk for the restoration of their tower only, but who could not resist the temptation of dipping his finger into the campanological pie as well. Hence Illæ Lachrymæ. The effect of his interference was manifested in the Chancellor's remarkable statement that he would not have allowed 'the firm in question' (i.e., the Croydon Foundry) to touch any of the bells, for it is no secret that Simpson tuning is anathema to the S.P.A.B.! It is satisfactory to learn that the Vicar and churchwardens have had the full support and confidence of their Parochial Church Council, that matters have since been amicably adjusted with the Chancellor, and that, as far as can be seen, the work will now proceed smoothly and peacefully.

Perhaps ringers will bear in mind that two trebles are still required to complete the octave, and that here is an opportunity for showing their sympathy to the harassed authorities of Ickleton in a practical way!

The moral of all this is clear. In every diocese the Chancellor should have at his elbow an individual or committee who know something about bells and the needs of ringing, and who will be prepared, if necessary, to remind him that the church tower is not a museum for cracked (if rare) specimens, but a building for the keeping and use of musical instruments, which from time to time are in need of repair and renewal.

H. B. WOOLLEY.

CHURCH COUNCIL'S RESOLUTION OF CONFIDENCE.

At a meeting held on June 13th the Church Council of Ickleton passed a resolution, in which they expressed their entire confidence in the Vicar (the Rev. P. H. Cooke) and churchwardens respecting their conduct in the application to the Chancellor of the diocese for a faculty for the church bells, and the church secretary was requested to forward the resolution to the Bishop of Ely and the Archdeacon.

PARISHIONERS' SUPPORT.

Mr. P. Webb, the leader of the ringers, informs us that the church authorities and committee are being warmly backed up by all the parishioners, rich and poor alike. Nearly everyone in the village is subscribing, including Nonconformists, widows and old-age pensioners, and they are amazed at the treatment which the Vicar and churchwardens received.

It is hoped that the scheme, not only to restore the tower and bells, but to add two trebles, may be carried out in its entirety. The work on the tower has been completed, and with generous support it will be possible to add the two new bells. Subscriptions should be sent to Mr. P. Webb, Ickleton, Cambs. He acknowledges with thanks the following contributions: Collected at Herl's meeting at Braughing, 18s.; Mr. W. H. Lawrence, Little Munden, 5s.; Sawston ringers, 10s.; Mr. J. Oldacre, 5s.; Mr. E. G. Hibbins, 5s.; Rev. H. B. Woolley, 10s.; Rev. A. H. F. Boughey, £1; Rev. R. F. R. Routh, 5s.; Ely Diocesan Association, £5; Mr. F. Nunn, 2s.

DEATH OF VETERAN DEPTFORD RINGER.

The St. John's, Deptford, Society has lost its oldest member by the death, at the age of 85 years, of Mr. Joseph Law, who joined the band in 1875, when the bells were first installed. Mr. Law remained a regular ringer at the church until three or four years ago, when he left the neighbourhood. He continued ringing almost up to the time of his death, which took place at Plumstead on May 17th.

BELLS OF BOSTON 'STUMP.'

A RESTORATION APPEAL.

The bells at the famous Lincolnshire Church of St. Botolph, Boston, familiarly known as 'Boston Stump,' have long been in a state of dilapidation, and the Mayor (Councillor James Tail) has issued a public appeal for their restoration. The Mayor says it is absolutely necessary, in order to obtain satisfaction, to recast and rebang the bells. No funds are available for the work, which it is estimated will cost £800.

The dates of the present bells range from 1657 to 1785. The first mention of the bells in Boston Church is in 1553, when it is said there were 'five great bells in the steeple and a sanctus bell.' The Corporation records state that the bells were repaired in 1627. A sixth bell was added previous to 1709, for that year a faculty or licence was granted to recast the 'immense old bell hanging in the tower, which was of little use and imperfect sound, and publishing the holy hours imperfectly, and of the metal of the said bell to make three smaller ones. Two of these bells to be added to the six now in the tower, and the third bell to be for the clock to strike upon, and to tell the hour to the people loudly and clearly, and to place the same on the lantern or highest part of the tower, to place and suspend the same for the better and more audible hearing of the sound thereof.'

It may be mentioned in passing that this 'immense old bell' was the one which, Dr. Stukeley says, 'could be heard six or seven miles round, with many old verses upon it, and which was knocked to pieces about the year 1710, without taking the inscription.'

The large clock bell, directed to be melted and recast, weighed above 4,000 lb. The new clock bell, at that time cast from part of it, weighed only 533 lb. The large clock bell was of the kind called, from the shape, a saucer bell. It was suspended in the tower lantern. The new clock bell, cast in 1709, was suspended below the leaden roof of the belfry; this bell is said to have been cracked in the year 1754. In 1758, a new clock bell was directed to be made, the weight of which was not to exceed 1,000 lb. This was the bell upon which the clock struck at the time referred to.

The clock and chimes are first mentioned in the Corporation records in 1614, when John Tomlinson was admitted a freeman gratis, 'he agreeing that he will, during his life, keep the clock and chimes in order, and all the ironwork and wires belonging to the same, and to keep all the chambers and bell-lofts clean during his life.' In the year 1732 new chimes were ordered; they struck upon the eight-peat bells. They became imperfect, however, and ceased to play in 1832. In 1825, the Corporation subscribed £100 towards a new clock, which was fixed in the ringing chamber in 1827, the entire cost attending it being about £900. It was refitted in 1853, and fixed in the bell chamber; the cost of refitting and refixing was £85 3s. 10d. The quarters struck upon the two bells cast out of the great bell in 1709. The old figures, called 'quarter-jacks,' were sold in 1853.

The second bell of the six in the tower, being cracked, was also recast in 1709, and the eight bells were first chimed in the steeple on December 17th, 1710. The sixth bell was recast, and the bells generally put in order in the year 1758, by Thomas Eyre, the 'Pyrotechnus de Kettering.'

Mt. George Gilbert Scott, the architect, says: 'The bells were originally rung from the little stone galleries which run round the second storey of the tower, on the level of the window sills, the ropes passing through the heads of the windows, thence for a considerable height through the interior of the wall, and over blocks or pulleys, set in openings of the walls of the belfry. The holes through which they passed may yet be seen in each window-head, and also in the belfry above.'

Thompson, in his account of the church written 75 years ago, said: 'The ringers now stand on the groined stone roof. The tenor bell of the present peal weighs 2,400 pounds. The rehanging of the bells in 1853 cost £25. Until about 15 years back a bell used to be rung about five o'clock in the morning. This originated probably, in an intent to call labourers, workpeople, and servants to their daily toil. The same bell was rung again at eight o'clock in the evening, this being no doubt the continuation of the ancient curfew bell. Now, although in this utilitarian age, the practice of continuing memorials of hygone customs has become unfashionable, we think the tolling of these bells may be defended upon utilitarian principles. The morning bell prepared those whose inheritance is labour, for the commencement of that labour; whilst the evening bell marked the termination of the active period of another day in a salutary and impressive manner, and had a tendency to excite feelings and thoughts which everyone would be made better by indulging in.'

The only known peal rung on the bells was Stedman Triples by the Lincoln Guild on October 11th, 1913, rung under the most difficult conditions. The big ringing chamber is close under the bells, and a great dome rises in the centre of the floor which almost hides each ringer from the man opposite. There is a tradition that a peal had previously been rung at the 'Stump' after the Battle of Waterloo, and the ringers were taken to London and feted and made much of.

THE CENTRAL COUNCIL MEETING.

THE VALUE OF DISTRICT MEETINGS.

For the Towers and Belfries Committee, Major J. H. B. Hesse said that during the year he had inspected five towers, and in each case the work had either been completed or would be carried out when funds were available.

The Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn said, although as a committee they had not been given a definite job to do, they were working with a view to improving the towers and belfries. He had been very busy inspecting towers in his own diocese. He had never known a time when so much desire was shown to have bells put in order. He put it down largely to the fact of the great number of branch meetings that their Guild held. Ringers attended these meetings, and visited a tower, perhaps, where the bells had been restored, and they went back dissatisfied with their own. That, he thought, did more to get bells put in order than any amount of talking about it outside. He put this before the Council as an important advantage of branch meetings. He thought this, often more than peal ringing, got bells put in order. A band might visit a tower and condemn the bells as unringable, but if the authorities said they had no money, that was where it would end. But that was not the case if the matter were 'boiling' in the locality. In all cases where he had made inspections, the work was going forward or had been done and given satisfaction.

The Hon. Secretary said he had received a letter from Mr. E. H. Lewis, who reported that he had during the past year given advice in two cases. One was Bow, where he found the arrangement of the twelve bells was very interesting, and about as good as it could be. The other was that of a big bell which was to be swung through 90 degrees only, and particulars as to the amount of thrust were wanted. He had made the necessary calculations and forwarded them in order that they might be placed on record. With regard to the committee, individual members could still do much in giving advice, but it did not seem as if there was much for them to do collectively, at least until the steelmakers had discovered a special steel which would withstand corrosion and be sold at a price which was cheap enough for bell frames.

The Rev. H. Drake said he was interested to hear that members of the committee had visited towers to report on the condition of bells. He did not know that was part of their work. He had also had a good deal to do this last year in visiting and reporting, and it would be of assistance if members of the Council felt they could call on the committee to visit a tower and reinforce the advice given.

The President said he was perfectly certain Major Hesse and Mr. Jenkyn would do so as far as their other duties permitted.

The reports were adopted, and the following re-elected on the committee: Rev. C. D. P. Davies, Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, Mr. E. A. Young and Major J. H. B. Hesse.

THE YEAR'S RECORDS.

The Records Committee's report was as follows: First peals in new methods have been rung by (1) the Chester Diocesan Guild, viz., 5,152 Belgrave Surprise Major, 5,024 Clarendon Surprise Major; (2) Hertford County Association, viz., 5,184 New Gloucester Surprise Major, 5,040 Original Triples; (3) Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association, 5,040 London Bob Triples. Record lengths have been rung by (1) Lancashire Association, 11,232 Superlative Surprise Major, 17,824 Oxford Treble Bob Major; (2) the Chester Diocesan Guild, 5,088 Double Bob Major, 'in hand.' Peals in methods spliced together for the first time have been rung by (1) the Chester Diocesan Guild, 5,184 Plain, Double and Reverse Bob Major, in hand; (2) Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association, 5,076 Bob Royal and Grandsire Caters; (3) the Kent County Association, 5,152 Plain Bob, Double Norwich, and Double Oxford Bob Major, 5,088 Plain and Double Oxford Bob Major; (4) Llandaff and Monmouth Diocesan Association, 5,095 Plain Bob Major and Oxford Bob Triples; (5) Midland Counties Association, 5,096 Plain and Little Bob Major, 5,024 Plain Bob and Canterbury Pleasure Major; (6) Middlesex Association, 5,073 Erin, Stedman and Grandsire Caters. The first peal of Reverse Bob Major 'in hand' has been rung by the Chester Diocesan Guild.

The Rev. A. T. Beeston, in moving the adoption of the report, said about three years ago the Council authorised the committee to have copies of the records typed. He was sorry there had been delay in getting that done, but they were now completed, and had been handed to the secretary of the Council. The purpose for which the copies had been typed and placed in the hands of the Council was that they might be examined in order to find out the mistakes which in any work of that kind would almost inevitably take place. Already mistakes had been found, and they would be duly corrected.

The report was adopted.

THE NOMENCLATURE COMMITTEE.

The Rev. H. Drake, for the Nomenclature Committee, said the committee were in a difficulty to know what to do. In the minutes passed that day it was stated that an amendment was passed. It was also recorded that he had asked that the amendment should be turned into the form of a rider, but that was not supported, and the amendment was turned into a full resolution. When this amendment was put there was really no proposition before the meeting, and the result was the committee did not know where they were. The committee's report, as Mr. Burton pointed out afterwards in 'The Ringing World,' was still before the Council; it was neither accepted nor rejected, and he (the speaker) felt that, as a committee, they could do nothing more than leave it there. They had done what they were asked to do, and unless the Council asked them to do anything further he did not see what they could do. Mr. Drake went on to say that the amendment passed at the last meeting, in his opinion, ruled out one of the motions on that day's agenda. The amendment was 'That this Council, while urging on the Exercise the extreme importance of choosing suitable names for new methods, declines to interfere with such rights as bands and individual ringers at present enjoy of giving names to new methods. And, further, is of the opinion that no alteration should be made in the names of old and historical methods, except where urgently necessary.' The committee, in their report, had provided some scheme by which the Council could review the method of affixing names. With that in view, he asked the Council to take the amendment as a rider, in which way it would have qualified and not wrecked the report. The Council, by the amendment, declined to interfere with the names, but he must point out that that action would, in his opinion, prevent them considering the motion on the agenda later in the name of Mr. Law James (laughter).

Mr. T. H. Beams said the effect of the amendment passed last year was to nullify everything the committee did. He left it to the Council to judge whether it was done purposely. Their work having been nullified, there had been nothing left for them to do during the past year, but there was a way out of the difficulty. If they wanted the committee to go forward, they must give them instructions as to the lines upon which they wished them to go forward, or else they should choose a new committee.

Mr. J. A. Trollope said if they would read last year's amendment they would see it left a nice loophole, and when he drafted it he intended that it should wreck the report of the committee (laughter). It did not say that the Council declined to interfere or do nothing in the naming of all methods, but said the Council declined to interfere with such rights as ringers and bands had at present. As a matter of fact, such rights as they had were subject, and always had been subject, to revision by anybody. If he, or anyone, published a method and the Exercise did not care for the name given to it, they could alter it, and always had altered it. What he objected to, in moving the amendment, was laying down autocratic rules, without appeal, for naming all methods, past, present and to come, and making wholesale alterations in the names of methods which had been rung. What they wanted to do was to leave the matter in a loose state in which it could be adapted to circumstances. A band who rang a method could call it what they liked, but if they called it by an unsuitable name the Exercise had the right to refuse to agree to it. With regard to the procedure on the amendment, it was an amendment to a report which had been moved and seconded at the previous Council, and he thought Mr. Drake was in error when he said it was not so.

EXIT!

The Rev. H. Law James proposed that the Council's thanks be given to the committee for what they had done; they had read their report and would make what use of it they could.

The Rev. F. J. O. Helmore thought from last year's amendment the committee were done away with. He suggested the committee might now be dissolved.

The President said by the amendment carried last time the committee could not possibly go on with any work in the direction of their report, and they had confessed that that day. As there was no work for them to do, he imagined the committee would come to an end unless they reappointed it and gave it something definite to do.

Mr. C. T. Coles said the committee was appointed three years ago because of the dissatisfaction and confusion which arose through various methods having more than one name. The primary object was that they should go into the matter and settle the correct names; whether they went beyond the terms of their reference he would not say. He did not agree that the amendment last year interfered with the later motion which was to be considered. This latter referred to an extension of a method and not to the naming of one.

Mr. J. Hunt said in his opinion the committee went much too far by trying to change names that had been known to the Exercise for hundreds of years. Last year they put nine or ten resolutions in their report. He believed some members would have supported two of them, but the committee wanted to carry the whole lot at once.

The Rev. H. Drake said the committee merely compiled a list of names of methods to which objection might possibly be raised, and left it to the Council to decide on what lines they wanted the alterations made. They put their recommendations in the form of a number of resolutions, which could still be put one by one; they did not ask the Council to adopt them all. Some of the resolutions were things which they could all agree with and were really necessary. He would like to move, if nothing else, that the president put the resolutions to the Council one by one without discussion, and, if there was any opposition to them, those who objected could lay their views before the committee during the course of the year, and the committee would try to meet them. There was a desire in the Exercise that something should be done, and if the Council did not re-elect the old committee he hoped they would elect someone else. Mr. Drake added that it was most outrageous thing that recent correspondence in 'The Ringing World' should have taken the form of an attack on the Editor, who was one of those most in favour of doing something to get rid of the present confusion which exists in these names.

Mr. J. S. Pritchett said it seemed to him that although this committee had nothing to report, they were going to spend a long time discussing it (laughter), which seemed to him absolutely futile. By 29 votes to three at the last meeting they gave the committee what he thought was their quietus on the report. The committee did an infinite amount of work and produced 13 resolutions, all of them controversial, and now they actually proposed they should discuss them individually at that meeting. (Mr. Drake: No, not discuss them). He begged to move that the committee be thanked for their services, but be not reappointed.

Several members rose together to second this.

The Rev. H. L. James pointed out that between that and the next meeting the Collection of Minor Methods would be revised, and the Methods Committee would see that the names in that publication were settled satisfactorily.

Mr. Beams: Satisfactorily to Mr. Law James (laughter).

Mr. J. W. Parker said the names of the Minor methods had already been decided by the Analyses Committee, and were accepted by the Council. Failing amendment, the names given by the Analyses Committee must stand.

Mr. Beams said the committee were given three things to do: to review existing nomenclature, to prepare suitable topographical names and formulate a plan for the application of such names. That was what they did, and the Council neither accepted nor rejected the report.

Mr. A. Paddon Smith: Will it bring the matter to a head if I move that the report be rejected and the committee given an opportunity to resign (laughter).

On being put, Mr. Pritchett's motion was carried by a large majority.

METHODS COMMITTEE TO SETTLE NAMES.

When the Council resumed after the luncheon interval, Mr. J. A. Trollope said, as the Council had decided to reissue 'Minor Methods,' and in that reissue the question of names would arise, he would like the Council to empower the committee to deal with names: that was to say, to give the committee power to deal with the whole matter at their discretion. He thought the Council could trust them, because they had just issued the 'Major Collection,' in which the names used had, he believed, met with pretty general approval.

The Rev. H. Law James, in seconding, said the committee would, as far as possible, adopt the names given to the methods by those bands that rang the first 720 in each case.

Mr. W. Willson was opposed to the Council giving the committee the power asked for. To give the committee discretion would grossly interfere with what had been done before, and they were asking for powers which had just been crushed with the previous committee. They had taken the power from one committee and were now asked to give it to another. He knew Mr. Trollope was blessed with a certain amount of confidence, but he thought this was asking too much (laughter).

Mr. Trollope said it was only a question of what names had got to be put into the publication for which the Methods Committee were held responsible. What the committee would have to decide was not a question of finding names for the methods, but of choosing the most suitable names from those already given. The whole thing was covered by the resolution passed last year. He had then fully in mind the whole of these contingencies; there was nothing new in what he was now asking for.

Mr. T. Faulkner said that Council had already stultified itself by washing out the work of three years of the Nomenclature Committee. Might he suggest that instead of the Methods Committee arrogating to themselves the powers to select titles for methods which might or might not be rung, Mr. Trollope should add to his committee the names of the members of the Nomenclature Committee, so that the whole of their work for the last three years should not be lost. He would propose this as an amendment. The Council had thrown a wet blanket on the six-bell ringers of the country, and on their behalf he must make a protest against it.

Mr. Trollope said they by no means desired to throw over the Nomenclature Committee's work entirely. What they wanted was to be able to use a certain amount of discretion in order to take the best of everything. They did not want to put in alternative or additional names, but to consider them all, including the Nomenclature Committee's list, and the Analysis Committee's list, for final selection, and they could not complete the book until that was done.

Mr. J. S. Pritchett said he saw no harm in the resolution if it were properly understood that all the committee proposed to do was to make the best selection from existing names, and loyally accepted the Council's decision that they did not want any change of names. If Mr. Trollope would give that pledge it ought to satisfy the Council, and he thought it would.

Mr. Trollope: That is exactly what we want.

Mr. A. D. Barker said the Nomenclature Committee was appointed to do this work three years ago. They had presented a report, which was neither accepted nor rejected, because the Council accepted Mr. Trollope's motion, which nullified all the committee's efforts. Now Mr. Trollope was asking for the same power to go into the question again with his own committee.

On being put, Mr. Trollope's motion was carried by a large majority.

TO APPROACH THE B.B.C.

The Council then came to the notices of motion, and for the convenience of Mr. T. H. Taffender, who was prevented by duty from remaining to the end of the meeting, the proposal standing in his name was first discussed. It was: 'That the Council approach the British Broadcasting Corporation with a view to the broadcasting during the evening programmes of a series of instructional talks on change ringing, with handbell demonstrations.' This matter, he said, had come before his association (the London County) on account of the unsatisfactory matters which took place a little time ago in the 'Children's Hour,' and they also thought it would be more edifying to the public if the talk took place in the evening programme. The association thought the Council would have more influence behind it than an individual association would have, and suggested that the Council should elect a committee to approach the B.B.C. Personally, he thought it might be taken up by the Literature and Press Committee.

Mr. A. D. Barker seconded.

Rev. F. Ll. Edwards said it would be better if the committee were formed of men living in London.

Rev. C. D. P. Davies spoke in strong support of the motion. He had never listened to the 'Children's Hour,' he said, so he did not know what happened then, but he had listened to ringing of all sorts. What had struck him about the Broadcasting Corporation was that they were absolutely ignorant of the real principles of change ringing, and showed it by the tantalising way in which change ringing was 'faded away' about the two sixes before the end of a course of Stedman Cinques. The B.B.C. wanted educating, and he was sure they were open to education if approached in the proper manner. He wrote to them himself and got a perfectly courteous reply, but nothing came of it. If they had a committee as suggested, it would be most advisable that they should consist of people in London, who could go personally to the B.B.C., if necessary.

Mr. A. A. Hughes said he was afraid they would find a great deal of difficulty in dealing with the B.B.C. The corporation's efforts were devoted to pleasing the public. Members of the Council had all heard the very atrocious efforts of chiming on the bells of St. Martin-in-the-Fields. He had listened and shuddered, but members of the public, who did not understand change ringing, had told him that they much preferred to hear the chiming at St. Martin's to the broadcast from Bow, Cheapside, when they had heard Stedman Cinques as it ought to be rung. If the Council appointed a committee, they had got to overcome that very big difficulty of the B.B.C.'s idea of the public preference for chiming.

Mr. H. W. Wilde supported the motion, and said he believed they could educate the public if they could get an able speaker to give a series of short talks, with handbell illustrations.

The motion was carried, and a committee appointed consisting of Messrs. T. H. Taffender, W. T. Cockerill, A. A. Hughes, J. D. Matthews and E. A. Young.

MARKET LAVINGTON BELLS RESTORED.

The bells at Market Lavington have been reopened after restoration, the ceremony being performed on June 4th by the Archdeacon of Wilts, who is a great lover of bells and bell ringing.

Market Lavington bells, six in number, which were recast some fifty years ago, have been rehung in an iron frame, with new bearings and clappers. The vibration of the bells when rung in their old oaken frame had caused the masonry of the tower to become somewhat dislocated, and this has been placed in a thorough state of repair.

Perhaps the most gratifying feature of the work is the fact that it has been paid for. To be faced with an expenditure of something in the neighbourhood of £500 was no small task for a parish of the size of Market Lavington, but so well did the parishioners and others interested respond to the appeal for funds that the whole sum has been practically secured. This happy result is partly due to the generosity of Lord Warrington, of Clyffe, who added fifty per cent. to every contribution. Grants towards the restoration fund were also made from the Diocesan Church Building Society and the White Bequest.

The ringers present at the reopening included the chairman of the branch, Mr. C. D. Heginbotham (Devizes), the vice-chairman, Mr. B. Cook (Bratton), the Ringing Master, Mr. J. Francis (Trowbridge), and the secretary, Mr. F. Green (Devizes), Messrs. G. England, G. Swift, S. H. Sutton (Devizes), T. Holloway (Westbury), and E. Perrett (Rowde).

The ringers present, with employees of the firm which had in hand the work in the tower, were the guests of the Vicar at tea, during which the company was visited by the Archdeacon.—On behalf of the ringers, Mr. Heginbotham welcomed the Archdeacon to that part of the diocese, and the latter suitably replied.

Thanks to the Vicar for his hospitality were voiced by Mr. Cook, and Mr. Sturton, in his reply, expressed his pleasure at seeing so many ringers present.

In addition to those mentioned, the visitors included ringers from Bishop's Canning, Erlestoke, Warminster, Zeals and Bourton. Touches of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob were rung.

The ringers were unanimous in their appreciation of the manner in which the work to the bells and the tower had been carried out, and of the much improved tone of the ring.

Great thanks are due to Mr. F. Green, the secretary of the branch, who, at the request of the Vicar, made arrangements for the ringing at the reopening service.

LOYALTY TO COUNCIL DECISIONS.

The Nomenclature Committee set up three years ago with definite instructions to deal with the naming of methods received the coup de grâce at the last meeting, after having been partially strangled twelve months ago. They were appointed to bring method naming to something like order out of the chaos which previously existed; and because they tackled their task with a greater zeal and thoroughness than the majority of the members had apparently anticipated, their whole report, with some of which at any rate there was pretty general agreement, was side-tracked. That was last year. It was done by a speciously worded amendment, and placed the committee in such a position that they did not feel warranted in doing anything further. That being so, the Council on Whitsun Tuesday decided there was no further use for the committee, and they were politely given the 'order of the boot.'

The treatment of the committee was, we think, a bad precedent, and is not quite the kind of thing that will induce members to take up work for the Council. No one wants to give a year or two's thought and labour to a subject, at the request, be it remembered, of the Council itself, to find the whole time wasted and the work deliberately wrecked. The committee may have erred on the side of over-elaboration of their task, and the Council may have been somewhat frightened at the prospect of having a dozen separate recommendations to discuss, but we are almost tempted to think that it was the committee and not their proposals which led to entire rejection of their work. Had the Methods Committee been doing this thing, there might, we fancy, have been no torpedoing. Doubtless they would not have gone as far as the Nomenclature Committee went, but they have the ear of the Council, as was shown when they had the intrepidity to ask for power to rename at their full discretion the methods in the 'Minor Collection,' which they are going to republish. They toned down their request when objection was raised, but it will be interesting to see what really happens.

At the moment the names given by the Analysis Committee hold the field, but those who remember the Salisbury meeting will recollect that there are disagreements between these two committees as to the correct names to be given to certain methods. The Council adopted the committee's report, and, by so doing, having now said they have no use for the Nomenclature Committee's proposals, have settled the names in the Minor Collection. As far as the Council are concerned there is only one name for each method. For what purpose, therefore, do the Methods Committee want discretionary power? Is it merely to ensure that their own views on the disputed names shall prevail? As our readers are aware, we have no love for many of the names which the Council adopted on the recommendation of the Analysis Committee, but we think there ought to be loyalty to the Council's decisions. It is unfortunate that the Council does not always know exactly what it has done in the past. It was quite obvious at the Mansion House, despite a gentle reminder by Mr. J. W. Parker, that the Council imagined there were still methods in the collection with a variety of names, and it is quite certain they did not appreciate that in 1923 they had themselves settled each one. Had they realised this, we imagine they would not have given even the limited powers of revision to the Methods Committee which they gave in such a haphazard way.

FIRST PEAL AT WILLOUGHBY WATERLEYS, LEICESTERSHIRE.

Another page in the history of the church bells of Leicestershire was completed on Saturday week, when the first peal was accomplished on the bells at Willoughby Waterleys or Waterleas (often erroneously produced on maps and signposts as Waterless). A preliminary visit was made some days before by Messrs. Webb (Croft) and Bird (Broughton Astley), the former to splice and attend to ropes, and the latter to remove some of the refuse, etc., deposited on and around the bells by his feathered namesakes, the birds. This undoubtedly led to ultimate success, and, as reported elsewhere, a peal was rung at the first attempt. Mr. E. Morris took notes of the inscriptions and marks for his book on Leicestershire, and at the conclusion of the peal the Rector most kindly invited the band to tea, and further entertained them with splendid selections on the piano from Mendelssohn, Schubert, Haydn and other classical composers beyond the writer's imagination. Afterwards, handbell tunes were played by Messrs. Webb, Morris and Newton, and a course of Grandsire Triples, with Messrs. Carr and Bird, concluded a most enjoyable afternoon.

Mr. Webb thanked the Rector and Mrs. Ingham for kind permission to attempt this peal and their splendid entertainment, which Mr. Ernest Morris seconded, emphasising the fact that it had fulfilled a personal ambition of his, by adding yet another tower (the 93rd) to his list of Leicestershire churches. All went home feeling like the village blacksmith—'something attempted, something done, had earned a night's repose.'

YORKSHIRE RINGERS' OUTING.

A party of Yorkshire ringers, consisting of Messrs. W. Idle (Batley), G. Naylor (Lightcliffe), F. W. Dixon (Guiseley), Mr. and Mrs. J. Cotterell (Bradford), Mr. and Mrs. F. Paymons (Halifax), Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastle (Bradford), Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Johnson (Leeds), F. W. Dixon (Guiseley), Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Fearnley (York), together with their guide and counsellor, Mr. T. Maude, of Pudsey, decided to spend the Whitsuntide week-end in Essex, and, thanks to the joint labours of Messrs. T. Maude, with Mr. H. Dew and Mr. H. Springham, of Bishop's Stortford, a most enjoyable time was spent. Some undertook the long journey by road, while others travelled by rail, all safely reaching Bishop's Stortford on Saturday evening, June 4th. After making acquaintance with mine host of the Chequers Hotel, and a bountiful tea, a visit was paid to the neighbouring parish church, but owing to the bad go of the bells, and service time approaching, only a short touch of Stedman Caters was rung. Sunday morning saw the visitors at Stansied, where the inviting light peal of eight were set going to Treble Bob and Double Norwich. On the Sunday evening, thanks to arrangements kindly undertaken by Mr. George Dent, the bells at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Harlow Moor, were at their disposal, touches of Treble Bob and Stedman on the light ring of eight being much enjoyed. It was a novel experience to find the congregation boldly entering the church porch through the moving bell ropes at this church, though the delightful surroundings of the adjoining Harlow Moor makes a typical English country scene.

Monday morning opened with an attack on the ring of eight at Sawbridge, where a pleasant hour was spent in ringing Treble Bob and Stedman. Next on the programme was Hatfield Broad Oak, where the splendid avenues of lime trees, and the beautiful old church, left much more pleasing memory than the dusty belfry and the heavy going ring of eight. A move was next made to Dunmow, where some of the party hoped to qualify for a 'Dunmow Fitch', but found on their arrival that the custom had lapsed. Ample compensation was found, however, in the splendid ring of eight in the Parish Church of St. Mary-the-Virgin, the beautiful tone and go of the bells being much appreciated, while the genial welcome from the Vicar, the cathedral-like proportions of the church, and the thoughtful provision of refreshments by the Vicar of Dunmow, were much appreciated. After lunch saw the party en route for Thaxted, which has a magnificent 15th century church, and a draught of rope to its bells (90 feet) which invited a draught of another type after ringing. A hurried visit to Saffron Walden completed the day's ringing, and the proceedings ended at the Chequers Hotel, Bishop's Stortford.

Here opportunity was taken by Mr. Maude, as representing the visitors, to thank Mr. Henry Dew, of Bishop's Stortford, for the many courtesies received by the party, and stated that Mr. Dew would, conditional on his acceptance of the distinction, be elected a life member of the Yorkshire Association, as a slight memento of his kindness in arranging all the details of this delightful week. On rising to reply, Mr. Dew was accorded musical honours, the member for York upholding the tradition of his famous city in surprising fashion. In his reply, Mr. Dew stated how pleased he was to welcome the party at Bishop's Stortford, and to have the pleasure of once more hearing the 'clinking course,' and trusted that he would many times have the pleasure of meeting the visitors at Bishop's Stortford.

Tuesday saw some of the party on the return journey, while others had Central Council duties to call them to London. This opportunity is taken to thank the respective clergy for kindly granting the use of their bells, and to all the steeplekeepers, who went to so much trouble to make the week-end a successful and pleasant outing.

P. J. J.

THE PEAL AT DURHAM CATHEDRAL.

By a coincidence, the peal of Bob Major, at Durham Cathedral, on June 18th, was rung on the day of the marriage of Mr. Ernest A. Gallimore, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gallimore, of Lichfield, to Miss Ethel H. Soulsby, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Soulsby, of Esh-Winning, Durham. The bridegroom, baritone lay clerk at Durham Cathedral, also rings at the Cathedral. He belongs to an old ringing family in Lichfield, his father being still a ringer at Lichfield Cathedral, while his grandfather completed over 50 years at the same Cathedral as ringer, the latter part as captain. The ringers expressed their good wishes for the future happiness of the bride and bridegroom.

One of the selected band at Durham was prevented from taking part in the peal at the last moment, and the method had, therefore, to be changed to Bob Major, the treble man filling the gap at a minute's notice. Great credit is due to him, as he had never struck a blow on eight bells before.

A RINGERS' EXCURSION.

The ringers at St. John's Church, Weston-super-Mare, had a delightful day's excursion for their annual outing, when they visited Bournemouth. The drive was through the most beautiful Somerset and Dorset scenery, and they were enabled to enjoy ringing at Poole, St. John's and St. Peter's, Bournemouth, and, on the way home, at Blandford. At each tower they had a cordial reception from the representatives of the local ringers, to whom thanks are given. The successful and happy day was largely due to the kindness of a local lady.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION. CANTERBURY DISTRICT.

A by-meeting of the Canterbury District was held at Ash on Saturday last. Over 40 members were present from various towers, including Canterbury, Deal, Sturry, Folkestone, Wickhambreaux, Wingham, Littlebourne, St. Nicholas and Dover.

The Rector of Ash (the Rev. Barton) very kindly made the arrangements for tea, which was held in the Village Hall at five o'clock, after a short service in the church.

The Rev. Canon F. J. O. Helmore presided over the business meeting which followed, and at which three new members from Dover were elected.

St. Nicholas, on July 23rd, was suggested for the next meeting.

After the business was concluded, the Chairman, in answer to a question by Rev. Barton, explained how a tower could become 'in union' with the association, and it is sincerely hoped that Ash will join the association.

The tower was open from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m., during which time some enjoyable ringing took place.

NORTHANTS RINGERS IN LEICESTERSHIRE.

On Thursday, June 16th, the ringers of Wicken Parish Church, and one or two friends, held their annual outing. Arriving at Loughborough at 10.30, the party made their way to the Bell Foundry, where Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. had kindly given permission for them to look over the foundry. After a very interesting inspection, in the course of which they saw the great bell for York Minster, and heard the carillon for Albany, New York, the party were taken to the campsite, where touches of Stedman Triples and Bob Major were brought round, the ringers being interested in the raising and lowering of the light bells. After dinner, the memorial tower was visited, where a special recital had been arranged and was much appreciated. A move was then made to Leicester, where the party were met by Mr. E. Morris and his father, who had arranged ringing at St. Margaret's for them.

A course each of Stedman Caters, Grandsire Caters and Bob Royal were rung, to the delight of the ringers, some of whom had not seen more than eight ropes hanging in a tower before. After tea, a call was made at Northampton, where Mr. Tom Tebbutt had made arrangements to ring at St. Edmund's, a touch of Stedman Triples and Double Norwich and a good course of Cambridge being the finish to a delightful day's ringing. The party wish to thank, through 'The Ringing World,' all those who so kindly helped to make the outing such a pleasant one.

WORCESTERSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

NORTHERN BRANCH MEETING.

The quarterly meeting of the Northern Branch was held at Chaddesley Corbett on Saturday, June 18th. The branch was well represented, nearly 50 members being present. A welcome visitor was Mr. W. Smith, of the firm of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank.

A service was held in the village church, at which the Vicar (the Rev. W. H. D. Thatcher) gave the Branch a warm welcome, and in the course of a helpful address alluded to the spirit of brotherhood in the bell-ringing movement.

Tea was partaken of at Mr. Perrin's tea rooms, Mr. Perrin being one of the local ringers. During the meal, the Vicar of Bromsgrove (the Rev. T. C. de la Hey) and Mrs. de la Hey arrived.

The business meeting followed, at which the Vicar of Chaddesley Corbett presided, supported by Mr. A. Hackett (Ringing Master of the Branch), Mr. T. J. Salter (Central Council representative), Mr. A. J. Skelding (branch secretary), and Mr. A. E. Parsons.

Mr. T. J. Salter welcomed the Vicar of Bromsgrove and his wife to the meeting, and Mr. de la Hey in replying explained why the meeting, which was to have been held at Bromsgrove, was put off. He gave the association a very hearty invitation to hold the September meeting at Bromsgrove, and said he would be delighted to extend to them the same hospitality as he had intended for the June meeting.

On the motion of Mr. J. Woodberry, it was unanimously decided to accept the Vicar of Bromsgrove's kind invitation, and hearty thanks were tendered to the Rev. T. C. de la Hey.

Great pleasure was evinced at the return of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Parsons, and all present expressed the opinion that they looked wonderfully well after their holiday tour and rest.

Mr. T. J. Salter, the Central Council representative, laid before the meeting some of the proposals suggested by the Central Council, especially with regard to diplomas for the young ringers.

On the suggestion of Mr. A. E. Parsons, it was decided to leave the matter over until the January meeting, when it could be thoroughly discussed.

On the proposition of the Secretary, a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Vicar of Chaddesley Corbett for presiding, for arranging the service, for the use of the bells, and also for allowing the meeting to take place at so short a notice. He also thanked all those who had helped to make the meeting a success.

The Vicar, in reply, said that although new to ringers' meetings, he had thoroughly enjoyed their visit and their company.

The members then returned to the tower, and several touches in various methods were brought round. This closed a really delightful meeting.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The Ipswich men have not been long in putting a second peal of Superlative Surprise Maximus to their credit. They scored another on Saturday.

The first peal at All Saints', Poplar, Grandsire Caters, by the Royal Cumberlands, was rung for the consecration of the church on July 3rd, 1823.

Norwich, where many first peals were rung, can claim the first peal of Double Oxford Bob, which was rung on July 6th, 1832.

The famous first performance of Holt's Original at St. Margaret's, Westminster, took place on July 7th, 1751, when John Holt himself called the bobs from manuscript.

The death has occurred at Brighton, after a long illness, of Mr. John Jay, at the age of 61 years.

The meeting of the Northern District of the Herts Association at Knebworth to-morrow has been cancelled on account of some slight defect having developed in the tower.

A former ringer at Taunton and Wells, Mr. Frederick Benjamin Wickenden, died on Monday in his 93rd year. He had the distinction of having celebrated a silver wedding with each of his two wives.

Mr. C. N. Sharples, formerly a ringer at St. John's, Blackpool, has passed Class I. in Natural Science in the recent Cambridge Tripos, and has been awarded a scholarship of £40 and prize of £3 for books. He is the first student from Blackpool Secondary School to pass in Class I.

BOSTON BELLS.

RINGERS' LOYALTY AND TRIBULATIONS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—In reference to the article 'Bells of Boston Stump' appearing in your last issue, you may care to have the comments of a ringer from the tower in question. For many years the absence of good ringing has been the concern of those who realise what campanology can mean, but this attitude has been confined to a few ringers whose enthusiasm has taken them farther afield and has not permeated the general public. Gradually this pressure by the interested ringers has caused the appeal to take its present form, but there is still the opinion held by the enthusiasts that the vital importance of the appeal is being missed by a large number of people in the town. Boston, with 20,000 inhabitants, possesses this solitary peal of eight bells, which have only given rise to unfavourable comment, and are quite out of keeping with the magnificent character of the building in which they are housed. Not only have the bells failed to call forth the interest of the inhabitants, but ringers of experience in the district give them a wide berth.

The bells and fittings have been in a dilapidated condition for so many years, and it has been a great struggle to keep together a band whose efforts have chiefly been confined to ringing Grandsire Doubles on the back six, with a tenor 30 cwt. Only on very rare occasions has it been possible to attempt short touches of Grandsire Triples, and peal ringing has been absolutely out of the question. Altogether, the present generation here have only once experienced a peal, when, as stated in your last week's issue, a peal of Stedman Triples was successfully rung at the 13th attempt, on October 11th, 1913. Experienced ringers of this country will quite realise what it has meant for a band to keep together under these circumstances.

The Mayor and the Vicar are closely associated with the appeal, and it is realised that it is imperative that, to obtain complete satisfaction, the bells should be recast before rehangings, and we hope this appeal may reach not only the public in the immediate neighbourhood of Boston, but people so definitely interested as ringers in all parts of the country. For a number of years it has been disheartening for those who have stuck so manfully to their task in trying week by week to obtain some kind of ringing for Sunday services, but we have carried on loyally in the hope that a time would come when something would be done. The estimated cost is about £800, and as no funds are available for this work, we do hope that some sympathy will be forthcoming, from both far and near, and any donations to the fund, however small, will be gratefully received by the Mayor of Boston.—Yours faithfully,

F. DEWEY.

BOTTESFORD BELLS SILENT.

The condition of the bells of St. Mary's Church, Bottesford, has recently caused alarm, and on expert advice it has been deemed wise to cease ringing them.

The ancient oak beams and supports are badly worm-eaten and decayed, and are not strong enough to carry the weight of the bells when ringing. The bells (eight in number) date back to 1450.

At a meeting of parishioners it was stated that the present frame puts too great a strain on the masonry of the tower to which it is fixed, and a new iron frame set on rolled-steel girders was suggested as the best means of saving the stonework of the famous tower and steeples from further damage.

ICKLETON CHURCH BELLS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Having known the Chancellor for many years, I was greatly surprised at his remarks, especially with regard to the bell founders. It seems to me that he allowed a feeling of offended dignity to get the better of his discretion, and gave utterance to obiter dicta which I am sure he has since regretted.

Speaking as a lawyer, and with all respect to the Chancellor, I differ from him in his attitude to the bell founders. His duty is to decide whether the work contemplated ought to be done, and not who is to do it; that is quite outside his functions, and is a matter for the Vicar and Parochial Council when the faculty has been obtained. I cannot see that the slightest blame attaches to Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, to whom, in my opinion, the Chancellor owes the 'amende honorable.'—Yours faithfully,

J. S. PRITCHETT,

Recorder of Lincoln.

TRURO DIOCESAN GUILD.

HOW SIX BELLS BECAME ONE.

A most enjoyable meeting of the Truro Branch was held at St. Piran's Church, Perranwell, on Saturday. The hay harvest somewhat affected the attendance, but, nevertheless, thirty members represented the towers of St. Newlyn East, St. Agnes, Kea, Kenwyn, Gwennap, St. Gluvias, St. Budock, Mabe and Truro Cathedral.

Ringings commenced at 2.30, and the good ring of six (tenor 12 cwt.) was kept going to rounds and Grand sire Doubles for two hours. The usual service was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. W. G. Hills), and an interesting address given by the Rev. F. J. Driscoll, Priest-Vicar of Truro Cathedral, in the course of which he referred to many of the beautiful inscriptions on old bells, which continually reminded people of prayer. He also alluded to the large bell at Briage, Cornwall, which is reputed to weigh nearly 30 cwt., and has the inscription, 'The people desire many bells, but one sufficeth God.' This was inscribed when this bell was cast about a century ago from a previous ring of six. It appeared that the ringers at that time consumed a large quantity of beer in the belfry, and ignored the Vicar when he reprimanded them for their behaviour, so the Vicar, being determined to put an end to this abuse, had all the bells cast into one.

After the service, the ringers adjourned to the Sunday School, where an excellent tea was awaiting them. This was provided by the lady ringers of Perranwell.

On the motion of Mr. Roberts, seconded by Mr. Southeard, the Vicar and all the local ringers were thanked for extending such a warm welcome to the Guild.

The Vicar said how pleased he was to welcome the Guild to Perranwell, and thanked them for the keen interest some of the visitors had taken in his own band and for helping them with change ringing.

It was decided to try and arrange the next quarterly meeting at St. Columb Minor, an unaffiliated tower, and thus try to get that band to take an interest in the Guild.

Ringings recommenced at 6 p.m., and continued until 9.15, when another adjournment was made to the Sunday School for supper. The local ringers were again thanked for their excellent hospitality, and this brought the ninth quarterly meeting held in the Truro District to a close.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

MEETING AT HISTORICAL TOWER.

The spring meeting of the Eastern District was held on Saturday, when the old-world village of Bonington was once more visited by numerous ringers from many places, and the historical bells were again rung in some of the methods that they rang 60 or more years ago, when Squire Proctor's talented band was in its glory.

The Rector welcomed the visitors, provided tea and presided at tea and the business meeting, and also rang his first course of Stedman Triples. It was very appropriate that this should be upon his own bells.

The old band have all departed with the exception of two, one of whom was present, Mr. S. Page, who is 78 years of age. In spite of that, he took part in a number of touches, including Superlative Surprise and Double Norwich. His ear is as keen as ever for good striking, and his memory serves him well, both as to methods and tales of ringers of bygone years.

Thirty-one sat down to tea, including the president of the association, who honoured the meeting with his presence. A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector, Rev. W. E. Mills, for his generosity.

DEATH OF WOOLTON'S CHIEF RINGER.

After a short illness, Mr. B. Trevit, chief ringer of Woolton Church, passed away and was buried at Runcorn on Thursday of last week.

In the evening, with the bells half-muffled, an attempt for a half-peal was made, but came to grief after ringing 1,500 changes: R. Hulme 1, H. Grace 2, E. Humphries 3, P. Boardman 4, J. Gardner 5, J. Seddon 6, W. Hughes 7, P. Sumpter 8.

GLOUCESTER & BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

'SUMMER' MEETING IN THE RAIN.

The monthly meeting of the Bristol Branch took place on Saturday last, at that delightful place known as Dyrham Park. This is always looked forward to as the annual summer meeting, the beautiful estate, through the kindness of the Rector (the Rev. W. E. Blathwayt), being thrown open to the members. The Bristol party met at St. Stephen's Church, and drove over by motor, but before reaching Dyrham the rain began to descend, and the weather did not realise the poet's description of 'Flaming June,' for there was no brilliant sunshine to welcome the party, such as greeted them last year. What promised to be a delightful afternoon and evening was marred by the inclement weather. Nevertheless, the members made the best of it, and tracks were made to the church and belfry. The Rector was at the church to welcome the visitors, and conducted parties around, and related the history of the building, which possesses a beautiful specimen of a Norman font.

The members found the bells going like tops; on the instruction of the Rector, Mr. F. Tyler (of Messrs. Llewellyn and James, Bristol) had spared no pains to see the bells were in perfect order.

A short service was held, which was followed by a walk (in the rain) through a part of the well-kept gardens, and around the slopes of the lake, on which some of the members wanted to go punting. Tea was served in the Rectory, and 52 members sat down, the Rector assisting in waiting upon the guests. Afterwards, Mr. Harding proposed, and Mr. F. Leaker seconded, a comprehensive vote of thanks to the Rector for his great kindness. The Rector was given a cordial reception, and, in responding, said how he regretted the state of the weather, as the whole of the grounds and park had been thrown open to them. He welcomed them for their annual summer meeting, and hoped they would continue to come, and that next year the weather would be kinder to them.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr. C. H. Jennings) stated the quarterly meeting had to be changed from Coalpit Heath owing to the illness of the Vicar's sister, and he was pleased to say he had arranged for it to be held at Olveston on Saturday, July 23rd. This was endorsed by the meeting.

Arrangements had been made to enjoy the evening in the park, but, as this was out of the question, an adjournment was again made to the tower until 7.30.

CHELTENHAM BRANCH MEETING AT ALDERTON.

The summer meeting of the Cheltenham Branch was held at Alderton on Saturday, and was attended by upwards of 40 members from the following towers: Leckhampton, St. Mark's (Cheltenham), Swindon, Leigh, Ashchurch, Prestbury, Winchcombe, Dumbleton, Beckford, Radgeworth, and the local tower, together with friends from the Worcester area.

The bells were raised in peal, but the tower, with its light ring of six bells, being so small, a number availed themselves of the opportunity, while waiting their turn to ring, of a look round the quaint old village and the Rectory grounds.

The service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. A. D. Pennington), and a full choir was present. Tea, kindly provided by the Rector, was partaken of in the Village Hall, the number of willing helpers testifying to the Rector's popularity.

The business meeting followed, with the Rector (who is branch chairman) presiding.

The Secretary (Mr. W. Yeend) in a short report welcomed friends from the Worcester Association, particularly Mr. James Hemming, secretary of the Southern Branch, and suggested that it might be possible to arrange a joint meeting between the two associations, seeing that the two counties were so intermixed in that area.—Mr. Hemming, replying, welcomed the suggestion, and said he would bring the subject forward at their next meeting at Offenham.

The following members were elected: Rev. H. M. Merryweather and W. W. Theobald (hon. members), Misses F. Blowing, L. Benfield and E. Greening (Elkstone), Miss Nora M. Bibby and Miss Vera M. Pully (performing members).

Prestbury was selected for the annual meeting.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Rev. A. D. Pennington and his many willing helpers for all they had done to make the gathering so successful.—The Rector, replying, said how pleased he had been to welcome the branch, for he loved the bells and always had the ready support of the ringers of his parish. He hoped he would have the pleasure of seeing them all again in the near future.

The tower was again visited, and much useful practice obtained.

NORTH WALES ASSOCIATION.

A successful meeting of the North Wales Association was held at Wrexham on Whit Monday, when about 30 members were present.

The business meeting was held in the Church House, and tea was provided by the Wrexham members at Roberts' Cafe. Service followed at St. Giles' Church, at which the Rev. E. Parry officiated and delivered an appropriate address. The reverend gentleman also presided at the meeting, and a vote of thanks was duly accorded him for his services.

The bells of St. Giles' Church were rung during the day in a variety of touches.

THE CENTRAL COUNCIL.

REVISED RULES.

The revised copy of the Council's 'Rules and Decisions' was presented by the hon. secretary for ratification. It had been carried forward, he said, largely by the work of the Rev. F. Ll. Edwards, and they now had a book which would be something more than merely a second edition of the original publication. What he felt as hon. secretary and what Mr. Davies had felt before him, was that they had not had in the previous book something of such value that they could use with outsiders in anything more than a minor way. Their decisions for years past had not been incorporated. For a time, at the end of each Council, it was the custom to issue a leaflet embodying the decisions during the preceding three years, but that practice had been dropped for some time. As secretary, he had found that it was necessary occasionally to demonstrate who and what they were. This was an age of propaganda, when a man was judged by the shouting which came from the housetops, and he had felt that if he had a little book which contained something about the Council and its work, it might be very usefully used on occasion when he desired to impress people with what the Council was and did. When, two or three years ago, he suggested that they should have a new edition, he had partly in mind a booklet which could be used in this way and which would run to a greater number of pages than the present one. Accordingly an admirable little preface had been contributed by the Rev. C. D. P. Davies. It was proposed to give a list of the affiliated Guilds and associations, and to add a little detachable certificate showing the election of each member and the association he represented. This would be signed by the president and honorary secretary. He thought there were some members who would like to have such a certificate mounted and placed in a little frame, because if a man had his heart in any particular form of work he did not mind other people knowing it. He also proposed to include a list of the places where the Council had held its meetings, and as a matter of interest to incorporate as an appendix a specimen of their minutes, and he had chosen one at Ipswich last year, which was typical of their work. Further, it was proposed to have as a frontispiece a picture of the late Sir Arthur Haywood, the founder of the Council. Mr. Young then proceeded to detail the various decisions of the Council in past years, which would be added, and made a further proposal that, in future, instead of circulating to the affiliated associations 'The Ringing World' summary of the proceedings published immediately after the meeting, the official minutes should be published about January and copies of these sent to the affiliated bodies.

The Rev. F. Ll. Edwards, who moved that the alterations to the rules be made, thought the last of Mr. Young's proposals was a very practical one, as the circulation of the minutes in the early part of the year would help to reawaken interest in the Council's proceedings at a time when the members were beginning to think of the next meeting.

The Rev. C. D. P. Davies seconded.

Mr. J. W. Jones asked why January was selected for the publication and circulation of the official minutes. He suggested they should be published as soon as possible after the meeting. Most of the members had to present a report to their associations, and if they had these minutes before them in July or August it might be of assistance.

Mr. Young explained that, immediately after the meeting, 'The Ringing World' report of their proceedings appeared, then there came the summer holidays, and before they knew where they were the end of the year was on them. After Christmas they began to think of what they were going to do at the next meeting, and that was the time, he thought, to stir up new interest. He thought the effect of the publication would be lost if the minutes were brought out too soon.

Mr. Jones said they owed something to their associations. They would all be holding quarterly meetings before January, and some of them would be holding their annual meeting. They could not all be expected to take down in shorthand what was said. It was very belated to publish the minutes in January.

Mr. Taffender pointed out that members who wanted to report to their associations had the use of the full report which appeared in 'The Ringing World.'

Mr. Shaker said the Lancashire Association published their report about November, and he thought the Council's official minutes ought to be out in time to be printed in that report. It was true they had 'The Ringing World' summary, but that was not the official report.

Mr. T. W. Faulkner said a member who could not make up his own report from 'The Ringing World' report was not worth his salt (laughter and hear, hear). He welcomed the hon. secretary's idea; in fact, he would make the date of publication later still, so that it appeared just before the Council meeting.

The hon. secretary's suggestion was agreed to, and the rules, as amended, were adopted. Instructions were also given that 300 copies should be printed.

EARLIER PUBLICATION OF AGENDA.

Mr. George Williams moved a resolution, which originated from the last annual meeting of the Winchester Diocesan Guild, that the Rules of the Council should be so altered that the agenda should be published twelve weeks instead of two weeks before the Council meeting, involving the sending in of notices of motion three months instead of four weeks before the meeting. Mr. Williams said the feeling of the Winchester Guild members was that more interest would be taken in the business of the Council by ringers generally if they had the opportunity of discussing at their annual or district meetings matters which were to come before the Council. That could only be done if the agenda were published earlier.

Mr. A. H. Pulling seconded the motion, which was supported by Mr. H. Barton and Mr. J. S. Goldsmith.

The Rev. H. L. James said at present some of the associations elected their representatives less than three months before the Council meeting, and in that case, for the first year of the Council, they might be debarred from putting down a notice of motion.

Replying to the Rev. Canon Elsee, the President said that any matter that arose between the last date for sending in notice of motion and the date of the Council meeting could be dealt with under the head of 'other business.'

The motion was carried.

SUGGESTED DIPLOMAS FOR YOUNG RINGERS.

The Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn proposed 'That the Council shall issue at a small charge, peal diplomas for the encouragement of young ringers.' He asked the members to put themselves in the position of the young ringers and to ask themselves what they would like the Council to do to give them encouragement? He had given serious consideration to the whole question of the young ringer, and he had looked carefully for any sign of movement from the young ringer. One day he saw in the columns of 'The Ringing World' this suggestion from a young ringer, that there should be diplomas given upon application to young ringers for the first peal rung, and that these diplomas should be issued through the Central Council. That suggestion was commented on with favour by another writer. He therefore suggested that the Council might consider the question of issuing a certificate, quite plain in form, giving particulars of the first performances of any ringer who might apply for the diploma. It could be small in size, and they might also issue with it a small case, which could doubtless be sold at small cost, in which these certificates might be kept. He thought it might prove a means of encouraging young ringers. He did not press for a decision that day. If the members liked, they could go home and talk it over with their young ringers and come to a decision next year, but he proposed that the Council entertain the idea.

The Hon. Secretary formally seconded.

Mr. C. H. Howard said that in his report as Master of the Essex Association he had commented on the fact that during the past year, out of 69 peals rung, no less than 42 had been rung in Surprise methods, which meant that the young ringer was not taking up peal ringing as one would like him to. Anything that would encourage the young ringer to start peal ringing would be an advantage to the Exercise. He supposed the idea was to issue diplomas for the first peals in each method?

The Rev. H. Drake said they had done something of the kind in the Suffolk Guild. They had considered the question with regard to Boy Scouts, as ringers. A scout leader, who was interested in ringing, had taken the matter up with the idea of getting proficiency in ringing recognised by the award of a badge. The reply which had been received was that it was impracticable, and that no Scouts' badge could be given for ringing. He (Mr. Drake) wondered whether, in connection with this suggested diploma, the Council could get into touch with the Boy Scouts' organisation and advise them as to how badges could be given to Scouts who helped in ringing.

Mr. T. R. Dennis said he felt the Council ought to go much further than they did at present in the encouragement of young ringers. There were a good many youngsters who would be encouraged if certificates were given, similar to those awarded by Trinity College of Music, in London, for progressive stages in music. If the Council granted certificates for progressive stages in ringing, he thought it would be a stimulus to young members of the Exercise. Moreover, he thought it would raise ringing in the estimation of a boy's parents, if they knew that the youth's efforts to progress were recognised by a body like the Council. He believed it would give them a much higher idea of the work which ringers did.

ADVOCATED 20 YEARS AGO.

Mr. W. Willson said he wrote on this subject over twenty years ago, but in those days he was told it was a 'wild cat' scheme. He was very glad the Council had to-day been converted to his views. In those days his plan was to have three grades of certificate, and not just one for the first peal. The ringer should get the top grade of certificate when he reached a Surprise peal.

Mr. P. J. Johnson thought it would not be wise to make a decision that day. His own opinion of the Council's functions was that they were very largely an advisory body, and that matters of this kind were much better left to the separate associations. For one reason, if the Council undertook it they would be saddling their secretary with a vast amount of additional work in signing the diplomas, and it was also an open question whether they could deal with the thing satisfactorily. In the Yorkshire Association a ringer had to be able to ring a 720 before he was admitted as a member. To his way of thinking, that was the goal for the young member to aim at. They had to choose between encouraging these young ringers and spoon-feeding them (hear, hear). From that point of view, he would rather the Council hesitated before it committed itself to a scheme of that kind. Perhaps the Standing Committee would consider the matter and report to the Council at a future meeting, but he strongly deprecated any decision being come to that day to commit the Council to that particular scheme.

The Rev. C. D. P. Davies said he thought if they limited the scheme to a ringer's first peal they would be on safe ground, but if they began to issue certificates at different levels of progress they would find themselves in deep water.

The Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn said his idea was that a certificate should be issued for the first peal in any method. If a young man rang his first peal, if it were only Grandsire Doubles, it would be published in 'The Ringing World,' the report would appear, and the performance should be open to criticism for at least a month. The ringer might apply for his certificate, but the secretary would not give it him until the report had appeared and a certain interval had elapsed. He would give a certificate for the first peal in every single method that the man might like to apply for. Many a young man rang his first peal in Doubles, and he honoured him for it.

Mr. J. George said more could be done by courtesy to the young ringer and helping him than all the certificates in the world, because if the young man had not the will to learn, nothing on earth could make him. Let them give a certificate to one, and another would become dissatisfied. It would cause trouble in the belfry, and he suggested they should quash the idea altogether.

Mr. H. Barton asked the Council to give the members the opportunity of considering the matter for another year. There was a distinct difference, he said, between a man who had not rung a peal of any sort and a man who, having rung a peal, rang another in a different method.

A member raised the question as to whether the Bath and Wells Association did not grant certificates of this sort, and Mr. J. Hunt replied in the negative. They taught the young ringer, and tried to get him through his first peal, but as regards any certificate they did nothing. He was admitted to the association when he had rung 120 of Doubles. He (Mr. Hunt) agreed that associations could deal with the matter better than the Council, and he thought representatives should have the opportunity of referring the matter to their members.

Mr. W. H. Southard said in the Truro Diocesan Guild they gave their members a certificate when they could ring the treble to 120 Doubles, and a medal when they could ring an inside bell.

The Rev. F. L. Edwards moved that the matter be deferred to the next meeting.

Mr. W. T. Cockerill seconded.

The Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn: In the meantime, members will, I hope, go back to their Guilds and talk about it.

Mr. Faulkner: And also find the young ringers (laughter).

The amendment was agreed to.

SUPERLATIVE SURPRISE.

The next motion on the agenda was the one considered the most contentious, and it was moved by the Rev. H. Law James, viz., 'That since William Shipway extended Superlative Surprise Major to Royal, and the first peal of Royal was rung at Wakefield in 1826, the Council cannot accept any extension to Maximus which does not agree with the Major and the Royal.' He did not intend, he said, to occupy the Council a long time. He dealt with the question at Newcastle; they had a long discussion there, and he came away with the feeling that, although he put the matter perfectly clearly, probably only five or six of the members were capable of understanding it. He did not intend to inflict any figures on them that day, and he had drawn up the resolution in a form that did not require him to do so. Let them go back to the old books and look at history. Let them take Double Norwich. Double Norwich Major, Royal and Maximus in strict theory were all the same method. When they got into the tower to ring them, they had three different methods to ring. Take another illustration: Plain Bob, Grandsire, Oxford, Kent or Cambridge Surprise. In these methods they got not only correct extensions, but they also got practical extensions. Go another step and take London Surprise. The Minor was extended to Major by somebody, he did not know who. Some thought it was by Annable. If it was by Annable, it was by a remarkable man. By no possible stretch of imagination would they prove to him (the speaker) that the Major was the same as the Minor on strict scientific grounds, but if, being able to ring the Major, he went into a six-bell tower and was asked to ring London Minor, having never rung it in his life before, he could ring the Minor and he could call a 720. Why? Because the Major was a practical extension from the Minor, although it was not a scientific one. Another classical instance was Stedman Doubles. Somebody extended it to Triples, Caters and Cinques. They all talked about ringing Stedman Cinques, but if they were going to say that Shipway's Royal was not Superlative, no peal of London Major or Stedman Caters or Cinques had ever been rung. What was sauce for the goose was sauce for the gander. They could not upset what was done by their forefathers a hundred years ago because somebody had got hold of some other theory. Shipway's was a practical extension, and a very fine method, that took a vast amount of ringing. If the Major and the Royal are to stand, then the Maximus must be the same.

Mr. R. Richardson formally seconded, remarking, amid laughter, that he would say nothing about the question, because he was not qualified to express an opinion.

The Rev. C. D. P. Davies said he could not make out whether Mr. James went for the scientific extension or for the practical extension.

The Rev. H. L. James said he went for both. There were three groups. One was the scientific, one the practical and one combined both. All three had been used in the past.

Mr. J. S. Pritchett said he hoped, without any disrespect to Mr. James, the Council would not carry the resolution, because he thought it was a meaningless resolution. It said they were not to countenance any extension to Maximus which did not agree with the Major and the Royal. That assumed that the Major and the Royal agreed with each other, and in his (the speaker's) opinion they did not do so. He considered them fundamentally different, and he was going to vote against the resolution.

NEW BELL AT DEANE.

REV. C. D. P. DAVIES' FAMILY'S GIFT.

Hampshire has gained another ring of six bells, by the augmentation which has been carried out at Deane, where the Rev. C. D. P. Davies has been Rector for some years. The new bell, making with the original five a ring of six bells, is dedicated 'to the honour and glory of God and for the use of Holy Church in loving memory of Owen John David Potts, elder son of Major and Mrs. G. A. Potts, of Penang, Straits Settlement, and grandson of Rev. C. D. P. Davies and Mrs. Davies, of Deane Rectory.' He was born at Deane on January 30th, 1920, and died on January 19th, 1927. The bell is given by his parents and the Rector and Mrs. Davies.

Cast at the foundry of Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, of Whitechapel, who have also erected a new iron frame for eight bells in the tower, and have rehung the original five complete with entirely new fittings, the new bell weighs 4 cwt. 1 qr. 8 lb., and bears the following inscription:—

'A.M.D.G.

O. J. D. Potts.

Ecce Vocor Davidis pueri campana beati

Quando mane sono Domini Veniat ad Aram.

C. D. P. Davies, Rector, 1927.'

Translation of the Latin lines: 'Lo! I am called the bell of David, the blessed lad. When I sound in the early morn may ye come to the altar of the Lord.'

The bells were reopened and the new treble dedicated by Rev. C. D. P. Davies on Sunday, June 12th, in the presence of a congregation that filled the church. The sermon was preached by Canon G. F. Coleridge, Vicar of Crowthorne and president of the Central Council, who took for his text verse three of Psalm 40, 'And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even a thanksgiving unto our God.'

Lady Cooper, a warm supporter from the first of the scheme for rehanging the bells, and a generous donor to the fund, presided at the organ.

After the service, an opening touch of 720 changes of Bob Minor was rung by Rev. C. D. P. Davies (conductor) 1, Canon Coleridge 2, G. Williams 3, A. A. Hughes 4, W. T. Cockerill 5, W. Hunt 6. This was followed by touches of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Oxford Treble Bob and Cambridge Minor.

By the generosity of Rev. C. D. P. and Mrs. Davies, a splendid tea was provided at the Institute, to which full justice was done. Ringers present were Messrs. E. A. Young (hon. secretary of the Central Council), A. A. Hughes, W. T. Cockerill, F. S. Bayley, J. H. Shepherd, G. Williams, W. Hunt, G. Pullinger, and two local men.

The whole work has been excellently carried out by the well-known Whitechapel firm, and it is hoped that a band of ringers will soon be organised locally.

Of the £413 required for the work, there still remains £80 to be raised.

IPSWICH MEN AMONG NORFOLK TOWERS.

The annual outing of St. Mary-le-Tower Society took place on Saturday, June 18th. Leaving by charabanc at 6 a.m., the bells at Wilby were ringing by 7.30 a.m. After breakfast at the White Hart, Stradbroke, and a pull on the grand peal opposite, they went on to the grander peal at Redenhall. At Wymondham there was enough to see to occupy the whole day: ancient Norman arches blended with a costly unfinished reredos; 93 steps to the ringing chamber, which made the young members seek the nearest seat, whilst the veterans took the ropes and rang a good course of London. Dinner at the Royal, Attleborough, en route to Quindenham, with its round tower with four bells above four, Kenninghall and North Lopham, and last, but not least, Diss, where Double Norwich and Stedman were struck with precision. The tenors at Diss, Wymondham, Redenhall and Stradbroke each weigh about 25 cwt., and so harmonious were the peals of eight bells that no two members of the party could agree on their order of superiority, but all agreed that the outing was a success. No one broke down in the Stedman Doubles or fell off bicycles.

MAIDS MORETON, BUCKS.—On Friday, June 17th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles: W. Jones 1, C. Everett 2, H. Jones, sen., 3, H. Jones, jun., 4, H. Stopp (first quarter as conductor) 5, C. Jones (first quarter) 6. Rung with the bells half-muffled as a tribute of respect to T. Andrewes Uthwatt, late squire of the parish, who was interred on this day.

NORTH NOTTS ASSOCIATION. EDWINSTOWE REVISITED.

With very pleasant recollections of the enjoyable visit to Thorsecy and Edwinstowe five years ago, and with a great desire to see old friends, North Notts Association decided to hold the midsummer meeting at Edwinstowe, calling at Thorsecy on the way thither. The bells of Perlethorpe (six) were, by the kind permission of the Rev. A. W. Mandall, placed at members' disposal from 2.30 p.m. to 4 p.m., and touches in three or four methods were brought round. At the conclusion of ringing, the ringers were met at the church gates by Mr. Argles and the churchwarden, and received a most hearty welcome. Lady Manvers and Mrs. Argles also expressed their appreciation of the ringers' visit, and the Rev. A. W. Mandall said it was a small recognition which the parson could show towards men who were enthusiastic about this branch of Church work.

On the way to Edwinstowe, the party were prepared for the usual rain, but, undaunted, bikes, motor-bikes, motor-car, and old 'Shanks's pony' landed them at their destination, where they had the pleasure of meeting other ringers, including ex-Sergeant W. H. Johnson, V.C., now of Nottingham and formerly of Worksoy. Ringers were present from Nottingham, Mansfield, Sprotborough, Worksoy, Sutton-on-Trent, Ordsall, and a full gathering of the local company.

Touches were rung in various methods, from Plain Bob to Cambridge Surprise, the two ladies from Sutton-on-Trent acquitting themselves admirably in the Surprise method. Tea was served in the Church Institute, presided over by the Rev. F. C. Day Lewis, Vicar of Edwinstowe, who offered a hearty welcome to all, and expressed his appreciation of the ringers' visit.

There was not such a large gathering as five years ago, but the inclement weather of the whole week doubtless had something to do with the meagre attendance.

On the proposition of Mr. Martin, seconded by Mr. Wood, the Rev. L. Illingworth Butler, of Edwinstowe, was elected a vice-president.

The next meeting will be held at Gamston, on Saturday, August 20th.

AN INTERESTING CENTENARY.

'PROFESSORS' PERFORMANCE AT CROSTON.

When the Lancashire Association meet at Croston on July 9th, a peal board recording a peal of 10,080 Bob Major, rung a hundred years ago, will be on view. The Croston Church magazine reproduces the following interesting record of the performance:—

GREAT FEAT IN CHANGE RINGING.

Early on Sunday morning, the 15th day of April, 1827, a select band of the Preston and Croston change ringers, expressly to agreement, ascended the tower of the Parish Church of St. Michael's, Croston, and in 5 hrs. 28 mins. completed an arduous task of 10,080 harmonious changes in the musical method of Bob Major, and conducted by Mr. Thomas Broderick, being the first of the method, and the greatest number of changes ever rung at one time on these bells. The professors of the art were stationed as follows:—

Treble.—Thomas Stazaker, Croston.

2.—John Smith, Preston.

3.—Rd. Smith, Croston.

4.—Thomas Broderick, Preston.

5.—John Smith, Croston.

6.—Wm. Cornall, Preston.

7.—John Ditchfield, Preston.

Tenor.—John Simpson, Preston.

We, the undersigned, professors of the art, having assembled for the purpose and heard the whole of the above peal, can testify that it was a fine struck peal.

THOMAS NELSON, Croston.

RD. BOWLING, Leyland.

JAMES NELSON, Croston.

EDWARD HALLIWELL, Leyland.

LAVENHAM RINGING ANNIVERSARY.

On Saturday, June 18th, the one hundred and sixteenth ringing anniversary was celebrated at SS. Peter and Paul's Church, Lavenham. The gathering, comprising about thirty ringers, was not so large as in former years. Many old friends were absent, probably on account of the unsettled state of the weather.

Several short touches of Grandsire, Plain Bob, Double Norwich, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, Superlative, Cambridge and London Surprise were rung during afternoon and evening.

The following towers were represented: Assington, Creetingham, Framsdon, Glemsford, Ipswich, Lawshall, Long Melford, Little Waldingfield, Otley, Polstead, Preston and Woodbridge (Suffolk), Braintree, Earls Colne, Gestingthorpe, Greenstead Green and Great Tey (Essex), Wisbech (Cambs), and Shipley (Yorks). Mr. Thomas King (former conductor of the SS. Peter and Paul's company) travelled from the last-named place to his native town, specially to be present once more at this annual gathering.

METHODS COMMITTEE & METHOD NAMES.

The article which appeared on this page last week has, as we imagined it would, drawn a spirited reply from a representative of the Methods Committee. Mr. Trollope, with his usual fluency of pen, defends the committee, but, in our opinion, he has failed to answer our criticism. We cannot in this space traverse all his arguments, but there is one sentence in his letter which we think very completely confirms our view. He says, 'Obviously the matters in dispute between the two committees (Analysis and Nomenclature) are just the sort of outstanding thing which we wanted power to settle.' (The italics are ours.) That is exactly our point. The Methods Committee disagreed with the Analysis Committee over certain names; at the suggestion of Mr. Trollope (the spokesman of the Methods Committee) the Nomenclature Committee's report was ignominiously thrown out of court; now the Methods Committee say the matters in dispute are just the sort of outstanding thing which 'they' want power to settle. It illuminates the whole discussion. In effect the Methods Committee are litigants in this 'action' as to method names, and they want to be judges as well.

Mr. Trollope asks us where we got the idea that the Methods Committee asked for 'power to rename at their full discretion the methods in the Minor Collection.' Our answer is that we got it from Mr. Trollope himself. He said, 'I would like the Council to empower the committee to deal with names; that is to say, to give the committee power to deal with the whole question at their discretion.' That is what Mr. Trollope said, and what is it but asking, in other words, to be allowed to do as they liked? If Mr. Trollope didn't mean it, he phrased his request, to say the least, a little unhappily. It was not until the demand was challenged that modified powers were mentioned.

No one will dispute that the Methods Committee have good intentions; our criticisms were directed against what was, on the face of it at all events, a plan to deal with matters (already settled by the Council through one committee) by authority obtained by a side wind, but had just been withdrawn from another committee. It is probable that in the light of all that has now been said the Methods Committee's proposals may be of a very limited character, and they will say, 'See how innocuous were our intentions,' but, in criticising their proposals, one could only take their words at their face value; and if the request for authority were put forward largely on the spur of the moment, it just proves that these things require something more than casual consideration and choice of language. There is no doubt, we think, that the Council, with one or two exceptions, when this request was sprung upon them, had entirely forgotten what they did at Salisbury in definitely naming all the methods in the 'Collection.' If the Methods Committee, also, had not forgotten it, they should, in honesty, have explained to the Council that it was their desire to make alterations in the decision arrived at four years ago.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

The quarterly meeting of the Western Division was held at Sowerby on Saturday, June 25th. About twenty members were present from Bradford, Denholme, Keighley, Todmorden, Leeds, Far Headingley, Armley, Halifax, Cross Stones, Queensbury, Lightcliffe, Mytholmroyd and the local company. During the afternoon, touches of Grandsire, Treble Bob and Stedman were rung. Tea was served in the schools, and the business meeting was held immediately after, Mr. J. Cotterell being in the chair.

Nine new members were elected, viz., J. A. Briggs, W. Smith, F. Hartley, J. Meadowcroft, H. Smith, W. Sutcliffe (Sowerby), S. Whitaker, F. Normanton (Oxenhope), and H. Dews (Bishop's Stortford). No invitations for the September meeting having been received, it was suggested that an endeavour should be made to arrange one at Giggleswick or Settle.

Votes of thanks were passed to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of bells, to the ladies for their services at tea, and the local company for the arrangements made.—The Vicar and Mr. Sutcliffe suitably replied, and the meeting terminated.

THE PEAL AT CASTLE DONINGTON.

On Saturday last, at the Church of St. Edward, King and Martyr (sometimes designated St. Luke), Castle Donington, Leicestershire, a long-sought-after and much-desired peal was accomplished. Mr. James S. Hutchby ('Jim') had ardently wished for a peal on the bells in his native 'city,' where he had been bred and born, and spent his early boyhood days. He rang his first 720 Minor here in July, 1884—since when he had not rung another—over forty-three years ago. Also in conjunction with this, Mr. E. Morris, of Leicester, had 'designs' on this tower, which for various reasons is not easily obtainable for peal ringing, so they fixed up the band, representing as it did, six different towers, viz., Leicester, Lockington, Kegworth, Donington, Southwell, and Loughborough. This made up the conductor's 150th tower for a peal, 94 of which are in Leicestershire.

The humorous side to this peal was supplied by the conductor, who, catching train to Loughborough, managed to miss the Castle Donington bus. After numerous enquiries, he succeeded in getting a bus to Kegworth, via Normanton (Notts) Regatta. Thence, finding no other means available, he set off on a four-mile trek on 'Shanks's pony' in the broiling sun. Getting about a mile on the way, he was overtaken by one of his Loughborough committee, Mr. D. Collins, who was cycling, and he very kindly managed to carry him on his back forks (a very precarious perch), via Lockington to Hemington. Setting him off on his way again, he arrived safely at Donington an hour late, wet through with perspiration and weary, but none the less determined to knock off another Leicester tower from his list, and gather further information for his revision of 'North's Church Bells of Leicestershire.'

HALIFAX AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

A KEEN CONTEST.

The Halifax and District Association held their annual meeting and a six-bell contest at New Mill, near Huddersfield, on July 2nd. The draw took place as follows: 1 Holmfirth, 2 Meltham, 3 Batley, 4 Sandal, 5 Liversedge, 6 Thornhill 7, Shelley. It had previously been decided that each set should ring 600 changes, any method, but all seven sets decided on Oxford Treble Bob. Ringing commenced at three o'clock, and during the afternoon the striking of most of the bands was very good indeed. It was a lovely day, and members and friends took full advantage of the occasion. The surroundings of New Mill made it possible to hear the bells for miles around, and as it lies within easy access to Huddersfield a very large number turned up, and over 100 sat down to the excellent tea provided by local ladies.

After ringing ceased, the meeting was held in the school, Mr. J. Tinker (New Mill) occupying the chair in the absence of the president.

The treasurer's report was read, and the Chairman moved the adoption of the balance sheet, which Mr. Biltcliffe seconded, and which was unanimously adopted.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the Vicar, Rev. E. C. Edwards, and churchwardens, for use of bells, also to the ladies and New Mill ringers for providing such an excellent tea and making the contest such a great success. The Vicar, replying, said it gave him great pleasure to welcome the association to New Mill. Although he was not a ringer himself, he said, ringers did a very great service to church work. He gave an instance of the flag having got wrapped around the pole on top of the church, and his friends said it was the parson's job to unfurl it, but he told them his work was to help the people on earth to reach heaven, and leave the things in between to others (laughter). At the same time, he added, it gave him great pleasure to see them all at New Mill.

The officials were then elected for the next twelve months as follows: President, Mr. E. Earnshaw (Meltham); treasurer, Mr. F. Salmon (Halifax); secretary, Mr. L. Hargreaves (Halifax.)

The judges, Mr. J. Broadley (Bradford) and Mr. H. Haigh (New Mill) next announced their decision as follows:—

No. 1.—Penalty 10, faults 161; total 171.

No. 2.—Penalty 10, faults 143; total 143.

Batley (No. 3) were therefore declared winners of the cup.

The Vicar, in presenting the cup to Mr. S. Gibson, conductor of Batley company, said it gave him great pleasure to hand the cup to Batley. It was said when he left Batley, about eight years ago, that all the good things came out of Batley, but he was pleased they were taking something good back in the shape of the cup.—Mr. Gibson returned thanks, and said how pleased he was that the younger sets had rung so well that day. It was only by sticking together that good striking could be achieved.

It may be mentioned that Mr. J. Broadley had judged his fiftieth contest that day.

A good deal of discussion took place with regard to raising the price of membership, and it was resolved that in future all new members be asked to pay one and sixpence on joining the association.

The members urged that it was up to the secretary of each tower to see that the members paid their subscriptions, as it was a known fact that some would let their payments lapse for several years and then join again as new members.

The auditors, Mr. J. Tinker (New Mill) and Mr. W. Rayner (Lanai), were thanked for their services, as were also the judges and chairman.

SEVEN BANDS IN COMPETITION.

CONTEST AT HOYLANDSWAINE.

The annual cup contest, promoted by Hoylandswaine among the members of this Society, took place on Saturday, June 25th, at Hoylandswaine under the usual conditions for the best-struck 720 in any method. Mr. J. R. Brearley, of Bolsterstone, was the judge, and seven companies rang in the following order: No. 1, Shelley, 122 faults; 2, Darfield, rung out; 3, Darton, 230 faults; 4, Sandal, rung out; 5, Cawthorne, rung out; 6, Felkirk, 288 faults; 7, Wath, 66 faults. Wath were declared the winners, and will hold the cup for one year. The winners were also awarded six alarm clocks. The ringers were: W. Bramham 1, W. Ashworth 2, W. Green 3, A. Gill 4, R. J. Ricketts 5, C. Walsh 6.

Shelley received second prizes, viz., six jelly dishes: C. H. Sturges 1, J. W. Buxton 2, F. Hawthorne 3, S. Ramsden 4, A. Goldthorpe 5, A. Hoyle 6.

Rain fell copiously all the time the ringing was in progress, but nothing dampened the interest of a large company of listeners. Tea was provided in Parish Room. The presentation of prizes was attended by the Vicar (Rev. J. Hewetson) and his sister (Miss Hewetson), and many members of the congregation, who were warmly thanked for providing such a popular event among the ringers in the district.

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD. PROPOSALS FOR DIVISION.

The annual festival of the Winchester Diocesan Guild was held at Guildford on Saturday, and there was special interest in the event by reason of the fact that it was the last festival which the Guild will hold as at present constituted. From January 1st next the diocese of Guildford will have its separate association, although it is not unlikely that the ringers' organisations in the new diocese of Portsmouth and the remainder of the diocese of Winchester will continue as a joint Guild. Mr. George Williams (Master) presided over the business meeting, and in opening the proceedings referred to the loss which the Guild had sustained by the death of the vice-president (the Rev. C. E. Matthews). The action of the general secretary and the districts in sending letters of condolence to Mrs. Matthews was confirmed by the members standing for a few moments in silence.

The Master added that the Rev. C. D. P. Davies had relinquished the post of hon. secretary of the Basingstoke District on his retirement from the living at Deane, and the committee that morning had elected him an honorary life member in appreciation of his services. In 1929, said Mr. Williams, the Guild would reach its jubilee, and he and others hoped it would be possible in that year to hold a joint meeting of the old and the new Guilds at some border tower to celebrate the event. In the Special Purposes Fund of the Guild, he continued, they had about £30, which was subscribed by members towards Titchfield Bell Fund, which the late vice-president, while he was Vicar there, inaugurated to restore and augment the bells. The scheme at the time was not proceeded with, and Mr. Matthews put the money into the Guild's Special Purposes Fund. There was now a proposal to do something to Milford bells, and the committee thought it would be a good thing if the Guild should devote this money towards the cost of providing one or two more bells as a memorial to Mr. Matthews.

It was stated that the Rev. C. E. Matthews, in his will, had left to the Guild a working model of a bell, and the committee's recommendation that it should be placed in the belfry at Winchester Cathedral was confirmed.

There was some discussion on the balance sheet, and, it having been elicited that there were bank charges on an overdraft, due to the fact that the districts' contributions to the general fund were forwarded late in the year, and that, therefore, there had not been sufficient funds in hand to meet the expenditure, Mr. J. S. Goldsmith suggested that the districts should contribute a definite percentage of their receipts to the general fund (instead of merely remitting their balance as at present), and that the treasurer should be able to draw on the districts at the end of March or June for a payment on account.

The balance sheet was adopted. It showed receipts on the general fund of £246 15s. 11d., and a balance in hand of £27 1s. 10d., against £30 15s. 10d. at the beginning of the year. The district accounts showed receipts of £90 19s. 6d., and expenditure £42 18s. 9d., with £43 16s. 11d. remitted to the treasurer and an increased balance in hands of local secretaries of £4 3s. 10d.

TERMS OF DIVISION.

The committee presented a report on the question of the division of the Guild as a result of the division of the diocese. After certain slight alterations in the wording had been agreed to, the amended report was unanimously adopted as follows: 'The sub-committee appointed at the last annual meeting have carefully gone into the question and make the following recommendations:—

(1) That as meetings of both Guildford and Yorktown Districts have passed resolutions in favour of forming a separate organisation for the diocese of Guildford, as from January 1st, 1928, and subject to the approval of the Bishop of Guildford, a separate Guild be formed for the diocese of Guildford, and that part of Surrey as may be found convenient, and that the remainder of the Guild be formed into one or more diocesan organisations as the resident members may desire.

(2) That a reciprocal arrangement be made whereby any resident member of the present Guild on Jan. 1st, 1928, may become a compounding member of any of the associations into which the present Guild may be divided (other than that in which resident) upon payment of 1s. to each such association, if application be made during the year 1928.

(3) That this Guild approach the other Guilds, which may be formed out of its area, with a view to the present life members (not compounding) being elected life members of all the organisations into which the present Guild may be divided.

(4) That the funds of the Guild on December 31st, 1927, should be divided 25 per cent. to the new Guildford Diocesan Guild and 75 per cent. to the Guild or Guilds that may be formed for the dioceses of Winchester and Portsmouth, as this was approximately the percentage paid in from the areas concerned during the last five years.

The second and third recommendations are included from a genuine desire that when the old Winchester Diocesan Guild shall cease to function it shall be in the most friendly and fair way possible, and to enable old members to retain their association one with the other, having regard to the fact that two or more Guilds are to be formed out of the present Guild.

On the motion of Mr. C. Hazelden, seconded by Mr. W. W. Thorne, the meeting confirmed the committee's recommendation that the officers be re-elected to carry on the work of the present Guild until December 31st, 1927.

The Master reported that Mr. Pulling, Mr. Barton and himself represented the Guild at the meeting of the Central Council at Whitsun, and that the motion, which he proposed at the request of the Guild, to secure the earlier publication of the Council's agenda, was carried.

Mr. Pulling said the meeting produced nothing very exciting, but the two most important matters concerning ringers as a whole related to the names of Minor methods, and the issue of diplomas to young ringers. If six-bell ringers had any suggestions to make with regard to the Minor methods, which are to be republished, they must communicate with the secretary, and with regard to diplomas, the members had to make up their minds if they thought the proposal would be of use in encouraging young ringers, and if they approved of it they must instruct their representatives to support the scheme at the next meeting, as it had been adjourned for a year to give the Guilds and associations the opportunity of considering it.

Mr. Barton, who was unable to be present owing to business, wrote that the Council were taking up more practical subjects than formerly.

Mr. J. P. Fidler (representative of Messrs. John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough) explained how the confusion of names among Minor methods had arisen, and said it was very necessary, when points used to be awarded for peals, that this confusion should be cleared up.

The Master thanked Mr. Fidler for his explanation, and welcomed him to the Guild meeting.

On the motion of Mr. W. Andrews, the representatives were thanked for attending the meeting, and for their report. 'They get more kicks than ha'pence,' said Mr. Andrews, 'but we should like them to know that we do appreciate what they do.'

TO FURTHER THE WORK OF THE GUILD.

At the last annual meeting, the committee were instructed to consider and report how best the aims and work of the Guild can be furthered. They now presented a report in which they put forward suggestions which it was hoped would create more interest in the Guild's work among the clergy, suggested recruiting grounds for the belfry, made proposals with regard to instruction, and advocated the redivision of the diocese into smaller districts. The committee recommended that the report be printed and circulated to every affiliated tower in the Guild, and brought up for discussion at the first available meeting in each district; that special consideration of the whole question, together with any suggestions of members, particularly as to the appointment of instructors and the rearrangement of the districts, be given at the first meeting of the committees of the new Guilds in order that a definite scheme be put before them at their first meetings.

The Master moved the adoption of the report, Mr. Whittington seconded, and the motion was carried.

There were no new members to elect, but Mr. J. S. Goldsmith, who pointed out that they were approaching the parting of the ways, proposed that Mr. George Williams should be elected an honorary life member of the Guild in recognition of his long and devoted services. From the early days of the Guild, Mr. Williams had been a member, and had done a great deal of spade work, while since his return from Sussex he had served them first as secretary and since as Master, and he had given his labours freely and enthusiastically.—Mr. Hazelden seconded, Mr. Whittington supported, and the motion was carried with applause.

Mr. Williams thanked the members for the honour they had done him. He had only done his best for the Guild, as all good ringers should do, and he had always gone to his Sunday ringing as regularly as, on weekdays, he had gone to his work. He joined the Guild in 1879 or 1880, but he did not ring his first peal until 1884. Ringers in these days would have rung 200 or 300 peals in that time. He taught a band in his own tower, and on the first anniversary of his first peal he conducted one with his own company. Afterwards, he moved away from the district, and since he returned in 1905 he had done his best for the Guild, and he hoped to do so as long as he was able (applause).

The Master welcomed the Rev. E. Jones, the new secretary of the Basingstoke District. They were particularly glad to see him as he was the only clerical member of the Church present that day. They had discussed in committee that morning the lack of interest which the clergy were showing in the Guild.—The Rev. E. Jones expressed his pleasure at being present.

In connection with the suggested Jubilee celebration, the Master hoped the Guildford Diocesan Guild would unite with the Winchester Guild. Basingstoke was suggested as a convenient place, and Mr. Hazelden said no more suitable spot could be found, for it was at Basingstoke that the first meeting was held from which the Winchester Guild sprang.

A vote of thanks was passed to the incumbents of the churches where the bells had been placed at members' disposal, to Canon Kirwan for the service, and to Mr. E. Raddon (Guildford District secretary) for making the local arrangements.

The members then proceeded to Holy Trinity Church, the Cathedral of the new diocese, where the Guild's special service was conducted by Canon Kirwan, and the singing was led by the choir boys. The hymns were those specially applicable to ringers' meetings, and it is pathetic to recall that some of them were written by the dead vice-president, the late Rev. C. E. Matthews.

The Bishop of Winchester was the preacher, and he took for his text 'O come, let us sing unto the Lord; let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation' (Psalm xcv. 1).

BISHOP AND THE BELL RINGERS.

The Bishop of Winchester, in the course of his sermon, said he was glad to meet the bell-ringing representatives of the diocese, and glad to acknowledge the very valuable services which they rendered to the Church Sunday after Sunday, and even, in some cases, day by day. He wished them God-speed in the task they had undertaken, and hoped that in the days to come in all three dioceses—Winchester, Guildford and Portsmouth—the bond that united them would be drawn closer together.

Continuing, his Lordship recalled that church-bell ringing was of very ancient origin, peal and change ringing being peculiar to England. Ringers were members of a body with very ancient ancestors, and were artists of a craft which had existed in England for centuries. The church bells, said his Lordship, were often connected with great moments of life. Let them, for instance, think of the contrast between wedding bells and the toll of the funeral bell; whilst among the greatest moments was that when they were called to worship God and hear the bells of the Master. Then there were the great moments of the year—the festivals, when the bells were prominent. Thus they were reminded of the joyful and sad and solemn occasions in life when the bells were intimately associated with them in their hopes, joys, sorrows and worship. The bells summoned them to do their part in the deepening of the life of the church. They had got to ring in the Kingdom of Christ, and each ringer in his own life should be a bell in himself, ringing in the good news of Christ and His kingdom. Today, they needed to ring in the nobler modes of life. They each had an individual and a corporate responsibility. No change ringing could be done by a mere collection of individuals. It was only done by men who had learnt their art together. Change ringing was one of the most signal examples of team work which could be produced, and it was only by such team work on the part of the servants of Christ that the Kingdom would come—the Kingdom which would produce purer and nobler modes of life. Each bell ringer was like his own bell—different from everyone else—and Christ provided the Church in order that the broken tones might be blended together in one fine peal. This was the message of the bells. In conclusion, his Lordship said he could offer no more earnest prayer for that association than that everyone should have in his life a tone that was noble, pure and right.

The representatives returned to the Ward Street Hall for tea, those present including the Bishop of Winchester and Canon Kirwan. The latter expressed thanks to his lordship for having spared time to visit them that day. Although, said the Rev. E. O. Kirwan, it was the wish of the Bishop of Guildford that they should have their own Diocesan Guild of Change Ringers, many of them would like to feel that the link with Winchester would not be severed, and he hoped that in the future they at Winchester would welcome bell-ringing guests from Guildford, just as Guildford would always be pleased to welcome their friends from the other diocese. It seemed almost possible that the division of the diocese should have been hewn about so quickly, and he for one felt somewhat sorry at saying 'Good-bye'; but, at the same time, they were still one fellowship and one brotherhood.

Seconding, Mr. J. S. Goldsmith referred to the absence of clergy from the festival, and said that while the ringers had a duty to the Church, the clergy also had a duty to the ringers.

The Bishop, in reply, expressed the belief that the clergy did not know their presence was so ardently and keenly desired, and if he got the opportunity of intimating that fact to them he would be pleased to do so. He pointed out the difficulty of clergy attending on Saturday afternoons, when most of the festivals were held, as, normally, on Saturday afternoons clergy should be preparing their sermons for the Sunday (laughter), although he admitted that all sermons were not all they might be. However, he was quite sure that, whether the clergy were present or not, they did appreciate the help they received from bell ringers, and realised they owed a deep debt of thanks to those who, Sunday after Sunday, took the trouble to make their services attractive. The laity also appreciated the ringers, who, primarily, knocked at their door, and, when they rang, the laity responded and appreciated what they did.

Speaking of the division of the diocese, the Bishop said it was a sad thing, and he was grieved to think the Winchester associations would be broken up after so long. He hoped, however, that the three new dioceses would keep in close touch with one another. He hoped that the Guilds of ringers in all three dioceses would grow in energy and usefulness.

There were members present during the day from a great number of towers in this large diocese and visitors from neighbouring associations. A party of 120 sat down to tea, and, during the day, ringing took place at the pro-Cathedral and S. Nicolas' Church, Guildford, Godalming and Shalford. The methods ranged from Grandsire to the Surprise class, and one short touch of Spliced Surprise Major was brought round.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Messrs. John Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, have just overhauled the back four bells of the ring of twelve at Buckfast Abbey, Buckfastleigh, Devon. Among the improvements carried out have been new clappers, bearings, and steel headstocks. Ringing has now recommenced, and the Abbey authorities are highly satisfied with the work.

Ringers recently received at the banquet given by the R.I.B.A. an unexpected but, unfortunately, a transient honour, for as the guests arriving at the Cecil were being presented, Mr. E. Alex. Young was announced in stentorian tones as Sir Alexander Young. He had to disclaim the honour, and to suggest in reply to a humorous remark of the president, that possibly it was at least a bit premature!

Mr. Alfred Bowell, of Ipswich, has the contract to rehang the peal of eight at Braintree Parish Church, Essex, in new steel and iron frame with all new fittings and tune the whole peal. They will be hung with ball bearings and steel headstocks.

It would appear from a statement in a London contemporary that the Rev. C. D. P. Davies (well known as an astronomer), was one of the party at Giggleswick with the Astronomer Royal. He was heard directing with youthful enthusiasm the attention of the public around to the most interesting features of 'totality' during the recent eclipse.

The late hon. secretary of the Central Council was more fortunate than his successor, Mr. E. Alex. Young, who, going so far north as Durham, only secured one or two fleeting glimpses of the spectacle.

By the completion of the ring of eight at the new Church of the Good Shepherd, Brighton now possesses two rings of ten and two of eight.

A hundred and ten years ago to-day James Barham, so long the dominating figure at Leeds, Kent, rang his last peal. He was then 91 years of age.

William Sottanstill, of Sowerby, Yorks, who wrote a book on ringing, was born on July 9th, 1800.

We regret that, owing to the heavy pressure on our space in recent weeks, several reports of outings have been unavoidably held over. They will appear in due course.

NEW PEAL OF EIGHT AT BRIGHTON.

COMPLETION OF THE CHURCH OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

Standing impressively on the heights of the great north-western ridge overlooking sea and town, an entirely new church has been erected in Dyke Road, Brighton, and on Thursday, June 23rd, the chancel, a Lady Chapel, tower and eight bells were consecrated by the Bishop of Chichester (Dr. Winfrid Burrows). The church has been built and the bells presented by Mrs. Gerald Moor, in memory of her late husband, Prebendary Moor, Vicar of Preston.

The eight bells in the tower were cast by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, the tenor weighing 13 cwt. 2 qr. 16 lb., and being in the key of F. They are hung in a heavy cast-iron frame, bolted to a double foundation of steel girders. The girders span the tower in both directions, are horizontally cross-braced, and their ends are anchored and built into the walls. The fittings are of the most modern type, and include cast-iron headstocks, self-aligning ball bearings and ball-bearing rollers, the rollers and clappers also being fitted with screw-down lubricators. The wheels are fitted with a special saley block to obviate the wear on the bell rope. The bells have been cast and tuned on the 'Simpson' five-tone principle. The tenor has a finely-executed figure of the Good Shepherd cast in relief, and the following inscription on the reverse:—

'Rev. Gerald H. Moor, Preb. of Colworth in Chichester Cathedral, Vicar of Preston, 1905 to 1916. Alice M. Moor, his wife.'

The seventh records the following: 'A.D. 1927. George V. R. Winfred, Bishop of Chichester. Julius Hannah, Dean of Chichester. William J. R. Allen, first Vicar of this parish.'

The bells having been dedicated, the St. Peter's (Brighton) Society rang a few rounds, and, after the ceremony had concluded, a very good course of Superlative was brought round.

The bells are full-toned, even inside and out of the tower, and not difficult to strike. A noticeable feature of the bells is the absence of the 'howl' inside or outside of the tower, which is often heard with rings tuned on the 'Simpson' five-tone principle. In this new ring the strike note dominates. The bells are at present noisy inside the tower, but it is understood this will be remedied by the addition of a plaster ceiling in the ringing chamber.

DEATH OF A LADY RINGER.

We regret to record the death of Miss Annie Banks on Tuesday, June 28th, at the Lymington Cottage Hospital, following an operation the previous week.

Miss Banks became a ringer at St. Thomas' Church, Lymington, during the war, taking the place of a brother, also a ringer, who was on active service. She was a regular attendant in the belfry on Sundays until the illness of her parents kept her at home to look after them.

The funeral took place on Friday last, and in the evening the local band rang a quarter-peal with the bells half-muffled: E. Kerley 1, E. C. Elliott (conductor) 2, H. Dunsford 3, S. Clark 4, G. Arnold 5, J. Wells 6, J. Figgures 7, C. Morris 8.

THE COLLECTION OF MINOR METHODS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—In your leading article this week, you ask, 'For what purpose do the Methods Committee want discretionary powers' in the matters of the new Collection of Minor Methods? May I, as the mover of the resolution, attempt to answer your question?

What was in my mind was this. The discussions and disputes of the last four years, ending in the rejection of the Nomenclature Committee's report and the discharge of that committee, had left the naming of six-bell methods in an uncertain state. No doubt, most of the question raised had in the course of discussion been settled, practically if not formally. But when we come to the details of the new book it is probable, it is almost certain, we shall have cases where there is doubt and dispute as to what is really the correct name. There is no authority to which these disputed cases can be referred, and I think it was not unreasonable for us to ask for power to settle them ourselves. What we asked and what the Council gave us was to be confirmed in the editorial rights, which, you must remember, we had when we produced the first edition, and which we had, and used, when we recently produced the 'Collection of Major Methods.' What we did not ask for, and what we had no intention of asking for, was 'power to rename at our full discretion the methods in the Minor Collection.' I do not know where you, Sir, got that idea. Perhaps it was a natural one under the circumstances, and, apparently, was shared by others than yourself. But it was an erroneous idea. I had to intervene in the debate several times to try and correct it, but the only result of my interventions seem to be, in your case, that you think I 'toned down my request when objection was raised.'

The question of renaming does not arise. We have already more names than we want. It is a question of selection, and that only in the case of a very small proportion of the methods. No doubt, as Mr. J. W. Parker pointed out, the rejection of the Nomenclature report did leave the Analysis Committee's list of names formally in possession. But you must remember that that list was drawn up and presented to the Council four years ago, and before the matter was so fully discussed by the Council and the Exercise. You, Sir, know as well as I do that that list did not meet with universal approval. I think it is a far better list than, I gather, you do, but I also think it a good thing that we have the power and opportunity of comparing it with its rivals and considering the criticisms that have been levelled against it. I think it will stand the test very well.

But you apparently hold the strange and new doctrine that because the list was once formally adopted by the Council we are forbidden by loyalty to the Council's decisions to alter it by so much as a single word, even after we have had authority from the Council. A strange and new doctrine indeed!

I seem to remember that you strongly supported the criticism which was brought against it four years ago, and that you approved the wholesale alterations proposed by the Nomenclature Committee. All this after the list was adopted by the Council. But the Nomenclature Committee may make wholesale alterations and do well, while the Methods Committee does ill if they but consider whether any alteration is needful.

You point out that there was disagreement between the Analysis Committee and the Methods Committee concerning certain names, and you ask, Did we ask for discretionary powers 'merely to ensure that our own views shall prevail?' I can answer that question. When I moved the resolution, there was no thought of the Analysis Committee at all. You must remember that the question of this resolution did not arise until the Nomenclature Committee was discharged, and the resolution was drafted and moved almost on the spur of the moment. But, obviously, the matters in dispute between the two committees are just the sort of outstanding thing which we wanted power to settle. That does not mean that we are going contemptuously to reject their alterations. Their suggestions will be sympathetically considered, and, I believe (for I do not know anything definitely yet), for the most part adopted. But I do not think we shall leave a mistake like 'College Single Reverse' standing.

May I suggest that we have, after all, a motive other than that of merely getting our own way. And that is, the wish to make the new book as good a one as we can. You, Sir, I know, will sympathise with that wish. It is more important to us that the names of the methods should be such that the Exercise approves of, than that they should be just those which we ourselves would have selected had we the choosing. I have no right to speak for my colleagues, but I think I shall not be doing wrong if I promise that the list of names shall be published and an opportunity given for outside criticism before the book is printed.

And now may I say a word or two about the Nomenclature Committee. You suggest that they were badly and unfairly treated. I cannot agree. Anyone who brings up contentious matters before the Council or any other debating body runs the risk of having his opinions rejected. I took a leading part in the opposition. I drafted and moved the amendment which was their undoing. But there was no 'torpedoing' and no 'side tracking.' It was a straightforward fair fight, all above board. I do regret that it was not possible to receive their report and by amendment remove objectionable features. But they had, at any rate, the courage of their convictions. They presented their views in such a way as admitted of no compromise. Because I felt that their proposals were unworkable and contrary to the good of the Exercise, I moved my amendment. It was not 'specious.' It was a direct challenge to their views, and was tantamount to moving the rejection of the report with a considered reason for so doing. They are all men for whom I have great regard and respect, but I would not be a member of the Central Council if I had to agree with every opinion expressed at its meetings.—Yours faithfully,

J. ARMIGER TROLLOPE.

SIX-BELL RINGERS' VIEWS.

Dear Sir,—The Central Council has invited Minor ringers to offer suggestions before the 'Collection' is reprinted, and has asked them not to complain afterwards; but the gentlemen who made and endorsed these remarks should bear in mind that we six-bell ringers do not know what is going to be done; and, further, that we have the greatest difficulty in understanding what has been done, and what is left undone.

Three years ago we asked (in your columns) exactly what the position was, regarding the list of names then published, and as to whether the Council's decision was definite or not. We asked for information from any representatives who cared to enlighten us, without result. Perhaps we should have addressed someone in particular, and will avoid an error this time.

With the object of forcing a ruling we approached various associations, with the result that certain proposals were placed before the Council by the Nomenclature Committee. These appeared to have been very definitely rejected last year, and, presumably, the published names were made absolute. With this decision we were content.

It would now appear to be likely that the names will again be revised, at the discretion of the Methods Committee, and it is a great pity that there were not some practical Minor ringers on the Council, who could have pointed out how very inconvenient these alterations can become to those people who have to use the names. The majority of the members of the Council never have wondered, in the middle of a 720, whether the next method to be introduced will be known to the band as 'Ringers' or 'Primrose.' Canterbury and Alnwick Surprise, when spliced with Morpeth and Newcastle, are excellent examples of a most inconvenient muddle—each has become the other. And so on.

The 'twelve-bell' gentlemen who so laughingly discussed the question do not inspire confidence in the 'six-bell' man, who, after all, is the most affected. Judging from the printed report, Mr. J. S. Pritchett's effort is most remarkable, and (a shot at random) we would bet our bell ropes that he could not even produce a copy of the 'Collection,' much less to turn up Bob Minor or London Surprise therein.

We would ask Mr. J. A. Trollope: Please tell us, can your committee make any 'selection' from the existing list of names, without changing any of those on that list? Does it propose to alter some of these, its own names, in spite of your pledge to Mr. Pritchett? The Rev. H. Law James seconded this resolution, and in view of what he then said, Whitley Surprise (No. 7) should now become 'Leytonstone,' etc. Tell us exactly what is meant by it all. Have we again to revise our work and records for the past years, after having put our house in order? If so, it would seem that loyalty to the decisions made by the Council does not pay, and the Minor man would do better to follow his Superlative Maximus brother, and say, 'We shall do as we please.'

Our only sheet-anchor has been the number of each method, and it is to be hoped that the committee will not disturb the numerical order of the methods, in a misguided effort to classify those which are not strictly 'in place.'

For the rest, may we say that the plan adopted in the Major Collection of dividing the leads, and showing the bobs, is most satisfactory, except that the two rows and the dividing line might be 'crowded' a little, to allow each unit to stand out, 'spacing' the bobs and singles, as it were?

The second's-place methods might be lettered A, B, C or D, according to which lead-head applies, and one part of an extent W-R-W with one of 1-1-4th's given for each. The sixth's-place methods lettered E, F, G or H, with parts of 1-0-1 and 4th's-W-W given. Some instruction regarding the introduction of singles for the plain methods could be included; or, alternatively, parallel parts to the above, lettered AA, BB, etc.

We are careful to avoid suggestions regarding the Doubles or Triples, except that the Triples methods might now be named.

Finally, may be acknowledge the debt that Minor ringers owe to this committee, and to say that we fully appreciate the work that it has done, but that we do think the list of names should stand, the more especially as the committee itself was responsible for its publication?—Yours truly,

For the St. John-the-Baptist Association, Leytonstone,

GEO. DAWSON,

Hon. Sec.

GUILDFORD.—On Wednesday, May 25th, at the Church of the Holy Trinity, a quarter-peal (1,260 changes) of Stedman Triples in 49 mins.: W. N. Stone (first quarter-peal in the method) 1, C. N. Burdock 2, N. V. Harding 3, W. J. Robinson 4, H. Harris 5, H. Hutton 6, A. H. Pulling (conductor) 7, W. R. Melyville 8.

THE CENTRAL COUNCIL.

SUPERLATIVE SURPRISE.

The debate on Superlative Surprise was continued by Mr. J. W. Parker. He said he was not quite sure what was meant by the resolution, whether it was that Mr. James objected to the Maximus which was rung at Ipswich as not being in line with the Major and the Royal. Those of the members who read Mr. James' article in 'The Ringing World' of December 24th last would see that his theory of extension was based in a measure on the places from the back and from the front. If they took the method rung at Ipswich they would find that it was exactly in accordance with that theory. Mr. Parker proceeded to explain the relative places in the method, and went on to say that the measuring of places from the treble was the right theory. He thought they must give ringers the credit of knowing a method when it was properly extended, and, in his opinion, if Shipway's Royal had been a correct extension of the Major, instead of waiting for a hundred years before the second peal was rung, it would be as much practised now as was Cambridge Surprise Royal. They, as a Council, should use their common sense in these matters. If they had any resolution at all, it should be that in the opinion of the Council there is no correct extension of Superlative Surprise Major (laughter).

The Rev. E. S. Powell: If you would move it, I would second that.

Mr. J. S. Wildo said he was somewhat responsible for this controversy ('Shame' and laughter). He sent the extension to Mr. Baker years ago, and published the figures last November in 'The Ringing World.' The method was rung in less than six months. Mr. James published the Maximus of Shipway's extension before the Council meeting of 1915, and it had not yet been rung. When Superlative Major was published in 'The Clavis,' it was described as 'a new and original composition for this work.' At that time there were only two Surprise methods, Cambridge and London. No doubt, the author had been looking at Cambridge and had seen the blemish in it, and in attempting to improve it he discovered Superlative Surprise Major. He made very little alteration. With the treble in 1-2, he put in 6th's instead of 8th's, and let the bells behind continue dodging, and at the first cross-section he let the bells on the front dodge instead of both of them lying still. There was nothing in the Maximus as rung at Ipswich that was not in the Major except the extended dodging, and a study of it showed that it had not got the objectionable features which they found in Shipway's method. Shipway's extension to Maximus was full of five-pull dodging; when the treble was on the front, the bells in 7-8, 9-10 and 11-12 were all engaged in five-pull dodging, and, likewise, there were three simultaneous five-pull dodges when the treble was behind. They could not find that sort of thing in Superlative Major. The Council would be very unwise to pass Mr. James' motion.

'IPSWICH VARIATION.'

Mr. J. A. Trollope said he intended to vote for Mr. James' resolution, but he first of all wanted to say that he agreed entirely with Mr. Parker that there was not, and never could be, any really satisfactory extension of Superlative, either to ten or twelve bells. Shipway's extension to Royal had now been in possession of the Exercise for a century. It was rung about a hundred years ago by a now dead and forgotten band, and, as a matter of fact, it was an extremely clever extension of the principles of Superlative to eight and ten bells. There was nothing he could think of that gave him a higher opinion of Shipway as a clever man than when he took the one important constructional feature of Superlative Major and adapted it to ten bells, but it was adaption and not an extension, simply because the features which existed in ten bells did not allow the Major construction to go exactly to ten bells. If any method at all had the right to be called Superlative, then Shipway's had, and no other. But things had been complicated by the fact that the Ipswich people had rung the peal of Maximus. Nobody would dream of saying or doing anything which would in any way detract from the brilliant performance of the Ipswich band; it was one of the finest things that had ever been done—all the finer because it was not Superlative in the sense that Cambridge Maximus was Cambridge Major on twelve bells. It was more difficult. What the Council had to do was to find a solution for the problem, a solution which would meet the legitimate wishes of the Ipswich band, which would square with the mathematical facts and do justice to the memory of Shipway and the band that rang the peal of Royal a hundred years ago. He thought the best way was to follow precedent, and, as in the case of Court Bob, give each variation a distinctive sub-title. They might call the method rung at Ipswich, 'Ipswich Superlative.' If they did that, they would have a distinct Superlative Royal and a distinct Superlative Maximus, which were more or less adaptations rather than extensions, entitled to the simple name of Superlative.

Mr. C. J. Sedgley, who rang in the peal at Ipswich, said the Maximus rung there was absolutely Superlative. The method had been discovered independently by several method builders, among them Mr. John Carter, who rang it on his ringing machine as far back as 1912, and called it Superlative Maximus. If this was not the correct extension, it was strange that so many men should produce the same method, working independently, and call it the same thing. Any practical ringer who knew Superlative, and was shown a diagram of Shipway's method and was told it was Superlative, would laugh at them. There was nothing like Superlative in the diagram.

EXPERTS DISAGREE.

Mr. C. T. Coles said, after the divergence of opinion expressed by the experts that day, he thought the Council ought also to declare its incompetence to deal with the matter. As a practical ringer, who had rung the method, he had no hesitation in saying that the method rung at Ipswich was a distinct extension from a practical point of view, and that was what ringers really wanted. A man with any experience on 12 bells, who could also ring Superlative Major, could learn this method very quickly. But their experts disagreed, and he did not see how 'laymen' could decide the matter. He therefore proposed that they pass a resolution to the effect that as the expert advisers of the Council disagreed on this matter, the Council was of opinion that no good purpose could be served by coming to a definite decision. He reminded the Council of what happened years ago when a certain peal was rung at Stepney. The Council came to a decision, but to all intents and purposes it was ignored. If they came to a decision that day, one side or the other would say, 'I don't care a rap; you are wrong' (laughter).

The Rev. F. Ll. Edwards seconded the amendment.

The Rev. H. L. James said if the Council would accept Mr. Trollope's suggestion as an amendment he would not mind. Whichever way the Council voted he (Mr. James) would stick to his own opinion that when a real peal of Superlative Maximus was rung the band would know it was the method. He did not want to say anything against what had been done, but if they wanted to make sure they had got the real thing, they should ring the other method. He had carefully abstained from any scientific explanation. He gave one at Newcastle, and he learned a lesson he had not forgotten. There he was not understood, and although he had listened to some of the speakers that afternoon and had followed them, he would guarantee the great majority of the Council did not do so.

The president put the amendment of Mr. Coles as follows: 'That as the expert advisers of the Council disagree, this meeting is of opinion that no good purpose can be served by coming to a definite decision on the subject.'

On being put, the amendment was declared carried by 62 votes to 7.

Canon Baker: Who are the expert advisers of the Council?

The President: Neither you nor I; that I do know (laughter).

A 'LEGAL' COMMITTEE.

Mr. J. A. Trollope proposed: 'That a committee be appointed to report to the Council on the legal relationship between (a) bells, (b) ringers, and (c) ringing respectively, on the one hand, and (d) the incumbent, (e) the churchwardens, and (f) the parochial councils respectively on the other hand, and any other legal matters affecting the Exercise. And, further, to consider the advisability of issuing a statement of these matters for the guidance of ringers and other persons affected.' Mr. Trollope said when the Enabling Act, which set up the Church Assembly and the Church Parochial Councils, was passed, they were told that organists and ringers were exempted from the jurisdiction of the Parochial Councils, but a point which he had never seen raised was whether they had any control over the bells. They might not be able to dismiss the ringers, but he did not know whether they could stop ringing. He had an instance at his own church. For a while, they had a slack time, and dropped practice. Then he was fortunate enough to get a number of boys, and they started practising again about twelve months ago. The tower was in the centre of the town, and there was a certain amount of opposition. A certain person was got to bring the matter before the Church Parochial Council, and they passed a resolution that, to meet the wishes of the residents, practice should not last more than half an hour. He was not sure what his position was, but he thought he should not have taken any notice of it. There might be similar things happen in other places, and he thought it would be advisable if the Council got to know definitely how ringers stood in legal matters of this kind. They were fortunate in having among the members two, at least, who were competent to express an opinion on the law, and he suggested, if the Council accepted the motion, that they should ask Alderman Pritchett and Mr. Milne, who were barristers, to serve.

Mr. A. A. Hughes seconded.

Mr. J. S. Pritchett said he thought a very useful little pamphlet might be compiled dealing with these matters. It was requisite that ringers should know where they stood with regard to incumbents and Parochial Councils, and to know, also, where they stood with regard to the public—and there was some law upon that subject. At present there was a good deal of doubt in the minds of the ringers as to who were their masters. There were two categories of ringers: those who were voluntary and those who were paid; and the law of contract came in in regard to what notice paid ringers were entitled to receive. Altogether, there was material for a very interesting little pamphlet. There were, however, two questions to consider before the resolution was carried: one was who was to compile the pamphlet, and the other who was to pay the cost. He was far too advanced in years and too busy to undertake the compilation, but he would undertake to revise it if someone would get the thing into shape. He suggested that Mr. Elwell should be asked to compile the pamphlet. It was certainly a desirable thing for the Council to undertake.

Replying to Mr. Mee, the President said the incumbent had sole control of anyone who went into the tower.

THE LATE MR. JOHN C. JAY.

As briefly recorded in our last issue, Mr. John Clark Jay, one of the earliest pioneers of change ringing in Sussex, passed away at Brighton on Saturday, June 25th, after a long illness.

The funeral took place on June 30th in the Brighton Borough Cemetery, preceded by a service, conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. H. Collinson), in St. Nicholas' Church, where deceased had for many years been an enthusiastic change ringer, and also held the post of secretary in the St. Nicholas' Society.

Mr. Jay was born at Streattham in 1866, and came to Brighton with his parents in 1871, his father being the late Mr. John Jay, a former steeplekeeper of St. Peter's, Brighton.

At that time change ringing in Brighton was practically unknown, and John Jay, sen., was not only the pioneer, but the chief instructor, and conducted the first peal rung by the Sussex County Association, in which his son, the subject of this memoir, also took part. Of the band of eight who rang in the first peal of Grandsire Triples by the association at Cuckfield, Sussex, in January, 1885, only two survive—Mr. C. Tyler, of Henfield, and Mr. George King, now in Canada.

As a young man, Mr. Jay enlisted in the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Sussex Regiment, in 1883, and served his country for some years in India. On his return to England in 1895, he took up again the art that he loved, and never relinquished it until his final illness. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter to mourn their loss.

The St. Nicholas' Society rang the bells half-muffled as the procession was leaving the church, and again in the evening, as a tribute of respect to his memory.

The peals known to have been rung by Mr. Jay since the formation of the Sussex County Association are as follow (of earlier peals in which he took part there is no definite record): Grandsire Triples 6, Grandsire Caters 13, Stedman Triples 11, Stedman Caters 15, Bob Royal 3, Kent Treble Bob Royal 9, Double Norwich Major 4, Superlative Surprise Major 1; total 62.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

AN ENCOURAGING FEATURE.

A successful quarterly meeting of the Sonning Deanery Branch, held at Twyford on Saturday, June 25th, was attended by members from Binfield, Finchampstead, Hurst, Waltham St. Lawrence, Wokingham (All Saints' and St. Paul's), and the local band, together with visitors from Reading, Chertsey, Henley-on-Thames, Taunton, London, and 'somewhere' in Hampshire. The bells were raised in peal about three o'clock, and, after ringing in various methods, a short service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. W. L. Cooper, who gave a telling and practical address based on the word of Genesis xliii. 5: 'Ye shall not see my face except your brother be with you.'

After service, tea was partaken of on the Vicarage lawn, about 40 sitting down. Despite the somewhat cold and threatening weather, an enjoyable time was spent; full justice being done to the good things provided. The Secretary, in a few words, apologised for the absence of the chairman, Canon G. F. Coleridge, and the Master and secretary of the Guild, who had other engagements and were not able to be present. He also expressed the thanks of the party to the Vicar for the use of the bells, for the service in church and his inspiring address, also to the organist and organ-blower for their services, and to those who had been responsible for providing such an excellent tea, viz., the Vicar's mother (Mrs. Cooper) and Mr. F. Dentry, the latter being churchwarden and foreman of the local ringers and late secretary of the branch.—The Vicar briefly replied.

The tower was again visited and the bells kept going until 2.30. The feature of the meeting was the presence of a large number of young ringers, and it was an encouraging sight to see them ringing their first touch of Stedman, first touch of Grandsire, first touch on the treble and first attempt at rounds away from their own tower—a good augury, surely, for the future of the Guild and ringing generally. The methods rung during the day were Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Bob Major.

NEWBURY BRANCH.

The summer meeting of the Newbury Branch was held at East Isley on Saturday, June 25th, when upwards of 50 members attended from Bucklebury, Beedon, Brightwalton, Shaw, Peasmore, Compton, Newbury, Yattendon, Hampstead Norris, Highclere, Woolton Hill, Swindon, Aldbourne, Stratford and the local ringers. Service was held at 4.30, conducted by the Rector, the Rev. A. Ogle, who also gave an interesting address. Miss Risien presided at the organ. Tea was served at the old schoolroom by Mrs. W. Hibbert, assisted by other ladies.

Mr. R. T. Hibbert (general secretary of the Guild) took the chair in the absence of the Rev. L. R. Majendie (chairman of the branch). Two new members were elected, and the next meeting was fixed for Brightwalton on September 3rd.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Rector, the organist, and the ladies for providing the tea, was proposed by Mr. H. W. Curtis (branch secretary) and carried with applause.

Some good touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Kent Treble Bob and Cambridge Surprise Major were rung during the afternoon and evening.

MIDLAND COUNTIES ASSOCIATION.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT EARL SHILTON.

The first quarterly meeting of the Midland Counties Association was held at Earl Shilton on Saturday, June 25th. The fine peal of eight bells at the Parish Church were kept going to various methods from 2.30 onwards, but owing to a school treat, Barwell bells (eight) could not be rung until after tea, when good use was made of them until nine o'clock. A large number of visitors arrived from Beeston, Belgrave, Cotgrave, Leicester, Nuneaton, Wigston, and many towers in the local district. The committee held a meeting in the schools. The business was purely formal, except that it was proposed to grant to Bottesford £5 5s. towards rehanging their bells. Applications from Kegworth and Kirkby Bellars were held over till the next meeting for further details to be obtained.

A short service was held in Earl Shilton Church, which was attended by a good number. Instead of the usual sermon, the Rector (the Rev. E. Pillifant) gave an address of welcome, which was much appreciated by all present. A collection was taken towards the bell repair fund.

Tea was served in the Roe Buck Hotel clubroom, but owing to nearly twice as many turning up as had sent in names, some confusion occurred, and a double sitting was rendered necessary. Some 50 members were present at the subsequent meeting, which was presided over by the Rector (Rev. Pillifant) in the absence of the worthy president (Ald. R. B. Chambers, B.A., J.P.), who was unable to be present owing to the indisposition of Mrs. Chambers. A letter of apology was also received from the Rev. R. L. B. Oliver, Vicar of Monk's Kirby. Minutes of the annual meeting were duly passed, and new members elected since that meeting confirmed, viz.: Honorary 6, life 1, ringing 28, and Dore Parochial Church Council affiliated.

Mr. W. Willson, delegate to the Central Council, gave a brief account of their proceedings, and, in respect to the suggested form of diploma or certificate for first peals, or notable performances, by individual ringers, it was decided that the M.C.A. supports this proposal when duly carried out.

INVESTMENT OF FUNDS.

The Hon. Treasurer (Mr. W. Willson) announced that the funds now in hand in the bank ought to be invested to yield more interest, and, after a lengthy discussion, it was proposed and carried unanimously that £150 be invested in 5 per cent. Government Stock, and also the War Loan now invested be added to this value when it matures next year. Trustees appointed for this purpose were Alderman R. B. Chambers and Mr. W. Willson.

Hearty votes of thanks to the Rector, and the local committee, for arrangements made, concluded a most successful meeting. But, not Uncle Joe 'Peppery or Justacus' (a most welcome figure at any ringers' gathering) will have the last word—one of wisdom, too! 'To-day,' he says, 'is an example of what all secretaries and those catering for teas have to contend with. Thirty send in names, fifty appear. Result: confusion and disappointments. Many of those who send not, get in first; those who send, wait. It is a difficult problem, but must be tackled, but how? Only let those who notify sit down, and the remainder wait or go without. Rather drastic, but sometimes unavoidable.'

Never mind, Uncle Joe. We had a real good meeting, and all were eventually satisfied. Handbell ringing to tunes and other methods brought the day to a conclusion, and, who dares say, the hon. secretary 'broke out' and overstayed his leave of absence from home, because he was thirsty and tried unaccustomed beverages!

A tragic occurrence—since become known—marred the proceedings. One of the esteemed committee, and member of St. Margaret's, Leicester, Mr. John Grant, while waiting for tea received an urgent telegram to return home immediately. Alas! on arrival he found his wife had passed away. She was apparently quite all right on his departure, but had sudden heart failure and died within ten minutes. On behalf of all M.C.A. members, the hon. secretary immediately wrote a message of deepest sympathy and condolence. Mr. Grant and his son both took part recently in the four fathers' and sons' peal at Belgrave.

THE IRISH ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Irish Association was held in Belfast on Whit Monday. Members of St. Thomas' Society kindly met the visitors at the station, and acted as their guides for the day. The following towers were open for ringing, and were made good use of:—Belfast (St. Thomas'), Bangor, Holywood, Carrickfergus, and Hillsborough, all of them rings of eight.

At 3 p.m., luncheon took place at the Cafe Royal, after which the business meeting was proceeded with, Rev. Canon Manning, M.C., M.A., Rector of Holywood, occupying the chair.

The following officers were elected:—President, Mr. N. Robinson (Belfast); hon. treasurer, Mr. W. E. Lynch; hon. secretary, Mr. G. Lindoff.

The sum of five pounds was voted from the funds towards the rehanging of St. George's (Dublin) bells.

Dublin was selected for next annual meeting.

NORFOLK GUILD.

A general meeting of the Norfolk Guild was held at Holy Trinity Church, Loddon, on Saturday, June 25th. The ring of eight bells were at the disposal of the members, and they were kept merrily going in various methods during the afternoon and evening. Tea was followed by the business meeting. The Vicar of Loddon (the Rev. R. Dixon) presided in the absence of the president (the Dean of Norwich), who was unavoidably prevented from being present. The chairman was supported by the following officers of the Guild: Messrs. A. L. Coleman (secretary), G. P. Burton, W. L. Duffield, R. J. Goate (district secretary for Lothingland), B. S. Thompson (district secretary for Norwich), and representatives from Loddon, Norwich, Beccles, Buxton, etc.

Business of a routine character having been disposed of, the Secretary moved the ratification of the belfry election of Miss Violet Beckett as a member of the Guild, and congratulated her on ringing her first peal (the method being Kent Treble Bob Major), and said that Miss Beckett is only 14 years of age and was the youngest member in the Guild. The Secretary also moved the election of Mr. William George Finch as a member. The Chairman, on putting the motion before the meeting declared them duly elected.

Mr. B. S. Thompson moved, and Mr. W. L. Duffield seconded, that the August Bank Holiday meeting be held at Swaffham on August 1st, and this was carried.

Mr. G. P. Burton moved a vote of thanks to the Vicar of Loddon for presiding, and for the use of the bells. The Vicar, in reply, said how pleased he was to have the meeting there, and hoped the Guild would come again to Loddon.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

The eighth annual invitation meeting of the Ashford District was held at Brabourne on Saturday, June 25th, through the kindness of the Vicar (Rev. S. K. Lockyear), when about 40 members and friends gathered. Ringing was opened by a touch, Mr. C. Stringsby ringing the treble at the age of 90 years. Service was conducted by the Vicar, accompanied by Dr. Lewis, who also gave a very appropriate address, taking as his text, 'Wee unto me if I preach not the Gospel' (the inscription from the bell, Great St. Paul).

Tea was served at the Vicarage, and much enjoyed by all in the peaceful spot under the hills. The Vicar presided at the business meeting, at which Biddenden was selected for the next meeting on August 13th, and three new members were elected.

Returning to the tower till 8.30, all present having enjoyed a real 'peace' meeting, votes of thanks were passed to all the ladies and the Vicar for having everything in readiness to make so successful a gathering.

DEATH OF A LEATHERHEAD RINGER.

It is with great regret that we have to record the death of Mr. William E. Otway, of Leatherhead, Surrey. After a long and painful illness, he passed away on May 31st, at the age of 51 years. He had been a member of the local band since 1891, having learned to ring under the late Mr. Stephen Brooker. He had not been a great peal ringer, but had rung about 40 peals of Grandsire Triples and Caters and Bob Major. He was a member of the Royal Cumberland Youths, the Surrey Association, the Winchester Guild, and St. Margaret's Society, Westminster.

The funeral took place on Saturday, June 4th. Before the service, the local ringers, with friends from Ashhead, Ewell and Beddington, rang short touches of Grandsire Triples with the bells deeply muffled. As the cortege left the church, a few rounds were rung, and after the committal rounds were rung double-handed on the handbells over the open grave. Afterwards, the whole 'pull and stand' was rung on the tower bells 51 times, followed by 557 Grandsire Caters by: W. Messam 1, A. H. Winch 2, J. Beams 3, C. Marriner 4, G. Cook 5, E. Hull 6, C. Smart 7, J. Hoyle 8, C. H. Kippin 9, and A. Dean 10.

Among the beautiful floral tributes were wreaths from the committee and members of Leatherhead Constitutional Club (of which deceased was a member), Leatherhead Parish Church ringers, chairman, officers and fellow committee men of Ashhead Friendly Society.

RINGERS WEDDED.

The wedding took place at St. Thomas' Church, Southborough, Kent, on Wednesday, June 22nd, of Mr. Alec Richardson and Miss Dorothy Wallis. Both are members of the band of St. Peter's Church, Tunbridge Wells, and well known in many towers in the district. Mr. Donald M. Findlay, also a well-known ringer, acted as best man. Wedding bells did not ring out, as St. Thomas' only boasts of two. Had there been a ring of eight, no doubt there would have been 'something doing.'

On the previous evening, the happy couple were presented by their fellow ringers with an oak striking clock. Mr. W. Latter (secretary, Tonbridge District), in making the presentation, said that it was the first time in the history of the tower that both bride and bridegroom had been ringers.

A peal to celebrate the event will shortly be attempted at St. Peter's.

This was rung in honour of the birth of a son and heir to Mr. and Mrs. 'Jack' Brown. It is interesting to note that the sturdy youngster is rich in ringing relations, for not only is his father the conductor of the local band, but his mother and three aunts (Miss Annie Brown and the Misses B. and D. Jorden) are also ringers at SS. Philip and Jacob's.

RINGER'S SILVER WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. William John Greedy, of Wiveliscombe, have celebrated their silver wedding, and in honour of the event the bells of the Parish Church were rung both in the early morning and in the evening. Mr. Greedy's connection with the belfry extends over 40 years, during which period he has been a most regular attendant and has never missed ringing the old year out and the new year in during that time. He has also rung at the jubilees of Queen Victoria, coronations, and prominent local events. As a boy he was a regular member of the choir. A hearty wish is extended to Mr. Greedy that he will long continue such devoted service to his church, and congratulations were showered upon him and his wife on the auspicious occasion.

THE LEGAL POSITION OF RINGERS.

The new committee appointed by the Central Council, and consisting of three legal luminaries, with the Recorder of Lincoln at their head, are likely to render a valuable service, not only to the Council and the Exercise, but to a wider circle of people interested in the concerns of the belfry. The terms of reference are wide enough to embrace all legal questions affecting ringers and bells, for the committee are asked to report on 'the legal relationship between (a) bells, (b) ringers, and (c) ringing respectively on the one hand, and (d) the incumbent, (e) the churchwardens and (f) the Parochial Councils respectively on the other hand, and any other legal matters affecting the Exercise.'

At the present time few if any ringers know exactly where they stand, even on the general question of holding office as ringers; while there are a great many matters, where the law touches them, about which they are totally ignorant. Paid ringers probably are affected by common law in regard to the questions of contract and insurance; ecclesiastical law, of course, enters closely into many phases of ringers' connection with the Church. The control of the bells is a case in point, where even many church authorities are not quite sure of their exact position, and on this and cognate subjects it will be of immense value to have definite information; where legal decisions have been given they will doubtless be specified, and where there have been no such decisions we shall, it is hoped, have 'counsels' opinion.' An important point, which we trust will also be dealt with, is that of the relationship between ringers, church authorities and the public in regard to bellringing: so that we may know what, exactly, is permissible under the law and where the public can step in legally to stop the bells. This has often been a serious point, and in future is not likely to be any less serious, especially in populous areas. It would be well if ringers and all concerned were made aware of their position.

The committee may be trusted to do their work thoroughly, and many members of the Exercise will probably be surprised later on to find to what extent ringers' interests are protected or controlled by the laws of the realm. The committee will have a great deal of work to do; and it is fortunate that there is among the members of the Council men with the necessary legal training and knowledge to undertake the task. We feel sure that the result of their labours will be the production of a report which will be invaluable not only to ringers and ringing organisations, but also to church authorities throughout the country.

LADIES' GUILD.CENTRAL DISTRICT'S ANNUAL MEETING.

On Saturday, July 2nd, the Central District of the Ladies' Guild held their annual meeting at St. George's, Gravesend. A strong muster set the bells going at 3 p.m. to various methods from Grandsire (for the benefit of a promising young recruit to the ranks of the Guild) to London Surprise. At 5 p.m., members and friends descended from the belfry for a short service, which was conducted by the Rector of Gravesend (Rev. Mitchell), who also addressed the Guild in a few well-chosen words.

An adjournment was then made to the Co-operative Cafe, where an excellent tea was awaiting the company, the Rector joining the party, and, before leaving, giving the Guild a cordial welcome to Gravesend. He said he considered it an honour that Gravesend should be selected for the meeting, when there were so many more famous places which proved so attractive.

The gentlemen left the ladies to carry on with their business and returned to the belfry to amuse themselves.

Miss E. Chapman was voted to the chair, and the secretary (Mrs. F. I. Hairs), in her report, hoped that all members would make a big effort to attend the practices and meetings, as it was essential to have their support if the district was to go ahead.

The officers were all re-elected, and Miss Elsie Beer was proposed a member of the Guild.

Ruislip and Pinner were the alternative proposals for the next annual meeting.

A hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar, the organist and to Mrs. Mitchell for so kindly making all arrangements, concluded the meeting.

Further ringing was indulged in, and then a hurried exit from Gravesend by the London contingent concluded a very successful and pleasant annual meeting.

BANBURY MEN IN GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

Banbury ringers and their friends held their annual outing on Tuesday, June 28th. A start was made from Banbury at 8.30, picking up Mr. L. Clifton at Great Tew and the brothers Judge at Chipping Norton. The first ringing was at Kingham, where touches of Stedman and Plain Bob were brought round. Cheltenham, the next stopping place, was reached at noon. At the Parish Church, touches of Stedman and Bob Major and rounds for the beginners on this lovely peal were much appreciated by all. A substantial lunch was served at Messrs. George's, Ltd., and afterwards the party left for Painswick, via Charton Kings, Birdlip and Downlane, the lovely scenery of the Cotswolds being thoroughly enjoyed. On arrival at Painswick, the historical bells were set going to Major and Grandsire Caters. A quarter-of-an-hour's run then brought the party to Stroud, where a course of Stedman Caters and a course of Bob Major were rung. After a meat tea, the party went on to the Parish Church, Cirencester, and Holy Trinity, Watermoor, where further ringing took place. Banbury was reached about eleven p.m., and the ringers wish to thank Mr. Pates, of Cheltenham, Mr. A. Wright, of Painswick, Mr. F. Lewis and the Cirencester ringers and all others who helped to make this outing the 'best ever.'

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting was held on July 2nd at Wells, where the Cathedral bells were rung before evensong, which took place in the Cathedral. The ringers were addressed by the Very Rev. Dean Armitage Robinson, a privilege which was highly appreciated.

Tea and the business meeting followed at Wickenden's Restaurant, where about 140 ringers were present, including visitors from Bristol, Wyke Regis, Westbury and Bratton (Wilts), fully 30 towers being represented.

The Master, the Rev. E. S. C. Lock, was in the chair, and announced that apologies for absence had been received from the Bishop of Bath and Wells, the Rev. J. H. Doorbar, the Rev. Prob. C. C. Parker, Messrs. T. G. Simmonds, A. E. Coles, E. E. Burgess and J. Hunt.

The Master read his report, which was accepted, the meeting standing in silence as a tribute to the memory of the late Mr. G. Chamberlain.

In his report for the year ending May 31st, the Master stated: I am glad to be able to report that our association has, during the past year, maintained its reputation for being one of the important departments of our Church life, and carrying out the object for which it was founded 28 years ago. Last year I reported a gain of three towers. This year it is pleasant to report a further net gain of nine towers, though that pleasure is somewhat modified by a loss of five towers. It is to be hoped that these towers will rejoin. We have now 154 towers as compared with 145 last year. The number of members is as follows: honorary life members 8, honorary members 76, performing members 1,281, non-resident ringing members 2, non-resident life members 202, unattached members 26; total, 1,595. Last year our numbers were 1,629, a loss of 35, which I hope will be made up during the year. The loss is due to the more strict observance to Rule 7, which provides 'that all members who have not paid their subscriptions by January 31st in the following year be considered to have left the association.' The true strength of any society is shown by the members keeping the rules. I shall look forward to the lapsed members rejoining the association. Fifty-nine peals have been rung during the year, as compared with 68 last year. Of these, 11 peals were rung by a visiting band. It is interesting to note that whilst Doubles still predominate, the number of ringers in the diocese who ring Surprise methods is on the increase, a sign of progress in the art. Twenty-two members have rung their first peal, and two new conductors have successfully called peals. Miss Williams, of Bath, is to be congratulated on calling Holt's Original peal of Grandsire Triples, a striking performance. Also the Bath members are to be congratulated on scoring their peal of Double Norwich. The list of peals is as follows: Esters, Stedman 2; Major, London Surprise 2, Bristol Surprise 1, Superlative Surprise 2, Cambridge Surprise 1, Double Norwich 3, Treble Bob 1, Plain Bob 2; Triples, Stedman 5, Grandsire 6; Minor, 3 methods 6, 2 methods 3, 1 method 5; Doubles, 2 Methods 1, 1 method 19; total 69. The balance sheets show that the financial position is satisfactory. You will see that our expenditure has exceeded our income by the small sum of 18s. 3d. That is owing to items which will not recur. We should be able this year to meet our expenses and to show a balance on the right side. I would again impress upon all the members the importance of paying their subscriptions by the appointed date, January 31st. If the towers would pay punctually, the local secretaries would be saved much trouble and be able to send to the association treasurer their balance sheet in good time. As it is, a good deal of extra work is thrown upon the latter. The association has sustained a great loss by the death of Mr. Gabriel Chamberlain, the local secretary of the Axbridge deanery. He was one of our most efficient local secretaries, as well as being a good ringer and a safe conductor. Under his guidance the Axbridge deanery became one of the strongest branches in the diocese. No matter how distant was the meeting from Burnham, Gabriel and his cycle were there. I had the privilege of representing the association when he was laid to rest in the Burnham Churchyard. A matter of some importance has been discussed during the past year by the committee and some branches, viz., the insurance of ringers. The hon. secretary has communicated with some 155 Parochial Church Councils in order to obtain their views on the subject. I hope some decision may be made at the annual meeting, when the members will have the views of the Councils laid before them. Other matters which have come before the committee, on which recommendations will be made, are (1) The placing a wreath annually on the war memorial in Bath Abbey, and (2) the appointment of a diocesan advisory expert on the augmentation of bells, etc.

The secretary and treasurer, Mr. J. T. Dyke, then presented the accounts, which were passed, on the proposition of Mr. W. J. Prescott, seconded by Mr. F. C. Rich.

The receipts shown in the general fund were £80 10s. 9d., and the expenses £81 9s., leaving a balance in hand of £79 0s. 3d., while the balance in the deposit account is £56 1s. The district receipts amounted to £81 2s. 6d., the expenditure to £19 15s. 4d., and £63 12s. 4d. was remitted to the general fund.

The elections of the following were then confirmed: Messrs. F. Pike (Bishop's Hull), Richard Manning (Norton Fitzwarren), Leslie Madocks, Charles Rooke (North Curry), S. H. Green (Southborough, Kent), James Rice, Misses Eva Sibley and Jessie Bailey (Ilminster). The following new members were also elected: Messrs. John Ford, John Furze, Arthur Ricketts (Chewton Mendip), A. Martin (Bath), G. Wesley (Winscombe), W. Edworthy (Bridgwater) and R. Jarvis (Up-hill). On the proposition of Mr. John Taylor, seconded by Mr. H. J. Trimm, the whole were elected en bloc.

The recommendations of the committee were confirmed, viz.: (1) The places for quarterly meetings to be Dulverton, Bridgwater, Chard; (2) the association to place a wreath annually on Armistice Day on the war memorial; (3) the association to appoint Mr. D. C. Taylor as advisory expert; (4) the association to give 'The Ringing World' a free advertisement in its report.

Much discussion then took place on the proposed insurance scheme, the Secretary reporting that to 156 circulars he had received only 33 replies. Eventually, it was decided again to circularise the Church Councils, urging them to insure their ringers under the scheme.

The election of officers then took place, the Master, hon. secretary, and hon. auditor (Mr. D. G. Taylor) being re-elected.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Very Rev. the Dean of Wells for his address.

Further discussion, introduced by Mr. W. J. Prescott, was carried on concerning the attendance of a delegate to the Central Council meeting, and it was decided to recommend to the committee that Mr. H. W. Brown, of Bath, be sent to the next meeting at Hereford.

The hon. secretary was then voted an honorarium, on the proposition of Mr. D. G. Taylor, supported by Mr. W. Prescott and seconded by Mr. W. Starr.

No further ringing at the Cathedral was possible owing to a function at the Palace, but Chewton Mendip and Ditchat bells were made good use of. Stedman and Grandsire Caters and Triples, Double Norwich and Superlative were rung during the day.

SOCIETY FOR THE ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD.

INCREASING MEMBERSHIP.

The annual meeting was held at Lichfield, on June 25th, and in spite of inclement weather there was a good muster of members and friends. The cathedral bells being available this year helped to account for the increase in attendance over that of last year.

After attending evensong at the cathedral, a move was made to Lloyd's Restaurant, where more than a hundred sat down to tea, including the president, the Venerable the Archdeacon of Stafford. At the general meeting which followed, the Archdeacon was unanimously voted to the chair. An apology was received from Mr. Ald. J. S. Pritchett, who regretted being unable to attend on account of important business elsewhere.

The report and balance sheet were read, and the Chairman moved the adoption of same, and complimented the society on its satisfactory financial position.

The committee, in their report, said: Since our last annual gathering meetings have been held at Pensnett, Darlaston and Bloxwich, but we regret that the attendance on these occasions has not been up to the average. This has doubtless been due to various causes, e.g., Pensnett is rather in a corner of the archdeaconry, and there was a heavy fall of snow on the day we met at Darlaston. At least, it was not due to declining membership. The sum of £22 17s. 6d. from subscriptions, which will be seen in the balance sheet, is decidedly above the average. We have also been pleased to welcome 22 new ringing members and eight new life members. We are grateful for being allowed the use of the cathedral bells this year, and feel we owe a debt of gratitude to our president, the Archdeacon of Stafford, for his efforts on our behalf, and we particularly appreciate his presence at our annual meeting.

In presenting the statement of accounts, we are pleased to be able to show a profit on the year of £2 8s. 11d., which brings the balance in hand to £34 6s. 7d.

During the year, 25 peals have been rung, made up as follows: Grandsire Triples 8, Grandsire Cinques 1, Stedman Triples 9, Bob Major 3, Kent Treble Bob Major 2, Cambridge Surprise Major 2; total, 25. We regret to record the loss through death of A. Grainger, Coseley; F. Bendall, All Saints', West Bromwich; and C. Dickens, Sutton Coldfield.

The officers were re-elected, with the exception of the Ringing Master, Mr. Robert Pickering being elected for the ensuing year in the place of Mr. Chris. Wallater, retired.

The following places were chosen for the coming meetings: Tamworth in September, Willenhall in January, Brewood in April, and Lichfield (the annual in June).

It was decided to delete the note at the foot of the rules which refers to that part of the archdeaconry now included in the diocese of Birmingham. Brief reports were given by the representatives of the Central Council meeting in London.

The only surviving original members of the society (of 44 years' standing), Messrs. Reuben Hall (West Bromwich) and J. Key (Lichfield), were unanimously elected free honorary members. Upwards of 20 new members were enrolled.

A hearty vote of thanks, moved by the clerical hon. secretary and treasurer, the Rev. C. H. Barker, L.Th., was accorded the Ven. Archdeacon for presiding.

The Chairman, in reply, invited the company to look over the cathedral. Those who took advantage of the invitation were amply repaid by the interesting description of that ancient building.

CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD. A VISIT TO ROSTHERNE.

A glorious day (after three weeks of almost continual rain) and a Chester Diocesan Guild meeting at the beautiful old church in the pretty village of Rostherne. This was the prospect which faced members of the Bowden and Stockport Branch on Saturday, July 2nd, and what better prospect could be desired? Although Rostherne is off the beaten track, and rather difficult of access, the members know that on a lovely summer's day it is well worth the journey, and the three miles' walk from the railway station. So they took their wives, children and sweethearts along with them to share their good fortune.

Arriving at the station soon after three o'clock, the party travelling together on this train set out on the country walk, and were soon within sound of the bells. For about half the distance they walked along the highway, which borders Earl Egerton's estate, Tatton Park, then along paths through fields of clover, wheat and potatoes, and through meadows, in some of which haymaking was in full swing. To poor townsfolk, this was delightful, and even the prospect of a pull before service did not make them hasten. It was nearly service time (4.30) when they arrived at the church, so that it had taken long enough to cover those three miles, although one said that the distance had been measured with a yard stick which was about sixty inches long. After greeting friends, including the general secretary of the Guild, Mr. E. W. Elwell, service was attended by fifty-three members and friends, and was very enjoyable. Instead of the usual sermon, the Vicar (Rev. T. A. Hanson) spoke of the outstanding events in the history of Rostherne Church, and indicated the points of interest to be seen both inside and outside the building.

Tea was served in the Egerton Hall, and although only thirty-eight had sent in their names for tea, there were sixty-two present. However, thanks to Mr. Davies (who said he expected it on such a nice day) and his colleagues, tables had been set for about seventy, so all had enough, and there was plenty to spare.

The usual business meeting followed, presided over by the Vicar. Five new members were elected, and a vote of condolence was passed with Mr. S. Fielding, of Stalybridge, who has recently lost his wife. Votes of thanks were heartily accorded to the Vicar, organist, choir boys, ringers, tea-servers, etc., and all who had helped to make the visit so enjoyable. This concluded the meeting, after which the members returned to the tower and rang touches ranging from Bob Minor to Cambridge Surprise.

The bells are a ring of six, with a tenor reputed to be 22½ cwt., but the writer thinks it would be found wanting a little to make the weight, if put on the 'balances.' They are 'heavy going,' but are very good considering they have not been touched since Messrs. Taylors overhauled them nearly fifty years ago.

The view from the well-tended churchyard over the famous Rostherne mere is said to be the loveliest view in the whole of Cheshire, and all who saw it on this beautiful day agreed not to dispute the claim. The mere is a fine stretch of water, covering many acres, and the woods stretch down to the water's edge. The visitors were reluctant to leave, but, remembering that three miles' walk back to the station, they eventually made a start. Again, as they journeyed along, the bells sent forth their sweet cadences over the woods and fields on the evening breezes, while the travellers gathered from the hedgerows briar roses and honeysuckle, a great bowlful of which was scenting the room as this record was penned of a perfect day spent at lovely Rostherne.

BY LAND AND SEA.

On Saturday, June 18th, Evercreech ringers, accompanied by the Vicar and friends, had their ninth annual outing. Although the weather was rather wet, it failed to damp the spirits of the party.

Evercreech was left by charabanc at 7.45, en route for Weston-super-Mare, when the party proceeded by boat to Ilfracombe, a halt having been called at Axbridge, where several six-scores of Grandsire Doubles were enjoyed. On reaching Ilfracombe, a hot lunch was thoroughly appreciated, and then the party visited the church, and touches of Triples and Doubles were rung. Returning again to Weston, where a high tea was enjoyed, the party were soon homeward bound. The sea trip was thoroughly enjoyed by all. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the captains of the towers at Axbridge and Ilfracombe for their hearty welcome, and to the captain of the Evercreech band for his untiring efforts in making such a success of these outings.

EALING EXCURSION.

On the occasion of the annual outing of the Christ Church (Ealing) band, a party of about 30, including ladies, visited South Bucks by charabanc, and spent a very enjoyable time. Ringing was done at Stoke Poges, Farnham Royal, Beaconsfield, Amersham and Chalfont St. Giles, in all of which places the local ringers and steeplekeepers showed great courtesy and hospitality. The young ringers of Ealing had the great honour of ringing at Farnham with Mr. J. J. Parker, so well known to the Exercise from his famous peal of Grandsire. An excellent tea was provided at Amersham. The Vicar of Christ Church (Prebendary W. T. King) hoped to have been one of the party, but at the last moment, to the regret of everyone, it was decided that his health and advanced years would not permit the strain.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Few ringers are able to ring a peal at their 'name' town—if it may be so described. Last week, however, Messrs. Frederick and Albert Crawley, of Crewe, took part in a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major at Crawley, Sussex.

Mr. W. H. Marsh, of Plymouth, the popular and respected chairman of the South-West Branch of the Devon Guild, had a slight seizure in the street after ringing for evening service on Sunday week, and had to be taken home in an ambulance car. It is hoped that with rest and quiet he will make a good recovery.

The opening peal on the twelve bells at St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, was rung on July 18th, 1798, when a band of College Youths rang 5,184 Grandsire Cinques.

Next Thursday is the anniversary of the 17,280 Kent Treble Bob rung in 10 hours at Over in 1923.

It does not take nearly four hours to ring a 5,000 on the pretty little ring of eight at Long Stanton, and the time of the peal rung there on July 2nd should have been printed as 2 hrs. 54 mins., and not 3 hrs. 54 mins.

The bells at Whitechurch, Salop, are a difficult lot to handle, for the tall tower sways a good deal. The peal of Double Norwich rung there on June 25th was the first in the method on the bells, and only the third peal of Major rung in the tower. The bells were cast by Rudhall in 1714.

The opening of the ten bells at St. Michael's Church, Bishop's Stortford, took place on July 20th, 1820, and the constable, John Sayer, received 5s. for keeping order in the churchyard. The first peal of Caters rung upon the bells was rung on September 2nd, 1820, by the Junior Society of College Youths, conducted by Henry Symondson, sen.

THE BELLS OF BARSTON.

'NOTHING TO CAUSE ALARM.'

The recent experience of a band who visited Barston for a peal, and passed through the various degrees of their 'Antient Order,' becoming, in turn, 'stay busters,' 'gudgeon benders,' and 'tower twisters,' led to correspondence in the 'Coventry Standard.' Mr. C. G. Bates, of Longford, Coventry, said the visitors 'found these old and interesting bells in very bad condition. After a few rounds on the bells the interior of the tower started to fall into the clock chamber, causing the ringers to feel uneasy. The tower is mostly composed of brick, also the other parts of the church. The inside of the church is kept very nice and clean; the belfry and bells, apparently, out of sight out of mind. Surely, there is someone in this parish who could be the means of restoring the tower and bells to their proper condition, and so make it that ringers could ring the bells in comfort. We could not ring a peal, but I do not think our visit has been in vain.'

The churchwardens (Messrs. William Green and John Findon) have replied as follows: 'It is very interesting to learn that they were ringers who visited the tower of Barston Church on June 18th. A tree is known by its fruit, and evidently ringers by the noise they make; it was thought by some inhabitants that some boys were taking a hand at bell ringing who must be quite embryo ringers. It is about eight years since these bells were rung in peal, and had they been cleaned and oiled they would no doubt have proved all that could be desired. There are no regular ringers here now. The Vicar holds that it is better for the bells to be silent than that the men who ring them should not remain for the service. The visitors must be possessed of a very vivid imagination about the tower falling. The inside was repaired and roof retiled two years ago. We have visited the clock room, and top of the tower, and find nothing to cause alarm, and think it would be well for visitors to be more careful of their statements in future.'

ELEVEN SURPRISE METHODS IN A 720.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I was very interested to note the record of this performance in your issue of the 8th inst., and Mr. J. W. Lake would help some of us to break new ground if he would kindly publish the figures. The most methods that we could find in the Surprise class, with the aid of Mr. Parker's extent, that would combine into one 720 were Beverley, Surfleet, Hexham, Berwick, Cambridge and Ringers—six in all. The Bourne company are to be congratulated.—Yours sincerely,

G. L. JOYCE.

SILVER WEDDINGS.

On Friday, July 8th, at Northowram, Halifax, as a silver wedding compliment to the Rev. G. Watkinson, M.A., 1,920 Kent Treble Bob Major in 1 hr. 10 mins.: William Ambler 1, F. Jagger 2, R. Noble 3, G. Bottomley 4, H. Chew 5, S. Jackson 6, J. Greenwood (conductor) 7, A. Jagger 8.

At Christ Church, Southgate, on Sunday, July 10th, for 10 a.m. service, to celebrate the silver wedding of the local captain, Mr. J. E. Miller, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes) in 46 mins.: G. Bester 1, A. G. Crane 2, A. R. Glasscock 3, J. E. Meller (conductor) 4, J. Armstrong 5, H. Miller 6, S. Wade 7, G. Plater 8. It is worthy of note that the ringers of 1st, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th were members of the local band at the time of the wedding.

A COMMITTEE OF LAWYERS.

Continuing the discussion on the appointment of a committee to report to the Council on the legal relationship between bells, ringers and ringing on the one hand, and the incumbent, churchwardens and Parochial Councils, Canon Baker said when the question of the appointment of organist and bell ringers was discussed in the Church Assembly, Lord Phillimore laid it down that if the Parochial Church Council should appoint the organist, nothing could restrain the incumbent from letting someone else play the organ, and the same principle applied equally to the ringers. The control of the bells was absolutely in the hands of the incumbent.

The Rev. F. Ll. Edwards said he had seen two different statements made in print. One, that the incumbent had sole control of the bells, and the other that the incumbent and churchwardens had to consent jointly to the ringing of the bells.

The Rev. E. S. Powell said in regard to the ringing for services, the churchwardens were associated with the incumbent, but that applied, he believed, to the tolling of one bell only. He knew it had been legally suggested as probably the case that the churchwardens were bound to appoint the sexton or sacristan for that duty. They could not employ Tom, Dick or Harry—they must employ the sexton or sacristan. He did not know that there had been any decision on the matter.

The Rev. F. Ll. Edwards: These are the kind of interesting points to put into this pamphlet.

The Hon. Secretary said there were one or two other points which affected them as ringers, and which could be embraced in the pamphlet. Who, for instance, was responsible if ringers met with a mischance in the belfry, and who was responsible if fire should break out, or, if a new peal of bells was installed and the ringing of them did some damage to the fabric?

Mr. F. A. Milne and Mr. E. W. Elwell having consented to assist in the matter,

The President said if the motion were carried, they could not do better than appoint these three legal gentlemen to go into the matter.

Mr. J. S. Pritchett: Will the cost of the printing come out of the funds of the Council?

The President: We can do that, because this will be a very valuable thing, but the lawyers will not get any fees (laughter). If such a committee is formed, it will be of very great use to the Exercise generally, and they will know where they stand. The law at present, the President added, was in such a state that no one knew exactly where they stood, and it would be well if they did know, although it might not be the same in a year's time.

The motion, on being put, was carried, and Mr. Pritchett, Mr. Milne and Mr. Elwell were appointed as a committee, the hon. secretary undertaking to give any necessary clerical assistance.

HEREFORD FOR THE NEXT MEETING.

The President said the next business was to fix the place of next meeting. The Standing Committee had considered the rota which they followed with regard to meetings, and were of opinion that they should go next year to some place in the West, or towards the West. They felt that Plymouth or Truro was too far west for the convenience of most of the members, and they came to the conclusion that Hereford should be the place. They knew that Bristol had claims, and that other places had claims, but Hereford was the recommendation of the Standing Committee.

Mr. W. A. Cave proposed that the Council meet at Bristol in 1928. It was 30 years since the Council visited Bristol, and great changes had taken place since then. In addition to that, the Gloucester and Bristol Association would then be celebrating its jubilee. It was founded in 1878, and at their annual meeting on the previous day they elected their old Master, the Rev. C. D. P. Davies, as Master specially for that occasion. He was the second Master of the association, about the second year after it was formed, and he was also Master during its 25th year. They could offer them plenty of bells at Bristol, for they had one ring of 12, four of 10, and nine of eight, and five of six, and if they wanted more than that there were peals of five as well. He hoped that under the circumstances the Council would visit Bristol next year, and he gave them a hearty invitation. They could go to Hereford when they wanted to go west again.

The Rev. C. D. P. Davies said he could assure the Council of a very warm welcome at Bristol. As an association, they would do their best to render the visit interesting and enjoyable in every possible way.

Canon Helmore suggested that Wells would be a suitable place.

Canon Baker asked if there was any precedent for revisiting a place they had already been to.

The President said there was no single case up to now where they had visited a provincial place a second time. It had been pointed out to them that that was really the first time they had met in London—their previous meetings having been in Westminster. The Standing Committee recommended Hereford for two reasons. The chief reason was that they had an invitation from there some few years ago and went elsewhere. Secondly, they had already visited Bristol, although it was 30 years ago. He agreed that Bristol was a most admirable centre for everybody.

The Rev. E. S. Powell said if Bristol was to be proposed in competition with Hereford—although it would be 30 years since last the Council was held at Bristol—he thought the Devon Guild might gently remind the Council that it was agreed to hold a meeting in Plymouth in 1915, but it was cancelled because of the war. Therefore, if there were any question of Bristol competing, Plymouth, which had ample accommodation, might venture to compete also.

On being put to the meeting, Hereford received 40 votes, Bristol 28 votes, and Plymouth nine votes, and Hereford was therefore declared the chosen place.

THANKS.

Mr. R. S. Story expressed the thanks of the members to the secretary for his kindness to them during the visit to London. Mr. Young had given up two of his days to them, and they had a most enjoyable time. They had the privilege of going through the Royal Observatory and having the Astronomer Royal as guide; they looked through St. Paul's Cathedral, and in making arrangements for these visits and their enjoyment in many ways, Mr. Young had done a great deal for them. He wished to express their hearty thanks to him (applause).

This was acknowledged by Mr. Young, and the President moved that the secretary convey their cordial thanks to the following gentlemen for their kindness: First of all, the Astronomer Royal for conducting personally a party over the Royal Observatory; secondly, the Lord Mayor, who came to address them and gave them the use of that room; and, lastly, to Archdeacon Holmes, who gave up a portion of a very busy morning to come to welcome them.

The motion was at once carried, and the meeting then terminated with a vote of thanks to the president.

THE MINOR METHODS COLLECTION.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I thank Mr. Dawson for his letter in this week's 'Ringing World'? The answer to his questions is a matter for the Methods Committee as a whole, but he may be assured that we shall endeavour to carry out the wishes of the Leytonstone band. It will be a great help to us if other six-bell bands will similarly give their views.—Yours faithfully,

J. ARMIGER TROLLOPE.

THE NOMENCLATURE REPORT.

To the Editor.

Sir,—It is pleasant to know that, at any rate, Mr. Trollope himself does not think that his actions at the Mansion House were unfair, but there can be no question of the unfairness of his letter in your issue of July 8th, for his statements about our report are all there for everyone to test, and they are all incorrect.

He says that 'the Nomenclature Committee may make wholesale alterations,' whereas we have never attempted to 'make' any alterations, wholesale or otherwise, at all. All we did was to make a series of suggestions and to offer them to the Council to select those which they wanted.

Even when he tries to praise us, he is in error. He says, 'at any rate, we had the courage of our convictions.' But, actually, we have never had any convictions; we were never allowed to get far enough for that.

It is curious that not a single person who has opposed our report seems to have read it. For one cannot suppose that any of these people are deliberately saying what they know to be incorrect. It may therefore be well to repeat what, as we have so often explained, were our actual intentions.

At Chester we produced, as a preliminary report, a survey of the ground to be covered, and with it a number of suggested alterations; and we asked that the Council should give us some indication whether they wanted us to carry on on those lines, wholly or in part. The question was postponed for a year. During that period several letters and articles appeared in your columns, but as all those which were in opposition were clearly under a misapprehension, we substituted for the report a series of resolutions, so arranged that any or all of them could be accepted or rejected, and in each case either as a whole or in part. We did not necessarily put these forward as our convictions, but merely as convenient forms of words on which the Council could vote and expeditiously express its opinion, and so give us a line on which we could act.

In order to prevent the Council expressing its opinion on these points, Mr. Trollope produced at Ipswich his famous 'amendment' (which, of course, was no amendment). At the Mansion House I said it was a wrecking amendment, and Mr. Trollope said that was what he intended it to be. Yet he now writes that there was no 'torpedoing' and no 'side-tracking'. Now these two contradictory statements cannot both be true. He can please himself which he keeps to, but it must be one or the other. He adds: 'It was a straightforward, fair fight, all above board.' If, by these words, Mr. Trollope means that there was nothing underhand or deceitful, of course he is correct; but I submit that a different meaning, and one which is incorrect, is the more obvious interpretation of his sentence.

He goes on to say: 'I do regret that it was not possible to receive their report, and by amendment remove objectionable features.' Why these crocodile tears, when it has been clear to everyone all along that the only thing which stopped the Council doing this, as we have asked them to do for three years in succession, was his own amendment? If he means what he says, why does he not at once give notice of moving that the report be considered seriatim at the next meeting of the Council?

Mr. Trollope says truly that 'anyone who brings up contentious matters . . . runs the risk of having his opinions rejected.' But that is just what Mr. Trollope has prevented the Council from doing. Both at Chester and at Ipswich we invited the Council to reject what they did not agree with on the matters which were contentious. At the Mansion House, Mr. Hervey Beams repeatedly and emphatically asked the Council either to reject or accept. But Mr. Trollope's supporters would have none of it; they practically shouted him down. The result is, the Council have definitely and absolutely decided one thing, and one thing only, viz., that they will not reject our report. On the face of it, it appears as if they also decided that they will not accept it, but, as everyone who opposed said (and as Mr. Trollope also writes), that there were parts of the report which they would have liked to have seen passed, this statement can only be true in a qualified sense. At any rate, our report still holds the field as the only document on the subject which has yet been published. What Mr. Trollope has succeeded in 'wrecking,' or 'torpedoing,' or 'side-tracking,' or (to use his latest choice) 'undoing,' is not our report, but the power of the Council to act in this matter. I pointed out the bearing his resolution would have on Mr. Law James' motion; and the amendment to that motion, which was ultimately carried, bore out my words.

By giving Mr. Trollope's committee power to alter the names it has already fixed, the Council has kept to the same line all through, which seems to be, 'Let anyone call any thing anything.' The only way, therefore, to be loyal to the decisions of the Council is not to interfere with names at all, but to let confusion greater grow. I do not say that the Council have deliberately taken up this position; but it is the position into which Mr. Trollope has jockeyed himself and the Council.

HERBERT DRAKE.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION. PLEASANT MEETING AT BRIGHTLING.

A quarterly meeting of the Eastern Division was held at Brightling on Saturday, June 25th, about 24 members attending from Battle, Burwash, Eastbourne, St. Saviour's, Heathfield, Salehurst, Waldron, Blacklands and Brightling. Good practice was had in methods ranging from Grandsire to Double Norwich Major. At the service, the Rector gave an interesting and appropriate address, and at the close conducted the members over the church, explaining all the interesting and historical features of the ancient edifice. The church possesses a type of barrel organ which is quite unique. It is understood that only very few of this particular make of instrument are now in existence. It may be added that the instrument is not so easily manipulated as the name implies.

Tea was provided in the Parish Recreation Room, through the kindness of the Rector, the Rev. E. A. Haviland, who presided, and also occupied the chair at the business meeting.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Salehurst.

Mr. W. D. Smith proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Rector for his address at the service, for the use of the bells, and also for the splendid tea which had been provided.—The Rector, in responding, stated how pleased he was to welcome the members of the association, and added that he wished that there had been more present, and remarked that the last meeting was held at Brightling in 1908, and hoped that 19 years would not elapse before the association paid Brightling another visit.

Ringing continued during the evening. The members of the St. Nicholas', Brighton, tower, who were having their annual outing, turned up at about 7 p.m. and joined in the ringing. All the members were delighted with the tone and go of the bells, which were rehung and retuned about a year ago by Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough.

PRESENTATION TO MR. GEORGE DENT.

On Wednesday, June 29th, the ringers of St. Mary Magdalene's, Harlow Common, with their wives and sweethearts, held their annual outing. Leaving at 7 a.m., Clare was reached at nine, and the bells there were kept going until 10.30, after which an inspection of the fine old church was made before proceeding to Long Melford, where the handy ring of eight were kept busy for another hour. After lunch at Sudbury, the ringers took the opportunity to present to Mr. G. Dent, who has captained the band for 21 years, a handsome gift in the form of a silver bell inkstand, suitably engraved, and expressed a wish that he would enjoy good health and conduct them through a good many more peals as in the past. Mr. Dent suitably responded, and a move was made to St. Stephen's Church, where another hour's ringing was enjoyed. From Sudbury, the party made for Lavenham, and kept the bells busy until 6.30, when a splendid tea was enjoyed. Leaving Lavenham at eight, they arrived home some time before midnight, after a glorious day. The methods rung during the trip included Boh Major, Oxford and Kent Major, Cambridge, Superlative and Norfolk Major and Stedman. The party wish to thank the ringers at the different churches who met them and had everything in readiness.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

VISIT TO HARROW WEALD.

A very pleasant meeting of the North and East District was held on Saturday last, at Harrow Weald, a six-bell tower, situated in very pretty country between Stanmore and Harrow, and was attended by some 36 members. Ringing commenced about 3.30, and several of the local band, who, under the able guidance of Mr. G. R. Goodship, have made considerable progress during the past twelve months, joined in touches of Bob Minor and Grandsire Doubles. Other methods rung included Stedman Doubles and Cambridge Surprise Minor.

Divine service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. C. S. Durham), who preached a very instructive sermon on 'The doctrine of intention.'

After a substantial tea had been disposed of, the business meeting was held. The Vicar, an honorary member of the association, gave the members present a hearty welcome. It was, he said, their first visit to Harrow Weald during his time there, and he was very glad to know that the attendance was considered a good one.

Six new members were elected.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr. C. T. Coles) gave an extensive report of the recent Central Council meeting, which was listened to very attentively. Each committee's report, and each resolution discussed, was dealt with, and special attention was drawn to the proposal to issue certificates for first peals, which is coming up for discussion next year.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Vicar for his address at the service, and for the welcome he had given to the ringers present, and to Mr. Goodship and friends for the excellent arrangements made. Both briefly replied.

Subsequently a touch of Stedman Triples was rung on handbells by Messrs. G. R. Pye, W. Pye, C. H. Kippin (conductor), and C. T. Coles.

The tower was again visited, and several touches rung, whilst a large number of members made their way to Stanmore, where Mr. G. A. Hughes had the bells ready, and rang touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob Major, and Superlative and Bristol Surprise.

SOUTH AND WEST DISTRICT.

A most enjoyable meeting was held at Sunbury on Saturday, June 18th. Mr. Fred Goodfellow, Deputy Ringing Master, got the bells going about 3.30, and there was good practice with Grandsire and in methods to Cambridge Surprise before tea, which was served in the Church Hall by Mrs. Warne. Mr. Goodfellow presided, supported by Messrs. F. Corke, W. Shepherd, W. Hewitt, Major J. H. B. Hesse, Messrs. J. A. Trollope, S. H. Godfrey, J. H. Hunnisett, etc. A party of 37 ringers and friends sat down, and during the meal the Vicar arrived to welcome the association to Sunbury, and likewise offered the association a permanent welcome to his church at any time they care to come.

Major Hesse thanked the Vicar on behalf of the association for his hearty welcome, and for allowing the use of the bells and Church Hall.

Several touches on handbells were rung by Messrs. Trollope, Shepherd, Diserens, Kippin and others.

Hearty thanks were accorded to the Deputy Ringing Master for presiding, the hostess, Mr. Warne (steeplekeeper), and others for their assistance. The tower was again visited, and Cambridge, Superlative and London Surprise were rung, as well as other methods to suit every member who attended. One and all agreed that a most enjoyable afternoon had been spent.

A most enjoyable meeting of the South and West District was held at Ruiship on Saturday afternoon, July 8th. Ringing started just after 3 p.m., and good practice was kept up till 5 p.m., when a short service was held, conducted by the Rev. Canon E. Cornwall Jones (Vicar). Miss E. Gladding presided at the organ. The service opened with a ringers' hymn, and the service was greatly appreciated.

A meeting was held in the ringing chamber with the Vicar present. A vote of thanks was accorded to him, to the organist, and to the steeplekeeper (Mr. Bunce), for their share of help in making the meeting a success.

Tea was served at Fabb's Restaurant, and 32 ringers and friends had an enjoyable time, with the Ringing Master at the head of table. Handbell ringing was indulged in by Miss Moss, Messrs. Fred Goodfellow, A. Wingrove and W. Gutteridge, and the tower was then again visited, and further ringing done. The methods practised during the meeting ranged from Grandsire to Superlative and Cambridge Surprise, and a great improvement in ringing was noticed with the local band, under the tuition of Mr. George Kilby.

MUFFLED BELLS.

On Monday, July 4th, at Market Weighton, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles, with bells half-muffled, as a last mark of respect to Mr. J. H. Kemp, a highly-respected churchman at Market Weighton, who was interred at St. Mary's, Beverley, on the same day: P. Thompson (first quarter-peal) 1, J. W. Kneeshaw (conductor) 2, A. Saltmer 3, W. Moor 4, G. Priestman 5, J. Moor 6.

EALING.—On Monday, June 27th, on handbells, 720 Bob Minor: Ernest Turner (first 720), 1-2, J. A. Trollope (conductor) 3-4, Wilfred Wilson (first 720 Minor) 5-6.

SCOTLAND FOR EVER! MEMOS OF A MEMORABLE RINGING TOUR.

[By W. H. F.]

Oh! where, tell me, where, does your Highland laddie dwell?
He dwelt in bonnie Scotland, where blooms the sweet bluebell.
And it's oh, in my heart I love my laddie well.

Anonymous.

This ringing tour—the first in Scotland—originated through a wish of Mr. W. Keeble, of Feering, to achieve a peal in each quarter of Great Britain, a wish not unknown to other members of the ringing craft, but after recovering from a long and trying illness he found it impossible to be away from his business. Having started in the work of 'organising' early in May, I did not like the idea of 'crying off,' especially as enough 'ayes' were received to complete a team, more than half of them never having handled a Highland Sally.

On Friday, June 24th, five members met at Euston terminus, London, for the 1.30 p.m. express to Edinburgh, via Crewe, Warrington and Carlisle, on the way picking up the 'faithful couple,' and at Princes Street we found the rest of our party awaiting our arrival with a bevy of bonnie local ringers ready to greet and welcome us. Tourist tickets made holes in our 'fivers,' but all were prepared to part with a few 'bawbees' to do full justice to such an important visit. With a team whose average age exceeded three score years, it was a case of 'now or never,' or, rather, before some of us take that longer journey with a free pass, as did our dear old comrade, Isaac Shade. The tedium of eight hours in one compartment was relieved by two ladies, who took a personal interest in our usual ringers' conversation, which included a reference to Uncle Joe Sykes and Canon Simpson's bell tuning. One of the ladies' luggage was labelled Miss Sykes, Windermere, and the other was addressing a postcard to Rev. Simpson, The Bell, Bexhill—interesting coincidences, showing what a small world we live in, although our party were creating a record in the mileage of one tour.

It was a jovial party that presented itself to the Clarendon Hotel (Host Willis, of Banbury), our headquarters for three days, and situated near the Cathedral, and the waiter was soon bearing reminders of a visit with Messrs. Barton and Sinkins of twenty-three years ago, especially of the only attempt at Glasgow Cathedral ever made and lost in two and a half hours. It was nice to see our friends, Messrs. Sampson, Ellis and Heathcote, fit and well, and to have Messrs. Goffon and Stratford from Monksheaton to help us out in the only ten-bell peal. Our supper was far better fare than 'cauld katie and cabbage.' With only one meal in the previous twelve hours, we were ready, and the hour of 'thistle-down' was deferred till midnight to allow of digestion.

Saturday morning everyone met at St. Mary's Cathedral at 10.30, with a heavy ring of ten bells (tenor 42 cwt.) waiting for us. The central tower required some negotiating via a stone stairway in the angle of the north transept and a length of open roof before the difficult belfry door could be reached. This spacious ringing room, equal to St. Paul's, London, was in perfect Sampsonian order, a veritable museum and art gallery combined, which would take a day to study and one issue of 'The Ringing World' to describe.

To members of the architectural profession it affords a gold mine of information upon bells and campaniles. Here you will find the original competitive designs submitted when this cathedral was first proposed in 1874, and those taking the prizes offered for the three best designs selected, premier honours being awarded to Sir Gilbert Scott. The two western towers, similar to Truro Cathedral, were spireless until about 20 years ago. To Londoners, especially interesting are the drawings of Bow Church and St. Bride's, Fleet Street, which may be seen drawn to a large scale, with plan of each floor. They make one wish that Sir Gilbert Scott had studied them before he left such a dangerous approach to the belfry of his own tower.

There are also to be found plaster full-size models of old Scottish church bells, with exact reproductions of their inscriptions—Perth tenor, one of the largest productions of a highland bell foundry, and from St. Giles' Cathedral, Edinburgh, a smaller bell dated 1452. The original of this latter is still in use there, and welcomed H.M. the King to the morning service on his present visit to Scotland. From the parapet of the tower, a view of views can be obtained. Objects of interest were pointed out for our members to visit on the morrow and Monday, such as the castle on its rugged eminence, the famous Princes Street, the Firth of Forth with its noble cantilever bridge, and the numerous distant mountains. I cannot say, however, that everyone visited all the places of interest to be found in this beautiful city. Usually the spare time on a ringing tour is spent in resting and refreshing.

Luncheon was served at the Clarendon at 3.30 p.m., with Mr. W. B. Sampson in the chair, and we, as guests of the St. Mary's Cathedral Society, were invited to display our English appetites. The Scotch packing of an aching void after seven hours' fast was closed with the 'Grace' by the chairman, who added a word of welcome to us on behalf of the change ringers of Edinburgh, and wishing us a successful and happy tour in Scotland. Referring to the Rev. Provost's kind consent for us to have the bells, he, the provost, only put one question to Mr. Sampson, 'Are you to be there?' The answer was, 'Yes,' and Mr. Sampson was there, still, as ever, looking hearty and still carrying on the work of the belfry that he began 50 years ago.

During the evening, a 'Scotch mist' put a damper on the city's brass band, which usually plays in the Princes Street Gardens that adjoin St. Cuthbert's Church, so their musical performances were rendered in the Usher Hall, a large and handsome building presented to the city by a member of the Usher family of brewers, who little thought at the time that some 2,000 people would join in the froth-blowers' anthem under its roof. 'The more we are together, the merrier we will be.'

Our attempt at St. Cuthbert's went well, the mist not damping us down. On the contrary, had the weather been fine we should certainly have been asked to stop, and we received congratulations from the home company. Of this belfry nothing but praise can be said: match-boarded walls, plenty of seats and clothes' pegs, toilet and washing convenience, and two electric lights on each of the four walls—a model room that some of our clergymen in England would do well to copy. Golf, the national game in the North, was shown by the number of people carrying clubs and wearing plus-fours, and the many shops showing golfing requisites. I believe the patron saint of golf is St. Andrew, yet St. Andrew's Church, Edinburgh, with the oldest ring of eight bells in Scotland (cast 1788, tenor 15 cwt.) are never rung.

Our first day in 'Auld Reekie' was a decided success. We 'holed out' in two, and I think St. Cuthbert should be the ringers' patron saint rather than St. Cecilia. This success was greatly helped by the courtesy of the local ringers of both parishes in thoroughly overhauling the ropes, oiling bearings and having the bells raised for the actual 'go.' It is a fact worth mentioning, that the visitors simply walked into the belfry of all three city towers, rang their peal, and walked out. They were saved the trouble of doing what a Herefordshire veteran once described to me as 'the donkey work.' So far as the team were concerned, it was 'conservation of energy.'

IRTHLINGBOROUGH RINGERS' EXCURSION.

On Saturday, June 18th, the Irlthingborough ringers, their wives, and friends to the number of 31, held their annual outing. A start was made about 6.30, and after calling at Finedon and Wellingborough for other friends, the party went on to Rugby, the first place of call, which was reached at 8.45, fifteen minutes ahead of schedule time. After having a brief look round the very fine church of St. Andrew, Mr. G. B. Fenton arrived, and gave a hearty welcome to the party. Touches in various methods were brought round. The church seems to be a combination of the ancient and modern, and is one of the very few churches in the country having two peals of ringing bells—the peal of eight in the comparatively modern tower and steeple, and five in the old tower, which are used for the daily services. It was also interesting to the visitors as members of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild from the fact that the present Bishop of Peterborough was recently appointed to the See from this church. Mr. Fenton paid a high tribute as to the good feeling between the Bishop and the ringers during the time he was at Rugby. After having refreshments, another move was made to Hinckley, and here they were met by Mr. W. Cope, secretary of the Hinckley District, who had kindly arranged for an excellent dinner at the Union Hotel. The five courses having been got through to the satisfaction of all, Mr. W. Perkins took the opportunity of proposing a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Cope, also to the host.—Mr. F. Barber, seconding, said they were indebted to all who had in any way helped to make the outing so successful.—Mr. Cope suitably replied. A quick move was then made to the church, where Mr. F. Cotton, one of the local band, was awaiting them, and the bells were soon raised and going to various methods, everyone being loud in their praises of this peal, which were rebung about two years ago. After an hour's ringing, the party went on to Nuneaton, 4½ miles distant, and here Mr. H. Argyle received them. This being a nice, handy eight, the visitors were soon busy again with various methods, including a well-struck course of Bristol Surprise, in which Mr. Douglas Argyle took part. A run of something over twenty miles brought the party to Daventry, and, after a raid on one or two restaurants for tea, the tower was visited with Mr. W. C. Moore, secretary of the Daventry Branch of the Guild, and a member of the local band. These bells were not strange to some of the party, but seem rather awkward from the fact that they are hung the opposite way round. In spite of this, they are a very good peal, and several touches were brought home, including a well-struck course of Superlative Surprise. The journey home was broken at Flore, where, at the Queen's Head, the remainder of the evening was spent in harmony, several touches and selections being given on the handbells, and some capital songs rendered by various members of the party, Mr. A. Perkins presiding at the piano. The methods rung during the day were: Stedman Triples, Double Norwich, Superlative, Cambridge, Bristol and London Surprise Major. Through 'The Ringing World' the members of the party beg to tender their warmest thanks to the incumbents of the various churches, also to Mr. J. B. Fenton, Mr. W. Cope, Mr. F. Cotton, Mr. H. Argyle and Mr. W. C. Moore for the very kind welcome extended to them, and for their help in making the outing so successful.

DIPLOMAS FOR YOUNG RINGERS.

The proposal brought before the Central Council to award diplomas to beginners upon ringing their first peal or first peal in a new method is one which should interest the rank and file of the Exercise. The Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn, who introduced it, has, as Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild, shown much concern in the difficult problem which faces all companies and associations in the matter of keeping up the supply of young ringers, a problem which is becoming more and more acute as the number of peals of bells increases and the counter-attractions to young people multiply. The suggestion which is put forward does not, of course, help to solve any of the initial difficulties, but it is in the nature of encouragement to those who have made a start on the campanological ladder, by offering a recognition of their efforts to improve their capabilities as change ringers. The question, so far as the Council is concerned, is left over for another year, so that it can be discussed at association meetings, and this ought to lead to the ventilation of some useful ideas, not only with regard to diplomas, but in other directions connected with the same subject.

There is among ringers a diversity of opinion as to whether anything would be gained by issuing these diplomas, for while one section holds that recognition of an achievement would be an incentive to effort, there are others who hold to the opinion that it is only the personal interest and enthusiasm of the young ringer that will lead to progress. Some of those who have already achieved success in the art, not infrequently in the face of difficulties and disappointments, say quite openly that beginners can only be made into proficient ringers if they pass through the same hard school, and that they need this testing process to prove their worth. Doubtless, speaking generally, the man who travels this road makes the better ringer, and it is such as these who become the backbone of the Exercise. At the same time we must not overlook the competing, and growingly competing, claims of sport and pleasure, which nowadays allure the youth of the towns and villages, and if some people look upon 'awards of merit' as a sop which should be below the dignity of the Exercise, where achievement should be its own reward, they should realise that those who come newly into the art do not view it through the same spectacles. Most of us know the joy we experienced when we received the coveted prize or certificate of distinction at school. It was in no way lessened by the previous knowledge that we had passed the examination. In the same way, there is to a ringer no pleasure as great as at the moment of achievement of his first peal, yet an official acknowledgment of his success would, in many cases at any rate, give added gratification. This is a question in which the associations would do well specially to consult their young ringers and to let them realise that their wishes would be furthered.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

The eighth annual meeting of the Southern District was held at Aldershot on Saturday, July 9th, when the Vicar, Rev. Hugh Le Fleming, gave the visitors a warm welcome. The Vicar conducted the service, and in his address expressed his appreciation of the work done by the ringers. Tea was enjoyed in the Parish Hall, and for this thanks are due to the Misses Fisher and Miss Denyer.

Mrs. Hazelden was in the chair for the business meeting, at which Miss Blencoe, of Reading, was elected a member.

Miss Mills was re-elected hon. secretary, and the committee was elected as follows: Mrs. Melville, Mrs. Whittingdon, Mrs. Hazelden and Miss Fisher.

Ringing was indulged in until 9 p.m.

A comprehensive vote of thanks to the chairman for presiding, the Bishop for the use of the bells, and to the local ringers for the splendid arrangements, concluded the meeting, after which the members went back to the tower for further ringing.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION. PRESTON BRANCH.

The annual meeting of the Preston Branch of the Lancashire Association was held at Croston on Saturday, July 9th. During the day, ringers were present from numerous branch towers, as well as the Wigan Branch. The attendance was probably affected by the inaccessibility of the tower from some parts of the district, and also to the hay-making season. Ringing was not up to the usual standard, as the bells are rung from the floor of the church, and the ropes have no guides for twenty or thirty feet. The methods rung or attempted ranged from Plain Bob Minor to Surprise Major.

Before adjourning to tea, the Clock Room was visited by most of those present to inspect the peal board recording a peal rung on the bells in 1827 (as reported recently in 'The Ringing World').

A pleasant surprise, however, to all present was to find another peal board in the room, which records a peal of Grandsire Tripples (sic) rung by the College Youths of Croston in the year 1821. It would be interesting to know whether they were members of the Ancient Society of College Youths. There is no mention of the composition rung on either of the boards.

Tea was partaken of at the Lord Nelson Inn, which is the residence of one of the local ringers. The meal was such a splendid one that, although some of those present can do a bit of 'course shifting,' they failed to shift all those on the table, and had to give up rather reluctantly.

After the tea, the ringers went to the vestry, where the Rev. B. C. Kiddell, the curate, acted as the chairman of the meeting, in the unavoidable absence of the Right Rev. Bishop of Whalley, who is an honorary life member of the association.

The Chairman, in welcoming the ringers to Croston, said how pleased he was to be with them. Although not much of a ringer himself, he had always been interested in bells, for he came from a place where there was a famous peal of bells (St. Peter Mancroft, Norwich), which he had listened to as a 'kiddie,' and up to the time of leaving Norwich some years ago.

The secretary then gave the following report of the year's working of the branch:—

Since our last annual meeting we have held nine branch meetings, as well as the annual social at Chorley. The meetings have been fairly well attended, the average attendance being about 29. The annual social was, as usual, a success. The number of branch peals is less than last year, but the methods rung were fairly numerous. The peals included one at Brownedge (Plain Bob Minor), the first on the bells, and undoubtedly one of the branch's greatest performances; Leyland St. James, Minor in four methods, rung muffled for the Armistice; Penwortham, one each of Kent and Oxford Treble Bob Major, the first on the newly-augmented peal; Chorley, one Spliced Treble Bob, and one Bob Major; Whittle-le-Woods, one peal of Stedman Triples, and one peal of Kent Treble Bob Major, rung by eight members of the Manchester Unity of Oddfellows, this being thought to be the first peal of Major by Oddfellows. There had also been two peals rung in honour of the enthronement of the first Bishop of Blackburn—one at Hoghton (Bob Major, first on the bells by a local company), and one of Minor in five methods at Brindle. Of those taking part in these peals, five rang their first peal, 14 their first in the methods, three their first as conductor, three were the first on the bells, and one was the first by a local band. The membership was about the same as last year. They had made and re-elected nine new members and one non-resident member, and had lost one life member through death (Mr. W. J. Moudsley, of Preston), and several members had lapsed through non-payment of subscriptions. Subscriptions had come in fairly well, those in arrears being chiefly attached to towers where they have not been able to hold meetings. The bell founders had been to three towers since the last branch meeting. At Penwortham, the peal of six had been augmented and made into a good light peal of eight. At St. Mary's, Chorley, the founders had made a bad-going peal into one of the best in the district, and at the first meeting ever held there the members were unanimous in the opinion that it was a grand piece of work. The bells of St. Mark's, Preston, have also been overhauled. Mr. E. R. Martin, the Ringing Master, had given two very interesting lectures on the theoretical side of change ringing, namely, on the 'In and out of course of change ringing.' On the whole, they could compare very favourably with most of the other branches of our association.

The report was accepted, and Mr. Sharples gave an account of the general committee meeting held at Kirkham. He mentioned Canon Elsee's impending visit to Rhodesia at the special request of the Bishop of Manchester.

The retiring secretary was re-elected and thanked for his services. Before the election of Ringing Master, Mr. E. R. Martin said he would like to propose that the office of Ringing Master be combined with that of member's committee man, and, after some discussion, Mr. Wm. Sharples was elected to the dual office. Mr. J. R. Taylor was nominated as vice-president of the association, and for the offices of ringing secretary and two auditors, the present retiring officers were nominated.

The place and date of next meeting was fixed for Higher Walton on August 20th. One new member was elected, viz., Mr. Thomas Heyes, of Eccleston.

ECCLESIASTICAL LAW AND RINGING.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—The following incident occurred some 20 months ago, and I have purposely allowed Time's healing touch to erase the irritation, while at the same time he preserves the interest.

During the 'outing' of a famous branch of a still more famous Guild, we arrived, as per programme and by the incumbent's permission, to conclude a thoroughly pleasant day's ringing at a certain church. The Vicar was away on his holidays, but had left word with the 'locum tenens' that we had permission to ring. This was forbidden, as, two funerals having been held that afternoon about 2.30, said 'tenens' considered it heartless for the bells to be rung, although we did not arrive till somewhere in the neighbourhood of six, in fact later, as it was towards the end of evensong and the local houses of refreshment had opened.

No amount of persuasion, cajoling, or sweet reasonableness by our own Vicar who accompanied us availed in the slightest, and we were forced to abandon the attempt, having been finally routed by an angry Dorcas. To a relative, himself a Vicar, I told our tale of woe. 'All I can say,' quoth he, 'is that "locum" did not know his "Parson's Hand Book." Let us see what it says about it,' and turning to page 187 he read out the following:

'Canon 6 Orders.—When any is passing out of this life, a bell shall be tolled and the minister shall not then slack to do his last duty. And after the party's death (if so it fall out) there shall be rung no more but one short peal and one other before the burial and one other after the burial.' So that the corpses between them were entitled to no less than six touches by law. However, the keenest ringer does not like to make himself too assertive on these occasions, but out of pure curiosity and for argument's sake only, had we been armed with this authority at the time and had we insisted, could we have been prosecuted for 'bawling'?

F. A. YORKE.

ELEVEN TOWERS IN A DAY.

On Saturday, June 25th, the St. Clement's company, Ipswich, had their annual outing. This took the form of a tour by saloon bus through East Suffolk and the Norfolk Borderland. A start was made from the church at eight o'clock for Mendlesham, where there is a heavy peal of five, tenor approximately 17 cwt. After all had had a pull, including the two young members aged 13 years and 14 years, for whom these bells proved too heavy to ring in changes, the next stop was down a long lane, which was found to lead to 'nowhere.' This caused some remarks about the guide, as all had to get out and help push the bus round owing to marshy land. As, however, it provided an opportunity for refreshments, he was forgiven, although it was suggested he did it on purpose. Arriving at Wetheringsett, a peal of five, greatly in need of bellhangers and tuners, was found. The bells are in a minor key, and not in tune at that, so the melody was not great, and everyone was glad to get away. The next stop was a six-bell tower at Thorndon. This parish is noted for its Reformatory. Whether the guide and driver knew anything or not, is hard to say, but they hurried past and again took the wrong turning. After a trip through Eye, the next stop was Brome, near Eye, where there is a nice little ring of five, tenor approximately 5 cwt. They are hung in a round and octagonal tower. The younger ringers were well pleased here, where Grandsire, Plain and St. Simon's Doubles were well rung. Next on to Oakley, another musical peal of five in minor key. A quick run to Hoxne, where dinner was served at the Swan Hotel. After dinner, a trip to the tower was made. Here are a peal of five, which were once six, but the tenor was taken away years ago, which fact did not improve their melody. Weybread was the next stop, where there is a peal of six by the Redenhall firm, Messrs. Moore, Holmes and Mackenzie (now extinct), and hung three above three in a round tower in iron frame with patent sliders controlled by chains and pendulums. A course of Cambridge Surprise was rung here. Fressingfield was next on the list. On this ring of eight Bob Major was rung, and rounds by the young members who had to have a helping hand to pull the bells off. The return was made by Cratfield and Heveningham, a pretty country in fine weather, but not in the conditions that existed at this time. On arrival at last at Peasenhall, a peal of six was found, where Ipswich Surprise was brought round. A short stay was the order, as tea was waiting at the next stop at Voxford. After a rest, the tower was visited, and the bells were soon going to Double Court and Ipswich Surprise. Some would have like to stay longer, but the guide declined to let them, as another tower was required before dark. Owing to some misunderstanding by the Vicar, he had granted permission for ringing in the adjoining parish, which also contained six bells, instead of his own church, he being Vicar of both. However, as it was necessary to pass the church, and the verges were there to meet them, they decided to get this tower instead. This was at Rendham. Then, after an hour and a half's ride through pouring rain, home was reached without anyone getting very wet, and all agreed it had been a most enjoyable outing. The total distance travelled was 80 miles, and with ringing at eleven towers it was not a bad day out.

RINGERS' OUTINGS. AMONG OXFORDSHIRE TOWERS.

The Leytonstone band usually make an extended excursion for their annual outing, and this year was their 25th trip. They left on Friday evening, July 8th, and made their headquarters at Witney, Oxon, where they were met by Mr. J. Monk and accommodated at the Central Cafe. The real programme started with early breakfast on Saturday, and before 9 a.m. they had enjoyed a motor-bus trip and had the bells of Northleigh going to Beverley Surprise, a good 720 being the result. An extent of Cambridge was also rung before proceeding to Stonesfield—a very appropriate name in view of the miles of stone walls which separate the fields instead of hedges. Here 720 Ipswich was rung, also 120 Grandsire arranged for the guide, Mr. Monk.

At Combe the visitors found a good peal of six by Taylor, recently relung with all the latest improvements. The Vicar kindly welcomed the party, and 720 of Coldstream and Southwell (Spliced) was brought round, after which 720 York was rung, regret being expressed that a longer stay was not possible. The party then returned to Witney to lunch. This over, a move was made to Southleigh, where on the light ring of eight Stedman, Double Norwich, and Cambridge Surprise Major was achieved. Next on to Eynsham, another light ring of six, where 720 Norwich was tapped off. The historical church of Stanton Harcourt was next visited. Here the Vicar met the party, and conducted them round, pointing out the various things of interest, too numerous to mention here. The tower possesses a fairly good ring of six, and is large enough to take double that number. Fortune did not smile on the ringers here, for London Surprise strictly silent was attempted, and after some splendid ringing was lost three leads from home. Wells was then essayed, but suffered the same fate. While some were ringing, others were being shown round the Pope's tower and the historical ovens. At Northmoor, ill-luck in ringing was still with the party, for Carlisle and London failed after some good ringing on the handy ring of six. The last place of call for Saturday was Standlake, where fortune's smile returned, and 720 of Beverley, Surfleet and Durham (Spliced) was rung in good style, and a 720 Cambridge followed. A pleasant half-hour was then spent with the local ringer with handbells, etc., before proceeding to headquarters and bed.

On Sunday permission had been granted to ring for the eight o'clock service at Leafield, and at 6.50 the bells were going to London Surprise, a good 720 being the result, followed by touches of York and Cambridge, and the Vicar congratulated the company on the good striking. After breakfast, a move was made to Bampton, where there is a fine ring of eight, with tenor 25 cwt. Stedman was rung, but Superlative and Cambridge failed after some good ringing. A drive through beautiful country, with 'King Sol' shining at his best, brought dinner time, after which a visit was paid to Ducklington, where on the light peal of six (tenor about 6 cwt.) and in a very small ringing room, 720 each of London and Cambridge were rung. Aston was next on the list, and here on a good ring of bells 720 each of Lincoln and Ipswich were brought round in good style. The last pull was at Witney, where Stedman, Cambridge and Double Norwich were rung for evening service.

The members wish to express their thanks to all the clergy for granting permission to ring, to the local ringers who met and welcomed them, to Host Carter of the Central Cafe, who attended to the 'inner man,' and the other requirements of the visitors, and to Mr. J. Monk, who made all arrangements and so helped to make the outing another great success.

CANTERBURY PILGRIMS.

The Maldon (Essex) ringers' annual outing took place on Saturday, June 25th. The ringers and friends, numbering 20, left Maldon at 7 a.m. by charabanc. After crossing to Gravesend at Tilbury ferry, a start was made for Sittingbourne, which was reached at 10.15. The ringers were very heartily welcomed by one of the local men at St. Michael's Church, and some touches were brought round on the beautiful peal of eight. After a most enjoyable hour, the company left for Canterbury, where some of the party spent a short but interesting time in St. Martin's Church, which well repays a visit, especially those interested in ancient history and architecture. Most of the remaining time was spent in the cathedral. To attempt to even shortly describe the architectural beauties of this cathedral would be impossible here. Suffice it to say that the magnificent beauty of the tall and stately nave, and rich splendour of the choir and chapels, to say nothing of its exterior, were found most enthralling by the party, whose pilgrimage was greatly assisted by the official guides of the cathedral, who explain all the interesting history of the place to visitors. Those of the party who stayed during the service were enchanted by the exquisite quality of the singing and the organ. After a brief look round the town, a substantial meal was partaken of in the Oddfellows' Hall. The company left Canterbury at 6 p.m., but wishing they could stop a week. Stanford-le-Hope was reached at 8.30, where some of the local band were awaiting them. A few touches of Oxford and Plain Bob Minor were brought round on this little six, the 'go' of which is excellent. Then the last lap of the journey was commenced. The party rolled into Maldon at 11 p.m., after a pilgrimage of 16 hours on the road (though not on foot). The weather in the morning and afternoon was absolutely glorious, though a little rain and wind were met with in the evening. The company wish very sincerely to thank those who so cordially welcomed them at the towers of Sittingbourne and Stanford-le-Hope, and the incumbents for granting permission to ring, who will also be written to and privately thanked. Thanks are also due to the ringer at Canterbury who so kindly arranged the tea. Welcomes and arrangements such as were met with on this occasion go far towards putting the right spirit into things, and to making an outing a perfect day's enjoyment.

CROYDON RINGERS' EXCURSION.

On Saturday, July 2nd, the ringers of St. Peter's Church, South Croydon, held their annual outing. They were accompanied by Mr. C. H. Kippin, of Beddington. Favoured by fine weather, the journey was made by charabanc to Shere, Surrey, via Banstead and Dorking. Shere was reached about 9.15 a.m., and the bells of St. James' Church were set going to Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Kent Treble Bob Major. Leave was taken of the tower about 10 a.m., and after a visit to the Silent Pool, the party reached Godalming about 11 a.m. The bells of SS. Peter and Paul's Church were raised, and it was found that the back bells were short of breath, and they also reduced the back-end ringers to the same condition. However, in spite of difficulties, Grandsire, Stedman and Kent were successfully brought round. Bob Major 'went west' owing to a careless tenor man letting the rope slip wheel. Godalming was left behind about noon, and after a delightful ride round the Devil's Punch Bowl at Hindhead, the party ran into Alton, Hants, where lunch was partaken of at the Market Hotel. Then the bells of St. Lawrence's Church were raised, and good use was made of this magnificent new ring from the Croydon Bell Foundry. The methods rung were Double Norwich and Kent Treble Major, Grandsire and Stedman Triples. Leaving Alton, a two hours' run through some beautiful country brought the party to Windsor. After tea, which was served at the Star and Garter Hotel, the party split up for a while. Some visited the castle and others went on the river. The journey home from Windsor was commenced at 8.30 p.m., and after a short halt at Kingston, Croydon was reached at 10.30 p.m., after a most enjoyable day. At each tower the party had a cordial reception from the representatives of the local ringers, to whom thanks are given.

A NORTH COUNTRY OUTING.

The ringers of St. Ignatius', Sunderland, accompanied by the Rev. G. D. John (curate), the churchwardens, and a few other friends, had their annual outing on Wednesday, June 22nd. They travelled by a very powerful and comfortable charabanc, manipulated by a driver who knew his business and soon gained everyone's confidence. The first stop was at Cramlington, and the six bells of St. Nicholas' Church were soon set going in Bob Minor and Kent. After thanking Mr. Simm for his kindness in having the bells ready, the party sped on to Morpeth for a ring at the watch tower.

The next stop was at Alnwick, where, after an excellent dinner at the White Swan, the visitors inspected the stately Castle, the home of the Duke of Northumberland, saw the bottle-neck dungeon, the State coach, used at the coronations, and many other interesting things. After seeing the old church (which, unfortunately, has only three bells) and the Dairy Gardens, the charabanc was again boarded, and the party sped up the steep banks on the Rothbury road, and were soon among the heather, 900 feet above sea level. Passing beautiful Craggside, they dropped down 600 feet inside of three miles, and arrived at Rothbury. The first business here was tea, which was substantial and well served. Tracks were then made for All Saints' Church, and the beautiful bells were kept going for an hour in Double Norwich and Stedman. As the company came out, the sexton gravely informed us that some time ago a peal was rung on the bells in three hours and sixty minutes? The time for the return journey now arrived, and the trusty chauffeur landed his charges safely in Sunderland, nearly 50 miles away, within two hours, after a very happy and enjoyable outing which will long be remembered.

VISIT TO SUSSEX.

On Saturday, June 18th, Milton (Kent) ringers and friends had their annual outing, when they visited Eastbourne. Leaving Gravesend by charabanc just after eight, a ride through Kent by way of Wrotham and Tonbridge brought them to Mayfield, Sussex, when the first halt was called and a ring on the bells at St. Dunstan's was enjoyed. After a stay of nearly an hour, the party were on the road again, and landed at Eastbourne in time to partake of an excellent dinner at the Leaf Hall Hotel. The ringers afterwards visited St. Saviour's Church, and, judging by the quality of the bells, it was a pity the ringers were not stronger in quality and number, but the sea seemed to have a greater attraction, so the ringing suffered in consequence. A start on the homeward journey was made at 3.30, by way of Pevensey and Battle Abbey to Salehurst, where another stop was made to have a ring at the Church of St. Mary. Lamberhurst, the chosen place for tea, was reached at six o'clock, and mine host at the Chequers catered well for the party's needs. The weather up till now had been fine, but rain—much needed, it was said—then began to fall. In spite of this, a visit was paid to the church, and a pull on the bells till eight o'clock finished the ringing for the day. Gravesend was reached in a pouring rain at 10.30. All expressed their delight at the arrangements and the pleasure of the outing. The party would like to thank the incumbents and secretaries of the towers visited for their kindness in allowing them to ring and for the arrangements. During the day, touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Kent Major, and London, Cambridge and Kent Minor were rung on the various bells.

IN LEAFY BUCKS.

The ringers of St. Barnabas', Linslade, and All Saints', Leighton Buzzard, united for their annual outing on Saturday, July 2nd, and were very lucky to enjoy fine weather. Starting just before 10 a.m., the party proceeded by charabanc through Aylesbury, Risborough, Wycombe and Great Marlow. In the woods just beyond Marlow a stop was made for lunch. Maidenhead was reached at 12.15 p.m. At Boyne Hill the ringers were welcomed by the Rev. W. S. Mahony, who was Vicar of Linslade previous to his appointment to Boyne Hill, and by the foreman, whom they wish to thank for the welcome given and for the use of the bells. An hour's ringing produced touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples, Bob Major and 'rounds' for the beginners. From Maidenhead the journey was continued through Windsor and Slough, and the party reached Beaconsfield about 4 p.m. After disposing of an excellent tea, the tower was visited, the ringers being welcomed by Miss P. Moss, and some of the local ringers, and, later, by the Vicar. Touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples and Double Norwich and Kent Treble Bob Major were rung. Thanks are also due to the Vicar for the use of the bells and to the local ringers for the welcome given. The return was made via Amersham and Chesham, where an hour's halt was made, and the party reached home at 11 p.m. after a very enjoyable day's outing.

BELLRINGERS VISIT FAVERSHAM.

Bell ringers representing Gravesend, Northfleet and Milton Parah Churches paid their annual visit to Faversham on Sunday, July 10th. Leaving Gravesend at 8.15 a.m., they arrived at their destination at 9.40 a.m. The Faversham ringers very kindly gave up their tower to the visitors, and a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was well rung in 45 mins. by: J. Avis 1, G. Ambrose 2, J. Carrott 3, R. Smith 4, W. Beer 5, G. Morrad 6, E. Beer (conductor) 7, E. Hadlow 8.

A visit was then paid to Mrs. T. Ralph's, where a light lunch was much appreciated, and, in wishing the hostess many happy returns of her birthday, it was said that it was probably a record, where bell ringers travelled 27 miles annually to ring the bells to commemorate a lady's birthday.

Mrs. Ralph, in returning thanks for the compliment, hoped to see them all again next year. She also said how pleased she would be to see the ladies, especially a band of lady bell ringers.

LANCS RINGERS' PICNIC.

On Whit Tuesday the ringers of St. James', Churchkirk, Lancs, had their annual outing. Travelling by motor saloon, they left Church at 7.45 a.m., and bowled merrily along until they arrived at Norbury, of Spliced Minor fame. Plain and Kent Treble Bob were rung here, and then the party went on to Macclesfield, where they arrived just in time to ring for service at 11.30 on this lovely peal of twelve bells by Taylor and Co. After exploring the historic church and town, they started the big climb to the Three-Shire-heads, halting at the Cat and Fiddle, 1,700ft. above sea level, where cameras and 'glasses' were busy. Descending into Buxton, all did justice to the splendid dinner awaiting them, after which they rang touches of Minor on the pretty but noisy peal of six at Fairfield. Leaving Buxton at 5 p.m., they arrived at New Mills for tea, and then visited the Parish Church for the final pull. The homeward run was completed at 11.30 p.m., after a splendid day.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Not many peals of Dublin Surprise have been rung, but the first in the method to the credit of the Sussex Association was accomplished on Saturday, at Crawley, by a band, none of whom had struck a blow in the method before pulling off in the peal.

The G.W.R. and L.M. and S.R. will grant return tickets for single fare to Oxford from any station in the diocese, on Saturday next, to all applicants who wish to attend the annual festival.

A useful suggestion to incumbents who dislike long spells of ringing is the action taken by the Vicar of Christchurch, Hants, where a peal of Stedman Caters was rung on Saturday. He notified in his parish magazine that the attempt would be made, and asked any parishioners who objected to a long peal on this date kindly to go out to tea!

Provincial visitors to London generally look forward to a hectic time, and if they make their preparations in the right way they can get it. We hope the King's Norton ringers, who were in London on Saturday, enjoyed themselves.

A 'James' peal of Grandsire Triples by the St. James' Society at St. James' Church, Clerkenwell, was rung on July 25th, 1889.

On July 26th, 1832, a peal of 6,000 Double Oxford Bob was conducted by Samuel Thurston at St. Giles', Norwich.

The first peal in Ireland was rung at Waterford Cathedral on July 27th, 1872. It was a peal of Grandsire Triples.

The peal rung at Thurcaston on July 4th was in honour of the wedding of Mr. John Oldham, of Loughborough, and to him and his wife the band offer their congratulations.

The bells of St. Michael's Church, Cornhill, London, are rung for service at 5.30 p.m. on the third Sunday of each month.

The Lord Bishop of Southwell, cousin of the late Sir A. P. Heywood, has promised to attend the next annual dinner of the Sherwood Youths.

Mr. R. Congreve Pridgeon, a member of St. Mary Abbot's Guild, Kensington, finished very close to the winner of the King's Prize on Saturday at Bisley. He was third, and only two points behind the gold medallist.

THE NOMENCLATURE CONFUSION.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—In the current issue of 'The Ringing World' the Rev. H. Drake, I take it on behalf of the Nomenclature Committee, makes the following statement: 'All we did was to make a series of suggestions and to offer them to the Council to select those which they wanted.' With your permission, I would like to give your readers my views of the whole matter. In 1923-24 the Analysis Committee named the Minor methods and renamed some that had had a respectable name for years. This caused a lot of feeling in the Exorcise, and several associations sent delegates to the 1924 London meeting with protests. Resulting from those protests the Nomenclature Committee was elected, and those who elected them, myself among the number, hoped for better names to some of the Minor methods. At the 1925 Chester meeting nothing was done. The meeting in 1926 at Ipswich was none too well attended, owing to the strike. The committee brought forward thirteen resolutions. Mr. Burton, their convener, read the whole of them straight off, and asked the Council to give a plain 'Yes' or 'No' to his committee's proposals, which he moved on their behalf. Here, Sir, lies the signal for the dissolution of this committee. Had this committee used a little more diplomacy, they would have carried some of their resolutions, but to ask the Council to swallow resolutions such as altering Double Norwich Court Bob Major, the first peal of which was rung 156 years ago, was expecting too much. This committee had a splendid chance to make history, provided they stuck to the task for which they were elected. I daresay some will ask, 'What would you have done?' Not moved 13 resolutions at once, as was done at Ipswich, but clause by clause. If this had been done, it would have been successful, would have justified their election, and given satisfaction to those associations that wanted suitable names to the Minor methods. My statement as to what happened at Ipswich is borne out by the official minutes. I beg to say the Council never had the opportunity to select any one suggestion made by the Nomenclature Committee.—Yours faithfully,

Taunton.

WARWICKSHIRE GUILD.

The quarterly meeting was held at St. Andrew's, Rugby, on Saturday last. After about an hour's ringing, the Guild's service was conducted by the Archdeacon of Coventry (the Ven. E. W. Hunkin), assisted by the Rev. R. L. B. Oliver, Vicar of Monk's Kirby. It was the first time the Guild has visited Rugby since the induction of the new Rector, and he cordially welcomed them in his address.

After tea, the general meeting was held, the Rector being in the chair. Ten new members were elected, and the places for the next three months' meetings were chosen as follow: Brinklow, Coleshill, and Bedworth.

The Rev. R. L. B. Oliver proposed a vote of thanks to the Rector for presiding, and also for the use of the bells.—Mr. A. Wilkerson seconded. The Rector suitably replied.

Ringing during the day included touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Cambridge, Bristol and London Surprise. About 30 members attended, and a successful meeting was brought to a close at 8 p.m.

DEATH OF MR. PRYCE TAYLOR. TRAGIC END OF VISIT TO AMERICA.

Ringers throughout the country will be shocked to hear of the death of Mr. Pryce Taylor, of Loughborough, who has succumbed, after quite a short illness, in Canada, while on a business trip to the American continent. Mr. Taylor, accompanied by his wife, went to the United States in April to attend the opening of a large carillon which his firm had made for Germantown, Philadelphia. Since that time he had visited a number of cities, and recently arrived at Toronto. Here, on Sunday of last week, he was taken suddenly ill, and removed to the Wellesley Hospital, where peritonitis was diagnosed, and an immediate operation was deemed necessary. This was performed, and, though the best was hoped for, the case was apparently hopeless from the first. He passed away on Friday.

Needless to say the news, which was cabled, came as a terrible blow to the family in England, and to them, and particularly to the young widow, the deepest sympathy of the Exercise will go out.

The third son of the late Mr. John W. Taylor, who died in 1919, Mr. Pryce Taylor was 36 years of age. He was educated at Shaftesbury College, under his uncle, Mr. Pryce Thomas Taylor, who was headmaster there for many years. He was then, for a while, with the Becton Humber Company, before entering the famous bell foundry firm at Loughborough, to join his uncle, Mr. E. Denison Taylor, in the business.

With his three brothers, Mr. Pryce Taylor served in the Army during the war, which brought tragedy to the family. The three—John William, Gerard Bardsley, and Arnold Broadley—were killed, and Pryce was wounded.

Mr. Pryce Taylor was a keen sportsman, being a well-known Midland hockey player, and had represented his county on several occasions. He was also a tennis enthusiast and a member of the Longcliffe Golf Club. He was an ardent cricketer and a member of the Leicestershire County Cricket Club. Throughout the Loughborough and Leicester districts he will be mourned by a large circle of friends.

It is, however, from his connection with church bells that he was most widely known, for his work in the business at Loughborough took him to every part of the country. His youthful spirits and his genial nature won him hosts of friends wherever he went, and he was always a welcome visitor at any ringers' function. He took an active interest in ringing, as well as an important part in the concerns of the great foundry, and in this way closely followed in the steps of his lamented father. He was a member of the Loughborough Parish Church band and a ringer of considerable ability. He served the Midland Counties Association as representative on the Central Council, and was a member of the Standing Committee of that body. He was also a member of many other associations and Guilds throughout the country.

This visit to America was the second he had paid, and it had been most successful, for Mr. Taylor had taken orders for two new carillons, as well as other work.

We understand that arrangements are being made to bring the remains back to England for burial.

At Belgrave, Leicester, on Sunday, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was arranged and rung with the bells muffled as a token of respect to the memory of Mr. Taylor, the ringers, all of whom were members of the M.C.A., being: L. G. Pratt 1, Miss Mary L. Cufflin 2, H. W. Martin 3, A. Disney 4, J. Pole 5, K. R. Elliott 6, R. Barrow (conductor) 7, J. A. Bishop 8.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION. AXBRIDGE DEANERY'S NEW SECRETARY.

A special meeting of the members of the Axbridge-Deanery was held at Cheddar on Saturday, July 8th, when there was a good number present from all parts of the district. Ringing was carried on from 3 to 5, Grandsire Triples and Doubles, also Stedman and Bob Major being rung. A short service at the Parish Church was conducted by the Rector, whose address was specially appropriate to the occasion. Tea followed at Lewis' Valley Restaurant, and at the business meeting afterwards Rev. E. S. Lock (Master of the association) alluded to the great loss which the association had sustained by the death of Mr. Gabriel Chamberlain, the local secretary of the Axbridge Deanery. He was one of the most efficient secretaries, as well as being an enthusiastic ringer and conductor, and he would be greatly missed by the members of that association.

As a mark of respect to the deceased gentleman, the members stood in silence for a minute or so.

One of the items on the agenda was the election of a secretary in place of the late Mr. Chamberlain. It was resolved that Mr. Leonard Tanner fill the vacancy, that gentleman stating he would be pleased to accept the position, and promising to do his best in the interests of the association.

Mr. Alec Evans (Burnham) was next appointed Ringing Master, the assembly enthusiastically receiving his promise to act in that capacity.

The Rector, at the close of the meeting, said he was pleased to see members, and kindly invited them to inspect his grounds and gardens. Later, more ringing was indulged in until about 8.30 p.m., whilst some of the party strolled up the wonderful Cheddar Gorge and admired its glories.

ANOTHER PEAL OF EIGHT IN OXFORD.

ST. GILES' BELLS AUGMENTED.

Following quickly upon the augmentation of St. Ebbe's little peal to eight bells, Oxford has gained another octave by the addition of two trebles to the ring at St. Giles' Church. The new bells were cast at the Whitechapel Foundry, and the bell hanging has been most successfully carried out by Mr. R. White, of Appleton. The tenor has had the canons removed.

The dedication ceremony was performed by the Vicar (Rev. C. C. Inge) at the evening service on Sunday week, when special Psalms were sung, and the preacher was Canon Nolloth.

Canon Nolloth took as his text Psalm 150, verse 5, and said that for more than 700 years the music of the bells had resounded from the ancient tower of St. Giles', and it was interesting to know that the five bells cast or recast in 1850 were founded by the Loughborough firm which at that time had a small foundry in the parish of St. Ebbe. There was no need for him to dwell on the great advantage of having a complete peal, and no doubt the ringers would find it a great help in practising their art. In Holy Writ there were many allusions to bells, while literature and poetry were also full of allusions to them, for they were associated with all the events of human life. During the last 30 years a remarkable revolution had come about in the founding of bells, and they were now being made better than they had ever been made in the past. Their deepest message was that they called people to the service of Jehovah, and one often asked whether the summons was obeyed as frequently as it used to be. Referring to the ringers in general, the preacher said they now had a higher sense of the solemnity of divine usage of their art—and who, after the clergy, could be more glad to see a large congregation than the ringers who had helped to call them together?

The opening touch after the service of dedication was a course of Grandsire Triples, the ringers being as follows: W. Blake 1, E. Exon 2, W. Brigham 3, J. R. Chaundy 4, F. Exon 5, V. Bennett 6, W. Stone 7, A. Dumber 8. After the ordinary service over 40 ringers visited the belfry, and several touches of Grandsire, Stedman and Major were rung. The approximate weights of the bells, and the inscriptions upon them, are as follow:—

2nd.—5 cwt., Te Deum Laudamus, 1927.

3rd.—5½ cwt., Gloria in Excelsis.

4th.—6 cwt., Benedictus qui veni in nomine Domini.

5th.—7 cwt., Magnificat anima mea Dominum ait Maria.

6th.—8½ cwt., Sonitus Aegidii condescend culmina Coeli.

7th.—10½ cwt., Sum Rosa pulsati Mundi Katerina vocata.

Tenor.—14 cwt., Feare God, honor the Kyng, 1632.

A BELL FUND FETE.

Ringers in Yorkshire and the North and East Midlands in search of a real 'bank holiday' should visit Sutton-on-Trent on August 1st, when there is to be a gala and sports in aid of the bells restoration fund. Details of the arrangements will be found in our notice column, but our readers will be interested to learn that by means of similar fetes since 1922 the sum of £650 has been raised for the fund. It is hoped this year to raise £150 and clear off the remainder of the debt.

Sutton bells are a splendid ring of six, and the frame is built for two more. If the efforts of past years are continued a little longer the additional bells should soon be forthcoming. There is an excellent band of ringers, including two ladies, who can ring a dozen six-bell methods, including Cambridge Surprise, and they are all enthusiastic workers for the church in many ways. They would be greatly encouraged if ringing friends rolled up in hundreds to the fete and to sample the village bells, which will be available all day.

TOTTENHAM.—At All Hallows', on Saturday, July 16th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples: C. A. Button 1, H. A. Barnett 2, A. Cutler 3, W. Dickinson 4, H. W. H. Strickland 5, J. Thomas (conductor) 6. E. A. Hull 7, H. Ellis 8.—On Sunday, July 17th, for evensong, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples: H. W. H. Strickland 1, H. A. Barnett 2, J. Thomas (conductor) 3, S. W. Crabb 4, C. A. Button 5, A. Cutler 6, E. A. Hull 7, H. Ellis 8.

LONGBRIDGE DEVERMILL, WILTS.—At SS. Peter and Paul's Church, on July 13th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles: *E. C. Marlow 1, *E. Kill 2, F. Precey (conductor) 3, A. Smith 4, *E. F. Marlow 5, E. F. White 6. * First quarter of Doubles.

THE TOUR IN SCOTLAND.

By W. H. F.

'O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see ourselves as others see us!
It wad frae mony a blunder free us,

Burns.

On Sunday, at Edinburgh, the tourists divided, and yet they were united—with our Scotch friends, making up 'sides' for the two towers and ringing for service both morning and evening. Several Southerners were astonished at the impressive and solemn ceremony within the church, carried out in true native form.

This day of rest afforded us an opportunity of visiting the place of birth and burial of John Knox, the famous bygone Scottish Church reformer; the beautiful memorials to Robert Burns and Sir Walter Scott; some had a peep at the castle that stands sentinel-like upon its bold, rugged eminence, with the Scottish national war memorial nearing completion, and others stood round the 'Heart of Midlothian,' a spot marked as the centre of the county by stones let into the road head-pattern. All this was thoroughly enjoyed with the help of our stout-hearted guide, Mr. Sampson. Everyone found the 'round table' at the Clarendon in the evening after service, and here handbells were employed in Stedman Treble Bob and Double Norwich.

The morning hours of Monday were devoted to sight seeing, correspondence and the despatch of picture postcards to distant friends, as we were not due at Leith tower until five o'clock. The steeple-keeper, Mr. W. Lawson, gave us the same kind attention, and kindly hoped we should be able to 'last out' the peal, as the bells swing unevenly. This attempt was successful, due to the band, perhaps, having had two days' rest, and being thus well prepared to pull hard and hold tight. The Rector, the Rev. Wm. Hall, was pleased to hear the 'first' had been rung on his bells, and with him a number of change ringers from all the towers in Edinburgh met us as we came down from the belfry, remarking on the fair and even striking with such difficult handling. The bells were cast at Whitechapel in 1866, the total weight of the octave being 88 cwt. 2 qr. 24 lb. They were the gift of Miss Wood, of Hermitage Park.

Supper was ordered for 9 p.m. at the Clarendon, during which repeat the thanks of the visitors to all kind friends of the art of change ringing in fair Edinburgh was proposed by Mr. Fussell and supported by Mr. H. Chapman. The only difficulty in this task was to remember whether the respective clergyman were Ministers, Rectors, Vicars or Provosts. There is, at present, no ringing association or Guild in Scotland, and this meant considerable personal correspondence with everyone concerned. Elsewhere in the British Isles some hard-working branch or general Guild secretary fixes one up in quick time with few letters. We did not close the supper with 'Auld Lang Syne,' but everyone felt it in the air as they were saying 'Good-night,' for we were off to Bonnie Dundee early next morning.

'And, surely, ye'll be your pint stoup,
And, surely, I'll be mine!
And we'll tak a cup o' kindness yet,
For auld lang syne.'

Breakfast at six on Tuesday, and Princes Street at 7 a.m. for the Midland train via Larbert to Alloa Church, where we were 'off' into changes before 8.30. Here our peal formed a fitting farewell to the Rev. A. J. Wheatley (Vicar), who was leaving for Broughton Ferry. The superintendent of police met us as we descended from the tower, and offered congratulations. He had had people come to him to stop the bells, who did not know we had travelled some 400 miles to ring them. Mr. Brenner, away at work, left all in order for us, and the Church Council had approved and made our visit known. Hence we were not lodged in the local gaol. It was fortunate our start was so early—a funeral at 12 and a wedding at 2 o'clock had to be fitted in, for such is life! These bells are a nice, handy ring of eight (tenor 13½ cwt.) by Taylor, 1925, and go like tops. We all felt 'Younger' when the bells came into rounds, but there was no time to 'taste it.' While alluding to the brewing industry, let me give you a copy of the lettering on a stone tablet near the belfry door:—

'The old six bells were the gift of many friends, 1871, and in 1925 they were recast and rehung at the instance of the congregation. At this time the trebles were added by Viscount Younger, of Leckie.'

Some of my readers may have read the recent correspondence in the daily Press relating to a mural painting placed in St. Stephen's Hall, Westminster, presented by Viscount Younger. It portrays an historical fact concerning the Union of England and Scotland in the year 1707, just two hundred and twenty years ago. Here I should like briefly to refer to a matter of sanitation and decency. This was the fourth church whereat we found a well-fitted lavatory at the foot of the tower, properly constructed within the church for the convenience of church folk.

We hastened to the station, and the further journey by the L.N. and E. Railway meant two changes at junctions, and no set meal, but we duly landed in Dundee at 2.55.

'Come, fill up my cup, fill up my can;
Come, saddle my horses, and call out my men;
Unhook the Westport, and let us gae free,
For it's up wi' the bonnets o' Bonnie Dundee.'

The City Hotel, near the old steeple, housed us for two days' stay in this bonnie city, beloved by Winston Churchill, and though it was 4 p.m. before we could break our fast, right well was it broken, with real Scotch beefsteak and oatmeal biscuits, before going to the tower at five o'clock. For the first time in my experience it was necessary to ask a City Corporation for the use of the bells, and in this instance permission was readily given by the town clerk, Mr. W. H. Blythe Martin. Dundee's old steeple—the only part of a 14th century church left standing after a devastating fire—is dedicated to St. Mary. It has ever since been in the custody of the Corporation. Adjoining the tower stands a block of ecclesiastical buildings, constituting three separate churches dedicated to St. Mary, St. Clement and St. David, with separate services at each, although only the parting walls divide them.

This one ring of bells answers for all purposes, civil and religious. The campanile resembles many of those to be seen in the old English borough towns. It stands on rising ground in the centre of the city, and from it a good view of the town and neighbourhood, the estuary of the Tay and its long bridge of engineering fame and disaster may be had. The head ringer at Dundee is Mr. Strachan. He and his team are appointed paid officials, and everything was done by them to ensure our success. As a society, they were formed in September, 1874, and possess a large set of handbells, with table for time playing, stored in the belfry, where they practise. Photographs of the members taken in 1880, 1897 and 1920 are hung on the walls, with a war roll of honour containing the names of 11 members who served King and country. There is also a list of the subscribers to the new bell frame, peal of bells and chimes of 1872.

On a brass plate is recorded a peal by members of the St. Mary's Society, Edinburgh, conducted by W. H. Barber, being the first peal of Stedman in Scotland, and the farthest North of England until our arrival. My old friend, the late Matt Wood, called his first peal on the bells in 1873, at the opening ceremony. It was also the first peal in Scotland. Looking at the peal tablet reminded me of him, and the time—some 12 years after he called it—when he described to me in his sanctum at Bethnal Green the eventful journey he and his band made up to Dundee. We added one more leaf to the wreath of 'laurels' which this fine old belfry is making, and the beds at the City Hotel (all doubles) were very welcome to the band of tired but well satisfied churchmen. Licensing laws in Scotland were strange to us—total closing on Sundays and daily at 9 p.m., and we were for two days North of the Tweed without tasting the malt. To this I may add that seven of our ten men were non-smokers, and perhaps this kind of 'half training' had something to do with the absence of a breakdown.

Dundee claims the tallest police constable in Britain. He stands 6ft. 9in. in his socks. When we saw him on point duty signalling with his 'long arm of the law,' the passing motor-cars appeared to glide under them. To the top of his helmet was 7ft. 5½in. high, and it was a new suggestion for Scott's poem:—

'Up, up with the helmets of Bonnie Dundee.'

The eve of the eclipse of the sun led us to consider early rising to see it, but the weather not being too promising only one of our men ventured to climb Law Hill, a 400ft. elevation, a mile or two out of the city, where several thousand people assembled to see but little of the event. Our shepherd went, and it is doubtful if he rounded up so large a Highland flock. So far North we found the daylight longer—artificial light was not needed to go to bed at 11 o'clock or later, and as I lay in bed the face of the old steeple clock could be easily read in the distance. The last thing I remember of my first day in Dundee was the booming of the tenor bell at the hour. The tenor weighs 20 cwt., and was cast by Mears at Whitechapel in 1819.

The weather cleared at breakfast time on Wednesday, and each went his own way. The faithful 'couple' crossed the Tay by ferry boat, discovering a new make of 'timepiece' at Newport. Others went to the city museum and the library, discovering three volumes on church bells, one of which described and illustrated the famous handbell named the Gwilt of 14th century Scotch handiwork. Being early-closing day, our peal was timed for 2.30 p.m. Messrs. Young and Stenhouse met us at St. Paul's Cathedral, and assisted in the preparations for the Stedman accomplished here. The Very Rev. Provost Alex. C. Dow, M.A., expressed his regret that he would not be at home to welcome us. I was interested in reading his article in the Scottish Episcopal Church magazine for June, suggesting the use of the English Hymnal at this cathedral.

'The bells they ring backward, the drums they are beat,
But the Provost—dunce man—said, "Just e'en let it be,
For the town is well rid o' that de'il o' Dundee."

Scott.

The climb up the stone spiral staircase meant 97 steps, similar to Ludlow or Edinburgh Cathedral. No one 'ran' up, especially one 'chap' who is a heavy 'man.' The belfry is comfortable, with good windows and ventilation, but the ropes are not true, the tenor rope falling nearly in the centre of a circle made by the other seven, hence Major was out of the question without acquaintance with the 'go' of the tenors. Total weight of the peal, cast in Whitechapel in 1871, is 93 cwt. 3 qr. 2 lb.

Geographically, I believe this tower is about 400 yards nearer the North Pole than the old steeple, and it was an unusual favour to be allowed a peal attempt here. This was the fourth cathedral at which

The authorities had graciously said 'Yes' to our application. Smiling faces gathered round the festive board, and the party only broke up at 11 o'clock for bed, after instructions for the morrow had been issued by the 'captain.'

Delay in the arrangements to visit Paisley, owing to the 7th bell being out of order and our only refusal, Glasgow Cathedral, led to an application for the bells of Inverness Cathedral. Permission was very kindly given to us by the Very Rev. Provost Mackenzie, who, in his letter, mentioned that he used to ring once but was rather out of practice now. St. Andrew's, Inverness, bells were rehung by Warner and Son in 1914. In 1877, a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major was rung upon them, conducted by H. Haley, the only one, and the first of Major in Scotland. Some of our members would have liked to stretch their ringing records from Land's End to John o' Groats at this opportunity, but Paisley and Carlisle won the vote, and home-ward was the order. We heard that good progress is being made with the new tower building at Inverary. It is now up to the bell-frame floor level, but the beautiful peal of 10 bells, cast by Taylor, are temporarily housed in a small building near the church. Future tourists through the Caledonian Canal will be able to get a touch on tower bells at either end.

Leaving Dundee at 8 a.m., via Perth, we duly made Glasgow, and alighted at Buchanan Street. Our further journey to Paisley was made by tram car, some seven miles, for 3d., and we were put down at the wrong church, a beautiful building presented as a memorial by the family of Coats. At present it is without a peal of bells. Our tram tickets were examined four times on the way, and we were notified where to change for Killiecrankie. However, no one heeded it, and I could have told the conductor that most members of our fascinating art are already 'crankie' enough. Traversing three sides of a half-mile rectangle of busy streets, we arrived at the United Free Church of St. James half hour behind time. The minister, the Rev. L. A. Sutherland, Mr. A. E. Wrecks (formerly of Manchester), and the captain of the local ringers, Mr. A. Rodger, met us at the church gate with greetings all round, and here the Major was duly brought round. The bells are a musical octave by Taylor and Sons (1911), tenor 22 cwt. 1 qr. 17 lb., in E flat. The work of repair on the 7th bearings had only been completed two days before our arrival. This ringing chamber may be termed a 'tip-top' place. Everything is spotlessly clean and well fitted up for the ringers' convenience—floor covering and mats for the ropes, good windows and ventilation, seats, pegs, and lavatory basin, cupboards and a set of handbells. I can honestly recommend it to the favourable notice of the archdeacons of more than one diocese between Newcastle and Castle Cary. We learnt that the local society of ringers were shortly taking their annual day's outing, and were visiting the Trossachs and Loch Lomond without any bell ringing. Rather like going to a dance without the fiddler. We saw the important Glasgow works where Mr. E. H. Lewis consummates the science of strains and stressess. Hurrying back to Buchanan Street Station, the 3.50 express, Glasgow to Carlisle, was boarded, and we were glad to get tea on board, where the ticket examiner shared a personal regard for our 'Bob.' Whether the Midland official knew it was Mr. Pye's birthday or not, I could not say, but he did not have the opportunity of toasting Bob's health. We had the pleasure of toasting success to the Midland Railway at George's expense later in the day at the Carlisle Arms. The journey out of Scotland passed off very well. Five staid bachelors heaved a sigh of relief on passing the scene of so many hasty marriages—Gretna Green—where the old village harmonious blacksmith, who tied the 'knot,' rang his anvil for the church bells and never cared a 'rap' about Simpson harmonics.

In one of the old thoroughfares of the City of Carlisle, called Botchergate, accommodation for just our party and no more was found at Ridley's Hotel, and the first thing we did was to sit down to a right good supper—eight till eight is a long interval with only scraps to eat, catch as catch can. This was a farewell 'set-to' for Mr. Williams, who was leaving us at midnight with the voice of 'Master' calling him home. The cathedral bells had been kindly placed at our disposal by the Dean, the Very Rev. H. V. Stuart, which time and train did not permit us to accept for Thursday, unfortunately, but our regret was toned down by looking over the cathedral and the ancient castle, with some of the principal streets of the city. Before going to bed, the past six days were gone over again in our conversation—the peals, the mileage and the hearty reception given to us everywhere by 'the lads we left behind' us. We packed Mr. Williams off with his little handbag bulging with a copy of the Midland Railway time-tables. How he squeezed in his seven peals as well is still somewhat a mystery at three score years and ten.

PANGBOURNE BELLS

The six bells at Pangbourne (tenor about 10 cwt.) have been rehung by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and go excellently. On Saturday, June 25th, ringers from Mortimer, Englefield, Goring and Harwell visited the village, at the invitation of Mr. J. Smith (Pangbourne), and rang 720 Oxford Bob Minor: W. Ford 1, J. Bower 2, J. Abery 3, G. Parsons 4, J. Smith 5, G. Abery (conductor) 6. Also 360 Bob Minor and 360 Kent Treble Bob Minor, in which R. G. Rice, E. Holloway and A. H. Clayton took part; also first 720 on bells since rehanging.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

In the annual report of the district secretary (Mr. F. S. W. Butler) it is stated that the Northern Branch had made satisfactory progress during the past year. The success of the newly-formed district at Sleaford is very gratifying, and gives promise of good results in this part of the branch for the future. After a reference to the various meetings held during the year, the report proceeds: The number of peals rung in the branch during the past year was nineteen: Doubles (on handbells) in three methods, 1; Minor, 4 (one method 2, three methods 2); Grandsire Triples, 3; Stedman Triples, 3; Bob Major (1 on handbells), 3; Kent Treble Bob Major, 1; Double Norwich Court Bob Major, 2; Grandsire Caters, 1; Superlative Surprise Royal, 1; total, 19. Included in this list seven members have rung their first peal, and five their first peal on handbells, thus showing that double-handed ringing is on the increase in the branch. The nineteen peals have been distributed amongst the districts as follows: Sleaford 7, Lincoln 6, and Grimsby 6. I regret to say that no peals have been rung by resident members of the Gainsborough district since the year 1924.

In the month of November a form was sent to each of the towers connected with the branch asking for details respecting 'Particulars of rings of bells, methods and ringing.' With the exception of a few instances these forms have been returned. By the information received, it is gratifying and most encouraging to learn that good progress is being made, especially in some of the six-bell towers, where advanced methods are being rung.

During the year the four bells at Stallingborough Church have been quarter-turned, hung in a new steel frame with ball bearings and new fittings, also room left for two additional bells at some future date.

By a call to higher service, four members have been taken from us within the past twelve months: Mr. J. T. Holmes (who for a considerable number of years was a most active member of the Heckington company); Mr. T. Mann, Burton-on-Stather; Mr. G. W. Collins, St. Peter-at-Gowts, Lincoln; and Mr. C. W. P. Clifton, a member of the Cathedral company. He was a man of cheerful disposition, a good ringer, deeply respected by all who knew him, also a staunch and loyal member of the Guild.

Several new members were elected during the year, and the number on the register is 354 (44 honorary and 310 performing), as compared with 340 (33 honorary and 307 performing) at the end of 1925. The number of members in each district is as follows: Gainsborough, honorary 25, performing; Grimsby, 13, 96; Lincoln, 5, 113; Sleaford, 1, 39; total, 44, 310.

The Committee desire to express their sympathy with the ringers of the Cathedral and St. Peter-at-Arches, Lincoln, who have not a ring of eight available in the city, but desire to express the pleasure it gives them to know that instructions have been given for the completion and hanging of the ring of twelve at the Cathedral, and also to know that they will be available for ringing at the great thanksgiving service, which is to be held to celebrate the completion of the restoration, to which all are looking forward.

RHYMES FROM 'STANDARD METHODS.'

To the Editor.

Sir,—With further reference to the first peal on Willoughby Waterleys bells, and the comments on same you kindly published in your issue of July 1st, it might be added that the Rector (the Rev. E. A. Ingham, M.A.), late Precentor of Liverpool Cathedral, was given 'Standard Methods' to digest during our ringing. Although not a change ringer, the following lines go to show his quick grasp of our 'ringing phrases and terms,' and I think will prove interesting to your readers.—Yours sincerely,

ERNEST MORRIS,

Gen. Hon. Sec., M.C.A.

TREBLE TO TENOR A 'SNAPPING.'

'Up' and 'down,' and 'in' and 'out,'
Do not 'course' if you have got;
'Hunting,' 'leading,' 'changes,' 'strokes,'
Do not think that these are jokes.
'Dodge the middle,' 'behind,' 'before,'
Be a 'Bob,' but not a bore.
Don't go 'wrong,' but get 'right' 'home,'
Else climb down from up the dome.
'Maximus' is just a twelve,
'Tuffings' not the only helve.
'Minors,' 'Triples,' 'Majors' call
Men of muscle, short or tall.
'Caters,' 'Royal,' 'Cinques' there are,
'Singles,' 'Doubles,' don't debar;
Then you'll flourish 'touch' or 'peal,'
Show your nous and prove your zeal.

E. A. INGHAM,

Rector.

GILLETT AND JOHNSTON

THE VICTORY TOWER Height 300 feet

OTTAWA

Where the World's Greatest Carillon is installed.

A BELATED MEMORIAL.

It is certainly strange that more than ten years should have elapsed since his death before any scheme was put on foot to perpetuate in the Exercise the memory of the late Sir Arthur Heywood, for it is only now that a proposal has been made to erect a tablet to place on permanent record some acknowledgment of what the art owes to one of the most predominating figures in the history of ringing. It was probably due to the fact that Sir Arthur's death took place in the years of war that nothing was done at the time in the way of providing a memorial, but, although belated, it is no less desirable that at this date some steps should be taken to make good the omission. The proposal, which is referred to by Canon Elsee (the President of the Lancashire Association) in a letter elsewhere in this issue, is a modest one. It is merely to record, by a suitable inscription, the last peal rung by Sir Arthur, which was in his own tower at Duffield, and the necessary funds for this purpose will, we have no doubt, be readily forthcoming now that the matter has been ventilated.

We hope that, in addition to the formal record of the peal, which in itself was one of interest, opportunity will be found to express something of what the Exercise owes to the founder of the Central Council. Had he done nothing else, his investigations of Stedman would have earned for him a niche in the edifice of the science, for his long and painstaking researches and his contributions to this subject made him one of the leading authorities in this particular branch. But his work of exploration went far beyond this, and not the least of the services rendered by his pen was the volume which he published on 'Bell Towers and Bell Hanging.'

His work in establishing the Central Council, and which could only have been consolidated as it was by a man of his standing and ability, leaves the Exercise for ever indebted to him. In his conduct of its affairs for many years he may have appeared an autocratic ruler, but no one ever doubted that he was animated always by a desire to do what he considered best for the art of ringing. He was a mainstay of the Central Council from its formation until his death; he was for an even longer period a pillar of strength to the Midland Counties Association, of which he was president, and it is not too late to repair the omission which was caused by the overshadowing events of the war. Canon Elsee's appeal will doubtless be widely and readily responded to, and it is both seemly and fitting that the memorial should be erected in the belfry where Sir Arthur rang regularly for the services of the church.

LLANDAFF & MONMOUTH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A quarterly meeting was held at Bridgend on Saturday, and was well attended by members from both Glamorganshire and Monmouthshire. The bells, a lovely ring of eight, by Taylor, were made good use of, both before the service and after the tea and meeting.

Service took place at St. Iltyd's Church, Canon Phillips, the Vicar, officiating, his most fitting address being much enjoyed. Tea, which had been very kindly provided by the Vicar and churchwardens, followed, and then the business meeting was held, over which the Vicar presided.

The report of the representatives to the Central Council was presented.

Instructors' reports showed that good progress is being made in change ringing at Penhow, where formerly call changes were rung.

It was decided to hold the next Glamorgan meeting at Penmark and the Monmouth meeting at Tredunnoch in lieu of Penhow.

The Hon. Secretary read the Vicar of Aberdare's letter explaining the reason why the meeting was held at Bridgend and not at Aberdare as proposed, and also explained why the proposed meeting to be held at Penhow was in abeyance, hence the reason for selecting Tredunnoch.

New members were elected from Penhow and Merthyr.

The Hon. Secretary next read the report in 'The Ringing World' of the tragic death of Mr. Pryce Taylor, of Loughborough, and moved a vote of condolence with the widow and relatives, which was carried by the members standing for a few moments in silence.

A vote of thanks to Canon Phillips for his exceptional kindness and hospitality was passed, and the Canon, who replied, said what an immense pleasure it was to him.

The bells were then kept going until late, and terminated a most pleasant and successful meeting.

LADIES' GUILD. NEW BRANCHES FORMED.

The annual general meeting of the Ladies' Guild, which was held at Northampton on Saturday, July 16th, resulted in the attendance of a large number of members and friends. Ringing commenced at St. Giles' Church, where the Guild service was conducted by the Vicar, who, after welcoming the Guild to Northampton, gave a very helpful address on 'Reverence.' The lesson was read by Mr. F. Wilford, the Master of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild.

Tea was served at Adams' Cafe to a party numbering 63, the members of the Guild being the guests of the president, and, after the dismissal of the gentlemen with many thanks for their attendance, the business of the day was commenced.

In the unavoidable absence of the president, Miss Evelyn Steel, of Bedford, the chair was taken by Mrs. Thursfield, of Cranford.

The secretary's report was as follows:—

This is the fifteenth year of the Guild's existence, and there is not the slightest doubt that it is gradually progressing. Although members drop out in some districts, still new members are elected to fill the gaps. The district secretaries report that there is still room for improvement in the attendance at meetings, but on the whole these are fairly well supported. One new district has been formed—the Northern—under the secretaryship of Miss Molly Davenport. This promises to be very active, and the members are most keen. Another district in Lincolnshire is in course of formation, and we hope to hear by the next annual meeting that this is also flourishing. No peals have been accomplished, but there are rumours in various districts of forthcoming attempts, so perhaps next year's report will contain several successes. The first peal of Major for the Guild has still to be rung. The accomplishments of individual members are too numerous to mention, but the standard of ringing is much higher than it has ever been, and there would be no difficulty in raising a band of Guild members for London Surprise Major or Cambridge Royal, providing distance was no object.

A DONATION FROM AUSTRALIA.

As shown in the accounts, a donation of £1 has been received from Mr. Harry Henden, of Orange, New South Wales, Australia. Mr. Henden saw an account of the Guild's peal of Stedman Caters in the 'Overseas Daily Mail,' and immediately wrote a letter of congratulation to the band. He had seen no mention of ringing in any paper for years, and had quite lost touch with the art. The secretary wrote and thanked Mr. Henden for his letter, and gave him an account of the Guild. He then forwarded the donation with his best wishes. It may interest members to know that Mr. Henden was made a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths in 1867. He has been away from England for about 43 years. There are still a good number of ladies who are not members of the Guild, and I would again urge members to do their utmost to rope them in. This is where individuals can do good work for the Guild. The thanks of the Guild are due to the district secretaries for their valuable work during the year. Also we must not forget the various county associations and brother ringers who assist us at our meetings. This help and interest is greatly appreciated.

The accounts were presented duly audited, and showed a surplus of £2 15s. 10d. on the year's working.

The officers were re-elected, and are as follows: President, Miss Evelyn Steel; hon. secretary and treasurer, Miss E. K. Parker.

It was decided to amend Rule 1 for districts, so that each district could have its own vice-president. A committee consisting of the general and district secretaries was appointed to revise the existing rules and report at the next annual meeting. The printing of reports was deferred for another year, so as to embody the revised rules.

Considerable discussion took place as to the next annual meeting, and it was decided that as two new districts had been formed in Lincolnshire and the North, and to further encourage the advancement of the Guild in this part of the country, the meeting should be held in this area.

Votes of thanks were passed to the Vicars of the three churches at which ringing took place, to Mr. Wilford for making arrangements, to Mrs. Thursfield for presiding at the meeting, and to Miss Steel for her kindness in providing tea. The general and district secretaries were also thanked for their work during the year.

Ringling afterwards took place at the churches of St. Edmund and Holy Sepulchre until 8.30, when the best of friends had to part. The London contingent proceeded by way of Blisworth, where an hour's wait was made less tedious by handbells. The ringers were rewarded with one penny from an onlooker, after being interrupted in a course of Stedman Cinques by an express. They now consider they have lost their amateur status.

WESTERN DISTRICT SUPPORTS NEW PROPOSALS.

The annual meeting of the Western District was held at Burnham-on-Sea on Saturday, July 16th. Owing to a local function taking place near the church at the time of meeting, no touches were rung until late in the afternoon, when good ringing was obtained, the methods being Grandsire, Plain Bob and Stedman.

A service was held at 4.30, and the Vicar, addressing the ringers, gave to the members of the Ladies' Guild a very hearty welcome. The able support from the organ happily enabled the singing to be more in the 'community' style than is sometimes possible on these occasions.

After tea, at which about 20 were present, the business meeting took place, Miss Smith, of Bristol, being in the chair.

The hon. secretary (Miss Williams) read the minutes of the last meeting, and was then unanimously re-elected as secretary for the coming year.

The place of the next quarterly meeting was discussed, and Corston and Wraxall proposed, Wraxall being finally chosen as a good centre for all ringers in a wide area.

Miss Williams also asked for the opinion of those present on a suggestion from headquarters that the president of the Ladies' Guild should remain in office for a longer period than one year—a time that was hardly more than sufficient for a thorough grasp of the duties of the position—and also that vice-presidents should be appointed in the different districts who could on occasion be called on to take the place of the president.

With these suggestions, the members present at the meeting agreed, and the hon. secretary was requested to forward to headquarters the expression of their opinion, even if the time for a formal vote on the subject was past.

Although, owing to the difficulty of reaching Burnham, the numbers present were not as large as on some previous occasions, the fine weather, the beautiful ring of eight bells, and the kindness and heartiness of the welcome given to the party, both in church and town, made the meeting a very enjoyable one.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION. ENJOYABLE VISIT TO OLVESTON.

The members of the Bristol Branch held a most enjoyable quarterly meeting at Olveston on Saturday last. The Bristol party journeyed by motor, and stopped on the way at Horfield for a ring on the five bells, also to do a little propaganda work, which it is hoped will have satisfactory results. Reaching Olveston in good time, the local enthusiasts were awaiting the arrival of the visitors, who included a well-known Bristol ringer who first saw the light at Olveston. It was a case of 'The return of the native.'

The bells (a fine-toned ring of eight) were raised in peal, and special practice was provided for the learners. Service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. Canon W. H. Fisher), and tea followed in the workshop of Mr. R. A. Pitcher, the local hon. secretary, the building having been turned into an ideal dining room for the occasion. Thirty members were present. While tea was in progress, the chairman and his good lady, with the pride of the household, arrived, after attending the wedding of their son, and was given a hearty reception.

After tea, the Chairman, before commencing the business meeting, said they had no doubt read in 'The Ringing World' of the sudden death of Mr. Pryce Taylor, who was so well known to them all in Bristol, and who was with them on the occasion of their last annual dinner in January. He proposed that the secretary write a letter of condolence to the relatives expressing their deepest sympathy.—This was seconded by one of the oldest members, Mr. Wm. Knight, in a few well-chosen words, and was carried by all standing in silence.

By kind invitation of the Vicar, Almondsbury (already chosen) was fixed for the August meeting. Henbury was chosen for the September meeting. It was left in the hands of the secretary to arrange a bye-meeting at Warnley on September 10th.

Mrs. Conders was elected an associate member.

The usual votes of thanks to the Vicar and organist, and to Mr. Pitcher for making such excellent arrangements for the tea and meeting, were carried by acclamation. The kindness of the Vicar, who had thrown open his gardens for the use of the members, was taken full advantage of, as also were the gardens of an old friend, Mr. George White. The kindness was especially appreciated by the ladies, who returned laden with all kinds of flowers. Excellent practice was continued on the tower bells till 9 p.m., the ringing ranging from call changes to Cambridge Major, a special touch in the latter method being rung as a wedding compliment to the son of the chairman. Altogether a very pleasant time was spent.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE RINGERS VISIT OXFORD.

Members of the Stroud Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Association to the number of 42 were favoured with fine weather on July 2nd, when they united for an outing to Oxford. The vehicles started from Stonehouse with ringers from Frocester and Haresfield, proceeded to Stroud, where they picked up ringers from Bisley, Painswick and Stroud, and then went on to Minchinhampton, where the motors were filled up. A halt was made at Lechlade, where the party were met by the Vicar, the Rev. R. G. H. Bowrigg, who extended to them a hearty welcome. This peal of six was soon going to touches of Double and Minor. Faringdon was next visited, and here the peal of eight were rung to touches of Triples and Major. Arriving at Oxford, the party proceeded to St. Ebbe's, and then to Christ Church Cathedral. Several touches were rung on these bells, and several members ascended the tower to see Great Tom. After a tour round Oxford, a start was made for Witney, where touches of Grandsire Triples and Bob Major were brought round. The next and last stop was at Burford, where more ringing was done. The members wish to thank the various clergy for permission to ring, and the local men who met the visitors and gave a hearty welcome at all the towers.

BRAILES AND ITS TENOR.

A FAMOUS BELL AND ITS FOUNDER.

On Saturday, ye ninth daye of grace, ye Worthy Convener did sound 'ye boot and saddle' in ye parish of Exhall, and, when all were assembled with our worthy Vicar aboard to act as official Plimsol Mark, ye Convener did order ye Lodge to Brailes to test what he did call 'Men's Bells,' and the hapless writer of this screed can aver that ye Convener was not a thou' out. Brailes boasts a church and steeple that would put many a minster in the shade, and its splendid ring of six, with tenor by Blews, weighing 31 cwt. 22 lb., is worth a long journey to hear. As tenor of a ring of six, it is second in tone only to Queen Camel, and it is to be regretted that nothing much could be attempted on these bells as the young band, all learners, have only got a ring of 6½ cwt. They were, therefore, plucky to ring rounds on such metal, but all were agreed that the bells alone repaid the pilgrimage. Only one hour was spent at Brailes, and then on to Evesham. On climbing into his 'Panthard' the writer's 'beste of spouses' did ask him, 'Did you see those three dear little swallows in their nest in the church porch?' Ye writer said, 'Yes, and I'll show you one big one when I get to Evesham.' Truly a tribute of respect to the abilities of Brailes tenor. Tea was ordered at the Golden Heart at Evesham. Host Moreton has two golden hearts, one which warms when he sees a crowd of ringers arrive at the door of the other, and he certainly knows what ringers want and how to administer it unto them.

Just at this point ye writer showed ye beste of spouses that other swallow, and illustrated to her how true was the old saying that 'One swallow does not make a summer!' Enuf said. Our young swallows essayed to build their nests at the Evesham carapanele. They tried with Stedman Caters, but that did not seem to stick, so they tried with Plain Bob Royal, which laid a foundation to Treble Bob, just to oblige one of the 'young 'uns' who had once or twice heard about this interesting 'melange,' after which he propounded the problem, 'If you call, "Go, Kent," when the treble dodges 3-4 up, are you ringing Kent or Oxford until it dodges 3-4 down?' Q.E.D. What a swindle splicing is (otherwise than the main brace). At this point ye Grand Convener did adjure ye members to gather on ye Green and face ye G.P. Physog Desecrater to enable him to perpetrate yet one more for ye Blue Book, with our respected Plimsol Mark as Piceo de Resistance. Time did not permit of a call at Norton or Bidford, but at Stratford-on-Avon one hour was spent by a contented party, some of whom bought a new house, others had new clogs—very necessary, as ye writer well knows. He once wore a pair when walking from Warwick to Stratford one Sunday even, and nary a 'Coffee Pot' by the wayside, arriving in Stratford just as Boniface of ye Red Lion banged the door in his face. What a reminder of the Plimsol Laws to a whole summer full of swallows!

Ye tit-bit of the Stratford sojourn was supplied by ye Grand Prime Cake Incinerator, who boldly walked up to the door of the house where 'Stratford's Popularity' was born and enquired, 'Is Bill in?'

'Bill who?' demanded ye astonished custodian.

'Bill Shakespeare, of course,' quoth ye C.I.

'Im? Why, he's been dead centuries,' quoth ye Stratford worthy.

'Great Dimplin's! Don't time fly,' gasped ye Official of Cake Incinerating fame.

I have heard many and varied, and certainly garbled, accounts of Brailes bells, thanks be that I went and saw, and—no, ye beste of spouses did that. I live to fight that glorious fight another day—with Brailes tenor. Thanks be that I visited and learned that those who had told me their versions were of no value, because they had either never been or had not used their rations of grey matter.

Brailes bells are rung regularly by an enthusiastic Sunday band, who love their bells; their ropes are in fine condition, and their priceless treasures are pealable, but, as our convener said: They are men's bells; none but really practised heavy-bell ringers could inscribe in 'The Ringing World': 'First on these REAL bells.' In the writer's opinion, only one thing is needed to make change ringing go, and that is, three boxes for the back bells! Verb. sap.

History hath recorded the coming and deplored (or speeded) the passing of many notable sons of this ringing isle. Some have left glorious landmarks to act as memento moris of their progress down this vale of tears. Others left milestones in their tale of years; but I doubt if any one of Britain's ringing sons ever left such a glorious sample of his craft for 'those who ring to read,' as did that bouncing baby boy who called his first call on February 4th, 1824, at Loughborough. On coming to man's estate, he practised his craft as a bell moulder in a cherry orchard (perchance he learnt it there), for the princely sum of 18s. per week, but not waxing fat on such wealth he migrated to Brum and took service with the firm of Blews. His name was Steve Main, but his new employer, when in moments of choler, referred to him affectionately as 'that old bell-casting humbug.' How little he merited this appellation is shown by the milestones he left behind him in his tale of years, and I have no hesitation in referring Herr Blews in his moments of choler to the Nomenclature Committee for a reprimand. Steve used to wend his way to his daily toil, garbed in a long black undertaker's coat and a tall hat which Dame Rumour hath it was furnished with a rule pocket.

RINGERS' OUTINGS.

A REUNION AT ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

Oldham and Ashton-under-Lyne were visited by the Sheffield Cathedral company for their annual outing. Proceeding by train to Oldham, the visitors were met on arrival by members of the local company, headed by Mr. Vernon Sykes, and touches of Stedman Cinques, Kent Treble Bob Maximus, and a course of London Surprise on the back eight were indulged in. This nice ring of twelve, erected in three tiers, caused a little embarrassment to the visitors owing to the long draught of rope to the higher bells, but, nevertheless, they earned the comment of having disported themselves very creditably.

After tea, which was taken in a nearby restaurant, the journey was resumed to Ashton-under-Lyne, where a most cordial welcome was extended by the local ringers, including Mr. Ben Thorp, and an old friend in Mr. Sam Wood, whom the visitors were pleased to find recovered from a serious illness. Touches in various methods from eight to twelve were fully enjoyed on this grand ring until late in the evening, when an adjournment was made for further refreshment, and a most pleasant and convivial hour was spent in a reunion with the ringers of the district, a special feature being the interchange of toasts from the loving cups of the hosts and visitors, which brought to the minds of the older members vivid recollections of their historical fame.

The journey home was made by train, after a very pleasant if somewhat damp day. Thanks are due to Mr. V. Sykes and Mr. Ben Thorp for their kindness in obtaining the use of the bells and for their efforts in making the visit a most enjoyable one.

LEISTON MEN'S LONG EXCURSION.

St. Margaret's Society, Leiston, held its annual outing on Saturday, July 9th. Leaving Leiston at 7.15, Sudbury, nearly fifty miles away, was reached in good time, where the party were met by Mr. A. Scott. The bells of St. Peter's Church, where the back four bells have recently been rehung, were soon going to Double Norwich, Bob Major, Rochester and Stedman Triples. A visit was then made to All Saints', where Stedman and Double Norwich were the order, but before the latter was completed the rope slipped the tenor wheel, and made the stay with this lovely peal, with a tenor 23 cwt., a brief one. The party then proceeded to Halstead, where the local hand had the bells ready, Double Norwich, Oxford and London Surprise being rung. At Earls Colne, where dinner had been prepared, the local men were ringing a welcome to the visitors, and on joining them in the tower, Double Norwich and Bob Major for the junior members, and Rochester, Bristol, Superlative and London Surprise were rung, some of the local men taking part. A move was then made to Colchester, where the visitors were met by Mr. W. Button, a former member of St. Margaret's Society. Cambridge, Double Norwich and Rochester were rung on this splendid peal, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. St. Leonard's, with its peal of six, on which Oxford and Stedman Double were rung, was visited, and then on to Ardleigh, which was reached at eight o'clock, and Double Norwich, Bob Major, Rochester, and Stedman Triples rung. Tracks were next made for Ipswich, where a quiet half-hour was spent, and home was reached at 11.30. The society wish to thank all incumbents for the use of the bells, and all brother ringers who helped to make this outing a great success.

Good Master Bannister worked as a bell tuner at the same place and wore the same attire. And, indeed, such a coat exists to-day, and rambles, when of good cheer, in the purlieus of Turn-Again-Lane, and, good readers, be it known, it is stuffed full of Stedman Cinques, and I hear on good authority that it is threatening to look up 'the Original.' What? No, not the coat, the peal! What is a Similae? Why, an honest garb for an honest man! Would that more men qualified for such an honest garb.

But, forgive me, I ramble: as is my wont, even as Steve and his confreres will. Steve moulded and cast the trebles at Lichfield Cathedral; the fourth and fifth at the Bull Ring were recast by him; he cast Shoreditch tenor, and with the same sweeps he struck that wonderful bell, Brailes tenor. Steve worked for Taylors as a craftsman in 1845. What a memento mori, what a journey down this vale of tears! Loughborough in 1824, that cherry orchard in 1845, Brailes tenor in 1877. And now, life's journey o'er, has his spirit, armed with those beloved sweeps still in that master hand, wandered back to its Alma Mater to spend its eternity, imparting that well-known hum to the modern product of that famous orchard? Methinks it must have done, for that orchard is freehold, even as its cherries are free toned.

But I have rambled too far, through a county or two, through your patience and much history. Suffice it for me to say that my 'Panthard' dropped me, once again, in the parish of Exhall, where I found a good friend to all pilgrims ready to give me the chance to prove to ye beste of spouses, nigh on the witching hour, that, even as 'one swallow didn't make a summer,' neither did one libation make a decent swallow! At which she did reply, 'Swallows, like those possessed by the Grand Prime Cake Burner, Rope Smith, Clapper Turner, Physog Desecrater and G.P.P.S., are the only examples that exist of perpetual motion.'

UNCLE JUSTACUSS.

LONDONERS VISIT LOUGHBOROUGH.

The annual outing of St. Andrew's, Holborn, Guild, took place on Saturday, July 2nd, when a party of 18 visited Loughborough. On arriving at their destination, they were met by Mr. Horace Stubbs, one of Messrs. Taylor and Co.'s representatives, who conducted them over the Bell Foundry, where they had a good view of bells, in various stages of production, and rang on the Foundry peal. After much laughter, caused by the antics of the 'heavyweights' on the light bells, Stedman Caters and Stedman Triples were successfully brought round. The visitors then paid a visit to the Parish Church, where Stedman, Grandsire Caters and Bob Major were rung.

The next move was to Belgrave and Leicester. Going by bus, the party had a most enjoyable ride, much enlivened by community singing ably conducted by Mr. J. C. Truss. At Belgrave the visitors were met by Mr. W. J. Willson, who had kindly made all arrangements, and at St. Peter's Church Grandsire, Stedman, Treble Bob and Cambridge were rung. A tram ride then brought the company to St. Martin's Cathedral, where Mr. F. H. Dexter and others welcomed them. Here Stedman Caters and Cambridge Royal were successfully brought round. Then came a visit to the Co-operative Stores, where an excellent tea awaited the travellers. Soon afterwards, the return journey was made, and a splendid run to Marylebone was enlivened by change ringing and tunes on handbells. The Guild took this opportunity of thanking Messrs. Taylor and Co., Mr. Horace Stubbs and Mr. W. J. Willson for their kindness, also the Rectors for the use of the bells. The outing was voted the best that has been held by the Guild.

After an excellent lunch at the Great Central Hotel, cigars were handed round, through the kindness of the Rector of St. Andrew's, whose health was heartily drunk.

RINGERS UNITE.

On Saturday, July 16th, after a lapse of two years, ringers from Norton, Kingsley and Cheadle united for the usual excursion, three towers being visited. Leaving Cheadle about 12.40 p.m., the bus set its nose to the hills, and the way led past Denstone Church, where rests that once famous ringer, Sir A. P. Heywood. Ellastone was reached about 1.30, and here 1½ hours' good ringing was indulged in. Then on to Mayfield, where the party were welcomed by the Vicar, the Rev. D. Tudsbury, who kindly explained the points of interest about the church, which was mainly Norman of A.D. 1160.

Here an hour's ringing sufficed for all to have a pull, then away to Ashbourne, where the party stopped for tea, after which the ringers sought out Bradbourne, five miles up the Bakewell Road, where the bells were raised and set going to Cambridge Surprise.

The ringing throughout had been of very good order, good 'striking' being maintained at all the towers, and the methods rung included London, Cambridge and York Surprise, and Violet, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob.

Passing Ashbourne Church on the way home brought to mind the story told in 'The Ringing World' of the band of Nottingham men who, after walking all the way, and ringing their peal, fought the local ringers in the churchyard. This was in 1831. Cheadle was reached, after a successful outing, at 10 p.m., but it was near the 'witching hour' before the Norton contingent could seek their beds.

GRIMSBY RINGERS' PLEASANT EXCURSION.

On Saturday last the ringers of St. Andrew's, Grimsby, with their wives, were guests for the day of Mr. and Mrs. J. Budd, and enjoyed a charabanc outing to the Dukeries. A start was made at 6.34 a.m. in beautiful sunshine, the party being supplied with button-holes of cornflowers grown in the suburbs by the 'old veteran.' Gainsborough was the first stop, where touches of Plain Bob, Stedman and Double Norwich were rung at the Parish Church, where they were joined by an old friend in Mr. Butler. The next stop was Retford, where a touch of Grandsire Caters was successfully brought round. Here the veteran's home-made marlinespike, which someone said looked more like a 'disguised corkscrew,' came in useful. Then on to Worksop to the Priory Church, where touches of Kent and Plain Bob were rung. Here a 'unique historical' find was made, the redoubtable 'Arthur' being found reposing in an old stone coffin in the churchyard listening to the bells. Some interesting snaps were also taken here, and a stay made for luncheon. Then the party went on to Cresswell Parish Church, where they were delighted with the new peal of eight hung on ball bearings in an iron frame. Stedman, Plain Bob and Oxford Bob were rung. Then they journeyed to the Forest and rang a touch of Grandsire Caters on the handbells, under the famous 'Major Oak.' The next stop was at Lincoln, where tea was served, and after a look round the ancient city, they made for home, which was reached at 10.45 p.m., everyone tired but happy. The thanks of the party are due to Mr. and Mrs. Budd, the incumbents of the churches for the use of their bells, also the steeplekeepers and the worthy secretary. It is hoped that friends at Wasingborough will forgive them for not keeping their appointment, as they arrived in Lincoln town late in the evening.

CLEVEDON.—At St. Andrew's Church, on June 23rd, in honour of the Prince of Wales' birthday, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples in 46 mins. by the following Portishead ringers: Miss B. Stadden 1, Miss A. Stokes (conductor) 2, Mrs. Edwards 3, Miss Stadden 4, Miss Orchard 5, Mr. Nisbet 6, Mr. Gillingham 7, Mr. Colbourn 8.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

What has developed into an annual tour in 'Somerset' will be undertaken again this year, although the ground to be covered will extend from Devon to Wiltshire. A programme covering fourteen towers, with Exeter Cathedral to lead off with on August 6th, has been arranged by Mr. J. T. Dyke, and it is hoped there will be some successful 'Pulling' during the week.

A team of change ringers is visiting the city of Dublin this week-end—from Friday to Tuesday—and one or two 12-bell peals are proposed to be attempted. We wish the Irish Association the best of luck.

We have been asked if it is true that the famous veteran 'Rugby George,' of Birmingham, has rung the two tenors to a peal on tower bells. We should not care to deny it, knowing the stamina of that young gentleman.

Ashton-under-Lyne Society's meeting, which was to have been held at Glossop on August 6th, has been transferred to Mossley, for the opening of the bells at St. George's Church.

On this day in the year 1785, William Shipway arrived in London. The Exercise probably owes a good deal to this event, for it was undoubtedly the greater experience in ringing which the wider field of the Metropolis gave him that enabled Shipway to take the place he did among the foremost pioneers of the art.

A party of ringers are visiting Quex Park this week-end, and it is interesting to recall that this ring of twelve bells was opened on August 4th, 1819, and that Shipway was one of the party that made the journey from London for this purpose.

A MEMORIAL TO SIR ARTHUR HEYWOOD.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—A suggestion was made after the last meeting of the Central Council that a peal board should be put up in the belfry at Duffield to commemorate a peal of Stedman Caters rung in that tower in 1901, after the meeting of the Central Council at Derby. The peal was the last in which Sir Arthur Heywood took part, and it was also remarkable for the fact that six of the ringers were at the time presidents or Masters of their associations. It has been pointed out that there is no ringers' memorial to Sir Arthur Heywood, to whom the Exercise owed so much, and it is suggested that this peal board in his own tower, and telling of the last peal which he rang, would form a simple and suitable memorial. A number of subscriptions have already been given, but I think there may be some ringers who knew Sir Arthur and would like to subscribe, who were not present when it was mentioned in London. If so, will they send any contribution to Mr. H. W. Wilde, Belgrave, Pulford, near Wrexham, who himself took part in the peal; and who now has the matter in hand.—Yours, etc.,
H. J. ELSEE.

A GOLDEN WEDDING.

Congratulations from a large circle of ringing friends will be extended to Mr. and Mrs. William D. Smith, of Eastbourne, and formerly of Hackney, who on Saturday, August 6th, will celebrate their golden wedding.

Until his retirement from the post of superintendent at the G.P.O., London, a few years ago, when he migrated to the South coast, Mr. W. D. Smith was closely and actively associated with the College Youths. He has held the office of Master three times. Mr. Smith has had a lifelong connection with ringing at the Church of St. John-at-Hackney, where his father, grandfather and great-grandfather before him were associated with the tower. He now devotes his ringing energies to the Sussex County Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will spend their jubilee with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hughes, at 32, Whitechapel Road, and Mr. Smith will be pleased to see any of his old friends at that address on August 6th or 8th.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT COLEORTON.

A splendid attendance marked the first association meeting ever held at Coleorton, Leicestershire, when the Burton District of the M.C.A. met there on Saturday, July 23rd. Methods, chiefly Bob Minor, Stedman Triples and Grandsire Doubles and Triples, were rung during the afternoon and evening, and a short service was conducted by the Rev. H. E. Worthington, Rector of Seales. Twenty-six sat down for tea, after which the Rector, the Rev. J. N. Philpott, R.D., welcomed the association to Coleorton, and encouraged the local company to become members. Mr. E. W. Beadsmoore suitably replied on behalf of those present.

The local Secretary mentioned that the Rev. D. J. Davies, of Appleby Magna, had asked to have a district meeting at that six-bell tower, and Appleby was duly selected for the next meeting, to be held on September 3rd.

The Rev. H. E. Worthington concluded the meeting by referring to the loss sustained by the association and the ringing world in general by the sudden death of Mr. Pryce Taylor, of Loughborough, a vice-president and Central Council representative for the M.C.A.

THE LATE MR. PRYCE TAYLOR. WIDESPREAD REGRET.

The news which 'The Ringing World' conveyed to the Exercise last Friday of the death of Mr. Pryce Taylor was received all over the country with the most profound regret.

At the annual festival of the Oxford Guild, at the Llandaff and Monmouth Association's quarterly meeting at Bridgend, at the Gloucester and Bristol Association's meeting at Olveston and at other ringing gatherings, votes of sympathy and condolence with the widow and relatives were passed.

THE LATE MR. PRYCE TAYLOR.

The remains of the deceased gentleman were brought to England by the liner 'Berengaria,' and were landed at Southampton, the young widow being among the passengers.

The funeral service was fixed for last Wednesday afternoon at All Saints' Church, Loughborough, and the interment in Loughborough Cemetery.

Mr. Pryce Taylor did not begin his peal ringing career until the year 1921, when he opened his list with Cambridge Surprise Major, and, although business and other claims did not permit him to take part in a great many peals, the total of 46 included Cambridge Surprise Royal and Maximus. The details of his peals are as follow:

Minor (three methods)	1
Stedman Triples	6
Stedman Caters	6
Stedman Cinques	1
Kent Treble Bob Major	4
Kent Treble Bob Royal	1
Kent Treble Bob Maximus	1
Double Norwich Court Bob Major	3
Superlative Surprise Major	8
Cambridge Surprise Major	11
Cambridge Surprise Royal	3
Cambridge Surprise Maximus	1
Total	46

To the Editor.

Sir,—I should be very grateful if all those towers who ring either muffled peals or touches (especially the M.C.A.) in memory of the late Mr. Pryce Taylor, will kindly send full details to me for recording purposes.

BATH AND WELLS DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

ILCHESTER DEANERY BRANCH.

A meeting was held at Ilminster, on Saturday last, when a service was conducted in the Parish Church by the Vicar (the Rev. J. N. Boughton). Nearly 30 sat down to tea in St. Mary's Hall. There were several lady ringers present, and the towers represented were Ilminster, Langport, Yeovil, Curry Rivel, Martock, Kingsbury Episcopi and Buckhorn Weston. Six ringers from Kingsbury were elected members, and it was decided to hold the next meeting there.

Mr. D. G. Taylor gave an interesting account of the discussion which took place at the annual meeting of the association, recently held at Wells, with regard to the insurance of ringers.

The secretary (Mr. F. Parvart) was instructed to send a letter of sympathy to Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, in their loss caused by the lamented death of Mr. Pryce Taylor.

The thanks of the meeting were expressed by the secretary to the Vicar for the use of the bells, and for his excellent address, to Mr. G. Fowler Sharpe, organist, and to the ladies who had provided tea.

The bells were made good use of during the afternoon and evening, the methods rung being Kent Treble Bob Minor and Major, Plain Bob, Grandsire and Stedman.

THE NOMENCLATURE CONFUSION.

To the Editor.

Sir,—My letter was not, as Mr. Hunt suggests, written on behalf of the committee, but gave my own personal opinions.

Mr. Hunt seems to be under the impression that the minutes record that at Ipswich Mr. Burton moved the whole 13 resolutions 'en bloc.' Reference to your columns for April 15th last does not bear this out, and, in fact, he did nothing of the sort. He moved the report as printed in 'The Ringing World' for April 2nd, 1926. This begins by explaining why the committee had altered the form of their report into resolutions instead of statements, and the explanation ended with these words: 'The resolutions, on the other hand, as now proposed, and as given below, enable the subject to be more easily dealt with piecemeal, and, what is also of consequence, to be more readily assimilated by the associations.'

Now, Mr. Hunt cannot expect us to believe that he is not intelligent enough to understand that 'to be dealt with piecemeal' is the exact opposite to taking them 'all at once,' as he puts it.

So far, I have only quoted the official records to which he refers us. But the report of the meeting shows that Mr. Burton was prepared with some amendments to move when we got to them: while I made a point of having been entrusted with others, when the time should come. How could we speak like that, if the time had already come, and all the resolutions were being moved together?

Moreover, why does he go back to Ipswich? At the Mansion House I asked the chairman to put each resolution separately to the vote without debate, and he got up to do so, when the opposition, who were so anxious that the opinion of the Council should not be taken, carried another wrecking motion.

Mr. Hunt writes: 'Had the committee used a little more diplomacy, they would have carried some of their resolutions, but to ask the Council to swallow resolutions such as altering Double Norwich Court Bob Major, the first peal of which was rung 156 years ago, was expecting too much.' He used these same words both publicly and privately at the Mansion House. I pointed out to him then, both publicly and privately, and I now repeat to him for the third time in writing, that we never so much as mentioned Double Norwich at all. Must I repeat it a fourth time, or is it at last understood? Does Mr. Hunt really see that he has been repeating an argument which has no existence outside his own heated imagination? Or is he one of those people who believe that if he repeats a mistake three times, he makes it come true?

As a matter of fact, the only name of any interest which Mr. Trollope could find in our report was 'London Scholars' Pleasure,' and the Council could have struck that out in a quarter of the time he took to talk about it.

There is this also to be said: others used this same argument, if not in the same blundering way that Mr. Hunt did. But what is there in it? Do they suppose that we were out to aggrandise ourselves? We only want to help the Exercise. We were, and are, quite ready to hand over our work to others. If these objectors really wanted to do what they profess, why did they not move themselves the proposal they are so ready to tell us we ought to have done? It was, and still is, quite open to any or all of them to move that the resolution be considered seriatim. I have invited Mr. Trollope to give notice that he will do this next meeting, and I now invite Mr. Hunt to do the same. If they will not, they cannot expect us to believe in their sincerity.

Mr. Hunt concludes thus: 'I beg to say the Council never had the opportunity to select any one suggestion made by the Nomenclature Committee.' This is quite true: it is the very point I insisted on in my last letter. It is true because, before I could (as arranged) get up to second the first resolution at Ipswich, Mr. Trollope introduced his silly amendment, which was no amendment, while at the Mansion House it was Mr. Hunt himself who prevented us doing the very thing he blames us for not doing.

SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday, July 23rd, a quarterly meeting was held at Wem, there being some 20 members present from the following towers: Coalbrookdale, Malinslee, Alberbury, Hodnet, Stanton, Ellesmere, Market Drayton, Wistaston, Wellington, Ightfield, Ruyton-Eleven-Towns, Wem, etc. Ringing commenced early in the afternoon, and short touches were rung until five o'clock, when tea was partaken of at Kynaston's Cafe.

The business meeting was held in the Church Hall, Mr. F. A. Barnett presiding. A number of new members were elected, and certificates distributed.

It was decided to hold the next quarterly meeting at Bridgnorth on October 8th.

Members were grieved to learn of the death of Mr. Pryce Taylor, of the Loughborough Foundry, and a message of sympathy was sent to the relatives.

The members were sorry to hear that the Rev. R. B. Faulkner, of Ightfield, is leaving the district in September. He takes with him the good wishes of all ringers in the district.

The ringing during the afternoon consisted of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob and Treble Bob Major.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

A BUSY DAY IN THE UNIVERSITY CITY.

The annual festival of the Oxford Diocesan Guild on Saturday once more drew a large attendance of members to the university city from the three counties of Berks, Bucks and Oxon, and numerous visitors from further afield, including Birmingham and Coventry, and a party from Hillingdon, Middlesex, who made it the occasion of their annual outing. Oxford is well equipped with bells, with the ring of twelve at the cathedral, the tens at Magdalen and New College, the eight at Merton College, the new octaves at St. Ebbe's and St. Giles', and the numerous rings of six. All these were available at some time or other during the day, and the visitors found plenty to occupy their attention, for, in addition to the ringing and the proceedings of the festival, the attractions of the Colleges themselves were by no means overlooked. The service in the cathedral was an impressive one, at which the Rev. Dr. Longford, Rector of Caversham, was the preacher. The offertory was devoted to the Bell Restoration Fund.

The business meeting was held in the Chapter House, the Master (the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn) presiding, supported by the hon. treasurer (Mr. A. J. Wright), the secretary (Mr. R. T. Hibbert), Rev. Canon G. F. Coleridge, and the Rev. R. H. Hart-Davis.

After the minutes of the last meeting had been adopted,

The Master said before they commenced the business of the meeting he would like, in the name of the Guild, to propose that a vote of condolence be sent to Mrs. Taylor, the widow of the late Mr. Pryce Taylor, who, as most of them had read, died quite suddenly while in Canada, where he had gone, as also to the United States, for business. He had an operation, but it was not successful, and he died in a few days. He (the Master) was glad to say Mrs. Pryce Taylor was with him, and she was now on her way home. Many of them knew Mr. Taylor, either as a ringer or as a bell founder. He came into the business as a young man, after the death of his father and three brothers, the latter having been killed in the war, in which Mr. Pryce Taylor was himself wounded. During his connection with the firm, Mr. Pryce Taylor had certainly not let down the foundry. He had done some fine work, but his life had been cut short.

The motion was carried in silence.

VIEWS OF YOUNG RINGERS INVITED.

The Master presented his report as follows, and it was adopted:—

I have attended meetings of one kind or another of all the fourteen branches of the Guild, and on the whole can report well of them. It has been the exception not to find a good attendance. There are one or two that seem unable to really get going in spite of praiseworthy efforts by the few who are keen. Football is one great obstacle. At the festival, all parts of the diocese were represented, but the number attending was small. It would appear that the Guild as a whole does not appreciate the spiritual and material advantages of Oxford. I have given advice as to rebelling, etc., at Abingdon St. Nicholas, Adderbury, Appleton, Bledlow, Deddington, Faringdon, Goring, Hagbourne, Henley, Hughenden, Hungerford, Oxford St. Giles, Minster Lovell. Augmentation or restoration has been completed at Appleton, Faringdon, Farnborough, Heyford, Stanford-in-the-Vale, Simpson, Woughton. The great piece of work has been done at Faringdon, where there is now a new ring of eight hung in the most approved fashion and a new clock and chimes, and, moreover, a band that can ring Grandsire Triples. At the same time, the Vale of White Horse Branch has passed from very near death to a vigorous life. All this is due mainly to the influence of two men, Rev. W. Carey Ward, Vicar of Faringdon, and Mr. G. Webley, branch secretary. Some skilful work has also been done in our world-famous Appleton tower, with the result that the bells now go better than perhaps they have ever gone before. Our peal total is certainly a small one, and I think it will be found that there is a drop in the total number of peals rung by the Exercise generally last year. There is such a thing as overdoing it, but in the Oxford Guild at present there is no danger of this. The majority of our peals have been rung by mixed bands—and all credit to them—but it is a pity that the days seem to have gone by when we had several local bands ringing peals on their own or on neighbouring bells. One result of this was good service ringing, and another that the young and keen beginner had an opportunity of achieving his natural and laudable ambition and proving himself a ringer by taking part in a peal in the method he had been learning. Speaking of young ringers, it will have been noticed that the question of recruits which I dealt with in my last report has since figured largely in the columns of 'The Ringing World.' It has been, and is to be, the subject of conference whenever possible at all large and representative gatherings of ringers. In view of this, and at the same time in order to help if I can the many perplexed and despairing foremen of towers in this Guild, I invite letters from any young ringers stating their views as to why there is not a better supply of young church bell ringers, and why those who do take up church bell ringing so often turn it down after a comparatively short time. I do not intend to do more than briefly acknowledge the letters, but I want the information, which I intend to use without reference to the source from whence it comes. I acknowledge with gratitude the great help I have again received from the treasurer and secretary.

HOW FUNDS MIGHT BE EXPENDED.

The Hon. Treasurer, in his report, said the statement of accounts for 1926 showed a balance of £116 9s. 10d., as compared with £86 7s. 2d. the previous year. The increase is accounted for by the small attendance at the annual festival—a decrease of 61 as compared with 1925—and no grants were made from the Restoration Fund. The total expenses were £24 less than the previous year. Attention was again called to the importance of members paying their subscriptions at the beginning of the year, instead of at the end. The balances in the hands of the branches amounted to £158, which showed that the Guild had been very generous in allowing half the subscriptions for expenses. The various branch balance sheets showed that care had been taken in spending funds, and although it was necessary to have a balance in hand, there was no special object in accumulating a large sum. The Treasurer reminded the branch committees that one object of the Guild was to cultivate the art of change ringing. The Master had called attention to the fact that there was considerable difficulty in obtaining young men as ringers, and that many who began to learn gave it up in a very short time. If the branches would carefully consider the question and see if they could not do something in the way of organising bands of change ringers to go to the towers in need of instruction, and give a helping hand to young ringers, they might spend a portion of their funds in contributing towards the expenses, and thereby assisting in carrying out this important work. The branch treasurers deserved a word of praise for the work, often-times difficult, they did in carrying forward the interests of the Guild.

This report was adopted, as was also that of the secretary, as follows:—

Another year gone, and, on the whole, we can congratulate our Guild on maintaining its efficiency and usefulness. Our membership is well up to average, and although we have lost a few towers we have gained more than we have lost, the Banbury, Witney and Woodstock, and Vale of White Horse Branches being chiefly the sources of increase. Our membership for 1926 works out as follows: Towers 184 (increase of two), hon. members 194, ringing members 1,547, unattached and non-resident members 420; total 2,161. Ringing members increase 32, hon. members less 23, life and unattached 20 decrease. The peals, though far short in numbers compared to a few years ago, are interesting to think about. We have scored the whole gamut from 'London, Cambridge and Superlative Surprise Major to Grandsire Doubles.' After referring to some of the more noteworthy performances, the Secretary added: 'One is sorry to see members' names "starred," especially when the whole band belonging to a tower forget to pay their "halfpenny per week." This is a thing I would ask foremen of towers to see to. If ringers generally could only realise the work and anxiety that their branch secretaries put into their job I am sure the rank and file would be at more pains to help keep things going.' The Secretary concluded with thanks to the secretaries of branches for the help they gave him, and for the hearty welcome extended when he visited them.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

The Master was re-elected by acclamation, and the hon. treasurer and secretary were similarly re-elected.

There were twelve members to be elected to the committee. The Secretary moved that the eleven following be re-elected: Messrs. J. F. Barlow, J. Evans, G. Cudwell, G. Holfield, E. Humphrey, W. Hibbert, sen., G. Martin, R. White, A. D. Cullum, H. Sear and J. W. Wilkins. The twelfth, Mr. F. Webb, had gone from them, and that left one vacancy to be filled.

The name of Miss Vera Robinson was proposed, and the Master, in endorsing the motion, said they would welcome Miss Robinson, not only for what she herself did for the Guild, but her election would be just something which they could do to show they had not forgotten one who was a prime mover in starting the Guild, and was their first and great Master.—The motion was carried with applause.

Canon Coleridge gave his customary interesting review of the Central Council meeting. He had, he said, attended every one of the 35 meetings which the Council had held since it was inaugurated, and had reported to the Guild upon each of them. Canon Coleridge commented on each item on the agenda. The Oxford Guild had again been honoured, because for the third time the Council insisted on re-electing him as president, and they had also re-elected the Master of the Guild as the honorary librarian. Mr. Young remained as hon. secretary and treasurer, and they were, therefore, a very happy family at the head of it. Referring to the motion on the extension of Superlative, Canon Coleridge said the subject was discussed by the learned bigwigs of the ringing world, but it was far above most of the members. As far as he could say, there were about three on one side and three on the other, and as opinions seemed to be pretty evenly divided the discussion was closed without any definite agreement being come to, but they parted quite amicably (laughter and applause). Canon Coleridge also referred to the question of diplomas for young ringers, and hoped it would be considered by all the associations before next year. He also touched on the important work before the two new committees which were appointed to deal respectively with the question of broadcasting of bell ringing and the legal position of ringers. The meeting, said Canon Coleridge, was a very interesting and useful one, and many of those who were able to attend, apart from the actual business done, were able to enjoy themselves, thanks to the arrangements made by Mr. Young and others. The next meeting was to be held at Hereford, and he hoped he might have the privilege of reporting to the Guild upon that meeting next year.

The Master moved a vote of thanks to Canon Coleridge for his report. He said it was a most difficult meeting to preside over, and the Canon did it extremely well.

The meeting then considered the various recommendations of the committee, the first of which was that the festival in 1928 be held at Oxford. Slough to be the alternative if Oxford was unavailable.

Mr. A. D. Barker proposed that the meeting be held at Slough, but on being put to the vote Oxford was selected by 70 votes to 15.

MEMBERS HONOURED.

The Master proposed the adoption of the next recommendation of the committee, viz., that Mr. J. F. Parker be made a vice-president of the Guild. He said he was very pleased to do this, because last year he had to refuse the proposal for reasons which he would not now go into, but which reasons no longer existed. Mr. Parker was one who was not only a great ringer, who in the past had done so much for the Guild, but he was a talented composer, and had been a prominent figure in the Exercise.—Mr. J. Evans seconded, and the Rev. R. H. Hart-Davis supported the motion. Mr. Parker and himself, he said, were the only two survivors of the original committee formed in 1881, and he was particularly glad that Mr. Parker should thus come back into touch with the Guild.—The motion was carried with applause.

The Master said he had a matter which he was going to throw at the meeting. Canon Coleridge had been a worry to him for many years, because he had never known how to deal with him (laughter). He ought to be something far higher than he was (applause). He proposed, with the consent of the meeting, to ask Canon Coleridge to accept office as vice-president (loud applause).

The Secretary asked to be allowed to second the motion. 'I have known him many years,' said Mr. Hibbert, 'and he was a tall chap when I first knew him (laughter). I knew, when the Master said he was throwing this at you, that you would catch it (laughter). We shall never get a much bigger chap than Canon Coleridge to sit on our committees or give us good advice when we need it' (laughter and applause).—The motion was carried with applause.

Canon Coleridge, in acknowledging his election, said the honour had come upon him quite unexpectedly. He was perfectly content to serve the Guild as a humble trustee, with two others, as he had done for some years, and he was chairman of the Sonning Deanery Branch. He was content, and always had been, to hold the most humble positions and do anything he could for the good of the Guild. If his name might add force to anything the Guild did, he was only too pleased that they should print his name in an exalted position. He thanked them very much for associating him with Mr. Parker as vice-president. Mr. Parker was one of the first members of the Guild, and had been a mainstay of the Guild in the past. He felt greatly honoured at being coupled with him on the roll of the distinguished officers of the Guild.

NON-RESIDENT MEMBERS.

The Secretary moved the next recommendation of the committee: That the names of all non-resident life members should go together as new members of the general Guild. This, he said, was not intended to cause any ill-feeling with the officers of any branch, but to try to bring their annual report up to date. In practically every association when a man from outside the area became a non-resident life member he became a member of the Guild or association as a whole and not of the branch in which he was elected. In their own Guild these members were shown in the report as members of the different branches, and he hoped they would now alter that so that the names should all come together in the general Guild list. This would not affect the unattached resident members.—Mr. Trollope seconded.

Mr. A. D. Barker opposed the proposal. In the East Berks and South Bucks Branch they had as non-resident life members a good many ringers who were visitors from London, and who looked upon themselves as members of the branch, which was an association in itself before the Oxford Guild was formed. At present, the branch took half the subscriptions, and only one half went to the general funds. If the motion were passed, the branch would lose its share of the subscription and would not be quite so eager to invite ringers into its area in order to make them members. It would cut off a useful source of income to the branches, and might interfere with the grants which they could make to the bell restoration funds. In the East Berks and South Bucks Branch there were a number of non-resident members who, he thought, would dislike being taken from the branch list and put into the general Guild list. In addition to that, there were resident members of the branch who might remove and retain their membership with it by paying the non-resident subscription. If they were to lose their connection with the branch they might drop out altogether.

Mr. C. C. Mayne supported Mr. Barker, and referred particularly to the financial loss which the branches would sustain.

In the course of further discussion, the Master said that if the principle objection was the loss to the branches of the half of the subscription, they might get over the difficulty by allowing the branches still to retain the half-crown per member, and putting the names in the general list as proposed by Mr. Hibbert.

The motion was carried by 62 votes to 7, it being understood that the suggestion of the Master would be followed in regard to the division of the subscription.

BELL RESTORATION GRANTS.

The meeting next discussed grants for bell restoration. The Master said when the committee met the only application they had before them was that from St. Giles', Oxford, and they recommended £3 3s.

Since then they had had recommendations from the East Berks and South Bucks Branch meeting, held directly after the committee meeting, that grants should be made to Hughenden and Old Windsor. From the Banbury Branch they had had support for an application from Adderbury, and a few days ago they received applications from Hinton Waldrist, East Garston and Deddington. There seemed to be a good deal of restoration going on. The Guild had in the restoration fund £32 7s., of which they promised last year to give to Hagbourne £5 5s., subject to the work there being completed to his satisfaction. Having pointed out the claims of the various towers, the Master said he hoped they would not think the Guild was bound to spend all its money at once, nor that they were bound always to give more than a branch did. They had a great many applications, and their mistake in the past had been, in his opinion, that they had sometimes given big sums because they had only had one application.

Asked which parishes had got to shoulder the biggest burden, the Master said he thought Deddington, East Garston and Hughenden, and perhaps Old Windsor, where they had to restore another part of the church. He said, in reply to another question, that he would be surprised if the work in each case was not done before next year.

The Treasurer expressed the view that as a general principle they ought not to spend more than half the funds available in each year, but as they had such a big list he supposed they should deal with it in a special way. He would have no objection to meeting all these applications, but with smaller grants.

The Secretary said they had about £27 to spend on the best thing they could possibly spend it on, and that was the restoration of bells that were unringable. He suggested they should vote £3 to each of the seven towers.

Mr. Pole-Routh seconded.

The Treasurer said the branches held about £166 between them, and he thought they might give more generous grants to restorations. As long as the branches had enough in hand to pay their expenses for, say, two years, they might well give generously to these restorations. He added, in reply to a question, that no money was paid over until in each case the work had been carried out to the satisfaction of the Master.

The Secretary: All the while your worthy Master keeps going to towers and saying, 'You ought to have these bells rebung,' and the church authorities say, 'We will,' you will have these applications coming in (laughter).

The grant of £3 to each tower was agreed to.

The confirmation of the election of 179 new members was agreed to, and the business concluded with a vote of thanks to the preacher and organist, and to the Dean and Chapter of Christ Church for allowing the use of the cathedral and Chapter House.—Dr. Longford briefly replied.

The members then adjourned to the Carfax Assembly Rooms for lunch, and afterwards visited the various towers in the city for ringing.

PRESENTATION TO A LADY RINGER.

MISS D. G. FELTHAM LEAVING FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

Ringers of the Middlesex County Association, especially those of the South and West District, will regret to know that one of their lady members is leaving England for South Africa. Miss D. G. Feltham, of Hillingdon, has volunteered for work in the mission field, and sails from Southampton on August 5th to take up the post of music mistress in St. Peter's School for Girls at Grahamstown. Miss Feltham will be greatly missed in the parish in several branches of church work, and most of all in the belfry.

Her fellow ringers showed their appreciation on Saturday last, on the occasion of the annual outing of the Hillingdon band. During luncheon, the Vicar, the Rev. H. J. Kitcat, on behalf of the members of St. John's Guild, presented a camera to Miss Feltham. Whilst expressing regret at her departure, he wished her good luck in her new venture.

Miss Feltham will no doubt carry happy memories of this day. Leaving Hillingdon at 7.30 a.m., the party journeyed by motor to Oxford. The ride was very chilly, and hot coffee and rolls were in demand on arrival at the university city. After visiting the cathedral belfry, the ringers attended the Oxford Guild festival service at the Cathedral. The singing was greatly enjoyed.

An appetising luncheon was served at the City Restaurant, during which the presentation took place.

The Vicar, an old Keble man, took the party round that college, and Mr. Holman Hunt's picture, 'The Light of the World,' was greatly admired. After visiting some of the towers open for ringing, and, under the Vicar's guidance, the college chapels, the party adjourned for tea. After facing the camera in Christ Church quadrangle, a stroll through Christ Church meadows brought the party to the river and the college barges. Later, the motor was again boarded, and, after a halt at Henley, Hillingdon was safely reached at 10 p.m. Thanks were accorded to the Vicar for his kindness in guiding the members through the highways and by-ways of Oxford.

BIGGESTER, OXON.—On Sunday, July 24th, for evensong, a quarter-peat of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes): T. Clifton (first quarter away from tenor) 1, H. Hatfield 2, J. Evans 3, B. Cox 4, F. Neale (conductor) 5, W. Scarrott 6, E. Hims 7, W. Farmer 8.

DIVISION OF WINCHESTER DIOCESE.

A JOINT GUILD FOR WINCHESTER AND PORTSMOUTH.

A joint meeting of the Portsmouth and Isle of Wight Districts was held at Ryde on Saturday last, when, by kind permission of the Vicar, the peal of eight at All Saints' Church was available during the afternoon and evening. Some good ringing was indulged in, and useful practice obtained by some of the members in the higher methods.

After tea at the Welby Institute, the Master (Mr. G. Williams) gave the members an outline of the proposed constitution of the new Guild. The sanction of both the Bishops of Winchester and Portsmouth had been obtained to form a joint diocesan association, and it was proposed to hold a special general meeting in the autumn to launch the new association, which will take effect as from January 1st next.

It was also mentioned that proposals were on foot to make a larger number of districts with a maximum of 12 towers in each, so that they could be more easily visited and worked.

As this was not a recognised district meeting, no action could be taken, but the chat amongst the members was much appreciated.

At the conclusion, touches were rung on the handbells by several of the ringers. Further ringing was indulged in on tower bells until 8 p.m.; the methods rung including the standard methods and Superlative, Cambridge, London and Bristol Surprise Major. During the day, ringers were present from Brading, Carisbrooke, Fareham, North Stoneham, Portsmouth (St. Mary's and St. Thomas'), Ryde, Newport, Southampton, London and Manchester.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

EASTERN DIVISION.

The quarterly meeting of the Eastern Division of the Yorkshire Association was held at Market Weighton on Saturday, July 2nd, and was attended by some 30 members. The ring of six (tenor 9½ cwt.) was, by kind permission of the Rector, the Rev. R. J. King, M.A., available during the afternoon and evening. Service was held in All Saints' Church at 4.15 p.m., at which a very helpful and instructive address was given by the Rector, and was much appreciated by those present.

An excellent tea was afterwards served in the girls' school, Hungate, and was followed by the business meeting, the Rector presiding. Two new members were elected—Mr. P. Thompson, Market Weighton, and Mr. S. Fisher, of Beverley Minster. It was proposed that the place of the next meeting be Pocklington, and that permission be also asked for the bells of Nunburnholme, failing which the meeting be held at Eserick.

Reference was made to the long illness of the hon. secretary, Mr. A. B. Cook (Hull), who is now happily convalescent, and whose duties were kindly taken over by Mr. J. H. Howell (Hull).

On the motion of Mr. F. Cryer, Selby, seconded by Mr. A. Sellars, Beverley, a hearty and unanimous vote of thanks was accorded the Rector for the use of the bells and for the service, also to the ladies for serving tea, and to Mr. J. W. Kueshaw and the local ringers for their very efficient arrangements. The Rector, in responding, spoke of the very great pleasure the visit of the association gave to him and his ringers, and extended to the association a hearty invitation at any time, a generous offer which will be borne in mind for the near future.

This terminated a pleasant meeting at this delightful market town situated in the midst of the Yorkshire Wolds.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION. THE CLASH OF DISTRICT MEETINGS.

The quarterly meeting of the Lewisham District was held at St. Paulinus' Church, Crayford, on Saturday, July 23rd. The bells were raised at 3 p.m., and kept going in various methods throughout the afternoon and evening. Service was conducted by the Rector (Canon Gedge), who gave a very interesting address. Mr. W. G. Pitman, of Canterbury, officiated at the organ.

A splendid tea was supplied by the generosity of the local band, and was efficiently served by several ladies of the congregation, sixty members participating. At the conclusion of the meal, the Rector had to leave, after extending a hearty welcome to the company, on behalf of Crayford, and especially Mr. E. Barnett, Crayford's veteran ringer, who had made a splendid recovery from a recent serious illness.

Mr. I. Emery proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Rector for the use of the bells, for conducting the service, for his address, and for presiding at the social function. This was seconded by Mr. T. Groombridge, sen., and carried with applause.

The business meeting followed, the curate, the Rev. W. M. Salmon, being elected chairman. Seven new members were elected, and the election of two ringers previous to peals was confirmed.

Two places were nominated for the next, the annual district meeting, a welcome being assured at each, i.e., St. Luke's, Bromley Common, and St. John's, Eltham. On being put to the meeting, Eltham was chosen.

Mr. I. Emery called the attention of the meeting to the ambiguity of clause (d) Rule 4, and suggested that the meeting give him permission to raise the question at the committee meeting in November. It was agreed that Messrs. Emery, Groombridge and Jeffries should draft a proposed amendment to this rule, and submit the same at the annual district meeting, with a view to its being raised, with the district's approval, at the committee meeting in the following month.

Then followed a long and somewhat acrimonious discussion on the reasons for the clashing of meetings, and shifting of same from the place selected at the previous meeting. The Chairman briefly reviewed the opposing evidence in a masterly and very diverting manner. This restored good humour, and it was agreed to leave the necessary arrangements to be made as at present.

Mr. T. Groombridge proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman for his able and heartening direction of the meeting.—This was seconded by H. Warnett and carried with applause.

Mr. W. J. Jeffries proposed a similar vote to the local ringers and friends for their generous hospitality, to the ladies for their help and to Mr. Pitman for his services at the organ.—This was seconded by Mr. I. Emery and carried with applause.

This concluded the meeting, and the company returned to the tower for further ringing.

CANTERBURY DISTRICT.

A meeting of the Canterbury District was held at St. Nicholas on Saturday, there being thirty-six members present. After some very enjoyable ringing on the six bells, a short association service was held, the Rev. Griggs giving an address. The service concluded, the Vicar invited the members to the Vicarage for tea, which was held on the lawn amid picturesque surroundings.

In replying to a vote of thanks from the meeting, the Vicar remarked that thanks were due, not so much to him as to the local ringers' wives, who, he said, had been doing all the work and apparently were doing it now. Continuing, he said that it was a double pleasure to be able to welcome Rev. Canon Helmore to the meeting, as he (Mr. Griggs) had heard that Canon Helmore anticipated resigning his office as general secretary, and he took the opportunity of saying he hoped that this would not be the case for many years.

On behalf of the members, Mr. J. Sharp offered Rev. Canon Helmore hearty congratulations on the attainment of the golden anniversary of his wedding.

After tea, the ringers adjourned to the belfry, where the local band of ringers gave an unrehearsed exhibition of really good striking in a touch of Bob Doubles. Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, Stedman, Plain Bob, Cambridge Surprise and Graudsire were among some of the other methods attempted.

The following towers were represented: Canterbury, Wingham, Sturry, Horne, Swindon, Birchington and Littlebourne.

TONBRIDGE DISTRICT.

The quarterly meeting of the Tonbridge District was held at Hawkhurst on July 9th, the following places being represented: Tunbridge Wells (St. Peter's), Lamberhurst, Horsmonden, Penshurst, Frittenden, Linton, Staplehurst, Tenterden, Kilndown, Canterbury, Salehurst, Burwash, Mayfield, Smerden, Cranbrook and the local tower.

The eight bells in the Parish Church tower were kept going merrily during the afternoon. A service was held at half-past four, to which the public, as well as the ringers, were invited. Mr. W. E. Pitman, organist of St. Gregory's Church, Canterbury, and a ringing member of the association, presided at the organ. The local organist (Mr. G. A. Wenban), the parish clerk (Mr. J. Fillery) and the choirboys were in attendance. The Vicar (Rev. Cuthbert Compton) officiated, and delivered an appropriate address, which was followed by the ringers' hymn, 'Unchanging God, Who livest.'

Tea was afterwards served at the Eight Bells Hotel. The Vicar presided, and the organist (Mr. G. A. Wenban) and the parish clerk (Mr. J. Fillery) were also the guests of the association. A short business meeting on belfry matters followed.

Mr. F. White (Cranbrook) proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells, for conducting the service and presiding at the tea and meeting. The members, he said, also desired to return their thanks to the local organist (Mr. G. A. Wenban) and the choirboys for leading the singing. Furthermore, they had to express their gratitude to the parish clerk (Mr. J. Fillery) for his good offices, and to their old friend (Mr. W. E. Pitman) for presiding at the organ. The resolution was carried with applause.—The Vicar, in response, said it had been a pleasure to him to allow the meeting to be held at Hawkhurst, and he hoped the association would come again some time in the future.—Mr. Pitman also replied.

The District Hon. Secretary (Mr. W. Latter) of St. Peter's, Tunbridge Wells, proposed a vote of thanks to the local hon. secretary (Mr. G. Billenness) for having made such excellent arrangements for the meeting. This was heartily carried and suitably acknowledged.

The tower was again visited, and the bells kept going until nine o'clock. The methods practised were Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Double Norwich Court Bob Major, Cambridge Surprise Major and Superlative Surprise Major.

BARNSELY AND DISTRICT SOCIETY.

A monthly meeting of the Barnsley and District Association was held at Shelley on Saturday, July 9th, when members attended from Sandal, Horbury, Wath, Cawthorne, Darton, Darfield, Felkirk, Anston, Hoylandswaine, Barnsley and the local company. The afternoon was gloriously fine, and gave added charm to the village, which stands high and provides a view across a broad valley to the highest points of the Pennine mountains—a view too beautiful for words to describe. Add to this the sounds of a rare ring of bells, and the visitors felt they had got a thing of beauty and a joy for ever. Needless to say, the meeting was a full one, the bells were freely used, and the social amenities, with the cup that cheers, at the Gardeners' Arms, was followed by a business meeting. There was one sad note to mar the joys of the gathering. A vote of condolence was proposed by Mr. Rayner to the company of Horbury upon the death of Mr. George Barstow, a good and well respected ringer; to Mr. Herbert Rowley upon the sudden death of his wife, and to Barnsley on the death of Mr. Tom Bone, aged 76. Mr. Bone was a ringer of long standing, and, as towerkeeper, was always ready to welcome ringers to St. Mary's belfry.

The rest of the business was of the 'happy family' kind.

A committee meeting was ordered for July 26th at St. Mary's, Barnsley, and the next meeting will be held at Cawthorne.

The Shelley company were warmly praised for their excellent arrangements.

CITY RINGERS AT HARLOW.

On Saturday, July 23rd, the annual outing of St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate, ringers took place. Leaving Liverpool Street at 1.15, Harlow, Essex, was reached about an hour later. The Parish Church of St. Mary was at once visited, and some very good ringing was enjoyed by the party, which numbered fifteen. A nice walk through the fields brought them to the White Horse, Harlow Common, where an excellent tea was waiting. After tea, ringing at St. Mary Magdalen's Church, Harlow Common, took place on the musical peal of eight (tenor 12 cwt.) by Taylor. This peal is a masterpiece and a great credit to the founders. The party were joined here by Mr. G. Dent and Mr. Snales of the local band, who took part in some of the touches. The ringing throughout the afternoon was good, not one touch being lost. The methods were London, Bristol, Cambridge, Superlative and Norfolk Surprise, Double Norwich Major and Stedman Triples. The outing was thoroughly enjoyed by all, and they take this opportunity of returning thanks to the officials at both churches for their kind reception, also to Mr. George Dent for arranging tea.

BRENTWOOD RINGERS IN KENT.

The ringers of St. Thomas' Church, Brentwood, held their annual outing on Monday, July 4th, when 38 members and friends journeyed by charabancs to Maidstone, which was reached soon after 10 a.m. Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Kent Treble Bob Major and Grandsire Caters were rung, several of the members having their first ring on ten bells at the Church of All Saints. The next stop was at Tenterden, where, unfortunately, owing to illness near the church, the bells could not be rung. After partaking of a splendid lunch, the party went on to Bencuden, where Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Double Norwich were rung, and then to Tunbridge Wells, where tea was ready. Afterwards, some of the party went to the Chalybeate Spring to drink the famous waters, while others made their way to the tower to enjoy an hour's ringing on the bells. Leaving Tunbridge Wells soon after 8 p.m., the excursionists reached home about 11.30, having spent a most enjoyable day.

PORTISHEAD, SOMERSET.—On Sunday, June 5th, for early morning service, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples: Miss B. Stadden 1, Miss A. Stokes (conductor) 2, Miss Stokes 3, Miss Stadden 4, Mr. Nisbet 5, Mr. Colbourn 6, Mr. Gillingham 7, Mr. Thomas 8.

MAKING THE MOST OF THE MONEY.

The attitude taken up by the Hon. Treasurer of the Oxford Diocesan Guild with regard to the expenditure of funds is one which may be commended to the attention of other ringing organisations. In the hands of the various districts there is a considerable amount of money and Mr. Wright is urging the expenditure of some of this cash upon work which will bring into the Guild the towers which are still outside it. Unfortunately not all of the Associations have surplus funds lying idle, but there are some which are thus favoured and who go on from year to year adding increment. A 'nest egg' against a rainy day is a cautious financial policy which Associations, like individuals, should follow, but there is no need in the case of organisations such as exist for the furtherance of change-ringing to lay up undue store. Indeed, associations would only be following out the objects for which they exist if they expended their funds on such work as Mr. Wright has advocated in his own Guild and for which there is scope in the majority of our societies. Money, rightly spent on propaganda, will bring its own return in larger membership and increased income and, therefore, looked at even from this point of view, is better invested in active operations than lying dormant in a bank.

Every Diocesan Guild and County Association, we believe, puts the cultivation of the art of change-ringing in the forefront of its objects, but few go systematically to work to carry out their professions. What is done is more or less casual, and the real spade work is that done voluntarily by individual members out of sheer love for ringing and, in many cases, of service to the Church. We have constantly urged that more organised effort should be expended on propaganda and missionary work, which is bound in the long run to repay the associations which undertake it. What often happens at present is that a primary course of instruction is given and the band which has been under tuition is then left to its own devices, with the result that interest, from lack of sufficient knowledge, may quickly flicker out, whereas if the assistance given were carried on to a stage somewhere beyond the mere elements of change-ringing, sufficient enthusiasm would probably be created to lay the foundation of an active and progressive company.

Another matter which the Treasurer of the Oxford Guild rightly stressed, as being worthy of the attention of branches with available funds, is the desirability of contributing generously to bell restorations. Admittedly church authorities should keep their bells and belfries in order, but it is a graceful act, as well as being good business, to show church folk that while we get pleasure out of ringing the bells, we are ready when the time comes to do our part, as far as we are able, in helping to put them into good order so that they may be more readily used for their primary purpose. Most associations now have their special restoration funds, but few follow the example of the Oxford Guild in voting grants from the District coffers.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD. THE MASTER AND THE RINGERS' OFFICE.

The annual meeting of the Banbury Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild was held at Banbury on July 16th, and was a very successful gathering. Ringing during the afternoon was followed by a service, which was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. Canon A. J. Jones), and at which the Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn (Master of the Guild) was the preacher. His address was based upon the text, 'I will magnify mine office' (Rom. xi. 13). St. Paul, he said, by habit magnified everything that claimed to be from the hand of God. He had learnt Christ and magnified his own conversion. He liked to make that loom out, and all through his life he was trying to make himself worthy of his calling. He magnified the fact that he was a Roman citizen, and, above all, that he was not merely a follower of Jesus Christ but an apostle. In the same spirit let them think of their office as church bell ringers and try and magnify it. First of all, it was necessary to see how the office had come down to them from earliest times. There was little heard about the office until fifty years ago, when the various Guilds came into being throughout the country, and took in hand the question of the bell ringer. Although there was no accurate history, they could delve into the past, and ought to recognise what was done in the early days by the first pioneers. They, however, knew very little about their religious habits or their sincerity as churchmen, but they had their writings and the accomplishments that had come down, for which they ought to show their appreciation. They did not, for instance, hold meetings such as that fifty years ago, for there were no Guilds to keep the ringers together, and they had no combination for the betterment of the art and the religious side. There was a real friendship in bell ringing, and he himself would feel very lonely if all his ringers' friendships were taken away. In one's bell ringing friendships were formed, which were a spiritual help. In that way they were following more closely in the steps of the Lord Jesus Christ, and could magnify the office by adding more praise and lustre to it by meeting together and considering how best they could bring their ringing to the highest level. He was quite certain the majority of the clergy in the parishes would welcome suggestions from the ringers as to how they could put the whole question of bell ringing on a high level.

THE BUSINESS MEETING.

After the service a tea was held in the Church House, and the annual meeting was presided over by the Rev. C. F. Cholmondeley, of Adderbury.

Mr. R. R. Lewis, the local secretary and treasurer, presented the balance sheet, which showed an income of £9 19s. 10½d., and an expenditure of £5 7s. He said he was pleased to report a very successful year. The meetings had been well attended, upwards of forty members being present on each occasion. The membership had been increased to seventy-four, including one non-resident life member, and out of that number only four had neglected to pay their subscriptions. Two towers had been transferred to their branch, and they had secured a member from Duns Tew who would, he hoped, influence the other ringers to join from that tower. One peal had been rung for the branch, viz., Grandsire Triples at Banbury, also five members had taken part in a peal of Stedman Triples at Great Tew, Mr. Leonard Clifton, of the local company, ringing the tenor to his first peal. The members at Lower Heyford were tackling Grandsire Doubles with a zest which he was sure would bring them ultimate success. Joint practices had been arranged at Bodicote, and several of the Banbury company attended with a view to assisting the Adderbury and Deddington companies, but the bells proved to be too much of a handful for beginners in change ringing. A visit was also paid to Adderbury with the same result, but he was hopeful that when the rehanging of the bells was complete they would see better progress. There was a difference of £1 10s. between last year and the present one in the amount of honorary members' subscriptions, but he trusted that amount would be forthcoming. Two honorary members had been lost during the year, one by death and the other by removal.

The question of an application for a grant towards the restoration of the bells at Deddington was then discussed.

The Rev. C. W. O. Jenkyn said that when applications came before the Guild they wanted to know what backing there was from the branch. If they could hear that at Deddington there was a definite proposition which could be put before the general Guild, he was sure it would be entertained. In the case of Adderbury they had a definite proposition, because the work was half done. He could not help feeling that it would be better to leave the application for another year.

Mr. R. T. Hibbert (general secretary of the Guild) and Mr. A. J. Wright (general treasurer) were of the same opinion, and it was decided to leave the matter over for twelve months.

The Rev. C. F. Cholmondeley then outlined to the meeting what had been done at Adderbury. It had been estimated that rehanging the bells would involve a sum of £520, but in addition to that the sixth bell was cracked, and to be recast would bring the amount to £575. The order was given to the firm without having a penny in hand, and their action had been so far justified, for £407 had been promised, and he hoped before very long to see them all ringing in the Adderbury tower. Everything had been done, he might say, under the supervision of the Master, and it had been done well.

A grant of £21 was made to Adderbury.

Six new ringers from Great Tew were admitted, and it was proposed that the next place of meeting should be Great Tew.

The Secretary said they had been to every tower affiliated to the branch, and he considered it would be better to visit some of the other towers with a view to getting new members, such as Shennington and Wroxton. They wanted to get members into the branch, for the more they had the more they would be able to pay for instructors, and larger grants could be made for restoration.

It was, however, decided to hold the next meeting at Great Tew on October 15th.

The Rev. C. F. Cholmondeley was elected chairman, and the Rev. W. E. McFarlane vice-chairman.

Mr. R. R. Lewis was unanimously re-elected as hon. secretary and treasurer, and Mr. T. Simons was elected to represent the local branch on the General Guild Committee.

'MISSIONARY' WORK ADVOCATED.

Mr. A. J. Wright congratulated the Banbury Branch on their balance sheet, which showed they were progressive. There was no special object, however, in hoarding up a large balance. Their secretary had suggested that they should make journeys round to the towers not in the Guild, and he would suggest that the branches might spend their money in that way in order to help the small hands along. He mentioned that at each meeting, and he hoped the Banbury and District Branch would do some missionary work in that respect, for the more they got in the Guild the more they could help the work. With regard to the restoration grants, some little time ago a restoration fund was started, and they had got together a sum of £26, and were now in a position to help any tower that came forward. He congratulated the secretary on his work, and he hoped the branch would continue to increase so that by next year he would be able to hear they had doubled their membership.

Mr. R. T. Hibbert said the more they supported the Guild the more the Guild would support the branch. He would also like to take the opportunity of congratulating Mr. Lewis on the work he had done in connection with that branch. Some branches started like a weakly child and died out, while others got senile decay, but their branch had never gone back, and that was due, he thought, to their energetic secretary. He was very pleased to be with them that day, and if they continued to increase their membership they would be one of the strongest branches in the Guild.

The Chairman said they were grateful to the Guild secretary and treasurer for their remarks. He was sure they did not wish to become one of those weak branches mentioned by the secretary, and he did not think they would die of senile decay, as they had not been in existence very long.

Mr. Hibbert expressed a vote of thanks to Canon Jones for the use of the church and the bells, to Mrs. Palmer for her assistance at the organ, and to the Master of the Guild for his interesting address.

The members then adjourned to the tower for further ringing.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

MEETING OF CENTRAL DIVISION AT BOLNEY.

Situate just off the main London to Brighton road, and about 4½ miles from the nearest railway station, is this interesting Sussex village, Bolney—historical as possessing the earliest peal of eight bells in the county (date 1724). Here, on Saturday week, a meeting of the Central Division of the Sussex Association was held. The tower was open for ringing at 2.30, and at 4 o'clock a service was held. This was conducted by the Vicar of Bolney, the Rev. E. W. Michell, who also presided at an excellent tea, which followed in the garden behind the Eight Bells Inn, and which had been provided for the forty-three present by the kindness of Mr. A. Hicks, one of the churchwardens.

At the business meeting, the Vicar of Bolney was in the chair, supported by the Master of the association (Mr. J. T. Rickman) and Mr. W. J. Brown, churchwarden. The following new members were elected: G. Oliver, Crawley; E. Dancey, Hurstpierpoint; E. Packham, J. Sayers, Twineham; H. Arnold and William Harrison, Bolney. The election of the following non-resident members was confirmed: E. J. Hobbs, Husbourn Crawley, Beds; W. H. Shuker, Manchester; Miss N. E. Shorter, Walton-on-Thames; Albert Crawley, Crawe; F. H. Crawley, Crewe; and E. J. Dobbie, Sittingbourne, Kent.

The Hon. Secretary announced that copies of the annual report could be obtained from the divisional secretaries, price 3d., by post 4d.

The collection taken at the service, on behalf of the Benevolent Fund, amounted to 13s. 2d.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the Master proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Vicar of Bolney for the use of the bells and the service, coupling with this the name of the generous donor of the tea.—This was enthusiastically received, and, the Vicar having replied, the proceedings terminated.

An adjournment was made to the tower, and ringing continued until shortly before eight, the methods brought round ranging from Grand-sire to Cambridge Surprise.

The following towers were represented: Billingshurst, Bolney, Brighton (St. Peter's and St. Nicholas'), Cuckfield, East Grinstead, Heene, Henfield, Hurstpierpoint, Koymer, Lewes (Southover), Lindfield, Shipley, Shoreham, Twineham, also unaffiliated and non-resident members.

CHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

FORTIETH ANNUAL FESTIVAL.

The fortieth annual festival of the Chester Diocesan Guild was held on Saturday, July 23rd, at Grappenhall, the quiet Cheshire parish of which the Ringing Master of the Guild, Rev. C. A. Clements, is Rector. The attendance, though not as large as in former years, was representative of the whole diocese, and a very enjoyable meeting was the result. Ringing took place at the Parish Church and at several neighbouring churches, including Lymm, one of the heaviest rings in that part of Cheshire. This was followed by a service, an excellent tea, and the business meeting, after which more ringing closed the day.

At the service, Rev. Canon F. W. Dwelly, M.A., ceremoniarus of Liverpool Cathedral, was to have preached the Guild sermon, but was prevented, by the death of his father the day before, from being present. In his place, Rev. C. M. Johnston, Vicar of Thelwall, preached an instructive sermon on prayer. Prayer, he said, is an act of reverence to our King and Creator: it is not a shopping list by which to obtain our daily needs with the least trouble. It is rather the act of the creature to the Creator. Prayer should consist of five elements. First, there is confession, which, with contrition, is, as it were, the doormat of the approach to God. This is to be followed by homage and praise to His Holy Name. Next comes thanksgiving for blessings already received. After that, the fourth and biggest element is intercession or prayer for others. Not till then may we ask for our own personal needs. God's answer to prayer is either, Yes, No, or Wait.

The rest of the service was conducted by the Master, Rev. C. A. Clements, and the secretary, Mr. E. W. Elwell, read the lesson.

At the business meeting, after the routine business was finished, Rev. C. A. Clements was re-elected Master, Rev. A. T. Beeston treasurer, and Mr. E. W. Elwell secretary. The following honorary members were elected to the committee: Rev. H. A. Haworth, Rev. J. St. L. Blakeney, Rev. W. R. Ingham, Rev. A. Ball, and Messrs. T. Ashworth, H. A. Heywood and H. Fairclough. Ringing representatives were elected as follows: Messrs. J. Perkey, W. T. Holding, J. Morgan, W. Bibby, T. Mottershead, S. Ashmore, and S. F. Barnes.

Grants in aid of the restoration of bells were confirmed to Farndon and Christleton towers.

Discussion then centred on the question of the introduction of a membership card, and several interesting points of view were expressed, but it was finally decided that the disadvantages far outweighed the advantages.

Some reference was also made to three peals, each rung on the same day, which all claimed to be the thousandth peal for the Guild, and for which a board had been offered. This offer was finally withdrawn, and it was decided not to discuss the matter further.

A report of the proceedings of the Central Council was presented by Mr. R. D. Langford and received with interest, particularly in respect of that part dealing with nomenclature.

It was decided to hold the next annual meeting on Easter Monday, 1928, at St. George's Church, Stockport.

The meeting terminated with the usual vote of thanks, and afterwards a photograph of those present was taken.

After the meeting, the 'whole pull and stand' was rung in memory of Mr. Pryce Taylor, of Loughborough, who was an honorary member of the Guild.

MUCH STEADY ENDEAVOUR.

In the annual report it was stated that the year under review has been one not marked by violent changes or obvious and far-sweeping reform, but by the more difficult, if less spectacular, work of maintenance at its present standard of the art of ringing in the diocese. This does not mean that no progress has been accomplished; on the other hand, much steady endeavour has been made throughout the area to reach a higher level of performance, and to see that bells are maintained in good condition.

Attention was directed to one or two features of the accounts. 'The year ended with a slightly increased cash balance, but this would not have been so had it not been possible temporarily to reduce expenditure. In this connection the cost of printing the report was rather less than the year before. Stocks of printing were nearly sufficient to supply all needs, and practically no new work was required; this will not be so next year. On the credit side of the account the total of members' subscriptions is rather less, and those outstanding have risen in number. May we again make an appeal to members,' says the report, 'to pay the small subscription promptly to enable our work to be carried on and to avoid extra expense in collecting it? It has long been desired to revise the subscription basis of contribution to Guild and branch, but this work cannot be undertaken until it can be done with safety. The membership figures show little change compared with last year, but the number of outstanding subscriptions, particularly in the Bowden and Stockport Branch, has increased. It is now 95, or 30 more than in the previous year. The comparative figures are as follows: Life members, 1925 2, 1926 2; hon. members, 68, 71; ringing members, 567, 564; total, 637, 637. The total number of peals rung, 84, is 13 less than last year, and there is only one new conductor. Thirteen members have rung their first peal. This does not compare too favourably with recent years, but the fact that no less than twenty-two different members have acted as conductors is encouraging. The variety of methods rung has increased, and first peals for the Guild have been scored in Little Bob Royal (in hand), Oxford Treble Bob Royal (in hand), London Surprise Major, Cambridge Surprise Royal, Belgrave Surprise Major, Clarendon Surprise Major, Double Bob Major (in hand), Reverse Bob Major (in hand), and there has also been a peal of Spliced Major. The general conditions of bells in the area is good. Restoration work, to which the Guild is asked to contribute, is in progress at Christleton and at Farndon, where the grouting of the tower is necessary, owing to the ravages of time and of a crack which has developed in the structure. The thanks of the Guild are again given to the branch secretaries, ringing instructors, and others who have wholeheartedly accorded their help during the past year.'

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT SWANSCOMBE.

The quarterly meeting of the Rochester District was held at Swanscombe, on Saturday, July 23rd, and was well attended. Ringing started at 3 o'clock, and the bells were going in various methods until five, when the association service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. E. F. Campbell Ward), an honorary member of the association. Mr. E. A. G. Allen, of Frindsbury tower, officiated at the organ. The Rector, in his address, held up to those present as an example the life of their late brother ringer, Mr. W. H. Harper, who at his decease was churchwarden at this church, and had been connected with the tower over 40 years. He stated that they in the district had a 'Harper' Memorial Fund in connection with the church, the form of which was not quite settled, but whatever form it took it would be recorded on a brass plate in a prominent position in the church.

The Rector and Mrs. Campbell Ward invited the company to tea, which was to have been served on their beautiful lawn, but owing to the uncertainty of the weather, it was partaken of in the Village Hall.

The business meeting followed, at which the Rector presided. Five new members (including one lady) were elected, and Chatham, Rainham and Frindsbury were proposed for the venue of the annual district meeting to be held on the last Saturday in October. After close voting and a recount, Chatham was declared carried.

Mr. W. Spice, who was unfortunately unable to be present, wrote asking for a meeting at Borden to try and raise interest in this district, and it was unanimously decided to hold a bye-meeting at that tower on the first Saturday in September, when the apples are ripe and the hops fit to pick.

The district informed the meeting that an appeal from the Bénévolent Fund, on behalf of Mr. F. Draper, of Northfleet, was successful, the committee having granted £5. Having obtained permission of the Rector for a collection for the 'Harper' Memorial Fund, 25s. was subscribed by those present.

The only 'growl' was from the energetic ex-R.E., who has retired and taken up a permanent residence at Rainham, who complained that in the report no notice was given of the Sunday ringing and practice night at that tower, so for the information of intending visitors we are asked to state that the hours are: Sundays, 10-11 and 5.30-6.30; practice, Tuesdays, 7.30-9.

Mr. W. Haigh proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Rector and Mrs. Campbell Ward for so kindly entertaining the members to tea, and for allowing them to visit Swanscombe once more, also to Mr. Allen for presiding at the organ. He also feelingly referred to the sad loss the association, and more especially Swanscombe, had sustained in the loss of Mr. W. H. Harper, whom he had known and been associated with for over 40 years. He knew he would never meet a better man.

The Rector, in responding, said he had found out that it was just three years ago when they visited Swanscombe, and he hoped they would not leave it so long before they came again. That was how much he appreciated the visit. He also thanked them for the collection towards the memorial fund.

After touches on handbells, the tower was again visited, and 'rounds' for beginners, standard methods to Cambridge and Superlative were successfully brought round, when the bells were lowered on another successful and harmonious meeting in this district. Over 40 ringers attended, and it was pleasing to notice the presence of lady friends (ringers and otherwise), not forgetting the female correspondent of a local newspaper, who wanted all the news, more especially who had 'won the bell-ringing contest that had taken place' in opposition to a band contest that was held in an adjacent meadow. The district secretary heaved a sigh of relief when he managed to free himself from her cross-examination.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the St. Albans District was held at Harpenden on Saturday week, and was attended by a good number of ringers from various towers, including two 'youthful' visitors in Messrs. J. Waghorn and J. A. Dart. Various methods, including Cambridge Surprise, were rung, and after tea the business meeting was held, Mr. B. Jarman being voted to the chair. The principal business was the arrangement of a joint meeting with the Middlesex Association at Northaw on Saturday, August 20th, and this was approved by those present. The next meeting after that will be held at St. Albans on October 1st.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the incumbent for the use of the bells and to Mr. Jarman, of the local band. The tower was again visited, and ringing carried on till 8 p.m.

MIDLAND COUNTIES ASSOCIATION. NOTTINGHAM DISTRICT.

A very successful ringing meeting of the Nottingham District was held at Colston Bassett on Saturday, July 23rd, when about 20 ringers assembled from ten different towers. The methods rung were Grandsire Triples, Bob Major, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, Stedman Triples and Double Norwich. Although the methods were not very high, what was rung was rung well on the beautiful bells. After the bells had been lowered in peal, a few tunes were played on them by a well-known musician. On the way back to Nottingham, a short stay was made at Cotgrave, where 120 Single Oxford and a 720 of Kent Minor were rung: Miss Thompson 1, J. Walden (Lincoln) 2, S. Pinder 3, H. Haynes (Hough-on-the-Hill) 4, H. Squires (Hough-on-the-Hill) 5, Frederick W. Bailey (conductor) 6.

LEICESTER DISTRICT.

A successful quarterly meeting of the Leicester District was held on Saturday, July 9th. The six bells of Groby Church were set going about 3.15 p.m., touches of Grandsire Stedman and Plain Bob Doubles and Kent Treble Bob and Bob Minor being rung. The members partook of a good tea at a cottage not far from the church, after which Ratby belfry was visited, and ringing enjoyed on the six bells. A short business meeting was held in the belfry. In the absence of the local vice-president, Mr. J. Clarke, of Wigston, was voted to the chair.

Four new ringing members were elected, and it was decided to hold the September meeting at Thurcaston and Anstey. The bells were kept going till about 8.15, and a set of handbells belonging to the local ringers was also brought into use, touches of Bob Minor and Grandsire Triples being rung.

A SOMERSET ADVANCE.

The first 720 of Surprise rung in the Midsomer Norton District of Somerset was achieved at the village of Chilcompton, on Thursday, July 28th, when 720 of Cambridge Surprise Minor was scored: R. E. Beck 1, J. T. Dyke (conductor) 2, H. G. Pearce 3, W. C. Shute 4, R. G. Beck 5, C. F. Andrews 6.

MARSHFIELD.—At St. Mary's Church, on June 22nd, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes) in 40 mins.: C. Harding 1, J. H. Beazer 2, E. Beazer 3, H. Woodham 4, H. Hinton 5, E. Lewis 6, G. Robinson (first quarter-peal as conductor) 7, R. Swift (first quarter-peal) 8.—On the following day, June 23rd, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260) in 42 mins.: C. Harding 1, J. H. Beazer 2, F. J. Beazer (first quarter-peal) 3, H. Woodham 4, H. Hinton 5, E. Lewis 6, G. Robinson (conductor) 7, R. Swift 8.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD. DORCHESTER BRANCH MEETING.

A quarterly meeting of the Dorchester Branch was held at Abbotsbury, and a pleasant and instructive time was spent. The 'touches' rung included Stedman Doubles, Bob Minor, Kent Treble Bob, and Grandsire Doubles. Considerable pleasure was afforded by a visit to the Earl of Ilchester's gardens, under the guidance of the Vicar (Archdeacon W. S. Moule). A service was conducted in the church by the Vicar, who gave an interesting and inspiring address. By the generosity of the Vicar and Church Council, tea was provided in the Parish Hall for the members and choir, and was much appreciated.

At the business meeting that followed, the chair was taken by Mr. R. N. Dawes (chairman of the branch), supported by Archdeacon Moule, Rev. C. D. Job (Vicar of West Lulworth), Col. H. D. Robson, Mr. T. Hervey Beams (assistant general secretary), and Mr. W. J. Benger (hon. secretary of the branch). The towers represented were Abbotsbury, Bradford Peverell, Charminster, Dorchester St. Peter, Fordington St. George, and West Lulworth. Letters of apology at inability to attend were received from the members at Puddletown, Buckland Newton, Bere Regis, Wool, and Wyke Regis.

The Chairman expressed his pleasure at seeing such a good attendance at that the first meeting of the branch at Abbotsbury, and said it was through the interest taken by Archdeacon Moule that the meeting had been held there. The Chairman cordially thanked Archdeacon Moule and Mr. Hutchings for providing the tea, and the ladies who had waited upon them, and also the organist and choir for their contribution to the service. He extended a hearty welcome to Mr. Hervey Beams, the Litton Cheney ringers, Messrs. W. Shute (Buckhorn Weston), H. Andrews, E. Cook (Templecombe), C. Hirst (Dorchester), F. Lovelace (Henstridge), and A. Tout (Taunton St. Mary's).

Sincere regret was expressed by the Chairman at the death of two former members, Mr. J. Harvell (West Lulworth) and Mr. Bishop (Swanage), who was present at the last quarterly meeting at Bere Regis, and at the chairman's suggestion the members stood in silence in token of sympathy with the relatives.

Archdeacon Moule said he was very proud to welcome them all to Abbotsbury, and he trusted that the meeting would be attended with much success.

Mr. William Coombs was elected as a life ringing member, and the meeting endorsed the election of Mr. C. Dart as a member for Fordington St. George.

The pleasing announcement was made by Mr. Beams that change ringing was on the increase in the Guild.

On the proposition of the Rev. C. D. Job, seconded by Mr. Beams, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded with acclamation to the chairman. At the close of the business the members returned to the tower and further ringing was indulged in.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Mr. R. Kilby, who has been connected for 55 years with the bells at St. Mary's Church, Willesden, where he married in 1877, celebrated his golden wedding on Thursday of last week.

A peal tablet recording the record length of Treble Bob (17,824 changes) will be unveiled at Heptonstall on August 27th. It is hoped that all the band who took part, including Mr. Gabriel Lindoff, from Dublin, and Mr. Arthur Peglar, from Bangor, will be present.

Mr. W. T. Poston, a member of the Bridstow (Herefordshire) band, has just received notification that he has been successful in passing the final examination of the London Association of Accountants, Ltd. Admission as an associate of the association is granted to those who have passed the final examination and satisfy the Council as to general suitability and wide accountancy experience.

The first peal of Grandsire Royal was rung at Painswick on August 6th, 1815.

Thurstauns called his famous peal of Stedman for the first time on August 8th, 1842. His achievement in composing this masterpiece set the seal on his fame.

'Silent' peals of Stedman Triples, or of any method for that matter, are still a rarity, and the one rung at Drayton by the Oxford Guild on August 7th, 1899, is, therefore, worth recalling.

Mr. Tom Hensher is now 'mine host' of the Prince of Wales, Finedon, Northants. Letters from old friends will be greatly appreciated, and a hearty welcome accorded to all campanologists.

AN EARLY BELL FOUNDER.

INTERESTING FACTS REVEALED IN ANCIENT CHRONICLE.

In the course of his interesting sermon to the members of the Oxford Diocesan Guild at Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford, on Saturday week, Dr. Longford referred to the casting of an ancient bell recorded in the chronicle of the Monk of St. Gall.

We are indebted to Dr. Longford for the following translation of the passage quoted by him from the Latin text.

The Monk of St. Gall wrote reminiscences of the times of Charles the Great. The chronicle was written in the year A.D. 884, and deals with an incident of about the year A.D. 800:—

'Tanco, a former monk of St. Gall, cast a very fine bell, and the Emperor was above measure astonished at its tone. This outstanding (but in the event most unlucky) coppersmith therefore said: "My Lord Emperor, let me have a large quantity of copper to smelt to purity, and in place of the requisite amount of tin let me have at least 100lb. of silver, and I will cast you such a bell that this poor thing will be mute in comparison." Then Charles, who was most liberal of kings—for though riches poured in upon him he set not his heart upon them—at once ordered all to be provided which the monk demanded. He, miserable man, took them and departed in high glee. He smelted the copper, skimmed it, and introduced in place of the silver the purest tin, and in a short time perfected from the amalgam a bell much more wonderful, which, when tested, he presented to the Emperor. The Emperor, having expressed his pleasure at its incomparable shape, ordered it, when fitted with its iron clapper, to be hung in a bell tower. This was done without delay. The Rector of the church, the other chaplains, and, finally, inexperienced persons who were standing about, one after the other strove to make the bell ring, and were totally unable. At last, enraged, the fraudulent bell maker snatched the rope and pulled the bell, and at once the iron clapper, slipping from its position, fell upon him in his iniquity, piercing his head and impaling his corpse, till it struck the ground. The silver was afterwards found and given by the Emperor to the poorer servants about his court.'

The interest of this passage lies in (1) the early account of the nature of bell metal, (2) the weight of bell (at least 3 cwt.) which was cast at that early period, (3) the fact of its part in establishing the fact that the Irish were noted bell makers (as we know later from the Life of Dunstan), (4) the early custom that the normal bell ringer was an ecclesiastical person. It is possible that this account of the Monk of St. Gall (Book I., chapter 29) has hitherto been unnoticed by those who have studied the history of bells.

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD. GUILDFORD DISTRICT.

A very enjoyable meeting was held at the six-bell tower of Worpleston on Saturday, July 16th, over thirty members being present from Aldershot, Ash, Cobham, Godalming, Guildford (Holy Trinity and St. Nicolas'), Shalford and Witley, and the local company. The bells were available from three o'clock, and a service was held at 4.30, conducted by the Rector (the Rev. J. Collingwood Bruce), who also gave an excellent address. The Guild form of service was used, and Miss K. Avenell, one of the ringers, presided at the organ. Tea was provided on the Rectory lawn by the kindness of the Rector and Mrs. Bruce.

After tea, a short business meeting was held, presided over by the Rector. Three new members were elected, and the place for the next meeting was decided on, Dunsfold being chosen.

The usual vote of thanks was passed to the Rector and Mrs. Bruce for providing the tea, to Miss Avenell for presiding at the organ, and to the local company for having everything in readiness.

A BEGINNER'S THEORY.

We commence this week a series of articles which have been specially written for beginners by 'Minormania,' to explain to them the theory of change ringing. These articles are not merely for perusal. If they are to serve the purpose for which they are intended they must be studied.

METHODS.

From the beginner's point of view, a method is composed of rows of figures, which vary when reading from left to right. A peal is not 5,040 'changes'; really, it is 5,040 rows of figures, all differing.

These rows are made up by bells changing position from the row above, IN PAIRS—bells which make a pair taking the places of each other. These pairs change simultaneously in the row, and each separate pair is a 'change.' One, two, three, or more pairs may change at the same time, to produce a fresh row—thus do we get rows of 'Singles,' 'Doubles,' 'Triples,' etc., that is to say, rows with a 'Single Change,' or with 'Double Changes,' etc.

For our immediate purpose we may take it:

(1) That a 'lead' is made up of a number of rows, the number being governed by the path of the treble bell, fresh rows being produced from the time she leaves the front, until she returns there for her whole pull; the second blow of her whole-pull on the front is both the lead-end row, and also the first row of the next lead; but more of this later.

(3) That the CHANGING PAIRS in the rows of each succeeding lead of a method will follow FAITHFULLY the pairs which change in the corresponding rows of the first lead. That is to say, if, in row No. 2 of the first lead the first and second pairs change, then the same pairs will change in row No. 2 of every lead—not the same BELLS, but the same PAIRS. If, in row No. 9 of the first lead, only the last pair change, then in row No. 9 of every other lead, only the last pair will change, and so on.

This latter may clearly be seen in the '24 changes' as they are called (Bob Minimus). Commence by changing two pairs, then the middle pair only; then follow on with, Both, Middle, Both, Middle, etc., until the treble gets to the front again, for the FIRST BLOW of her whole pull there.

The 1243 in the example is introduced merely to show how rounds are arrived at, and does not appear in the method until the end.

practically speaking, it is the end of the last lead.

Then in our example, 'second's place' is made (by 3) when the treble has her second blow on the front, the remaining pair change, and 1342 is the head of our next lead. (In Minor, this is done by either the bell in second's place or by the bell in sixth's place, hence the terms 'Second's Place Methods' and 'Sixth's Place Methods,' Plain Bob being an example of the former, and Double Court of the latter, but I will return to this later.)

Repeat the changing of the pairs from the second lead-head (1342), as is done in the first lead, first both pairs, then the middle pair only, and so on, until we come to 1432, when second's place is made (by 4), and we get 1423 as the head of the third lead. Repeat this procedure (from 1423), until we get 1243—the row which is shown above rounds—second's place (by 2) giving rounds, and we have completed a 'round block,' or course.

This is 'transposition by pairs.'

We may know then, that, given the first lead of any method, we can produce all of the rows in the plain course by following that lead. Therefore, it follows that the path of ANY ONE BELL through the whole plain course may be traced by reference to the figures of the first lead only. It is obvious that, if the pairs changing throughout all of the leads are similar to the pairs in the first lead, then the DIFFERENT BELLS which MAKE THOSE PAIRS must follow the same paths as those bells which go to make the SAME PAIRS in the first lead. In other words, the bell in second's place at each of the lead-heads must follow the same path as the bell in second's place (the 2) at the first lead-head (1234). So that if, in tracing the path of one particular bell throughout the plain course (say, the 2), we find that it is left in fourth's place at the head of the second lead (1342), our reasoning has shown that reference to the bell in the SAME PLACE at the head of the first lead (1234)—that is, the 4, in fourth's place—will give us the path to be taken by our bell (the 2) through the second lead of the plain course; and so on, with each 'place' in turn, until we come to the place from which we started, that is, second's place (at 1234).

Now, BECAUSE each lead of a method is a replica of the first lead, so far as the changing pairs are concerned, it is reasonable to assume that, if the order of the figures in the lead-head be altered, then the order of the figures in every row of that lead will likewise be altered. Therefore, provided that each lead-head differs from every other one, all of the rows should differ from each other. This is so, within limits which need not be explained here.

TRANSPPOSITION.

It has been seen that the path of each bell in a particular position (in the row) at ANY lead-head follows the path of the bell found in a corresponding position at the head of the first lead. Therefore, ANY BELL which replaces one of those in the first lead-head would occupy in the second lead-head the POSITION taken there by the bell which it has replaced. Thus:—

If the first lead-head be ... 1200 (or 1234)

And the second lead-head be ... 1002 (or 1342),

Then if 3 takes the position of 2 ... 1300 (at 1342)

It will travel to the same position that 2 did in the first lead ... 1003 (at 1423).

To put it in another way, suppose the first lead-head (1234) to be 'Station A,' and the POSITIONS in that row to be 'platforms 1-2-3-4,' the second lead-head (1342) to be 'Station B,' and the POSITIONS in that row ALSO 'platforms 1-2-3-4'—notice, platforms 1-2-3-4, and not platforms 1-3-4-2. Suppose the paths of the bells through the first lead to be set rails between one of the A platforms and a differently-numbered platform at B; regard the BELL NUMBERS as certain-numbered trains, and the different leads as different days.

Then, on the first day, train No. 1 leaves A1 and arrives at B1; train No. 2 leaves A2 and arrives at B4; No. 3 goes from A3 to B2; and No. 4 train from A4 to B3.

Now the alteration in the NUMBERS OF THE TRAINS starting from A and arriving at B has no bearing whatsoever upon the PLATFORMS and ROUTES. If, on the next day, No. 3 train leaves A2, it will still arrive at B4 on that day, although it is No. 3 train, because it travels on the set rails between A2 and B4, no matter what the train number is. This applies to all of the positions at the lead-heads, and, therefore, if a bell in the first and second lead-heads is placed 1004 to 1040, then the second lead-head being 1002 the third lead-head must be 1020, the second head having become 'Station A,' and the third head 'Station B.'

Here are the positions of the bells at the lead-heads placed in column form, and, in reading straight across, we readily see the similarity of transposition:—

Lead-heads.		Lead-heads.		Lead-heads.
First to Second.	Second to Third.	Third to Fourth.	(viz., the first again).
1234	1342	1342	1423	1423	1234

Thus are we able to determine what all of the lead-heads will be by transposition, without reference to the rows in between; we are given the first and second lead-heads as the example, and by reference to these two are able to discover the remainder.

In the same manner that we are able to determine these, so are we able to discover what ANY ROW within any lead will be by reference to the transposition between the first lead-head and the corresponding row in the first lead. If we are able to find the 'platforms' at the second lead-head by travelling the unalterable path from the first lead-head, then it follows that the 'platforms' of any station in between may be so determined. The lead-head (1234) becomes 'Station A,' and the corresponding row (in the first lead) to that row which we wish to find in another lead becomes 'Station B.'

Suppose that we wished to know what the fifth row in the third lead would be. Now the BELLS 1-2-3-4 are in the POSITIONS of 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th, at the first lead-head, and in row No. 5 of that lead the POSITIONS 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th are occupied by BELLS 4-3-2-1; in fact, the bells are just reversed. In the head of the third lead, the positions 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th are occupied by bells 1-4-2-3; therefore, row No. 5 of that lead will be the exact reverse of its lead-head—that is, 3241. In other words, the No. 4 train from platform 4 (at 1234) goes to platform 1 (at 4321); therefore, train No. 3 from platform 4 (at 1423) must also go to platform 1 (at 3241); and so on, with the other three bells.

THE FUNERAL OF MR. PRYCE TAYLOR.

RINGERS' TRIBUTES.

Although the funeral of the late Mr. Pryce Taylor took place on a date before it was possible to make a general announcement to the Exercise, many ringers were among the large congregation which attended the sad obsequies at Loughborough on Wednesday of last week. From far and near, friends came to pay their last tribute of respect to one whom they held in high regard, and to show their sympathy with the bereaved.

The remains were brought back to England in the 'Berengaria,' and the widow travelled by the same vessel. The ship reached Southampton on Tuesday, and the coffin was conveyed to Loughborough by motor hearse.

The service took place at the Parish Church, with which Mr. Taylor and his family have been identified for generations, and from the tower of which the flag was flown at half-mast. Between 80 and 90 employees of the Foundry lined the path to the church door, as the coffin was borne into the building by six of the oldest members of the staff, who had been associated with the deceased from his boyhood: Messrs. R. F. Lane, J. Smith, H. Mowbray, A. Bowley, W. Richards and W. Thorley.

The family mourners were: Mrs. Kathleen Mitchell Taylor (widow), Mrs. Josephine Backhouse (sister), Mr. E. Dennison Taylor and Mr. Owen J. Taylor (uncles), Mrs. John W. Taylor, Manchester (step-mother), and Master Paul Lea Taylor (step-brother), Mr. Arthur Lea and Miss Emma Lea, Manchester, and Mrs. Owen J. Taylor.

There was a numerous attendance of bell ringers, especially of those in the Midland Counties Association, of which Mr. Pryce Taylor was a member, and the representative on the Central Council. Among those were Messrs. E. Morris (secretary), W. Willson (treasurer), H. J. Poole, H. W. Needham (all of Leicester); W. E. White and Walter White (Cotgrave), Canon H. J. Elsee, president of the Lancashire Association, Mr. F. Wilford (Master of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild), Major J. H. B. Hesse (Ancient Society of College Youths and Winchester Diocesan Guild), Mr. J. George (St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham), and Mr. H. Chapman (Lancashire Association).

The Parish Church bell ringers present were Messrs. A. E. Cartwright, J. Hutchby, W. Smith, C. Harriman, E. Reader, E. Leslie, G. Onslow, H. Stubbs, J. Saddington, W. Billingham and J. Grundy.

In the congregation, representative of all classes, were, among others: The Mayor (Councillor A. Hibbins), Ald. T. Mayo, Councillor J. W. Barker, Messrs. W. F. Charles, C. E. Huston, E. T. Allcock, J. T. Brain, W. Pearson, H. D. Barlow, L. H. Squire, Norman Hanford, J. Oldham (Messrs. J. Taylor and Sons), T. Hancock (Loughborough Tennis Club), W. Haynes and A. D. Smith (John Smith and Sons, Derby). War Memorial Committee were represented by Councillors T. W. Bailey (chairman), H. Coltman, Mrs. Stapleton, E. Fisher, Messrs. W. H. Turnell, Wilfred Moss, J. Denkin, and H. W. Cook, and the three carillonners, Messrs. W. E. Jordan, S. C. Potter and B. Barker. The Howe and Charnwood Lodge of Freemasons were represented by Messrs. J. Arterton, A. B. Martin, H. Holmes, P. Moss, A. H. Brewster, G. F. Brewill, T. Pritchard, H. Noon and J. A. Street.

The service was conducted by the Rector, Canon G. W. Briggs, and included the hymns, 'All as God wills, who wisely heeds,' and 'Rock of Ages.' As the funeral cortege left the church, some beautifully struck rounds were rung on the muffled bells, and, afterwards, a touch of Stedman Caters. Later, a peal of Stedman Caters was rung.

The grave at the cemetery was by the side of that of Mr. Pryce Taylor's father, Mr. John W. Taylor. At the close of the service the masonic brethren followed their custom of throwing sprigs of acacia into the open grave.

Many wreaths were sent by sympathising friends and organisations. Prominent among these was a beautiful mark of regret and regard in the form of a large bell from the Bell Foundry workers and staff. The Midland Counties Association of Change Ringers also sent a bell-shaped floral tribute. Other wreaths were from the Mayor and Mayoress, the bell ringers of All Saints' Church, Loughborough Town Hockey Club, the Worshipful Master and Brethren of the Howe and Charnwood Lodge, the boys of the United Public Schools Brigade, Loughborough Lawn Tennis Club, Leicestershire County Hockey Association, the carillonners of the Loughborough War Memorial, and a large number from private friends.

On Wednesday evening a recital was given on the War Memorial Carillon by Mr. W. E. Jordan, with all the 47 bells muffled.

Muffled peals have also been rung during the past few days at many of the churches connected with the Midland Counties' Association, and the touches include the following:—

In the evening, after the funeral, at St. Martin's Cathedral, Leicester, with half-muffled bells, 1,261 Stedman Caters: R. F. Elkington 1, S. Cotton 2, C. F. Howitt 4, L. E. Allen 4, E. Morris 5, F. H. Dexter (conductor) 6, P. Harrison 7, J. H. Drewery 8, A. Martin 9, T. Taylor 10.

At Heavitree, Exeter, Devon, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples (1,260 changes) with the bells muffled, in 54 mins.: J. Sandover 1, J. Oke 2, A. Truman 3, T. Laver 4, J. Arbury 5, W. Lethbridge 6, F. J. Davey (conductor) 7, A. Mitchell 8.

DOUBLE LONDON SURPRISE.

By GEORGE BAKER.

London Surprise Minor, like Cambridge Surprise Minor, is not a double method, but it requires very little alteration to make a first-class double method of it, and the result is not only a true double Minor method, but it will also extend on all even numbers to infinity.

The Minor, it is true, is again one of the methods interdicted by the Methods Committee, and these gentlemen, I think, will soon begin to learn that arbitrary definitions not only obscure the truth in method construction, but they have also prevented many good double Minor methods being brought to light.

A mistaken notion of days gone by was that true double Treble Bob or Surprise Minor or Royal methods were an impossibility. The advent of Bristol Surprise, which runs true from Minor to infinity, proved the fallacy of that doctrine, and Double London and other methods have finally killed it.

In London Surprise Minor there are sixteen constructional places in the first lead, and all we have to do to make a double method of it is to shift the position of three places and add two additional places.

Following are half-leads each of Minor, Major, Royal, and Maximus:—

Shipway had many mistaken notions which he has handed down to us in his Campanologia, and many ringers of to-day believe in these ideas because Shipway stated them.

Gooding, churchwarden, as a last token of respect: V. Stevens (first quarter) 1, F. Burnett 2, N. Churly 3, G. Cridland 4, A. Bryant (conductor) 5, A. Stevens 6, R. Eaton 7, J. Gratton 8.

RINGERS' OUTINGS.HALESWORTH AND CHEDISTON SOCIETY.

On Monday, July 25th, in beautiful summer weather, the Halesworth and Chediston Ringing Society had their annual outing, journeying in a comfortable charabanc. The party, numbering 15, included the Rector, Rev. H. C. Newbery, and Mr. C. J. Goodwin, churchwarden. Touches were rung on the six bells of Cratfield, Laxfield, and Wilby, and the eight bells of Stradbroke Church during the morning. At Stradbroke Rectory, the party were entertained through the kindness of Canon and Mrs. Upcher to an excellent lunch, which was much appreciated.

The business meeting followed, all the officers being re-elected. The secretary's report showed that the bells had been rung for all the Sunday services during the year, and two peals had been secured since the last meeting. The treasurer's report was also satisfactory, the balance being well on the right side.

A hearty vote of thanks to their kind host and hostess was accorded, and the party then proceeded to Fressingfield, Redenhall and Bungay, all eight-bell towers, ringing short touches at each church. Tea was provided at Bungay, and an hour's ringing followed with local friends. Home was reached at 9.30 p.m., after a most enjoyable day.

Thanks are accorded to the various clergy for placing the bells at their disposal, and also to their many ringing comrades for so kindly meeting them and helping to make the day such a complete success. The methods rung included Kent Treble Bob Major and Minor, Bob Major and Minor, Grandsire and Stedman Triples, and Grandsire and Stedman Doubles.

A YORKSHIRE OUTING.

The ringers of St. Peter's, Conisborough, had their annual outing on Saturday, July 23rd. The Vicar (Rev. H. Lee) and friends accompanied the party, which numbered 23. Leaving Conisborough at 8 a.m. by motor bus, they passed through Doncaster and went on through Brodsworth and Ferry Bridge to Wetherby, where a halt was made, and the bells were soon merrily going to changes. A well-struck 504 Grandsire Triples was brought round on this nice peal of eight. After a stay of about an hour, the party made their way to Ilkley, thence on to Bolton Abbey, where a halt was made for about an hour. After viewing this beautiful Abbey and grounds, they returned to Ilkley, where they were met by the local ringers. On the bells of the Parish Church, touches of Grandsire, Stedman and Kent Treble Bob were brought round. Before leaving, the ringers visited the church to inspect the stained glass window in memory of the late Mr. Jasper W. Snowden. Luncheon was excellently served at the Rose and Crown Hotel, and a start was made on the homeward journey at six o'clock. At Keighley, the party were met by the local ringers, and touches of Grandsire and Stedman were brought round on this fine peal of bells. The return journey was continued via Bradford and Wakefield, and the party landed home at eleven o'clock. All expressed delight at the arrangements made and the pleasure of the outing, and would like to thank the various clergy for granting permission to ring and to the local ringers who met and welcomed them.

KING'S NORTON RINGERS IN LONDON.

On Saturday, July 16th, the King's Norton ringers visited London on their annual outing. Arriving in the Metropolis at 10.30 a.m., they were met by Mr. Challis F. Winney, who had kindly undertaken to pilot the party throughout the day. The first tower visited was St. Mary Abbots, Kensington, where they met Mr. W. E. Garrard, from whom they received a very cordial welcome. The ringing here was very much enjoyed. A move was afterwards made to Ye Olde Coffee Pot, Warwick Lane, to partake of dinner. During the afternoon, the bells of All Hallows, Barking, and St. Magnus, Lower Thames Street, were rung. After tea, the ringers visited St. Clement Danes, Strand, where some good touches were successfully brought round. During the day, the King's Norton men made the acquaintance of several of the City ringers, whose company they much appreciated. Their best thanks were accorded to Mr. W. T. Cockerill, who had arranged such an excellent programme for them, and Messrs. Challis F. Winney and H. Langdon, who contributed so largely to the success and pleasure of the visit.

NOTTINGHAM BOYS AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

For their annual outing, the St. Peter's (Nottingham) company visited Stratford-on-Avon, the home of Shakespeare. A merry company of ringers and friends started from Nottingham at 8 a.m., the first halt being called at Appleby Magna, where a splendid course of 'spiced bread and ham with beer' was successfully brought round. From there they went on to Coventry, where the famous 'Peeping Tom' was visited. The next stop was Warwick, where, after mounting a terrible number of steps, the ringers found to their delight ten magnificent bells, on which they rang Grandsire and Stedman Caters. It was with great regret they left this tower, but time was short, and they pushed on to Stratford, where they dined like lords. After about two and a half hours' stay to visit the places of interest, they cranked up again and went to Lutterworth, where they had tea, and enjoyed ringing on the lovely peal of bells, touches of Stedman and Double Norwich being brought round. Then they headed for Nottingham, only making one stop on the way, and arrived home after an excellent day and a 'rattling' good ride.

AMERICANS IN A PEAL.

In a peal at Colerne, Wilts, last week, two American gentlemen took part.

Mr. S. Warren Sturgis and his son, Mr. Somers H. Sturgis, of Groton College, Boston, U.S.A., are on a visit to England, and both rang in a peal conducted by Mr. Arthur Prince, of Bath. It was a noteworthy occasion, for they are believed to be the first American gentlemen to ring a peal within the British Empire, and are to be congratulated, not only upon their achievement, but also upon the excellent way they rang, for their practice has been of a very limited character. It was Mr. Somers H. Sturgis' first peal, and his father's first on tower bells.

Mr. Warren Sturgis has paid previous visits to this country, and has rung with the College Youths, of which he is a member, and other societies. In America he rings with the Boston Guild, in which he became interested through the late Dr. A. H. Nichols, and whenever opportunity has occurred he has always warmly welcomed ringing visitors from this country.

Mr. S. H. Sturgis rang his first quarter-peal on the previous Sunday at St. Saviour's Church, Bath, when Miss Roe also scored her first quarter. The ringers were: S. H. Sturgis 1, Mrs. Broome 2, Miss Roe 3, H. T. Taylor 4, S. Warren Sturgis 5, J. Hallett 6, C. W. Bell (conductor) 7, G. James 8.

WEDDING BELLS.A WELL-KNOWN YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION OFFICIAL.

The marriage of Mr. W. Barton and Miss D. B. Musgrave, both of Pudsey, took place on Tuesday, July 26th. The bridegroom, who is the peal secretary of the Yorkshire Association, is also an expert conductor and ringer on handbells and tower bells, and his genial disposition and ability make him a well-known and noted personality in the county, and ringers from Plymouth, Headingley, Calverley, Bradford, and the local company gathered at the Parish Church of Pudsey in honour of the event. The service was conducted by the president of the Yorkshire Association (who must now be establishing a record for marrying ringers), assisted by the Rev. Canon W. T. Forster, Vicar of Pudsey. Both the contracting parties are well known locally, and a large congregation assembled, while the bells above poured out a real Yorkshire welcome of Kent Treble Bob. Mr. T. M. Kitchen, now of Plymouth (an old Pudsey ringer), acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the Radcliffe Lane Schools, the tempestuous weather causing some of the heavy-weights to do the journey in record time. The happy couple afterwards left amid all the good wishes of the assembled company to spend their honeymoon at Bridlington.

On the previous Sunday, at the tower, Mr. P. Cordingley presented Mr. Barton with a china tea service on behalf of the local company, wishing Mr. Barton and his future bride every success in their new enterprise. The certificated treble ringer of Pudsey also voiced the good wishes of the company, and the writer claims the privilege of extending his heartiest good wishes to two old and honoured friends.

P. J. J.

RINGER MARRIED.

The marriage between Mr. William E. Parker and Miss Elsie May Claridge took place at All Saints' Church, Northampton, on Thursday, July 28th. The bridegroom has for many years been an esteemed member of St. Peter's Society of ringers, and in the evening the under-mentioned ringing friends, by kind permission of the Vicar, rang a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples at All Saints' Church, in honour of the event: E. Sibley 1, A. Slade 2, W. H. Austin 3, F. Wilford 4, J. C. Dean 5, W. Sturgess 6, W. J. Dove (conductor) 7, A. Monk 8. The ringing would doubtless have taken place at St. Peter's Church, but this was impossible owing to the bells there being in such a condition that they are unfit to ring.

A GRAPPENHALL WEDDING.

As a compliment to Mr. W. Witter, on the occasion of his wedding, July 19th, 1,440 changes (720 Kent and 720 Oxford) were rung at Grappenhall by J. E. Ashcroft, E. Bostock, J. Davenport, E. Jenkins, T. Haighton, J. Myatt and G. A. Taylor.

RINGERS' OUTINGS—continued.NORTHFIELD RINGERS' TRIP.

The ringers of Northfield, Worcestershire, and friends, had their annual outing on Saturday, June 4th, when Cirencester was visited. The party started at 7.20 a.m. by charabanc, passing through Eveham, Cheltenham, and calling at Presbury, where they rang at the Parish Church, Mr. Pendry (captain) meeting the company, and a pleasant time being spent. The party then made their way to Charlton Kings, and were there met by the Vicar and Mr. Dyer. After a short pull and refreshments, a pleasant ride through the Cotswolds brought the party to Cirencester, where a hot dinner was in readiness at the Crown Hotel. Ringing at Watermoor, on the fine peal of eight, was the next item, and was appreciated, thanks to Mr. Bond, who met the band, and Mr. Lewis who made all arrangements for the visit. The next run was to Shipston-on-Stour for tea, passing through Northleach, Stow-on-the-Wold, etc. Leaving Shipston, Stratford was made for, and here the final stop was made.

THE NOMENCLATURE CONFUSION.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—The Rev. H. Drake accuses me of heated imagination, and also of making an inaccurate statement. With every respect to the rev. gentleman and the ringing fraternity generally, I beg to say I have not. Mr. Drake says: 'The name Double Norwich Court Bob Major was not mentioned in the late committee's proposals.' I never said it was. At Ipswich, Mr. Burton, when introducing the committee's proposals, and speaking of some of the old methods, said he realised that their history was reflected in their compound names, but too many adjectives were an encumbrance, and if of old there was power to build up names, so there should be to-day the power to revise or undo them. He then moved the thirteen resolutions. I will only quote two of them: No. 1, No method shall have more than one name. No. 3, No name shall contain more than one word. Mr. Trollope then moved his amendment. Here are some of his remarks: 'No alteration should be made in the names of old and historical methods, except where urgently necessary. After all, what was wrong with Double Norwich Court Bob Major? Such titles were replete with history.'

Mr. Trollope put the same interpretation, so it seems, on the committee's proposals as I have. Now, sir, had the two resolutions quoted above been accepted by the Council, it would have given them power to alter the names of all existing methods which had more than one word for a name. This is how I obtained my information, and, when speaking, I only used Double Norwich Court Bob Major as an illustration. Of course, anyone could use heaps of other historical names as such, and I feel convinced that when Mr. Trollope in his amendment referred to Double Norwich Court Bob Major it obtained him his 29 votes to 3. I have taken the above from the official minutes and from 'The Ringing World' for April 2nd, 1926. In the committee's proposals published on that date, no mention is made of omitting historical methods from their proposals. With this I will leave your readers to judge what would have happened if they had a free hand. If I have a blunt way of putting things it is not intended to be disrespectful. I don't think it worth while saying any more on this subject, and I thank you, sir, for your space.—Yours faithfully,

J. HUNT.

Taunton.

THE FLORAL NAMES.

Sir,—Being a six-bell ringer and reading other ringers' views on this nomenclature confusion, I would like to give my views on this subject. I will commence by drawing the committee's attention to the time when only part of the methods in the Central Council's Collection was named. Priority of claim to name any method was given to the company who rang it first. Afterwards, a committee was appointed to name the remainder, which has not given satisfaction.

In reference to the floral names, has the committee appointed at the last Central Council meeting in London been aware that out of the 132 Treble Bob methods, 40 of them contain part of the methods with four old floral names: New London (which is Violet Bob), Woodbine, Tulip and Primrose, methods which contain a part of these floral names in them, have never been objected to? If you have an infant registered as Rose, Lily or Violet, you cannot alter it. Why, then, alter the names after you have rung Bluebell, Daffodil, etc., to these names? The Anston company have rung every one in the Central Council Collection in the Treble Bob section, viz., 132, and will always ring them by the names as they stand at present. To make any further alteration will only cause more confusion than ever, as the proposed alterations are not considered as good as the former names, many of which are old standard names known to ringers of long ago.

Has any reader of 'The Ringing World' ever known a six-bell ringer to interfere with names that have been given to methods on higher numbers than six, whatever name has been given to them? I am afraid there are not many six-bell ringers on this committee.

Methods Nos. 5 and 8 respectively are London Treble Bob and College Exercise, not Rochester and Islington. These methods were rung by our company 40 years ago from Snowden's book. Rochester is quite a different method altogether.

A FAMILY SERVICE TOUCH.

At Tunstall, Kent, on Sunday, July 17th, an interesting touch of 504 Grandsire Triples was rung by a family of Spice's: Harry Spice 1, W. Spice, sen., 2, E. H. Spice 3, Mrs. G. H. Spice 4, G. H. Spice 5, W. Spice, jun., 6, P. J. Spice 7, Mrs. E. H. Spice 8.

WEDDING BELLS.

At Cirencester, Glos, on Tuesday, April 19th, at the Parish Church, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes): H. Cook 1, F. W. Bond 2, J. E. Waters 3, J. G. Eden 4, F. J. Lewis 5, W. H. Hayward 6, H. C. Bond (conductor) 7, F. Edwards 8. Rung to celebrate the wedding of the Vicar's daughter, Miss R. Westmacott, to Mr. T. O. Gouldsmith. The ringing commenced as the bridal party left the church.

DURHAM & NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.
MORPETH AND ITS WATCH TOWER.

The Whit Monday meeting was held in beautiful weather at the ancient market town of Morpeth, a very interesting place, with its historical surroundings. After the committee meeting, which was held at noon, an excellent dinner was partaken of at the Earl Grey Hotel. The Mayor of Morpeth had intended to be present, but was called away, and sent an apology for his absence.

The president, Mr. Routledge, presided, and was supported by the secretary, two vice-presidents, and a district secretary. Ringing was indulged in in the ancient watch tower (which is a secular tower) before and after the meeting, and touches in methods from Bob Minor to London Surprise Major were rung. The tower is situated in the market place, and stands by itself. These bells are rung for the service at the Parish Church, which is situated about a mile further south. In the ringing chamber is a tablet bearing these lines:—

'Have you heard the Morpeth wonder,
Church and steeple a mile asunder?'

The tower has two stone watchmen on its battlements. The old custom is kept up of ringing the bells thrice daily, and the curfew is rung every night at eight o'clock.

After dinner, a ramble round the most interesting ruins of Newminster Abbey, about a quarter of a mile from the watch tower, was enjoyed. It was founded by Ranulph de Merlay, the second Baron of Morpeth, who in 1137 visited 'the holy Church of Fountains near Ripon, where, beholding the conversation of his brethren and under the inspiration of God, he assigned a certain place in his paternal estate in order to build a monastery for the redemption of his soul.' The Holy Abbot (of Fountains) received the man's offering, and the buildings being set out therein after one manner he built the abbey, which he named Newminster. Eight monks, with Roberts (their first Abbot) formed the convent, who, in 1138, took possession of the new abbey. It is bounded on the north by the Wansbeck (then a salmon river), in a lovely and secluded spot. There the abbey stood in all the impressive magnificence of mediæval architecture and masonry.

The abbey passed through many troubles and trials. These began the year after it was built, when it was destroyed by David I., King of Scotland, not only the abbey itself, but its farms. Other houses and property, scattered over many parts of the country, suffered depredations, more or less frequent and disastrous, from its establishment till far on in the fourteenth century. The monks of Newminster at first had only a right of pasture over Kidland (one of the estates of 11,827 acres), and one of the conditions of the grant, made by Sir Odineil d'Umra Vil, the Lord of Felton, was that every dog used by the abbey's servants should be 'lawed,' that is, have one foot cut off, so that the beasts of the forests might live in peace.

Both the abbey and the castle were common quarries for centuries, and every old house pulled down in Morpeth during the last 50 years reveals whence the stones and timber had come. For well nigh two hundred years the site of the abbey presented to the eye only an extensive series of grassy mounds and ridges, with the solitary exception of one arch above ground.

Excavations were begun in 1878, under the directions of the Rev. J. T. Fowler, and are now carried on by Sir Geo. Renwick, the present owner, and many stones dug up are rebuilt as nearly as possible in their original positions.

The Collingwood House, the residence of Lord Collingwood, of Trafalgar fame, was also visited. In the Town Hall Museum are many relics of ancient times—the bull-baiting rope, 'the branks' for scolding women, etc. Much more of Morpeth and its surroundings could be said if space would permit.

Tea at the Earl Grey Hotel and more ringing in the watch tower brought a very successful day to a close.

It was decided to hold a special meeting at Gainford if the bells are available.

THE NON-PAYERS.

A District Secretary, having read our article last week on 'Making the most of the Money,' writes to us that, judging by his own experience, most associations would be a good deal better off than they are if all the members, or rather professed members, paid their subscriptions. He complains that there are men who, although well able to afford the small annual contribution, do not meet this liability, while continuing to enjoy the privileges of membership. We cannot imagine that there are many such in any individual association, but such as there are, it must be admitted, show a very mean spirit. To pose as members, share what advantages can be obtained in the way of peals or meetings and in some cases allowances towards teas or travelling expenses, and fail to contribute the shilling or two a year which is asked by the associations, is not a spirit which is becoming to a member of a brotherhood like the ringing fraternity. We see constantly in reports of various ringing organisations pointed reminders of the fact that far too many subscriptions are overdue. Where they are merely belated, it is unfair to the officers responsible for the work, for not only are they given a great deal of extra trouble, but may conceivably be left in want of funds to meet liabilities. Where, however, subscriptions remain entirely unpaid for a year or two the case is far worse.

Ringing associations, of course, have the matter in their own hands. They can afford to be without such members and if ringers of the type of which complaint is made were struck off the membership roll if their subscriptions were not paid during the current year, they would have little cause to grumble. It may be very nice for an association to show big figures as to membership, but they are actually misleading if they do not represent the real position in 'paid up' members. As with most other problems, this one has its difficulties, and there may be fear of permanently losing men if drastic action is taken. All we can say on this point, however, is that the associations have to choose between carrying what the theatrical folk call 'dead-heads,' or eliminating them from the roll and debarring them from the privileges of membership. Why, for instance, should an association subscribe towards the teas provided at meetings, or pay for the printing of names in their reports, and particularly the cost of printing peals which are the most expensive fare of these productions, unless the members in return pay their annual subscription? The remedy, of course, is a rule to cut off such ringers from membership, and the courage to enforce it. It may be drastic, but it would probably have the desired effect.

A PEAL AT CROWLAND ABBEY.

Crowland Abbey, credited with having the first peal of bells hung for ringing in this country, is not a place really to tempt peal ringers. The tower is open from floor to bell chamber, and the hundred feet of rope is merely controlled by three sets of guides. Mr. Fred Blood, the hon. secretary of the Sherwood Youths, who is a native of Crowland, has always been anxious to score a peal on these bells, and nearly twenty years ago made two abortive attempts. On Saturday, July 31st, he achieved his ambition, but the peal was rung amid the distraction of an almost constant stream of visitors to the Abbey. The Rector did his best to keep the inquisitive ones on the move, and, what was still more important, quiet.

The band, which was made up entirely of visiting ringers, except for Mr. Alfred Holland, were heartily congratulated at the finish, and they desire to thank the Rector and Mr. Holland for permission and the arrangements made. Mr. Blood also wishes to express his thanks to the other members of the band for meeting him and helping him to achieve his desire.

A.O.F. DELEGATE AT READING.

Two very enjoyable evenings were arranged at very short notice by Mr. R. T. Hibbert, secretary of the Oxford Guild, to meet Mr. G. E. Chappell, a delegate from Wickham, Hants, to the meeting at Reading of the High Court of Foresters. The towers selected were Pangbourne and Englefield, two very nice rings of six. At Pangbourne, 720 Plain Bob was rung: John Bowers 1, R. T. Hibbert 2, Jim Abery 3, Miss Nelly Collins 4, G. E. Chappell (conductor) 5, J. Smith 6. 720 Oxford Single: Miss Nelly Collins 1, J. Bowers 2, Jim Abery 4, J. Smith 4, R. Abery 5, G. E. Chappell (conductor) 6. Also 360 Kent Treble Bob. At Englefield tower 720 Kent Treble Bob: R. Abery 1, J. Abery 2, J. Smith 3, G. E. Chappell 4, J. Lewinden 5, R. T. Hibbert (conductor) 6. 360 Oxford Single: Mrs. D. Murray 1, J. Abery 2, R. T. Hibbert 3, J. Smith 4, R. Abery 5, G. E. Chappell (conductor) 6. Mr. Chappell was elected a member of Oxford Guild, and wishes to thank Mr. R. T. Hibbert and all the ringers who met him at so short a notice.

CAMBRIDGE SURPRISE MAJOR AT BOURNE, CAMBS.

AN IRISH TOUR.

A Bank Holiday visit to Ireland, by an English team of ringers, resulted in the accomplishment of the following performances between July 30th to August 3rd, 1927.

To the clergymen and ringers of the respective towers, at which the visitors were kindly permitted to ring, a debt of gratitude is due. It is almost needless to add that the promoter of this successful gathering was Mr. Gabriel Lindoff, of Dublin.

A KENTISH JUBILEE.

MR. PHILIP HODGKIN'S LONG RECORD.

Mr. Philip Hodgkin, of Headcorn, Kent, has just completed his ringing jubilee. He started his bellringing career at Aldington, Kent, in June, 1877, where he rang for 14 years. He came to Headcorn in 1891, and has completed 36 years at this place, where he has had charge of the local band during that time. He has also acted as caretaker of this fine ring of eight bells, on which, in celebration of his jubilee, he rang his 50th peal on August 6th, a peal of 5,088 Spliced Kent and Oxford Treble Bob. Most of his peals have been at the heavy end on tenors, ranging from 14 to 30 cwt. One peal was rung for the Sussex Association, and the rest for the Kent County Association, and chiefly in the Weald of Kent. The following is the list:—Plain Bob Minor 3, Oxford Treble Bob Minor 1, Bob Major 20, Bob Royal 1, Grandsire Triples 8, Grandsire Caters 1, Stedman Triples 3, Kent Treble Bob Major 10, Oxford Treble Bob Major 2, Spliced Oxford and Kent 1, total 50. These peals were rung in twelve different towers, the first one, in 1882, being the second peal for the Kent County Association.

A SIX BELL TOUR.

A tour among six-bell towers was enjoyed by the Thornham Magna ringers for their annual outing. The first call was at Sproughton, where they were met by Mr. C. Moe, who gave them a hearty welcome. Then on to Stratford St. Mary (a fine peal of six bells), Higham and Langham. An excellent dinner was ready, prepared by the host (Mr. L. Sterry) at the Gun Inn, Dedham. After dinner touches were rung on the handbells when leaving. Then on to Ardleigh (the only eight-bell tower visited during the day), Bromley and Mistley, where a good tea awaited them. On the way home they called at Stutton and Holbrook. The touches rung were Cambridge Surprise, Minor, London Surprise, Kent, Oxford and Plain Bob, and at Ardleigh Kent Major. The ringers wish to thank Messrs. Featherstone, Souter and also G. Moss and Honeywood (Misley).

TOUR IN BEDS AND HERTS.

The Apsley End ringers, with a few friends from neighbouring churches, had their annual outing on July 9th. The morning was not very inviting, but the holiday feeling being foremost, the weather caused little concern. All turning up in good time, the party set forth, handbells included, to make the first stop at Hempstead, not for ringing, but to pick up two more, one the 'father' of the party, who was found outside a notable resting place. Then along the narrow roads to Houghton Regis, where hangs a peal of six, with a tenor of 18 cwt. Touches were rung to allow all to have a pull, and the bells lowered again. A few of the party then got on with the handbells, while the rest were postcard hunting and 'snap' taking. Boarding the bus again, a move was made along rough roads to Kempston, which was reached about 10.15. Here the party were met by two local ringers, and enjoyed ringing on the best peal of bells they met with during the day. The Vicar, late of Apsley, being on holiday, his daughter entered the belfry, and gave a most cordial welcome to the visiting ringers. The programme would not allow a long stay with this beautiful peal, with a tenor of 19 cwt., so the bus was boarded again for Clapham. The sun, beginning to shine at this time, caused the spirits of the party to rise very noticeably. At Clapham several of the party contented themselves with looking round the church instead of ringing, as the peal is very light, the tenor weighing only 5½ cwt. The first few attempts to ring proved unsuccessful, but, after getting used to the trebles, some Plain Bob was eventually brought round. The usual treble or second man was here seen ringing the tenor, which he was able to do much better than managing the very awkward treble, with a long draft. Bedford and dinner were the next objectives, and, after enjoying a good meal at 'The Silver Grill,' some preferred the river to ringing, the remainder of the party adjourning to St. Peter's Church, where the bells were already being pulled up by the steeplekeeper. This peal, with a tenor of 12 cwt., was very suitable for after-dinner exercise, as the 'go' is splendid. One of the late arrivals was greatly disturbed because the bells were ringing and he could not find a way up the tower. The reason was because he was trying to get up from inside instead of from outside. He eventually arrived, and the bells were kept going for about an hour. Meeting the river enthusiasts (some of whom had blisters on their hands), a move was made for Sandy, which was reached about 4 o'clock. Here, once again, the necessary gentleman with the key was waiting, and touches were rung on this peal of six until nearly 5 o'clock. Hitchin was the next place of importance to the party, but before arriving a few photographs had to be taken. Tea, at Nott's Restaurant, was very welcome, although certain members seemed more interested in telephones than tea, and others imagined they had started dinner again. However, the meal was brought to a successful conclusion, and once more the motor started, this time on to Codicote. This place has a handy peal of six, with a tenor of 10½ cwt. The bells are very noisy in the belfry, but the 'go' is pretty good. One of the local ringers here had a pull, it being very rarely he has the chance of ringing with a change ringing hand. A move was then made to St. Albans, where St. Stephen's bells were made good use of for three parts of an hour. Some of the party, beginning to get tired, our 'friend with the key' gave a hand in a few touches. A very interesting feature here is the swaying of the tower, which can be seen distinctly from the churchyard. The bells were lowered, and, after a short stay in St. Albans, home was made for, with a few songs to cheer the weary. Reaching Apsley about 10.45, the party were dropped at their various destinations, and so ended a glorious ringing day. The methods rung during the day were Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, Oxford Bob, College Single and Kent Treble Bob Minor. The band take this opportunity of thanking the various incumbents and steeplekeepers and others who helped to make this outing such a success.

HEREFORD MEN'S FIRST PULL ON TWELVE.

On Saturday, July 23rd, the Holmer ringers, with the churchwardens and other Hereford district ringers, took part in an outing, the party numbering nineteen. Leaving Hereford at 7.45 a.m., and travelling via Ledbury and Tewkesbury, the first stop was at Ashchurch for a few touches on the musical peal of six bells. Charlton King's was the next stop, where Mr. Dyer, who had raised the bells in readiness, met the party. Grandsire Triples and Stedman was rung, but the tenor proved too much of an handful even for the Samsons. After refreshments, a start was made for Painswick, where Mr. Albert Wright met the visitors and escorted them to the tower and its famous peal of twelve. After raising ten in peal, a few rounds were rung on the twelve, as the majority present had never before been in a 12-bell tower. Then, after a touch of Caters, Bob Major, Grandsire and Stedman Triples, the party adjourned to the 'Golden Heart' for an excellent lunch. At Barnwood, where members of the local band and Messrs. J. Austen and J. Williams met the visitors, Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob Major and Treble Bob were rung. After tea at Gloucester the party proceeded to Harbury for a pull on the recently restored peal of six, and then the return to Hereford completed a most pleasant trip.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Smith, formerly of Hackney, received many congratulations on their golden wedding last Friday, and during the week-end they received many visitors at 32, Whitechapel Road, London, where they were staying.

The bells of St. Philip's Cathedral, Birmingham, will be broadcast by St. Martin's Guild, on Sunday evening, at 8 p.m., and again on Sunday, September 14th, at the same time.

Canon Elsee, the president of the Lancashire Association, leaves England for South Africa on August 20th, and expects to be away about nine months.

The recent first peals of Superlative Surprise Maximus at Ipswich recall the fact that it was at St. Mary le Tower on August 15th, 1908, that the first peal of Cambridge Surprise Maximus was rung.

A peal of 5,000 Oxford Treble Bob Royal was rung on the famous but now 'defunct' Coventry bells, on August 17th, 1812.

A year earlier, on August 18th, 1811, 5,376 'Cambridge Surprise Eight-In,' the first in the North of England, was rung at Keighley.

There will be no ringing at St. Michael's, Cornhill, on Sunday evening, August 21st, as the church will be closed. Sunday ringing will be resumed on September 18th.

MEMORIAL TO SIR ARTHUR HEYWOOD.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—With reference to the above, it is already suggested that a new bell should be placed in a new church by ringers' subscriptions as a memorial to the late Sir Arthur Heywood, who was for so long the worthy president of the M.C.A. Ald. R. B. Chambers, of Derby, is preparing the subscription lists for same, and can, no doubt, give full particulars. Nevertheless, I think it a good suggestion that his last peal should be recorded and worded as a memorial.—Yours faithfully,

C. H. WEBB

(Member of the Committee, M.C.A.).

SUPERLATIVE SURPRISE MAXIMUS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I have been expecting to see in your columns questions raised on the subject of Superlative Surprise Maximus since it was discussed by the Central Council. I have read the report of the debate on the question, as I had previously read Mr. Law James's article in your issue of December 5th last, and his letter in which he described the method which has since been rung at Ipswich as 'interesting but not Superlative.'

What I should like to see explained by Mr. Law James is, why is not the Ipswich method as good an extension of Superlative Major as Mr. James's extension to Maximus of Shipway's Royal? Probably he can do this without 'blinding us with science' or leaving us to grope our way through masses of figures.

There is a lot of interest in this question among Surprise ringers, men who know the practical side of method ringing, and among these it will require a good deal of argument to prove that Superlative Maximus, as rung at Ipswich, is not a better extension of Superlative Major than is the method which Mr. James deduces from Shipway's Royal.

When answering this question, which I hope he will, perhaps Mr. James will give us further enlightenment upon another point. In his article of December 24th he shows us how, largely by force of circumstances, Shipway's method develops in the way it does, and, after considering the arguments pro and con of the possible changes at the first cross section, he says we are driven back to (V.),

Thus, 4th's place in the Major (5th's from the back) becomes 6th's place in Royal (which is also 5th's from the back).

Then, having shown to his own satisfaction that Shipway's is the true extension to Royal, he argues that the Maximus must be produced by the same rules.

When I went on to examine the Maximus constructed by Mr. James from the Royal, I expected to find at the first cross-section 8th's place (still 5th's from the back) made on twelve bells, but instead he returns to the 4th's as in the Major. Mr. James may, of course, be able to explain away this extraordinary feature, but, in my opinion, it makes his Maximus a different method to the Royal.

An examination of Cambridge Surprise shows no such variation in the places. At the first cross-section 4th's place is made in Major, Royal and Maximus alike, and it does not appear to me to be a very 'scientific' plan to extend Superlative by having 4th's in Major and Maximus and 6th's in Royal. Again, Mr. James may have an explanation to offer, and I am sure there are others besides myself who would like to see these and other points cleared up.

Yours truly,

A PLAIN RINGER.

A BEGINNER'S THEORY.

This is the second of the series of articles which have been specially written for beginners by 'Minormania,' to explain to them the theory of change ringing. These articles are not merely for perusal. If they are to serve the purpose for which they are intended they must be studied.

BY 'MINORMANIA.'

TRANSPPOSITION.

Transposition may readily be seen by means of cards. Take twelve small cardboard squares, and separately number them 1-2-3-4, two sets in black and one set in red, so that you have two black and one red of each of the numbers 1-2-3 and 4.

Place your first lead head in a row of black 1-2-3-4, and under this put the first lead end in black (1342). Now cover your lead head (1234) by placing on the top a red row of the second lead head 1-3-4-2. Now you have a red row 1342, and a black one 1342 underneath. Your 'rounds' row (1234) is out of sight, but the whole point is that you KNOW where each number is, BECAUSE it is in its proper place—'1' in first place, '2' in second place, etc.

Now transfer the red cards to the row beneath, one at a time, and in the order of the underneath row (first 1, then 3, then 4, etc.), but IGNORE THE NUMBERS showing on the red cards. The red card which must be placed upon the '1' underneath, is the card which is COVERING THE BLACK '1' ABOVE, no matter what is the number on the red card. Uncover the black number above (first 1, then 3, etc.), and transfer the red card to the same black number below; that is, the red '1' will be taken off the black '1' above, and placed upon the black '1' below; the red '4' from the black '3' above to the black '3' below, etc., etc. You will then have a red row beneath, 1-4-2-3, which is the second lead end.

To find the third lead end, cover your black 1234, with your third lead head in red (1423), and proceed as before, remembering that the first lead is ALWAYS the example given, so that your black row underneath will still be 1-3-4-2. Your result will be 1234, which is the third (and last) lead end.

A little practice, and you can write down any transposition by SAYING TO YOURSELF the example row 'one-three-four-two' (or whatever it may be), and, as you say it, writing down the DIFFERENT figures, which (covering as it were) your new lead head will put in the positions, that should properly be occupied (at 1234) by the bells you are saying—'One-three-four-two.' The figures you write will be different from those you say, because you will write what you SEE IN THE PLACE, that should be occupied BY THE BELL YOU ARE SAYING.

When pricking out the 'lead ends,' it is sometimes necessary to know which position (at the previous lead end) was occupied by a particular bell that is going to appear in the lead end under consideration.

The bell-numbers at the row which is the end of the first lead, automatically fix in the mind the positions occupied by those bells at the previous 'lead end' (rounds); for the reason that, at rounds the No. 1 Train starts from platform 1; the No. 2 from platform 2, etc., and so long as we know the Train Number, we also know the platform at rounds, because the train and platform numbers at 1234 coincide. If the end of the first lead is 1342, we know—without any thought—that the bell in fourth's place here (the 2) came from second's place at the previous 'lead end' (1234) because it is a '2'; likewise, the bell in third's place at 1342 (the 4) came from fourth's place at 1234, because it is a '4,' and so on, it so happening that at rounds every bell is in its OWN POSITION in the row.

This knowledge is useful when pricking out 'calls,' which we may consider later on more fully; but for the moment, suppose that we wished to 'make a call' WHEN bell No. 3 appears in fourth's place at a lead end. Reference to our first lead end (1342), shows that the bell in fourth's place (2), came from second's place at the previous 'lead end' (1234). We know this because it is a '2'; therefore, we can know that bell No. 3 will appear in fourth's place, at that lead end which comes immediately AFTER THE ONE where she (the 3) appears in second's place. We can apply this to make a call when any bell number is placed in any position whatever at a lead end.

Merely as an illustration:—If your example row was 14263857, being the first lead end of a method, you would know that the bell in (say) sixth's place there, came from eighth's place at the lead before—because it is an '8'; therefore, if you wished to make a call WHEN No. 7 BELL appears in sixth's place (instead of the 8) you can know that No. 7 would be in sixth's place, at the lead end after the one where she (the 7) appears in eighth's place.

PLAIN COURSE LEAD ENDS.

We can now prick out the lead ends of Plain Bob Minor, but first let us obtain the rows of a plain course.

Commence the first lead with 123456; change three pairs to produce the next row (214365); then change the two centre pairs; that is to say, the first and last bells retain the same places while the middle four change, giving 241635. Then continue throughout the lead with:—Three pairs, 2 middle, 3 pairs, 2 middle, etc., until the treble appears on the front again, for her first blow there. This is done five times in all, with an odd 3 pairs last, giving 132546.

Plain Bob is a 'Second's Place' method, so that at the treble's second blow on the front, the bell in second's place (the 3) retains the same position, and the remaining four bells change in pairs, giving 135264 as the head of the second lead, thus:—

Repeat this changing of pairs, starting from the second lead head (135264) exactly as is done in the first lead. At the end, the first blow of the treble on the front will give 153624. Second's place being made in the next row (by the 5) and the remainder changing as before, results in 156342 as the third lead head. Repeat this from every new lead-head found, and rounds will eventually turn up, and we have then obtained all of the rows in the plain course.

The lead-heads will turn up in the order given below, where they are shown as lead ENDS. That is to say, the first 123456 has the line drawn under it, and is therefore treated as the last lead end in the course, and not as the first lead head. If the line is drawn under the two rows, where the treble has her whole pull at lead, then the backstroke row (135264) is treated as the lead end, the 'practical' way; if it is drawn between the two rows, then this same row is treated as the next lead head, the 'theoretical' way.

Thus:—

etc.	etc.
123456	135264
135264 (lead end)	135264 (lead head)
etc.	etc.

Then the lead-ends of the plain course of Bob Minor are:— 123456

- 1st 123456 We may prick out these lead ends with the aid of our
- 2nd 156342 black and red cards, and I will briefly describe the
- 3rd 164523 procedure again.
- 4th 142635 Rounds and the first lead end are ALWAYS the
- 5th 123456 example rows, so that we must not diverge.

Place rounds down in a row of black cards 1-2-3-4-5-6, and under this in black the first lead end 1-3-5-2-6-4. Cover the 123456 with the head of the second lead in red, 135264. You now have a red row 135264 (being the second lead-head), and a black row underneath, also 135264 (being the first lead-end). Here is emphasised the point, that the same row is both the end of the lead and also the head of the following lead.

Proceed as we have done before, to transfer the red cards from the row above to the row below, by uncovering the hidden 123456, one at a time and in the order of the underneath row (first the 1, then the 3, then 5, then 2, etc.), and covering the black numbers below, with the red card which uncovers the same black number above; no matter what is the red number—these must be ignored whilst transferring the cards.

It cannot be emphasised too strongly, that this operation of transfer be done in the STRICT ORDER (reading from left to right) of the first lead-end which we have in the black row underneath, whatever this row may be. In other methods it may not be 135264, but while dealing with the same method it is always the same row; that is, with Plain Bob it is always 135264, unless altered by a 'call,' which we shall consider later.

So then, concentrate upon the order of the underneath row. Say to yourself—I must cover the black '1' (at 135264 below) with the red card which I shall find upon the black '1' above, which at present is invisible; this done, I have to cover the black '3' below with the red card (no matter what its number) that at present is covering the black '3' above. Next the '5' below from the '5' above; next the '2,' followed by the '6,' and lastly the '4.' The black numbers below will disappear, one at a time, and in order from left to right; the black numbers above will appear, one at a time, but in no particular order. The completed red row below will then be the lead end following, that is 156342.

By conforming strictly to this order you will get used to saying the one ('one-three-five-two-six-four'), and at the same time writing another row, 156342, or whatever it may happen to be.

You will now have a black row 123456 and a red row underneath (156342), which is your second lead end. Transfer this red row bodily to the row above, covering the black 123456 with the red 156342. Underneath will be left your black row (still 135264). Transfer as before, and the result will be a red row underneath (164523), which is the third lead-end. Carry on in this manner until you reach 123456, which is the last lead-end of your plain course.

INFORMAL JOINT MEETING WITH ELY ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Northern Division of the Essex Association was held at Felsted on Saturday last. A short service was held, and an address given by Rev. H. T. C. Weatherhead (Vicar). Tea and meeting followed in the Memorial Hall. The Vicar presided at the tea, and Mr. F. Claydon (District Master) was in the chair at the meeting. There was an attendance of only 25 members, due largely to the holidays. Several from adjoining towers were away from home, and a flower show was being held in the next parish of Rayne. Among those present were Mr. C. H. Howard (Master of the Association), Mr. A. Saunders, Mr. G. Wiffen, Mr. G. W. Dixon and Mr. F. Warrington (secretary for the Archdeaconry of Ely), and the following other members of the Ely Diocesan Association: Miss K. Willers (Trumpington), who had cycled 28 miles in the intense heat, Messrs. B. D. Buttress, A. G. Prince, F. Hurry, E. H. Finch, A. E. Austin and A. Rivers.

Before the meeting commenced the Master made feeling reference to the death of the late district secretary (Mr. W. H. Dyson), and the members stood in silence for one minute as a token of respect.

The Master, who has been doing the secretarial work since the death of the district secretary, was asked to continue until the end of the year, when the vacancy will be filled.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Booking in November.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells and his address; to the organist and choir for their attendance at the service; to the Felsted friends, who kindly provided the tea, and to Mr. W. T. Farrow (churchwarden), who is also a ringer, for the excellent arrangements made.—The Vicar, responding, expressed his thanks to the association for paying a visit to his parish.

The Master gave a hearty welcome to the members of the Ely Association, who had travelled long distances, and expressed his regret at the small attendance of local ringers for reasons previously stated.—Mr. E. H. Finch (Stapleford) and Mr. A. E. Austin suitably replied. At their suggestion it was agreed to arrange for a joint meeting of the two associations at a future date.

This concluded a small but very enthusiastic joint meeting, although not pre-arranged, of the two neighbouring associations. During the afternoon and evening touches in the standard methods were rung.

NORFOLK GUILD.

A SMALL, BUT PLEASANT MEETING AT SWAFFHAM.

A general meeting of the Norfolk Guild was held at Swaffham on Bank Holiday. The ring of eight bells of SS. Peter and Paul's Church were, by the kind permission of the Vicar (the Rev. F. Keeling Scott), at the disposal of the members throughout the day.

Luncheon was served at the George Hotel, and the Secretary (Mr. Arthur L. Coleman) read a letter from the president (the Very Rev. the Dean of Norwich) conveying his best wishes to all members for a successful meeting.

Mr. G. P. Burton was voted to the chair, in the absence of the president, supported by the secretary, Messrs. W. B. Duncan (district secretary for Aylsham) and Ben S. Thompson (district secretary for Norwich), and also Mr. Thomas Fitzjohn, of Scartho, Great Grimsby, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. W. White, of Coventry, and representatives from Magdalen, Wallington, King's Lynn, Tharston, etc.

The Secretary moved that the belfry election (prior to a peal) of Mr. George Holmes, of Sheffield, be ratified, and proposed the election of Mr. Joseph H. W. White, of Coventry, as a life member (non-resident).—This was agreed to.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Rev. F. Keeling Scott for the use of the bells.

The business meeting then closed, and the members adjourned to the belfry for further ringing, when other members turned up to take part.

Although this was a small meeting with respect to the number of members present, it was not an unsuccessful one, and was much enjoyed by those present for the enthusiasm and good fellowship that reigned throughout the day. Some good touches of Stedman Triples, Plain Bob and Treble Bob Major were rung during the morning, afternoon and evening, and the ringing may be said to have been above the average for a general meeting.

FETE IN AID OF BELLS.

By a fete held at Sutton-on-Trent on Bank Holiday the remaining debt on the bell fund of the Parish Church was extinguished. The whole village entered heartily into the day's proceedings, and many visitors helped to swell the throng. The bells were ringing merrily from noon onwards until late in the evening, with a brief interval in order to enable the Chairman of the sports to make a short speech and propose a vote of thanks. The advertisement in 'The Ringing World' attracted a good attendance of ringers from the following places: Anston, Worksop, Warsop, Ordsall, Gainsborough, North Collingham, Mansfield, Nottingham, Hough-on-the-Hill, Branston and South Normanton, Mr. C. S. Ryles (hon. secretary) and Mr. Wheelodon, of the North Staffordshire and District Association, and also a full muster of the local company. The following methods were rung during the day: Plain Bob, Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Kent,

THE NOMENCLATURE CONFUSION.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Will Mr. Hunt object to my saying that he shows some sensitiveness when he asks for an apology, while saying he himself has 'a blunt way of putting things'? A little less bluntness and a little more courtesy in handling this matter would have certainly been desirable. In order, therefore, to make a start, I will give Mr. Hunt the apology he asks for, and admit that I was mistaken in thinking that the trouble was due to his imagination. Whether he will prefer the alternative I cannot say, but it now appears the cause was a failure to grasp the first principle of our native tongue. If he will compare the first rule in English grammar with the phrase 'Double Norwich Court Bob Major,' he will find that in that phrase there is only one word which is a name. The other four words may be called 'attributes,' 'adjectives,' 'epithets,' or 'descriptions,' but in no case have they anything to do with us or our report. Therefore, for the fourth time, I must repeat my statement; and I will add to it, and say that the name of the method which has always been called 'Norwich' cannot be affected by anything in our report. 'Norwich' it always has been, and 'Norwich' it always will be, and nothing the Council can do, let alone a committee, can alter it.

The statement that the report would have given any power to the committee is also flatly contradicted by the report itself. Resolution 11 reads:—'No names or terms, supplementary or in substitution for, those published by authority of C.C. should be used until the sanction of C.C. has been obtained.'

Although personally I did very little of the work of the committee, I was responsible for suggesting these two points. First, that the report should be divided up into as many independent portions as possible. And, second, that the C.C. should revise everything. It seemed to me that in names which everyone has to use, one cannot get too wide a method of approval before they are fixed.

In reply to Mr. Fowler, may I say that no one wants to deprecate the great achievement of the Ashton company in ringing and naming the 132 Treble Bob methods. But it was the confusion caused by such indiscriminate nomenclature which was the cause of the formation of this committee. Therefore, his complaint is against the Council, and not against us, who only did what we were asked to do. Incidentally, I may point out that his statement: 'If you have an infant registered as Rose, Lily, or Violet, you cannot alter it,' is altogether incorrect. Not only are there regulations whereby this can be done at the Registry Office, but a new name can be given at Baptism, and again at Confirmation. Therefore his company need not worry if the C.C. does have to alter some not very well established names.

I do not suppose Mr. Trollope will appreciate Mr. Hunt's implication that he also has got his grammar wrong; nor do I agree with Mr. Hunt's inference from the Ipswich meeting. But what does appear from their own words, is that the confusion of which Mr. Hunt's letter speaks, was caused by Mr. Trollope leading the Ipswich meeting astray, and by Mr. Hunt leading the Maunton House meeting astray. He seems so satisfied with this result that he says he does 'not think it worth while saying any more.' Has he no idea of the responsibility of his words and actions?

ANOTHER PEAL FOR MR. WARREN STURGIS.

Mr. S. Warren Sturgis, of Groton College, Mass. U.S.A., whose visit to England, with his eldest son, we referred to last week, when they took part in a peal on tower bells at Colerne, Wilts, has now rung a peal of Stedman Triples on handbells, with members of the College Youths. This is a notable achievement, as Mr. Sturgis has had comparatively little practice in the method, and he rang the peal at the first attempt.

We hope the success that has attended the efforts of Mr. Sturgis and his son will fire anew their enthusiasm for instructing the younger citizens of Groton and Boston in the art of change ringing, and that before long we may be able to congratulate Mr. Sturgis and his family upon ringing a peal of Triples or Major together, for his daughter and two sons are very keen to emulate the feat of their father. They have all rung both Grandsire and Bob Major on handbells. It would indeed be interesting to record a peal rung in the U.S.A. by citizens of that country.

Oxford, Double Bob. St. Clement's, Double Oxford Bob. Violet and Woodbine, Cambridge and London Surprise.

There was a large attendance at the sports in the afternoon, and a novel spectacle was a 'Wild West Show,' which was greatly enjoyed by spectators and performers alike. Two of the local ringers took part in this, and the whole show proved that a good deal of local talent can be found in Nottinghamshire villages.

The proceeds of the fete completely wiped off the debt on the Bell Restoration Fund, and the ringers and public in general will be greatly encouraged by the fact that sufficient has been raised to pay for the six bells. One more fete, together with a fine day, would no doubt bring in sufficient to add the two new trebles to complete the octave.

SHEFFIELD DISTRICT SOCIETY.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT EYAM.

On Bank Holiday Monday morning the secretary only knew of about half-a-dozen people who intended visiting Eyam, a beautiful little spot in the heart of the Derbyshire moors, but what looked like turning out to be a dismal failure was eventually a glorious success, no less than 50 members and friends making the journey from Barnsley, Chesterfield, Dore, Handsworth, Killamarsh, Norton, North Wingfield, Rawmarsh, Sheffield Cathedral, All Saints', St. Marie's, Ecclesfield and Treeton, and life members from Ashton-under-Lyne and Hazel Grove, and a visitor in Mr. Alfred Hall, from Cheadle, Staffs.

Eyam, so well known in history for the heroic part which the inhabitants played during the time of the Plague, gave the visitors a real hearty welcome, the Rev. W. P. Wright, who had done so much in getting the peal augmented to six, and Mr. U. Daine, churchwarden and bell ringer, sparing no effort to make everyone feel at home.

A great variety of methods were rung on this fine little peal by Taylor's during the afternoon and evening, and, together with touches on the handbells in the churchyard, created great interest amongst the onlookers from 'Steelopolis,' who had come over on the usual holiday ramble.

Tea was provided at Mrs. Godber's refreshment rooms, but imagine the look of bewilderment and perplexity on this good woman's face; she had only received advices from six ringers for tea and over 40 wanted supplying. Whether she performed the miracle of the three barley loaves over again the writer cannot say, but, with the ingenuity and resourcefulness for which country folk are noted, she managed to supply all wants.

By the kindness of the Rev. W. P. Wright, the business meeting was held in his garden, presided over by Mr. G. Lewis. The Secretary paid tribute to the esteem and affection which everyone held for the late Mr. Pryce Taylor, and was requested to convey to the widow, family, and Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. the society's respectful sympathy.

Two new members were elected, after which Mr. Potter and Mr. Cockey expressed the thanks of members to the Rector, to the Rev. W. P. Wright and to the local band for the very sincere welcome extended to all.

Glorious weather prevailed throughout the day, a fact which contributed in no small way to the success of the meeting.

ST. BLAISE SURPRISE MAJOR.

This method, of which the first peal was rung at Holy Trinity Church, Guildford, on June 8th last, has the Rev. E. Banks James as its author, and it was named by the Rector of Holy Trinity after St. Blaise, who had associations with this ancient town along the Pilgrims' Way, which has now become the cathedral city of the new diocese. Peals in this new method are obtainable without the 2nd or 3rd coming behind with the tenor.

SWANSEA AND BRECON DIOCESAN GUILD.

The annual meeting of the Swansea and Brecon Guild was held at Llanstephan, where the ring of eight bells were made good use of during the day. Ringers were present from Aberavon, Baglan, Neath, Morriston, Gorseinon, Llanelly, Llandilo, Tenby and Brecon St. Mary's and St. David's. The service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. J. R. Thomas), and the Lord Bishop gave a very interesting address. Tea was provided by the Vicar and church people, to which about 80 sat down and did justice to all the good things provided.

The business meeting was held on the Vicarage lawn, the Lord Bishop presiding. The Hon. Treasurer gave his report, showing a balance of over £10. The Master of the Guild presented his report of the Central Council meeting in London, and was congratulated by the Chairman.

It was resolved to hold the annual meeting for 1928 at Brecon.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr. W. R. Howells) wished to resign on account of his having left Brecon, and the Lord Bishop paid a fine tribute to Mr. Howells for his good work for the Guild, and hoped he may reconsider his decision.

Mr. F. E. Thomas (Brecon) was elected hon. secretary pro tem.

The other officers were elected as follows:—President, the Lord Bishop; Master, Mr. A. J. Pitzman. New members were elected as follows: G. Howells (Llanstephan), D. Michael, W. Robbins (Llanelly), G. M. Jones, H. Howells (Llandilo), W. Webb, A. Jones, C. Pettitt (Gorseinon) and C. Francis (Morriston). The Tenby band of ringers (12) were welcomed to the Guild.

Votes of thanks were passed to Mr. Russell for the very excellent design of the membership card and for his services at the ringing competition; to the Lord Bishop for his address and presiding at the meeting, and to the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Thomas and church people for their generosity in providing tea. Another visit was then paid to the tower by some, while others had to return to Carmarthen to catch the train.

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

THE PROPOSED JOINT GUILD FOR WINCHESTER AND PORTSMOUTH.

A quarterly meeting of the Basingstoke District was held at Andover on Saturday, July 23rd, when 22 members attended from the following towers: Andover, Basingstoke, Bramley, Highclere, King's Somborne, North Stoneham, Oakley, Silchester, Wootton Hill and Winchester. During the afternoon and evening good use was made of the bells at St. Mary's Church, the methods rung being Grand-sire Doubles (for the beginners), Grand-sire and Stedman Triples, and Bob Major.

The Rev. E. Jones (District Secretary) was away on holiday, and the Rev. H. T. Adams officiated in his stead.

Tea was partaken of in the Bowling Club Pavilion, and, at the business meeting which followed the General Secretary (Mr. G. Pullinger) reported that, in accordance with the wishes of the ringers, he had approached the Bishops of Winchester and Portsmouth, who had both sanctioned and approved the proposal to form a joint Diocesan Association for the new dioceses of Winchester and Portsmouth. He suggested that a special meeting be held at a convenient centre in the autumn, so that arrangements could be made to start the new association on January 1st next.

After a good deal of discussion it was resolved that the matter be left in the hands of the committee, and that all details be submitted to the districts at their annual meetings in November.

The Secretary reported that the next meeting would be at Odiham, due notice of which would be given in 'The Ringing World.'

DURHAM & NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

The summer meeting of the above was held at Sunderland on Saturday, July 23rd. The bells of the three churches were kindly placed at the disposal of the ringers for the afternoon and evening by the respective Vicars and wardens, and were kept going in various methods. An excellent tea was provided by the local ladies, who also looked after the wants of the party. Tea was served in the Parish Hall adjoining Bishop Wearmouth Church. There was a very small attendance, the clerk of the weather no doubt being responsible, as it left off 'raining' and came down 'anyhow,' so that the streets resembled small rivers. Fourteen sat down to tea, some in their shirt sleeves whilst their coats were dried. In the absence of the President, Mr. R. L. Patterson, vice-president of the Eastern District, presided. The Chairman proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicars and wardens of the three churches for the use of the bells, and to the ladies for supplying the tea and looking after them so well.—These votes were carried by acclamation.

Four new members were elected. The following towers were represented: Tanfield, Shildon, Willington, Durham and Newcastle Cathedrals, St. George's, Newcastle, and the three local towers.

LONG STANTON, CAMBS.—For evening service, on Sunday, July 31st, 720, Kent Treble Bob, with tenor cover: F. Warrington 1, E. J. Cook 2, F. G. Gleaves 3, G. E. Crisp 4, G. L. Perkins 5, C. W. Cook (conductor), J. Mahoney 8.

A VISIT TO EAST KENT.

AND A BAG OF KENT.

For a holiday week-end tour in East Kent the pioneer, who is named after a 'Cheese man,' managed, at the last moment, to charter a 'Good ship,' which proved no 'Dud'—'Ben,' with his 'nett,' landed, on a 'Fur bank,' a 'Pike,' who, having a liking for 'Spice,' tried to e-'lope' with 'Robert's' to Quex 'Park-es,' and was lucky not to finish at '—hell.' See peal columns.

When sufficient had put in an appearance on Saturday evening, July 30th, a peal of Cambridge Major was attempted on the bells at the Tower of Quex Park, but the attempt met its 'Waterloo' after two hours' ringing. Can you wonder at it, after travelling in crowded trains and wondering where one was going to sleep? A final attempt to find sufficient lodging was made, and, unfortunately, two of the visitors, 'Cheese' and 'lope,' above mentioned, decided to seek repose in the quietness and solitude of the tower in the Park. Needless to say, they were early astir, and, just after 7 a.m., eleven men, good and true, were ready for Stedman Cinques—even Teddy B., who had cycled in from Canterbury—but the local tenor man failed to put in an appearance, even three-quarters of an hour after the appointed time. So it was decided to go for Kent Royal, and J. H. C., who has a good bag at this tower, kindly stood out, and explored the beauties of the Park. This peal came into rounds 15 minutes after the appointed time to stop ringing. Although the church is a good distance from the tower, it is an understood fact that no ringing is to take place while a service is in progress, so the ringers hope to be excused, more especially as they were under the guidance of 'Robert's.'

After a good meal and finding a bed for the unlucky members for the night, the Park was again visited, and an attempt made for Stedman Cinques, which, unfortunately, came to grief after nearly two hours, and, incidentally, it was not the fault of the novices. Perhaps some were overjoyed to know that all would sleep peacefully.

A bus run into Ramsgate enabled the party to have a ring on the bells at St. Laurence for the evening service, and try the ten which were to be utilised on the following morning for an attempt for the first peal of Royal on the bells. Birchington was reached just before 10 p.m., and all should have been grateful for an early sleep. Four of the faithfuls who were occupying one room were startled at a late hour by a 'Bob' under the window, and a 'Fishy' voice asking the number of his lodging, as he had forgotten, and lost his bed mate and his 'nett' somewhere in the vicinity of 'Sovereign Street.'

The lost one must have found his way back, as a full muster was reported at Ramsgate just after 9 a.m. the following day. This time the 'forgetful one' volunteered to stand out, and the remainder had the satisfaction of ringing the first peal of Royal on the bells of St. Laurence—Kent being the method.

After a hurried dinner, at which the health of the wife of the 'good ship' was drunk on the occasion of her birthday, the next port of call was Canterbury for Stedman Cinques. Here was met the gentleman from Crayford, who was said to be the cause of such a stir in the daily papers that day by demanding a holiday—any way, he was at the Cathedral ready to take a rope. After waiting half-an-hour for one of the locals to complete the band, time did not permit of an attempt for Cinques, and the visitors had to be satisfied with another peal of Kent Royal.

This visit to Kent may be properly termed a 'Kent' tour, as of five attempts the three successful were Kent Treble Bob Royal. Don't think, dear reader, they could only ring that. Some would have liked to have wrung necks if they could.

The parting of the ways took place after the Canterbury peal, and all are grateful to those who helped to make the visit so enjoyable, and would like to offer their sincere thanks through the columns of 'The Ringing World' to all concerned.

SALFORD RINGERS' EXCURSION.

King Sol was kind to the ringers of the Church of Sacred Trinity, Salford, when they had their annual outing. Leaving the 'Flat Iron' at 1.30, the 'de luxe' car travelled nicely as far as Hazel Grove, when something went wrong with the engine. Eventually the drive was continued. Fairfield, Buxton, was reached, where, by a stroke of luck, a wedding was taking place. Such an auspicious occasion as that was not allowed to pass without suitable celebration, and the 'local lads' were given an exhibition of prowess by touches of Grandsire, Plain Bob, etc., for which the visitors were thanked. Travelled next to Bakewell, where the inner man (and woman)—for there were lady friends with the party—was attended, full justice being done to an excellent repast. The drive was then continued to Matlock Bath, Buxton, etc. As often happens on these drives, something kept going wrong with the engine, and the excursionists had to keep getting out to stretch their legs—at least some of them did. However, after a most enjoyable day, home was reached by 10.30, and best thanks are tendered to the Church Council for enabling the company to have such a splendid day's outing.

BRIDGEND RINGERS IN WORCESTER.

On Monday, August 1st, the Bridgend ringers, together with their wives, journeyed by train to Worcester. Arriving just after 12, (Continued in next column.)

A CONTINENTAL TRIP.

THANET RINGERS VISIT BRUGES.

August 1st and 2nd are days long to be remembered by the St. Laurence (Thanet) Society, when, for their annual outing, they made an excursion to Bruges.

For some considerable time it has been the great wish of the Vicar (Rev. A. G. Wilcox, M.A., H.C.F.) to take his ringers to Bruges to hear the Great Carrillon and continental ringing at its best. Through the splendid response to the Vicar's appeal, and the hearty co-operation and hard work of the hon. secretary, the great event in the history of St. Laurence ringers was accomplished.

Starting from Ramsgate Station at 10.30 a.m., the party proceeded to Dover, the great topic of conversation being 'change.' Most of the party, under the guidance of the Vicar, went to the Bureau d'Exchange and secured 172 frs. to the £. We then boarded the 'Stadanteverpen,' and the rain, ever an uninvited guest, accompanied us. One wondered why! This year he seems very aggressive to holiday makers. To come on our outing we considered the very limit, but it did not dampen the spirit of the St. Laurence lads, who were out for anything that came along. Many interesting and amusing things took place on the journey. As soon as we were aboard, the Vicar saw to it that we all had seats along the rail—one never knows what is in the mind of the Vicar, he is always so considerate, and has done this trip before. All comfortably seated (except for our conductor), the company unfasted mystery parcels, whose contents, if moistened somewhat by the rain, made a very acceptable meal, and an old gull, seated upon a davit, looked on with an air of keen expectation, which, however, was doomed to disappointment, as St. Laurence men are all good sailors. We had not proceeded far when our conductor found his seat too small and disappeared; then the secretary, having no change, proceeded below to exchange. Returning on deck with hands well filled with notes, he gave the Vicar his first opportunity to give him a lesson on change. Having grasped all the bobs and singles, he again went below to get out of the wet, only to return soon after with a quantity of small coin of various sizes, to complain that the bobs wouldn't come right, and, after appealing to the company in vain, tried one of the other passengers. The conductor, returning from 'nowhere,' soon put him right, when they both bobbed below again, not to be visible for some time. The weather brightened when we passed Ruytengen, and our conductor and secretary reappeared glowing with health, having got the exchange to their mutual satisfaction, and other members reappeared after having been to unheard of parts of the ship, the boldest smoking cigars of a brand equally unheard of.

All was bustle and hurry at Ostend, and having passed the Customs, we emulated the children of Israel, having a speedy meal, and then rushed for the train to Bruges. On arrival there, we went to the hotel, and then made for the Campanile, as we wished to see the inner workings. After a little delay, and much parleying, we were admitted, and, having gained the summit, were shown the bells and mechanism, also some splendid views from the top, 287 feet above the folks in the Grande Place below us. We climbed 341 steps, but it was well worth it. The heavy bell weighs eight tons. We then returned to the hotel for dinner, after which we took our seats in the Grande Place for the concert. The programme included 'Land of Hope and Glory,' specially put in for us, and an encore, and finished with the English National Anthem, also in our honour. We then returned to the hotel for the night, having safely completed the first half of the programme.

Tuesday morning saw us all afoot by 5.30 a.m., and, after breakfast at 7.15, we went by motor to visit some of the war cemeteries. Tyne Cot impressed us all with its magnificence; Hell Corner, Hodges' Crater, etc., were visited, and we reached Ypres at 11.30 for lunch. Here the time passed very rapidly, and only five minutes could be allotted for viewing the Menin Gate, that wonderful monument to those who fell at the Ypres salient. Cameras were, of course, very busy here.

From Ypres we returned to Ostend, and thence to Dover, where, having some time to wait, we visited St. Mary's, and rang touches of Grandsire Triples, Stedman and Bob Major, returning to Ramsgate about 9.50 p.m.

The ringers wish to thank all who so heartily supported them, both with good wishes and such generous gifts; also the Vicar for his kind thought and consideration on this ever-to-be-remembered outing.

The party were met by Mr. W. C. Jones and Mr. W. Edgington, two of the Cathedral ringers, who escorted them to All Saints' Church, where the bells were available before dinner. A short touch on this lovely peal was much enjoyed. After dinner at the Angel Hotel the party paid a visit to the fine old Cathedral and various places of interest before going to St. Helen's Church, where more ringing was indulged in. Tea was partaken of at the same hotel, and the rest of the evening hours were spent as only ringers can spend them. Leaving Worcester about 9.30, the party arrived home in the early hours of the morning, everyone having spent a very enjoyable day. The ringers take this opportunity of thanking the Cathedral men for their kindness, and also the incumbents for the use of the bells.

EAST ANGLIAN EXCURSION.

On Saturday, July 23rd, the Lavenham ringers held their annual outing, travelling by charabanc. The first stop was made at Eye, believed to be the smallest borough town in the country. Here the party were met by Mr. H. Day, who led them to the tower, where touches of Stedman, Bob Major, Kent and Cambridge were rung, during which some of the youngsters climbed the Castle steps. The journey was then continued to Redenhall; dinner being partaken of at the 'Yew Tree' Inn, after which a course of Grandsire Gaters was rung on the 'large ten' of a peal of 24 handbells, which were left to the 'Ringers of Redenhall' by the late Captain Penistone Moore. A selection of old airs was rendered by the handbell quartet, and then steps were taken to the church. Here Mr. Frederick Borrett, of Pulham Market, welcomed the visitors. Grandsire, Stedman, Bob Major and Superlative were the methods rung on this fine peal of bells. Diss was next visited, Messrs. J. Souter, G. Archer and W. Wiskens greeting the visitors, and courses of Grandsire, Stedman, Double Norwich, Superlative and Cambridge being tapped off. The bells at this tower form a grand old peal. At Pulgrave, the last call on the programme, the party found a light peal of eight, which Mr. G. More had in readiness. The first few leads here would have lost a few hundred points, had it been a ringing contest instead of an outing, but remembering a 'Norfolk tip' given them earlier in the day—'To eke 'em out!' Grandsire, Double Norwich, Kent and Superlative were managed. Tea at the 'Swan Inn' followed, after which the shy H.Q. were again pressed into service, much to the delight of 'Winnie,' mine host, and the local P.B.'s. Then came 'farewell time' to Winnie, etc., which was the only 'hitch' in the programme. All aboard for Lavenham! one long last backward glance by George's Ravellers and Co., and the party were off for home, which was reached about 10.20 p.m., at the end of an (almost) perfect day. The band wish, through the medium of 'The Ringing World,' to thank all those kind friends who helped to make the outing a success.

THE EXPERTS OF THE FUTURE.

Although ringers are undoubtedly, to some extent, quickly satiated with technical discussions between experts on topics like method extension, there is unquestionably a much wider interest in this and kindred subjects than there used to be. Some, perhaps, like Mr. George Baker, are already tired of the discussion on Superlative Surprise, and yet there are others who, apart from the 'wrangle' over this question, are really desirous of getting at facts. There was an obviously keen interest among a large number of members at the last Central Council meeting over the Superlative question. It was discussed by individuals both before and after the meeting, and though it was said that in someone's opinion there were only about half a dozen people who knew enough of the subject to be able to decide the question, those who hold this opinion fail to realise that there is growing up in the Exercise a class of men who really do take an intelligent interest in matters of this description and who do know something about it.

The Superlative Surprise dispute is only an example. The average ringer of to-day is a better educated man than the ringer of five and twenty years ago, and while ringing is a science which requires a special aptitude which is not always to be found even in educated people, it is quite certain that improved education has resulted in those who are ringers approaching these subjects from a different angle to the majority of the 'old school,' and with a much keener desire to know the 'whys' and 'wherefores.' With this increased knowledge it cannot be suggested that there are but a handful of people competent to form opinions. A jury may not know the 'law' of a case which they are trying, but they do decide questions of fact, and in our art the many members of the Exercise who have given thought to matters beyond merely ringing a method are able to draw conclusions from facts which are plainly stated.

In these days it must not be imagined that knowledge remains entirely with the favoured few. One finds in most unexpected quarters a keen appreciation of some of the questions which in the past have been considered the exclusive prerogative of the experts, and this growing knowledge of the science is of vast importance to the future of the Exercise. It is a proof that the rising generation is not entirely content to take for granted everything which is put before them. They will test these questions for themselves. It is true they have not the experience of the older men, but they are adding to this every day; and views which hold the field at present will unquestionably have to stand their trial before final judgment is passed upon them. It is an encouraging sign that a larger proportion of ringers are taking a greater interest in the problems of the science, for the more they do this, the greater will be their own knowledge, and the better it will be for the future of the Exercise. They will be the experts of the future, and they will form an ever widening circle.

DOINGS AT FARINGDON.

HOW WE WENT 'DOWN THE VALE.'

On Saturday, August 6th, two men left Reading to fulfil a long-standing promise to the men of Faringdon, Berks, that they would come down one day and see what progress had been made with Grand-sire Triples. At 3.30, the local ringers were found 'waiting at the church,' so a start was made, and to the visitors' surprise and delight a 546 was rung in quite good style; then, with two other men in, a 1,008. A quarter-peal was the ambition of the local band, so off they went again, and a real good quarter was scored. After this a social hour was spent and much enjoyed, and so to bed. On Sunday morning, with only one of the visitors left, 209, 420, and 518 were rung. At 5.30, the 'Padre' turned up sharp to time, and 714 was brought round, beautifully struck. So well, in fact, was it rung, that a lady ringer from Exeter said she would rather not ring, as she would not like to spoil the ringing of the evening. Anyhow, she was persuaded to try the treble, and another little touch of 209 was added to the bag. This may not appear much to the big men of the Exercise, but the remarkable thing is the Faringdon men were mostly staid old call-change ringers of years' standing, but suddenly realised that if Alfred the Great could wipe out the Danes at Asdown they could wipe out 'Stoney' at Faringdon, and they have. The writer would like them to know that their great kindness to him during the week-end will be long remembered, and also that the 'Padre' also had a most enjoyable time.

THE IRISH TOUR.

A SUCCESSFUL TRIP TO ERIN.

By 'W. H. F.'

A few weeks ago a certain Dublin 'gentleman,' who had crossed the Irish Channel to ring a 'touch' of 20,000 of Kent, made casual inquiries of his ringing friends as to when a band of English ringers were going to visit the Irish Free State for some peal ringing. The answer to this question was revealed in last week's issue of this journal, which showed that the visit was paid 'begorrah' in a most successful manner, and, therefore, a few notes of the programme may be of interest to readers of 'The Ringing World.'

As usual, small beginnings often lead to big undertakings, and this gathering, started with the hope of a twelve-bell band, accomplished more than was really expected at the outset. In addition to those members whose names appear in the peals list were several ladies—Mrs. H. Chapman, Mrs. F. Bennett, and Miss D. K. Parker—a 'swarm' of fifteen tourists all told.

Many ringers have vivid recollections of Bank Holiday ringing excursions, and their 'missing links.' The present one afforded no exception to the 'madding crowds' to be met with at such holiday times. It was suggested that all should assemble at Liverpool on Friday evening and cross over together by the 10 p.m. British and Irish steam packet boat, and a 'bait' was offered, through the kind offices of Mr. G. R. Newton, in the form of Stedman Cinques at St. Nicholas' tower, which faces the landing stage and commands a fine view of the River Mersey. The Cinques proposed was reduced to Triples on the back eight, and lasted two and a half hours, the 'backenders' developing a set of blisters that proved troublesome later on and caused the owners to envy those who took the Holyhead crossing.

A fair and easy passage was made on a full boat of about 700 people. Some had sleeping berths—to lie awake in all night—and others occupied the deck to walk in their sleep. The distant hills of Wicklow came into sight at about 6 a.m., and we landed at the dockside in the River Liffey about seven o'clock, after ploughing the famous bay of Dublin, with its picturesque background of Emerald. Customs officials searched our handbags—oh, ye shades of Greenwich—and labelled them in blue pencil, and we were at length 'set free' in the Free State of Ireland, under the care of Mr. Gabriel Lindoff, who quickly escorted the party to their headquarters, the George Hotel, Great George Street, once patronised by George of Rugby. 'All's well' sounded when the roll call was finished, a wash and brush-up, breakfast and chat had ended, preparatory to our first venture at 11 a.m.

Readers will remember the old couplet which says:—

'St. Patrick was a gentleman of "clane and dacent" people;

In Dublin town he built a church, and on it placed a steeple.'

It was here we began with success, and, as it is the only tower out of England possessing twelve bells, our performance was the 'first Max' for Scotland, Wales and Ireland combined.

St. Patrick's tower is literally crammed with bells. The old eight are stored in the room above the ringers—not in use, objects of veneration to ringers of to-day and for those to follow hereafter. Of the new bells cast by Taylor, the following separate rings can be formed:—

Sets of 12, 10 or 8, in key of C, tenor 45 cwt.

Sets of 12, 10 and 8 in D Minor, tenor 30 cwt.

Set of 8 in F, tenor 19 cwt., and many 'sixes.'

The eleven large bells were given by Lord Iveagh in 1899, and two smaller ones added by Mr. R. R. Cherry (afterwards Lord Chief Justice), of Dublin, in 1909. The donor was the conductor of the first peal in Ireland by an Irish team. I do not recall another tower where a ring of twelve can be found for ringing in the minor key. In this attempt it was an agreeable relief not to hear the heavy covering note of the ordinary tenor when in the slow. There were several spells of wonderful music when the back bells were running in Bob Major coursing order. The peal was well rung throughout, and the majority of the band were agreeably surprised at the readiness with which it grew accustomed to the minor mania—no, I mean the minor music. During the ringing I was wondering what the effect would have been had these bells been tuned to the Simpson standard.

Before ringing, a matter of business was gone into, ten of the visitors begging the honour of membership of the I.A.C.R., and the branding with the Shamrock was suitably accomplished—on the right spot—at the hands of Mr. Wilmot and Mr. Lindoff, supported by Messrs. Chapman and Fussell, who had undergone the operation some 25 years ago.

St. Patrick's Cathedral of to-day—a very handsome pile—succeeds a smaller one supposed to have been erected by St. Patrick on his first pilgrimage on the Island, and near the site of a famous spring known as St. Patrick's Well. Its whereabouts was unknown for centuries until modern restoration work was done. Since my visit of 1900, a further important discovery has been made during excavations near the church. At a level six feet below the ground was revealed the actual carved stone that formerly marked the well, and it is now to be seen in the nave near the door of the stairs that lead up to the bells.

ST. MARTIN'S GUILD. VISIT TO EDGBASTON.

The summer meeting of the St. Martin's Guild for the diocese of Birmingham was held at Edgbaston on Saturday week, those who were present having a most enjoyable afternoon and evening. The Parish Church of St. Bartholomew, commonly known as Edgbaston 'Old Church,' is a picturesque building of stone, mainly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of nave, north, south and 'new' aisles, and a low embattled western tower with four pinnacles. The church dates from 1340, while the tower was built in 1503. Until a few years ago the tower was completely enveloped in ivy, but this was very wisely stripped off when restoration work was being carried out. Ivy certainly makes a tower look pretty, but it is no good for the stone work.

Members were met by the Vicar, the Rev. Canon Blofeld, who gave everyone a hearty welcome, and showed several round the church, pointing out features of interest, among which is a memorial tablet to Sir John Ratchliffe, Knight, sometime Mayor of Birmingham. This worthy gentleman is eulogised, as was the custom in bygone days, and there can be no doubt that he has gone to the place where all good people go, but the epitaph reads: 'There shall be no night there.'

Until recently, the tower contained a poor old ring of six, but these have now been replaced by a splendid ring of eight by Taylor (tenor 10½ cwt. in G sharp), which are a credit to their founders and to the church. The well-known carillonneur and erstwhile performer on the dulcimer, Harry Withers, is in charge here, and both the church authorities and the ringers are fortunate in having such a capable man. While mentioning Harry, the writer of these notes would like to take the opportunity of reminding him that it is high time he overhauled his 'music box' and put in some intensive practice, in order that he may once again be able to charm the guests at the next Johnson dinner! Verb, sap!

By the kindness of the Vicar, tea was arranged in the schoolroom nearby, and the presiding Ringing Master, Alderman W. Pritchett, took the chair at the business meeting which followed. Before leaving to keep another appointment, Canon Blofeld said how very pleased he was to welcome the Guild to his church, and to hear how pleased everyone was with the new bells. He said he was tired of having his leg pulled about the old six, and now that he had a ring second to none in the district, he hoped the Guild would visit them more often in the future. He added that the wardens and the Church Council were convinced that they had done the right thing in making a clean sweep, and not attempting to augment or patch up the old peal, and he had received many congratulations on the matter.

Before calling on the secretary to read the minutes of the last meeting, the Chairman referred in feeling terms to the death of Mr. Pryce

Taylor, and all present stood for a moment in silence as a last token of respect to the deceased. The Secretary reported that he had written a letter of condolence to the family, and the Guild was represented at the funeral by Mr. James George.

Among the new members elected subsequently was the parish clerk of Edgbaston, Mr. Sidney Freemantle, who is already well known to many members, having been present on several occasions at the Johnson Dinner and other gatherings of lesser note.

Routine matters having been disposed of, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Vicar for the use of the bells, for his hospitality in providing tea, to Mr. and Mrs. Freemantle for their excellent arrangements for the comfort of all, and to Mr. Harry Withers for having the bells in readiness.

During the afternoon and evening the bells were kept going to London, Cambridge, Double Norwich and the standard methods, while later an hour was spent in the company of an old member of the Guild, familiarly known to a past generation of Birmingham ringers as 'Bob Hunt.' This gentleman can talk of ringing happenings of 'ten, twenty, thirty, forty, fifty years ago,' and it seems a pity that he should have allowed his interest to flag. He used to be particularly fond of handbells, and could wield a pair in Stedman Cinques with the greatest ease and confidence. Nowadays, he is understood to prefer a glass of milk 'with something in it,' and he certainly looks well on it. But he must come back.

A VISIT TO DUFFIELD.

The annual outing of the Norton (Derbyshire) company on Tuesday, August 2nd, to Alton Towers (once the princely seat of the Earls of Shrewsbury and Talbot), was a delightful journey, with encouraging weather and picturesque and romantic scenery, enjoyed by all. At 10.30 a.m. the party were met by the Duffield ringers, where three touches in the standard methods, well struck, were brought round. An interesting feature of the proceedings was the meeting with Mr. Colin Oldfield, who is on a visit from New Jersey, U.S.A., who was delighted with a ring on the bells (there being no change ringing within his reach at U.S.A.).

The Norton company wish to thank the Duffield ringers for their encouraging welcome and consideration in helping to make a trip worth while.

After a short stay at Duffield, departure was made for Alton Towers, where the company spent the remainder of the day leisurely, having lunch in the gardener's cottage and leaving Alton at 6 p.m. for home.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The peal at Shepton Beauchamp, recorded in our last issue, was not the first on the bells, Mr. J. Maddocks having called one there in 1908.

A new record among the lady members of the Exercise has been set up by Miss Kathleen Jutson, who, on Saturday, took part in a peal of 10,080 of Minor, in fourteen methods. The peal occupied 6 hrs. 20 mins., and is a remarkable achievement for a woman.

Mr. George Earle (who 'witnessed' the handbell peal at Thorpe Market, Norfolk) is the last surviving member of the old Southrepps company that gained sonic repute in the neighbourhood for its exposition of the art. These worthies thought nothing of weekly walks of 20 miles on a Saturday evening or Sunday to the rings of six and five in the district. It is a great pity that the grand ring of five (tenor 16 cwt.) at Southrepps have just been repaired for chiming at a cost a few pounds less than a competent bell hanger would have charged for a complete overhaul.

Eleven London children spent a wet holiday in the village of King-ton Magna, Dorset, where the hon. secretary of the Salisbury Guild is Rector. During their stay, three of the girls sang in the choir, and all the eleven members of the party tried their hands at ringing the bells.

To-day is the anniversary of the opening of the peal of ten at York Minster in the year 1765.

Eight veteran ringers, whose total ages aggregated 553 years, rang a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major at Guiseley on August 24th, 1868.

Henry Hubbard was born at Norwich 120 years ago next Thursday.

'SUPERLATIVE MAXIMUS.'

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I am tired of the never-ending controversies in connection with the above, and other matters pertaining to Method Construction.

If 'A Plain Ringer' will communicate with me direct I shall be pleased to let him have the Royal of the Rev. H. L. James' so-called 'Superlative' Maximus, and 'A Plain Ringer' will then learn that Shipway's Royal has not been extended by Rev. H. L. James, neither did Shipway extend 'Superlative' Major when he produced his Royal Method.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE BAKER.

'KINGTON CATHEDRAL?'

Under this heading, the 'North Dorset Church Magazine' says: 'When King George V. was crowned on June 22nd, 1911, Kington bells were the first in the kingdom to proclaim the festival day with a peal at 3.28 a.m. The next were those of Holy Trinity, Guildford, which rang out at 3.45. With the division of Winchester diocese into three, Trinity Church has now been made the cathedral for Guildford diocese. It yet remains for Kington Church to be exalted to the same rank! Old Schoolmaster Lanning used to speak of it as a "little cathedral." It is interesting also to observe that the new Bishop of Portsmouth is—or was—a tithepayer in this parish—though he never came to eat his supper.'

ICKLETON BELLS.

The order has been given for the two new trebles to complete the octave at Ickleton. One bell has been given as a memorial to the late treasurer of the Ringers' Society, Mr. Beales. The bell hangers are fixing the new frame, six bells have arrived, and the other two are expected shortly, as the founders have promised to complete the job by the 25th. We understand that under a diocesan rule they cannot be dedicated until they are paid for, and for this reason a grant of £50 from the diocesan funds which had been promised will be lost. The bells, however, will be used when they are completed. At present the parish is £150 short of the sum required. The following donations are acknowledged with thanks: St. Peter's Society, Nottingham, £2 2s., Mr. F. Warrington 5s., Mr. A. E. Austin 5s. Further contributions should be sent to Mr. P. Webb, Ickleton, Cambs.

RINGERS' MEETING IN CHURCHYARD.

A meeting of charming variety was held at Cawthorne on Saturday, August 6th. There are always many happy features when a meeting is held at this beautiful village, which have been related before, but in the month of August the flowers in the many gardens are at their best. The corn ripening in the fields in beautiful sunshine must have made everyone doubly happy.

Members from Dewsbury and Kirkburton, with visitors, joined in union and rang the bells from 2.30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tea was partaken of at the local cafe, and was enjoyed by many ladies closely interested and ringers.

The business meeting was held in the churchyard, and it was purely formal, with the exception of a fly in the ointment of our affections, which the writer will not name. The shield contest is to be held at South Kirkby on Saturday, September 10th.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar and churchwardens and local ringers and terminated the meeting.

A BEGINNER'S THEORY.

BY 'MINORMANIA.'

This is the third of the series of articles which have been specially written for beginners by 'Minormania,' to explain to them the theory of change ringing. These articles are not merely for perusal. If they are to serve the purpose for which they are intended they must be studied.

METHODS DIFFER.

Methods differ one from another only for the reason that the pairs changing in corresponding rows of the first lead in each method are not similar pairs. That is to say, in the first row of one method three pairs might change, whilst in the first row of another method only two pairs. This has the effect of making the paths of the bells in one method differ from those in another.

The changing pairs throughout the first lead can be so arranged, that, while the rows inside the lead may differ in two methods, yet the rows which turn up as lead-ends in the two methods are identical. The pairs can also be arranged so that the lead-end rows of two methods are not identical.

The Minor methods which are sponsored by the Central Council, and which were published as 'Legitimate Methods,' all have the pairs so arranged in the first leads, that they produce, for the first lead-ends, one of the four rows which appear as the lead-ends in Bob Minor, previously shown. If a method produces a first lead-end which is different from every one of these four, then it is not 'legitimate.' Therefore it follows that the lead-ends of a plain course in any legitimate Minor method can be produced by taking each one of these four in turn, and using it as the first lead-end. In other words, in Bob Minor we have taken 135264 as our first lead-end for transposing, and have produced five rows (counting rounds as one). Now take the next in our list (156342) as the example row for transposition. Place in black figures 123456, with black 156342 underneath. Cover 123456 with red row 156342, and proceed to transfer the cards as before, but this time do it in the order of 1, 5, 6, 3, 4, 2 (instead of 1, 3, 5, 2, 6, 4). Do this until rounds is reached again. Then substitute 164523 as your example lead-end, and proceed to transfer until you get your five lead-ends. Finally, substitute 142635. You will then have four columns of lead-ends, with this peculiarity: that the same five rows keep turning up, with rounds last, but with the other four rows in different sequence in the columns.

By this we may know that any plain lead-end, transposed by any other plain lead-end, will result in a plain lead-end, because (somewhere or another) in our four columns, we have transposed every one of them, by every other one.

BOBS AND SINGLES.

We have seen that the theoretical leads are joined together into plain courses by one other bell retaining the same place in the rows when the treble leads her whole pull. The actual 'join' takes place at the space between the two rows, where the line is drawn. When the treble leads at the end of the first lead in Bob Minor we have these two rows:—

Practically.	Theoretically.

Theoretically, 135264 is the first row in the following lead, and 132546 is the last row in the present lead; therefore, the 'join' must occur at the theoretical line, and the method of doing it is to cause one bell to retain the same position in the row while the remainder change—it may be the second's place bell, or the sixth's place bell, as will be shown.

The 'courses' are joined together into touches and peals in a similar manner, by means of 'Bobs' and 'Singles,' otherwise, Bob Rows and Single Rows.

When a Bob Row is used, action similar to that at the lead-ends takes place, the only difference being that, instead of second's or sixth's place being made by one bell, this is done by the FOURTH'S-PLACE bell, leaving the other four to change, the treble, of course, remaining at the lead.

It is a pity that Plain Bob cannot be used in the example that follows, but I wish to show the same rows as (1) a second's-place method, (2) as a sixth's-place method, and (3) as a Bob Lead of either method. If the first lead of Plain Bob is shown as a sixth's place method, the bells will run round, and for this reason it cannot be used here; but we will take two methods, one of which makes second's place at the plain lead-ends, and the other of which makes sixth's place, both of which have the same rows just before the end of the first lead:—

Second's-place method (Double Oxford).		Sixth's-place method (London Bob).
First lead.	First lead.	First lead.	First lead.
plain.	bobbed.	plain.	bobbed.
Etc.	Etc.	Etc.	Etc.
412635	412635	412635	412635

In each example the treble retains the same place in the row, and also one other bell, while the remaining pairs change; the place is made in (1) by the '4,' in (2) by the '2,' in (3) by the '3,' and in

(4) by the '2.' We can see that if we ring a plain lead of each method we get a different lead-head (below the line) in each; but that if a bob be called in either method the lead-head (below the line) would be the same in both.

We can know then, that the first lead of any method can be turned into a bobbed lead by making 'fourth's place' instead of second's or sixth's place, as the case may be.

While the bob acts in the same way with all methods, the 'single' does not; we can see in the four examples above that in each case two pairs change, to produce the new lead-heads.

A 'single' is a row which has only a 'single change'; that is, a row which is produced by the changing of only one pair, and it differs when applied to second's-place and sixth's-place methods. If the method make second's place at the lead-ends, then change only the last pair at a single; in other words, make second's, third's and fourth's places, and the remaining pair change. If the method makes sixth's place at the plain lead-ends, then only change the pair which immediately follows the treble; in other words, make fourth's, fifth's and sixth's places, and the remaining pair change. Thus:—

Second's-place method (Double Oxford).	Sixth's-place method. (London Bob).
First lead singled.	First lead singled.
Etc.	Etc.
4 1 2 6 3 5	4 1 2 6 3 5
1 4 6 2 5 3	1 4 6 2 5 3

The pair which change in each is bracketed, and the remaining bells retain their positions in the row.

One effect that a call has upon a method is that it alters the method for one row only, and when this altered row is produced, we go on with our changing pairs (from our altered lead-head) in the same way as usual. Therefore, if one row only is altered, then the paths of the bells are altered for one blow only, before they start on their set paths through the next lead, which are those paths that are followed by the bells in the first lead, as we have always been led to believe; but the 'call row' causes the bells to start the next lead from different 'platforms'; that is, different positions from those which the bells would have occupied had it been a plain lead-end instead of a 'call.' After this 'shunting' to a different platform, as it were, the usual set rails are travelled from Station A to Station B.

If we have traced for ourselves the 'plain course path' of a method, we may reason out how this path is altered by a call, in this way: We have traced the ordinary path, by the figures of the first lead, and therefore we must know how the first lead-end will be altered by a call. Remember: for a bob, make fourth's place, etc., in every Minor method; but that for a single, it depends upon the class of method as to which pair is changed. Plain Bob is a second's-place class of method, and the end of the first lead is shown:—

	PLAIN. Make 2nd's place.	BOBBED. Make 4th's place.	SINGLED. Change last pair only.
Row at treble hand-stroke lead ...	1 3 2 5 4 6	1 3 2 5 4 6	1 3 2 5 4 6
Next lead-head row	1 3(52) (64)	1 (23)5(64)	1 3 2 5(64)

Now that we have the first lead-end in plain, bobbed, and singled rows, it is easy to see how the path (or work) of every bell is affected by a call.

Platforms at first lead-end
1st. 2nd. 3rd. 4th. 5th. 6th.

If plain lead-end (without a call) the trains arriving are ... 1 3 5 2 6 4
If bobbed, they are ... 1 2 3 5 6 4
If singled, they are ... 1 3 2 5 6 4

Trace the path of bell No. 2 through the first lead from 123456 down to 132546, and when she leaves this row the plain-end (135264) makes her step back into fourth's place, and therefore she takes up the set path of the fourth's-place bell at 123456 (the '4') during her progress through the next lead; but when the bob-end (123564) is substituted for the plain (135264), bell No. 2 is not allowed to step back into fourth's place as she would have done, but she is forced to step forwards to second's place at 123564, and therefore she takes up the set path of the second's-place bell (the '2') at 123456 instead of the fourth's-place bell (the '4').

The substitution of the singled row (132564) for the plain one, makes bell No. 2 remain in third's place (after leaving the 132546), and therefore she takes up the set path of the third's-place bell (the '3') at 123456, instead of either path shown in the plain or bobbed rows. All of the alterations made by calls can be traced in this manner, merely by substituting the 'call-row' for the 'plain-row.'

Notice that the bells arriving at platforms 5th and 6th (the '6' and the '4') are not altered by either call, in this instance; also particularly notice that the bells which are affected by the calls do ordinary plain work up to row 132546, the altered work from here to the call row, for one blow only, and then pick up ordinary plain work again, but starting from a different platform. Notice, also, that the single row (132564) does not alter the second's-place bell at the plain 135264 (the '3'), and that the fourth's-place bell (the '5') does the same work at both the bob and single rows.

RECOLLECTIONS OF SOMERSET. RINGERS' MOTORING TOUR.

There are 'ringing tours' and 'ringing tours.' There are those in which peals are the essence of the enjoyment; there are those in which the peals are only an accessory to the pleasure. Each to his own taste. This year's 'Somerset' tour, organised by Messrs. J. T. Dyke and A. H. Pulling, came in the latter category. It was a go-as-you-please motoring holiday, with peals thrown in, and no meals omitted; and a social side to it which could not have been excelled.

It was called a 'Somerset' tour, but it began in Devon and extended into Wiltshire, a programme of fourteen peals having been arranged. It centred on Wrington, where is one of the finest peals of ten in the country. Here were the headquarters, the Golden Lion, where Mr. and Mrs. Axford, with previous experience of ringers' requirements and delinquencies, catered for their needs in right royal style. The party was not quite stable in its personnel, for there were comings and goings, but round about a dozen saw the week through. The non-ringing ladies of the party were Mrs. Dobbie, sen. (who is a churchwarden in her own parish), Mrs. A. H. Pulling, Mrs. C. H. Dobbie and Mrs. J. S. Goldsmith, while Mr. W. Besson also accompanied the tourists. The names of the remainder will be found in the peal columns. The party was well equipped for the excursion; there was plenty of brawn for the heavy-bell jobs, and a complete ambulance detachment, the latter, happily, not being called upon except to deal with blistered hands.

The long anticipated tour began at Exeter. By 4 p.m. on Saturday, August 6th, the majority of the company had assembled in the Cathedral Close, and, greetings over, a move was made to the commodious belfry, the magnificent view from the roof being admired en route. Ringing commenced at 4.30 p.m., but at 4.35 p.m. the conductor called 'Stand.' The fears of the listeners outside were allayed when at 4.40 another start was made, and all seemed well, the grand bells pealing out the fine music of Stedman Caters. For three hours the non-ringers explored the cathedral and places of interest in the city, returning at intervals to assure themselves that ringing was still in progress. However, after 3 hrs. 25 mins. the bells ceased, much to everyone's disappointment. There had been no big trip, so the cause of the stoppage was a mystery until one of the ringers came down with the news that one of the local tenor men had been compelled to give in.

'HOME FROM HOME.'

It was a very disappointing beginning to the tour, especially after ringing for so long. After assuring themselves that the exhausted ringer had somewhat recovered, the company dispersed, the tourists by various and adventurous ways all eventually arriving at Wrington, the 'home from home' for the ensuing week. But 'all' is hardly correct, for two of the company were forced to abandon their journey owing to trouble with lights, and did not arrive until the following day.

On Sunday morning, some of the company were up with the lark, and all managed to reach the dining-room in time to do justice to the excellent fare provided for breakfast. Several well-struck touches on the fine Wrington bells were brought round for service. In the meantime the great little 'Austin' had taken two of the ladies to Wells to pick up the motor-cycle which the lady ringer of the party had abandoned for the luxury of a car on the previous day. After various adjustments, it was declared 'O.K.' and cycle and car, with their respective riders, returned with sharpened appetites ready for lunch.

Clevedon was the objective for the afternoon, and having arrived the ringers soon set the bells swinging to the tune of Cambridge. The listeners rambled over the cliffs and sea front within sound of the bells all the time, until rain drove them to the shelter of the car. (Does it rain every day in Clevedon?) After about two hours' ringing, a hitch occurred, and the bells stopped. The disappointment was lessened, however, when it was found that owing to lack of time the peal could not have been completed in any case, because of evensong. An adjournment was then made for tea, and, to judge by her catering, the hostess had had previous experience of ringing parties. Some of the party returned immediately to Wrington, while others decided to enjoy a little more sea air and, incidentally, see some of the sights of Clevedon. By 9 p.m. all were ready, and the three motor-cycle combinations conveyed ten persons and two dogs to Wrington in safety. It was with regret that they heard on arrival that the worthy host was indisposed, and they wished him a speedy recovery.

The news of the coming of the party to Wrington had spread in the village, and their intentions must have been discussed in various quarters, for while three of the party were travelling in the bus from Clevedon to Wrington, a bewhiskered fellow traveller imparted to them the important information that some ringers had come from London and were going to ring over 5,000 changes on Wrington bells. Without so much as the flutter of an eyelid, one of the strangers innocently asked how on earth the ringers could remember all the changes. The local worthy, with a chuckle intended to camouflage any sign of ignorance, replied enigmatically, 'Ah, that's just it!' And he enjoyed the experience of imagining he had left his questioner mystified.

From a ringing point of view, Monday was a more successful day. Wrexall, with its glorious eight, was the first objective. The 'baby' Austin led the way, but no 'short cut' through Brockley Coombe was taken this year. The various conveyances eventually brought their human freight, and by 9.55 the bells were set swinging to the tune of Superlative, and very grand they sounded from the heights beyond the church. The bells tapped along with a splendid beat, and in 3 hrs. 25 mins. came round, thus scoring the first peal of the tour and Oliver Sippet's 400th. The listeners were anxious to show their appreciation of the performance, especially that of the lady ringer, and they therefore presented to her a bouquet of choice wild flowers gathered as they wandered across the fields. It was with reluctance that such a lovely spot had to be left, but ringers are hungry people, and excellent luncheons are provided at Wrington's Golden Lion! Besides, there was the added attraction of Blagdon tower in the afternoon. Here, again, success crowned the ringers' efforts, and a fine peal of Stedman Triples was brought round in 3 hrs. 16 mins. Fears were entertained of ropes breaking, as they seemed 'none too strong', but, fortunately, they survived the test. It was a happy party that, after tea, packed into car and sidecars and wended its way via Burrington Coombe to see the famous 'Rock of Ages', and to greet an addition to the party in the person of Canon Coleridge. Everyone was pleased on reaching home to hear that the host was much better, and merriment was the order of the evening, until, tired and happy, all retired to bed.

EPIDEMIC PREVENTS PEAL.

On Tuesday morning an early start was made for Corston, where a great disappointment awaited the company. An epidemic of ice-cream poisoning was raging in the village, and the Vicar thought it was hardly advisable to ring the bells. There had been no time to secure another tower, so a move was made to Twerton, which had been originally arranged for the afternoon. After a start had been made for Superlative, one member of the party went on to Clevedon to try and arrange for a peal there in the evening. The bells went merrily on for half an hour, and then the attempt came to an untimely end. As the 'going' was none too good, a fresh start was made for Stedman, and this was brought round in 3 hrs. 3 mins., the lady ringer being congratulated upon lasting through the peal, and Mr. Joe Dyke on completing his 300th. After compensating themselves for their exertions, a move was made into Bath for lunch, after which the journey was made to Clevedon, but unfortunately they arrived too late to attempt a peal. Clevedon was in the throes of a flower show and fair, and to this the company adjourned to share in the hectic doings. The various side-shows were patronised, including the 'cocoanut shy' and the ice-cream tent! A certain little dog evaded its mistress, evidently bent on exploring the attractions of the fair, and it was eventually found in the safe custody of a policeman, much to its owner's relief. It was rumoured that one gentleman's somewhat robust form got in the way of a ball intended for a cocoanut, but as no damage was done, the less said the better. The return to Wrington was very enjoyable, and, after satisfying sharpened appetites, all sought a night's repose.

Wednesday morning was again a rush to make an early start for Bradford-on-Avon. However, the hurry was of no avail, for various hindrances prevented the early arrival of one of the vehicles carrying two of the ringers. A start was made for London, but came to grief in twenty minutes. Then the bells were set going for Treble Bob, and the non-ringers explored the Saxon church, which, built in 709, was the first Christian place of worship in England; and also a grand old tithe barn. Both of these buildings are gems of antiquity, and the ladies would like to express their appreciation of the kindness of the two gentlemen who escorted them and made things so interesting. But the peal came to grief. After two hours' ringing, a rope slipped and frustrated the ringers' hopes. A generous lunch was partaken of on the lawn opposite the church, and, afterwards, a move was made to Trowbridge, where further additions were made to the party, the addition of another car coming to the relief of the overworked combinations. The jovial 'Sam' had everything in readiness, and a merry greeting for all. Treble Ten was the method chosen for this tower, and some fine striking was heard. To the stuffiness of the belfry is attributed an enforced stop after 25 minutes' ringing. A substitute was forthcoming, however, to replace the 'discomforted' ringer, and a fresh start was made. This time success crowned their efforts, and another fine peal was scored. The Vicar, churchwardens, and Mr. Sam Hector very kindly entertained the whole party to tea, and the Vicar (locum tenens), in a short speech, thanked the ringers for the peal. Canon Coleridge suitably replied, and voiced the thanks of the party for the kindness and welcome shown. As it was a long journey to Wrington, the company did not linger after supper, but boarded their various conveyances and started on their homeward way, arriving at the Golden Lion at various times, some of which it would not be advisable to disclose, for all respectable Wrington folk must have been in bed for hours.

The programme for Thursday included one of the most important engagements of the trip. It was a half-muffled peal of Stedman Caters at Wrington in memory of the late Mr. Pryce Taylor, who had intended to take part in the tour, and Mr. E. D. Marshall, of Wrington, brother-in-law of Major J. H. B. Hesse. The peal was a most impressive one, for this fine ring, the foundation of which was the old six by Bilbie, of Chew Stoke, with recasts and additions by the White-chapel Foundry, were heard at their best as they poured out their solemn tones over the village, the fields and the hills. It was an especial satisfaction to everyone that this peal was a success. Stedman Triples was completed at Long Ashton in the afternoon, what time some of the 'supers' and the non-ringers visited Bristol, and others admired Weston-super-Mare in the rain. It was on this day, too, that one of the party came definitely to the conclusion that Zimmerman Zyder is a much overrated drink, and by no means all that some enthusiasts would have us believe.

Two fine rings of bells had been secured for Friday, the morning proceedings being at Mells. While the preparations for the start were being made, a lady visitor from the adjoining mansion of the Horlor family came up into the ringing room and showed her interest. Canon Coleridge engaged her in conversation, and then learned that she was a ringing pupil of Mr. Harry Miles, of Oxford, and was anxious to see some change ringing done. A musical touch of Stedman Triples was therefore 'put on,' in the performance of which the visitor evinced great interest. She was Miss Asquith, granddaughter of Lord Oxford. Having given their demonstration, the band got down to the serious business of the day, and a splendidly struck peal of Double Norwich Major was rung.

A MEMORABLE EXPERIENCE.

While this was in progress, two members of the party, who left Winton later than the rest, had a memorable experience. They, too, made a pilgrimage to Burrington Coombe, to visit the cleft which was the inspiration of the wonderful hymn, 'Rock of Ages.' As they drew up at the spot where the author took shelter from the storm, two charabancs loaded with high-spirited young men and women arrived on the scene. Instead, however, of a riotous scramble over the rocks, which might have been expected, they assembled at the foot of the cleft and joined in singing those well-known words which have been a solace and hope to thousands. Rain was falling; within the cleft itself a father, mother and two children were sheltering from the shower; car engines had been silenced; not a sound in the coombe but the rising and falling of the voices of these young people in one of the most beautiful hymns that have ever been written in the English language. It was a scene, which, coming unexpectedly to the two members of the ringing party, will live in memory long after many of the other incidents of the tour have been forgotten.

The afternoon peal attempt—it really became an evening one—was at Clewton Mendip, where there is a peal of eight, which, without exaggeration, may be termed one of Taylor's greatest masterpieces. For their weight, it is doubtful if there is a finer peal in the world, and it was a great disappointment that a peal of Bristol Surprise was lost here after about an hour and a half's ringing. The ringing had been perfect—without question, absolutely perfect—when, suddenly, as sometimes happens in good ringing, and a trip furthest from everyone's thoughts—something 'came unstuck.' What really occurred is likely to remain a mystery, for various inquests afterwards failed to settle the question. The loss of this peal was the one real fly in the ointment of the tour.

But later that evening, round the liberal board of the Golden Lion, a casual observer would never have dreamed there were disappointments in ringing. With laughter and jest, the hours were passed, with a pleasing interlude, in which Canon Coleridge, on behalf of the rest of the party, presented a suitcase to Mr. A. H. Pulling, the conductor, and a similar gift to Mr. J. T. Dyke, the organiser, for their valued work in connection with the tour. The Canon made a characteristic speech, and the recipients made replies exactly suited to the informality of the occasion. 'And so to bed,' as Mr. Pops would say.

The task set for Saturday morning was the stiffest of the four. The bells of 'Coomsbury' (properly spelt Congresbury) were to be negotiated. Here the tenor is 35 cwt., and the heaviest hung to a peal of eight in the county. They have a had reputation locally, and that reputation is not belied by experience. But, despite all this, it was determined to ring Major or to die in the attempt. In case it should be the latter, the two ringleaders (so it is said) drew lots, and it was the imperturbable Joseph who mounted the tenor box. The bells went off into Cambridge, and it was not long before it was evident that the back-end men, at any rate, had qualified for membership of the 'Ancient Order of Tower Twisters,' of which we heard recently. Every time the big bells got into certain positions on the front the tower moved to such an extent that the west door of the belfry creaked as it bung. They were real heroes, those men at the back, but when at the end of 3 hrs. 56 mins. the bells ran into rounds they had had their reward, and Joseph, whose record already included turning in the heaviest tenor yet rung to a peal of Minor (Queen Camel), had achieved another ambition.

CANON AND CHURCHWARDEN.

The band were greeted with congratulations by the rest of the party, and one competent critic declared that the ringing had been 'perfectly beautiful,' which was high praise, indeed, from such a source. Outside the tower, the proceedings had not been without incident. It had been found impossible to lock the church door, and, as ringing is on the ground floor, there was risk of interference. Canon Coleridge therefore mounted guard, and 'twas well he did. The bells had been going about an hour and a half, and he was comfortably seated in the porch of the Vicarage, reading the Vicar's newspapers, when he espied an intruder advancing upon the church. He reached the door at the same moment as the stranger, and politely informed him that he could not enter. The stranger was indignant; the Canon was adamant; the stranger said it was his own church, he was churchwarden, and he was going in; the Canon said he wasn't. Then the stranger explained—maybe in view of the size of the intercepting form—that he only wanted to welcome the ringers, and he wouldn't detain them a minute! Led gently from the door by the burly Canon, the church-warden became amenable to reason, and in the course of an hour's conversation he learnt a lot about ringing and what good fellows ringers are. He learnt also that the band would appreciate the compliment he wished to extend to them, although nothing upset ringers more than 'welcomes' at the wrong moment.

No one seemed particularly anxious about standing in the peal arranged for the afternoon; it was the end of the holiday, and they would have liked an afternoon off. But Barrow Gurney bells, with 15 cwt. tenor and long draught of rope, were available, and so an eight was made up. The church stands within the park belonging to a stately mansion, in most picturesque surroundings, which would have been fully appreciated by the ladies of the party who sat out in the cars while ringing was in progress, had not the week's wet weather culminated in a perfect deluge. The bells are a tuneful little peal by Warner, but the band, either because they were tired, or had got into a heavy-bell beat, made a long job of it. But a peal of Kent Treble Bob Major was rung, and successfully concluded the ringing programme, in which nine peals had been rung in 13 attempts.

Mention of this peal, however, would not be complete without recording an incident a couple of courses from home. The seventh man was ringing with a soft leather case on his rope end, which he had tied at the top only. Presently the rope end began to work up inside the case and come out into a loop between the top and the tape with which the leather was tied. Longer and longer got the loop, shorter and shorter the rope inside the case, until the end worked up beyond the ringer's reach, and he was left with nothing to hold but the case end, and nothing to take the strain of the bell but the piece of tape. Obviously that would not hold out, and when it went the rope would go with it, and so would the peal, let alone any damage that might be done. But the ringer, with characteristic ingenuity and aplomb, solved the difficulty. Ringing with one hand, he plunged the other into his trousers' pocket and brought out a pocket knife. By some means or other he contrived to open the blade, and, picking the right moment, he cut the tape, seized the released rope end, got rid of the leather case, calmly shut up his knife, put it back in his pocket—and went on ringing Treble Bob. It was the coolest thing the writer has ever seen done in a belfry.

The motor-cyclists, who spent the afternoon and evening touring Bristol, the Avon Gorge and Avonmouth, had a wet time, but, on the score of expense, declined on reaching 'home' to adopt a similar remedy for wet pants that had been applied on the previous day to a wet-footed lady, who was persuaded to put whisky in her shoes. At supper that night, toasts were proposed and thanks were given to all who had helped to make the excursion so thoroughly enjoyable. The next morning saw the final break-up of the party, one to depart for a holiday in Scotland, another to spend a leisured week or two in Devon, some to remain awhile in Somerset, but the majority to home and duty. The only unpropitious feature of the tour was the weather, especially as the ringing had been planned so that the visitors might traverse some of the picturesque Somerset districts. But in our English climate this is always one of the risks, and those who set out by road on Sunday morning, after ringing for service, had some compensation in travelling through the smiling countryside, with the harvest already begun, under sunny skies—until about mid-day once more down came the rain.

RINGERS MEET POLICE AT BOWLS.

AN ENJOYABLE LANCASHIRE EVENT.

The weather favoured the large number of the members of the Bolton Branch of the Lancashire Association and their wives and friends on Saturday last, when they combined their monthly meeting with a social event. The Bolton Borough Police Athletic Club had again kindly placed their bowling green and athletic ground at their disposal, and during the afternoon a bowling match was arranged between the police and the ringers. The police were the victors, and the games were much enjoyed.

An adjournment was made for tea, after which rival towers settled their challenges with more games on the greensward.

Dusk caused all to retire to the pavilion, and here handbells, dancing, recitations, songs and community singing of the popular songs brought to a close all too soon the best social event ever held by the branch.

At the close, Mr. Ernest Cutsforth proposed a vote of thanks to the police for their hospitality and opportunity to hold a meeting in an unorthodox way. He said he was pleased so many had availed themselves of that opportunity, and could assure the police that all had enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

Mr. John Potter seconded, and said the ringers of Bolton and district had begun to look forward to this event as an annual affair, as they had now been coming for several years, and each year they had a better attendance and the event became more enjoyable.

P.C. Hayhurst responded on behalf of the club, and gave a hearty invitation to the ringers to come again, and not wait until next summer. He suggested they should come during the winter months, when a billiards match and convivial evening could be arranged.

During an interval, the business meeting was held, when it was decided to hold the next meeting at Newchurch on September 17th.

Mr. James H. Banks, of Helmshore, was nominated for vice-president, and the other retiring officers nominated en bloc.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.DEVIZES BRANCH.

The quarterly meeting of the above branch was held at Bratton, Wilts, on Saturday, August 6th. The Guild service was held, conducted by the Vicar, Rev. S. Collett, M.A., and tea was served in the Church Institute, 38 being present.

A short business meeting followed, the Chairman, Mr. C. D. Heginbotham, presiding.

On the motion of the chairman, a vote of sympathy was expressed with the family and friends of the late Mr. Pryce Taylor, all present standing in silence.

The Chairman stated that he took part in a special service for ringers at Urchfont Parish Church on Sunday evening, July 31st. The preacher was the Rev. C. A. Phillips, hon. secretary of the Wimborne Branch, a collection at that service being given to the branch funds.

Mr. S. Hillier, of Devizes, one of the representatives of the Guild, gave a short account of the business done at the Central Council meeting.

The chairman made reference to the appeal for funds for the restoration of Calne Parish Church bells, and it was decided to grant £1 ls. from the branch funds towards the amount required.—The question of a grant towards the expenses of the representative on the Central Council was left in the hands of the chairman and secretary.—The election of Mr. H. Powell, of Chippenham, as a life ringing member was confirmed.

On the proposition of the Chairman, a vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells and conducting the service, and to the organist.

The Vicar replied, and welcomed the branch to Bratton. He also invited any of the company to visit the Vicarage gardens.

Visitors included the Vicar of Edington (the Rev. F. A. Sprent), Mrs. Heginbotham, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Hillier, and Mrs. England from Devizes; Mr. Romain, hon. secretary, Salisbury Branch; also a member of the troop of Boy Scouts from Parkstone, Dorset (who undertook the duties of organ blower). Ringers were present from Devizes (St. John's and St. Mary's), Southbroom, Rowde, Holt, Trowbridge, Westbury, Melksham, Bratton, Warminster, Mere, and Salisbury. Touches of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob were rung during the afternoon and evening. Ringing also took place at Westbury and at Edington.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD.RINGING AT A THREE-BELL TOWER.

The quarterly meeting of the Eastern Branch was held at Raithby, near Spilsby, on July 30th. This, although a rather small meeting, was nevertheless a very enjoyable one. Members attended from Benington, Boston, Butterwick, Leake, Freiston, Sibsey and Wrangle, and the ringers were also pleased to meet Mr. T. Fitzjohn, of Grimsby. Ringing commenced soon after 3 p.m., and a short service was held. An eloquent address, of which the main topic was the beautiful towers of Lincolnshire churches and their peals of bells and their message to the people, was given by the Rector of Raithby-cum-Mavis Enderby, a name renowned famous by Jean Ingelow.

After service the company repaired to Mavis Enderby, where tea was partaken of and enjoyed by all. The expenses of tea were generously borne by Capt. A. D. Crookes, one of the churchwardens of Raithby.

The usual business meeting followed, and was presided over by the Rev. J. R. Trotter, Vicar of Freiston-with-Butterwick. The Rector of Raithby and Capt. A. D. Crookes were elected honorary members of the branch.

Friskney was unanimously chosen as the place for holding the next meeting. Friskney bells are now being rehung by Mr. A. Bowell, of Ipswich.

It was also unanimously resolved to contribute £5 from the branch funds towards defraying the cost of the repair of Friskney bells. This is the third occasion such a grant has been made towards the repair of bells in the Eastern Branch.

After the meeting, most of the members had a somewhat unique experience. They were granted permission to ring the bells of Mavis Enderby, three in number—an experience none had before enjoyed. Then the company returned to Raithby, where ringing was kept up until after 8 p.m.

At the close a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector of Raithby-cum-Mavis Enderby (Rev. C. Langton) for the use of the bells and for his eloquent address, to the choir and organist, to the ladies who provided tea, and to Capt. A. D. Crookes for his kind hospitality.

All present voted this a most enjoyable meeting.

WYCOMBE RINGERS' HOLIDAY TRIP.

The members of the All Saints' belfry, Wycombe, had their annual outing on August Bank Holiday. Leaving Wycombe by the 1.22 train, the party were met at Risborough by a nice little bus, the 'Crendonian.' Long Crendon was the first stop, and about an hour was put in at this church. The visitors missed the cheery veteran who met them on their visit some years ago, Mr. David Warner, who has been called to higher service. There was a flower show at Crendon, and the merry ringing of the bells no doubt helped to cheer the spirits of those who were being damped by the 'weeping skies.' The old court house, the historic Dormer tomb, and other interests filled up the time, and 'to Brill' was the next move. At this place a fete was being held in the Vicarage garden. The Vicar gave a look-in upon the visitors and wished them well. There are six bells here. The first thing that 'struck' the ringers was the ropes. 'They were sent to us from —,' said the sexton, 'and we had to have them whether or no.' They had no 'tuck-ups' at the end, and were like walking-sticks fixed to the sallies. The visitors started enthusiastically to raise them in peal, and certainly 'got 'em up.' The tenor man reckons he can raise anything, and politely enquired how much she weighed. 'About 17½ cwt., I think,' was the reply. 'Seventy, you mean,' was the terse comment. The visitors wondered why so many natives crowded in to see them, but they know now. 'We has lots of visitors, but they never seems to do much here,' observed a veteran. 'I've been at it 32 years, and they do go that bad.' With this the Wycombe men agreed, and wandered off to see the sights, one member remarking, 'Too much like hard work for me,' and to this also they all agreed.

A pleasant run to Haddenham, through leafy lanes and old-world scenes, with the glorious fields of corn and roots on either side, was one to be remembered, and at 5.30 the party arrived at the final destination for the day, and released the cosy little bus from further service. The Green Dragon had fixed the visitors up with a meat tea, and a merry party of 17 sat round the tables. Mr. David Chapman, the genial foreman of the tower, looked in to say that all was ready. The meal over, the ringers were soon busy with the bells. What a contrast here—good ropes and the 'go' all that could be desired. A nice run down at eight o'clock, a quiet stroll to the station for the 8.39, and home safely reached at 9.15, brought to a close a jolly good time full of interest and experience.

THE ANCIENT BELLFOUNDER OF ST. GALL.

To the Editor.

Sir,—The interesting reference to this ancient (and fraudulent) bell-founder—circa A.D. 800—given in your last issue by Dr. Longford will also be found as the first of a long series of weekly articles I wrote in the concluding issues of 'The Bell News,' entitled 'Legends and Traditions of the Bells.'—Yours sincerely,

Leicester.

MISSIONARIES' MASSED ATTACK.

In this column we have constantly preached the need for 'missionary' work on the part of associations, and as a proof of what may be done by organised effort one has only to read the report of what happened last Saturday at Purleigh, in Essex. Here is an isolated village, miles from a railway station or bus route, with bells but no ringers. The Master of the Essex Association, with characteristic enthusiasm and thoroughness, organised a meeting at the tower, having first enlisted the sympathy of the incumbent. Despite the bad weather and the difficulties of reaching the village, the members rallied splendidly to the appeal, and the Vicar, on his part, secured the presence of some likely local youths. The upshot was that enough new material was obtained to form a band, and sufficient help was forthcoming to train the young hands. Such a satisfactory outcome of this particular bit of missionary work ought not to be lost upon other societies. The 'massed attack' which was delivered upon Purleigh demonstrated to the local youth the enthusiasm which is to be found among ringers, and was the best evidence that could have been produced that there really is 'something in ringing.'

As a rule, 'missionary' work is left to the few, and where this happens, and just one or two men endeavour to penetrate the 'wilds,' they are sometimes looked upon, and not unnaturally, either as people with a 'kink' or as the survivors of a dying cause. Let the associations take the matter in hand, however, and attack in battalions instead of units, and the case is altogether different. The tactics of the Essex Association, if tried elsewhere, would doubtless bring equal success. It is not every association, of course, that could rely upon carrying a position by such numbers, but it is probable that much more might be done, with proper organisation. Too much is left, at present, to chance, and better results might be obtained with more definite and careful preparation. These things throw an extra amount of work upon the officers, but there are few who would begrudge the labour if the members would rally to their call.

In these days, when it is so difficult to bring young men into the Exercise, the success achieved at Purleigh is most gratifying, but the first step is not the only difficult one. The problem of retaining the new recruit is as great, if not greater, and if Mr. Howard can evolve an equally successful solution for this he will earn the eternal thanks of all those who are concerned about maintaining a supply of ringers to man the bells of our churches. Nevertheless, it is something to 'catch' your beginner, and in this matter much depends upon the clergy. At Purleigh the incumbent prepared the ground by inducing young men of suitable type to attend the meeting, and the appeal of the Master of the association and the obvious interest of the remainder of the members did the rest. We hope we may learn of many more such 'attacks' all over the country on towers at present 'out in the wilderness,' and we trust they will prove equally successful.

The death occurred on August 8th, in his 80th year, of William Bolland, of Pudsey, the elder brother of the late Mr. G. B. He was one of the band who rang many peals on six bells in years gone by, and he took part in the peal in 14 methods on June 8th, 1909. Deceased rang his first peal on March 5th, 1879, and his last one, to celebrate his brother's 71st birthday, on February 3rd, 1923. He had 63 peals to his credit.

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.

PORTSMOUTH DISTRICT.

A well-attended quarterly meeting was held at East Meon on Saturday last, when, despite the ceaseless rain, members were present from Bramshott, Haslemere, North Stoneham, East Meon, Portsmouth (St. Mary's and St. Thomas') and Swanmore. Among the visitors were the St. Peter's, Brighton, ringers, who were on their outing, Messrs. A. W. Groves (Worthing) and T. A. Bamford (Raunds, Northants). A very enjoyable service was held in the church at 4.30, conducted by the Vicar (Rev. C. Beckwith).

At the business meeting which followed the Vicar was elected an honorary member, and said how delighted he was to welcome the Guild to East Meon, and also how much more pleased he was to become an honorary member of such an organisation.

Mr. G. Williams urged the Vicar, now that he was a member of the Guild, to ask his ringers also to become members.—The Vicar replied that he was convinced that the Parochial Church Council would be pleased to help the ringers financially towards this object.

It was decided to hold the annual district meeting at Portsmouth, on November 12th next, when it is hoped to have the presence of the Bishop of Portsmouth.

The Master (Mr. G. Williams), on behalf of the meeting, welcomed the St. Peter's, Brighton, company, who were present with them, and the Master of the Sussex County Association (Mr. J. T. Rickman), replying for the visitors, thanked the Master for his welcome, and assured the members that they would do their best to return the compliment whenever they visited St. Peter's.

Votes of thanks were accorded the Vicars of East Meon and Petersfield and the Rector of West Meon for the use of the respective bells. During the day several methods were rung from Grandsire Triples to London Surprise Major.

NORTH NOTTS ASSOCIATION.

MEETING AT GAMSTON.

Gamston is a neat village occupying a pleasant situation on the east bank of the River Idle, three miles south of Retford. The parish contains 1,978 acres, and the Duke of Newcastle is the sole owner and lord of the manor. The church, dedicated to St. Peter, was thoroughly restored in 1855. The tower until 1924 contained a very ancient ring of five bells of fairly good tone. The new treble was then added to make a ring of six. They were hung in new framework, and room left for two more to complete the octave, the old bells retained, and everything in the tower was thoroughly overhauled. The ringing chamber was lowered 12ft., and everything in it put into 'apple pie' order by the munificence of Mr. Herbert Smith, of Gamston House.

The work of rehanging, etc., and adding the new bell was carried out by Messrs. Taylor and Co., and to Mr. Herbert Smith and a few others must be given the credit for the speedy manner in which the work was completed. It was here the members of the association turned up in fairly good numbers on Saturday to try their skill on the bells, notwithstanding the inclement weather. The methods rung during the day were: Plain Bob, Stedman Doubles, Oxford, Kent, Violet, Duke of York, City Delight, Killamarsh, Double Court, Cambridge and London Surprise, every touch being brought round. The members, to the number of 30, including two ladies from Sutton-on-Trent, came from the following places: Anston, Barlborough, Ordsall, West Retford, Warsop, Worksop, Gainsborough, Branston, Treeton, Sutton-on-Trent and the local company. A splendid meat tea was provided by Host and Hostess Ashforth, the parents of two of the local ringers, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to them for their excellent catering, and the ladies for serving at the tables.

The Rev. R. F. Wilkinson, Rector of Ordsall, who arrived during the tea interval, presided over the business meeting, and took part in touches of Stedman, Cambridge and London Surprise.

Three new members were duly elected, including two from Gamston.

The next meeting will be held at Shireoaks, on Saturday, October 15th, when a good attendance is hoped for.—Votes of thanks to the chairman for his attendance and presiding over the meeting, and to Mr. Herbert Smith for granting use of the bells brought the meeting to a close. Ringing was further indulged in until 9 p.m.

SHROPSHIRE ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday last a meeting was held at Moreton Corbet, where there is a fine peal of six bells by Taylor and Co. The weather was very unfavourable, but in spite of this there were 19 members present from Market Drayton, Ruyton-Eleven-Towns, Stanton, Coalbrookdale, Hodnet, Wellington and Moreton Corbet, and some well-struck touches were rung in the following methods: Grandsire, Stedman, and Canterbury Pleasure Doubles, Plain Bob, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob Minor.

The Rector (the Rev. E. C. Pigot) kindly entertained the members to tea, and placed his bowling green at their disposal, which was much appreciated. Ringing continued till 9 p.m., when the members left for home, everyone agreeing it had been a most enjoyable and instructive meeting.

LOUGHBOROUGH DISTRICT.

On Saturday, August 26th, a most enjoyable meeting of the Loughborough District was held at Ibstock, there being present some 20 members from the following towers: Whitwick, Loughborough, Hugglescote and the local ringers. Ringing commenced about three o'clock, and during the afternoon and evening the beautiful peal of six bells were well utilised in Grandsire Doubles and Bob Minor. Tea was most kindly given by the Rector (the Rev. A. H. Birks, M.A.), after which the business meeting followed, the Rector acting as chairman.

Mr. J. W. Hopkins, the tower secretary, gave a most hearty welcome to the members upon their visit to Ibstock, a day which he had long looked forward to. He also spoke of the extending interest which was displayed through the columns of the 'Ringing World' in helping to keep ringers in touch with one another, and urged as many as possible to support the paper.

Mr. William Henry Ball, of Ibstock, was elected a member of the association, and, after discussion, the next meeting was fixed at Whitwick.

A very hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Rector for his kind hospitality; also to the ladies who had added so much to the enjoyment of the afternoon.

CHICHESTER.—On Sunday, August 21st, for morning service at the Cathedral a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes), in 49 minutes: T. Doick 1, W. E. Ticehurst 2, H. J. Tucker (composer and conductor) 3, F. B. Tompkins 4, G. Marshall 5, J. H. Blake 6, M. R. Heffer 7, A. Tugwell 8. Also rung as a birthday compliment to Messrs. W. E. Ticehurst and H. J. Tucker.

RINGERS' OUTINGS.

TO PORTSMOUTH AND THE ISLAND.

The ringers of St. Mary's, Putney, had a two days' excursion for their annual outing, and chose August 6th and 7th. At the early hour of 6.30 on the first day ten bold heroes, writes a correspondent, braved the elements and managed to board the train at Waterloo. 'Go Portsmouth,' said the guard (je ne pense pas), so we 'goed.' The secretary had a yarn about some headquarters at this perhaps our youngest city, but it was apparently going to be rough on him if he hadn't. After several years we rushed into Portsmouth with only one casualty—a well-known man having lost his luggage. The secretary produced the said headquarters, and the famished party showed how to finish off the course ends in record time. Breakfast over, Newport, I.O.W., was the order, which place was reached by boat and bus with the loss of three men only. The spirit of the past having arrived, the bells were soon raised and going to Stedman, several courses being rung in good style. The bells here are not very easy to hear, therefore ropesight has to be employed to a larger degree than ordinarily. Several other touches in standard methods were rung till the time limit was reached. Having replenished the 'inner man,' we 'booted it' to Carisbrooke, where stands an ancient church, largely Norman. The tame archaeologist was busy here, whilst ardent spirits raised these fine bells, and they were heard to advantage in Grandsire, Stedman, Plain Bob and Kent. The mountaineer wanted to climb to the top of the castle, but happily a bus arrived. It's easier after tea at Newport, and a conveyance was found for Ryde (rather a rough one and a bit overcrowded). Mr. Hatcher met the party, and soon this heavyish eight were going to standard methods. The usual discussion arose 'to tune or not to tune,' but it was decided we wouldn't tune these. Swimmers having fallen in (not the water), the party divided, each section enjoying itself in its own sweet way. Boats sail, you know, so 9.20 saw the last of the batch aboard for 'Pompey,' and for bed. After the 'knocker-up' on Sunday had roused a lot of people who didn't belong to our party, and breakfast over, a movement took place towards Alverstoke, the secretary promising a bus from Gosport. On being challenged to produce it he failed utterly, so offered, in expiation, to take the party on foot, which he did. A sweet light by Taylor was our reward, however, and some smart quick turns were got through, four methods being rung and the bells lowered in peal in half an hour. Our kind secretary gave us till dinner time. 'But,' said he, 'don't loiter, and you can have an afternoon off, but there are yet St. Thomas a Becket, Portsmouth, to conquer, so let me have you at 5.30.' Strangely, all sleepers arrived, and these lovely bells, eight by Taylor 25½ cwt., were 'making merrie musicke' for almost an hour. All good things come to an end, so the train had to be sought and caught, landing us at Waterloo at 10 p.m. It is worth noting that at every tower all the standard methods were rung, and nearly every touch was different, the calling being shared by Messrs. Elson, Cassel and Herbert. Regret was expressed that three men were unable to make the journey. 'Had to work,' they said (we didn't). Thanks are due to the local gentlemen who gave their time to welcome us, and also to various incumbents for the use of the bells.

DEBENHAM MEN'S DAY OUT.

On Saturday, July 23rd, the Debenham ringers had a pleasant day's excursion. The first call was at Lavenham, where they found that the local men had already gone on a similar errand. Arrangements had, however, been made by Mr. A. Symonds, so the tower was open, and several touches were rung. The next halt was at Long Melford, where Mr. Bixby met the visitors. Cambridge and Stedman Triples being brought round on the easy running but somewhat noisy ring of eight. Then on to Clare, where Mr. D. Gridley was in waiting. Some good touches were obtained on this grand old peal, after which tracks were made for the Bell Hotel, where a first-class dinner was disposed of. Shortly after, a move was made to Halstead, Mr. Root meeting the party here. Double Norwich, Superlative and Bob Major were the methods rung, and, rounding up the would-be sightseers, the party got going again to the neighbouring village of Earls Colne. The long draught made matters a bit awkward at first, but everyone managed to have a pull, and then left for Colchester, where Mr. J. Fleuty joined the party. Tea had been arranged here for 5.30, and the visitors had been specially advised by the caterer not to be late. They proceeded to keep their part of the bargain, but, sad to say, he had not kept his, for on arrival they were informed he was asleep, and it seemed as if no one else knew of the party's coming. However, someone got a move on, and, after half an hour's delay, tea was forthcoming. The ringers were due at St. Peter's at 6.30, and were not far behind after all. Messrs. Pye, Stannard, Claydon and Saunders received the visitors, and a good course of Cambridge was tapped off on this fine ring. Touches of Stedman and Double Norwich were also rung, and then the party proceeded to Ardleigh. Here they saw no one, but the necessary permission having been previously obtained they walked in and helped themselves to Cambridge and Grandsire. The homeward run was by way of Ipswich, and Debenham was reached about 11.30. The thanks of the visitors are due to the various tower keepers for having things in readiness.

EVESHAM RINGERS IN LEICESTERSHIRE.LOUGHBOROUGH FOUNDRY THE MECCA.

Shades of Cheddar Gorge, and memories of a broken down 'Lizzie,' with a subsequent night under the hedge, did not deter a venturesome party from Evesham and district from tempting fate to repeat the experience. But these are things of the past, and on this occasion fate, the clerk of the weather and everyone concerned were kind, and the result was a most enjoyable day. For the excursion on Saturday, August 6th, the centre of interest was Loughborough, and the foundry. The task of collecting up the party from the outlying towers was completed to schedule, and at 7 a.m. the excursionists left Evesham by charabanc, the rearguard doing its best with 'The blue bells of Scotland' and 'Home, sweet home,' in spite of veiled threats and protests from 'better halves,' who, of course, were with the party and still required beauty sleep.

The visitors were met and welcomed at the foundry by Messrs. Oldham and Wilson, who conducted them through the works, their interesting explanations being much appreciated. Probably the things of greatest interest were 'Great Peter' of York Minster, and the four new quarter bells and the hour bell for Shanghai Customs House. The party were greatly impressed with the general standard of excellence of all they saw and heard.

Following lunch, a move was made to the foundry campanile, and here was found rather a different proposition to '31½ in D flat.' The treble man would insist on wanting to be first instead of third, while the third man was equally sure that the fourth was leading and not he. Eventually rounds were heard, and 'Go Stedman' was called, but a touch of Stedman Caters was not to be that day. However, touches of Grandsire, Treble Bob and Stedman Triples were rung with varying accuracy, and just as the visitors were feeling themselves masters of this interesting and musical ring it was time to depart for All Saints'. Mr. J. P. Fidler then took charge as guide to the party, and here indeed was a peal, the noble grandeur of which could not but be appreciated. Once again Stedman Caters proved elusive, failing after three courses' good ringing, but, among others, a course of Pershore Bob Major was brought round—'some of our country's stuff,' as the 'old 'un' remarked.

Next to Queen's Park, to listen to the carillon and then tea, following which Mr. J. Hemming made a few sympathetic remarks with regard to the recent death of Mr. Pryce Taylor. Votes of thanks to Messrs. Taylor and Co. and to Messrs. Oldham, Wilson and Fidler, for the welcome that had been extended to the party, were carried with acclamation.

Returning to the foundry, where the 'bus' was parked, waistcoat pockets and the ladies' handbags were searched—just to make sure 'Great Peter' was not being taken away. On the roll being called, two gentlemen were found to be missing, and the circumstances looked suspicious, but their mysterious parcels revealed nothing more exciting than crest china! And so, accompanied by Mr. Fidler, back to Leicester, where Mr. J. Morris awaited the party at St. Margaret's. Here, as far as ringing was concerned, was the tit-bit of the day. Many of the band making their first acquaintance with twelve bells, the opportunity was too good to miss, and a first-class touch of 638 Grandsire Cinques was brought round by: Harold Streets 1, J. D. Johnson (conductor) 2, F. Nurden 3, H. Jordan 4, J. P. Fidler 5, J. Hall 6, F. Gordon 7, J. Hemming 8, P. J. Johnson 9, H. Middleton 10, G. J. Hemming 11, E. Withers 12. Did it bring up memories of the 'five ones' to him of ye old school?

Time was now limited, and taking leave of Messrs. Morris and Fidler, the journey home was resumed by way of Monk's Kirby—the last call—where the party received a hearty welcome from the Vicar, Rev. R. L. B. Oliver. The stay here was all too short in which to thoroughly enjoy this fine-toned peal of eight, but they were made to tell their own tale to the tune of Pershore Bob, while to enable everyone to have a ring courses in the standard methods were crowded in, the Vicar and five of his band joining in Treble and Plain Bob.

It now appeared that memories of that hayrick were not to be denied—or was it the home-made wines?—but the long run home was completed without mishap, Evesham being reached at 11 p.m. Even then, there was much to be discussed—probably another year's outing—in a certain quarter, and ye conductor and 'ye best of spouses'—with apologies to 'ye many colour-coated-one the elder'—being the last to leave the bus, did not land home till the wee small hours.

The best thanks of the party are due to all who combined to make the outing such an enjoyable and successful affair.

FULHAM.—At All Saints' Church for evening service on Sunday, August 21st, a quarter-peal of Stedman Caters (1,383 changes), in 48mins.: H. M. Page 1, A. W. Coles 2, W. H. Hollier 3, W. S. Smith 4, F. Skevington 5, D. Stevens 6, C. W. R. Grimwood (conductor) 7, H. Belcher 8, W. Shepherd 9, G. Block 10. The above quarter was arranged from Washbrook's peal, with alternative course-ends. It was a birthday compliment to Mr. M. A. C. Smith, who is 74, and a local ringers.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The Bishop of Guildford (Dr. Greig) has promised to become president of the proposed Guildford Diocesan Guild. It is intended to divide the new Diocesan area into four districts, in each of which an organising meeting will be held in October, so that the Guild may start on January 1st next.

Mr. E. Alex. Young, the hon. secretary of the Central Council, is spending a holiday on the Continent.

It is seldom that one finds 18 ringers in a belfry to ring for Sunday morning service, but this occurred at Windsor Parish Church on Sunday, when visitors from Farnham Royal, Slough, Old Windsor and Coalbrookdale, with the local band, rang touches of Plain and Treble Bob Major, Stedman and Grandsire Triples.

The first peal on the bells of St. George's, Southwark, was conducted by Annable on August 27th, 1750. The method was called 'Bob Major St. George,' doubtless in honour of the event, but whether it differed from Plain Bob we are unable to say.

A peal of Grandsire Triples was rung for the first time on August 28th, 1718, at St. Peter Mancroft, Norwich, where a board still exists commemorating the performance.

Fifteen years ago next Wednesday the 19,738 Stedman Caters on handbells was rung at Guildford in 9hrs. 32mins.

The first ten-bell peal in Scotland was rung at St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh, on August 31st, 1886.

The meeting of the Northern District of the Herts Association on Saturday will be held at Barkway, and not Arkway (if anyone knows where that is), as appeared last week in the notice. Oh, those printers!

The next broadcast of bells from St. Philip's Cathedral, Birmingham, will take place on Sunday, Sept. 4th. Many more listeners will doubtless be able to hear this ringing than in the past now that the B.B.C. have introduced the scheme for alternative programmes through the new Daventry Experimental Station, which relays from Birmingham.

There is likely to be a big gathering at the York Commemoration Dinner on September 17th, and early application should be made for tickets.

THE MEMORIAL TO THE LATE SIR ARTHUR HEYWOOD To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I read with much interest Canon Elsee's letter in your paper of July 29th and your leading article on the subject.

Some time ago I received a letter from Miss Monica Heywood, sister of the late Sir Arthur, saying that they were building a church at Claremont, Lancashire, on what was her late brother's estate, and now belonged to his nephew.

Various gifts had been made to Sir Arthur's memory, including the altar, pulpit, font, etc., and Miss Heywood suggested that the Midland Counties Change Ringers' Association, of which Sir Arthur was for many years president, might be willing to contribute a bell to his memory.

I brought the matter before the annual meeting of the M.C.A. at Derby on Easter Monday last.

It was considered rather out of order for a change ringers' association to contribute to a single bell, but it was suggested that subscriptions might be invited from hon. members, and also from towers in the area. It was also thought advisable to find out if the Central Council were doing anything in the matter, and I wrote the secretary of the Central Council, but have not received any reply from him.

Now Canon Elsee writes to 'The Ringing World' to suggest that a memorial tablet should be erected in Duffield Church to commemorate the last peal in which Sir Arthur took part.

I am afraid it will be impossible to carry out both schemes by our members, and the Duffield memorial would, I think, appeal very strongly to the members of the M.C.A.

As far as we are concerned, I think it will be better to defer our decision until our next quarterly meeting, which will take place, I expect, on Saturday, October 1st.—Yours faithfully,

R. B. CHAMBERS.

President of the M.C.A.

QUEEN'S VISIT TO SHROPSHIRE RINGING MASTER.

HER MAJESTY THE GUEST OF MAJOR AND MRS. CORBETT. Her Majesty the Queen, during her visit to Shropshire last week, honoured Major E. R. Trevor Corbett, the popular and esteemed Master of the Shropshire Association, and Mrs. Corbett, with a visit to their historic home, Longnor Hall, and took tea with them.

The mansion contains some fine antiques, in which the Queen displayed the greatest interest, particularly in the very fine staircase and some Chinese panelling in the walls dating from 1740.

The school children and villagers assembled outside the Hall and greeted Her Majesty with cheers, which the Queen smilingly acknowledged.

On one of her excursions the Queen passed over the celebrated iron bridge across the Severn at Coalbrookdale, to the sound of the Parish Church bells.

A BEGINNER'S THEORY.

BY 'MINORMANIA.'

This is the fourth of the series of articles which have been specially written for beginners by 'Minormania,' to explain to them the theory of change ringing. These articles are not merely for perusal. If they are to serve the purpose for which they are intended they must be studied.

TOUCHES AND EXTENTS BY THE LEAD-ENDS.

We have seen that in the plain course of Minor, the bells run 'round' after five leads have been produced, and that these 'courses' are joined together into touches and peals, by bobs and singles.

A call has the effect of starting the bells off into another course, but from a different head-row. Courses have heads, in the same manner as leads; the head of the plain course is 123456. A call alters one of the lead-ends, and makes it the head of the new course. The 'truth' of the touch or peal depends entirely upon the manner in which these calls are introduced; that is to say, at which lead-ends they are introduced. This is the composer's job—ours is to follow his guidance.

The calls are usually introduced when a certain bell is due to appear in a certain place in the call row; notice the 'due-to-appear,' and also 'in-the-call-row'—not in the plain row.

This 'certain bell' is known as the 'observation bell,' and any bell may be used as such, but usually the tenor is chosen. The 'certain places' where she is due to appear at a call are fixed by the composer, and these places in the row are known by names.—Position (or 'platform') 1st. 2nd. 3rd. 4th. 5th. 6th. at any lead end.

Is known by the name of LEAD. IN. OUT. FOURTHS. WRONG. RIGHT Or by the short term of I. O. 4th's. W. R.

OUT is sometimes known as 'Before'; FOURTHS as 'Bob-Bell'; RIGHT as 'Home' or (H).

The origin of the names has some bearing upon the position of the tenor at rounds. For instance, the tenor at rounds is in sixth's place (her proper place), and thus is 'at home' or 'right,' and to get there she is, presumably, dodging in the right manner—under at handstroke and over at back stroke. To get into fifth's place at a lead-end, she would have to dodge the reverse way—or 'wrong.' So that in higher numbers these names are modified to a certain extent. In Major, for instance, they are as follow:—

Positions	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th
Name	(as in Minor)	FIFTH'S MIDDLE	WRONG	RIGHT
Short term	(ditto)	5th's	M.	W.	R.

In view of the fact that, while it is usual for the tenor to be used as the observation bell, yet any other bell may be used as such, this significance of the observation's place at rounds becomes a little involved, and I prefer to ignore it; so that, whatever the number of the observation bell, the names of the positions will be standard. For instance, to call Bell No. 5 'wrong' in Minor, to my mind, is when she (the '5') is in fifth's place, at a lead-end—the position given in the table as 'wrong,' although, actually, the No. 5 bell is 'right' in this position at a lead-end.

Let us understand, then, that the names are standard to the positions quoted, no matter what be the number of the observation bell, and also that each name applies to its peculiar position, whether the lead-end be plain, bobbed or singled. So then, a row such as this: 1-6-4-5-2-3, might very well be a bobbed row when the tenor is IN; No. 4 at OUT; No. 5 in FOURTH'S; No. 2 at WRONG; or No. 3 at RIGHT, according to which bell has been chosen as the observation, by the composer.

We are told that we can obtain 720 true rows of Bob Minor if we 'call the tenor'—W.R.W.—W.R.W.—W.R.W.—(s) R—repeated.

Bobs are understood, unless (s) is added to signify a single, and it means that call-rows must be substituted for plain lead-ends, when the tenor bell (the '6') will be put into these positions by the call rows—not by the plain rows, but by the call-rows. It is our job, to find when she will be put into these positions.

First, we must understand what is meant by the composer's instructions. He says in effect:—Bob rows at wrong, right and wrong (three times). We must follow this very literally; that is to say, a bob must be called the first time she would appear 'wrong,' also at the next time 'right,' and at the next time 'wrong'; after this she will appear to be due for a 'right,' but we are told to follow the last 'wrong' with another 'wrong,' so that we must miss this call at 'right,' letting a plain row be there. Follow this through literally, and we reach the last W (the ninth call), and after this we have a single at the following 'right.' When this is done, exactly repeat the whole.

Next we have to find when the tenor is due to appear in these positions. We have said elsewhere that the first lead is always the example, and that we can know the 'platform' at a preceding lead-end by the 'number-of-the-train' in our first lead-end. Therefore, turn the first lead-end into a bobbed lead, and then into a singled lead, putting the three rows down for reference thus:—

Plain lead-end	135264
Bobbed „	„	123564
Singled „	„	132564

At the bobbed row the bell in the W position is the '6th,' and No. 6 train tells us she came from platform 6 the previous lead-end (123456). So call your bobs for 'W' at the lead-end after the one where the '6' appears in the row thus:—100006.

The bell at R position in the bob-row is the '4,' and No. 4 train says from platform 4; therefore, call your bob for 'R' at the lead-end after the one where the '6' appears in the row thus:—100600.

Follow this line of reasoning, and you will know where to call your singles.

Use the black and red cards for your transposition, exactly as was done with the plain-course lead-ends, with this difference; that the call-rows are substituted for the plain-row when required, and only when required. In other words, use your plain-row (135264) in black underneath, until the tenor appears in the sixth's place (100006) in red at the top row, covering 123456. Then, instead of using the plain row underneath for transposition, use the bob row (123564), going back to the plain row immediately, until another call is due.

Notice that the tenor is in sixth's place (100006) at 123456, and, therefore, the first 'W' follows immediately, that is, at the first lead-end. Then carry on plain, until 100600 turns up (at 145623). Bob at 'R' next lead gives 145236; tenor now in 100006, so that bob at 'W' follows immediately.

The bob rows should be marked in front '—', and the singles '(s)'. When the tenors come 'home together' it is a part-end—being the end of one part of the peal; that is, when both No. 5 and No. 6 bells are in their proper places in the same lead-end; this happens at 1342-56.

The lead-ends of the first part are given, which carries us through the first three calls (W.R.W.). Notice the next 'R' at 134256 is not a call row; if it were bobbed, the bells would run round.

123645 (Tenor in fourth's but miss the next R)

134256 (Tenors at home, the part end)

Two more similar parts would bring up 123456 as the part-end, but we are told—single at R here, so instead of 123456, our part-end will be singled, giving 124356. Repeat this in full, and we have the lead-ends of our 720.

The extent is in two 'halves' of three parts each, ten leads to each part—sixty leads in all, each with 12 rows, totalling 720 rows. Methods which have a 'treble-bob hunting treble' have twice as many rows per lead; therefore only half the number of leads are necessary, so that the first half of your Bob Minor peal, without the single, becomes the peal of Treble Bob, 30 leads in all.

The tenor is called W.R.W., etc., for any legitimate Minor method, provided it has second's-place at the lead-ends. Methods which have sixth's-place at lead-ends are dealt with in a similar manner, except that the positions for the calls are altered to I.O.I., etc., instead of W.R.W., with the single (for the plain-hunting methods) put in at a lead which will not disturb the 'tenors'; that is, where No. 5 and No. 6 bells appear in the two positions, that are not altered by the substitution of a single-row for the plain-row. At whatever lead-end you substitute this single in the first half of the peal, so must you put your single in the corresponding lead-end of the second half. Suppose it be the ninth lead-end of the one, then it must be at the ninth lead-end of the other. You will notice that the single in your Plain Bob does not disturb bells 5 and 6.

The order of the altered calling is exactly the same as the W.R.W., being I.O.I.—I.O.I.—I.O.I.—(with the single in somewhere) and exactly repeated; and for Treble Bob methods the half-peal becomes the whole, as before.

While different bells may be used as the 'observation' in these positions, it is dangerous to vary the positions themselves, unless we are competent to judge the truth of the rows; but the positions may be varied. Instead of the W.R.W. positions, I.I. 4th's may be used (three times) with a single at R, and repeat the whole, for second's-place methods. Also, instead of the tenor being called I.O.I. for the sixth-place methods, the No. 5 bell may be called O.I.O. (three times) with the single as the I.O.I.; and repeat the whole. The remarks regarding Treble Bob methods apply in most cases, that is, halving the peal; and also, other bells may be called in these latter positions, which the student may work out for himself.

It is possible to produce 720 rows of Minor, in methods where the treble has a 'treble-bob hunt,' without the aid of rows containing only a 'single change.' Therefore singles are never used. With 'plain hunting' methods it is not possible, and for the moment we must accept this as a fact; therefore, we have to 'double' our Treble Bob lead-ends by introducing at least one single in each 'half,' the effect of which will be seen.

THE IRISH TOUR.

After the peal at St. Patrick's Cathedral, one hour was allowed for luncheon—3 to 4 p.m.—at The George, and Christ Church was calling us onward. Here we were some time gaining access to the belfry, and afterwards leaving the church, for precautions have to be taken, I understand, and there is always some faithful churchman on watch duty at all times.

Rudhall, of Gloucester, cast the original 8 bells, a treble and tenor being added later by the Dublin bellfounder, Murphy, who has made a good splice. They are a deep toned, rumbling sounded peal, tenor in note B, heavier in weight, but very much resembling the bells at St. Andrew's, Plymouth, and All Saints', Maidstone. At the start of our peal of Stedman Caters a missing 'bob' led the conductress to call 'stand,' a case of Parker's reverse, but the lady avenged herself by ably calling the peal, and she is the first lady, I believe, to score a peal in Ireland. The 9th here is the only bell with ball bearings. Nos. 1, 2, 3, 7, 8 and tenor are not going well, and our tenor man was heartily glad there was not another course to go when rounds came up. Combined tea and supper at 9.30 found us all well disposed for bed—to rest, to nurse the blisters, and perchance to sleep with the booming of Rudhall's bells echoing in one's tympanum, and with thankfulness for that health and strength which enabled the members to have done so much in the previous 24 hours.

Sunday was devoted to service ringing for the respective hours of prayer at three churches in succession, St. Patrick's, Christ Church, and the R.C. Church of SS. Augustine and John. The ring of ten bells at the latter church are a very poor peal cast by Murphy, of Dublin, tenor 25 cwt. in E flat. They were handsomely presented to the church by John Byrne, in 1785. A public subscription in 1902 provided for two trebles cast by Messrs. Carr. They are sadly out of order for proper change ringing. We were well received by the local company; indeed at each tower in Dublin great interest was taken in our visit and the ringing, and everything was done to help us, but I failed to see many young lads amongst the various bands that welcomed us to Ireland.

The belfry staircase is unique, owing to the architect having made no provision for getting up to the several floors of the tower, which, I may mention, is rectangular, and built up over the west end of the nave. There is a fine large west window, and so no suitable position for an intermediate floor. It is constructed with ironwork in a circular spiral pattern in one height for about 40ft., giving one a giddy feeling when leaving the belfry if one looks down. During Mr. William Pye's tour of 1904 (when they rang 11 peals) one of his team had to be blindfolded and led down backwards, and since that year three others have been led to their long last rest—Messrs. C. Jackson, E. Pye and I. G. Shade.

BRAY AND ARKLOW.

An afternoon's flying visit to the seaside at Bray was much enjoyed. There is a beautiful beach and promenade, with bold headlands on either side of the bay, with the Wicklow hills in the background. Sunday licensing regulations in Ireland are the same as in Wales, but on week-days opening hours are from two to five p.m. only. This did not add to one's impression of the 'Sabbath Day' as it should be. We saw a monster marquee in one meadow which housed a travelling circus, and Sunday afternoon and evening performances were announced; whilst from another field crowds of men were leaving a football match. Nowadays multiple attractions for the young on Sundays deter suitable lads from going to the belfry; the modern 'freedom of youth' is no help in 'manning' the tower for duty on 52 days of the year.

Referring to the peal columns, I have little to add to the two items booked on Bank Holiday. Mr. J. E. Bibby scored his first Cinques at St. Patrick's, and he and his father, with a Maximus, having passed the teething stage, have each quietly thrown away their 'bibby.' Of the conductor one cannot say much: he is the sort of 'gentleman' that does not require any of your 'blarney.' It is about 20 years ago since he attempted to call this composition at 'Pat's.' That attempt was of one hour's duration, with local talent that, alas, is now scattered far and wide. We expedited the morning attempt so as to take lunch at and say 'good-bye' to the Georges before catching the 3.45 train to Bray, where one night was put in after the 'Cambridge.' Bray has always been a stronghold of the Irish Association, and has a change ringing team for Grandire and Plain Bob. We had an excellent reception at Christ Church from the local men, Mr. Wm. Smith (44 years foreman) and Mr. Fough. The Vicar (Canon G. D. Scott), as a change ringer, took much interest in our attempt, and we found fresh fruit from his garden and new cakes from a bakery more enjoyable in the porch than at the best of cook-shops. The song about the 'Vicar of Bray, sir,' relates to Bray-on-Thames, where there is also a ringing Vicar, and a tenor bell of nearly 30 cwt. The 'twins' would be complete were two bells added to the Berkshire tower and its Vicar given a Canonry. It was nearly 10 p.m. before we had time to look for sleeping accommodation. The Royal and the Mona Hotels shared the honours of resting our weary limbs, and the boots had strict orders to call us in time, in the morning, to catch the 7 a.m. train to Arklow.

Tuesday was a day of delightful coast scenery, travelling into the Garden of Ireland. The railway line hugs the sea coast as far as Wicklow, passing through cuttings and tunnels in the rocky headlands that jut out into the sea. At times our coach seemed to overhang the shore. The landward side is studded with hills; one, named the 'Sugar Loaf,' giving resemblance to the Brecon hills at Abergavenny. From Wicklow this journey goes inland through the vale of the river Avoca, amongst scenes referred to by Moore (1779-1852), the Irish poet, whose verse I have made use of. The old tree under which he used to pen his lines is still standing, though patched and preserved from time's ravages.

Wert thou all that I wish thee, great, glorious and free,
First flow'r of the earth, and first gem of the sea,
I might hail thee with prouder, with happier brow,
But, oh! could I love thee more deeply than now?

A ROYAL RECEPTION.

We breakfasted on the train whilst viewing the scenes from the saloon windows of the Southern Railway Company, who not only did us well, but did Hammond for a brand new felt trilby hat which disappeared en route.

Two attempts at St. Saviour's Church, Arklow, had been kindly arranged, and to expedite their accomplishment breakfast at the Railway Hotel had been prepared for us by the forethought and kindness of the clergy and ringers. Mr. A. Hadley, formerly of Cradley, who succeeded James Washbrook here, met us on arrival, and had prepared the belfry for us. The Rev. Canon C. H. Strong and his curate, Rev. J. W. Harrison, gave us words of welcome in the tower, and thanks were duly returned by Mr. Bennett for our hearty reception at Arklow. Double Norwich Major was safely brought home, making a 'century' of peals together by Messrs. W. Bibby and E. Jenkins, and here a real piece of 'method building' took place—its author unknown. The breakfast was transposed into a hot lunch, and the second peal attempt into an afternoon's lazy spell of sociability. Why bolt one's food, rush to the tower, and scramble for the train for just 'one more' peal, when everybody had already achieved a peal upon these bells? Verily I believe every man was glad that such a peaceful homing course was adopted. We enjoyed a promenade of the town and seashore, witnessing a practice launch of the lifeboat. We gazed on the derelict buildings of the old Kynock ammunition factory, which added so much unemployment of the town when it closed its doors. There was difficulty in finding the letter boxes, which are all painted an emerald green. We recalled the wonderful feats of the late J. W. Washbrook and his three sons in St. Saviour's tower, with the help of that well-known Devon family of Shepherds—a case of a pair of fathers having three sons each who rang the whole octave to peals galore when the near-by, but now ruined, Glenart Castle was in its flourishing days. The church was viewed, with its uncommon panelled ceiling of oak. This handsome structure was looking as new and fresh as when erected in 1899. Its first Vicar, Canon Hollowes, lies opposite the tower, in unhallowed ground, as this churchyard was never consecrated, and no other interment has been permitted.

In the belfry is the challenge shield of the Irish Association for Sunday service ringing instituted in 1913, won by the Arklow men in 1925 and 1926, and by Waterford the two previous years. On the walls are the usual type of peal boards which record that Washbrook rang 34 to the first two-handed tower bell peal on Sept. 19th, 1901, in 3hrs. 15mins., followed by Stedman in 1902 and Major in 1904. Since those days the Exercise has found three other ringers who have achieved similar fame. The first peal on the bells, cast by Taylor and Co., was conducted by Mr. J. W. Taylor (Double Norwich Major) on Aug. 13th, 1899, for the Midland Counties Association, being the first in the method in Ireland. It has been my pleasure to ring peals with three generations of this famous family of bellfounders, and one cannot help feeling a pang of regret that the youngest should be called from us so soon.

It may interest Mr. Warren Sturgis and Mayor Walker, from New York, now in London, to know that the ringing record conducted by Washbrook in 1901 was performed with muffled bells for Mr. McKinley, the late President of the U.S.A. There was a ringer's newspaper running at that time, known generally as the good old 'Bell News,' whose editor, the late Harvey Reeves, refused to believe that one man could handle two tower bells through a 5,000. He even went so far as to offer to send an expert man to witness a similar feat in Arklow tower, with the result that he had the pleasure of paying all expenses and tendering an apology for his editorial.

A Dublin train leaves Arklow at 5.50 p.m., and this conveyance saw the breaking up of our Irish tour, for some went home in readiness for the Cheshire overflow, and others to look over Guinness' Brewery, where with some reluctance they 'slowly' passed through the 'sample' room. It was most fortunate the Excise officials did not examine baggage on the return trip, or heavy surcharges would have had to be paid by those who had the 'Max' and Cinques stowed away. The faithful 'couple' made light of their swollen fingers after the high 'Jinks' enjoyed by them, whilst 'Riding auld Ireland's tenors.'

RINGER'S WEDDING.

The Woodbridge Press, Ltd.

Mr. J. A. Cole, a well-known Winchester Diocesan Guild ringer, was married at Godalming, Surrey, last week, to Miss D. F. Burt, of Guildford.

The wedding took place at the Parish Church, Godalming, Surrey, on Wednesday of last week, of Mr. John Albert Cole, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cole, of Station House, Godalming, and Miss Dorothy Florence Burt, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Burt, of 50, The Oval, Guildford, and formerly of Godalming.

Mr. 'Bert' Cole is a ringer at Godalming Parish Church, where he first learnt to pull a bell, and a member of the Holy Trinity Company, Guildford. He recently rang his 100th peal—the peal of Spliced Surprise Major at Warnham—and few ringers have as fine a peal record as he has, made in so short a time.

During the wedding service, which was conducted by the Rev. G. P. Cooper, two hymns were sung—'The Voice that breathed o'er Eden' and 'O Perfect Love.' Mr. A. Pamment was at the organ, and, at the close, played a wedding march.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a dress of ivory satin beauté, with white lace sleeves, a veil of silk tulle, and wreath of orange blossom. Her bouquet was of white roses and heather. Miss Rita Cole (sister of the bridegroom) and Miss Alice Fountaine (cousin of the bride) were in attendance as bridesmaids, wearing dresses of old rose crepe-de-chine and black picture hats. They carried bouquets of sweet peas, and wore gold slave bangles, the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. Maurice Norman was best man, and Mr. S. A. Burt (brother of the bride) groomsmen. In honour of the occasion, the bells were rung as the bridal party left the church.

After the reception, held at the Broadwater Restaurant, Mr. and Mrs. Cole left for Torquay, where they are spending the honeymoon, the bride travelling in a two-piece fawn costume, with hat to match. They were recipients of over 150 presents, including a dinner service from the bride's fellow employees, a clock from the bridegroom's colleagues in the divisional engineer's office of the Southern Railway, Clapham Junction, and gifts from the bellringers at Godalming Parish Church and Holy Trinity Church, Guildford.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole's future home will be at Teddington.

WORSLEY RINGERS VISIT LOUGHBOROUGH.

The annual outing of the ringers of St. Mark's, Worsley, took place on Saturday, July 30th, when a party of 14 visited Loughborough. Leaving Worsley at 7.25 a.m., they breakfasted at the Lakeside Cafe, Rudyard, at nine o'clock, and arrived at the Bell Foundry of Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. at 11.45. They were met by Mr. R. Stubbs and Mr. J. P. Fidler, Messrs. Taylor and Co.'s representatives, while Mr. Wardley, of Lincoln Cathedral, also joined the party, who were conducted through the various departments, where they saw bells in various stages of construction. They had the pleasure of viewing the foundry carillon and of ringing on the Foundry peal, after much laughter at the antics of the 'heavyweights.' A short touch of Kent Treble Bob and Stedman were, however, rung, as well as a touch of Grandsire on a nice-toned peal of handbells. After luncheon at the Empire Picture Cafe, the visitors returned to the Foundry where they were again met by Mr. J. P. Fidler who rang with them in various touches of Grandsire, Stedman, and Kent Treble Bob, and afterwards took the party to the beautiful ring of ten at the Parish Church, where again they enjoyed some nice touches of Grandsire, Stedman and Kent Treble Bob. Much admiration was expressed at the beautiful tone of these bells, and all agreed they had heard nothing like them. Leaving the Parish Church, the party next visited the beautiful war memorial carillon, and soon after tea set out on the return journey to Worsley, where they arrived in the early hours of the morning, all agreeing that it had been the finest day's outing they had had. They desire to thank the Rector and wardens of Loughborough for the use of the bells, also Mr. J. P. Fidler for staying with the party to show them round the various places.

KNIGHTON AND LUDLOW RINGERS' JOINT TOUR.

The ringers of St. Edward's Church, Knighton, had their annual tour on Bank Holiday. At the first tower visited (Much Wenlock) they were joined by the Ludlow ringers. A few touches were brought round on the beautiful ring of six bells, and all the ringers specially commented on their magnificent tone. After a stay of an hour, and visiting the old Abbey, the party went on to Coalbrookdale and were most heartily welcomed by the Vicar and ringers of Holy Trinity Church. Touches of Grandsire Caters, Grandsire Triples, Bob Major and Bob Royal were attempted. The belfry was the most elaborate the band had ever seen, and was a great credit to the ringers and the church. Lunch was partaken of at the Coalbrookdale Inn. After a few more touches on the bells, and thanking the ringers for the cordial reception they gave, the party went on to Bridgnorth, and were met by the St. Mary's band. Touches of Kent Treble Bob Minor, Bob Minor, Stedman and Grandsire Doubles were rung. After thanking the band for their welcome, the party enjoyed an excellent tea at the Commercial Hotel, and then proceeded to Burwarton, and there were most cordially received by the Vicar. Croquet and bowls were much enjoyed on the lawn, and a few touches of Grandsire Caters on handbells were rung and very much enjoyed, as were the excellent cigars handed round by the Vicar.

After a few touches of Bob Minor and Grandsire Doubles, the party went on to Ludlow, bringing the day to a good finish with a few touches of Grandsire Triples. Bidding farewell to the Ludlow company, the Knighton band returned home at 10 o'clock. All very much enjoyed their tour.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION.

SUCCESSFUL 'MISSIONARY' MEETING AT PURLEIGH.

At the invitation of the Rev. Canon F. C. Macdonald, a meeting was held on Saturday last at Purleigh. Despite the pouring rain, forty-three members were present from sixteen parishes. A short service was held in the Parish Church, with an address by the Rector (Canon Macdonald). The lesson was read by the Master, Mr. C. H. Howard. Tea was provided by the Rector in the Rectory, and the meeting was held in the Eveleigh Room. Mr. G. Green, District Master, presided, the Rector was elected an honorary member, and it was decided to hold the next meeting at Writtle in October.

The Master expressed the appreciation of those present to the Rector for his hearty welcome, and for his kindness in providing the tea.—Dr. Spencer Phillips proposed a vote of thanks to the organist and all who had contributed to the welfare of the visiting ringers.

The Rector, in responding, said the large numbers present on such a wet day was proof of the enthusiasm of ringers as church workers. He was anxious to form a band of service ringers at his church.

In response to an appeal by the Master, several from neighbouring towers offered to give their services during the coming autumn as instructors, and sufficient young men in the room expressed their wish to become ringers and take up change ringing, so that in the near future Purleigh would have once again a band of regular service ringers.

The bells, a ring of five, treble by Lester and Pack, 1765, the other four by Miles Gray, 1765, are in fair ringing order, hanging in a massive decorated tower, built of stone and cut flint, and occupying a prominent position overlooking the estuary of the Blackwater. It was here that the Rev. Laurence Washington, great-great-grandfather of General Washington, was Rector. He was appointed in 1632, and ejected by Cromwell for his loyalty in the rebellion of 1642. The parish is somewhat isolated being 4½ miles north-east of the line of the bus service from Chelmsford to Maldon. All those present had to travel either by cycle or car in a drenching rain, but they were well satisfied with the fact that the efforts of a missionary meeting gave promise of a revival of ringing in the parish of Purleigh.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATION.

DEVIZES BELLRINGERS ENTERTAINED.

On Saturday, July 23rd, the bellringers from the three Devizes towers were entertained at tea in St. John's Parish Room by Mr. and Mrs. H. Brownlee-West. On March 2nd of this year Mr. and Mrs. West reached the 60th anniversary of their wedding day. On July 12th Mr. West arrived at his 84th birthday, and in July Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Weeks (Mr. and Mrs. West's daughter and son-in-law) celebrated their 'silver wedding' day. It was to commemorate these happenings that this happy gathering was arranged. There were present Mr. and Mrs. West and members of their family, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Weeks, the Rector of Devizes and Mrs. Clarke, the Rev. H. A. James, and practically all the ringers from St. John's, St. Mary's, and St. James', Southbroom, and nearly 40 sat down to an excellent tea.

After tea short speeches were made by Messrs. C. D. Heginbotham, W. Bolwell, F. Green and S. Hillier, congratulating Mr. and Mrs. West on having reached their Diamond Wedding day, all testifying in different ways to the very excellent work done in the past by Mr. and Mrs. West, and their lively interest in all things belonging to bells and bellringers in Devizes and neighbourhood.

Mr. West thanked all for their kind remarks concerning Mrs. West and himself, and assured them it was a pleasure to meet so many old friends. Mrs. West also spoke a few words, expressing great pleasure at the hearty response to their invitation, and returning thanks for the many good wishes.—The Rector also offered his congratulations, and addressed those present in his usual breezy manner.

Handbell ringing followed, in which both Mr. and Mrs. West took part. Before and after tea the ringers gathered in St. John's tower for combined exercise. Touches of Kent Treble Bob and Plain Bob Major, Stedman and Grandsire Triples were successfully brought round. This is believed to be the first time all these methods have been rung in Devizes by an entirely local band at one meeting.

50 YEARS AS SEXTON.

A remarkable parochial record has been made in Lyminge, Kent, by Mr. Albert Tanton, who has completed 50 years as sexton in the very ancient church of SS. Mary and Eadburga. Mr. Tanton's duties have been continuous and without a break since June 2nd, 1877. During his long term of office he has served under four Rectors, namely, Rev. Canon Jenkins, Rev. R. B. Eves, Rev. A. F. Rutty and Rev. E. S. W. Watson.

Having been a very keen hallringer all his life, his fellow bellringers rang a peal of Grandsire Triples (Holt's Original) on Saturday, August 13th, in which Mr. Tanton rang the treble, and he is to be congratulated on the way in which he handled his bell. He is now in his 74th year.

The parishioners of Lyminge wish to congratulate Mr. Tanton on his completion of 50 years as sexton, also to tender their thanks for the efficient manner he has carried out his duties in the above church.

LONDON COUNTY ASSOCIATION AT HOUNSLOW.

The Southern District of the London County Association held a very pleasant business meeting last Saturday at Hounslow. The tower was opened at four o'clock, and ringing was started with Grandsire, followed by Stedman, Double Norwich, etc. Over twenty members sat down to the tea, after which the business meeting was held in the belfry.

During the meeting the Vicar kindly paid a visit and welcomed the association to the tower. He spoke of the valuable work that all bellringers did for the Church.

The Master (Mr. H. Mance), in reply, thanked the Vicar, on behalf of the association, for his kind remarks, and also for placing the bells at the ringers' disposal for the afternoon.

Further ringing was afterwards indulged in, the methods including Cambridge and London.

After eight o'clock, when the bells had been stopped, a social hour was enjoyed, when handbells were set going, and one or two gave the company a few songs and tunes on the handbells. A last-minute sprint for the last train ended an enjoyable day.

DEATH OF THE VICAR OF ST. LAWRENCE (THANET).

A LOSS TO RINGERS.

Many ringing visitors to St. Lawrence (Thanet) will learn with deep regret of the passing of the Vicar, Rev. A. G. Wilcox, M.A., Hon. C.F. A friend of all ringers, ever ready to grant permission to use the bells, either for peals or ringing outings, he was always visiting the tower on practice night and having a cheery word with the band. It was during these visits and seeing so many visitors, that the idea of making St. Lawrence a ten-bell tower occurred to him. Once he set his mind to the task, it was soon an accomplished fact. The following year, in July, he set to work, and the two trebles were added and opened on Armistice Day, 1924, and by January were paid for, which showed the energy and the keen interest he took in ringers. Only a fortnight ago we recorded how he took the local band to Belgium for an outing on August 1st and 2nd, which had been his ambition for several years, and which was thus realised only a few days before his death. Those who were with him on that occasion will ever remember those two pleasant days, the joy it gave him, and also his words, 'My dream of many years has come true: that my ringers should visit the carillon of Bruges and the war cemeteries of Belgium.'

The deceased served on the Flanders front from 1915 to 1918 as chaplain, and in 1915 he had the painful ordeal of burying his only son in Reninghelst churchyard.

The local band deeply deplore his death, and feel keenly the loss of a 'real Vicar' and friend.

SELF-HELP.

Last week we referred in this column to what has been proved, by an Essex experiment, to be possible in the way of recruiting by means of a carefully organised meeting. We have constantly urged that if the ranks of the Exercise are to be kept filled, the associations must make it their business to see that the belfries keep up their quota of ringers. One of their objects is the promotion of the art of change ringing, and change ringing cannot be extended unless the supply of ringers is maintained. For the sake of the art and their own existence, the associations are vitally concerned in that all important work of securing a constant supply of recruits. Whether all of our big organisations are devoting as much attention to this part of their responsibilities as they might is questionable, but none can afford to neglect it. The future of the art and of the associations depends upon the success of their efforts to bring into the Exercise a steady and adequate flow of young ringers.

There is, however, another side to the question, and that is that church authorities themselves have a responsibility. Indeed, theirs is the primary responsibility to keep the bells of their churches ringing for the Sunday services, and if they would do it successfully they must adopt the principle of self-help. The maintenance of a Sunday service band should be treated as a matter of equal importance to the maintenance of a choir, yet in how many cases is this really so? Not only is there often a total indifference as to the proper ringing of the bells, but instances are to be found where the incumbent is actually opposed to the formation of a band, except, perhaps, under almost impossible conditions. In cases of this kind there is little or nothing to be done, but where ringing is a welcome preliminary to the Church's services, it is still the duty of the authorities to organise their own band of ringers, and not wait until an outside body comes along with suggestions and promises of help.

This responsibility can be brought home tactfully by associations when occasion arises, and opportunity should never be lost to stress its importance. The best results will be obtained when the policy of self-help is supplemented by assistance which the large ringing organisations ought to be able to give to the weak bands, and when the problem is tackled in the right spirit there can generally be found sufficient volunteers from neighbouring towers to enable useful work to be done in building up a strong company. In these days of difficulty in finding recruits it is something to be grateful for if enough can be obtained to man the ropes, but it ought always to be the aim to have at least a fifty per cent. margin of man power, if there is to be a reasonable possibility of ringing all the bells on all occasions. What a great many hands suffer from is a limited personnel, which results in having to ring only some of the bells if for any reason one or two of the band are absent. In every well organised pastime there is always a reserve. We, however, put church bell ringing on a higher plane than a mere pastime, and therefore it is all the more necessary that there shall be sufficient ringers to ensure that all the bells shall be rung for the services. In raising the strength of a local company, it is again largely a question of self-help, although, unfortunately, the need for an adequate reserve is not always fully appreciated by church authorities.

MUFFLED BELLS.

At St. Mary's Church, Egremont, Cumberland, on Sunday, August 14th, 576 Bob Major and 1,152 Kent Major, with the bells fully muffled as a token of respect to the late Rector, who died at Keswick the previous day.

Previous to his retirement four years ago, he had faithfully carried out his duties as parish priest for thirty years. He was interred at Keswick on Tuesday, August 16th. The following took part in the ringing: J. J. Spedding 1, A. Elteck 2, J. Hutchinson 3, W. Douglas 4, W. H. Cooke 5, J. H. Rothery 6, W. Norman 7, G. W. Tembey (conductor) 8.

LIGHTNING STRIKES ABINGDON CHURCH.

Lightning struck St. Helen's Parish Church, Abingdon, Berks, on Thursday of last week. Mrs. Stacey, wife of the vergier, entered the belfry during a severe storm to toll the bell for a funeral, when she noticed a beam burning in the corner of the belfry.

Abingdon fire brigade quickly arrived on the scene and put out the fire.

Lightning had struck an electric bell on the beam through the lightning conductor in the roof of the belfry. The wire fused, set the beam alight, and melted a gas pipe.

St. Helen's Church has a ring of ten bells, with tenor of just over a ton.

NEW TREBLE BELL AT COSBY.
VICAR'S GIFT TO HIS CHURCH.

At St. Michael and All Angels' Church, Cosby, Leicester, during evening service on Sunday, August 21st, the Vicar dedicated a new treble bell to make a ring of six, and new quarter chimes which have been added to the clock.

After service, a well-struck 720 of Bob Minor was rung by the following members of the M.C.A. (who were invited for the occasion by Mr. Fred King, head ringer): T. Kelham Deacon 1, William Cope 2, Cecil Carr 3, C. Harry Webb 4, Henry Bird 5, George A. Newton (conductor) 6. The new treble is the gift of the Vicar (Rev. Canon E. Poulter), and was supplied by Messrs. J. Taylor and Co. The quarter chimes are the gift of Miss Poulter, sister of the Vicar, this part of the work having been carried out by Messrs. Cope and Co., of Nottingham. The bells are now a very handy ring, with tenor approximately 13 cwt. They are hung in an iron frame, having been augmented to five with a frame for six in 1915.

WINCHESTER DIOCESAN GUILD.
YORKTOWN DISTRICT DISCUSSES DIPLOMAS.

A meeting of Yorktown District was held at Egham on Saturday, August 20th, when 21 members and visiting ringers attended, including Mr. J. W. Jones, of Newport, Mon, hon. secretary of the Llandaff and Monmouth Association. Ringing did not commence until 3.40 p.m., and at 4.45 p.m. the ringers attended the Guild's service, which was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. A. C. Tranter). Tea had been prepared in the Parish Hall, and the Vicar afterwards occupied the chair for a short business meeting.

The Chairman expressed the pleasure of the district at the presence of Mr. Jones, and, in responding, Mr. Jones thanked them for the warm welcome they had given him, and hoped that any member visiting Newport or district would write to him, and he would try and fix up some ringing for them.

The question of diplomas for young ringers was discussed, and it was the feeling of the meeting that a badge should be given to ringers in ringing their first peal in preference to a certificate.

It was also mentioned to the members that should they leave their district they should let the captain or one in charge know, so that they might be brought into touch with another tower.

A vote of thanks was given to the Rev. A. C. Tranter for the use of the bells, for conducting the Guild's service, and presiding at the meeting.

The tower was then again visited, and various methods rung.

WINCHESTER DISTRICT.

A quarterly meeting of the Winchester District was held at Sheffield English on Saturday last. The musical peal of eight bells by Taylor and Co. were kept going to Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob Major, Superlative and Cambridge Surprise Major. Tea and a short meeting were held in the Church Room, the Rector and Mrs. Butler attending to the wants of the members. Tea had been arranged for 20, but 32 had to be catered for, and by a miracle all were well supplied.

Afterwards, the Rector gave the ringers a hearty welcome, and Mr. G. Williams (Master) expressed the hope that the local band would join the Guild.

The Rector, himself an hon. member, said he would do what he could towards this object.

Mr. G. Pullinger, general secretary, gave a few details as to the formation of the new Guild for the dioceses of Winchester and Portsmouth, and also moved a vote of thanks to the Rector for the use of the bells and the kind arrangements made for tea.

The towers represented were Bishopstoke, Basingstoke, Romsey, King's Somborne, North Stoneham, Southampton (St. Mary's), Stockbridge, Lymington, Bishop's Waltham, Ringwood, St. Martin's and St. Edmund's, Salisbury, Twyford and Winchester.

The annual meeting will take place at Winchester on Saturday, November 5th, notice of which will be given in 'The Ringing World.'

RINGERS' OUTINGS.TEN IN A DAY.

On Saturday, August 13th, the ringers of Emmanuel Church, Plymouth, had their annual outing, accompanied by three friends from St. Andrew's Society, viz., Messrs. G. H. Myers, T. Myers and J. Gluas. The day was showery, but a happy party left at 8 a.m. by charabanc for a 15 miles' ride to Rattery, where there is an ancient church and a peal of five bells, with a tenor of 13 cwt. Stedman Doubles and Grandsire Doubles were rung, and rounds for the youngsters. Afterwards, a move was made to Harberton, where hangs a fine peal of six (tenor 17 cwt. in F), and a long draught of Stedman and Grandsire Doubles were again rung, and a well-struck 720 Bob Minor, the first on the bells, by: G. Godard 1, J. E. Lilley 2, T. Myers 3, G. H. Myers 4, J. Woodley 5, C. R. Lilley (cond.) 6. The party proceeded to Totnes for lunch, and then to Dartington, where Stedman, Grandsire and Bob Minor, conducted by Mr. Woodley, were rung. At this church there is a fine ring of six, with 16 cwt. tenor, but the ropes are too short for change ringing in comfort. A move was then made to Steventon, where they found a ring of six, tenor 21 cwt., just rehung. Here Grandsire, Stedman and rounds were rung, and a fine 720 Bob Minor: J. Gluas 1, G. H. Myers 2, C. R. Lilley (conductor) 3, J. E. Lilley 4, J. Woodley 5, T. Myers 6. Bradhempstone, with a light six, was next visited, and the same methods were rung, conducted by Messrs. Myers and Woodley, and then on to Little Hempstone, where there is the front five of a ring of six, the tenor pit being vacant. The visitors had a considerable job to get a 120 of Stedman on account of ropes being short. It was thought that a band of 7ft. men must ring these bells, for one of the youths stood on a 3ft. stool to ring in rounds. Returning to Totnes, the party enjoyed a splendid tea, and then went on to Coleton, where Stedman and Grandsire were rung on the nice peal of five. Stoke Gabriel (six, with tenor 17 cwt.) was the next call, and then to Berry Pomeroy, where hangs a good eight (tenor 17 cwt.), and where there are critics. The bells were raised in peal, and a finely-struck 168 of Grandsire Triples, conducted by Mr. Woodley, and another conducted by Mr. Lilley, brought round, and the party were congratulated on their ringing. Then on to the tenth tower of the day—Totnes, with its fine eight, tenor 28 cwt. Here again the bells were raised in peal, and a couple of 168's rung before departing for Plymouth, which was reached at 10.45 p.m., after an enjoyable day.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS RINGERS' EXCURSION.

St. Peter's Society, Tunbridge Wells, had their annual outing on August Bank Holiday, and visited various towers in Sussex and Surrey. The party, augmented by Mr. T. Groombridge, sen., of Chislehurst, Mr. Miles, of Mayfield, and Messrs. Lambert, of Horsmonden, with wives, sweethearts, and other friends, to the number of 70, left Tunbridge Wells by charabanc shortly after eight o'clock. Turner's Hill was the first stop, but owing to a service only a short ring was obtained. On arriving at Crawley, they were met by Mr. O. Sippetts and other local ringers. Short touches were the order of the day, and these ranged from Grandsire to Cambridge. Shortly after leaving here the rain commenced, and continued for the remainder of the day. Ramore, on the Surrey hills, was the next objective, and, had the day been fine, some lovely views of the surrounding country would have been obtained. This tower and bells fully repaid the visit, which was, however, rather hurried owing to the time set for lunch, which was partaken of at the Victory Tea Gardens, Dorking, and a most excellent meal was provided. Dorking Parish Church tower was then visited, where Mr. E. E. Dodd had everything in readiness, and touches in various methods were rung. Leatherhead was next on the list, and here the visitors were met by Mr. J. Beams and other local ringers, and touches in various methods on eight and ten bells were brought round. Permission had been obtained to ring at Ashted, but time did not permit, and the party wish to express their deep regret to the steeplekeeper that they were unable to avail themselves of the permission. Epsom was reached, and, after an excellent tea at Wright's Restaurant, the visitors enjoyed some ringing, and shortly after 7.30 started for home. On halting at Betchingley, however, some of the more enthusiastic found the Vicar and obtained permission to ring, which they did for about an hour. This delay, together with tyre trouble that developed and a wrong turning taken in the dark by the driver, made it nearly midnight before Tunbridge Wells was reached. The society wish to return their sincere thanks to the incumbents of the various churches for granting permission to ring, to the steeplekeepers and other ringers who kindly met them, and to Mr. E. E. Dodd and Mr. J. Beams for their kind assistance in arranging to satisfy the wants of the inner man.

OLD ESSEX RINGER'S DEATH. LONG SERVICE AT WITHAM CHURCH.

The Essex Association has lost a very old member and valued supporter, and the church a loyal son, in the death of Mr. Arthur Chalk, of Witham, at the age of 70 years. He passed away on August 20th, after a short but painful illness, borne with Christian fortitude.

The deceased was the last of the old band of ringers at Witham, and had been in charge of the belfry for 48 years. He had only missed a few Sundays' duty during his long spell of service. He succeeded his father as leader, making a period of nearly 100 years that the Chalk family had occupied that position. It was a real joy to him to see that at the end of his ringing career the local band of ringers had reached such a high standard of proficiency.

The funeral took place on Wednesday of last week. The deceased was taken into the Parish Church of St. Nicholas that he had loved so well, and in which he had worshipped regularly the whole of his life. He was buried in the churchyard of All Saints', the only burial ground in the parish. Rev. Canon Galpin, a former Vicar of Witham, and now Rector of Faulkbourne, and Rural Dean, assisted by the Rev. N. Hagger (curate of Witham) officiated. In addition to numerous relations and friends, there were present Mr. O. E. Howard, Master, and Mr. W. Elliott, representing the Essex Association, Messrs. A. Evers, E. Bright, P. Ashcroft, W. Butler, W. B. Butler, and W. Mullen, members of the local band, and representatives of the 'Indian Chief' Lodge of Foresters, of which deceased was a member. The floral tributes included one from the clergy, wardens and sidesmen of St. Nicholas' Church, his fellow-ringers, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Parker, his late master, the servants, and old garden friends at Faulkbourne Hall, where deceased had worked for 29 years.

Before the funeral service, 720 Oxford Treble Bob was rung with the bells deeply muffled; afterwards, 720 Double Court Bob with the bells half-muffled, conducted by E. Bright. Following the interment, a course of Grandsire Triples was rung over the open grave by Messrs. F. Chalk 1-2, C. H. Howard 3-4, W. Chalk 5-6, W. H. Chalk 7-8.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION. NORTHERN DISTRICT.

A very successful meeting was held at Barkway on Saturday, when ringers were present from Baldock, Braughing, Royston, Sawston, Saffron Walden, Trumpington, Hitchin, Barley, Ware, and a number of the local band. The bells are a beautiful ring of eight, and were kept going in various methods during the afternoon and evening. Most of the best striking was in the Surprise methods.

A short service was arranged for five o'clock, but the Vicar did not put in an appearance until much later, being unavoidably detained. After tea, which was an excellent meal, Mr. A. E. Pitstow took the chair at the business meeting.

Two new life members were made, namely, Messrs. L. E. Pitstow and L. Simmonds, and Royston was decided upon as the next place for a meeting.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells, and a churchwarden present agreed to convey the same to him. The best thanks were due to the local captain, Mr. W. Machon, who made all necessary arrangements, which tended to make a pleasant time.

DEATH OF A MACCLESFIELD RINGER.

On Wednesday, August 17th, there passed to his rest, after a long illness, Thomas Mottershead, a member of the Parish Church company of Macclesfield, at the age of 68 years.

Deceased started his ringing career over 46 years ago at St. James', Sutton. Twenty-four years ago he joined the company at the Parish Church, Macclesfield, and since then has been a most attentive, regular and enthusiastic ringer, always ready at any time to do anything in his power to further the art of change ringing and to help any young band to the best of his ability. And while he called others to worship, he neglected not the call himself, for he was a regular communicant and worshipper.

He will be greatly missed by his brother ringers, for he was of a genial disposition and a good companion. He had rung about 20 peals.

He was buried at St. James', Sutton, on Saturday, August 20th, amidst many manifestations of regret. There were over 30 beautiful wreaths, including one in the form of a bell from his fellow-ringers, who also carried him to his last resting place. The service was taken by the Rev. T. J. Nash, Vicar of Birtles, in the absence on holiday of the Vicars of Macclesfield and St. James'. A touch on handbells was rung over the grave by Macclesfield and Sutton ringers, and, afterwards, 336 Grandsire Triples with the bells half-muffled was rung on the Parish Church bells, in which E. Johnson, of Gawsorth, took part.

On Sunday, the bells were half-muffled all day, and for evening service a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes) was rung in 54 mins.: J. Burgess 1, H. Lomas 2, G. Bottomley 3, H. Dean 4, S. Dean 5, J. Norbury 6, A. Burgess (conductor) 7, J. V. Norbury 8.

TRYSULL, STAFFS.—On August 16th (after abandoning a peal attempt owing to illness near by), a quarter-peal of Grandsire Doubles (1,260 changes) in 47 mins.: K. C. Taylor 1, T. E. Taylor 2, H. T. Piper 3, H. R. Pickering 4, F. Brotherton (conductor) 5, H. Hoswell 6. First quarter for 3rd, 5th and 6th.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

It is unusual to meet 'three short' for a peal, but this happened last week at St. George's, Jesmond, Newcastle, when five men assembled for Stedman Triples in honour of the curate's wedding, and the remainder of the band from 'beside the seaside' failed to turn up. However, all was not lost, for a local man was dug out and a peal of Minor rung to celebrate the auspicious event.

A day or two before, another band had met two short at a church, some hundreds of miles from Newcastle. They, however, may have the credit for introducing a new occupation for unemployed ringers. Before an admiring (?) audience they played off a round of the County (Ringers') 'Shove ha'penny' Championship, and in the end Surrey beat Sussex.

A sprained ankle was the cause last Saturday of yet another band meeting short. This was at Wolverhampton, where Cinques had been arranged, but, 'Uncle Joe' meeting with an accident at the last moment, only Caters could be rung. When ringing's afoot, he might postpone until afterwards such annoying details as spraining an ankle; but everyone hopes soon to see him on his 'hind legs' again.

In the report of the peal at Buxton, Norfolk, published last week, the asterisk denoting 'first peal inside' should have been placed against the ringer of the 3rd, instead of the 2nd.

There were contrasts in age among the ringers of the first peal on the bells at Kingsbury Episcopi, Somerset, on Thursday week. Mr. Robert Manning rang the tenor to his first peal at the age of 72. At the other end of the scale, Dennis Hale, aged 15, rang the treble.

At last the Fairford bells have gone to Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, to be recast and to have new fittings at a cost of £408. Up to the present, £260 13s. 6d. has been collected, and if any ringer would like to help this cause, donations would be thankfully received by Mr. J. Hope, London Street, Fairford, Glos.

A hundred and seven years ago to-day, the first peal was rung on the ten bells at Bishop's Stortford. It was a peal of Grandsire Caters by the Junior Society of College Youths.

Exactly forty years ago to-morrow the first peal was rung at Salisbury. This was at St. Martin's Church.

On September 6th, 1867, 6,140 'Bobb Major Royal' was rung at Coventry in 4 hrs. 23 mins.

Thomas Tolladay, a leading London ringer of his day, took part with a band of College Youths in a 6,144 Oxford Treble Bob Major at St. Peter's, Walworth, on September 7th, 1830.

A correspondent asks the following questions, to which, perhaps, readers can find answers:—

Is it a fact that the recent collapse in Cornhill was really caused by a prominent member of the C.Y.'s propping himself and his scooter against the building what time he searched for his way home?

Who is the youthful Midlands' ringer who did not have to learn like other men, but was born 'ready learned'?

Can the gent with the aforesaid scooter recommend the oil he uses it with to gargle Uncle Joe's bad ankle?

Has Uncle really got his 42583 course-end up?

'THE BELLRINGER.'

In the series of 'Plain Guides to Lay Work,' published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, No. 8, which has just been issued, is 'The Bellringer.' Its author is the Rev. C. D. P. Davies, whose work for the art of ringing is too well known to need introduction to readers of 'The Ringing World,' and the fact that the little brochure comes from the pen of such a writer is sufficient guarantee that it is written with knowledge and sympathy.

The work opens with a short explanation of the mechanical operation of bells, and briefly deals with change ringing before going on to speak of the ringers themselves. Mr. Davies traces the reformation which has taken place in the belfry, and gives the following advice in cases where 'the old spirit of autocracy and insubordination' still lurks. He says 'in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred there is a simple way of overcoming the difficulty. Leave the "old lot" as they were, telling them that they shall still ring on occasions of payment, but that for other ringing, and in particular for ringing for church services, a new company is being founded, the members of which pledge themselves to learn, or do their best to learn, change ringing. This they will do for the glory of God and without any pecuniary reward. The result soon follows. The old company may, or may not, survive over the next Christmas season, the season of tips, Christmas boxes and the like, but before another such season comes round, bereft often of some of their own younger and more enterprising members who have gone over to the other side, they collapse of inanition. Left out in the cold, they leave the junior and more energetic society in possession of the field.'

Mr. Davies traces the modern development of the Exercise, points out the help which can be obtained by church authorities from the county and diocesan associations and Guilds, and from the Central Council, and concludes with a word to ringers upon the dignity of their calling.

This little book, published at the modest sum of 3d. by the S.P.C.K., is the very thing for associations to use in their propaganda work. In that respect alone it will fill a long-felt want.

BY 'MINORMANIA.'

This is the fifth of the series of articles which have been specially written for beginners by 'Minormania,' to explain to them the theory of change ringing. These articles are not merely for perusal. If they are to serve the purpose for which they are intended they must be studied.

FURTHER EXTENTS BY LEAD-ENDS.

All of the 'regular' Minor methods have one of the five rows shown below, when the treble makes her first blow on the front at the first lead-end—the handstroke row; or the last row of our 'theoretical lead.' These five rows are:—

124365, 132546, 146253, 153624, 165432.

In fact, the changing pairs in the first leads are so arranged to MAKE one of these five turn up at this row; otherwise the method is not 'regular.' The method is then completed, by making second's or sixth's place, as we have seen. The first two of the above rows can only be treated in one way, or else the bells will run 'round' (that is, run into 'rounds order'). In other words, if we cause 124365 to make second's place, 123456 will turn up; and, similarly, if we cause 132546 to make sixth's place:—

So that these two can be treated only in the opposite ways—124365 to make sixth's place, and 132546 to make second's place. The remaining three rows may be treated in both ways; both places can be made without the bells running 'round.' The combinations are given:—

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8

The lead 'ends' (or heads) below the line show that Nos. 1 and 3, 2 and 6, 4 and 7, and 5 and 8 respectively are identical; so that our five different rows are made to give four different lead-ends during the process of 'joining' the leads together in different methods. These four lead-ends are the same rows that we have in the plain course lead-ends of Bob Minor; and we have seen that, taking each one of these in turn, we can arrive at the lead-ends which will appear in the plain course of every method, no matter which place is made (second's or sixth's place).

In other words, the plain course of ALL METHODS which have the same row for the first lead-end could be 'called' (if we may use this term) from the same block of lead-ends, four blocks of which we have found, by taking each one in turn and using it as the first lead-end for transposition. This is very well for the plain course, but when 'calls' are introduced, a different case arises.

Singles, we know, are differently applied to the two classes of methods. To produce a single in a second's-place method we have to change a different pair from that which produces a single in a sixth's-place method; but the difference of the application of the bob is not so apparent, as we have always understood that it makes fourth's-place in EVERY METHOD.

This is true, and we may use it for finding our bob-rows from the first leads; but it must not be supposed, because the first lead-ends are identical in two methods, that the lead-ends of a 720 of a second's-place method will be similar to those of a sixth's-place method, just because the lead-ends in the plain course of each are the same, and that both have 'fourth's-place' bobs.

This 'fourth's-place' at a bob is applied to the row above the line to produce the new lead-head underneath. Examples 3 and 4 both have 146253 above the line, but they have different plain lead-ends; and yet, if the fourth's-place bob is applied to either we get 164(2)35 as the bob-end of each, making them one and the same method.

Examples No. 4 and No. 7 both have the same 'lead-end,' 164523, and therefore they belong to the same 'plain-course block' of lead-ends; but if the 'fourth's-place' be applied here, we get 164(2)35 in the one, and 156(4)23 in the other—two entirely different rows, which, at a bob, displace the same lead-end. For this reason, our lead-ends of the 720 will differ in second's-place and sixth's-place methods, even though the methods have the same plain lead-end.

We must clearly understand here that the pairs changing in the rows of the 'theoretical leads' can be so arranged that two entirely different methods can be made to end up (and to 'join' up) like any one of the eight examples above. We could have many different methods ending like example 1, or many like example 2, or 3, or 4, etc.

Provided that methods end-and-join with the same rows (in other words, are of the same 'class' with the same lead-end), then the lead-ends of the 720 will be exactly similar. So that one block of lead-ends can be used for the 720 of many methods, provided that, in such methods, the same observation bell is used, and that she is 'called' in the same 'positions' (at W.R.W., etc.).

The first parts of alternative callings are given below as examples. The tenor is the observation bell in each. Three such parts (that is, the given part twice repeated) will make a 720 of any Treble Bob method. The introduction of a single, and the whole repeated exactly, as shown before, will make a 720 of any plain-hunt method.

Call the singles where you will, so long as you do not disturb bells 5 and 6 when it is introduced, and so long as the single in the second half is put in at a corresponding lead-end. Singles are better used as little as possible at this stage of our studies, for a reason that will appear, and it is unwise to introduce any more than is absolutely necessary. As we have said before, we must have at least two to produce 720 in a plain-hunt method.

Transpose the following, by the example of the plain lead-end, substituting the 'call row' when it is required, as we did with the Plain Bob calling. Use the black and red cards until the lead-ends can be written straight down without their aid.

It is usual to show lead-ends without the treble in the front of the rows, and she is understood always to be there, but it is better to write the rows out in full at the first.

For methods with 135264 as the first lead-end:—

SECOND'S-PLACE.

SIXTH'S-PLACE.

(Bob, 123564; Single, 132564.)		(Bob, 135642; Single, 135624.)
W.R.W.	I.I. 4th's.	I.O.I.	4th's W.W.
123456	123456	123456	123456
— 23564	36264	35264	— 35642
36245	56342	56342	— 54263
64352	64523	— 64235	46532
— 45623	— 64235	43652	63425
— 45236	— 64352	35426	32654
— 45362	— 45623	52364	— 25463
56423	52436	— 26435	56234
62534	23564	— 63542	63542

The best place to introduce the singles for the W.R.W. and the I.I. 4th's figures is at the end of the third part, making 123456 into 124356, but it may be put in at any of the part-ends (134256, etc.), as it will not disturb the 5 and 6 here. With the other two sets of lead-ends, it cannot go at the part ends, but can be introduced at 56342 in the I.O.I., and at 56234 in the 4th's W.W. At both of these places the 5 and 6 would be undisturbed by the single. If it is placed at these particular lead-ends, it must be remembered that the corresponding ends in the second half must likewise be singled. It could also be placed at similar lead-ends in the repeated parts; that is to say, in the parts which follow those given. If any row in an example is altered by the introduction of a single, then all of the rows following will be different from those given here, so far as bells 2, 3, and 4 are concerned; but bells 5 and 6, being undisturbed, will be at similar places in the rows to those given above.

Now repeat these four 'callings' for each of the methods which have the lead-ends shown below:—

For methods with		Second's Place.		Sixth's Place.
142635	164235	146235	142356	142365
164523	156423	165423	164235	164253

The reader should take the trouble to work out the bob and single rows himself, although they are given here for reference. It is the principle that has to be impressed upon the mind, so that it may be applied to other numbers of bells. He who cares to prick out all of these combinations will have sixteen sets of lead-ends, which will provide two alternative 'callings' for any legitimate Minor method he may care to choose. The set to be used will depend upon the first lead-end (and the 'class') of the method chosen.

Apart from this, it is excellent practice in transposition, and the rows are useful for observing the 'fixed bells' when this stage is reached.

NOTE.—When dealing with the Plain Bob lead-ends, the alternative calling suggested for the I.O.I. was 'No. 5 bell O.I.O.' This is the same thing as No. 6 bell at 4th's W.W., and if we study these combinations we shall find that these callings automatically 'fix' both No. 5 and No. 6 bells as observations. For instance, the W.R.W. fixes No. 5 bell at '4th's O.O.' but more of this later.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.

PROPOSED DIVISION OF LIVERPOOL BRANCH.

The monthly meeting of the Liverpool Branch was held at Woolton Parish Church on Saturday, August 20th, and was well attended.

Mr. Claude J. Davies, of Caerleon, Dunbabin Road, Wavertree, was appointed branch secretary.

A discussion on the division of the branch was adjourned, and Hale was fixed for the next meeting on Saturday, September 11th.

RINGERS' GIFT OF BELL ROPES.

On Sunday morning, August 28th, a very pleasing little ceremony was performed in the tower of Emmanuel Church, Plymouth, when the ringers presented to the church a set of new bell ropes. The captain of the tower (Mr. J. Woodley) asked the Vicar (the Rev. A. C. Chapman) to accept them as a gift from the ringers, and this he duly acknowledged, and hoped the ringers would soon wear them out. Afterwards 168 Grandsire Triples was rung: W. Phelps 1, J. Symonds 2, C. R. Lilley 3, J. E. Lilley 4, R. J. Baldry 5, G. Godard 6, J. Woodley (conductor) 7, S. Symonds 8.

ICKLETON CHURCH BELLS.

RING OF EIGHT OPENED IN CAMBRIDGESHIRE VILLAGE.

The opening of the bells at Ickleton, Cambs, took place at a service held on Thursday evening of last week, and proved an interesting and successful event.

Ickleton has been much in the eye of the Exercise in the last year or so, first by reason of the fact that the tenor collapsed one day while being rung, then by the tremendous efforts which the parishioners of this little village made to restore the bells, and by the encouraging results, which not only induced them to rehang the old six but to add two trebles to make eight. Lastly came the Consistory Court proceedings, in which the Chancellor of the diocese censured the Rector and churchwardens for beginning the work before the faculty was obtained, and proclaimed a 'ban' on the founders.

However, all's well that ends well, and Ickleton has now got an excellent ring of eight bells, which Messrs. Gillett and Johnston have installed in the tower, with an iron frame and all modern fittings. The tenor is in F.

The inscriptions and weights are as follow:—

Treble.—'In loving memory of Henry Francis and Ann Harriet Beales, this bell is dedicated by their sons and daughters, 1927. Gillett and Johnston, Croydon.' 4 cwt. 2 qr. 9 lb.

2nd.—'Gillett and Johnston, Croydon, 1927.' 4 cwt. 3 qr. 7 lb.

4th.—'Thomas Newman of Norwich made me 1729. Recast by Gillett and Johnston, Croydon, 1927.' 5 cwt. 3 qr. 21 lb.

5th.—'Chapman of London Fecit, 1781. Recast by Gillett and Johnston, Croydon, 1927.' 7 cwt. 1 qr. 22 lb.

6th.—'John Haley and Matthias Ripsher, Churchwardens, 1755. Lester and Pack Fecit. Recast by Gillett and Johnston, Croydon, 1927.' 9 cwt. 1 qr. 26 lb.

7th.—'I tell all that doth me se that Newman of Norwich new cast me 1729. Recast by Gillett and Johnston, Croydon, 1927.' 12 cwt. 2 qr. 18 lb.

Tenor.—'Thomas Lester of London Fecit. Charles Shepherd and Robert Miller, Churchwardens, 1751. Recast by Gillett and Johnston, Croydon, 1927.' 18 cwt. 2 qr. 21 lb.

Total weight, 68 cwt. 1 qr. 22 lb.

A large congregation was present at the initiation service, including several noted ringers from Saffron Walden, Cambridge, Long Stanton, Sawston, Trumpington, Shelford, and other places. Captain Freeborn was present to represent the founders (Messrs. Gillett and Johnston). The service was taken by the Vicar, the Rev. R. H. Cooke, and the Rev. H. B. Woolley (Long Stanton) gave an interesting address, his text being the last two verses of 150th Psalm.

The Vicar announced that it was not quite a year since the tenor bell was broken, and now they had got a lovely peal of eight bells. Great credit was due to the firm, and also the two men who had done the work in such a clever manner. The cost, including repairing the tower, was about £230, and only about £130 was needed to clear off the debt, which was very satisfactory.

Before the last hymn, 'Now thank we all our God,' the bells were rung in rounds for the first time by the local ringers.

The collection was in aid of the bell fund, and amounted to over £4.

After the service, the bells were rung by visiting ringers up till ten o'clock, nearly all the standard methods being rung, everyone being pleased with the tone and 'go' of the bells, which are hung in ball bearings with all the latest improvements. The tenor has a patent clapper, and all the bells are Simpson tuned. Practice night is Thursday, when all ringers will be welcome. The bells now run the right way round, instead of 'backhanded' as formerly.

THE WETTEST DAY OF 'SUMMER.'

On Saturday, August 20th, Gulval (Cornwall) ringers had their annual outing, accompanied by Dr. J. Symons (Ringing Master) and two lady ringers. At 8.30 a.m. a start was made by charabanc in a deluge of rain for Camborne, where several touches of Grand sire Triples were brought round. Thence to Kenwyn and Kea, at both of which places several touches of Triples were scored. A start was then made for Manaccan, by which time lunch was suggested, which took the form of a supply of pasties, which were taken on board before starting, and which were thoroughly enjoyed. At Manaccan, Grand sire, Bob Doubles and Stedman were the order, as also at the neighbouring church of St. Anthony, with its fine peal of six by Gillett and Johnston. After this, the party wended their way through lovely bye-ways to St. Keverne, with its beautiful peal of eight. After the bells had been started, it was thought to be time for tea. The tables, well laden with good things, were soon cleared, and then the ringers went back again to the belfry for a well-struck 504. Leaving St. Keverne, the party proceeded to Helston, ten miles distant, where there is another fine peal of eight, and here they finished their ringing for the day. By this time the church clock struck nine, and the car was turned homewards, all having thoroughly enjoyed six solid hours of ringing, and with spirits still buoyant, notwithstanding it was the wettest day of the summer.

AN ANCIENT CHURCH.

WINCHESTER GUILD RINGERS' VISIT TO DUNSFOLD.

Dunsfold, which the Guildford District of the Winchester Diocesan Guild visited on Saturday, is a village nestling at the foot of the southern slopes of the North Downs, and possesses a church which, to those who have an eye for its beauties, is a perfect gem. The present building dates from the middle of the thirteenth century, and its architecture is one of the purest specimens of 'Decorated' work in the county, if not in the country. The church is well away from the village itself, and overlooks a tributary of the River Arun. It was probably built by the Augustinian Canons, who had a house close at hand on the river bank. There is a fine chancel, with a 'squin hole,' and two glorious little transepts, while in the nave are many of the original bench ends, in which Dunsfold is richer than any other church in Surrey. Originally, doubtless, the building was bright with colours, and small parts of the ancient frescoes are now uncovered. There is a complete list of the Rectors since 1294, and the present Rector produced for the inspection of the visitors the massive original key of the church, made probably out of iron mined near at hand, which dates from the time of his first predecessor. There can be few churches which still have in use a key which has done duty for more than six hundred years.

It is believed that the builders intended to complete the church by a central tower, but this part of the plan was never carried out. Instead, there is a small spire carried up over the roof at the west end, and in this is housed a little ring of six bells. Originally there were three ancient castings, the oldest, which was badly cracked, being dated 1533, and founded by William Knight, of Reading. The other two were by the Eldridges, one of 1621, probably cast at Horsbam, and the other 1649, in all probability cast at Chertsey. The bell frame is carried on massive timbers carried up from the floor of the building, and ringing is done in the church. For the inexperienced there is a rather long draught of rope.

Considering the fact that Dunsfold is a good four miles from a railway station, an attendance of five and twenty at this meeting, in the holiday and harvest season, was surprisingly good. Among the visitors was Mr. J. H. Shepherd, who made a special journey from Swindon to ring in his two thousand and umpteenth tower, and measure the two thousand and umpteenth tenor across which he has put his rule.

With the organist in attendance, the Guild service went with a swing, the familiar hymns being sung with great heartiness. The outstanding feature, however, was the Rector's address. The Rev. A. E. Hollins is a 'man's parson,' with broad views and sympathies, a keen cricketer, and, as he himself said, a bit of a bellringer. He had prepared no address, he said, and he frankly admitted that that afternoon he had wanted to play in a cricket match, but finding no other day was suitable for the meeting he had willingly agreed to the Guild's visit, and he extended a warm welcome to Dunsfold. He briefly alluded to the historical interest of the church in which they were gathered, and said that they in Dunsfold delighted in the fact that their ringers really took their part in the services of the church. They did their work in the church itself, and were not shut away out of sight in a belfry. The Guild that day, he continued, had been unconsciously the cause of teaching a great lesson. That afternoon one of the parishioners had been buried, and at first among some of the people there had been some question as to the fitness of ringing the bells. It had given him the greatest opportunity of his life to bring home to his people the lesson of death, to point out to them that it was not the end of all things, but the beginning of a new and greater life, and that in his view it was fitting that the ringing of the bells should greet it. He had talked with the bereaved family about it, and they had seen it in the same light; indeed, they felt that the dead would rejoice to know that the bells were rung. For himself, he asked for nothing better than that, when his time came, he should be laid to rest to the sound of the bells merrily pealing.

Tea was afterwards served in the Rectory Coach House, and the Rector, who many years ago was a curate at Painswick, presided over the short business meeting, at which the district Ringing Master (Mr. A. C. Hazelden) said that, in view of the work which was being done in connection with organising the new Guildford Diocesan Guild, the six-bell practices had had to be suspended. It was hoped to resume them later on, for they had proved of real value, not only in assisting the six-bell bands but in helping to bring home to those in authority the need, if they would have an efficient Sunday service band, of doing something to help themselves.

Mr. J. S. Goldsmith gave a resume of what had been done up to the present in organising the new Guild, and asked for the support of the ringers and clergy in completing the arrangements. A preliminary meeting for that district was to be held at Guildford on October 1st, and for other districts on succeeding Saturdays, if possible, at Leatherhead, Chertsey and Farnham.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector for the use of the bells, the service, and his address, to the organist, and to the sexton and his wife who had prepared the tea.

The ringing during the afternoon and evening included Grand sire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, Treble Bob and Cambridge Surprise Minor.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION. ENJOYABLE MEETING AT ALMONDSBURY.

By the kind invitation of the Vicar (the Rev. Canon G. R. Wood), the members of the Bristol Branch held another of their enjoyable monthly meetings at Almondsbury on Saturday last, and were favoured with fine weather. The Bristol party journeyed by motor for the last time this year in connection with the country meetings, but this method of transit has proved very convenient through the summer. Arriving on top of Almondsbury Hill, a fine view was obtained over the Severn towards the Welsh mountains in the distance, with the village of Almondsbury lying in the valley, and the church showing up prominently. The bells were raised in peal and rung in various methods until the service, which was of a very bright and hearty character, and conducted by the Vicar, who gave a short address, taking his text from 1 Cor. ix. 16, 'Woe is unto me if I preach not the Gospel.' Tea (kindly provided by the Vicar) followed in the Vicarage grounds. The wooded slopes and the lovely surroundings added greatly to the enjoyment of the members.

A short business meeting followed, presided over by the chairman (Mr. J. Gould), about 60 being present, representing 18 towers. Members from outside the branch were Miss N. G. Williams (Bath), Messrs. F. C. Benger (Dorchester), C. D. and C. Heginbotham (Devizes), and Rev. E. Slater (Woodford, Essex).

Arising out of the minutes, a letter was read from Mr. E. D. Taylor (Loughborough) thanking the members on behalf of the family for their kind sympathy in the bereavement sustained by the death of Mr. Pryce Taylor.

The Hon. Secretary reported he had received a letter from Mr. E. Guiso (the general secretary), offering to give instruction in change ringing to St. Michael's Guild, Bristol, if the branch agreed, and the offer was accepted with thanks.

It was announced that the bye-meeting at Warmley had been fixed up for Saturday, September 10th, and the monthly meeting at Henbury on Saturday, September 24th. Tea, in each instance, would be provided at 6d. each.

The Chairman, in moving the vote of thanks to the Vicar for his kind hospitality, mentioned the special interest he took in his ringers, and the way he had paid attention to the belfry, which was deserving of praise. The belfry in the past week had been painted and renovated. He had heard a little secret that day. It was the Vicar's ringing son's 21st birthday on the following Tuesday, and he was going to attempt a peal with the local band. He wished him every success.—Mr. Heginbotham seconded the vote in characteristic style, and endorsed the chairman's remarks. As a layman in the church, he had, he said, learnt something that day from Canon Wood.

The Vicar, on rising, was given a cordial reception. He thanked the chairman and Mr. Heginbotham for all the kind things said of him. It was, he said, through the great interest his son Stephen took in ringing that it had been brought so prominently before him. He thought his son should make a speech after what had been said about him.

Mr. Stephen Wood, being called upon, said he had only made one speech in his life before, and that at the ringers' meeting held there last year, when he responded for his father, who was absent from home.

Mrs. and Miss Wood were also thanked, as also were the ladies who waited at the tables.

The meeting over, the members repaired to the belfry, where Canon Wood dedicated three peal boards (two peals on one board), recording four peals rung in the tower: Bob Major, on October 25th, 1919, composed by J. Carter, and conducted by E. Guise; Grandsire Triples, rung on April 25th, 1925 (Holt's Original), conducted by A. Prince; a local peal of Grandsire Triples, rung on October 9th, 1926 (Groves' Transposition of Parker's twelve part), conducted by G. E. Capewell; and Bob Major, rung on April 18th, 1927, composed by E. Morris, conducted by S. H. Wood.

Congratulations were given to the local band upon their first peal after eight attempts.

The Vicarage gardens were thrown open, and were much appreciated, especially by the ladies.

Practice on the bells was continued until 8.30, when the Bristol party departed for home, after another very pleasant meeting.

ROMNEY MARSH GUILD.

The monthly meeting of the Romney Marsh and Ashford District Guild was held at Lydd on Saturday, August 20th, by kind permission of the Rev. Canon Collins. Though it was a very wet day, about 40 members turned up. During the afternoon and evening, good use was made of the bells, the methods rung being Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, and a course of Double Norwich. The Mayor, Mr. H. Finn, entertained the ringers to tea at the Town Hall, and presided over the business meeting which followed. He was supported by the Rev. Canon Collins and Mr. White, churchwarden.

Twelve new members were elected, and Rye was selected as the place of the next meeting, on Saturday, September 17th.

Mr. Younes, in humorous style, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Mayor for his kindness in providing the tea, and for presiding, and to Canon Collins for granting permission to hold the meeting and for the use of the bells.

MIDDLESEX AND HERTFORD ASSOCIATIONS. JOINT MEETING AT NORTHAW.

The first joint meeting of the Middlesex and Hertford County Associations was held at Northaw, a border village, on Saturday week, when members of the North and East District of the former, and of the St. Albans District of the latter association, fraternised and rang together. Even in these days of petrol traction, Northaw is still difficult of access, unless one can sport a car of one's own, and it was therefore not surprising that the members who braved the elements on one of the worst days of this dreary August were somewhat few in number. However, thanks to a motor-cycle which brought two from St. Albans, and Mr. Bob Pye's serviceable steed with five Middlesex members, the pretty peal of six were set going about 3.30, between which time and five o'clock touches of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Oxford and Kent Treble Bob, Plain Bob, and a course of London Surprise Minor were rung.

Divine service was then held, and the Vicar (the Rev. E. S. Allen) gave an exceedingly interesting address. Some 21 ringers afterwards sat down to tea, the chair being taken by Mr. W. Pickworth (vice-president, Middlesex Association), who was supported by Mr. B. Jarman (ex-president, Herts Association), Mr. W. Nash (district secretary, Herts Association), Messrs. C. T. Coles, N. A. Tomlinson and W. Pye (Middlesex Association officers), Mr. B. McKie (Northaw), Mr. G. R. Pye, Mr. A. W. Coles, etc. The meeting being a joint affair, no business was transacted, but Mr. C. T. Coles made a brief reference to the idea underlying the holding of joint meetings, which, he said, signified that associations were not formed in rivalry to one another, but that all existed for the same object, i.e., the furthering of change ringing. He was glad to welcome both Herts and Middlesex ringers to Northaw, and added that it was hoped that this meeting would be the first of many, and that next year's joint meeting would be held at North Mimms.

Mr. W. Nash endorsed all that Mr. Coles had said, and stated that he would be glad to do all he possibly could to make a joint meeting at North Mimms as pleasant as that at Northaw. He agreed entirely that these meetings were all for the good of ringing.

Mr. McKie welcomed the ringers to Northaw, and said how glad he was that the first joint meeting held by the two associations should be held at that tower.

Mr. B. Jarman proposed that a hearty vote of thanks be accorded the Vicar for the use of the bells, and for his interesting address, which he was sure all enjoyed. This was carried with acclamation.

After a little more ringing had been done at Northaw, a move was made to Hatfield. By the kindness of Mr. Nash, a motor was provided, which took several to that tower, whilst Mr. Bob Pye also took a party. The latter, however, got to Hatfield House instead of Hatfield Church, and were rewarded with a view of the interior of that famous mansion before they joined the others of the party in the belfry. Here came to an end a very pleasant meeting, which, although poor in numbers, was rich in enthusiasm, and left happy recollections in the minds of those who attended it.

MARKET BOSWORTH'S ANCIENT BELLS.

Although 'warned off' this place by the voices of both sexes, if any had ambitions for a peal on the ancient and jiffy-going peal of five bells at Market Bosworth, a band met there on Saturday last and scored the 'first ever' on them. It was the hearty invitation of the Rector, the Rev. Law Harkness, R.D., and his double notes of welcome when he knew a band might try, that tempted the writer to make the venture. In asking for volunteers, it was mentioned they must be a band of 'heroes,' who would not mind some pain. This they manfully did, and although some were ambitious for 'umpteenth' methods, a preliminary half-six-score as a 'feeler' decided the conductor not to be venturesome, and stick to Grandsire. In spite of the weight and slow turning of the bells, a good peal was accomplished, as was testified by the locals afterwards. A nice lot of medals were on view at the conclusion, in the shape of blisters, and the conductor had one—not on view—about six inches long, near the place medals are usually worn.

In connection with this peal, the following extract, kindly supplied by Mr. J. R. Jerram, of Salisbury clerical library, will be read with interest: 'Richard Dawes, a change ringer in the early part of the 18th century, was born at Market Bosworth in 1708. Being the son of poor parents and having great abilities, he was admitted as a sizar to Emmanuel College, Cambridge, in 1725. He took his B.A. degree in 1729, and his M.A. in 1733. In Brand's "History of Newcastle-on-Tyne" we find the following concerning him: "Having indulged himself too much at college in an indolent, sedentary way of life, he at length found it absolutely necessary to have recourse to some kind of exercise. In this case, being of a strong athletic frame of body, and not over-delicate in the choice of his company, he took to the practice of ringing; and as such a genius could not stop at mediocrity, he quickly became the leader of the band, and carried the art to the highest perfection." In October, 1738, he was appointed headmaster of Newcastle Grammar School, and also master of St. Mary's Hospital, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Unfortunately, he gave way to intemperate habits, and the number of scholars at the school dwindled down so much that in 1749 the Corporation prevailed upon him to resign on promising him a pension of £80 per annum. He died at Heworth on March 25th, 1766, at the age of fifty-seven.'

THE SURFLEET 'ANNUAL'

HANDBELL PEALS AND HIGH JINKS.

The first day of the Surfleet 'annual' is usually of a very peaceful character, the visitors devoting their time to unpacking and settling down generally, but this year proved the exception to the rule, 'Old Bill' causing much amusement with his collection of pieces of wood, old 'Wellingtons', and bones, which he had made good use of to give his trunk that businesslike appearance (which has been lacking of former years), and to prevent his toothbrush and collar from moving about too much. Everyone settled, rooms allotted and unpacking finished, move was made to the supper table, but the unexpected (and unfortunate) arrival of Old Bill's 'missus' during supper was not at all welcome, but after the promise of a good supper and bed for the night, 'she' was eventually prevailed upon to 'dry up.'

On Sunday morning a visit was paid to the village church, Grandsire Caters and Cambridge being rung for morning service. The rest of the day was spent by all on the river.

Peal ringing should have commenced on Monday morning, but a burst of sunshine decided otherwise, and all had to turn to aid help with the 'cutting.' Everyone retired quite satisfied with their day's work and looking forward to a well-earned rest. But it was not to be, the bachelors giving a very good imitation of a cats' concert.

Tuesday was another field day for the party, Sutterton being the scene of operations. Later, the ladies followed, and an enjoyable tea in the harvest field was brought to an abrupt end by a rather sharp storm. Upon arriving home again, it was found to be too late to attempt a peal, so energies were given to making the 'cats' a very comfy bed, suitable food (fish and milk) being laid in a very appetising manner. Later, they were well rewarded by gentle showers from the garden syringe.

Wednesday's weather being anything but 'dry,' a peal of Bob Royal was attempted in the morning and brought round just in time to hear the dinner gong. Treble Bob was attempted after dinner, but, unfortunately, came to grief too late to start again before tea. Things were perfectly quiet and normal on retiring to bed, and a very peaceful night was hoped for by all, but again this was denied to everyone. A bad 'storm,' which broke forth from the direction of the loft, soon awoke the occupants from their slumbers, and one began to wonder if Glyn Garth would stand the shock. One of the party (no, we will not say who) was so nervous that he crept downstairs in his pyjamas and locked all the doors, hoping that that might have some good effect, but matters were getting from bad to worse. Eventually, to everyone's relief, the noise abated. The house still stood, and, we believe, had there been eye-witnesses outside they would have seen two rather suspicious persons hovering round trying to find some means of gaining access to the house. Doubtless the originators were under the impression that they were giving a lifelike reproduction of a jazz-band, but a collection of old tins require a lot of beating to obtain anything approaching a musical note out of them. Taking into consideration the amount of energy expended in their efforts, they deserved to get better results.

On Thursday, mine host deciding that he could manage better without help, left the remainder to do peal ringing. After several attempts during the day, the party decided to await Rupert's return and hear his opinion of them. We will not say what that was, so enough said. The majority of the party departed in small numbers to drown their sorrows fishing. The non-ringer of the party was not slow in pointing out that his oft-repeated remark was true: 'Some ringers can talk Cambridge Maximus but cannot ring Plain Bob!'

Our luck was certainly in on Friday, for two peals of Bob Major were scored in fine style, much to the satisfaction of one of the band, who invariably has a certain number of peals (anything from 5 to 20) he wants to score. One of the party was a little ahead of the calendar, for he had spent some time in procuring fireworks. These were 'let off' to fine advantage after dark (?), but were much more appreciated next morning at breakfast than during the actual display.

Saturday morning was spent chiefly in amusing the younger members of the party, and here and there one could see whispering going on, as though plotting was ahead. Directly after dinner a peal of Bob Royal was rung. Fishing was the pastime for the evening, but either the river was devoid of fish or the 'bait' was no good (the latter being a regular 'grumble' of one of the so-called fishermen). Supper was hardly over when the tolling of a very doubtful bell (described as B flat, and it certainly was) summoned all to the upper regions for what proved to be the unveiling of a bell to the 'heavy-bell man' (no names, please, but it is interesting to note that the said gentleman tried his strength on the 11th at Exeter). The bell was cast by 'Richardson, Surfleet,' and was beautifully inscribed, but of the tone—well, there are not many harmonics to be got out of an 18-gallon copper. The ceremony over, all retired to rest, but two beds were found to be missing, and this was the signal for a general 'rag,' the net result of which was a broken chair, one mantlepiece cleared of all its ornaments and two of the party uncomfortably wet.

Sunday morning found the house decorated with highly-coloured posters wishing Rupert 'many happy returns,' to which he replied by writing 'Thanks' on each. Ringing for morning service and a quiet stroll brought 12 noon, and a hasty move was made after dinner to ring the all-important birthday peal. This came round in fine style, and an adjournment was then made to Bryn Gwyn for tea, at the kind invitation of Rupert's much-respected mother and sisters. Music followed, and then an order for home, as everyone had to be early astir next morn.

Tea was held at the Magnet, Upper Deal, immediately after which, there being no business, the ringers returned to the tower for some enjoyable ringing.

On account of the small number of ringers present at four o'clock, it was decided to omit the service from the afternoon's arrangements.

Once again the party have to thank Rupert and his good wife for their unstinted kindness. The 'bag' was smaller than usual, but the harvest was to blame, so it was no good wishing when work had to be done. The party also wish 'Jack' (Mr. J. Goldsmith, jun.), who is staying at Glyn Garth for the benefit of his health, a speedy return to his usual self. He certainly seems to be well on the road, if the doings of the previous week count for anything.

INSTRUCTING THE BEGINNER

The series of articles which is being published in our columns for the benefit of beginners in the art will, we hope, prove of benefit to those for whom they are specially intended. They have been prepared with a great deal of care by our correspondent, and we feel sure that his work will be appreciated. It is not easy to write upon a subject like the theory of change ringing in such a manner that the veriest tyro can understand, but we believe that any young ringer who will take the pains to study 'Minormania's' articles will find his knowledge of the science considerably advanced. These papers are not things merely to be scanned, if their contents are to be understood and put to profit. They require serious attention and steady application, and as they develop the beginner will, we hope, find a new appreciation of the theory opening before him.

We are pleased to print this week a letter from another correspondent, advising ringers to preserve these articles for the use of future recruits to the Exercise. We would like to emphasise his point that it is impossible to reproduce, in a journal which has to cater for the news of the day, elementary instructional matter. We have often been blamed for not catering sufficiently for the interests of learners in the art. In a way, we are all learners, the only difference between us being the degree of knowledge which we have already acquired, and it could be argued with justice that we might as well be perpetually trying to teach ringers how to ring Surprise methods or call Stedman Triples, as continually endeavouring to explain to beginners how to ring Grandsire Doubles or call a touch of Plain Bob. For this kind of thing ringers must, perforce, put their main dependence upon the text books of the day. Actually our task in this matter is to acquaint the Exercise with the various advances made and the new developments which arise. The difficulty of providing instruction for learners in a paper such as 'The Ringing World' is that, to carry it out effectively, we should have to begin a fresh series in every issue, for the reason that somewhere or other new recruits are entering the Exercise every week.

There would be, we feel, more justification for attempting to instruct Grandsire ringers how to ring Stedman, or in endeavouring to carry Bob Major ringers up to the Surprise standard, because there is a large group already in existence in both these categories to whom this might be of advantage, and we hope, perhaps, when 'Minormania' has finished his talks, that we may be able to do something in this direction, if there is any desire for it. In the meantime, the 'Theory for Beginner's' is a valuable contribution to the educational side of ringing, and we hope that 'old hands' everywhere will encourage their beginners to study the papers. It is not to be supposed that every youngster will be able to assimilate entirely each succeeding article as it appears, but by preserving them, and pursuing their study in the forthcoming winter, the beginner will not only have a valuable collection of material at his hand, but will have acquired at any rate a useful knowledge of some of the 'mysteries' upon which change ringing is founded.

WEDDING BELLS.

In a picturesque setting the marriage took place on Saturday, at Horton Parish Church, of Flight Lieut. Wallis Halford and Miss Mary Edith Wynne-Davies, only child of the Rector, and niece of the late lamented Rector, the Rev. T. Read-Davies, who was connected with church work at Farnham Royal for many years previously. The service was fully choral, and the church, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion, was crowded to overflowing. At the conclusion of the ceremony, after the Wedding March, several six-scores of Grandsire Doubles were rung on the bells by: F. E. Law 1, H. Huit 2, F. Collins 3, E. R. Pope 4, G. H. Gutteridge 5, S. Briant 6.

REOPENING OF BRAINTREE BELLS.

REHANGING EFFECTS GREAT IMPROVEMENT.

After a silence of eight months, the bells of Braintree Parish Church were reopened on Saturday last. A service was held at 3 p.m., at which the Rev. G. P. Bassett-Kerr, M.A., Vicar and Rural Dean, officiated, assisted by Rev. F. Peel-Yates, M.A., Vicar of St. Peter's, Becking, and Rev. R. Williams, assistant curate of Braintree. An inspiring sermon on 'Dignity of Service' was preached by Rev. Canon H. A. Lake, M.A., Rector and Sub-Dean of Chelmsford Cathedral. Mr. C. H. Howard read the lesson.

Tea was served in the Masonic Hall, about 120 ringers being present from forty parishes. The Vicar presided, supported by his wardens, the secretary of the Parochial Church Council, Mr. G. T. Bartram, J.P., C.A., chairman of the Braintree Urban District Council, and Mr. Frye, organist of Chelmsford Cathedral. The Vicar gave a hearty welcome to the large company of visiting ringers, many of whom had come from a great distance, on such an auspicious occasion. He expressed the appreciation of the parishioners and himself of the restoration of their bells and again hearing their message floating from the ancient tower (which dates from 1199). He heartily thanked the trustees of the Barron Bell Trust for their generosity in providing the money to defray the whole cost of the undertaking.

A vote of thanks to the ladies and others who had provided the tea was proposed by Dr. Spencer-Phillips.

The Master of the Essex Association (Mr. C. H. Howard) gave a brief account of the history of the bells, mentioning that originally they were a ring of five (tenor 20 cwt. 2 qr. 4 lb.). In 1858 they were recast into a ring of six (tenor 12 cwt. 1 qr. 2 lb.). In 1899 two trebles were added to complete the octave. For some few years the 'go' had been very indifferent, and on New Year's Eve of last year the gudgeon of the 7th broke, and ringing had to be suspended. Early in the present year he approached the trustees of the Barron Trust for assistance to rehang the whole peal, and they very generously offered to provide the whole of the money. Hitherto the treble and 3rd had hung in a frame above the others, and the ropes fell in very irregular order, while the trebles were inaudible in the tower and all the bells struck false. The bells now hang on one level in an iron frame, with self-aligning ball bearings, and steel headstocks. The ropes fall in an excellent circle, although the bells hang only 12ft. above the ringing chamber. Every bell strikes true at hand and back stroke, and all can be very distinctly heard in the tower. The tone is much improved by the tuning, and the 'go' is absolutely perfect. The work reflects great credit on Mr. A. Bowell, of Ipswich, who has carried out the contract under his personal supervision, with great success. Hitherto it was recognised that, with the bad circle and odd striking, ringing in Braintree tower was not so pleasurable as it might have been. This stigma is now completely removed, and Braintree bells may be classed among the best going in the county.

During the afternoon and evening short touches were rung in all the standard methods from Bob Major to London Surprise, and every visiting ringer had an opportunity of trying the bells.

On Sunday, for matins, 1,024 Kent Treble Bob was rung by: A. Wiffen 1, H. E. Hammond 2, A. Outmore 3, W. G. Melbourne 4, C. H. Howard (cond.) 5, H. C. Reason 6, G. Wiffen 7, L. W. Wiffen 8.—For evensong, 1,280 in the same method: A. Wiffen 1, A. Outmore 2, H. E. Hammond 3, W. G. Melbourne 4, C. H. Howard 5, H. C. Reason 6, F. Ely 7, L. W. Wiffen (conductor) 8.

THE RECORD PEAL OF TREBLE BOB.

COMMEMORATIVE TABLET UNVEILED AT HEPTONSTALL.

A meeting was held on Saturday, August 27th, at Heptonstall, when a peal tablet recording the 17,324 of Oxford Treble Bob Major was dedicated by the Right Rev. Bishop Frodsham, Vicar of Halifax and Rural Dean. A service was held in the church, and the Bishop delivered a very appropriate address. They had come, he said, to dedicate a tablet in memory of a noble achievement made by ringers on Easter Monday last, when they locked themselves in the tower and did not leave it again until they had rung 17,324 changes, known technically as Treble Bob. All the changes were carefully worked out, and one mistake would have ruined the whole peal. The Lancashire ringers commenced to ring about eight o'clock in the morning, and did not leave until after seven at night. All that time they were swinging masses of metal, weighing from 7 cwt. to over 18 cwt., at the rate of over 27 changes per minute. It was a very remarkable example of bodily strength and mental concentration on the part of all the men, who had to be alert, prompt, and exact. No team of footballers or cricketers had to be so upit in their efforts as a team of bellringers. There was no room for a selfish man in a band. Someone in Halifax, said the Bishop, had asked him, 'What good does the ringing of bells do?' What good does any sport do that demands strength and skill, such, for instance, as boxing, which he had supported all his life? This had to be trained for, the same as bellringing. Concentration was also a training for life. The Bishop went on to refer to some of the different uses of bells, remarking that almost every interest in daily life was associated with their use.

After the service, the ringers assembled in the school, where about 84 sat down to tea. Seven of the record band were introduced to the Bishop, who congratulated them on their ringing.

DEATH OF MR. WILLIAM H. GODDEN.

FORMER SECRETARY OF ST. MARTIN'S GUILD.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. W. H. Godden, which took place on Sunday, August 28th. For many years he was a leading figure in Birmingham and Midland ringing circles, having been hon. secretary of St. Martin's Guild for twenty years, retiring from that office in 1909. He also represented the Guild at one time on the Central Council.

Born in Southampton in 1849, he came to Birmingham as a boy in his 'teens, determined to seek his fortune in a distant place, owing to differences with his stepmother. He soon found employment in a merchant's office, and after one or two changes he obtained a situation with James Barwell, Ltd., with which firm he remained to the end—the long period of fifty-four years. Such lengthy service speaks for itself, and it is almost unnecessary to add that his employers placed implicit confidence in him. His judgment in business matters was invariably sound, and he was eventually appointed to the responsible position of secretary to the company.

It was Mr. Godden's connection with Barwells, who ran a church-bell foundry as part of their business in those days, that brought him into touch with bellringing, and he soon realised that a practical knowledge of the art would be of immense value to him in the business. At the age of twenty-six, or thereabouts, he learnt to handle a bell, but did not ring his first peal until he was thirty.

He became a good, steady ringer on eight bells, fairly safe on ten, but was never really happy on twelve. Although he joined the St. Martin's Sunday band, he never lost his nervousness in this direction, and was always glad when a spare man turned up, which enabled him to stand out. Mr. Godden rang a large number of eight-bell peals, mostly Stedman, about twenty peals on ten bells, and two peals of Stedman Cinques.

He was a jovial soul, and the social side of the Exercise always appealed to him more than the actual ringing itself. In this connection it may be recorded that his death removes the last of a little coterie of men who, for many years, were to be found on Tuesday evenings occupying a certain corner of the smoking room at the Tamworth Arms Hotel, then the meeting house of the Guild. These men, whose names were household words among ringers, came to the Bull Ring on practice nights, but instead of going up the tower went into 'the annexe.' The party comprised Samuel Reeves, William Rock Small, John Carter, William Painter and W. H. Godden. By the younger men who rang first and adjourned later they were known as the 'Ministerialists,' or, alternatively, as the 'the whisky corner.' Often they were joined by that frequent visitor to Birmingham, Charles Henry Hattersley, and on those occasions the waiter would be busier than usual, and the laughter more boisterous.

Happy days! Alas, all the 'old boys' have now gone to their long rest, and the youngsters of that day, who used to refer, perhaps, somewhat irreverently to the 'old 'uns,' and beseech them to keep quiet while they rang Stedman Cinques double-handed, are fast becoming the 'old 'uns' to the next generation.

Apart from a little bronchial trouble in his latter years, Mr. Godden enjoyed good health, and the end came quite suddenly. He had arranged to take his usual summer holiday, and had cleared up at the works to get away when he was taken ill. He was removed to hospital, but nothing could be done to prolong life. He was conscious up to the last, and was visited, among others, by Mr. James E. Groves and Mr. James George, the latter seeing him only twenty-four hours before the end.

The funeral took place at Handsworth Cemetery on Wednesday, August 31st, and was attended by Mr. Arthur Barwell and Mr. Cecil Barwell (employers), and a large number of employees of James Barwell, Ltd. The Guild was represented by Messrs. J. E. Groves, G. F. Swann, A. Walker and A. Paddon Smith, who also rang a course of Grandshire Triples round the grave at the conclusion of the ceremony. The bells of St. Martin's were rung muffled on Tuesday evening, and a peal of Stedman Triples was rung at Handsworth Parish Church on Saturday, as a last mark of respect to the memory of a man who, by his urbanity, never-failing good humour, and uprightness of character had endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact.

'Though I be all-forgetting, yet shall I not be forgotten, but continue life in the thoughts and deeds of those I loved.'—Samuel Butler.

Mr. Cutsforth, in proposing a vote of thanks to all who had assisted the band to success, and also to the Bishop for his services that afternoon, said although this record peal was credited to the Lancashire Association, they borrowed the bells of a Yorkshire church, the ropes were borrowed from the Ashton Church, and now they had borrowed a Yorkshire Bishop to dedicate the tablet. Surely a victory with borrowed plumes?

Mr. Gabriel Lindoff (Dublin) seconded the vote of thanks, and endorsed all the proposer had said.

The Bishop, replying, said how pleased he was to be associated with the Lancashire ringers in their grand performance. It should, he said, create a great revival amongst the ringers of these two counties, especially with the younger section.

The tower bells were open for ringing during the day, and were fully utilised. The gathering was a most successful and pleasant one.

LONDONDERRY SURPRISE MAJOR.

BY GEORGE BAKER.

The first peal in this method was rung by members of the Middlesex County Association at St. Giles-in-the-Fields, on Friday, September 2nd, conducted by Mr. William Pye. The composition was Middleton's peal of Cambridge, which appears to be the only peal which will run true to the method.

A GIGANTIC CLOCK.WHITCHURCH MECHANISM AND LOUGHBOROUGH BELLS FOR SHANGHAI.

The enormous clock which Messrs. J. B. Joyce and Co., of Whitchurch, have made for the new Customs House at Shanghai is now on its way to the Far East, where it will be erected under the personal supervision of Mr. Norman Joyce, one of the directors, who sails next week, and expects to be away from this country for six months.

The clock is a magnificent piece of work, and does great credit to the firm. It has four faces, each of which is 18 feet in diameter, and it will strike the hours and Westminster chimes on five bells, whose total weight is ten tons, the largest, or hour bell, weighing 6½ tons. Each of the faces weighs 1½ tons, and the huge hands, made of gun metal and copper, weigh about two cwt. per pair.

The dials are beautifully designed. The spaces between the hour figures are glazed in flashed white glass, and the centres in flashed amber glass. The dials and most of the iron castings have been made by Messrs. W. H. Smith and Co. at their Whitchurch foundry. The frame is divided into three parts, in each of which have been set the three separate 'trains'—the hour train, the train operating the quarter-hour Westminster chimes, and the general driving train. The escapement is after the Lord Grimthorpe pattern; the double three-legged gravity, and the wearing parts are jewelled as in a watch. The pendulum is fifteen feet long, weighs four cwt., and beats with a swing of two seconds' duration each way. The hour bell weighs six and a quarter tons, and the four quarter-hour chimes weigh four tons. The striking hammer for the hour bell weighs two and a quarter cwt. The bells have been cast by Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough.

Some idea of the fine craftsmanship that has been put into the construction of this great timepiece can be gathered from the fact that it is guaranteed not to lose more than 15 seconds per month. It is the largest clock that has been turned out of the famous works of Messrs. J. B. Joyce and Co., and it is for the new building erected by the Chinese Maritime Customs, at Shanghai, at a cost of about a million and a quarter sterling. This building is of sky-scraper design, consisting of twenty or thirty stories, and the clock will stand in a tower several hundred feet from the ground.

Packing the clock for shipment presented no light task. The glass for the dials alone is in some 2,000 pieces—to replace breakages in transit five complete dials have been despatched—and, together with crates, etc., something like 14 tons were sent from Whitchurch. The bells were despatched direct from foundry to ship, and weigh another 16 tons when packed, so that altogether, clock, bells and packing weigh somewhere in the neighbourhood of 30 tons.

BELL ROPES. MUFFLES. &c

BELFERY GOSSIP.

The autumn ringing holiday with Mr. G. Williams' party starts at St. Woolos' pro-Cathedral, Newport, on Saturday, September 17th. Eight days will be spent covering four counties, viz., Monmouth, Glamorgan, Carmarthen and Pembrokeshire.

The youngest member of the ringing family of Bibby, at Frodsham, has now passed the 'teething' stage. Last week he won £500, first prize, in a 'cross-word' puzzle competition.

We wonder what the result would be if a similar prize was offered for the best 'diagram' for extending Surprise Major to the higher number of bells, the decision to be made by a committee of peal ringers?

The Lord Mayor of London does not believe in the 'Dick Whittington' legend, and suggests that there were no cats in England at that period. There has now been discovered in Sussex, near his lordship's home, an ancient paving tile with an impression of a cat's feet.

The owner of the scooter, mentioned last week, writes to say that he was not the cause of the collapse in Cornhill. This catastrophe was undoubtedly caused by the 'langwidge' of the 'langwyns,' excluding, of course, the immaculate 'erb. The same writer recommends for Uncle Joe's aukle the 'lie' purveyed by all good honest lawyers. If outward application fails, try drinking it.

'Uncle Joe' writes, in reply to last week's inquiry: 'Yes, my 42563 course-end has come up, and I shall this week call "the 9th in and out at 2," and rounds will come up at Valby Gasworks, Copenhagen, Denmark, where I expect to receive my "Ringing World" dated September 9th, 1927.'

The meeting which was arranged for ringers to hear and try Ickleton's new peal of eight has been postponed to September 24th.

The Bishop of Whitby will preside at the Snowdon Commemoration Dinner at York on Saturday week.

That active Birmingham youth, Mr. James George, is on the last lap for his thousand peals. He started on Saturday to polish off the last 50. On the previous Wednesday he rang his 200th peal of Stedman Triples. This is pretty good going for a lad of nearly 74.

Charles Middleton little knew, when he produced his famous composition, how really wonderful its structure was. He put together not only the maximum length, but the only possible peal of Cambridge Surprise Major with the tenors together. Now, it appears that it is the only composition that will go to Londonderry Surprise. We believe the composition was actually got out by Middleton for London Surprise, and it was not until later that its unique application to Cambridge was discovered. Middleton died on September 14th, 1886.

Twenty years ago next Thursday, at Llangollen, Bertram Prewett called the first peal of Superlative in Wales.

William Shipway composed and conducted the first (and, for all we know, the last) peal of Imperial Place Major. This was rung at St. Mary's, Islington, on September 13th, 1802.

The Crowfield Society rang a peal of 'Gathrine' Triples at Coddham, Suffolk, on September 10th, 1741. This is now supposed to have been Garthorn's peal of Grandsire Triples, which was first rung at St. Peter Mancroft, Norwich, in 1715.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO MR. A. H. PULLING. MOTOR SPILL NEAR HATFIELD.

On Friday last Mr. Alfred H. Pulling, of Guildford, met with a serious accident while motoring on the Great North Road, and is now lying in the County Hospital at Hertford in a critical condition, suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull.

Mr. Pulling was on his way from Guildford to Peterborough to fetch his wife, who had been staying there on a holiday. He was driving his 'trusty Triumph' with a sidecar attached, and the spill occurred between Potter's Bar and Hatfield. At the moment it is not known exactly what happened, but after the accident it was seen that he was badly hurt, and he was hurried off the hospital, and his wife hastily summoned.

Examination showed that his most serious injury was a fracture at the base of the skull, and his condition still gives rise to the deepest concern.

The news of this misfortune will be received with the greatest regret by his numerous ringing friends in many parts of the country, who will also deeply sympathise with Mrs. Pulling in her great anxiety.

Only last year, Mrs. Pulling herself spent some weeks in Sherborne Hospital as the result of a spill, on the opening day of the Somerset tour, and now Mr. Pulling is the victim of a serious accident. The motor-cycle and sidecar had done many hundred miles during this summer vacation, and, after the tour in the West, Mr. Pulling took his wife to Peterborough, while he returned to the Royal Grammar School at Guildford, where he is caretaker. On Wednesday of last week he visited Southampton, where he conducted his fiftieth peal of London Surprise Major.

On inquiry at the Hertford County Hospital on Wednesday morning we were informed that Mr. Pulling's condition was unchanged, and that he was still in a critical state.

KIDDERMINSTER.—On Wednesday, August 24th, at the Parish Church, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes): G. Bennett 1, G. Davies 2, K. Salter 3, C. H. Woodberry (conductor) 4, A. Wright (first quarter-peal inside) 5, T. J. Salter 6, J. Smith 7, J. Woodberry 8.

BY 'MINORMANIA.'

This is the sixth of the series of articles which have been specially written for beginners by 'Minormania,' to explain to them the theory of change ringing. These articles are not merely for perusal. If they are to serve the purpose for which they are intended they must be studied.

INTERNAL TRANSPOSITION.

By the same form of transposition that we use to determine the lead-ends (from the first lead-head and lead-end), we are able to discover what any internal row will be. By 'internal row' is meant any row between the lead-head and the lead-end rows.

We have found that the paths through each and every lead, from head to end, are moulded upon the paths through the first lead. All leads being the same, it follows that any corresponding distance travelled in two given leads will likewise be symmetrical.

In another way, call the lead-head 'Station A' and the lead-end 'Station B,' as we have done before. Any row in between these two call 'Station C.'

The trains travel by set rails from A to B in every lead, and whatever the number of the train may be the route from the platform at A to the one at B remains unaltered, as we have discovered. Then, if our trains pass through a station in between A and B, which we have called 'Station C,' it follows that the platforms at C (through which they pass in the first lead) will be the same platforms as those at Station C in any lead, because the rails (or paths) are identical in every lead.

Therefore, by transposition from the first lead-head to any row within the first lead we can find a corresponding row from any other lead-head. It is merely the black and red cards transposition; there we have called the black row (underneath) the 'lead-end,' instead of row No. 9 (or whatever it may be) that we require here.

For example, we have a lead-head in the first part of our 720 of Bob Minor, 145362. We have got to find out exactly what the row will be in that lead when the treble bell makes her first blow behind (that is, in sixth's place in the row). The corresponding row to this, in the first lead, is row No. 6 (counting rounds as the first row), that is, 645231. Our example for transposition, then, is thus: We place in black cards, 123456, with 645231 under, in the usual way. We then cover 123456 with a red row of the lead-head under consideration (145362), and proceed to transfer exactly as before, but in the order of 6-4-5-2-3-1. The only difference is that 645231 has taken the place of our usual lead-end. The result will be 236451 in red underneath, which is the row we are looking for.

This transposition is exactly similar to that of the lead-ends. It may not appear to be so, but, nevertheless, it is so. The lead-ends are just as much one of the rows in the lead, as is 645231, but they have to be transferred bodily to the row above, because they are ALSO the lead-heads (like 145362 above).

BACKWARD TRANSPOSITION.

We have been studying the forward transposition, from lead-heads to the rows following, and before we leave the subject we must touch upon the transposition from rows BACK TO lead-heads. It is necessary, upon occasion, to determine the lead-head of a particular lead in which a certain row will appear.

We wish to find the lead-head of the lead in which 236451 will appear as the sixth row. The corresponding row in the first lead (row No. 6) we find to be 645231. For example, we are just reversing what has gone before.

Place the known row and head side by side, the figures spaced fairly apart, 6-4-5-2-3-1; 1-2-3-4-5-6. Under the known row place the unknown row 2-3-6-4-5-1, and draw vertical lines between all of the figures. You will now have:—

Rows.	Heads.
2 3 6 4 5 1

Now fill in the spaces under 123456 with figures which will make the SAME PAIRS READ DOWNWARDS, as those pairs read downwards in the two rows, and your finished result will be:—

Rows (Station B).	Heads (Station A).
6 4 5 2 3 1	1 2 3 4 5 6

and we may know that, because 645231 is the sixth row from 123456, then 236451 is the corresponding row from 145362.

The reason for this is fairly simple, in view of what has been said of stations and platforms. The row 645231 is Station B, platform 1 being occupied by No. 6 train; opposite is Station A (123456), where No. 6 train occupies platform 6, its proper place in the row. In Station B underneath (236451), platform 1 is occupied by No. 2 train; therefore, at Station A the No. 2 train goes back to the same platform as did the No. 6 above it. That is to say, No. 6 and No. 2, occupying B1 (the 6 above and the 2 below), they both go back to where the 6 above goes—to A6.

In effect, we pick up the downward columns bodily (one column at a time), and put them down again in 'rounds order': first the column headed by '1,' then that which has '2' at the top, followed by '3,' then '4,' etc., etc.

We can see the 'column effect,' if we take the sixth row in the three first leads of the method:—

Sixth Row:—

2 3 4 5 6 1

Comes from lead-head:—

1 2 3 4 5 6
1 5 6 3 4 2

We should notice that the treble must be in the same place, in the two rows under consideration. If she is not in the same place in both of the rows, then the result will not be a lead-head. Suppose we tried to find the lead-heads, taking rows 645231 and 234156, the result would be:—

Rows.	Heads.
2 3 4 1 5 6	6 1 5 3 4 2

and, of course, 615342 is not a lead-head at all.

We now have the groundwork for applying transposition to any method, upon any number of bells, as the foregoing general principles may be used in most cases. Any exceptions there may be will appear as we progress.

AN APPRECIATION.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I trust sincerely that the recruits, or better still, those who are beginning to take an intelligent interest in change ringing and its groundwork, are reading with attention 'Minormania's' excellent lectures.

These articles are the chance of a lifetime, because they are not likely to appear again. I stress this point for the reason that a technical journal cannot afford the time or space for elementary text-book work. Thus we owe a debt of gratitude to the Editor, and heartfelt thanks to the author, in placing before us in simple language the theory of our art. By close attention to his explanations we can now discard the laborious thumbing of our 'glossaries,' though it will be by no means a bad plan to study this volume in conjunction with these articles; much will be made plain in the former if we do.

I do most sincerely trust that these articles will be preserved by readers, and that they may appear finally in pamphlet form. However, the practical thing now is to cut them out as they appear, varnish and mount them on cardboard, and hang them in the ringing chamber—they may not appear again.—Yours faithfully,

'CASCABLE.'

SWANSEA AND BRECON DIOCESAN GUILD.

A quarterly meeting of the Southern District was held at Cadoxton on Saturday last, when about 20 members attended from Gorseinon, Morriston, Neath, Baglan, Aberavon, and the local band. A service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. Chancellor J. D. James), and Mrs. James presided at the organ. The members then adjourned to the Church Hall, where a splendid tea was provided by the Vicar and Mrs. James, and full justice was done to all the nice things.

The business meeting followed, at which the Vicar presided. Gorseinon was chosen for the next quarterly meeting, to be held the first Saturday in December.

One hon. member was elected, and a discussion took place over the price of the Guild's certificate. It was agreed that a charge of 9d. should be made.

Votes of thanks were accorded to the Vicar and Mrs. James for providing such a bountiful tea, to the ladies for looking after the visitors, and to the Vicar for his address and welcome and for use of the bells, which were made good use of during the afternoon and evening.

The Vicar, in responding, said how pleased he was to welcome the Guild, and hoped it would not be long before they came again.

Mr. J. P. Fidler, from Loughborough, was present, and later in the evening he was able to have a pull at Baglan.

PRESENTATION TO MR. G. H. CROSS.

RECOGNITION OF HIS WORK IN NORFOLK.

A pleasing function took place in the belfry of St. Peter's Mancroft at Norwich on August 30th, when Mr. G. H. Cross, who is now resident in London, was presented with a gold albert and medallion suitably inscribed.

Mr. A. L. Coleman, general secretary of the Norfolk Guild, who made the presentation, said the gift was a spontaneous one from some 60 subscribers in grateful appreciation of Mr. Cross' work for ringing in the Guild's area. He also voiced the hearty congratulations of Mr. Cross' many friends on his having obtained a permanent position in the Civil Service, and wished him every success in his new sphere of work.

Mr. Coleman also gave particulars of Mr. Cross' ringing career from the time he was elected a member of the Norfolk Guild, April 12th, 1909, up to leaving Norwich in March last, bringing out the fact that he had been instrumental in helping many young ringers through their first touches and peals. He had, he said, done great service for young ringers in Norfolk.

The meeting heartily endorsed all that Mr. Coleman had said, and Mr. Cross made a brief reply, saying that he deeply appreciated the gift, and thought too much had been made of what he had done, which was entirely a labour of love.

After a vote of thanks had been passed to Mr. Coleman, the proceedings closed.

SUPERLATIVE SURPRISE MAXIMUS.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—On August 12th you were good enough to publish a letter from me on the subject of Superlative Surprise Maximus, in which I asked the Rev. H. Law James to give the Exercise an explanation as to why, in his opinion, the method rung at Ipswich is not as good an extension of the Major as Mr. James' extension to Maximus of Shipway's Royal, and also why in his variation he makes 4th's place at the first cross-section in the Maximus (as in the Major), when he has been compelled to make 6th's in the Royal.

Up to the present Mr. James has not replied. It may be he is taking a well-earned holiday; it cannot be that he has no answer to the questions. Perhaps he will be able to reply in an early issue of 'The Ringing World,' for I know of many others beside myself who are interested in this subject.

What I really want to learn is why the Ipswich method is not Superlative, when, as far as my limited knowledge goes, it is (judged by Mr. James' own standard of place making, i.e., calculating the places from the front or back), exactly the same in its place making as Superlative Major, exactly the same in the order of its work, and exactly the same in its diagram, allowing, of course, for the fact that there are twelve bells instead of eight?

Mr. James, in his article in your issue of December 24th, stressed the point that a method which is an extension should have the same coursing order as the original, and, according to his working, the 2685 coursing order of the Major should become 26801e95 in the Maximus. But why need it do so? The coursing order of the Ipswich method, surely, is at least equally correct. It is 260195, and, examined with the Major, it follows the same sequence.

In the Major, the only place where course bells come together is at the long dodge. The other bells, instead of being in Bob Major order, are in alternate order, as, for instance, after the first long dodge in front, in which 6-8 are together, the order is 8 (miss 7) 5 (miss 3) 2, 4 (for the long dodge) (miss 6) 8 (miss 7) 5, etc. The Ipswich Maximus follows exactly the same rule. After the first long dodge by 0-t, we have t (miss e) 9 (miss 7) 5, (miss 3) 2 (miss 4) 6, 8 (for the long dodge) (miss 0) t (miss e) 9, etc. It therefore seems to me that the argument in favour of the Ipswich coursing order is, at least, as strong as the other. But I may be mistaken; and when Mr. James answers the inquiries in my first letter perhaps he will kindly reply to this point as well, and say why the Shipway Maximus coursing order is right and the Ipswich Maximus coursing order is wrong.

I hope Mr. George Baker will not consider me discourteous in not having yet written to him privately for the figures he kindly offered, but for the moment I prefer to remain to everyone, Yours faithfully,
A PLAIN RINGER.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD.

DEVIZES BRANCH AT URCHFONT.

The monthly meeting of the Devizes Branch was held at the Parish Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Urchfont, on Saturday. Ringing commenced about 3 p.m., and, later, the Guild office was said by the Rev. S. M. D. Davys, M.A., R.D. Tea followed at the residence of Mr. J. Harding, captain of the Urchfont ringers, and, afterwards, a touch on the handbells by Messrs. J. Bilby, R. Beck, S. Hellier and S. J. Hector was rung on the lawn.

The short business meeting followed, the chairman of the branch, Mr. C. D. Heginbotham, presiding.

The chairman read a letter from the Archdeacon of Wilts, acknowledging the receipt of the donation from the branch towards the restoration of Calne bells, and expressing his thanks for the gift. A letter was received from Mrs. Awdry, of Seend, regretting being unable to entertain the branch at Seend on account of the illness of Mr. Awdry.

The election of Mr. S. B. Dobbie and Mr. J. S. Goldsmith as life ringing members was confirmed.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Trowbridge on Saturday, October 1st.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Vicar for the use of the bells and conducting the service, the organist, and to Mr. and Mrs. J. Harding for providing the tea.

The visitors included Miss N. Williams (Bath), Mr. E. J. Rowe (Stourton), Mr. Ronald Beck (Midsomer Norton), and Mr. F. Precey (Upton Lovell). Ringers were present from Urchfont, Devizes, St. John's and St. Mary's, Trowbridge, Southbroom, Melksham, Warminster, All Cannings, Bratton and Holt.

Touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob Major, also a touch of Oxford Minor on the back six, were rung.

The best thanks of those present are due to Mr. and Mrs. J. Harding and to those who assisted them in providing and arranging the tea, as a larger number was present than had informed the secretary, which entailed greater work.

Now that postcards are provided, tower correspondents are requested to inform the secretary of any members who intend to be present at the meetings, and who require tea, as it would greatly assist those responsible for the arrangements.

SHERWOOD YOUTHS IN LEICESTERSHIRE.

HISTORIC PEAL COMMEMORATED.

On Saturday, September 3rd, a jovial party of Sherwood Youths, together with their 'lassies' and 'offspring,' had an enjoyable outing to that out-of-the-way, but historic, place called King's Norton (or Norton-by-Gaulby), Leicestershire. Beautiful weather attended them, and on going through Leicester they picked up certain 'Leicester Scholars' who were deputed to show the driver the best way to this 'off-the-beaten-track' village. Although he who took off his boots in the historic peal said he knew it, somehow or other he mislaid it, and irrelevantly blamed 'Joe's' cigar. After having stopped a stray cyclist and the hon. secretary, S.Y., had got off to scan certain signposts, eventually the party arrived quite safely, even if a little 'shook up.' They were welcomed by the Rector and ringers from Billesdon, Syston, Sileby, Leicester. The 'Master' first wished the serious part of the business over, and this included photos of the peal band, then another 'all on,' and, by special request, one of the tomb of Wm. Foretry, Esquire, the munificent squire who rebuilt the two churches and gave the bells. The latter having been pulled up, a special touch of Stedman Triples by the peal band in the same order was rung, viz.: F. Blood 1, A. Coppock (conductor) 2, E. Morris 3, W. P. Whitehead 4, W. H. Clarke 5, F. A. Salter 6, F. W. Bailey 7, P. Price 8.

The Master then called upon the Rector to dedicate the peal tablet, which he did, and in a few well-chosen words welcomed the visitors and expressed his appreciation of the visit to his church, as such an event was one to be remembered by all. He referred to the Sherwood Youths' peal—the first ever rung on these peals as long ago as May 28th, 1776—and said how fitting it was that the modern Sherwood Youths should thus commemorate their ancestors' doings by a similar performance, such as this tablet recorded 150 years afterwards, viz., December 4th, 1926.

The Master, in reply, explained the objects in reviving the ancient society, and said that whatever else had been done, the outstanding feature was that the records of these early performances, which were in danger of being lost, were now recovered and safely stored. He was proud and happy to have with them that day the only actual living link with the ancient society, in the person of Mr. A. Archer, who had presented the society with his handbells, which they also had with them. He further thanked the general hon. secretary of the M.C.A. for his painstaking work in writing the tablet so beautifully.

After further ringing, an adjournment was made to the old house formerly occupied by Squire Foretry, where an excellent meat tea was done full justice to. Then a course of Grandsire Caters on the handbells, followed by a 'little' Surprise, when Joe's midget handbells suddenly appeared from nowhere in particular. On these, 'the lightest bells ever rung to a peal' (tenor 3oz.), an excellent course of Stedman Triples was rung. The church was again visited, and a few venturesome spirits also walked to Gaulby to try the peal of six there, and for the M.C.A. secretary to verify his transcriptions of the bell inscriptions. Finding the 4th rope missing, the rest were pulled up, and a weird six-score or so rung. Like all other good things, this afternoon's proceedings came to an end, the Sherwood Youths' hon. secretary afterwards mysteriously checking up certain documents and marshalling his party. The return journey was made quite happily and uneventfully, but thoroughly enjoyed by all.

DEATH OF A LEATHERHEAD RINGER.

The death has occurred at Leatherhead, Surrey, of Mr. Edward Hull, who had been a ringer for 53 years at the Parish Church. He was 71 years of age, and had been in failing health for the past three years. He was a native of the town, and with the exception of about four years, when he went to live at Andover just previous to his marriage, had lived there all his life. Owing to the state of his health he retired from his employment as a coachsmith four years ago. He was well known in Surrey ringing circles, and when he celebrated his jubilee as a ringer at the Parish Church in 1924 a peal was rung in his honour. He leaves two daughters, his wife predeceasing him.

The funeral took place at the Leatherhead Parish Churchyard on Tuesday of last week, the Vicar (the Rev. G. H. B. Coleridge) officiating. The Leatherhead bellringers rang a muffled peal, under the conductorship of Mr. A. Dean, and rang the handbells at the graveside.

The large number of wreaths included tokens from Messrs. Ventham and Sons, with whom deceased worked for 54 years; his old workmates; and the bellringers.

A NEW BURTON VICAR.

On Thursday, September 1st, the Rev. John Goodacre, of Cold Ashton Rectory, Clippenham, was inducted by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Lichfield to the living of St. Paul's, Burton-on-Trent, in succession to the Rev. the Hon. S. G. W. Maitland, who is now Rector of Ingestre, near Stafford.

Before the service, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung in 54 mins.: A. J. Baxter (first quarter-peal) 1, M. Swinfield (conductor) 2, R. H. Dove 3, J. H. Swinfield 4, J. Ashmole 5, J. Slade 6, A. P. G. Stone 7, N. R. Wright (first quarter-peal) 8.

All the band, with the exception of the ringer of the 5th, are present members of the St. Paul's Society.

PEALS OF CAMBRIDGE SURPRISE ROYAL.

BY GEORGE E. SYMONDS, IPSWICH.

The five following peals of 5,040 changes, with only 4th, 5th and 6th in 6th's place, have been produced by Mr. G. E. Symonds, of Ipswich. These are believed to be the only five peals obtainable, and the first to be published, with these qualities. The author began about 3,000 compositions to get these five.

DUDLEY & DISTRICT GUILD.

MEETING AT KINVER.

A quarterly meeting of this Guild was held at St. Peter's Church, Kinver, Staffs, on Saturday, August 27th. The weather was all that could be desired, and a good number of members availed themselves of the opportunity of being present and visiting this noted country village. The bells were at the disposal of the members from three o'clock, and they were kept merrily going in various methods.

The beautiful form of service used by the Guild at its meetings was conducted by the Vicar of Kinver (the Rev. T. A. Cooper-Slipper), who also gave a very eloquent address, in which he gave a hearty welcome to the Guild.

At the business meeting which followed, the Vicar presiding, the Secretary announced apologies from Mr. B. Fullwood, Mr. B. Gough, Mr. H. Mason and others.

After business of a routine character had been disposed of, several new members were added to the roll.

It was proposed to hold the next meeting at St. Martin's, Tipton, subject to the usual permission being obtained.

The quarterly peal is proposed to be attempted at Kinver, and the date, time and other arrangements are left in the hands of Mr. Abraham Greenfield, of Netherton.

At the close of the meeting, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Vicar for his ready permission to hold the meeting at his church, for conducting the service and his inspiring address, for the use of the tower and bells and the vestry in which to hold the meeting, and for his courteous conduct in the chair at the business meeting. Thanks were also accorded to the organist for the musical part of the service. Thanks are also due to Mr. H. Lee and the local ringers for having everything in readiness for the comfort of the visitors.

The Vicar, in replying to the vote of thanks, said it was a great pleasure to him to welcome the Guild there that day, and hoped that at some future time he might have the pleasure of welcoming them again. He then closed the meeting with prayer.

Afterwards, several members adjourned to the belfry for further ringing, whilst others spent the time in rambling along the beautiful 'Edge' and lanes of this beautiful country village.

RINGERS' OUTINGS.

A SUNDAY SERVICE RINGING TOUR.

A decided change from the usual outing was undertaken by the Dunstable Priory band this year. Owing to the employment of several members, it was found that Sunday was the only day upon which all could get away, so, with the permission and sanction of their own church authorities, Sunday, August 28th, was chosen for a service ringing tour in Essex. The good offices of Mr. C. H. Howard, Master of the Essex Association, were enlisted, and an ambitious programme drawn up. Dunmow, to ring from 10 to 11, was the first on the list. As this tower meant a 45 miles' run, it was necessary to be away early, and let it be said that everybody was punctual and ready for a 7.30 a.m. start. General regret was expressed that one of the ringers had decided to be on the sick list, and so could not join in the excursion. However, 13 answered the roll, and a fine run made, Dunmow being reached at 9.50. The church lies wide of the town, and took a little finding. An elderly gentleman on being asked if the church was in the vicinity, caused lots of laughter by saying: 'Eh, guv'nor, it's a big 'un, too. It'll hold all on yer.' A sharp walk brought the visitors eventually to the church, where they received a cordial welcome from the Vicar and several local men. The bells (tenor 21 cwt.) are a lovely peal, and the ringing was much enjoyed, the touches being 336 Double Norwich, 168 Grandsire, 112 Bob Major, and 252 Stedman Triples. Everybody having had a pull, and service time having arrived, tracks were made for Felsted, where permission had been obtained for ringing after service. Noon had been the hour fixed, but owing to the service lasting longer than was expected, it was not possible to begin until 12.20, which curtailed the ringing, and only two touches were possible, 288 Kent Major and 231 Grandsire. The bells here go well, but are rather inferior in tone—a striking contrast to Dunmow. Dinner at Braintree was next on the list. Here the party were met by Mr. C. H. Howard. Booking was next on the programme, and the bells there were available from 3 to 4 p.m. The visitors were joined by Mr. L. W. Wiffen and several of the Braintree band. The bells are a good peal, but owing partly to disuse didn't go too well, and distinctly wanted pulling. Stedman was attempted, but lost, the only touch throughout the day to 'go West.' A good 432 was, however, rung, followed by a good course of Cambridge Surprise Major, Messrs. Wiffen and Howard standing in this, and then a course of Double Norwich. A run back to Braintree for tea was followed by a 12 miles' trip to Finchingfield to ring for evensong, Mr. Howard, in his car, being the pilot.

Finchingfield has a very fine church with a good peal of bells, and several touches were rung. The service touch was to have been Stedman, but only a few sixes had been tapped off when the second rope broke, and put 'paid' to it. However, 360 Cambridge Minor was brought round, time not permitting another rope to be put on. A hasty glance at this pretty and ancient village was all that could be allowed, as ringing at Ware after evensong was the next objective, and Ware was nearly 30 miles away. A pretty run was enjoyed via Thaxted and Dunmow, where 'Good-bye' was said to Mr. Howard. A nasty spill which had occurred on the road outside Bishop's Stortford delayed the party a little. After seeing what help could be rendered, and several of the stalwarts had lifted a combination out of the hedge, the journey was resumed, and Ware reached 30 minutes late. Here they were met by Mr. C. H. Barker and the local foreman (Mr. Greenway). The bells are a very fine peal (tenor 22 cwt.), but opinion seemed to be divided as to whether these or the bells at Dunmow were the best ring met with during the day. Owing to the late hour, only two touches were rung, viz., 224 Double Norwich and 231 Stedman Triples, Mr. Greenway standing in the latter. To be ready for home at nine had been the order, but for the first time during the day orders were disregarded. When the band that had rung the last touch descended from the tower, the rest were lost; when the rest turned up the others were lost; but eventually all stragglers put in an appearance, and the 24 miles' run home began, Dunstable being reached at 11 p.m., after a most enjoyable day, which opinion voted 'the best ever.' Everywhere the party met with the warmest of welcomes, which, with the happy spirit of comradeship right through the band, helped to make everything successful. The band desire to thank all who helped to this end, especially Mr. Howard, who made all the arrangements for the ringing in Essex.

HARWICH RINGERS' TRIP.

On Saturday, August 5th, the St. Nicholas's Guild, Harwich, had their annual outing to Long Melford and Clare, Suffolk, and Sible Hedingham, Essex, in splendid weather. The party, numbering 12, left Harwich by charabanc at 9.15 a.m. At Long Melford they were met by Mr. C. Bixby, and after some light refreshment the bells were set going to Grandsire Triples and Kent Treble Bob Major. After a stay of two hours they proceeded to Clare, where an excellent spread was awaiting them. Dinner over, the handbells were brought out, and a few tunes and touches of Bob Major and Grandsire Triples were rung. At the church, touches of Bob Major and Grandsire Triples were brought round on this fine ring of eight (tenor 28 cwt.), and the company afterwards inspected the fine church, which is noted for its stone carvings inside. In a glass case by the door stands a large earthenware beer jar made for the 'Clare ringers' in 1729. There were many other items of antiquarian interest. Afterwards, a start was made to Sible Hedingham, where, after tea at the White Horse, the visitors were met at the church by Mr. L. Wiseman. Touches of Kent Treble Bob, Plain Bob and Grandsire Triples were duly tapped off, with some of the local ringers taking part, after which the homeward journey was begun, via Sudbury and West Bergholt, Harwich being reached at 11 p.m., after a most enjoyable day. The Guild wish, through the medium of 'The Ringing World,' to thank the incumbents of the churches visited for the use of the bells, also Messrs. Bixby, Martin, Gridley and Wiseman for making the necessary arrangements, which made the outing so successful.

ESSEX MEN ACROSS THE THAMES.

The members of St. Michael's Guild, Braintree, accompanied by their wives and a few ringing friends, had their annual outing on Saturday week. Leaving Braintree at 8.15 a.m. by charabanc, they journeyed to Tilbury and crossed by ferry to Gravesend, to spend the day with their Kentish friends, and a very enjoyable day it was. St. George's, Gravesend, was the first tower visited, and the ringing opened with a well-struck touch of Double Norwich, succeeded by Grandsire and Treble Bob. Lunch was provided at the Prince of Orange, and Rochester Cathedral was reached at 2.30 p.m. A touch of Stedman Caters was brought round with the assistance of two local men, followed by a course of Grandsire Triples and Caters for the novices. The party then proceeded to Gillingham, where an excellent course of Cambridge Surprise was brought round on this handy ring, the lady member, Miss Pottit, ringing the second. A touch of Treble Bob followed. Hurrying on to Chatham, touches of Grandsire and Double Norwich were brought round, and then the party made for their last tower, Frindsbury, and found bells ready for their use. Only Bob Major and Stedman Triples could be attempted here before a hurried good-bye had to be said to keep the tea appointment at Gravesend. The Guild wish to thank Messrs. E. Hadlow, W. Haigh, E. Allen, G. Gilbert, and the towerkeeper of Chatham for their kind assistance and the excellent arrangements made at the various places, which tended to make one of the most enjoyable outings in the annals of the Guild.

HOGHTON RINGERS IN CHESHIRE.

On Saturday, August 27th, Houghton ringers had their annual outing, on which they were joined by Mr. E. Jennings, of Kendal, and their wives and friends. The party, which numbered 25, journeyed through Brindle, Leyland and Rufford to Ormskirk, where a halt was made for a pull. Those who wanted to ring had a touch of Grandsire Triples and Bob Major. The party then proceeded to Liverpool, and crossed by ferry to Birkenhead, where they were again picked up by the charabanc, and reached Port Sunlight by 11.30. Here they visited the Art Gallery and the War Memorial. After dinner at the Bridge Inn, the ringers went to Christ Church tower, where they found a grand peal of eight bells, and rang touches of Grandsire Triples and Treble Bob Major, this being the first touch of Treble Bob Major for E. Jennings. After being photographed by Mr. Jennings, the excursionists journeyed to Chester, and while some looked round the ancient city, others visited St. Mary's Within-the-Walls for a pull, and rang touches of Grandsire and Treble Bob Major. After tea, they went on to Frodsham, where they were met by Mr. Wm. Bibby, and enjoyed further ringing on what, in the opinion of all, were the best bells of the day. Touches of Grandsire and Treble Bob were rung, and, afterwards, assisted by Mr. Bibby, his son and daughter, an attempt was made for a touch of Stedman, the band including two lady ringers, Miss Clayton and Miss Bibby. The return journey was made through Runcorn, Warrington, Wigan and Chorley, Houghton being reached at 10.20 p.m., after a most enjoyable day. The ringers wish to thank the clergy and local ringers at the respective towers for the use of their bells and having all in readiness, especially Mr. Scholicher at Ormskirk, Mr. W. J. Battle, of Birkenhead, Mr. R. Sperring, of Chester, and Mr. Wm. Bibby, of Frodsham, for their assistance.

On Sunday, August 28th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples was rung for morning service as a farewell to Mr. Jennings: H. Margerison 1, Miss May Clayton 2, W. Hilsley 3, E. Jennings (conductor) 4, J. Brown 5, G. Hooper 6, J. Moulding 7, J. Harrison 8.

RAINHAM RINGERS IN THE RAIN.

On Saturday, August 20th, in a 'slight' shower that lasted all day, St. Margaret's Society, Rainham, Kent, had their annual 'run round' for a 'busman's holiday.' At 7.30 a.m. a 28 and an 18-seater moved off loaded, the Vicar, Rev. W. A. R. Ball (biting his tongue because he could not join the party) giving them a hearty send-off. The first stop was at Leeds, where many had their first ring on ten bells, Grandsire Caters being the limit. Then on again to Wye, where good touches of Kent Major, Stedman and Grandsire were brought round on a beautiful eight. The next move was to Ramsgate for lunch, afternoon enjoyment, and an early tea at the Commercial Hotel. Picture palaces, Pavilion and Pleasure Land were visited, it being too wet for anything else. A party had arranged to go to St. Lawrence for a pull on the ten bells, but St. Lawrence had the misfortune to lose their Vicar, who died on the day previous after a very short illness. In the evening the party proceeded via Sandwich to Wingham, and another beautiful eight (all old bells) were rung in various methods. On again to Osprey, where, after about an hour's ringing, the party continued (Continued in next column.)

their homeward journey, arriving about 10 p.m. The only compensation the party had was that the towers visited contained some of the finest and most musical rings in Kent. The younger element kept things alive with their choruses. Anyway, all hope for a better day next year. The party would like to take this opportunity of thanking all incumbents and ringers at the various towers for having everything in readiness, which allowed the programme to be worked to the clock.

BATH RINGERS IN WILTSHIRE.

On Thursday, August 11th, the All Saints' (Weston, Bath) ringers held their annual outing, when they were accompanied by the Rev. R. L. Watson, Mr. R. D. Pointing (churchwarden), Miss N. G. Williams, Miss Roe, and Mrs. Broome. Travelling by charabanc through Wiltshire, Holt was the first stop. Various methods were brought round, and then, after a splendid drive through lovely scenery, Market Lavington was reached. After tea, steps were made for the tower, where Mr. Merritt met the party, and the lovely ring of six were set going to various methods. Send was the next stop, and here the party were met by Mr. Barns, Mr. Heginbotham and other ringers. After various touches having been rung, they proceeded to Melksham, where Mr. W. West was awaiting them, and after choir practice the bells were set going to Doubles and Triples. The methods rung during the outing were Grandsire Doubles and Triples, Stedman Doubles and Bob Minor. Home was reached at 10.35, after a very successful outing, in the course of which the party were fortunate to dodge the rain, which seemed to have preceded them.

The ringers wish, through 'The Ringing World,' to thank the incumbents and tower masters for their kindness in allowing the use of the bells, and having everything in readiness. Every tower visited was found in splendid condition and 'go' of bells excellent.

BECCLES RINGERS' FIRST 12-BELL EXPERIENCE.

On Saturday, July 16th, the Beccles ringers, with friends from the adjoining towers, held their annual outing. Journeying by charabanc, the first stop was at Ufford, where the Rev. H. Drake welcomed them, and short touches were rung. The next call was at Woodbridge, where Mr. Cutting had everything in readiness, and the fine peal of eight were soon going to Stedman and Treble Bob, after which lunch was partaken of at the Crown Hotel. Henley was then visited, the party being welcomed by the Rev. W. C. Pearson, and short touches rung on the light peal of eight, much time, unfortunately, being lost owing to a broken rope. The next stop was at Ipswich, where Mr. Gillingham met them at St. Margaret's before tea, and after tea came the grand finale at St. Mary-le-Tower, where, with the kind help of members of the tower band, two courses of Stedman Cinques were rung, this being the first ring on twelve by most of the company. Although the weather was not as kind as it might have been, a most enjoyable day was spent by all, and they reached home, tired and happy, about 11 p.m. The best thanks of the company are due to the various rectors for the use of the bells, and the many ringing friends who helped to make the day a success.

In the absence of the president, the chair was taken by the vice-president, Mr. G. Lewis. The place for the annual meeting, to be held in the Eastern Division, in the absence of an invitation was left to be arranged by the hon. secretary.

Votes of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells and hall, and to the local company and the ladies for the splendid entertainment given were carried with acclamation. The bells were kept going in various methods, and a very enjoyable half-day was profitably spent.

A USEFUL SCHEME.

One of the most important uses of the district meetings is to provide ringers with the opportunity of practising more advanced methods. A ringer, if he never leaves his own tower, is restricted in what he can ring to the limitations of his own band, but his opportunities are much enlarged if he regularly attends district meetings, where he will find others like-minded. At these gatherings he can generally make progress, if he has any desire to do so, for there is usually a readiness on the part of everyone to help. For the most part, however, the ringing on these occasions is quite casually arranged and if a man looks up a new method he can seldom be certain that there will be sufficient to ring it. From time to time one reads notices intimating that some special method will be practised, and such notification has its advantages. The Liverpool Branch of the Lancashire Association has, however, made the best advance in this direction which we have yet seen, for they have decided that they will in future take two methods for special attention at their district meetings, one method being at each end of the scale. As a beginning, they have resolved particularly to practise Bob Major and Cambridge Surprise at their next gathering.

This decision is an admirable one. When only one method is selected the advanced ringers will not always turn up if it is to be a simple method that is chosen, not always because they do not want to help, but because they imagine there are certain to be plenty of ringers present for the purpose. If the method selected is a difficult one, then the ringers who have not yet advanced to this stage will absent themselves, because they imagine they will be 'out of it' with the rest. By the plan which the Lancashire Association propose to adopt there should be an attraction for both kinds of ringers, but it will be a mistake for members to suppose there will be nothing for them unless they want to ring only one or other of these two methods. That is where 'limited' practices have broken down in the past.

When particular methods are selected for special attention it does not mean there will be nothing else rung, but that those who want to practise these methods will have special facilities. The value of organising the ringing at district meetings on these lines is that it encourages men with ambition to make definite preparation, whereas if a man goes to a meeting not knowing what he will have the opportunity of ringing he seldom takes the trouble to look up anything fresh. Often on the other hand, a man will attend a meeting hoping to achieve another step in the art, and go away disappointed at not getting the chance he desired. Sometimes this is due to his own reticence in making his aspirations known, and ringing masters would often render useful service if they tactfully enquired, especially in the case of young ringers, if they had come prepared to ring any particular method. The ringing at district meetings might, speaking generally, be made more 'educational' than it is, and the Liverpool Branch of the Lancashire Association is taking a practical step to ensure that it shall be so in their area.

ELEVEN SURPRISE METHODS IN ONE 720.

To the Editor.

Sir,—With reference to your report of the Bourne company's performance some weeks ago, it seems evident that Mr. Lake is not inclined to publish the figures of the 720, in spite of the gentle reminder in these columns of what is due to six-bell ringers generally, and to the Leytonstone men in particular.

In May, 1926, you published a record of a 720 in six Surprise methods, and we stated therein where the extent could be found. Any who cared to possess himself of a copy of 'Method Splicing' could have verified the probability of Leytonstone's performance.

On the contrary, no attempt has been made to substantiate the Bourne eleven-method extent, and those who possess 'Method Splicing' will certainly believe that the impossible has been accomplished. On page 5, in paragraph 2, will be found words to the effect that B, C and D, shown below, cannot be spliced one class with another. The methods quoted are those given in your report, and the classification is ours:—

B—Durham-York-Surfleet-Beverley.

C—Munden-Canterbury-Newcastle-Chester.

D—London-Wells-Cunecastro.

If Mr. J. W. Parker is to be believed, this report should have been corrected long since by the conductor, and we are of opinion that the six Surprise methods spliced at Leytonstone form the only combination greater than five that can be truly spliced in one 720 between rounds.

Nevertheless, we are only too willing to learn, and we eagerly await Mr. Lake's refutation of that which is implied herein.—Yours sincerely,

For the St. John-the-Baptist Association, Leytonstone,

GEO. DAWSON,

Hon. Secretary.

OLD PENDLETON RINGER'S DEATH.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Francis Smith, of Pendleton. 'Church Bells' of May 31st, 1879, recorded that 720 Bob Minor was rung at Pendleton, F. Smith 1st, first 720. A fortnight later he rang the tenor to another 720. Since that date he has rung 64 peals in the standard methods and Superlative and Cambridge, and for a number of years was towerkeeper. It is about four years since he rang last, rheumatism claiming him as a victim, and terminating in a 'stroke,' from which he died on August 31st.

He was laid to rest in St. Thomas' Churchyard, with muffled bells from the tower and handbells round his grave.

He was 73 years old, and in bygone years his birthday was often celebrated by 'first peals in the method' on the bells. Among the floral tributes was one from the ringers, also from the bowling clubs, and several from the family.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD.

A successful meeting of the Lincoln District took place at Welton on Saturday, September 3rd. It was the district's third quarterly meeting of the year, and the attendance, numbering about 35, represented the following towers: Lincoln, Gainsborough, Bransford, Saxilby, Dunholme, Bassingham, Folkingham, Wragby, and the local ringers. A number of learners received a valuable course of tuition from the more experienced ringers. Following this introduction, ringing of standard methods was vigorously indulged in, and there was every indication that good progress is being made in the district.

A service followed, conducted by the Rev. W. H. Hall, Vicar of Welton, whose address upon the subject of bells and their significance with worship was of a most interesting character. His address was illustrated by drawings of some of the very early types of bells, including one made of sheet metal. Of this type there was a number on view. He referred to some of the earliest bells cast in China. These, he said, weighed approximately 60 tons, and were cast in the ground, and when the casting was completed a frame was built to support the bell. This completed, the earth was scooped from around and underneath the bell, and the means employed to create a tone from this monstrous casting was by swinging a heavy beam to come in contact with the bell. The Vicar also remarked upon the peculiar method of ringing some of the early bells. No wheels or ropes were fixed to the bell, but to take their places a strong piece of wood was attached, similar in many respects to the 'stay' on present-day bells. The ringer stood at the end of the frame and set the bell in motion by applying his strength to the wooden extension. Upon the bell reaching the horizontal position the ringer would often jump on to the wooden plank, with the result that he was lifted several feet high in the air. The Vicar remarked that this was a very dangerous practice, and often meant loss of life.

Tea was partaken of in the adjoining schoolroom, and following this a business meeting was held. Thanks were accorded to the Vicar for his address and to those concerned in making the arrangements for the tea and meeting. A pleasing feature of the meeting was the enrolment of eight new members, thus bringing the total number of new honorary members to nine, and ringing members to twenty-two for this year in the Lincoln district. Ringing was continued until nine o'clock.

THE ACCIDENT TO MR. A. H. PULLING.
CAUSE OF THE SPILL.

Wednesday's report of Mr. A. H. Pulling was that his condition remains much about the same. He has been more quiet and restful this week, and has gained some bodily strength, but the critical stage has not yet passed.

Mrs. Pulling wishes to thank sincerely all those who have kindly made enquiries and sent expressions of sympathy. They are so numerous that it is impossible for her to answer them individually.

The cause of Mr. Pulling's accident has now been ascertained. As he was nearing Hatfield, a near-side link of the front forks of his motor-cycle broke. This caused the near side tension spring to become expanded in a forward position, and the rider thus lost control over the steering. The cycle shot out from the near side of the road, and the handle bars touched the handle bars of another cycle and sidecar travelling in the opposite direction. Mr. Pulling's machine then cut behind the other motor-cyclist, mounted a low bank and dropped into a ditch on the off side, throwing Mr. Pulling violently against a stone wall, and it was this which caused him his serious injuries. There was very little damage to the combination, and the other motor-cyclist luckily escaped with a cut across the fingers, where he was struck by the handle bars.

The breakage on Mr. Pulling's machine accounts for what eye witnesses described as his extraordinary action. All agreed that he was travelling at a steady pace well on his near side of the road when for some, to them, unexplained reason, the cycle suddenly shot across the road.

A doctor, who was called to the scene of the accident, at once ordered his removal to hospital, and he was on his way thither within twenty minutes of the occurrence. He has since received unremitting care and attention from the hospital staff, and Mrs. Pulling has been by his bedside almost continuously. His great vitality and sound constitution are enabling him to hold his own in the face of the severe injury which he received.

RINGERS WEDDED.

MR. F. W. GOODFELLOW AND MISS G. BAKER.

A wedding of considerable interest in the ringing world, especially to members of the Middlesex Association, took place at St. John's Church, Hillingdon, recently, between Mr. F. W. Goodfellow, of Hounslow, late of Ealing, and Miss G. Baker, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baker, of 'Dillwood,' Harlington Road, Hillingdon.

The bride was charmingly attired in an ivory crepe-de-chine gown, very daintily trimmed with ivory silk lace, and her handsome hand-embroidered lace veil was held by her two small attendants, Masters Roy and Max Rix, nephews of the bridegroom; her bouquet was of large white chrysanthemums. The two bridesmaids, Miss N. Baker (sister of the bride) and Miss P. Goodfellow (sister of the bridegroom), were attired in gowns of periwinkle blue, their hats being of felt, of a fancy design, fawn shade, with fawn shoes, etc. Their bouquets were of pale pink chrysanthemums. Mr. A. Fulwell, of St. Mary's, Ealing, ringers, acted as best man.

The ceremony was conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. H. J. Kitcat), and was attended by a very large number of people, including many ringers known to the happy pair, and Mr. T. Beadle, of Isleworth, the oldest ringer in the Middlesex Association.

As the bride and bridegroom left the church, the bells pealed forth from the tower. The reception was held at the bride's home, and, later, the newly-wedded couple left for Seaford, where the honeymoon was spent.

They were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents, including a handsome clock from the Hillingdon ringers, of which band both are members. The bridegroom has previously been secretary of St. Mary's, Ealing, Society.

ON THE DEVON AND SOMERSET BORDER.

On Saturday, September 3rd, St. Mary's Guild, Taunton, had their annual outing, when they made a charabanc trip to the borders of Somerset and Devon. Leaving Taunton at 8.15 a.m., the first stop was at Uffculme, where they found a new ring of eight by Taylor and Co. These were raised in peal, and some very good touches of Stedman Triples were rung before they were again lowered. Then a move was made for Cullompton, with its nice ring of ten. These were raised in peal and set going to Stedman and Grandsire Caters. Some well-struck touches were brought round, and the bells again lowered in peal. The next place of call was Tiverton, which possesses one of the finest rings of eight in the West. These also are by Taylor and Co., and recently new. Stedman and Grandsire Triples and Bob Major were rung on them. From here, the journey was continued through the beautiful Exe Valley to Timberscombe, where more Stedman Triples were brought round, before going on to Minehead, where lunch, which was thoroughly appreciated by all, was partaken of at the Strand Private Hotel. There followed a ring on Minehead bells, and Stedman Caters were once more rung. After tea and an hour by the sea, the homeward journey was commenced, and only one stop was made for ringing, this being at Old Cleve, where some Stedman Triples were tapped off. Taunton was reached about 9.30 p.m., all having thoroughly enjoyed the day's trip. The ringers wish to thank the Vicars and steeplekeepers of the various towers, and especially Mr. Atkins, of Minehead, for having everything in readiness for them.

LONDONDERRY SURPRISE.To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me, through the medium of 'The Ringing World,' to convey to the members of the Middlesex Association, who rang in the first peal of the above method, my congratulations and thanks for their accomplishment.

I must also thank you for publishing a lead of the method.

The statement that Middleton's peal is the only peal that will run true to the method is incorrect, because, although there are five false course-ends:

46253

these form one complete round block, and they, therefore, act only as one, consequently there are thirty true courses.

The following peal contains portions of the thirty true courses:—

Repeat four times.

I have many other peals of varying lengths; and there are other features worthy of note concerning the method, which will extend to infinity, although there is never any place making above sixth's place.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE BAKER.

'STONY' RINGERS' RESIGNATION.

At Loughton, Essex, on Tuesday, August 30th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes) in 45 mins.: J. Rann, jun., 1, G. Perry 2, A. Reeves (first quarter-peal away from treble) 3, E. A. Bacon (conductor) 4, J. Rann, sen., 5, S. Carter 6, G. Carter 7, W. Clark 8.

This society has recently taken over the Sunday service ringing, the 'Stony' band having been called upon to resign.

LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION.SYSTEMATIC PRACTICE.

A very successful meeting of the Liverpool Branch was held at Hale on Saturday. About 40 members and friends were present, including Mr. W. H. Shuker, the general secretary.

It was decided to take two particular methods for special attention at each meeting, in addition to the usual standard methods—one method at the lower end of the scale and one at the higher end. The methods selected for the next meeting were Bob Major and Cambridge Surprise. Mr. J. Wilkinson was appointed to the office of Branch Ringing Master.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the branch at Widnes on Saturday, October 8th.

ESSEX AND MIDDLESEX ASSOCIATIONS.JOINT MEETING AT WALTHAM ABBEY.

The fourth annual joint meeting of the S.W. Division of the Essex Association and the North and East District of the Middlesex County Association was held on Saturday last at Waltham Abbey, and still proved an attractive feature in the programmes of the societies. In all, some 40 members attended, including many whose names are well known to the Exercise, and whose presence helped considerably with the ringing during the afternoon.

Shortly after three o'clock a touch of Stedman Caters opened the proceedings, and this was followed by Stedman Cinqs, Bob Royal, and Grandsire Caters, until tea time arrived. After a good tea had been disposed of, Mr. C. T. Coles (hon. secretary, Middlesex Association) welcomed the company, and expressed pleasure at the continued support given to this annual event, which, he said, was a sure sign of the good feeling existing between the two societies. He apologised for the absence of the president of his association, who was on holiday.

Mr. E. J. Butler (hon. secretary, Essex Association, S.W. Division) endorsed all that was said by the previous speaker, and hoped that the meeting would continue to be popular for many years to come.

A suggestion that the Hertfordshire Association should be invited next year to officially support the meeting was considered quite a good idea.

A vote of sympathy with that well-known ringer, Mr. A. H. Pulling, and with Mrs. Pulling, was passed, coupled with a hope that the former would quickly and completely recover from the effects of his serious accident.

Subsequently the bells were again set going, touches of Stedman Cinqs and Caters, Grandsire Cinqs and Caters, and courses of Cambridge Maximus and Royal being rung.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The Rev. C. F. Carver, Vicar of Capel, Surrey, who is taking considerable interest in the proposed new Guild for the diocese of Guildford, was formerly curate of Duffield, Derbyshire, and learnt to handle a bell there when the late Sir Arthur Heywood rang regularly in that belfry.

The death has recently taken place of Mr. W. E. Pitfield Chapple, of Axminster, who was a contemporary at Oxford of Canon Coleridge, the late Rev. H. A. Cockey and Mr. G. H. Phillott. He rang with the Oxford University Society, and at Axminster he gave the tenor of the present ring of bells.

Two young and promising ringers, W. Jones and R. G. Edwards, took part in a peal at Bidston, Cheshire, which we recorded last week. Although only 13 years of age, they rang inside bells in a five-method peal of Minor, which included Cambridge Surprise. They should have a great ringing future before them.

The first peal by the Society of St. Martin's Youths, now St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, was rung on September 16th, 1755. This was 5,040 Bob Major at St. Philip's Church.

To-morrow is the anniversary of the 11,328 London Surprise Major rung by the Oxford Diocesan Guild at Drayton in the year 1896.

On September 19th, 1775, a peal of 5,130 Grandsire Caters was rung 'on the new peal of ten bells' at Grantham, conducted by W. D. Crofts. It did not say much for the hanging that it required two men to ring the 8th, and three to ring the tenor.

One of the ringers of the tenor in this peal was James Coppock, of Nottingham, whose great-grandson (Mr. Albert Coppock) is to-day the Master of the Sherwood Youths, the successors of the old society of the same name who made ringing history in Nottinghamshire a hundred and fifty years ago.

The first peal of Double Norwich Caters was rung at St. Stephen's, Bristol, on September 22nd, 1894.

On September 25th, 1845, 6,701 Stedman Caters, composed and conducted by John Cox, was rung at St. James' Church, Bermondsey—the greatest number attainable with the treble in 2nd's place and bobs only.

The old bells of the Parish Church, Tisbury, Wilts, have been rehung and tuned, and will be rededicated by the Lord Bishop of Salisbury on Wednesday, October 12th, at 7 p.m. A short peal will be rung in the service immediately after the dedication.

Will the theoretical experts of the Exercise, and others, agree (writes a correspondent) that it is a true extension of fact to state that a band met short for Cinques on August 27th, due to one of the intended twelve spraining his ankle on August 20th?

An exceptionally meritorious performance is that recorded this week by a band at Taunton, who have scored a peal of ten 720's in different Surprise Minor methods. They rang their first peal in seven methods in 1925, and have now accomplished a peal with three more methods in it. And they only practise once a month in summer!

WAS IT A PEAL?

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—With reference to the peal of Kent Treble Bob Royal at Canterbury Cathedral, rung on August Bank Holiday, and duly published in your columns, I understand that four leads before the end of the peal the clapper of the 8th dropped out.

Is there not a rule under which it could be definitely decided whether the peal of Canterbury should be recognised or not?—Yours faithfully,
CHAS. H. KIPPIN.

[There is a rule in the 'Conditions Required for Peals,' laid down by the Central Council, 'that every bell must, during the peal, sound at every change.'—Ed. 'R.W.']

NEW RING OF EIGHT IN SUFFOLK.

DEDICATION OF TWO NEW TREBLES AT WILBY.

On Sunday, August 28th, the ceremony of dedicating two new trebles at Wilby, Suffolk, was performed by the Venerable Archdeacon Farmiloe.

The bells were erected by public subscription in memory of the late Mr. Charles Comins, J.P., F.C.A., of Wilby Hall, and 50, Cannon Street, London, who had been chairman of the Church Tower Restoration Committee, and to whose generous support and work the restoration is chiefly due. It will be recalled that the old peal of six bells were recast and rehung in January, 1925, and a framework put in for two trebles.

The Archdeacon was assisted by the Rev. H. S. Marriott (Rector of Wilby), and many parishioners and visitors were present, including Mrs. Comins and family.

On Sunday, September 3rd, the first peal was rung by visiting and local ringers, particulars of which appear in another column.

The writer was privileged to hear a considerable portion of the peal, and also took part in ringing for evening service.

The highest praise is due to all those who assisted in bringing into being another peal of eight for Suffolk, the go and tone of which leaves nothing to be desired.

One interesting feature is that the original tenor, dated 1440, was not broken up, but hung in the tower for tolling purposes, thus preserving an ancient relic of early bell founders.

A BEGINNER'S THEORY.

BY 'MINORMANIA.'

This is the seventh of the series of articles which have been specially written for beginners by 'Minormania,' to explain to them the theory of change ringing. These articles are not merely for perusal. If they are to serve the purpose for which they are intended they must be studied.

'IN-COURSE' AND 'OUT-COURSE.'

This subject is one of the least understood aspects of change ringing, and one of the most important; also, it is very simple.

It has been said elsewhere that the fundamental basis of method construction is the changing of pairs; forget the bells as individual numbers, and remember them only as PAIRS. Two bells, then, become a single pair, when they 'change.'

The rows are divided into two classes, which are very distinct from one another. One class is called 'In-course,' and the other 'Out-of-course.' This word 'course' should not be confused with 'plain course,' 'coursing order,' etc., and for this reason I prefer to know these two classes by the terms alternatively used, namely, 'even' and 'odd.' 'In-course' rows are 'even' rows; 'out-of-course' rows are 'odd.'

This classification of the rows has great bearing upon the truth of peals, and the tedium of satisfying oneself that no two rows in a peal are identical is greatly reduced by the knowledge of this fact, that it is absolutely impossible for an 'odd row' to be identical with an 'even row.'

When tracing false rows (that is, two or more identical rows), the first thing that we should look for is that at least one bell be placed in the same position in the rows. We can agree, for instance, that no two rows can be identical if the treble bell is in a different place in each, even if all of the other bells are practically the same; the fact that this one bell is differently placed within the rows is sufficient.

The treble bell, as we have found, has a fixed path which governs the number of rows per lead. She is known as a 'fixed bell' for this reason, and also because she is to be found in the same position in every corresponding row throughout all of the leads; that is to say, if she is in fourth's place in row No. 4 of the first lead, she will be in fourth's place in row No. 4 of every lead. Therefore, it is possible that two No. 4 rows taken from different leads might be identical, unless we can be certain that the remaining bells will differ. The 'calling' will fix other bells similarly, but we will not touch upon these here; sufficient that we understand what a 'fixed bell' is.

The fixed bells may be likened to a date upon a coin, and the other bells in the row likened to other peculiarities on a coin. Let us suppose that we had two bags, one containing nothing but half-crowns, and the other nothing but shilling-pieces. Also suppose that we wished to match exactly a shilling-piece that we had in hand. First we look for the date of our shilling—1912; very well, we search for a '1912' shilling, and, when found, we compare the other peculiarities, which may (or may not) differ. The point is, however, that we should not think of looking in our half-crown bag for the shilling. While it is possible that there may be '1912' coins there, we cannot possibly match our shilling from this bag.

Now then, that if we have an even row, with certain fixed bells in certain places, we shall not find its duplicate in the 'odd-row bag,' although some of the odd rows may contain the same fixed bells in the same places.

Take any even number you can think of, and add to it any other even number; your result will always be an even number (8 plus 6 gives 14, etc.). To any odd number, add any other odd number, and your result will be even (7 plus 5 gives 12, etc.); but, add odd to even, or even to odd, and your result is always odd (7 plus 6 gives 13, 4 plus 5 gives 9, etc.).

Then:—

Even plus even, gives even as the result.

Odd plus odd, gives even as the result.

Even plus odd, or odd plus even, gives odd as the result.

Apply this law to 'rows plus pairs.' Start with an even row as a basis, change an EVEN NUMBER OF PAIRS (two pairs, four, 98, or what not?), and your resultant row will be 'even.' Commence with an odd row, and change any odd number of pairs (3, 9, or 101 pairs, etc.), and your result will be 'even'; but an odd row by even pairs, or the reverse, will always give an odd row as the result.

We know that 'rounds' is the starting point of all rows in any method. It is, in fact, 'zero,' from which methods are constructed. From rounds we commence to change the bells IN PAIRS. It may be an odd number of pairs which we change to produce a fresh row, or an even number; but it is always PAIRS.

We must agree as to whether our basis shall be an odd or an even quantity; actually, it does not matter which we choose to call it, because the attainment of our aim will result in the same thing ultimately, viz., that of classifying the rows. If you choose odd, and I choose even for the basis, and we are both compelled (by the method) to change the same number of pairs, our odd and even results will differ from each other, which is all that we require; but the identical row which you name 'odd,' I shall name 'even,' and vice versa.

Therefore, for this reason (and only for this reason) we will agree that 'rounds' on any number of bells, from 2 to 12, is EVEN. Do not mistake what is written: rounds on any number of bells. Rounds on three, five or seven bells is as much 'even' as rounds on six, eight or ten, because it is the rounds row, and is our basis.

Now take your even basis (rounds), and change an odd number of pairs, even plus odd gives odd. Therefore, the resultant row is an odd row, as example 1 below. Take rounds and change an even number of pairs (even plus even, gives even), and an even row is the result, as example 2.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 0 (even)	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 (even)
(21)(43)(65)(87)(09) (five pairs)	(21)3(54)(76)(98) (four pairs)
An odd row results.	An even row results.

2 1 4 3 6 5 8 7 0 9 (odd row)	2 4 1 6 3 8 5 0 7 9 (odd row)
2(41)(63)(85)(07) 9 (even pairs)	(42)(61)(83)(05)(97) (odd pairs)
Result still odd.	Result now even.

Examples 1, 3 and 4 follow on, and row 4261830597 is the result of changing rounds, first by 5 pairs, then by 4 pairs, and, lastly, by 5 pairs, totalling 14 pairs in all; therefore, rounds (even) plus 14 pairs (even) has given an even row; and we may know for certain that if we take rounds and change 5, 17, 31 or 155 pairs, etc., etc., we shall never reproduce this row. This is unalterable, and as impossible as the finding of a shilling in the bag which contains only half-crowns.

EVEN AND ODD ROWS.

If an odd row is merely the result of changing rounds by an odd number of pairs, it stands to reason that an odd row will require an odd number of pairs to be changed in order to bring it back to rounds. Similarly with the even rows, which require an even number of pairs.

Therefore, take any jumbled row and change the bells in pairs until rounds turn up; if the number of pairs required to do this be odd, the original row is odd. If the number of pairs be even, then the original row is even.

Take the rows in your first lead of Bob Minor, and get each row back to rounds in this manner, marking the odd rows —, and the even rows +. This is good practice, but it is not really necessary to bring every row back to rounds here to find whether it is odd or even.

We have our rules 'odd plus odd gives even, etc.,' which can be applied here. Establish the class of the first row in your lead, and then apply your law of 'odd plus even pairs, gives odd row,' etc. Mark the remainder of the rows as you go along, establishing the class of every fresh row by applying your rules to the one above, thus:—

1 2 3 4 5 6 + (being the even basis).
 (2 1)(4 3)(6 5) — (odd, because even rounds by odd pairs, gives odd).
 2 (4 1)(6 3) 5 — (still odd, because odd 214365, by even pairs, gives odd).
 (4 2)(6 1)(5 3) + (even, because odd 241635, by odd pairs, gives even).

etc.

The pairs which change are in brackets. For practice, prove that each one that you mark in this manner is correctly classified by getting it back to rounds in this way:—

4 2 6 1 5 3 + (marked even).
 3 pairs change (2 4)(1 8)(3 5)
 2 pairs change, 2 (1 4)(3 6) 5
 3 pairs change (1 2)(3 4)(5 6)

Total pairs 8; therefore, 426153 was even.

The determination of the class of rows, by getting them back to rounds, can be done by short cuts, the most useful of which I will enumerate in the next article.

'MINORMANIA'S' ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Naturally, I am gratified by 'Cascable's' letter and by your remarks in the leading article, but I must ask you, in spite of your natural disinclination, kindly to give publicity to my acknowledgment of the careful editing that the MS. has received at your hands, the skilful re-punctuation and turning of difficult passages, while preserving the actual sense, or nonsense, of the text. I must congratulate you upon the way in which the examples have been set out, and thank you for the space afforded in so doing.

If the articles should prove to be of use to one ringer alone, my efforts will amply be rewarded, but I should like to say that I hope they will not be passed over because of the heading or the pseudonym. As you remark, a 'beginner' is not necessarily one who cannot ring, and the heading purposely is ambiguous, and, while the Minor has been used, the principles may be applied, in general, to other numbers.—Yours sincerely,

MINORMANIA.

BIRTHDAY BELLS.

On Sunday, September 4th, for evening service, at St. Andrew's, Derby, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Caters (1,295 changes) in 51 mins.: E. Ward 1, C. Hart 2, H. Inckle 3, T. Sharmar 4, E. H. Clarke 5, S. Maskrey 6, P. Tate 7, Geo. Freebrey (conductor) 8, W. Wallace 9, A. Braines 10. It is the first quarter-peal in the method for the ringers of treble, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 7th and tenor, and was rung as a birthday compliment to Mr. E. H. Clarke, a much respected and esteemed member of St. Andrew's company.

A BURTON REUNION.

INTERESTING GATHERING OF OLD ST. PAUL'S RINGERS.

An interesting reunion took place at Burton-on-Trent on August 27th, when, at the invitation of Mr. W. W. Worthington, many old ringers who have been associated in the past with St. Paul's tower, and who are now scattered about the country, met again in their old belfry.

St. Paul's Church was opened on April 7th, 1874, and 'Ted' Stone and John Jaggar were two of the first choir boys. There was a band of ringers who were being instructed by the Vicar, the Rev. J. H. Fish, Mr. C. Jaggar and Mr. Argyle, the respective fathers of J. Jaggar and H. Argyle, being two members of the band. Harry Argyle afterwards joined the company and rang his first peal in 1878.

In June, 1877, a large number of parishioners were confirmed, and on the following Monday evening at a young men's class the Vicar invited the members to learn bellringing. No few than 25 afterwards came to the belfry. The Vicar had tied the 6th bell, and, as John Jaggar could ring, he had to tie another and start instructing. The number soon dwindled down, but an extremely good band of novices was formed, who were allowed to ring on Sundays from 7 to 8 a.m. for early service, and on Mondays from 7.30 to 9 p.m. The regular ringers rang on Thursdays and on Sundays for morning and evening service.

In 1879 there was a 'bust up' with the 'regulars.' The Vicar 'sacked' four and retained four, and called on Mr. J. Jaggar to find the other four. This he did, and progress was soon made. They rang their first peal on November 6th, 1879 (Kent Treble Bob). The Vicar, himself an enthusiast, soon pushed them on to Stedman, and, as most people know, the Burton company soon became a famous band of ringers.

They were the modern pioneers of Surprise ringing, for, after ringing Double Norwich (their first peal being in May, 1882), they went on to Superlative, their first peal of many in this method being rung in May, 1884. Then came Cambridge, of which they rang their first peal in February, 1887, and New Cambridge (then called the 'Burton Variation'), of which they were the sponsors, in April of the same year. Incidentally, it seems probable that their first peal of Cambridge was only the second true peal in the method ever rung, the first having been at Benington in 1873. A peal of London Surprise followed in September, 1887, and for the next few years St. Paul's company continued to lead the way in Surprise ringing, the conducting being shared largely by William Wakley and Joseph Griffin. Most of the celebrities in the ringing world found their way at one time or another to this belfry round about this period, among the visitors being Squire Proctor, Rev. Earle Bulwer, Jasper Snowden, the Rev. F. E. Robinson, C. H. Hattersley, Henry Dains, Nathan Pitstow, and others.

But 'Time' eventually took its toll of the company, and business or death removed many of them. It was, however, a happy inspiration which prompted the reunion the other day, and the enjoyable nature of the gathering was due to the excellent arrangements made by Mr. Worthington and Mr. J. Swinfield.

The party met at St. Paul's Church, and, having faced the camera, made a ringing tour to Overseal, Measham, Netherseal, Tullington, and back to Burton, where the ringing concluded. Touches in a variety of methods were rung at each place.

Dinner was served at the British Oak in the evening, and, needless to say, many were the reminiscences recalled round the festive board. Afterwards, there were touches and tunes on handbells, and a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Worthington for all his kindness, on the proposition of Mr. Jaggar, seconded by Mr. J. Austin.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A 'BARREN' MISSIONARY MEETING.

A by-meeting of the Rochester District was held at Borden on Saturday, September 3rd, with the object of trying to promote interest in ringing in this parish, which possesses a peal of eight bells. From a meeting point of view, the visit was a distinct success, as 30 turned up from various towers within a 16 miles' radius, but from a missionary point of view it was a distinct failure, as not one of the locals put in an appearance.

The tower was open for ringing at 3 and at 4.50. The association service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. A. W. F. De Spalier, Mr. E. A. G. Allen, of Frindsburg, presiding at the organ.

Tea was partaken of at the Maypole Inn, and the only business transacted was the election of the Vicar as an hon. member of the association, and of one practising member. So, after all, the meeting did some good.

Ringing in standard methods from Grandsire to Superlative and Cambridge Surprise enlivened the villagers, but failed to bring any of the locals into the belfry. The Rev. Le Spalier has only been in the parish four months, and is most anxious to gather a band to ring, and it is hoped that his efforts will be better rewarded than the association's visit was. Ten towers in the district were represented.

NORTHREPPS.—At 2, Hill Cottage, on Friday, August 26th, 720 Plain Bob Minor on handbells: James W. J. Brown (first 720 of Minor) 1-2, N. Golden (conductor) 3-4, C. Pooley 5-6.

A BIRMINGHAM RINGER.

THE LATE MR. W. H. GODDEN.

Mr. William H. Godden, whose death we recorded last week, was for many years hon. secretary of St. Martin's Guild, which he also represented for some time on the Central Council.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the South and West District was held at St. Peter's, Staines, on Saturday, September 10th, and good work was done with probationers and the more advanced members. 'Rounds' and methods from Grandsire Triples to Cambridge Surprise Major were practised during the ringing hours at St. Peter's and St. Mary's Churches.

Tea was served in the Parish Hall by Mr. G. Walmsley, hon. secretary of the local band, and 26 members and friends sat down to an excellent repast, presided over by Mr. J. A. Trollope, supported by Mr. T. Beadle and others.

The usual business was transacted, and a vote of thanks passed to the Vicar and to the host and his assistants, to Mr. W. C. Parker, the steeplekeeper, and Mr. Trollope for presiding and acting as Deputy Ringing Master during the day.

A hearty vote of congratulation was accorded with acclamation to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goodfellow on their wedding, one and all wishing them long life and happiness.

Votes of sympathy were accorded to Mr. Holloway (Ringing Master) and his wife, the latter having been ill for several weeks; also to Mr. and Mrs. A. Pulling, of Guildford, on the latter's serious accident. Hopes were expressed for the speedy recovery of both patients.

SUNDAY SERVICE TOUCHES.

STEBBING.—On Sunday, September 11th, for morning service, with bells half-muffled, 240 Oxford Treble Bob, also 540 of Kent Treble Bob: H. Young 1, J. T. Barker 2, E. Claydon (conductor) 3, H. C. Ruffel 4, F. Harrington 5, J. Scholes 6. Rung in memory of the Rev. W. W. Judges, former Vicar of Stebbing.

BALCOMBE, SUSSEX.—For morning service, on Sunday, September 11th, 720 Oxford Single Bob: A. Coote 1, T. E. Exeter 2, C. J. Gasson 3, A. C. Gasson 4, C. Holman 5, A. E. Gasson (conductor) 6. This was rung after meeting short for a quarter-peal of Treble Bob.—For evening service another 720 Oxford Single Bob was rung with the same band, conducted by C. Holman. The 720 for morning service was the first in the method by the treble and 2nd ringers.

CHARLTON KINGS, GLOS.—On Sunday, September 4th, for evening, a quarter-peal of Stedman Triples (1,260 changes) in 45 mins., transposed from A. J. Pitman's four-bob set peal: H. Halford 1, M. Hicks 2, T. Dyer 3, G. H. Walters 4, A. Ruck 5, J. F. Ballinger 6, W. Yeend (conductor) 7, F. Simmonds 8.

BURTON-ON-STATHER, Lincs.—On Sunday, August 21st, for evening, 720 Kent Treble Bob in 26 mins.: H. Rushby 1, A. Thornton (first 720 of Treble Bob) 2, E. Godfrey 3, J. Coles 4, G. Hobbins 5, J. Bray (conductor) 6.

OXFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

NEWBURY BRANCH AND RINGERS' DIPLOMAS.

A meeting of the Newbury Branch was held at Brightwalton, on Saturday, September 3rd, when upwards of 20 ringers attended from Bucklebury, Compton, East Ilsley, Highclere, Newbury, Peasmore, Shaw, Woolton Hill and the local ringers. A short Guild service was held, conducted by the Rector (the Rev. H. Howard), who also gave a very interesting address. Miss Howard presided at the organ.

Tea was served in the Parish Hall by Mr. J. E. Hedges (foreman of the tower), assisted by lady helpers. Mr. R. T. Hibbert (general secretary) occupied the chair for a short business meeting in the absence of the Rev. L. R. Majendie (chairman of the branch), and was supported by Mr. H. W. Curtis (branch secretary and treasurer).

The sum of £3 was voted to East Garston towards the cost of re-hanging the bells at that church.

The question of diplomas for young ringers was discussed, and it was left to the foremen of towers to talk it over and report at the annual meeting, which was fixed for November 18th, at Newbury.

It was also decided to hold a combined practice at Peasmore on Saturday, September 24th.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the Rector for his address and welcome to the ringers, also to the organist.

Grandsire Doubles, Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob and Cambridge Minor were the methods rung.

SONNING DEANERY BRANCH AT WOKINGHAM.

A most successful meeting of the Sonning Deanery Branch was held at Wokingham on Saturday, September 3rd, ringers being present from Reading, Maidenhead, Cookham, Hitcham, Warfield, Dorking, Sandhurst, Twyford, Waltham St. Lawrence, Finchampstead, All Saints' and St. Paul's, Wokingham. Ringing commenced shortly before three at All Saints' Church, where a service was conducted by the Rector, who welcomed the ringers and spoke a few helpful words based upon 2 Timothy ii. 15, 20, 21. After service, the ringers adjourned to Great Mead, the residence of Miss Kemble, where a bountiful tea was partaken of, kindly provided by the Misses Robinson and Walker, and other ladies. Altogether 39 sat down to tea, including the Rector (Rev. B. Long) and Mr. F. E. Chapman, one of the churchwardens.

The Secretary expressed the thanks of the meeting to the Rector for the use of the bells and for arranging the service, to Miss Kemble for the room, and to the ladies who provided and served the tea. The Rector, Miss Kemble and Mr. Chapman responded, the last named remarking that all he knew about ringing was that in his father's parish, when he (the speaker) was a boy, they only had one bell, and they used to ring it quick for weddings and slow for funerals.

The Secretary mentioned that it was appropriate that they should be holding a meeting at Wokingham, as it was exactly seven years ago that very afternoon that Mr. Samuel Paice, a member of the branch and foreman of the local band, was laid to rest in All Saints' Churchyard.

Mr. White, of Dorking, and Mr. Fowler, of Cookham, spoke of their happy memories of the late Mr. Paice and of the high regard that they had for him.

Some handbell ringing took place on the lawn, and then the ringers made their way to St. Paul's Church, but, after half an hour's ringing, a request was received for the ringing to cease, because of a case of illness near by.

A return was accordingly made to All Saints', where ringing continued until 8.30.

The methods rung during the afternoon and evening were Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob and Treble Bob Major, and rounds for beginners.

NORTH BUCKS BRANCH.

A quarterly meeting of North Bucks Branch was held at Clifton Keynes on Saturday, September 3rd, this being the first occasion on which the branch had held a meeting at this place, which lays very wide of the other places in the branch. Although not a very large gathering, the attendance was sufficient to make it interesting, and the ringing was up to the standard.

Thanks are due to the Rev. C. W. Fulmer, Vicar of Clifton Keynes, for the reception he gave the branch and for his kind hospitality. Ringing commenced at 2.30 p.m., and a short service was held, conducted by the Vicar. Tea was provided in the Rectory grounds, and a very pleasant time was spent. The object of holding the meeting was to get the tower in union with the branch, but, unfortunately, this was not accomplished owing to the local ringers not being present, but hopes of this being attained at a later date were expressed.

Members from Bletchley, Emberton, Penny Stratford, Newport Pagnell and Stony Stratford were present, also visitors from the Beds Association and Mr. J. H. Shepherd, of Swindon.

The Secretary expressed a very hearty vote of thanks to the Rev. C. W. Fulmer for welcoming the branch and making arrangements, and to this the Vicar suitably responded. Further ringing took place, the methods rung ranging from Grandsire Doubles to London Surprise Minor.

PROPOSED GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD.

AN AUGURY OF FUTURE SUCCESS.

An informal meeting in connection with the proposed Guildford Diocesan Guild was held at Capel, Surrey, on Saturday, the principal object being to interest in the movement those connected with the three six-bell towers in that neighbourhood, viz., Capel, Newdigate and Ockley. To the older generation of ringers, Capel will be remembered as possessing at one time one of the foremost six-bell bands in the country, who in the late 'eighties rang a peal of fourteen 720's, in different methods, most of them Surprise Minor. Capel has a quaint little peal of six, two of them cracked and the rest out of tune. They are rung from a 'box' built into the roof of the church, but, nevertheless, they are bells with a history. The two oldest were cast by Richard Eldridge, the fifth in 1593, and the fourth in 1605. The Eldridges first set up their foundry at Wokingham, in Berkshire, and Richard was the second of the line. The fifth at Capel is his earliest product remaining in Surrey. Both these old bells were probably cast at Wokingham, although Eldridge had a branch business in the nearer town of Horsham, where from 1610 to 1622, at any rate, he paid an annual sum of 10s. to the churchwardens 'for the rent of the bell house.'

The meeting on Saturday was the first propaganda meeting held in connection with the proposed new Guild, and was a great encouragement to the promoters. Capel is not easy of access from the centre and western part of the county, but enthusiasm for the new Guild drew nearly thirty ringers to the village, and these, with wives and friends, made up a party of close on forty for tea. The meeting which followed was purely informal. The objects of the new Guild and the more important provisions in the proposed new rules were explained by Mr. J. S. Goldsmith, who appealed to the ringers of the three six-bell towers concerned to come into the Guild to strengthen the organisation in that part of the diocese, and to achieve again, if possible, that position in the forefront of ringing which once they occupied.

Mr. R. Whittington and Mr. C. Hazelden joined in the appeal, and the Rev. C. F. Carver (Vicar of Capel) and the Rev. J. W. Ward (Rector of Newdigate) expressed warm approval of the objects of the new Guild, and promised their hearty support.

A vote of thanks was accorded to these two gentlemen for their presence and for the use of the bells at their respective churches.

The Rector of Ockley was away from home, and, therefore, unable to be present.

Capel bells were rung to various methods during the afternoon, and in the evening visits were paid to Newdigate and Ockley. Newdigate, which has six bells, all by Thomas Mears, 1803, has one of the finest specimens of a wooden tower to be found in the country. Internally, the timbering is not only structurally perfect but artistically beautiful, while the well-kept church is a sheer delight. The Rev. J. W. Ward has only just come to the living after 30 years spent in Australia.

At Ockley, there is a square tower with an excellent ring of six. They are all by Richard Phelps, 1710, and are really an exceptional 'family' for that period. The church is very beautiful internally, and the chancel has a deep dado of marble which makes it almost unique among country churches in this part of England.

At these three towers, there is a great opportunity for advancing the art of change ringing. All the bells go well, and Ockley may some day be augmented. There are a number of change ringers in the district, although they are not now all active participants, but it is hoped that they may be united once again under the new Guild.

Visitors were present on Saturday from a number of towers, including Holy Trinity pro-Cathedral and St. Nicolas', Guildford, Haslemere, Godalming, Woking, Crawley, a whole bus load from Cranleigh and Ewhurst, and members of the local bands, while Mr. J. H. Shepherd, of Swindon, added three more to his list. As an augury for the success of the new Guild, the meeting was most encouraging.

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

On Saturday, September 3rd, the Western Division of the Sussex County Association held a quarterly meeting at Easebourne, a small village on the borders of Cowdray Park, where there is a handy little ring of six bells, a treble having lately been added, and the whole overhauled.

About 30 members and friends were present from Heene, Pulborough, Billingshurst, Kirdford, Shipley, West Tarring and the local members. The bells were kept going to the tune of Cambridge, Bob and Treble Bob Minor, Grandsire and Stedman Doubles.

Tea was served at the Village Institute, and at the business meeting, with the Vicar presiding, Heene was chosen for the next quarterly fixture.

A vote of thanks was proposed to the Rev. C. E. Hoyle for presiding and granting the use of the bells, and, after a few words of welcome from that gentleman, the members paid another visit to the belfry for further ringing.

HEIGHINGTON.—On Friday evening, August 12th, six members of the Darlington Holy Trinity belfry visited Heighington and rang on the bells of the village church 720 Beverley Surprise Minor: J. T. Titt 1, W. Oliver 2, R. Park 3, W. N. Park 4, F. W. Lupton 5, G. W. Park (conductor) 6. This was the first 720 of Beverley on these bells.

THE SPIRIT OF BROTHERHOOD.

What, for the sake of brevity, has become known as the Snowdon Memorial Dinner, although its object is to commemorate all the past officers of the Yorkshire Association, has taken its place as one of the most important ringing gatherings of the year. Yorkshire has produced a number of men who have left their mark upon the Exercise; the Association was one of the first, as it remains one of the greatest, of our ringing organisations; and it is well that there should be a periodical reminder of what the present generation owes to the men of the past, who laboured zealously and frequently in the face of opposition, to secure much of what we to-day enjoy in the Exercise. All of our associations are deeply indebted to the pioneers, and in these days, when some ringers have to be 'spoon fed' to retain their interest and to secure their advancement, it is refreshing to turn to those by-gone years and recall how the giants of the past, by their own unaided efforts, achieved their greatness.

Yorkshire had the privilege of claiming as its own one of the greatest of all the figures which have adorned the Exercise. There has been only one Jasper Snowdon, not only for the Yorkshire Association, but for the whole fraternity, and the acknowledged and unrivalled position which he gained in the affections of those who knew him, and in the esteem of those who profited by his work, make it fitting that his memory should be kept green among those who are now reaping the benefit of his great labours.

Saturday's gathering in York was in every respect a highly successful one, and some of the interest which it created can be gathered from the fact that not only were several of the great associations represented by officers, but individual ringers made their way to the ancient city from places as far distant as Bristol and Bournemouth. To the non-ringer, or to the man who never goes outside his own parish to ring, such enthusiasm may be difficult to understand, but anyone who has participated in gatherings such as this, whether they be in London, Birmingham, Bristol or Yorkshire, knows full well, not only the pleasure which is to be obtained from them, but the valuable service which they render by promoting that spirit of brotherhood which is one of the chief characteristics of the Exercise. The wider the circle of friendships the better can individual ringers appreciate the true spirit which should permeate their activities, and it is gatherings such as those which now annually take place in these big centres which develop this spirit in the best and broadest sense. We hope these dinners will be long continued and grow in popularity.

Clough 5, T. Wilde 6, J. Fernley, sen. (conductor) 7, W. Hartley 8. Rung with the bells muffled as a last tribute to Mr. George D. Warburton, for many years a ringer at this church, and lately of St. George's, Stockport, who was interred this day at Norbury.

GATESHEAD BELLS RESTORED.

The bells of St. Mary's Church, Gateshead, have been rebung by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, and were rededicated on Saturday week. The ceremony was attended by the civic authorities, and among those in the belfry during the dedicatory prayers were the Mayor (Alderman W. E. Wardill), the Deputy Mayor (Councillor W. Horn), the town clerk (Mr. W. Swinburn), members of the Council, the churchwardens, and Mr. T. Reed, who had given a donation of £100 towards the restoration. Mr. W. Story (ex-president of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association) was also present, and Mr. S. R. Roper represented Messrs. Gillett and Johnston.

The Rector of Gateshead (Canon H. S. Stephenson, M.A.) rededicated the bells, and the sermon was preached by Rev. G. W. Froggart, now Vicar of St. Thomas', Sunderland, who in the past was a keen ringer at St. Mary's, Gateshead. His address dealt with the different purposes for which the bells are used.

The Rev. G. W. Froggart, together with Mr. J. Stuart, Mr. R. Patinson and Mr. J. G. Lennox (who are still members of the Guild), were present at the rededication, after repairs, some 25 years ago. The dedication touch was rung by the members of St. Mary's Guild, and, after the service, members of the Durham and Newcastle Association rang a short touch. Tea was served in the Anchorage, adjoining the church, after which the merry bells were kept going with short touches in various methods until 9 p.m.

The original peal, according to records, consisted of six bells, but, in 1738, the bells were recast and two trebles added.

The services were continued on Sunday, September 11th, the preacher in the morning being the Rector. In the evening, Rev. A. W. Lister, Rector of St. Stephen's, South Shields, and late president of the association (who took part in the service ringing), preached the sermon, his remarks being based on the words, 'That's all—Stand.'

A peal board in the belfry records a peal of Grandsire Triples (5,040 changes) rung in 1790.

DEATH OF MR. MARK WOODCOCK.

It is our sad duty to record the death at the age of 54 years of Mr. Mark Woodcock. Learning to ring a bell at Witney, under Mr. J. Monk, he quickly rang his first few peals under the conductorship of the late J. W. Washbrook. In 1900, he migrated to London, and residing in the Hampstead district he soon joined the Royal Cumberlands, and with that society he made rapid progress. Being an excellent striker, he rang peals in methods from 6 to 12 bells.

He was also an able conductor, and called many peals, including the last peal rung upon the 10 bells at St. Stephen's, Hampstead, in 1905. In addition to the Oxford Guild and Cumberlands, he was also a member of the old St. James' Society (and took part in the first peal rung under the new name of London County), Middlesex, Kent, Surrey and Bedfordshire county associations, also of the old Waterloo Society.

He had rung upwards of 100 peals when ill-health compelled him to give up the art he loved so well.

Deceased was unmarried, and was employed by the Metropolitan Asylums Board. Two years ago he was pensioned off, and retired to his native home at Witney. He was laid to rest in the cemetery of that town on September 12th.

In addition to members of his family, at the graveside were his two lifelong friends, Mr. J. Monk, representing the Oxford Diocesan Guild, and Mr. F. Smith, the Royal Cumberland Youths. R.I.P.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION.

SPADE WORK IN THE WESTERN DISTRICT.

Quite a successful meeting of the Western District was held at Apsley End on Saturday, September 17th, when members attended from Tring, Berkhamsted, Hemel Hempstead, Redbourn, King's Langley, Rickmansworth, St. Albans and the local tower. The bells were kept going to Grandsire and Stedman Doubles, Plain Bob, Oxford Bob, Double Oxford, Double Court, and Kent Treble Bob during the afternoon and evening. The tenor stay giving way before service caused some delay, while splicing of a primitive kind was being attended to.

A short service, with very appropriate address, was conducted by the Vicar, while the hymns were considerably brightened by one member officiating at the organ.

Tea, very kindly provided by the Vicar, was partaken in the Church Room, where the course-end came up without a hitch, unlike some others during the ringing.

At the business meeting, the Vicar presided. The president sent apologies for his absence, but business comes first.

Berkhamsted was chosen for the next meeting, to be held early in November.

Two peals and bands were arranged at King's Langley and Redbourn respectively, and the secretary foresees that in the near future he will have no difficulty to fill up his bands, even in fresh methods. Another matter—not for print—was suitably arranged for. The question of gentle reminders to the Berkhamsted authorities with regard to their bells was left to the secretary.

Very hearty votes of thanks were accorded to the Vicar for his kindnesses extended to the association, and to the organist for his services. The Secretary announced that by early 1928 another peal of six would be available in the district, a treble having been promised at Great Gaddesden.

A course of Grandsire Triples was then managed 'in hand,' after which more spade work was done in the tower until 8 p.m.

LUGWARDINE BELLS AUGMENTED.

On Sunday, September 11th, at morning service, the Bishop of Hereford dedicated the two trebles to complete the octave at Lugwardine Church. The treble was given by Mr. Johnson in memory of his two sons killed in the war, so that the opening and dedication took the form of a memorial service.

The old six bells were very much out of tune, but have now been retuned at the Whitechapel Foundry, who also cast the trebles, thus providing another proof of what can be done by proper tuning, as these bells are now a very beautiful peal, and Lugwardine still possesses its old bells, perfectly tuned. The weights are as follows: Treble, 4cwt. 1qr. 18lb., F; 2nd, 4cwt. 1qr. 20lb., E; 3rd, 5cwt. 9qr. 3lb., D; 4th, 5cwt. 1qr. 14lb., C; 5th, 6cwt. 0qr. 2lb., B flat; 6th, 8cwt. 1qr. 13lb., A; 7th, 10cwt. 1qr. 23lb., G; tenor, 12cwt. 1qr. 20lb., F.

After morning service, several touches of Stedman Triples were rung, and again for evening service, Mr. A. A. Hughes taking part after morning service. The bells have all being rehung in ball bearings, the frame properly bolted and strengthened, and the whole work reflects the highest credit upon the firm for the masterly way in which the work has been done, and the whole of the parish are now justly proud of their beautiful peal.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD.

ST. PETER-AT-ARCHES' BELLS.

The half-yearly meeting of the Northern Branch was held at Harms-ton on Saturday, September 10th. Between forty and fifty members were present, amongst the towers represented being Bassingham, Bigby, Branston, Eagle, Gainsborough, Saxilby, Stow and Walsingham, while, in addition, some of the local company were present. The bells, a beautiful-toned ring of eight, were available during the afternoon and evening, and were kept going to various methods. There were rounds for the learners, some of whom were quite young, but seemed really enthusiastic, and showed good prospects of becoming efficient ringers in the near future. Owing to the Vicar being away from home and to the absence of the Rev. R. Bond, who had promised to officiate, but was unavoidably prevented from doing so at almost the last moment, Canon Swanzy (All Saints', Lincoln) took the service and delivered an instructive address. The Guild office was used, and the musical part of the service was heartily joined in by the members.

An excellent tea was provided at the Joiners' Arms, and was followed by the business meeting, at which Mr. F. F. Linley presided. Apologies of absence were received from Canon W. Hicks (Messingham), Canon Morris (Gainsborough), Rev. R. Bond (Lincoln), Rev. H. Law James (Guild Ringing Master), and the correspondents of the towers at Lea and Ashby-de-la-Launde.

The election of Mr. H. Rooke, Warsop, as a non-resident life member was confirmed. Barton-on-Humber and Scunthorpe were proposed for the next half-yearly meeting, and, upon a show of hands, Scunthorpe was selected.

Votes of thanks were unanimously passed to the Vicar and churchwardens for the use of the bells, Canon Swanzy for officiating at the service and his address, the organist for his services at the organ, the caterers for the excellent tea provided, Messrs. H. Marcon and J. Speed for making the necessary arrangements, and Mr. Linley for presiding over the meeting.

In responding, the president made reference to the bells of St. Peter-at-Arch, Lincoln, and expressed a sincere hope, on behalf of the members of the Guild, that should the time arrive for the demolition of that church, it would be found possible to retain the bells in the city of Lincoln.

Messrs. G. Chester and J. A. Freeman also spoke strongly in favour of Mr. Linley's suggestion, and on this being embodied in a resolution it was supported by the members.

A hearty welcome was accorded to the Rev. T. J. Pocock (Rector of Bassingham), who expressed his pleasure at being present.

This concluded the business, after which some of the members returned to the tower for further ringing, while others remained behind and took part in double-handed handbell ringing.

CLEVEDON.—On Saturday, September 17th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples (1,260 changes) in 44 mins.: *A. Durbin 1, F. Leaker 2, *W. Durbin 3, *C. Durbin 4, C. Jennings 5, W. Abrahams 6, W. Farley (conductor) 7, *S. James 8. Rung after meeting short for a peal. * First quarter-peal.

EALING.—On handbells, on Monday, September 19th, 2,160 Bob Minor, in 1 hour: Ernest Turner 1-2, J. Armiger Trollope 3-4, Wilfrid Wilson 5-6, being three 720's, one conducted by each ringer in turn. First 720 as conductor by ringers of 1-2 and 5-6.

DEVONSHIRE GUILD.N.E. BRANCH.

A quarterly meeting was held at Uffculme on Saturday, September 17th. The weather was glorious. No one could fail to enjoy ringing on such a splendid peal of bells.

The Rev. Maitland Kelly was an honoured guest, and the Rev. E. S. Powell was there for part of the meeting. Visitors also came from Exmouth, Buckfast, Newton St. Cyres, Milverton, Exeter, Thorverton. Seven out of the 10 towers were represented, and it was only due to a slight motor mishap that the Rev. F. Carter could not be present as he had intended.

In all, about 60 sat down to tea in the Parish Room.

Service was held in the Parish Church. The Rev. E. Powell and the Rev. E. Barton officiated, and a striking address was given by Prebendary Howard, Rector of Uffculme, the text being, 'His sound shall be heard.' During the meeting, Mr. Molineux made a suitable reference to the sudden death of the Rev. E. H. Hammond, who only so short a time ago had been elected an honorary member of this branch.

Two new associate members from Bradninch were elected, viz., William Bead and Stanley Glanville. The next meeting was fixed for Saturday, December 10th, to be held at St. Peter's, Tiverton. Votes of thanks were passed to the Rector and to all who helped to make the afternoon so successful.

NORTH NOTTS SECRETARY'S BEREAVEMENT.

Sincere sympathy will be extended to Mr. H. Haigh, hon. secretary of the North Notts Association, on the death of his wife, Mrs. Ellen Haigh, at 103, Gateford Road, Worksop, on Sunday last. Mrs. Haigh passed peacefully away in her sleep, after a short and painful illness, just after the bells of the Old Priory Church had ceased ringing for evening service.

One of the best of 'mothers' to many of the boys who were in training in the vicinity of Worksop during the years 1914-1918, the deceased lady will ever be remembered by those living. A devoted wife, she made many sacrifices for her husband's welfare, and gave him every help and encouragement in discharging his duties to the North Notts Association, always anxious that he should be doing that which would make the most people happy.

The remains of the deceased lady were interred at Ordsall, Retford, on Wednesday.

LOUGHBOROUGH VISITED.

On Saturday, September 10th, the Long Eaton ringers and a few friends had an outing, the party numbering 13. The journey was via Shepshed, Whitwick and Woodhouse Eaves, the towers of each of the churches in these places being placed at their disposal, and various touches of Stedman and Grandsire Triples, Kent, Bob Major, and touches in Minor methods being rung on the bells. Tea was partaken of at Woodhouse Eaves. The return journey was made via Loughborough, where ringing took place on the bells of the foundry. The party were met by Mr. Stubbs, who first of all showed them 'Great Peter,' which has been cast for York Minster. The bell was in a frame, and it was swung for the benefit of the ringers to note the magnificent tone. The party were also conducted round the foundry, where several different rings of bells were in course of preparation, and great interest was taken by the members in the various processes of bell making. Afterwards, the ringers adjourned to the ringing tower, and some amusement was caused when various members tried for the first time to handle the bells. However, several touches were rung. Thanks were expressed to Mr. Stubbs for his assistance. A very enjoyable outing terminated only too quickly, and the party wish to thank the steeplekeepers of the churches visited for having the bells ready. Hearty thanks were expressed by the members to Mr. A. Hickton for the way the outing had been arranged.

ARMLEY RINGERS' OUTING.

On Sunday, September 11th, a party of ringers from Christ Church set out for the day by motor. The first stop was Bedale, which was reached in good time for morning service ringing. This proved rather an arduous task on this heavy ring of eight, and full justice was done to the dinner served soon afterwards at the Waggon and Horses. The party arrived at Middleham before 1 p.m., where Mr. H. Parrish kindly had everything in readiness. After ringing, the lord of the manor took the visitors round his gardens, and also brought out his fine set of handbells, on which a course of Grandsire Triples was rung. The next place of call was East Wilton, where a short touch of Minor was rung, after which they made for Masham. Having had tea at the latter place, they rang for evening service, and then made for home, after a most enjoyable day.

They would like to take this opportunity of thanking all who assisted in making their outing a successful one.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

'Great Peter,' the 10½ ton bell, cast at the Loughborough Foundry for York Minster, has been hoisted into the lofty north-west tower this week. Great preparations had to be made for the task. It was necessary to remove the centre pillar of the west tower to get the old bell out, and, of course, this pillar cannot be replaced until the new bell is inside the Minster.

There was a brief service on Tuesday outside the west doors to welcome back the 'great chieftain of the bells,' as a special hymn composed for the occasion styled it.

A 'Sharp' lad has just rung his first peal, at the age of 13, at Harrold, Beds. A son of Mr. W. Sharp, he only commenced to ring a bell early in the year. He gets no regular practice, but can ring Woodbine, Kent and Oxford Treble Bob, as well as Oxford Bob and Plain Bob and other methods. These are the kind of boys who deserve encouragement, and Joseph Sharp is to be congratulated upon his youthful promise.

One of the experts would like to state that a theoretical extension cannot be a fact. A fact cannot be extended. Extension or elaboration of a fact causes it to have too many false course-ends, which act against the market value of the peal supply. Ergo, when a fact is not a fact you get a lot to the dollar on change.

An invitation for a peal is capable of extension. The fellow that wears the sprained ankle had three for August 27th, two of which came off O.K. A sprained ankle is capable of extension to infinity. Anyone enclosing a stamped addressed envelope to 'Uncle Joe' will receive the composition and proof scale.

The bells at Braughing, Herts, were opened on September 25th, 1745, and the first peal rung on them five days later by the Braughing Youths.

William Shipway was born at Bath on September 29th, 1760.

A report received on Wednesday states that there is a slight improvement in the condition of Mr. A. H. Pulling, of Guildford, who is lying in Hertford County Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull. He is more conscious and sleeping more naturally.

Mrs. Pulling remains at Hertford, and wishes to thank all friends for their further kind and sympathetic enquiries.

GLOUCESTER'S ELIZABETHAN RINGERS.

In the churchwardens' accounts of St. Michael the Archangel, Gloucester, this entry occurs every year during the reign of Queen Elizabeth:—

'The ringers for the ringinge of the prosperous raigne of the said Queene's Majesty Vis. VIII.'

When Elizabeth was Queen, one day in every year, The air was full of chiming bells that echoed far and near, From every tower and spire, through street or country lane, The praises of her Majesty's most happy, prosperous reign.

In Gloucester all day long they ring; from the cathedral bells Over the city and beyond—deep-toned—the music swells; *St. Mary and St. Nicholas tell ship and creaking wain, The praises of her Majesty's most happy, prosperous reign.

St. John-the-Baptist now begins; St. Michael makes reply; The Crypt Youths ring †St. Mary's bells in friendly rivalry. ‡St. Giles beyond the river sends a peal across the plain— The praises of her Majesty's most happy, prosperous reign.

'O God, save Queene Elizabeth,' the bells of Sandhurst pray— By faithful subjects thus inscribed—and on this glorious day, In joyful concert ringing, they loyally sustain The praises of her Majesty's most happy, prosperous reign.

§St. Swithin and ||St. Laurence and ¶St. Leonard sweetly ring; St. Mary's bells at Painswick further still the message ding; The city now is girdled round with bells that tell again The praises of her Majesty's most happy, prosperous reign.

MANCHESTER TOWN'S HALL'S JUBILEE.

On Tuesday, September 13th, in connection with the 50th anniversary of the opening of the Manchester Town Hall, the following touches were rung on the Town Hall bells by members of the City Police Force, viz.: 846 Grandsire Caters, 396 Grandsire Caters, 216 Stedman Caters, 504 Grandsire Triples, by P.C. W. Spicer, P.C. J. Mulliner, P.C. D. Brown, P.C. W. Pye, P.C. H. Paynting, P.C. G. Pye, P.C. J. Turner, P.C. J. Carter, P.C. J. Wilson, P.C. F. Page, P.C. G. Barlow.

CLEVEDON, SOMERSET.—On August 20th, a quarter-peal of Grandsire Triples in 45 mins.: R. Williams 1, N. Coombs 2, T. Wyatt 3, L. Moore 4, E. Goldstone 5, H. Knight 6, J. H. Collier (conductor) 7, G. A BEGINNER'S THEORY.

BY 'MINORMANIA.'

This is the eighth of the series of articles which have been specially written for beginners by 'Minormania,' to explain to them the theory of change ringing. These articles are not merely for perusal. If they are to serve the purpose for which they are intended they must be studied.

MORE ABOUT EVEN AND ODD ROWS.

I concluded my article last week by saying that I would next explain some 'short cuts' in the determination of even and odd rows.

The first thing to remember is that two bells cannot make a changing pair, unless they take the place of each other—unless they 'swap places.' Secondly, that to get any two bells into the places of each other, WITHOUT DISTURBING THE ORDER OF THE OTHER BELLS, will always require the changing of an ODD number of pairs. The bells may be placed anywhere in the row, not necessarily next each other, but to get bell A into B's place, and to get B into A's place, without altering the order of the other bells, will always result in an odd number of pairs being changed, and cannot be accomplished by changing an even number of pairs.

Now we are concerned with the total number of pairs required (to bring our row back to rounds) only so far as to whether the total be odd or even. The number '1' is as much odd as is '199.' Therefore, if we make two bells 'swap places' straight away and call it ONE PAIR, we have achieved the same end, as if we did it in full and called it 199 pairs, thus:—

- (6) 2345 (1) 7890 is odd, because it takes one pair (the 6-1 pair) to (1) 2345 (6) 7890 bring rounds.

When we are convinced of this, we can take our jumbled row at random and bring the bells 'home' (that is, to their rounds positions) one at a time, by making them change positions with another bell, every time this is done calling it one pair. The total of 'ones' will be either odd or even, thus determining the nature of the original row.

In one of the examples which follow, we see the bells brought 'home' for single pairs; and in the other example we have the same effect, but at the same time changing other pairs. First bring the treble home if possible, then the tenor, and work downwards if it is convenient. There is a reason for this getting the big bells home, as will be shown:—

- 8 3 1 7 6 4 5 2
 (1) 3 (8) 7 6 4 5 2 One pair (1/8) brings the treble home.
 1 3 (2) 7 6 4 5 (8) One pair (2/8) brings the tenor home.
 1 3 2 (5) 6 4 (7) 8 One pair (5/7) brings the seventh home.
 1 3 2 5 (4) (6) 7 8 One pair (4/6) brings the sixth home.
 1 3 2 (4) (5) 6 7 8 One pair (4/5) brings the fourth and fifth home.
 1 (2) (3) 4 5 6 7 8 One pair (2/3) brings the second and third home.

Total six pairs, so that the original row is even. Here follows the same row, dealt with in the shorter manner:—

- 8 3 1 7 6 4 5 2
 2 1 3 5 4 6 7 8 Four pairs (8/2, 3/1, 7/5, 6/4) bringing home 3-6-7-8.

- 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 Two pairs (1/2, 5/4) bringing home 1-2-4-5.

Total six pairs, therefore original row is even.

Another 'short cut' to finding the nature of the rows is to bring the big bells 'home,' as is done above, and then to recognise the nature of the smaller bells AS THEY STAND, without bringing them 'home.'

In the example above, where we brought the bells home by single pairs, there is a row 13245678, which is the result of changing 83176452 by five pairs, and, judging by these five pairs, we have come to an 'odd' conclusion, AS FAR AS WE HAVE GONE; but we are not yet back to rounds.

Here let us consider the rows upon three bells. The greatest number of different rows that we can produce from '123' is six; three are produced by changing 'even' pairs, and three by 'odd' pairs. If we substitute '234' for the '123,' we shall get three rows of each class, as follows:—

EVEN ROWS: 234; 342; 423.

ODD ROWS: 243; 324; 432.

These six rows are easily memorised, and can quickly be recognised 'within' any row AS THEY STAND. By 'within' is meant between other figures, thus: 00423000, etc.

We have brought our original 83176452 back to 1(324)5678, by changing 'odd' pairs (5), and all of the bells are in 'rounds order' except 324, which, as it stands, is 'odd.' Therefore, (5) 'odd' pairs, plus 'odd' 324 gives an even result; and we may know that our original 83176452 is even, without bringing it right back to rounds.

Further examples:—

14326587 is odd, because 1(432)(65)(87) = change two pairs (6/5 and 8/7) and leave 1-5678 at home, and the 432 is odd.

Therefore, even (2 pairs) plus odd (432) gives an odd row (14326587).

84236671 is even, because (8)(423)(65)7(1) = change 2 pairs (8/1 and 6/5) leaves 1-5678 at home, and the 423 is even.

Therefore, even (2 pairs) plus even (423) gives an even 84236671.

The 'odd plus even, etc.,' laws hold good in every possible way. We have considered 'rows plus pairs,' and now will consider 'rows plus

ROWS.'

When transposing the lead-ends and internal rows, by means of our red and black cards, we have been transposing one row by another row. In covering 123456 with a red row, and transferring to the black row underneath, we transpose the red row at the top by the black row underneath. The 123456, which we cover, does not really enter into consideration; we only use it, UNCONSCIOUSLY, for reference purposes.

Let us understand, then, for the future, that if we transpose row 'A' by row 'B,' 'A' is the red row which covers 123456, and 'B' is the black row underneath, to which we proceed to transfer the red cards.

An odd row, transposed by an odd row, gives an even row. The odd row 83716452 (or row 'A'), transposed by the odd row 38647125 (or row 'B'), will give the even row 72415836. Cover 12345678 with row 'A' (83716452) in red cards, and place in black underneath, 38647125 (being row 'B'); transfer the cards as before, in the order of the 3-8-6-4, etc., which is underneath. The result will be as given. Bring the three rows back to rounds and see if it is correct.

Similarly with the remainder of the laws. An odd row 'A,' transposed by an even row 'B,' will give an odd row as the result, etc., etc. Make up some rows and prove it to be true.

We are now equipped to apply the principles of transposition (by pairs and by rows), and the laws which govern 'in-course' and 'out-course' rows, to any simple problem with which we may have to deal. FIXED BELLS.

The 'extent of variations' means the greatest possible number of differing rows obtainable, by using a given set of figures. The 'extent' of '1' is one row; that is to say, '1' can be placed in only the one order in the 'row.'

When another number is added, the extent of the lower set is multiplied by the higher number of figures, thus: The extent of '1' being one row, the extent of '12' is two rows (the extent of '1' multiplied by the two figures). The extent of '123' is six rows (extent of '12' multiplied by the three figures). Of '1234,' it is twenty-four rows (extent of '123' multiplied by the four figures), etc.

In another way, it is the multiplication of the whole of the separate numbers—1 x 2 x 3 x 4 x 5 gives 120 rows, being the extent of '12345,' and so on.

The reason for this can be explained. The addition of the extra number enables the extent of the lower set to be repeated, for every position held (in the rows) by the extra number. For example, the extent of '123' is six rows, and the addition of 'No. 4' will have this effect, the 0's representing the other bells in any order:—

Six '123' rows, with '4' in the first place in each—4000 (4123, etc.), ditto ditto second ditto —0400 (1423, etc.), ditto ditto third ditto —0040 (1243, etc.), ditto ditto fourth ditto —0004 (1234, etc.).

Therefore, '4' must not appear in any particular 'place' more than six times, because the extent of the lower set ('123') is limited to six rows; and if, for instance, '4' appeared on the front (or in the first place—4000) seven times, we should only be able to produce six variations of '123' to follow the '4,' and the seventh time would produce a 'false row' (otherwise, a repetition). It follows, that ANY one of the numbers (1-2-3 or 4) must not appear in the same place (in the row) more than six times, because the extent of the remaining three numbers is limited to six rows.

Similarly with any row; with '123456' any bell may appear in the same place 120 times, because this is the extent of the remaining five bells; moreover, to produce an extent, each bell MUST appear in every place the full number of times allowed. She must not do more or less.

The way of ensuring this is to make certain bells follow fixed paths throughout the 720, whilst the remaining bells are compelled to produce the extent of their variations; the fixed path may be repeated lead by lead in the case of one bell, course by course in another, part by part in the case of a third bell, etc.

The path of the treble bell is set lead by lead—it may be a 'plain hunt' or a 'Treble Bob hunt' path that she follows, but it repeats itself lead by lead. In Plain Bob, she steps from place to place as the fresh rows appear, travelling from the front to the back (one step at a time), and back again to the front. This set path causes her to appear in each place (in the row) twice in every lead, and thus we require 60 leads to put her into each place the necessary 120 times. We see that the leads are governed by the path of the treble.

In Treble Bob methods she is caused to appear in each place (in the row) four times in every lead, and therefore only 30 leads are necessary. The treble is the 'most fixed' of our fixed bells.

DENHOLME, YORKS.—At St. Paul's Church, on Tuesday, August 23rd, a quarter-peal of Kent Treble Bob Major (1,280 changes) in 45 mins., the bells half-muffled as a token of regard and respect to the memory of Mr. G. Denny, whose interment took place same day: V. Bairstow 1, J. Windle (longest length) 2, H. Atkinson 3, A. Smallbones 4, B. Holmes 5, W. Proctor 6, A. Bairstow (conductor) 7, M. Harrison 8.

HARWELL, BERKS.—On Tuesday, August 16th, 720 Grandsire Doubles: C. Hitchman 1, H. Palmer 2, J. Bosley 3, W. Hitchman (conductor) 4, R. G. Rice 5, W. Corderoy 6.—Also 360, with J. James 5th, the rest as before. Rung as a welcome to the new incumbent, the Rev. J. C. Cohen, M.A., late Vicar of St. Cyprian's, Macclesfield, who visited the belfry and thanked the ringers for their greeting to him.

YORKSHIRE COMMEMORATION DINNER.

JASPER SNOWDON AND PAST OFFICERS.

An enthusiastic gathering of Yorkshire ringers took place in the ancient city of York on Saturday for the sixth annual Snowdon Commemoration dinner. The event was a highly successful one, thanks to the excellent arrangements made by the local committee, of which Mr. T. F. Earnshaw was hon. treasurer and Mr. G. Horner hon. secretary. The fact that the new ring of twelve bells at the Minster were available was an added attraction, and this noble peal was rung for an hour before the morning service, and for two hours in the afternoon, Grandsire and Stedman Caters and Cinques and Treble Bob Maximus being the methods.

Dinner was served at the Windmill Hotel, and was presided over by the Bishop of Whithy, the company numbering nearly 140. The president of the Yorkshire Association (Rev. C. C. Marshall) was in the vice-chair, and Yorkshire ringers were present, many of them with their wives, from all parts of the county. The chairman was supported by Mr. P. J. Johnson (hon. secretary of the Yorkshire Association) and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. J. Cotterell (hon. treasurer) and Mrs. Cotterell, and the members of the local committee. Among the visitors were Mr. T. Groombridge (Master of the Ancient Society of College Youths), Mr. A. Walker (Ringing Master of St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham) and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Goldsmith (Woking), Mr. W. H. Shaker (hon. secretary of the Lancashire Association) and Mrs. Shaker, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smallwood (Derby), Messrs. C. Johnston (Croydon), J. Oldham and J. P. Fidler (Loughborough), J. W. Rowbotham (London), H. Chapman (Manchester), W. Storey, W. H. Barber, P. S. Anderson, A. Payne, J. E. Keen, G. Pickering, R. Thompson (Newcastle), R. Richardson (Surfleet), J. H. Goldsmith (Woking), H. Marson (Lincoln), J. T. Newton (Bedford), F. A. Holden (Cranwell), W. Bibby (Frodsham), H. Hemming (Bristol), E. Bishop (Swindon), T. F. King (Bath), W. Thomas (Bristol), H. G. Hampton (Bournemouth), J. G. Adams (Olney), R. B. Rowley (Lancaster), W. Haigh (Rochester), and others. Telegrams conveying good wishes were received from the College Youths and Mr. F. E. Dawe, and letters from Canon Nolloth (formerly of Beverley), Mr. Barrow (Minster Chapter clerk), Mr. G. Lewis and Mr. C. L. Routledge (Newcastle).

Mr. Routledge, in expressing his regret at being unable to be present through another engagement, wrote that he wanted to press the claims of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association to some substantial support from the Yorkshire Association when they celebrated their jubilee on Saturday, October 29th, at Durham City. Their associations had worked hand in hand for many years, although he must say the Yorkshire Association had offered more attractions to members of the Durham and Newcastle Association than the latter had to Yorkshire. He thought his association had paid more visits to Yorkshire—official and otherwise—than the Yorkshire Association had to Northumberland and Durham. Their visit to York to ring for a service on July 4th to commemorate the 1,300th anniversary would long live in his memory and those of his colleagues. On behalf of his members, he wished to say they would welcome a handsome support from the Yorkshire Association on October 29th, if they could see their way to come north. Mr. Routledge said his recollections and memories of Jasper Whitfield Snowdon and Harry Hattersley were necessarily scanty, but very happy and pleasant—another reason why he would have loved to be with them.

'BELLRINGERS ARE MAD.'

Mr. F. Cryer (Selby), proposing 'The Church and State,' said he loved the old Church and the State—the Church first and the State next, for that was the order of history. The Church of this country was in existence before the form of our country was settled, and the Church had had a good deal to do with the settling of the State from the beginning. Our country was a fine country, and with all her faults was a proud country. There was no Church to equal the old Church. A parish church was the very centre of all things in a parish. He was not one of those who thought the Church was going to the dogs because of Prayer Book revision; she would revive through it and become stronger. He wanted to see the Church and the State pull together in harmony. The Church could help the State, and the State could help the Church, and the result would be for the good of the people. He hoped the Church and the State would be found working in union for the good of the people (applause).

Canon John Solloway, D.D. (Vicar of Selby), made a very humorous response, and caused laughter when describing all bellringers as mad. He had actually seen bellringers go up the belfry and pat the bells and stroke them (laughter). He had known bellringers from Selby go away, and once when they returned they said they had had a splendid outing. He asked, 'Were the sands very nice?' and they replied that they did not see the sands; they went to Thirsk and had spent all the day in the tower. If that were not a sign of madness he did not know what it was (renewed laughter). Bellringers, he continued, were doing an essential work in connection with the Church of God and the Church they were serving. It was a ministry—(applause)—they were calling people to church by their bell invitation. He knew bellringers never left the service before the end (laughter). He hoped the Church of England would always work in union and harmony with the State, whilst they were working and pulling together he thought they need fear nothing at all either for the Church or the State. The Bishops and the National Assembly working for the Prayer Book revision were doing their level best not for the good of themselves but for the good of the Church (applause).

A GREAT INSTRUCTOR AND HISTORIAN.

In proposing the toast of 'The memory of the late Jasper Whitfield Snowdon and past officers of the association,' Mr. J. S. Goldsmith said there were two respects in which Jasper Snowdon stood out above all other ringers in the view of those who had not the privilege of personal acquaintance with him. He had been the greatest instructor of ringers and the greatest historian of our art that the Exercise has ever had. His aptitude as an instructor was first evinced in his own belfry at Ilkley, when, having taken up the study of change ringing seriously in the year 1871, he and the young band with him, without the advantage of any elementary book on ringing to assist them at the start, learned five different Minor methods and rang extents of each of them within ten months of their beginning. Knowing what they did to-day, there was no need to speculate as to who was the inspiration of this remarkable progress. But of Jasper Snowdon's work as an instructor, almost all could speak from personal experience. Who, among the ringers of to-day, did not owe to his 'Rope-sight,' his 'Grandsire,' his 'Treble Bob,' and his 'Standard Methods,' to mention only some of his works, a great deal of their knowledge of ringing? The number of those who had not either directly or indirectly acquired the basis of their knowledge of ringing from these books must be small indeed. No one up to Jasper Snowdon's time ever explained the intricacies of the art so completely or in simpler or more lucid language. There have since been imitators and those who had endeavoured to improve upon his style, but in his (the speaker's) opinion he had no compeers, and certainly no superiors, as an instructor, while it was beyond dispute that no individual, since the beginnings of change ringing, had taught the rudiments of the art to so many people as Jasper Snowdon, for, although he had been gone from them for more than 40 years, he was still educating the young ringers through his unsurpassed text books. In speaking of Jasper Snowdon's status as an historian of the Exercise, the speaker quoted the words of the late Canon Wigram, who wrote that Jasper Snowdon, in this respect, 'held a position in the ringers' community absolutely unapproached. There are other ringers, other conductors, other composers, and also other authors of instruction for beginners, but there has never been any other true historian of the science. In this department he stands alone, and it is impossible to say which is the most remarkable, whether the amount of information which he collected, the patience with which he arranged it, or the critical skill with which he assigned to each composer the degree of merit which belonged to him.' Later discoveries, continued Mr. Goldsmith, had added to the mass of material which Jasper Snowdon unearthed with such painstaking zeal, but the sum of history since laid bare was not a tithe of that which he expended so much labour to collect, and most of which in various forms he handed on for all to read. These—his work as instructor-in-general and his labours as historian-in-chief to the Exercise—were perhaps the two things for which he stood out most conspicuously to those who had no personal touch with him.

A CROWDED LIFE.

He (the speaker) could not, however, turn from Jasper Snowdon without a word as to that side of his character which revealed itself to those who knew him best. The things which most impressed everyone with whom he came in contact were the electric enthusiasm which animated him and the dynamic power of his personality. In his enthusiasm he carried others with him, and he became the great driving force which lifted the Exercise in Yorkshire to the great position which it attained. Think of what he did in fifteen short years for ringing alone. He started at the beginning and learned method ringing, he pursued it in practice and studied it in theory. He carried out his great researches into the history of the art, and investigated many of the mysteries of the science. The shortcomings of the ringing literature at that time were quickly revealed to his keen perception, and he became the author of innumerable articles which appeared in the ringing press, and wrote several text books, which have not only stood the test of time, thus showing how thoroughly he did the work, but have become standard treatises in the Exercise. He was largely responsible for founding the Yorkshire Association, and filled the office of president for ten years—the first and most difficult years in its annals—and guided its destinies with unerring hand until his early and untimely death. In this short period, therefore, he did as much, if not more, for ringing than any other man in a lifetime, and yet this was only one phase of his energies and many-sided interests.

What was the secret of his great achievement? It was partly his great intellect, his unbounded energy, his unconquerable determination, but, above all, it was the fact that he religiously put into practice the precept which he enunciated in one of the very first letters he ever wrote to the press on ringing matters. In February, 1872, he wrote a letter to 'Church Bells,' explaining, as an encouragement to others, how the band at Ilkley had rung the five methods in ten months—a remarkable achievement in those days, and one which was publicly challenged as being commensurable with the proverbial fishermen's yarn. He concluded that letter by saying that perseverance was all in this as in everything, and added, 'Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might.' If any man ever applied that text to all he undertook, that man was Jasper Whitfield Snowdon. That, undoubtedly, was the great secret of his success. Jasper Snowdon not only accomplished much, but he set a great example. He began with nothing to help him. What he achieved, he achieved by his own application, energy and enthusiasm. If there was one regret which they all must feel with regard to Jasper Snowdon it was that he died too soon.

OTHER PAST OFFICERS.

But, continued the speaker, if they, as an association, were singularly fortunate in their first president, they had been fortunate also in the other officers, who, through the past fifty years had carried on the work. The men who rallied round Jasper Snowdon in the first days of their association were men of grit and men of faith, as well as men of enthusiasm. He need not go through all the list of those who had gone from them, but he could not pass on without mentioning the names of one or two. There was, for instance, William Snowdon, who not only succeeded his brother Jasper as president, and for 25 years gave his unstinted services to the association, but who, up to his death only a few years since, laboured with the labour of love to complete the work for change ringing in other directions, which his brother had so well begun. Then they had such men as William Horner Howard, one of their first vice-presidents, William Whittaker, their first secretary, Charles and Thomas Hattersley, the Lockwoods, Charles Jackson, George Bolland, and others. They were worthy successors of a long line of Yorkshire men famous in ringing annals, and each in his own sphere helped to lay the foundations of that association broad and deep, foundations upon which the members were successfully building and would continue to build. In this edifice which they were erecting, these men had their niche; with all who knew them they had left happy memories and the inspiration of a great example. To future generations they might be but names, but all the while they held these annual dinners they would keep their memory green and could, if they would, clothe their names with something of the spirit which pervaded those men in life. And they would do more than that. They would remind their own members of their debt to the founders of their association, and to those who had laboured to make it the success it had been for more than half a century, and they would remind the Exercise at large of what it owed to men like Jasper Snowdon, and of the example which they set to strive, not so much for what could be got out of ringing, as for what could be put into it. If they could do that, those gatherings would be not merely the enjoyable social events which they were, but something that would have a much greater and most lasting value (applause).

The toast was honoured in silence.

THE MINSTER BELLS.

Mr. P. J. Johnson, in proposing 'The Visitors,' said they had ringers present that evening from both ends of England, from Newcastle down to Bristol. There were representatives present from the Ancient Society of College Youths, the Winchester Diocesan Guild, the Bath and Wells Association, the Gloucester and Bristol Association, the Salisbury Guild, the Durham and Newcastle Association, the Lincoln Guild, the Lancashire Association, St. Martin's Guild, Birmingham, the Midland Counties Association, Kent and Surrey Associations, and he welcomed them heartily to York. Mr. Johnson referred to the absence of Canon Nolloth, and said all the ringers of England owed him a great debt of gratitude for what he had done for ringers. Mr. Johnson welcomed the presence of the Rev. R. S. Pine, and Canon Solloway, who took such a great interest in the ringers at his famous church. They were glad to welcome such stalwarts as Mr. Albert Walker, whose name was famous in twelve-bell ringing, and Mr. Thomas Groombridge, the Master of the College Youths, whose fame as a heavy-bell ringer was known to them all. There was also another name which they remembered with affection, the name of Story, and they were delighted to have Mr. Story with them. They offered a real Yorkshire welcome to all their visitors, and hoped they would carry away with them kindly memories of a hearty reception. It gave him the greatest pleasure to propose the toast, and to couple with it the names of the three ringers he had mentioned.

Mr. Albert Walker, who first responded, thanked the Yorkshire Association for the welcome extended to the visitors, and said he valued highly the inter-association work which was being done in some parts of the country, and which was helped forward by such gatherings as that dinner. They had seen instances of it recently between the Essex, Middlesex and Hertfordshire Associations and a short time ago the Yorkshire Association and St. Martin's Guild had a very successful joint gathering. He wanted to congratulate the Yorkshire Association and the York Minster authorities and ringers on the splendid peal of bells they had got, and, if he might be allowed to do so, he would like to suggest that they should, if possible, make a little improvement to enable the bells to be heard more distinctly in the new ringing room. In the old belfry they were too noisy; now it was difficult to hear the trebles, but he thought it was a matter that might easily be adjusted.

Mr. T. Groombridge said he was most happy to be present to represent his society. It was almost like coming to a home from home, because he had met so many there whom he had met before. He thanked the Yorkshiresmen for their kind reception, and wished their association continued prosperity.

Mr. William Story replied on behalf of the northern contingent, and he was delighted to know that they had been able to bring a party of nine from Newcastle. He paid a tribute to Jasper Snowdon, whom he met in 1885, although he never had the pleasure of ringing with him. He met a friend of Jasper Snowdon the other day, who spoke of his genial character and his thoroughness in all he did. Mr. Story referred to the coming jubilee of the Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association, and invited the members of the Yorkshire Association to visit Durham on that auspicious occasion.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY GUILD.

A MIDLAND TOUR.

The 16th annual tour of Cambridge University Guild was held this year in Northants and the surrounding counties. It was admirably arranged by Mr. E. M. Atkins, headquarters being at Isham Rectory, near Kettering. A peal attempt was arranged for each morning, and two or three more towers were visited each afternoon. A new feature was the arrangement by which members attended local practices in the evenings, and this and the friendly way in which they were received by the steeplekeeper and local ringers everywhere was very much appreciated by everyone. A special word of thanks is due to the steeplekeepers, some of whom had to wait many minutes for the arrival of the visitors, for anyone who has been in a ringing week will know how hard it is to keep to a prearranged timetable with any degree of success. Handbell ringing was also indulged in in the evenings, but no handbell peals were rung, although Double Norwich was attempted once or twice.

Twenty towers were visited during the week, the two real treats of the tour being, perhaps, St. John's, Leicester, and All Saints', Oakham, than either of which it is hard to imagine a finer peal of eight. Grandsire Cinques and Treble Twelve were rung at St. Margaret's, Leicester. Illness near the church, unfortunately, prevented ringing on the beautiful peal at Rothwell, where the bells have the reputation of ringing Double Norwich automatically, but the Guild has already rung a peal there, on the 1921 tour, and on this visit a course of Little Bob was rung on handbells in the Bone-crypt by the light of candles.

Of the five peals attempted, three were successful, starting off on Monday evening with a good peal of Kent at Burton Latimer, and this was followed on Tuesday morning by Bob Major at Newport Pagnell. On Wednesday morning, Parker's peal of Cambridge was lost at Gilmorton, after half an hour's ringing, but on Thursday a peal of Grandsire Caters was successfully brought round at Kettering. Friday provided one of those tragic last-course breakdowns which seem almost unbelievable when outside the tower, but which happen from time to time to the best of bands, and without which no ringer's peal record would be really complete. On this occasion a peal of 5,378 Bob Major was lost after 5,344 changes had been rung in 3 hrs. 41 mins. at Monk's Kirby. The following conversation, which passed between two of the ringers during this peal attempt, immediately after a small trip in 3-4, should, I think, be put on record:—

'The position in which we dodge together in 3-4 has now come up.'

'What did you say?'

'Oh, nothing. It's too late now.'

Which shows that even the most disastrous peal attempts may have their amusing sides.

Saturday morning saw the breaking up of the party, after a most enjoyable week's ringing.

LOYALTY!

In his speech at the Snowdon Commemoration Dinner, the President of the Yorkshire Association (the Rev. C. C. Marshall) emphasised the importance of loyalty in the success of the organisation. No society can prosper without the loyalty of its members; it is the secret of success in all undertakings where success depends upon co-operation. Not a few of our associations suffer to-day from the lukewarm loyalty of the members. It may show itself in a general lack of interest in the association's work, a slackness in paying subscriptions and in numerous other small ways, but whatever form it takes it is a source of weakness to the society, as well as being a direct discouragement to those officers and members who strive to build up the organisation and make it worthy of the cause which it is established to promote.

Equally necessary is it that ringers should be loyal to their own tower. The man who, to the detriment of his own band, neglects his own belfry, whether it be from apathy, or from a desire merely to be in better company, is a poor asset to the Exercise. The man who professes to be a ringer and lets his comrades assemble for service or practice ringing while he stays away for no genuine purpose, knowing that they will be short-handed, exhibits the worst type of disloyalty with which ringers have to contend. The man who is always late is another kind of bugbear to all who have a desire properly to discharge their duties or to make progress in the art. The success of an association is founded on the success of the individual bands, and lack of loyalty to one is bound to react upon the prosperity of the other.

Who among the enthusiasts has not had the galling and discouraging experience of meeting short for practice or peal, or of having to ring perhaps four, five, or six bells for service in a tower where there are eight or more? And this not once, but time after time, not because there are not enough ringers in the parish, but because some, or maybe only one or two, are too indifferent to their responsibilities and to the loyalty which they owe to their colleagues to make just that little effort necessary to take their part in the ringing. They not only stay their own advance in the art, but are a distinct bar to the progress of the rest of the band. The ideal condition would be a Sunday service company in every tower, a company not only in name, but in desire and enthusiasm, keen upon its work, regular and punctual. Where such bands exist they are the backbone of any association, and it is to this side of their development that ringing organisations will have to turn in future if they desire to make real advance. Success in these days cannot be counted entirely by the number of peals that may be rung, but rather by the number of churches at which the bells are regularly rung for the Sunday services; not merely by counting heads, but by the sum of loyalty and keenness displayed by the members towards their association and in their work. If the President of the Yorkshire Association thought it necessary to make an appeal to the loyalty of his own members, it is no less necessary that this same appeal should be brought home to the ringers in every county and diocese.

ICKLETON BELLS.

RINGERS' BIG GATHERING IN ANCIENT VILLAGE.

The little Cambridgeshire parish of Ickleton, which was created long centuries ago on the ancient Roman Icknield Way, but never seems to have grown up, despite its hoary age, has recently been in the throes of one of the few thrills which have disturbed the even tenor of its long, long history. Most readers of 'The Ringing World' are acquainted with the events that have happened. One day, about a year or so ago, when the old six bells were being rung, the decrepit tenor collapsed, and ringing for the time being was at an end. The Rector, the churchwardens, and the ringers, and, indeed, all the parishioners were greatly concerned with the silence of their bells, and, despite the smallness of the parish and the fact that they were already committed to an organ restoration scheme, they faced their troubles boldly and set about raising funds to put their bells in order. But until the latter were taken out of the tower the villagers did not know the worst, for it was then found that the frame was past repair, and three of the bells were cracked. A comprehensive scheme of restoration was, therefore, necessary, and the bells were taken away to the Croydon Foundry to be recast. With such a complete clearance of the belfry necessary, it was felt to be a great opportunity to increase the ring to eight, and, with unexcelled enthusiasm and in great faith, the Rector and the Parochial Church Council decided upon the larger scheme.

Then came a bombshell. When a faculty was applied for, the Chancellor for the diocese of Ely, sitting in the Consistory Court, roundly trounced everyone concerned because the old bells had been removed with a tenor of 18 cwt. 2 qr. 21 lb., which means a ring of bells with body as well as tune in it. And the 'go'! The whole peal is on ball bearings, and so it is almost needless to say that in this respect, also, there is nothing to be desired. Indeed, they go too easily, as was apparent to some of those who visited Ickleton on Saturday, when a meeting of the Ely Association was held there to give the bells a 'ringers' opening.' There had already been an 'initiation' service—the dedication, according to the rules of the diocese, cannot take place until the bells are free of debt—and this was the ringers' opportunity. They seized upon it with both hands, and never before in its long history had Ickleton held so many ringers at one time. There were nearly 80 there from all parts of Cambridgeshire and beyond.

TOO EASY!

Quite early in the proceedings the too easy running of the bells revealed itself, and someone, used to bells where real pulling is necessary, failed to put the second carefully against the stay, with the result that something had to go, and the timber snapped off short at the stock. A little delay to remove the remains of the broken member and then more touches were rung, what time one of the local band, who works at a carpenter's bench, fashioned a new stay. In between the touches a ringer had patiently to hold the bell on the rope, but it was successfully managed, until it had to be lowered at service time.

The ringing at Ickleton Church is done in the centre of the building, where nave and transepts meet, and so the ringers are not out of sight and out of mind. They are in full view of the congregation all the while they discharge their service duties. The church itself has no mean claims to distinction. Part of the existing building is Saxon, dating from shortly before the Norman Conquest, while four of the pillars, with their capitals, carrying the arches, are actually of Roman origin, having been brought by the Saxon builders from Chesterford (the Camp by the Ford), which is the neighbouring parish, and which was the site of a Roman settlement. There are also some twelfth-century pew ends, and outside the spire is hung the ancient Sanctus bell. Bells similarly hung are to be found in the neighbouring parishes of Hinton and Duxford, and at Histon and Fulbourn (Cams), Great Oxiborough (Norfolk) and Wickham Market (Suffolk), but they are not often to be met with.

A brief and hearty service was conducted by the Rector (the Rev. P. H. Cooke), whose short but appropriate address was an appeal to ringers to take up their work with reverence, regularity and earnestness, and in the spirit of worship.

Tea was served in the Parish Room, and in providing the meal the ladies responsible rose admirably to the occasion, for, as usual, there were more present than had been expected.

The places represented were: Barley, Cambridge, Chatteris, Castle Camps, Croydon, Dry Drayton, Fulbourn, Grimsby, Hitchin, Harlow, Ickleton, Long Stanton, Over, Royston, Stapleford, Sawston, Swavesey, Trumpington, Waltham Cross and Woking.

The Rector afterwards extended a hearty welcome to the association, and said how pleased they were to have such a large gathering of ringers. They were particularly pleased to have with them Mr. Cyril Johnston, the founder of the bells, and Mr. J. S. Goldsmith, the editor of 'The Ringing World.'

There was not a great deal of business to be done, but what there was was interesting.

Mr. Frank Warrington, the district secretary, suggested Bourn as the next meeting place, and Littleton for a joint meeting with the Herts County Association. This opened the way for discussion on the question of joint meetings, in the course of which Mr. Finch made a spirited appeal in support of them, pointing out the advantages to be gained from fraternising with ringers outside their own area.

Eventually it was decided to hold a meeting at Bourn in five or six weeks' time, and to leave the district secretary and Mr. G. T. Croft, district secretary of the Herts Association, to consult as to a joint meeting at Littleton.

Mr. C. H. Howard (Master of the Essex Association), Mr. C. F. Johnston and Mr. J. S. Goldsmith were elected life members of the association.

Mr. Johnston, freshly home from the opening of the great Ottawa carillon and a successful business tour in the United States, had to make a speech in reply, and, referring to the recent happenings in the Consistory Court, caused much laughter by saying that he understood that the Rector was a 'bad man,' the churchwardens 'were not nice to know,' and the bell founders were not to be trusted in any tower in the diocese. Ickleton's reply, he said, was the best answer that could have been given. They added two treble bells, and the Rector and churchwardens refused to retire (apology).

THE RECTOR'S 'RECOVERY.'

Mr. Goldsmith, in also acknowledging his election, remarked that although he was glad to become a member of the association, he had not come to Ickleton specially for that purpose, but he had come to hear the new peal of bells and to view the wreckage of the Rector (laughter). He was delighted to find such a splendid recovery from a 'knockout,' and he hoped the churchwardens were as cheerful as the Rector appeared to be.

On the motion of Mr. T. R. Dennis, hearty thanks were accorded to the Rector and to the ladies who had prepared and served the tea.

A member raised the question of peals being arranged on meeting days, and this led to a diversity of views being expressed, some holding before the application was made and permission given. He suspended the churchwardens, reported the Rector to the Bishop, threatened the bell founders with ostracism in the diocese, and refused the faculty! Were the Ickletonians dismayed? Not a bit of it. They were sorry that they had not complied with the letter of the law, of course, but—well, the tower was empty, and they had got eight new bells at Croydon, Simpson tuned, with beautiful modern fittings, a lovely iron frame, and scrumptious ball bearings! So the bells and all connected with them came back to Ickleton, and, although the good people of Ickleton are still sorry they have not got a faculty, they have got their bells, which is the thing that matters most to them. And a fine peal they are. Messrs. Gillett and Johnston have turned out an octave in

TENTERDEN RINGERS' LONG EXCURSION.

St. Mildred's Society, Tenterden, had their annual outing on Saturday, September 3rd. The party were augmented by Mr. C. W. Player, of Stone, Mr. J. G. Pattenden, Rye, Mr. and Mrs. Baker, Frittenden, and Mr. W. Wenban, Staplehurst, and a visit first paid to East Grinstead, a run of over 40 miles through glorious country. After an hour's ringing on the fine old bells, the party proceeded to Crawley, of peal ringing fame. Lunch was arranged at the George Hotel, and Mr. O. Sippetts kindly met the party, who spent a very pleasant hour with this delightful little peal. Then away to lunch, and a right good meal was provided (despite short notice). Accompanied by Messrs. Sippetts and Bull, St. John's, Redhill, was visited, and the journey continued to Bletchingley, where they were met by Mr. Ashdown, who made them welcome. After enjoying some touches, the men of Kent took farewell of Messrs. Sippetts and Bull, and went on to Godstone, where tea had been arranged at the Clayton Hotel, and ringing took place on the glorious little peal by Messrs. Gillett and Johnston. Tenterden was eventually reached again at midnight, after a journey of about 130 miles through three counties. The methods rung during the day included Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob, Double Norwich and Kent Treble Bob Major. The ringers wish, through 'The Ringing World,' to thank the clergy at the various towers visited, and all those ringers who helped to make the day such a success.

that loyalty should be shown to the association by avoiding peal attempts when meetings were to be held, and others that it was not always possible to avoid the clashing of these two things, while in the Ely Diocese one of their difficulties in the past had been lack of peal-ringing bands.

Mr. P. Webb, the captain of the Ickleton ringers, expressed the pleasure of his band at the presence of the large number of visitors. Many of them, he said, were distinguished ringers, composers, conductors, and stay breakers (laughters). He was particularly glad to welcome the editor of 'The Ringing World,' because in all probability, but for the support which he had given through his paper, they would not have been able to do all they had done in Ickleton. The least the ringers could do was to support the paper in return (applause).

The ringers then returned to the belfry, and ringing was kept up to a late hour, the methods rung ranging from Grandsire Triples to Cambridge and Superlative Surprise. It was a great day for ringing in Ickleton, and one which will leave pleasant memories with all the many visitors.

About £130 is still required to complete the bell restoration fund, and contributions from ringers will be gratefully acknowledged by Mr. Webb.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.MEETING AT HENBURY.

Considering the inclement weather of the past week, the Bristol Branch were favoured in having a fine day for their monthly meeting at Henbury on Saturday last. Henbury is a splendidly situated village in pleasant wooded country, and adjoining the famous Blaise Castle and woods, and much pleasure was afforded by a visit to this park by some of the members after the meeting. Thanks to the local members, who include the popular chairman of the branch, Mr. J. Gould (captain) and Mr. R. Devenish (sec.), everything was in readiness, and the bells were rung up to service time at 4.30. The service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. Canon C. P. Way), and Mrs. Way presided at the organ. Tea followed in the schoolroom.

At the business meeting, at which 30 members were present, representing 11 towers, Mrs. Way (the wife of the Vicar) was elected an associate member. In the course of the general business, the Chairman reported upon the arrangements being made for the jubilee of the association, which is to take place at Bristol on Whit Monday next.

The Secretary read a letter from Mr. S. H. Wood, thanking the members for their kindness on the occasion of his 21st birthday.

The usual vote of thanks were passed to the Vicar and Mrs. Way, also to Messrs. R. Devenish and Phillips for arranging the tea. The Vicar, in reply, said the chairman had told them about the association's jubilee next year, and he would also tell them it was the jubilee of the reopening of their ancient church at Henbury, which was reopened in 1878; therefore the jubilees came together, and he hoped the association would come to Henbury on that occasion. He was pleased to see the lady ringers present in such good numbers. He paid a high tribute to his own captain of ringers, who had been captured by a lady ringer. He could not ask them at present to drink the health of the association, but he wished it good luck 'in the Name of the Lord.' The Vicar's speech was loudly applauded, and concluded the meeting.

Those who visited the Vicarage gardens and Blaise Castle heard to full advantage the music of the bells in Triple and Major methods, which were rung up to the time of departure.

BELFRY GOSSIP.

The ringing week in South Wales resulted in ten peals being scored in 13 attempts, Surprise peals being rung in four counties. The visitors received a very hearty welcome, which made up for the rain and mist experienced during the week. The details of the performances will be forthcoming, we understand, in time for our next issue.

The bells of Farndon, Cheshire, have just been rehung by Messrs. Taylor and Co., and the octave will be open to ringers on Saturday, October 8th.

Mr. T. Maude, who was among those present at the Snowdon Commemoration Dinner at York, was one of those who attended the funeral of Jasper Snowdon at Ilkley in November, 1885.

Members of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild will have their first opportunity of meeting the new Bishop of the diocese at a meeting to be held at Wellingborough on Saturday, October 8th.

The organising committee of the new Guildford Diocesan Guild hope to see a large attendance at the new cathedral city to-morrow, when the first of a series of preliminary meetings is to be held. There is much business to be done, and this is the time when the ringers in the diocese can help to shape the destinies of the Guild.

'Uncle Joe' Sykes, who is now in Copenhagen, is able to hobble about with the aid of sticks. His ankle is improving. Denmark is the tenth country to which 'Uncle Joe's' weekly copy of 'The Ringing World' has been sent.

On this day, in the year 1783, a peal of 10,080 Bob Major was rung in 5½ hours at Oldham. This peal was a preliminary to a 14,480 in the same method in 8 hrs. 24 mins. in the following January.

On October 1st, 1793, this length was exceeded at Aston, where Joshua Short called a peal of 15,360. This still stands as the record peal of Bob Major.

Exactly twenty years ago to-morrow the first peal of Bristol Surprise was rung on handbells. This was at Romford, conducted by Mr. Wm. Pye.

The first peal of Stedman Cinques (6,024) at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields was rung on October 6th, 1788, and the first peal at Exeter Cathedral on October 6th, 1902.

It is unusual for a local band to have a practice immediately after a visiting band has rung a peal. This happened at Great Easton last Saturday. While the Rector entertained the visitors, the locals rang several 120's. Afterwards, the visitors showed them how to ring Plain Bob and Grandsire in the 'new' style, and then the locals did the original 120 in the 'old' style—i.e., by the treble man shouting 3-4 dodge, 2-5 bob, etc.

A report on Wednesday stated that Mr. A. H. Pulling's condition was satisfactory.

MR. WARREN STURGIS' VISIT.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—May I, through your columns, express to each and all of the ringing friends I have met this summer my appreciation of the cordial welcome my son and I have received on all sides. Truly a fine feature of our noble Exercise is the universal bond of sympathy among its votaries. Whether in London, with old friends and experts of the College Youths, or among new friends at Bath and far-off Edinburgh, we were most heartily welcomed, and our very moderate ability most kindly encouraged.

We return home with increased regret that we have here so few opportunities for ringing, but with countless happy memories of the bells and brother ringers of England. Best greetings to them all.

Groton, Mass.,
September 11th.

METHOD EXTENSION.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—I have been away from home and so unable to deal with the letters from 'A Plain Ringer' which have appeared in 'The Ringing World' lately.

The extension of Superlative really raises the whole question of method extension, and I propose, as soon as I can spare the time, to discuss the question.

At present, different people are working on different lines, and so naturally arrive at different results, and this causes confusion, so that plain ringers do not know what to think.

I will for the present ask everyone interested in the matter to consider what the word 'Extension' means.

A BEGINNER'S THEORY. BY 'MINORMANIA.'

This is the ninth of the series of articles which have been specially written for beginners by 'Minormania,' to explain to them the theory of change ringing. These articles are not merely for perusal. If they are to serve the purpose for which they are intended they must be studied.

EFFECT OF 'FIXED' BELLS.

The 'positions' at which we introduce our 'call rows' will have the effect of 'fixing' our observation bell, but she is not tied down as much as the treble. She roams more, but, nevertheless, certain limits are fixed. The W.R.W. callings fix the tenor's path 'course by course'; she follows the same path in every course throughout the 720, and, being undisturbed by the calls, the path she pursues is the same that she would traverse throughout the plain course.

The effect of a fixed path upon the rows is that it causes the 'fixed bell' to appear in the SAME POSITION in every corresponding row of the section, in which the fixed path is completed. Thus, the treble completes her fixed path lead by lead, and she appears in the same place in every corresponding row of each lead; in other words, if she is in fourth's place in row No. 4 of one lead, then she will be in the same place at row No. 4 of every lead.

The tenor, being fixed 'course by course,' will appear in the same place in every corresponding row of EACH course (not each lead, but each course), so that, if she should appear at 000600 in the 25th row of one course, she will appear similarly in row No. 25 of every course.

Courses are built up of leads—there are five leads to the course in Minor. Each lead is a unit of each course, and, therefore, the 27th row of each course is also the third row of a certain lead.

Thus, with the treble fixed in corresponding rows of the leads, and the tenor in corresponding rows of the courses, it follows that in every corresponding row of the courses BOTH the treble and tenor will appear in the same two places. If in row 27 of one course we get 001060, then in every '27th row' we shall get 001060; '0000' represents the other four bells, which must produce the variations in the corresponding rows.

The particular calling (at W.R.W.) also fixes the path of bell No. 5, but in this case 'part by part'; so that she completes her fixed path an every 'part' of the extent. Every lead being a unit of each course, and every course a unit of each part, it follows (on the lines set out above) that at every corresponding row in EACH PART, 1-5-6 will be in similar places. If in the 27th row of one part we get 001560, then these same positions will be occupied by 1-5-6, in every '27th row' in each part.

The fixing of one bell leaves five others to perform the variations, and, therefore, she is allowed to be 120 times in the same place; the fixing of two bells allows of only 24 times in the relative places TOGETHER. The fixing of three bells permits of only six times that these three bells may occupy the same three places in the row (six rows being the extent of the remaining three bells, '234').

If we examine the lead-ends of our plain course, we shall find that the treble comes 'home' at every lead-end, but that no other bell comes home at a lead-end until the last lead-end of the plain course (in other words, the 'course-end'). In our 720, the tenor is undisturbed by the calls, travelling only the plain-course path, and, therefore, she comes 'home' at every course-end, 100006, etc., and completes her fixed path, as shown in the first part given. The calls disturb the 5th bell, making her path irregular in the courses, but set in the part; so that, while she may come 'home' at a lead-end in the part, she never comes home at the same time as the tenor until the 'part-end' (134256, etc.), where she completes her fixed path by coming home at the end of it. Each of the fixed bells recommences her path through her particular section, from the same place (in the row) in which she first commenced.

Our 720 is divided into six equal parts (three in each half of the extent), and '156' come home together at the six part-ends. We can see, in these six rows, that '234' perform their full variations, but they are not allowed to come home until the last part-end.

If we were to examine every row in one part of the extent, we should find that '156' (taken collectively) occupy the same positions (in the row) once only in that part. Therefore, however '234' be placed in the rows, we cannot get a repetition in this one part, because '156' are differently placed in every row.

The '156' occupy the same positions in corresponding rows of the other parts (only once in each part), due to the fact that they commence the parts from the same 'platforms' in the part-heads (otherwise the part-ends), viz., 100056. Conversely, '234', taken collectively, are DIFFERENTLY PLACED in the row, at every part-head, and, therefore, will NOT occupy the same positions in the corresponding rows of the parts. Then, because the fixed bells DO hold the same positions in corresponding rows, and because the unfixed bells DO NOT do so, the truth of the six parts is beyond question.

Provided: That '156' do not appear in the same relative positions in two rows of the one part. If this did occur, it would mean two rows in every part, twelve rows in all, and we know that '234' can produce only six variations.

Provided also: That the fixed bells occupy the same places at the part-heads, and that the unfixed bells do not do so.

In Treble Bob methods, the 'zigzag' path of the treble bell causes her to occupy the same place (in the row) four times in each lead, and, therefore, only 30 leads are permissible (to produce the 120 times in each place allowed). We still have five leads to each course, and two courses to each part, giving 10 leads to the part; but our leads have twice as many rows as the plain methods, and, therefore, the first three parts of our calling produce the 720.

The remarks regarding '156' apply to Treble Bob methods, with modifications. Instead of appearing in the same positions, in one row only of each of the six parts, they appear twice in each of the three parts, and here the laws which govern 'odd and even rows' are applicable.

In our plain methods, '234' (examined by themselves) will be found to be 'evenly placed' within the rows at the three part-heads in the first half—023400, 034200, and 042300. In other words, 234, 342 and 423 are the 'even' rows on the three bells, and, '156' being at home, we may know that these three part-heads are 'even rows', in fact, all of the lead-heads in the first half are 'even.'

The introduction of the single at the half-way (applying our 'even plus odd, etc.') has the effect of making all of the lead-heads in the second half into 'odd rows,' and, therefore, 234 are 'oddly placed' within the rows at the other three part-heads—024300, 043200, and 032400. The single not only reverses the nature of the heads, but every row is likewise reversed, because we start from an even basis (123456) in the first half, and from an odd basis in the second half (the single at 124356). Therefore, every corresponding row in the two halves is of a reverse nature; that which is '+' in the one will be '-' in the other. The single always has this effect, until another is introduced, which (applying 'odd plus odd, etc.') puts the rows back again, as it were.

If the single is introduced at any lead-end previous to the 'half-way,' as is done in the I.O.I. calling, a similar action takes place, and we get the 'odd half' sandwiched in between two portions of the 'even half'; the first portion being prior to the first single, and the second portion subsequent to the second single.

Singles are not used in Treble Bob methods, because the 'dodging' path of the treble has the effect of introducing the 'odd-half' rows into the ordinary leads, thus welding the two halves into the whole. Every lead-end in a Treble Bob method is an even row, and thus '234' are evenly placed within our three part-heads—023400, 034200, and 042300; and in each part-head they are differently placed, whilst '156' hold the same positions, as heretofore.

With '156' appearing in the same positions in two rows of the same part, it is possible to get repetition; but we should find, upon examination, that in one of the two rows '234' will be evenly placed, and in the other they will be oddly placed. This being so in the one part, it will be the same in the other two parts, with the result that, in the whole, we shall get three even and three odd rows, with 156 in the same positions. If the two rows in the one part are both even, then all of the six will be even, and with 156 being in the same places in the six rows, we can know (because 234 cannot produce six even rows) that our extent will be false. Similarly, if both are odd, in the same part, we have a false extent.

In passing, we may notice the practical effect of the single. In the first half of our extent, we commence from 12(34)56, and in the second half from 12(43)56—'34' being reversed, with '1256' in the same positions. Therefore, '1256' will be similarly placed, row for row, and '34' will each take the place held by the other, row by row, in the two halves. Thus: (4)21(3)56, (3)21(4)56, etc. So that, '1256', collectively, are fixed bells, but only 'half by half.' Naturally, they are only fixed in the same positions in one row in each half, leaving '34' to perform their two variations.

ADDERBURY BELLS RESTORED.

The peal of eight bells at Adderbury, near Banbury, have been rehanging by Messrs. Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, in an iron frame resting on steel girders. The 6th bell has been recast, as it was found to be cracked. All the fittings are of the latest and best make, with notable recent improvements, and the stone work inside the belfry has been thoroughly restored.

The Bishop of the diocese will dedicate the bells at a service to be held on October 25th, at 3 p.m.

The original peal was of six bells only, but they were recast into eight in 1789 by John Briant, of Hereford. The weight of the tenor is over 25 cwt., and the peal is one of the best in the county.

DURHAM & NEWCASTLE DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Southern District was held at Willington on Saturday, September 24th, and was well attended, the following towers being represented: Holy Trinity and St. Cuthbert's, Darlington; Bishop Auckland, Shildon, Staindrop and Willington. The meeting had been arranged for the benefit of the local band, who are endeavouring to gain some knowledge of the art of change ringing. The peal is only one of five, and touches of Grandsire and Plain Bob Doubles were rung. Tea was served in the Rectory grounds, after which courses of Grandsire Triples and Bob Major were rung on the handbells.

A vote of thanks was accorded the Rector for the use of the bells, and to the ladies for preparing such an excellent tea. A visit was again made to the tower, where touches of Grandsire and Stedman Doubles were rung, and members of the local band expressed themselves satisfied by the progress made.

THE SNOWDON COMMEMORATION DINNER.

A MESSAGE FROM MRS. SNOWDON.

In proposing 'Continued prosperity to the Yorkshire Association,' the president (Rev. C. C. Marshall) first read a letter which he had received from Mrs. Laura Snowdon (widow of the late Mr. W. Snowdon), who wrote: 'I must send a few lines to say how much my daughter and I will think of you on Saturday. We do feel so grateful of your kind recollection of those who are gone, and appreciate your kindness. I hope the day may be fine in what we can only call a very wet year.' They would all appreciate that kind thought, said Mr. Marshall, and he felt he would be acting in accordance with their wishes in saying that their thoughts went out to Mrs. and Miss Snowdon that day, and in conveying to them their very best wishes (applause). It was, perhaps, fitting, he continued, that he, as their president, should propose that toast, although he felt very strongly, coming third in the line of very notable presidents, how inadequately he fulfilled the office. Fortunately, he had been, and was still, served by most excellent officers, and that enabled them to carry on the work. Although he could not hope in any way to emulate the distinction of his predecessors, there was one thing in which he yielded to none, and that was in his desire to uphold the traditions of that great association, and to guide it, as far as he was able, with the aid of the other officers, in the lines of continued progress which had been laid down for them by those who had gone before. Taking the toast as his text, he said, 'Continued prosperity' took them back to the thought that, at any rate, they took for granted that the history of the association had, up to that moment, been a prosperous one, and he felt they would all agree that that was so. He had before him the first report of the association, issued in 1875, when it started with a membership of 104, and had a balance in the bank of £10. The membership to-day was between 1,400 and 1,500, and he was proud to say they had invested funds of £250. That was on the material side. On the other side they thought of the great names of those who had passed, and whose memory they cherished to-day, who had done so much to build up this great association on good and solid lines. It was the desire of the present generation, and especially the desire of the officers, to uphold the great traditions which had been handed down to them and hand on their trust, at any rate undiminished, and, perhaps, in some way enhanced (applause). Passing on to the next word of the 'text,' 'Yorkshire,' Mr. Marshall said there were other associations, other county associations—they had heard of a few of them that evening—but for them there was only one association, and that was the Yorkshire Association. It was that of which they spoke that night, that whose continued prosperity it was his honour to propose. They thought of it as a very distinctive association, as they thought of Yorkshire as a distinctive county. They were proud of their association. They were proud of the men who had built it up by their personality and their work. There was a distinctive characteristic in Yorkshiremen, and he had been told that at the meetings of the Central Council in the old days it was a real delight to the members from other parts of the country to hear the well-known voices of the Yorkshire stalwarts. He hoped the Central Council would for ever be proud to hear the well-known Yorkshire accents in their midst.

JASPER SNOWDON.

First President of the Yorkshire Association.

LOYALTY TO THE ASSOCIATION.

It was distinctively the Yorkshire Association they thought of that night and of which they were proud. It had its difficulties in its size, and it was a matter of great concern to the officers of the association to know how they could deal with the great district which they had to cover. They felt very grateful to those of their northern brethren who did their best to uphold a difficult task in that part of the county, and who had done their best to help forward the work of the association in the North. And not only were they grateful, but it was something which they wanted to bear in mind and try to make the association one which really did cover the whole of the county. They were proud, as ringers, to belong to a great brotherhood, and he hoped that the Yorkshire Association would always itself remember that. It was as a great brotherhood of ringers that they met together, and it was as a great brotherhood that they wanted to think of that association and work together for the good of the whole. That brought him to the last part of his 'text.' The object the committee had in view was to advance the interests of change ringing and to make the association in every way a society of practical ringers. The qualification for a member was that he must be a change ringer. That was something to keep before them, and it should always be their aim to foster change ringing in its different branches. He hoped there would come forward in the present generation men who would follow in the steps of the great men of the past, who had done so much to advance change ringing in its more intricate parts, and as a great science. What would they say must be the secrets of that future prosperity! He would only just mention two things. One, surely, must be loyalty—loyalty to the association to which they belonged, and that was what they asked for from all their members. They wanted members to think of the good of the whole, and think of what they could give to the association and not what they could take from it. Let them learn to be punctual in fulfilling their own obligations. It was not always the case. Most people who were in charge of associations found there were some members who gave them great trouble in this matter, some who were dilatory in paying subscriptions. If there was anything he could say which would lead members to be loyal to their association and to think of the good of the whole rather than of themselves, then, perhaps, there was some little good he may have done. The other secret was handed down to them by their first president—real zeal and real earnestness in anything they undertook (applause).

The toast was cordially honoured.

A BISHOP 'IN THE SOUP.'

Mr. T. F. Earnshaw proposed 'The Chairman.' He said they thought such an important gathering of ringers, which had for its object the revival of memories of the late Jasper Whitfield Snowdon and past officers of the Yorkshire Association, warranted them in approaching even a Bishop to take the chair, and they were delighted when their invitation was accepted. As the occasion was worthy of their chairman, it went without saying that the chairman was well worthy of the occasion (applause). They regarded their chairman as essentially a Bishop for men, although it was quite evident from the good sprinkling there that night that he also had many admirers among the ladies (laughter and applause). Some two or three years ago the Bishop originated and organised mass meetings for men, held at intervals during the winter months on Sunday afternoons in one of the largest halls in York, and never failed to get a packed audience. The general feeling was that whatever the Bishop of Whitchy took in hand was sure to be a success, hence their daring in asking of him some of his valuable time to preside over that gathering. Three years ago the late Dean of York (now, as they all knew, Dean of Westminster) was in the chair—he was also 'in the soup' very early in the proceedings (laughter). They were all glad that the Bishop of Whitchy had escaped that misfortune, and they thanked him for his genial presence and the admirable way in which he had presided over them.

(Mr. Earnshaw's reference to the Dean being 'in the soup' related to the fact that a plate of soup was accidentally tipped down his back during dinner.)

The toast was drunk with enthusiasm, and the Bishop thanked the company for their kindly and warm welcome. He said he felt they had a right to claim his services for such an occasion, because he was, as Suffragan Bishop, a leader of the Church in that diocese, and they were a gathering of real church workers. He had never had much to do with ringing, he continued, although ringers once did him a great honour. When he first saw the light in a tiny little Devonshire village, 15 miles from a railway station, in the middle of the night at the end of December, the ringers walked through two feet of snow to ring a peal to congratulate his parents on his birth (applause). He had scarcely lived up to that reputation of being ushered into the world by a peal. While at his training school, Wells College, after leaving Oxford, he was asked whether he would like to learn to ring, but he did not get far. He learned to ring rounds, but got no further. He did, therefore, learn something of the A B C of ringing, but he had no time to go on with it. He had heard that at Coventry, where he was for a short time Vicar, the old bells had been recast, an action which, he believed, many of them considered to be a mistake. He hoped that the idea of many years' standing, that there should be a campanile and that Coventry Cathedral should have a peal of bells worthy of that wonderful church, would be realised (applause). He wanted to say, the Bishop added in conclusion, how delighted he was to be present with them. He had enjoyed a good dinner—the second he had had that day at someone else's expense (laughter)—he had enjoyed the speeches and music, but, more than all, he had enjoyed the delightful spirit of good fellowship (applause). Long might their association continue, long might it prosper, and go on from glory to glory and add to the glory of the glorious county of which they were never tired of speaking in their Yorkshire Association of Change Ringers (applause).

THE MINSTER BELLS.

Mr. J. Cotterell proposed a vote of thanks to the Dean and Chapter for the use of the Minster bells. Three years ago, he said, when Dean Norris presided at that gathering, they mentioned that the bells were in poor condition. On their next visit they now found the old bells had been replaced by a peal which was one of the best in England (applause). The last time the association held its annual dinner at Leeds they referred to the condition of the bells there, and he hoped when they went to Leeds next year they would find their suggestion had had a similar result (applause).

The Rev. A. Spence, Chamberlain of the Minster, replied to the vote, and said he had no doubt the remarks made by Mr. Walker, with

DEATH OF MR. BEN FOSKETT.

'FATHER' OF THE ROYAL CUMBERLAND YOUTHS.

The death of Mr. Benjamin Foskett, which took place at Kenton, Harlow, on the 20th inst., removes another link in ringing history.

Born at Aston Clinton, Bucks, in November, 1846, Ben began ringing as a young man on the six bells at the village of Great Missenden. In the early 'seventies he migrated to Oxford, and here, at Magdalen College, he rang his first peal (Grandsire Triples) in 1875. During a residence in the Oxford district of some nine or ten years he kept in touch with the local ringers as far as time and business would allow.

About 1882 he removed to London, and after settling down came into touch with the late George Newson and Henry Dains, with whom he rang a good number of peals for the Royal Cumberland Youths, the chief of which was the 13,440 Double Norwich at Romford on April 18th, 1894. 'Old Ben' had many interesting reminiscences of this peal, more particularly of the attempt at Brentwood three weeks earlier, when his rope came down around his head less than 400 changes from the end.

Mr. Foskett had been a regular attendant at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields on Sunday mornings from the inception of the company in 1916 until February, 1926, when the weight of years became too much for him. At this time he was living in Cricklewood, but a little over a year ago he moved out to Kenton. He had taken part in 147 peals, the last being Kent Treble Bob Major at Willesden in August, 1924.

The interment took place at Willesden New Cemetery on Saturday, September 24th, in the presence of the family mourners and a large number of ringers. Mrs. Foskett, a venerable lady of some 85 years, was unable to be present, and the service was consequently held previously at the deceased's home. At the graveside, therefore, the committal portion of the service only was used, following which a course of Grandsire Caters was rung over the open grave by members of his old society.

The esteem in which 'Old Ben' was held was shown by the large number of wreaths, among which was one from the Willesden ringers and another from the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths.

Thus has passed from human ken another of the stalwarts of the Exercise, and one whose whole life was a model not alone for ringers, but for all men. R.I.P.

ENCOURAGING YOUNG RINGERS.

CLARE DISTRICT'S SUCCESSFUL ENTERPRISE.

A small but very successful meeting of the Clare District of the Suffolk Guild was held at Cowlinge on Saturday last. The local band were augmented by visitors from Newmarket, Lavenham, and Long Melford, and some well-struck six-scores were rung during the afternoon. A generous tea was provided by the people of the parish, and was served in the Parish Room, presided over by the Vicar, who expressed his thanks to the people of the parish for their kindness and support in providing the tea for the ringers.

Mr. G. C. Bixby, district secretary, of Long Melford, added a few words of appreciation to the people for their kindness, also to the Vicar for his kindness in presiding and for the use of the bells.

At the business meeting after tea, a suggestion was made, that 'This meeting desires to draw the attention of the Guild to the lateness of the getting out of the annual reports, also to the great expense of these reports wherein there is much that could be omitted.'

The ringers were favoured by a visit of Mrs. Gilbert, wife of the Rector, in whose honour two courses of Grandsire Triples were rung on the handbells by G. C. Bixby, A. Symonds, S. H. Symonds and B. Sharp.

A move was then made to Stradishall, where ringing took place on the five bells. The ringers' thanks are due to the Rev. Grant, Rector of Stradishall, for his kindness, also for the use of the bells.

This meeting was one of a series that have been held by the Clare District this year in outlying places, with the object of creating enthusiasm among ringers in small country places, and helping on young ringers by giving them the chance to stand in with more experienced ringers. The spirit in which these young ringers travel for miles to get a pull with older bands shows that there could be much done by Guilds in encouraging these small meetings in preference to large meetings where learners have just to listen, sometimes for hours, while Surprise and difficult methods are being rung. It is the learners who should have plenty of ringing at meetings, with old ringers to assist them, and the Clare District feels that it is progressing favourably by having done this and not by making spectators of the learners.

regard to hearing the bells in the belfry would receive the attention of the firm responsible for the bells, whose representatives were present that night.

There was a delightful programme of music, which was thoroughly enjoyed. Quartettes were rendered by the Ebor Quartette and songs by Mr. A. Fryer, Mr. F. Holmes and Mr. A. Jones, while an excellent course of Stedman Cinques was rung on handbells by Messrs. C. Harrison, J. Thorp, A. Walker, J. F. Smallwood, S. Briggs and R. Harrison.

The pleasant evening terminated with 'Auld Lang Syne.' A large number of visitors stayed over the week-end and enjoyed ringing on the Minster bells on Sunday, when, by the kindness of the authorities, they were available during three periods.

MIDLAND COUNTIES ASSOCIATION.

NOTTINGHAM DISTRICT OFFICERS.

A successful meeting was held on Saturday, September 24th, at Basford, a tower always attractive on account of the beautiful war memorial peal of eight bells. Eleven towers in all were represented, and there were also unattached members and visitors present.

The quarterly business agenda was light, and the vice-president again gave notice that both himself and the local secretary would terminate their official positions at the end of the year.

Owing to certain remarks concerning monthly meetings, these were left over for this year. In order to prevent a recurrence of the conditions reigning in the early months of this year, it is hoped that suitable nominations for both offices will be forthcoming before the annual district meeting to be held at St. Mary's, Nottingham, on January 6th, 1928.

LEICESTER DISTRICT.

A quarterly meeting of the Leicester District was held at Thurstaston and Anstey on Saturday. Thurstaston was first visited, the methods rung on the bells being Grandsire, Stedman and Plain Bob Doubles, Grandsire and Stedman Triples and Bob Major. The band were then entertained, during a heavy rainstorm, to some well-played hymn tunes on the eight bells by a local lady ringer. About 5 p.m. the rain was less severe, and a start was made by six of the members to walk to Anstey. These were warned that if they went by the usual and more direct road they would have to wade through 4ft. of flood water, so they had to make a detour via Cropstone. Very fortunately a friend from Husbands Bosworth was present with his motor-cycle and sidecar, and very kindly escorted these six 'tea-wanting' ringers in pairs through the cold and rain to Anstey. On their arrival at Anstey they were joined by three other members. After tea, the belfry was visited, and, following two short touches, a business meeting was held. It was decided to hold the annual meeting at St. Saviour's in January. It was also decided that at that meeting the question should be brought up as to whether Belgrave should in future be counted as one of the towers at which the annual meeting should be held.

The Chairman sincerely thanked Mr. Marsh for the kind way in which he had assisted the ringers in getting from Thurstaston to Anstey. The bells were then kept going for an hour or so, the methods rung during the evening being Plain Bob and Kent Treble Bob Minor, Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Plain Bob, Kent Treble Bob and Double Norwich Major.

SUCCESSFUL 'MISSIONARY' MEETING AT APPLEBY MAGNA.

The outlandish six-bell tower of ill-repute was visited by the Burton District of the M.C.A. on Saturday, September 17th, with a view to stimulating local enthusiasm. The attendance of almost thirty ringers was particularly gratifying, nine towers being represented. Amongst those present were the ringers from Market Bosworth, who turned up en bloc, and who motored over specially.

Touches of Grandsire Doubles and Bob Minor were rung during the afternoon and evening.

An excellent tea was partaken of at the Crown, when twenty-one sat down.

The Rector (the Rev. D. J. Davies) presided at the business meeting. He was subsequently made an honorary member of the association. Ashby was selected for the next meeting on November 12th. The Rector expressed a hope that the visit would be repeated, and also thanked those present for their good attendance. He also referred to the visit of the band who rang the only peal on these bells, earlier in the year, in commemoration of which event a beautiful peal tablet, the work of Mr. Ernest Morris, the conductor, has been placed in an oak frame, and now hangs in the church porch.

Thanks are due to the Rector for the use of the bells and for his presence, and to Mr. John Chandler, captain of the local ringers, for making arrangements for the tea and for having the bells in readiness.

MR. E. MORRIS' LEICESTERSHIRE PEALS.

APPRECIATION AND THANKS.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Would you kindly allow me a small space to give my many friends the very best thanks for their kindness and help given to assist me in scoring peals at 100 Leicestershire towers. Without their aid the task would have been impossible, and it has meant to many heavy tasks, many blisters, aching arms and 'wet shirts.' I especially thank my Billesdon friends for many five-bell peals, the Burton secretary and friends of that district for peals in his quarter; Ashby for the Staunton Harold peal on the bells at Earl Ferrers' private church, and other places; Loughborough, Melton and Harborough friends for their districts; the Sherwood Youths for King's Norton; and certain Leicester friends who have been kind enough to on these 'wonderful' excursions with me. To each and all I give my thanks, and hope still to carry on. I have more towers to conquer yet, and not all in steel frames or ball bearings!—Yours sincerely,

ERNEST MORRIS.

A DISAPPOINTING EXPERIENCE.

The hon. secretary of the Western District of the Surrey Association had a most discouraging experience on Saturday, when she had convened a meeting at Cranleigh. She was the sole representative of her district, the others who put in an appearance being three visitors from Guildford, one from Pulborough, one from Rudgwick, and five of the local band. The few ringers who were present felt and expressed the utmost sympathy with the unfortunate lady secretary.

In the evening an informal combined practice was organised at the neighbouring tower of Ewhurst.

WORCESTERSHIRE AND DISTRICTS ASSOCIATION.

NORTHERN BRANCH.

The quarterly meeting of the Northern Branch of the above association was held at Bromsgrove on Saturday, September 17th. A fine day drew a very large gathering of ringers. The members expressed satisfaction with the 'go' of the bells after recent overhauling by Messrs. Mears and Stainbank, and there was ringing at various intervals from 3 p.m.

The service was held in the Parish Church, conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. T. C. de la Hey). The choir rendered an anthem very sweetly. During the course of an address the Vicar extended a hearty welcome to the association.

Thanks to the generosity of the Bromsgrove Guild of Ringers, all the members, their wives and friends were entertained to a splendid tea in the old schoolroom.

This was followed by the business meeting, at which the Vicar presided. The officers were re-elected en bloc as follows: Mr. J. Pegott, Smethwick (Central Committee representative), Mr. A. Hackett, Halsowen (Ringing Master of the Northern Branch), and Mr. A. J. Skelding (branch secretary).

Several new members were also added to the roll.

Mr. T. J. Salter moved that the quarterly peal be attempted by the local band. This was unanimously agreed to, and Mr. Martin, in reply, said they would do their best.

The Secretary stated that he had received a very cordial invitation for the branch to visit Lye for the next quarterly meeting, and it was unanimously decided to accept the kind invitation of Lye ringers to visit their church for the next meeting, to be held on the third Saturday in January.

Mr. A. E. Parsons moved that hearty thanks be tendered to the Vicar for his address, for the beautiful service, for the use of the bells, and for presiding at that meeting. He also coupled in the vote hearty thanks to the organist, and also to Mr. H. F. Martin (on behalf of the Bromsgrove Guild) for providing such a splendid tea, and to Mrs. Martin and her splendid band of lady helpers for their kind attention to the ringers' wants. This was carried in a very appreciative manner.

—Mr. Martin, in reply, said it had long been the wish of the Guild to entertain the association at Bromsgrove, and he thanked them for their very kind vote of thanks, and also thanked Mr. W. B. Cartwright, who had gone from Selly Oak in hail, rain and sunshine to give them his assistance. The Vicar, who also responded, said he hoped they had all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. It had been a real pleasure to him to have the association at Bromsgrove.

The members then returned to the tower, where ringing was indulged in till 8 p.m., and this closed a gathering which almost created a record in point of numbers.

VISIT TO SALISBURY.

On Saturday, September 10th, the North Stoneham ringers had their annual outing, when six towers in North Hampshire and Salisbury were visited. Leaving at 8.15 a.m. by charabanc, the first stop was at All Saints', Basingstoke, where the party were welcomed by the Vicar, Rev. E. Jones, and a very enjoyable hour was spent. A move was then made to Whitchurch, where the party were met by Mr. Clarke, who had everything in readiness, and touches in various methods were rung. A splendid lunch was partaken of at the King's Arms, Whitchurch, presided over by the Rector of North Stoneham, Rev. T. Salmon, who thanked the ringers on behalf of the churchwardens and himself for their services during the year. Mr. G. Williams suitably replied. The weather, which up to mid-day had been wet, then cleared up, and the run from Whitchurch to Andover, where a short visit to the tower was paid, and then over the downs to Salisbury, was much enjoyed. At Salisbury, the party were met by Messrs. Romaine, Rolls and Cheater, and touches rung in various methods at St. Edmund's, St. Thomas', and St. Martin's Churches. At St. Edmund's the very fine old peal of bells were found badly to need the attention of a bellhanger, and the hope was expressed that the Vicar and Church Council would soon see their way to have the bells and ringing chamber put in order, and to be worthy of such a fine old church. Home was reached about 9.30 p.m., all having thoroughly enjoyed the trip. The ringers wish to thank the incumbents and steeplekeepers of the various towers visited. The methods rung during the trip were Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob, Kent, Double Norwich, Cambridge, Superlative, London and Bristol Major.
