PART-TIME BELLRINGERS

$A^{1}$RE you a bellringer at heart-or merely a ringer in part? Does your enthusiasm brim that joyful cup during the spring and summer months, and then cease to replenish the vessel at the cold approach of winter days? If so. then it is a tonic that you require: for you are a ringer in part.
It is discouraging to learn of the number of churches where it is difficult to raise a team of bellringers, and of churches the bells of which are rung irregularly by a few young people as and when they are able by relying on infrequent attendances of experienced adult ringers. This, not so much from the shortage of recruits as from the apparent apathy of the so-called 'regulars.'
Strangely, those bells which apparently fall asleep in the winter months are heard clamouring strongly again during summer: the stampede usually beginning at about the time the cuckoo calls.
How different from the good old days, when it is recorded ringers tramped ten miles or more through rain and snow in order to be present at service ringing and practice nights.
Nor can we imagine anyone of middle-age walking miles to partieipate in that friendly and mystical atmosphere peculiar to bellringers. Winter is not wholly responsible for such lack of enthusiasm. It is the age in which we live.

Come practice night: The part-time ringer opens his door and tests the elements, like the dubious bather who dips his toe in the sea. 'Too cold; anyway there'll probably be a team,' thinks he. Since the incredibly rapid development in electronics, he is also frequently to be observed relaxing in a fireside chair, eyes and mind mesmerised, not with the complexities of the blue line but with antics displayed in an unnatural fluorescent glow through the medium of that 17 -inch screen in the corner of a warm room.

Another attilude: ' I'll go when the bells are pulled up.' Some people have so many calls in life, that if one particular night is to be given up, then invariably it's practice night.
Consequently the faithful few, beleaguered with doubts. renew their efforts with a young and wondering team, in the full knowledge that there are other capable ringers within a mile of the church who have bedded themselves down with leaves for the winter.

They will be back again in the spring, eager to take part in the activities of the tower. Some may never return.

Naturally, age will take its toll. It is perfectly understandable that ill health and overtime are not helpful factors to the art. The first is largely, and the second most certainly, due to the rigours and excitement of modern living.

Let us be fair with ourselves and others, bearing in mind those village bells which are now only spasmodically rung and that ancient tower which is pathetically silent: it was not like that a year or so ago.

A New Year is with us . . . let's put in some overtimebellringing!

bells that have made history

By ERNEST MORRIS

$I^{T}$T is not only the large church bells or the bourdons of cathedrals that have made 'history.' but many smaller varieties have had their share in commemorating historic events of national and international importance. For instance, preserved in many places are portable handbells of ancient origin, which were held in the highest veneration for many ages by the early Christians of the British. Irish and Scottish Churches. These small quadrangular handbells of iron and bronze are most interesting objects of the early Christian period, and various notices have appeared regarding them showing quite plainly that they were regarded with the utmost feeling of veneration.

Perhaps one of the most famous (and certainly the most ancient) of all bells is that of St. Patrick, now carefully preserved in the National Irish Museum in Dublin. It is called 'Clog-an-Eadhacta Phatraic' or 'Bell of St. Patrick's Will.' It is formed of two plates of sheet iron fastened together by iron rivets and bronzed. It has a handle on top, and is 6 inches high and 5 inches broad at the base. It is believed to be the identical bell mentioned in the annals of Ulster, under the date 552, as having been removed from St. Patrick's tomb by St. Colomoille. As is usual with these sacred handbells, it is kept in a shrinc which bears an inscription in Irish, to the effect that it (the shrine) was made between 1091 and 1105 . The framework is of bronze plates. to which the decorated portions are attached, the handle being of silver with enamel settings and scroll-work. The compartments of the frame retain decorations of gold filigree and interlaced work, and round the front are settings of red stones, some now missing. The crystal in the centre and one below are later work. The back is overlaid with a silver plate of cruciform pattern.
It is, however, not the shrine that is so much thought of. but the old rusty bell it contains that St. Patrick carried around with him. (He died A.D. 493.) There are quite a number of other ancient ecclesiastical bells preserved in private collections and museums in Ireland. Wales and Scotland, all of which were used by early missionaries of the Church, and were held in high esteem and veneration and superstitious reverence.

Macclesfield on December 2nd, the peal being conducted by his friend Edward Jenkins. who is also a member of the exclusive coterie of 1.000 pealers.

There are few more popular men ringing today than John Worth. He excels in all branches of the art. He has conducted 554 peals and stood in some record lengths. including 21.600 Bristol Sutprise Major in 1950 and 15.480 Cambridge Surprise Royal in 1951.

But peal ringing is only a part. of his busy life. He has a long record of service to his church. Christ Church, Macclesfield, and with the Chester Diocesan Guild. For six years the has been a member of the Central Council
John was born at Macclesfield on February 19th. 1910. and educated at Christ Church C or E . School. It was through his initialive that money was raised to lower the then ring of eight in Macclesfield tower 30 feet and 10 add two trebles, thus making a very handy ring of ten.

Equally long has been his association with the Macclesfield Branch. which he served as Ringing Master and is at present chairman. ## LANCASHIRE ASSOCIATION

Bolton Branch Progressive

During the pas: year the Bolton Branch of the Lancashire Association has enjoyed many good and progressive meetings, but the recent meeting held at Holy Trinity Church. Horwich, surpassed them all. Ringing included the standard methods and a number of their olfshoots." such as Little Bob. St. Clement's. eic. In the Surprise methods were Cambridge. Yorkshire. Bristol. Superlative and London. and also spliced. A mark of progress was no requesis for rounds. The altendanee was sufficient to allow someone to stand hehind a 'firsi attempt' in a method. The striking was of a high order
A light tea was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brownlow. The annual Branch meeting will be held at Bolton Parish Church January 27 th.

RECORD LENGTH OF YORKSHIRE SURPRISE ROYAL

A record length of Royal of 16.920 Yorkshire Surprise was tung at Worsley. Lancs. on December 23 rd in 11 houis 14 minules. The peal was conducted by Robert B. Smith, and the average age of the band was 22.8 years.

A NEW YORKSHIRE SIX

St. Laurence's, Scalby

There was a full shurch at St. Laurence's, Scalby. near Scarborough, on December 15th when a new ring of six. consisting of three old bells (dated 1674) and three more given by a generous donor, was dedicated. Evensong was conducted by the Vicar. Rov. C. N Tubbs. and the dedication was by the Archdeacon of the East Riding. the Ven. F. E Ford, a former Vicar of Scarborough
The act of dedication took place immediately after the Collects, when. during the hymn 'In the time of gladness "-magnificently sung to the tune of - Onward. Christian Soldiers "-the five youngest Scarborough ringers present and one of the Scalby ringers made their way up to the tower whilst the Archdeacon's procession moved from the choir to the vestry, at the base of the tower. Handing the verger's Communion rope to the Archdeacon, as a token of those in the tower above, the Vicar said: • Venerable Sir, we request you to dedicate the bells. which have been tuned. restored and now hang in this tower.' The Archdeacon then dedicated the bells and rounds were rung. the ringers standing in the order: E. King 1. Pauline Chase 2. D. G. Murray 3. Mrs. M. Scarth (Scalby) 4. D Hardy 5 and R. Wyatt 6 . They returned to their seats during the singing of the hymn

Lifted high within the tower
All our bells are sel on high.
The Archdeacon based his address on the text. The Lo:d is near. Have no anxiety then the Peace of God will keep guard. taken from the New English Version of St. Paul's Epistle to the Philippians, iv. 4. words included in the Epistle for Advent iv. in which is also included the 'Bell Anthem text.

In a homely and eloquent address he began by reference to the happy day for the parish of Scalby which. by a generous gift. now has a ring of bells. He welcomed the ringers. with emplasis on the new recruits for the Scalby church. and then spoke of the message of the bells, paying tribute to those who undertook the task of ringing them and who take a delight in this important aspect of churcil work

The Archdeacon said that the unworldly were loath to respond to their summons. unwilling to hear the Advent message - The Lord is near, have no anxiety, and in the weeks before Christmas there is much anxiety over the preparations for what, for many is , purely sectilar feast. Many resent the intrusion of God into their lives and into the world they have come to accept. By contrast. said the Archdeacon. stands the picture of our Lord's beloved disciple. St. John, who in his old age, wrote with such fervent sincerity and expectancy of the coming of the Lord into the lives and hearts of Christian folk.

THE BELLS

The three old hells are 3. 4 and 5 of the completed ring. which is another pleasing example of the work of the Loughborough Foundry: the 10 cwt . tenor is inscribed

> The peal of three origialal bells were reiurned rehung and augmented to six through the generosity of
Mr. & Mrs. Gilbert Mann. of the Parish. and dedicated on 15th December in the year of Our Lord. 1961
Glory to God in the Highest and On Earth Peace Goodwill towards Men."
After the seivice the bells were rung again ali visiting riagers participating. In addition in eleven of the Scarborough company and five Scalby learners. those present included the Northern District secretary. Mr. E. Hudson. Ripon, who read the second lesson, and representatives from towers as widely scattered at. Bridlington. Kirhy Hill. Pickering. Wentworth and Whitby. The evening lerminiterd with refreshments. kindly provided by the donors of .lie bells.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CHRISTMAS MORNING BELLS
Dear Sir.-After listening to the Christmas bells broadcast in the Home Service, I feel I must write and congratulate the ringers who took part on their good standard of striking.
The Major towers of St. Peter's, Woalton. and St . Nicholas'. Sevenoaks. were the outstanding ones. although the call changes on eight of the ten bells of St. Macartan's Cathedral. Enniskillen. were very good and open.

Of Maximus ringing I am no judge, as I set few opportunities of hearing any, but, to me only the tenor bells, $9,10,11$ and 12 , were distinguishable. Whether it was because of the position of the microphones with which the recordings were made or not. I cannot say. but at this end they both sounded like a fugue ot an organ in a vast cathedral, with the trebles played pianissimo and the bass played forte.

Allogether aa enjoyable broadcast. but. as a Minor rinter. I think we have cause to comiplain. According to Dove's Guide for 1956 . there are 5.208 rirgs of bells in England. 168 in Wales and Monmouthshire. 13 in Scotland and 33 in lrelana: making a grand total of 5.422 in all. Of this number. 2.580 rings are of Minor. 1.607 of Major and only 57 of Muximus. and yet not one Minor tower was represented. My complaint is of the number of Major and Maximus towers represented in proportion to the total number.
1 personally know of several outstanding Minor lowers. where striking is as near perfect as it is possible for human frailty to achieve. all being members of the Barnsley and District Society and the Halifax and District Association. If you require an independent opinion. I am sure 'Jafus will back up my opinion, as h: was present at the Barnsley shield contest in June. 1961.
Church Warsop. Notts. is outstanding for open lead striking. and that means something coming from a Cartwheeler: Others are: Mellham. Shelley. Silkstone. New Mill, Kirkheaton. Cawthorne and my own tower. Friezland. I trust that. in future. Minor towers will be fairly represented. and in particular. that a lower I have quoted will be one of them. -lours sincerely.

BOW BROADCAST AND BELL MUSIC

Dear Sir.-In a recent issue you mentioned a broadcast featuring the rededication of Bow bells (Home Service, December 20th, 6.30-6.50 p.m.).

Eagerly I looked forward to the twenty munute programme which. I thought, would contain at least five minutes of bell music.
Imagine my concern as the minutes ticked away and the interviews-admittedly interest-ing-went on and on.
Al last we were told we were going to hear touch of Stedman Cinques. Rounds were drowned by Dimblehy calling out a list of the names of the bells--a thing he had done once before anyway-and then changes were heard for a few seconds.
Did we hear the bells for a minute?
Had it been a service for the rededication of the organ. I think it likely that we should have heard is complete piece of music.
Personally, I think the B.B.C. failed in its presentation-Yours faithfully.

Sandy. Beds.

THE RINGING OF BOW BELLS

Dear Sir.-Your leader (' R.W.' December 15(h) would be most acceptable to an undiscerning ringing public, but parts of it could open up much fer discussion. I would like to refer to one or two points only. It is pathetic that in the heari of London there is a shortage of ringers. but it is not from the - fact there is no residential population in the City of London. I have reliable information that the permanent residential population in the City was nearly 4.900 in 1960 , and this figure will tend to increase. Moreover, think of the further thousands of people who reside on the boundaries of this 'square mile, area. Having recently seen photographs of three boys (sons of City policemen) in the national press and of suitable physically built men on television-all of then: cockneys-surely from this population there is potential material. If the leaders of the several churches could only get these peopie within their churches, then we ringers would have a chance to recruit some new blood into the empty belfries.
Next, I understand there is still some paid Sunday service ringing within the City and an extension of this otherwise now dying trend might induce more visiting bands. for, after all. three or four hours away from home and anything up to ten shillings less in pocket is a visiting ringer's contribution to assist in maintaining ringing in the heart of London.
Lastly. there is apparently not an inviting atmosphere in some towers, which causes a ringer tu be reluctant in making further visits. On the oither hand. heciuse ringing oflen has to the organised by visiting bands which results in the not unusual quarter peal attempt, a casu Il visitor may cause various effects. some of whien would result in pleasure but others in disuppointment for him. I will certainly wait with interest to see if your suggestion for St. Mary-le-Bow is carried out. And roll on that wonderful day which you envisage. -Yours faithfully.
T. J. LOCK.

THE BOW BROADCAST

Dear Sir.-I hope you get lots of protests about the miserly ration of ringing in the special Home Service feature. Bow Bells. A few rounds and $3 \frac{1}{2}$ whole pulls of changes! How could anyone call that hearing a recordjng of the beils? How could anyone (not previously informed. as we were informed) recognise the meihod It was an insult both to the listeners and performers, like announcing a piece of music and fading out after a bar and a half.

I was much incensed. especially as I did not bother with the T.V.. seeing the broadcast was a special sound radio feature. Yet englers can have a whole programme regularly. We can' even enjoy our very special one. -Yours, etc..
W. B.

HANDBELLS, A POPULAR APPEAL

Dear Sir.-The Dulwich Handbell Ringers have. during Christmas. collected $£ 257$ for the Greater London Fund for the Blind, $\pm 31$ more than last year and $£ 14$ more than the highest amount ever collected by them. The money was obtained by ringing carols in the streets of Dulwich every evening for the fortnight before Christmas. They have in this way coniributed well ove: $£ 2.000$ to this fund during the last 15 years.-Yours faithfully. during the last 15 years.-Yours faithfully.

ARTHUR H. COOMBS

THURSO TREBLE BOB

Dear Sir,-I note that Mr. Giles B. Thompson thinks the new Treble Bob method which I described (puge 809) has two blue lines, and should like to correct him on this. The method has two red lines on all numbers of bells, but in Major and Maximus there is only one bluz line.

On ten bells there are two blue lines, the plain course containing only 80 changes; the Royal may thus be considered irregular. The Minor also has two blue lines, but no more than a plain course is possible; this one lead of 24 changes mighi be useful for those beginning to ring Treble Bob.
In calse the method is discussed further. might I propose tha: it be referred to is Thurso Treble Bob--Yours faithfully. ALAN J. BLAIR.

Thurso, Caithness.

SURFLEET'S THREE 'LEANS'

Dear Sir.-Ii my memory is correct. The lean of Surfleet tower is even more interesting than Mr. Bevis' charming sketch in the "R.W. of December 22nd implies. I think it has actually three different amounts of lean.' I think that it began to lean when the tower was about one third complefed: the remainder of the tower was built vertical; later this also began to lean; then the spire was built vertical: later the whole went over even more. Thus the spire leans a certain amount, the upper part of the tower rather more. the lowest part considerably more-but 1 rely on memory. - Yours faithfully,

GILBERT THURLAW.

Great Yirmouth.

CHEW STOKE BELLS

Dear Sir,-Those who rang in the peal at Chew Sioke on November 16th (see page 863), will be interested to know that what was believed at the time to be the first peal of Minor on these bells was rung on October 15th. 1935, in 11 Surprise methods.

I think that the weight of the tenor was overestimated by both bands in 1935 and 1961.-Yours faithfully,
J. T. DYKE.

Chilcompton. Bath.

ATTENDANCE AT CHURCH SERVICES

Dear Sir,-What a waste of argument! If at singer has to attend every service for which one rings the bells then, logically, one must only ring for those services which one is going to attend. Enforce this and both the service of the ringer and the ringing for service would the poorer.-Yours sincerely,

HENRY ALLEN.

50 YEARS AGO

'R.W.' January 5th, 1912.-
We have without question, established a record this week in the annals of the Exercise. Our columns contain no fewer than 89 peals. the largest number ever published in one issue of a ringing paper. Although we have enlarged again to 20 pages the pressure on our space necessitates holding over several items. This issue might very appropriately be called a Peal Number.

At Halesworth. Suffolk, where the first peal of Double Norwich on the bells was rung on Thursday. December 28th. the ring is hung in a curious manner, the ropes running in a circle in the following order: $1,7,2,6,4.5$ : 3. 8. One can quite imagine that the conductor's Jot is not altogether a happy one, and ihat the course-ends want a good deal of pjeking out.

PINCHBECK - A POSTCARD VILLAGE

By T. A. BEVIS

MANY have heard of it-more have seen are known throughou the length and breadth of the country-and abroad.
Tulips and hyacinths at Pinchbeck-a wellknown sight around Spalding district in spring!

Picture postcards proclaim it and convey to the recipient a mere glimpse of the vivid attractions of this part of the Fens at that welcome time of the year. And always gracefully reclining in the background as if fearful of detracting from nature's rainbow display. the massive bulk of St. Mary's Church tower peers above gaunt trees towards distant marshes and the sea.
This impressive senlinel is the centreprece of a widespread unwieldy village. which lad the distinction of being called a town in Saxon times, but now is a rapidly-developing suburb of flowerminded Spalding town
Pinchbeck's grand old lady has a bent appearance-a vain at lempt to emulate near neighbour Surflectdue to a partial col lapse of the foundations. the tower being 18 inches out of true It has a remarkable cincuefoiled arch and a rich band of quatrefoils encircle its base.

A significant feature of the church, the clerestory-ten threclight windows on each side - is said to be Also worthy of note: the chapel roof with carved beamss, a magnificent and extremely lofty lower arch and an elaborate 15 th century font. According to the dictionary, the word 'pinchbeck' is an inferior metal or cheap jewellery. Pinchbeck bells, however, are certainly not cheap. nor are they inferior in their handling. Their tonal qualities are good-unusually so lor old bells; it is not surprising though, as four of them were cast many years ago at Stamford foundry

The Norris family of Stimford are fairly well reprewented in the Fens. Tobic I and his son did a profitable transaction with Pinchheck Church. it seems, and unti] 1934 their hundiuork was predominant in the tower, for at least five of the six bells hid made the journev from Stamford.

William Siapleton Royce and his wife. Emma Iouisil. were well known and respected in Pinchbeck. and it is abundantly clear that they loved bells. Mr. Royce died in 1924 and his wife expired in 1934: the latter year witnessed the augmentation of the bells to

cight, two new trebles reminding all within hearing distance of the villages generous benefactors.

The new bells weigh 4 cwt .3 qr. 27 lb . and $5 \mathrm{cwt} .1 \mathrm{4r}$ : 17 lb . respectively: they bear appropriaic inscriptions in accordance with the circumstances of the augmentation.

Number three (7-2-1) wis recast in June, 19(1), and is possibly a creation from a former Norris bell. It is inscribed FEAR GOD. HONOUR THE KING.
The fourth $(9-1-20)$ is also patriotic and comes out with GOD SAVE THE KING. - Tobia Norris cast me. 1677, an inscription emulated by the fifih (10-0-25) of the same year.

A 'CAPITAL CONSTABLE'

Tohic Norris I crealed the six (11-2-1) in 1624 and on it was inseribed NON VOX SED VOTVM NON MYSICA CORDVLA SED
COR. This lounder succeeded his father, Malthew Norris, of Leicester. who was in husiness as early as 1575 . Incidentally. Tobie I. an influential man, took up the Freedom of Stamford in 1607 and was one of the 'Capital Constables; in that year; he held the position of churchwarden at St. George s Church, Siamford. The founder died on November 2nd, 1626. His son departed this life in 1698 and is interred at his father's church, where may be seen a bellmetal tablet to his memory.

Caris Holyday, Thomas Ellin and Thomas Ansell (churchwardens of Pinchbeck) had their names oil the cope in 1699. when the seventh bell (14-0-9) was cast, and the tenor (18-0-9). not to be outdone by four roars in the stentorian key of E, GOD SAVE THE KING. adds for good measure " Tobie Norris Cast Mc, 1677.
On the south wall within the tower, illuminated by the beautiful west window, a plaque has been placed to the memory of George Ladd. who rang at Pinchbeck from 1885 to 1940. A member of the Lincoln Diocesan Guild from 1910 until his death. Mr. Ladd was a former secretary of the Elloe Deaneries Branch of the aforementioned Guild.

It is an appreciable ascent to the commodious singing chamber, but a most interesting journey to observant visitors: the walls of the newel stair are marked with numerous scratches piaced there by zealous masons, hundreds of years ago. These also occur on the stair wall iiself and are delicately and beautiful desigired. Oily one 'mark, has been discovered on the exterior. This collection may well be unique
On reaching the ringing chamber one gleans further information concerning the bells, which were rehung during August. 1890 , by Messis. Taylors, and reopened by the Very Rev. Edward King. D.D. Lord Bishop of Lincoln, on September 29th. 1890.

The Luxton family hive played a nowable part in the long life of St. Mury's Church. Not only did they rang the bells for a very considerable time. they also discharged duties ir: the honourable occupation of sexton: the first sexton of this old Pinchbeck family commenced his responsibilities on February 23 rd 1784. and the last finally retired in 1908-a total of 124 years.

PEAL BOARDS FROM 1816
A few peal boards have been preserved, and the oldest of these records that on March 13th. 1816 . 5.040 changes were rung by Matthew Laxton, Charles Laxton, James Broughton, William Willson and Thomas laxton. This effort was witnessed by John Willson.

The first peal on the bells by a locai company of ringers transpired on March 4th. 1905, and it was composed of three methods. On October 31st, 1925. our old friend. the date Horace M. Day, conducted a peal of Minor.

March 9 :h, 1935, was a significant day for the lower, when the octave rang out for the first lime to a peal of Plain Bob Major, conducted by that well known ringer, the late Ruperi Richardson, of Surfleet.
Another notable peal was that of Stedman Triples (Heywood's No. 1) on September 281h, 1935. singers laking part from Pinchbeck. Derby, Sheffield and Spalding. It was the first in that principle on the bells and was conducted by Albert H. Ward. as a compliment to George Ladd and S. Palmer.
Several other peals (including Surprise) have been rung on the bells of St. Mary's. which are agrecably pleasant to the car-and yours truly should know. he first seeing the light of day 7 few hundred yards away from that stately fane.
It is not difficult for the 'exile ' to imagıne the familiar sound of Pinchbeck bellsespecially at Christmas time. When they join the brazen-ihroated throng, unanimous in that imperishable, age-old message of the angels: PEACE ON EARTH-GOODWILL TOWARDS MEN.
The practice at Hexworth tower is about to begin. Introduced in the opening instalment were: Joc Smith, head ringer at Hexworth; Amie, his wife: Phyllis (21), his daughter, confidential secretary to Joshua Beriram, churchwarden; Heury (23). her boy friend: John Smith, schoolboy son of Joe Smilh.
Joe removed his jacket, hung it up on pegs screwed to the panelling, and walked across 10 the cuphourd, automatically sirengthening the pile of boxes in the middle of the floor ats he passed them. The cuphoard was near the towel roller and contained the usual helfry impedimenta: a bucket, broom and smali shovel: a set of leather muftlers': two stays (intact) and several hroken ones; a hand-saw, a biace and hit and an adjustable spanner: a large cardboard box containing rails. bolts and an empty hoot polish tin; a smaller one containing chalk (white) and some offee papers; several paint tins, partly filled with paint, now as hard as the proverbial bellmetal: a couple of paint brushes, with their bristles in a similar degree of hardness; a bo:tle containing oil; a set of old ropes and a dead sparrow.

Joe regarded the dead sparrow for a few moments with mild interest, picked it up somewhat gingerly by its tail and carried to the west window which, after a struggle, he rpened.

Ashes to ashes....., he murmured, and aropped the dead bird through the window, which he then reverently closed.
Joe looked round the belfry. In several places on the seats and near the edge of the Hoor. where there were no seats, the stone dust had irickled down from between the junction that the match-board ceiling made with the tower walls. High winds and gales always accelerated the flow from above and, if one was sat on the seats under these conditions it was an advantage, mused Jos, 10 have sandy coloured hair and a brown suit!

He swept the seats and the floor, collected the dust into a smal! shovel and emptied it through the window. observing to himself, meanwhile. that there was sufficient materiai to give the dead sparrow a decent burial. As h: performed the latter operation sounds of activity echoed up the steps; agile feet and the chattering of young voices. A few the chattering of young voices. A few noments later two young girls came bubbling nioments later two you through the doorway.
They were about 12 years of age and so much alike in every detail that deciding that they were twins was not exactly a miracle of deduction. Alice and Rene Browning were daughters of one of the three grocers of the village, who squeezed a living, and brought up a family, from the requirements of its inhabitants. In ringing, their accomplishments were about equal. both girls being able to sing Plain Bob ( inside'). and Joc, who couldn't tell them apart (or together) addressed each one as 'Twmny!'. although, nad he been more ohservant he might have noticed that Rene tad a slight scar on her left eyebrow. the legacy of an argument with a broken bottle when she was but a baby.
'Good evening. Mr. Smith, they said logether.

Only 'Old George', and William ever addressed him as 'Joe,' to everyone else he was 'Mister,' a privilege reserved for only one other member of the company of ringers, Mr. Challen, the retired colliery manager, who, when the was present, rang only the 3rd bell, but who was at the moment absent on some conference or other.

Hello, girls; replied Joc. "Be getting the fiont end up.

On practice night he offered no objection to the raising of odd bells, but insisled, on Sundays, that they were always raised in peal. By this time ringers began to arrive, thick and fast. Three boys about 10 or 11 years of age burst noisily into the belfry and were, iemporarily, silenced by a look from Joe. William, a man about the same age as Joe. ind in fact one of his old schoolfellows, slightly bowlegged and wirh a drooping moustacle, arrived with ' Young, William, his son, a quiet youth, tall and bespectacled, who retired to a corner, pulled out a nolebook and hegan to study a diagram of Cambridge Surprise, with the intentness and devotion that an archaologist might study some recently unearthed hicroglyphics.

Old George came up the steps, wheezing like an old traction engine, and sat down to regain his breath and finally Phyllis arrived with Henry, closely followed by John.

Immediately after the arrival of the three boys. whilst the last few ringers were arriving. Joe, nevar one to waste time, spent several minutes supervising Harry, the youngest and minutes supervising Harry, lie youngest and ringing) the mos! inexperienced of the :hree hoys, who was in the early stages of bellhandling. He placed him on the tail end of the second bell, selecting this because, in addition to being light (but not too light) and 'a good 'un to handle,' it had plenty of set on the backstroke, a point which suited Joe's immediate purpose. Joe. himself, took charge of the handstroke.

He pulled off.

- Keep your hands together, they don't want to be a yard apart-don't look up at that sally, it knows its way up there: and back-steady, don't pull so hard. you hell have the bell down on top of us-feel it on the balance; nos, not so far over as that, you il make hard work of it-nay, don't snatch; a nice even pull; bring your hands well down from the back and then the rope won't wriggle: you're not a snake-charmer-I said "don't look up." look at me. look straight into my eves: imagine I'nı Mona Lisa or the Laughing Cavalier (about the only two paintings Joe could recognise on sight)-that's better. nice and even-now let it set on the hackstroke; there you've bumped it off-try again: that's it-now ease it off genily-now see if you can inold it on the balance-.
So Joe went on, entreating, cajoling, instructing. imploring, commanding, always goodhumoured. always respected, always obeyed. He had made no detailed study of the art of instructing, or of the science of teaching.
but he possessed a fair share of common sense and a large fund of experience, and what is more he knew what he wanted, and what he wanted, in the belfry at any fate, he usually got. He, himself, was a good hellhandler: quiet, efficient, economicall of effort. and all his pupils (ard he had had many). whether by example or precept is problematical -and uniniporiant-were good bell-handlers 100: they all seemed to develop that quiet, easy manner, without mannerisms, that is the hallimark of a good ringer.

When the bell had been finally set at handstroke, Joe turned and surveyed the belfry.

Cambridge!' he said tersely.
Young Wi!liam sometimes wondered what magic ihere, was attached to the name of "Cambridge. True, Mr. Challen, who was fond of trotting out odd facts about divers stbjects, of ten declated that, 'Cambridge Surprise Minor wats the first Surprise Minor method ever rung.' Young William didn't know wheiher this. was true, but supposed it must be since Mr. Challen sid so. for Mr. Challen was seldom wrong; in fact, Mr. Challen had never been wrong during living memory. Perhaps, sometimes Mr. Challen Was nearly wrong, or even sometimes, just it Wee bit wrong. but even then it wals always someone else's fault: some stupid af missed a dodge, or refused to make plitees with him.

Even accepting Mr. Challen's information as correct, young William felt that it was rot the antiquity of the method that gave Cambridge its peculiar qualities; it seemed to him as though Cambridge had become it kind oi yardstick whereby the standards of ringers were measured. How often at ia ringing meeting had he heard the Ringing Master say, 'Take hold for Cambridge,' and then with apparent nonchalance turn to some ringer or other and inquire: 'Would you cars t: take hold for Cambridge?'
Ah, thought young William, then was a ringer seen in his true colours. He remembered, quite vividly, an incident that had taken place not very long ago. He had been attending a distriot meeting and there was a young up-and-coming ringer present from another district. How young William had admired him. He had rung quite expertly in several touches: Treble Bob and Plain methods, London Scholar: and Kingston, St. Clement's and Double Oxford; he had conducted a few ' louches' (including a 216 of Plain Bob, with -it seemes to young William-an amazing number of calls), making no mistakes and even correcting others twice, or thrice, his owil age.
And then the fatal question.
There had been no escape; they were one short and the second rope hung there, inviting. unclaimed. Everyone had jooked expectantly at the young ringer.

No: he had admitted, 'I don't ring Cambridge.

Young William had felt almost sorry for dim. The balloon was pricked. Deflated and dejected he had sat there trying to look indiffereat while the Ringing Master made arrangements to ring something else. He disappeared during the next louch ; young William saw him steal through the belfry door. It woula be a long time. he thought. hefore his prestige was restored in this district and never unless he learnt to ring Cambridge.

A REVIEW OF MINIMUS

By GEOFFREY DODDS
3. PLAIN METHODS-TWO HUNTS

Continuing the layout of P . B-Knights ( $\mathrm{R} . \mathrm{W}$ : Octoher 25 th .1957 , page 692). we have. four variations of Grandsire. All these have iwo-lead courses, hut leads can be spliced to produce extents. Certain extents require asymmetrical leads which can be called either 'Evening Delight' (ef. Minor cisc - 16 - 16 - $36-14-16$ ) and ' Evening Exercise, (cf. Minor -14-36-16-16-16-16) as suggested by F. T. Blagrove, or Bob leads of their respective methods, as shown below. Mr. Blagrove prefers not to introduce bobs in Minimus, while I prefer nor to introduce asymmetrical methods as such. Since calls are not part of any method (C.C. Handhook, page 26). I have introduced appropriate forms of Bob. None of these names have been confirmed in a peal.

4. PRINCIPLES USED AS METHODS

Apart frem Original (Plain Hunting) there are four other principles, two being the reverse forms of the other two.

P Exin.-If will he noticed that the division chosen for the sixes is iaken three changes later than usual. which gives forward hunting on the frent three bells. The division is madd at the second line of symmetry in the six to assist in splicing with method 0 . I believe the method has often been loosely called 'Stedman Minimus.' The method is correctly named by $P$. B.-Knights. and he gives the normal start for Erin.

Q This is similar to Erin, but where Erin (method P) has dodging in $1-2$ and progressive places in 3-4 over the middle of the 'six,' this method has progressive places in $1-2$ and dodging in $3-4$. Arranged in this way, the two methods have identical changes in any corresponding 'six.' I believe this is an entirely new principle, not applicable to higher numbers and P. B.-Knights has provisionally named it 'Reverse Stanton.' although he named it Reverse Stanton, although,
R Reverse Erin.-The reverse of method P and named correctly by P. B.-Knights.
$S$ The reverse of method $Q$ and provisionally named 'Stanton' by P. B.-Knights.

5. EXTENTS—PLAIN METHODS

Methods having identical changes in corresponding leads can be spliced by incerchanging thesc leads. Methods which can be spliced are
B Reverse Boh & F Canterbury Pleasure Bob. C Double Boh & D 'St. Martin's' (i.e. Reverse St. Nicholas ').
G D. Canterbury P. Bob & H St. Nicholas:
$J$ Reverse Court & $K$ Double Court.
Each pair can produce six spliced extents, e.g. CCD. CDD, CDC, DDC, DCC, DCD.

This gives up 24 spliced extents. The first three pairs were covered by P.B.-Knights.

There are three trios of methods and two pairs, which, when onr of the pair is bobbed. will splice by cyclical arrangements.
a. $M$ New Granósire, L Grandsire & I Single Court.
b. N Riverse Grandsire, O Rev. New Grandsire & J Reverse Court.
c. N Reverse Grandsire, O Rev. New Grandsire & K Double Court.
d. L. Grandsire & O Reverse New Grandsire. e. M New Grandsire & N Reverse Grandsire.

Each of these will give us three extents, viz.

We thus have a further 15 extents. The total rumber of plain extents is now and with each bell in the hunt in turn. in place of the treble. we now have $50 \times 4=200$ plain extents.

6. EXTENTS—PRINCIPLES

By arranging methods $P$ and $Q$ and methods $K$ and $S$ in the way shown. with corresponding 'sixes' having the same changes, these pairs of methods can be spliced by interchinging 'sixes,' i.e.
PPPQ, PPQP, PPQQ. PQPP. PQPQ PQQP. PQQQ. QQQP.QQPQ. QQPP Q PQQ. QPQP. QPPQ.QPPP. and simibirly for $R$ and $S$.
Lastly, there is one extent of Original, in which the composition (not the method) can be started in each of 12 different places. This is composition No. 2 by P. B.-Knights. 1234
$4123-2$
$3412=2$
$4132=1$
$4231=4$
$2341=1$
$1234-2$
P. B.-Knights composition No. 1 is already included in spliced extent M L.I. His extents of Reverse Original (i.e. Backwards hunting. ci. C.C.C. Doubles 1.2) are only Reverse Bob rung backwards with each bell in turn as the hunt bell.
The toial for Principles turns out to be $32+12=44$ exlents.

7, CONCLUSION

The grand total of different extents of Minimus. without resorting to starting a method at a different place or to ringing an extent backward. is $200+44=244$.

If one considers that there is only one extent of Original (i.e. the ather eleven only start at a different place in the extent) we are still left with 233. Two hundred and ten extents are required for a peal of 5.040 and we have available 5,856 (or 5.592 ) changes, every extent different, without resorting to $48 \% s$ or other multiples. Here is scope for interesting peals of Minimus.

A CELEBRATION AT ECCLESTON

Once again the birthday of Mr. Sam Jones. of Eccleston, now aged 93. was honoured by a peal on the fine eight at St. Mary's Church on December 17th. The band. representing several Branches of the Chester Diocesan Guild. met at this picturesque village in the early afiernoon and the long ascent to the ringing chamber was made.
If is perhaps interesting 10 note that G. F Bodley. The arehitect responsible for the building of this fine Perpendicular church. Used Evercreech als his model and indeed the details have heen most successfully carried out.
The bells were soon raised and a peal of Bob Major completed in due course, ifter which a short walk to the village brought the party to Mr. Jones' cottage. where a sumpluous tea had been prepared. After a peal on a chilly December day nothing is more likely to be appreciated than the sight of a tahle laden with good things to eat and it is perhaps hardly necessary to record that full justice was done 10 the delicious fare so generously provided by Sam's daughter. Mrs. Parry.
The climax came when Mr. Sam Jones jun proposed the loast of the evening and all stood with glasses raised to honour it.
The party then moved to the sitting room and here learned with surprise and interest that much of the peal had been recorded. To listen to parts of a peal in which one had participared but a short time previously was a novel and interesting experience, which was greally appreciated. The recorder. however demanded something more. The microphone was passed to each member of the band in turn with at request that some comment fitting to the occasion should be made. Only one member was too shy 10 speak the is associated with Frodsham tower). but he was later caught without his knowledge and the record was thus comple' $\because$ d.
This was a signal for departure and with renewed good wishes 10 our veteran and his family the visitors, left the cosy room for the cold journey home.

The Vicar has indicated that the rededication service will take place in the spring and will be advertised in "The Ringing World.'

TOWER CAPTAIN A BRIDE

THE marriage took place at St. Margaret's Church. King's Lynn, on December 2nd. hetween Freda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Greaves. of King's Lynn, and Bevan. son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Willgress, of Acle. The service, which was conducted by the Rev. H. Lillingstone (past president of the Norwich Diocesan Association), assisted by the Rev. Lloyd Caddick, was fully choral.
The bride, given away by her father, wore a fulllength parchment brocade dress, and a long veil held in place by a headdress of orange blossom and lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white freesias, zarnations and heather, from which trailed a length of white satin ribbon decorated with minute silver bells. Her bridesmaid was Miss Joan Wilgress (sister of the bridegroom), who wore a lemon organdie Jress and carried a bouquet of flame carnations and lemon freesias.
Before and again after the service the ten bells of Si. Margaret's were rung by members of the tower, five of the ringers being from those taught by the bride. who was captain of the tower prior to her marriage Al the reception, held in the Priory Hall. grectings and telegrams were received from ringers of Acle (the bridegroom's tower). Danbury. Essex. Bridgwater, Somerset, Cheltenham. Glos. London and Leeds, and other more local lowers. The wedding cake was decorated with numerous tiny silver bells and surmounted by one large silver bell. The honeymoon was spent in the Cotswold couniry.
The couple's new home is unfortunately in a parish without tower bells, and therefore

The quarter peal rung at St. Clement Dines on December 17hh, served twa additional purposes. It was J. D. L. Richards, who is shortly farewell to his native New Zealand, and it provided to opportunity for B. Cox, who is by now on his way back home 10 Australia, to tape record the bells. This gave the remainder of the band their chance to express pleasure at meeting and ringing with these and oither overseas yisitors and 10 wish them all success in their future.
Mr. P. Town has produced an attractive number of : The Belfry ' for his first issue as Editor.
Mr. Keith Fleming, a ringer from Mauldon. Beds. Writes from 'S.S. Khyber' at Port Suid on December 23rd: May 1 say that it was with great interest and pleasure that I listenad to the B.B.C. Overseas broadcast about the rededication of Bow Bells at 11 p.m. (local time) yesterday.'
His many fizends in the Exercise, pirticularly in the London and Essex area. will welcome news of Mr. R. Stannard. 'Dick 'is it present in a hostel for old people. 'The Willows.' St. George's. Hospital. and may be visited at any time. At 92 years of age he is in excellent shape physically and still retains quite an interes: in the Exercise. He is visited regularly by members of the Hornchurch band and wis able to take a pair to a course of Grandsire Triples, when visited on Christmas morning.
It is interesting to note that the peal of Grandsire Triples rung at Beaconsfield. Bucks. for the consecration of a new daughier churci of St. Thomas. Holtspur, has a ringer, the Rev. L. G. Reeves, as curate-in-charge. and his daughter. Miss Gwen Reeves, scored her first peal (at the first attempt) on this very special occasion. Gwen was very diffident about tackling a peal at all. but she rang splendidly, and showed no signs of wear-not even a blis.er! It is to be hoped she will now join 'The Crazy Gang, and indulge in further pesils.

BELFRY GOSSIP

 The bells of St. Mary's Church, Diss, are to be rehung. Estimates for repair and maintenance work have been invited from hetlhanging firms. Frected in 1833, at a cost of ti600, they have only been repaired once since then-in 1894. The longest peal on the bells was 6,240 Oxford Treble Bob Major rung (according to a peal board in the belfry) in 4 hours 3 minutes in 1866 .Mr. Stephen Ivin writes that he has not composed a 5.184 Apsley Surprise Major (see page 813, December 1st)
In Mr. Trevor A. Bevis' article on Surflest Church, the number of peals rung by Mrs. A. Richardson is incorrectly stated. through a typographical error. The correct total is 270 .
At Rye. Sussex. Miss Noreen Winter and Miss Gillian Sewell were recently elected c.-plain and vice-caplain of the hand respectively, with Mr. S. Skinner to act as steeplekeeper
We note with satisfaction that a local hand rang Grandsire Doubles for a Confirmation service on Dicember 17ih at Ilfracombe Parish Church. This is the outcome of the rraining this young hand has received from Mr. J. A. Hill, who has been residing at Ilfracombe since Oetober, and Miss B. Boyle and Mr. Saingwin, of Combe Martin.
With the peal of Surprise Minor rung at Englefield. Berks. on December 14th. Mr. G Dodd has now completed peals in all the nine lowers vissible from the 17 miles stretch of Bath Road between Newbury and Reading. These towers are Shaw (6). Thatcham (8). Midgham (6). Beenham (6). Aldermaston (8). Padworth ( 6 ), Englefield (6). Theale (6) and Tilehurst (8). The four-bell tower at Brimpton has yet to be conquered.
The ringers of the peal at Beaconsfield would like to thank the Misses Fletcher for the repast that followed its successful conclusion. They also had in mind their former Branch secretary. Bil! Butler, and his ringing wife. Audrey, who became the proud parents of a daughter. Alison Jane, earlier in the of a daughter, Alison

OBITUARY

MR. ALFRED KING

Ringeis throughout the country will 'learn wilh deep regret of the death of Mr. Alfred King, of Luton, Beds.

Born ai Pirton. a few miles from Luton. on June 7th. 1871. he was the fourth child of a family of nine. On September 13 th, 1893. he married Miss Kate Ellingham, and the young couple settled in Luton, where Mr. King was employed. The marriage, which lasted 68 years, was a very happy one, and it was a ago. Kate died after suffering indifferent'health for about two years. He was reunited with her on December 19th. when, seated in his chair, he passed peacefully away.
The funeral service at Luton Parish Church. where, for 60 years. Mr. King had been a regular ringer, was conducted by the Vicar. Rev. H. E. Frankham, and he was laid to res! in the cemetery nearby.

Afterwards the bells of the Parish Church were rung for a short time. as a tribute to a very loyal ringer. and on December 26th a memorial peal of Grandsire Triples was rung there by members of the local hand and other members of the Bedfordshire Association.
A. E. R.

MR. JOSEPH NEEDHAM

A remarkable record of family service to the church has been severed by the death of Mr. Joseph Needham. of Barwell. Leicestershire, at the age of 86 years. He was the last of a line of family which had given its sons in successive generations continuously. since 1702, 10 fulfil the office of parish clerk, at Barwell. He tad been in office for 53 years. His only son died at the early age of 23 , so there is no successor.
Mr. Needham was the last surviving member of the band who rang the first peal on the bells afte: augmentation to eight in 1902. It is interesting to note that the ringers who took part in this peal died in the order of Queens Joseph rang the tenor. His absences from the belfry were very rare. His striking was meticulous. and he was able to ring for service within three weeks of his passing. thus completing 70 ycars as a ringer in one tower. His last quarter peal was a year ago.
The funeral service, which was fully choral. was conducted by the Rector, Rev. P. Cryer.
In the evening, a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung half-muffled by the Barwell ringers. Before the ringing commenced Mr . T. C. Belton. diocesan lay reader. who took part in the ringing. led the band in prayer in thankfulness for the good life of Joseph Needham.
T.C.B.

MESSRS. HECTOR KNIGHTS AND FRANK DEACON

The Hinckley District of the Leicester Diocesan Guild has suffered the loss of two familiar figures in Messrs. Hector Knights and Frank Deacon.
Hector Knights, who was born at Earl Shilton. was a member of the choir and also a bellinger before moving to Hinckley. prior to the war. He rang a good number of peals both in tower and 'in hand.' particularly with the late Frank Trotman. Owing to a long and painful illness he had not worked for several years. but tine cheerfulness which endeared him to all was with him until the end. He was 53 A peal of Stedman Triples " in hand. ${ }^{3}$ already reported, was rung to his memory by his friends in the Hinckley District.
Another Earl Shilton ringer was Frank Deacon. He left the village many years ago and resided at Kirkby Mallory, where. prior to the second war. he was responsible for augmenting a silent ring of five with a sixth and training a band who were capable of Surprise Minor for regular Sunday ringing.
A butcher by trade, it was a great tragedy when. after the war. an accidemt at work terminated his ringing career. He was 56 , and leaves $a$ wife. who is organist at the adjoining church of Peckleton.

THE FASCINATION

TO explain ringing to the uninitiated is not easy. Most of us have tried; some in public. A few are born story tellers; they can introduce thrills and romance into ringing that even excites the blase. Others have not these gifts, as speech or writing is not their metier.

One of the clearest expositions about ringing to the outsider is that written by John R. Mayne for 'Research Review,' the house review of the General Electric Company Ltd. and two of its allied companies. Probably the heading of the article. 'Ring Out Wild Bells' (Tennyson), was not John's, as this is immediately dispelled by the caption which states the bells that ring for Christmas and the New Year are anything but wild, but adds that those who ring are subject to 'a stern, though fascinating, discipline.' Does such a discipline prevail? It might in some towers, but in very many there is a laxity that would not be tolerated by our forbears.
How does John explain our art? 'Change-ringing,' he writes, ' is a mathematical rather than a musical exercise, as the object is the mathematical ringing of permutations. There are many "methods" of producing these permutations, some of which are more musically pleasing than others, and great care goes into arranging for the most musical orders to be rung within the scope of the method used. Nevertheless, the music is always secondary to the method. No attempt is made to play tunes, as it would be nearly impossible when no bell can speak twice within two seconds.

During ringing each bell is controlled by one ringer. who times his bell to strike in the correct position in the permutation. Whatever the method used, the bells are rung successively in different permutations called "rows," with each bell striking one in each row. Every row is different; the bells never strike twice in tho same order in the same piece of ringing. A " change " is the progress from one row into the next.'

The article goes on: 'All methods begin and end with rows called "rounds," in which the bells are rung in descending order of pitch. For eight bells this is written (in change-ringing notation) 12345678 from treble to tenor. Rounds are rung several times at the beginning to establish proper control of the bells, and succeeding rows are rung in pairs with a small gap between each pair. The pairing gives form and beat to the ringing, of which the speed is governed by the time period of the bells. being slower for heavier rings. A typical speed is 30 rows a minute.
'While each bell revolves between the blows the other seven speak. so that since the lighter hells turn faster they have to be held at the balance between swings to keep time with the heavier ones. The tenor is rung so that it never quite reaches the balance, and this sets the pace. Considering the time lag between pulling and striking the bell and this difference in period between the heavier and lighter bells in a ring, maintenance of an accurate beat requires skill. However, in good ringing the beat is maintained throughout all changes.'
We doubt if there is a reader of this journal who does not know these elementary facts about ringing. The pause between rows is essential to the beat. Why if these facts are known do we get such indifferent striking? Probably the answer is the lack of complete correlation between the individual's physical and mental powers. This can only be achieved by perfect bell control, whereby ringing the bell is purely mechanical and the body a well-oiled machine.
Judging by the letters received by this journal and the quarter peals submitted, the majority of our readers would not classify themselves as 'experts.' Mr. Mayne, who most weeks adds a new Sarprise method to his repertoire, gives us an insight into the mental calibre of our great men. Pointing out that ringing is always performed without any aid to memory, he states: ' It is not the changes themselves which are memorised, but a diagram of the path of the ringer's bell down the column of figures which represents the method. Expert ringers can memorise such a diagram in a few minutes and use it to place their bell correctly in as many as 5.000 changes, taking about three hours to ring. Do you wonder that it is fascinating to exercise this kind of skill while manipulating a bell weighing perhaps a couple of tons? '

Frankly. very few of our ringers today are among these giants of the Exercise who within a few minutes can master a new method and then ring it to a peal. If accomplishment is so easy why do we see so frequently as a footnote 'Rung without previous practice'? Perhaps, one day, an expert will contribute an article on how to learn a method to the stage of being able to ring it to a peal within a few minutes.

We would say that you have not necessarily to be an expert to find ringing fascinating. Those who have to work hard to master every new method they ring find it equally fascinating, and with this John agrees as he aptly concludes his article: 'Ringing is excellent exercise, both physical and mental, and can be practised all the year round. You can learn in childhood and ring until you are 90. You travel the country, enjoy a wide circle of friends and see a magnificent heritage of church architecture. Finally, there is the æsthetic appeal of the bells - the beauty of their cry and the spiritual significance of their message. Above all, change-ringing is creative-which is more than can be said for watching the "telly ",

RECORD LENGTH OF  YORKSHIRE ROYAL

1. NOTEWORTHY addition to the record lengths of 1961 was the peal of 16.920 Yorkshire Surprise Royal rung at St. Mark's Worsley. on December 23 rd . in 11 hours 14 minutes. This was also the longest length of Yorkshire Surprise ever rung. The conductor Robert B. Smith, and his band deserve congratulations on their endurance and concentration.

Mr. C. Keineth Lewis provided an excellent composition which was easily shortened to 16.920. The umpires-Giles B. Thompson, John Rovinson and Anne P. Smith-endured the severely cold weather and they are thanked for giving up their time for an unenviable task.

Thanks are accorded. on behalf of the band, to the Rector and the leader of the local ringers. Mr. J. Michuel Lomax. for arranging arccommodation for the band and also for providing new ropes for the attempt. Messrs. Pritchards are also thanked for their prompt delivery of the new ropes.
While tie average age of the hand was only 22.8 years. it contained a number of members uho had recently stood in long lengths. The biographies of six of the band were published in 'The Ringing World' during 1961. Details of those not previously published are :-
John A. Anderson (Birmingham), age 22 years. Was second in the list of leading peal ringers last year, when he became one of the few ringers who have rung 100 peals in one year. He ring, regularly in the peal attempts in and around Birmingham, and also travels further afield for his neals. Peal total at present is a little over 300, this being his first 'successful' long peal attempt. He has been in several of the attempts at the Loughborough Bell Foundry, including one which went to nearly 29.000 changes. Equally at home whether ringing heavy or light bells.
Brian J. Wylde (Stafford), age 23 years. Employed as a commissioning engineer bv English Electric Company. Started ringing 8 years ago. but learned most of his ringing while at Bristol University (1956-59). His peal total at presen i is 72. and includes one othe: long peal. 10.080 Plain Bob Major rung for the Bristol University Society in 1958.

Brian J. Woodruffe (Buxton. Derhys). age 23 vears. Second in th: leading peal rinpers of 1958. when he too rang 10 p peals. In the same year $h=$ conducled a peal in 7.3 T.B. Minor methods (tower bells). and in the following year he conducted 94 Doubles methods (' in hand "). In 1957 he conducted his only other lono peal. which was 10000 Double Norwich C.B. Major at Fairfield (Buxton). the hand being the youngest to ring a peal of that length

Brian Harris (Norhurv. Hazel Grove). age 28. Married. with 4 children. Learnt to ring 7t Hoole. Cheshire. hut moved to Manchester at few vears later. when laking a degre in mathematics. ## GUILDFORD GUILD TO DISCUSS MERGER

An extraordinary general meeting of the Guildford Diocesan Guild will be held tomorrow (Saturday) at St. Saviour's Church Hall. off Woodbridge Road. Guildford. to vote on the proposed merger of the Guildford Guild and the Surrey Association.
The following molion, which has been formulated by the Masters and secretaries of both bodies, will be submitted to the meeting:

- Following exploratory discussions by the sub-committees appointed by both bodies. it has been found possible to propose a common basis of agreement which would allow the merging of the Guildford Diocesan Guild and the Surrey Association. Considerable detailed negotiation would still be necessary to ensure that the new organisation represents the best interests of hoth memberships., and safeguard the traditions of both societies
- This meeting approves in principle of : merger between the Guildford Diocesan Guild of Church Bell Ringers and the Surrey Association of Change Ringers, subject to a final detailed proposal being worked out, and being approved by both societies at further Special General Meetings in due course. In view of the possible implications of this motion on the Guild rules and finances. etc.. it has been agreed by hoth Associations that not less then three-quarters of the votes of the members present and voting are required for the motion to be carried. Voting will he by ballot. and the ballot papers of the Guild and of the Surrey Association will be counted and the results made known on February 24th at Croydon, after the Surrey Association have held their meeting.
It has also been decided that the Guildford Guild Rule No. 9. para. 2, shall be cancelled for the purposes of this meeting. so that junior nembers may be permitted to vote.

ST. HELEN'S, ABINGDON.

On Suinday. November 26th, the ten bells of St. Helen's Church. Abingdon, were rededicated by the Bishop of Oxford, after being rehung on ball bearings by Mr. F. White, of Appleton. On the pievious Wednesday night, the bells were rehallowed by the Vicar, in the presence of all the ringers. and on the Sunday evening. before the bells were first rung for service, the Vicar dedicated a memorial tablet in the ringing chamber, which carries the words: 26th November, 1961.
In thanksgiving fo: the rehanging of these bells, and in memory of Albert E. Lock, 1878-1960. Master Mason and Bellringer. Member of this band from 1920. Captain 1934-1960.

The following Sunday at Matins, the Rector dedicated a new oak seat and chest in the ringing chamber of St. Nicholas' Church. given as a memorial for the life and work of Albert E. Lock by the North Berkshire Branch of the Oxford Guild and the Church Council.

For the information of visiting ringers (who re always welcome) ringing on Sundays is at

CAMBRIDGESHIRE BELL IN NEW SOUTH WALES

The only bell hung on a wheel for ringing in the Dincese of Giafton, on the north coast of New South Wales, is at Alstonville Parish Church. The Rector, the Rev. E. Williams. went to Alstonville 30 years ago from Swavesiy. Cambridgeshire. He has three churches in his care. two without bells.

About a year ayo he visited Swavescy. Two hells from the village were given to himthose from the disused school and mission church. Friends at Swavesey paid for the bell to be transported to Australia. A report of the dedication of the parish church bell appears in the Alstonville Parish News for September, and the Rector, who is a ringer. writes on the importance of a bell to the community.
Mr. B. Prime, of Ashcotı, near Bridgwater. in sending us this item. states that there must be many unusual bells in this country that could be put to good use overseas as these are at Alstonville.

BELLS THAT HAVE MADE HISTORY

By ERNEST MORRIS

ST. SEPULCHRE'S HANDBELL
Another small handbell, now preserved in St. Sepulchre's Church, Snow Hill, London. has a very different history. It was the duty of the bellman of St. Sepulchre's. near Newgate. to rouse. the night before the execution. the unfortunates lying in prison condemned to death. He solemnly exhorted them to repentance, in bad rhyme, thus:

- All you that in the condemned hole do lic.

Prepare you for tomorrow you shall die:
Watch all and pray: the hour is drawing near Thit you before the Almighty must appear.
Examine well yourself: in time repent.
Thar you may not to eternal flames be sent. and when St. Sepulchre's Bell in the [morning tolls.
The Lord have mercy on your souls. Past 12 oclock.
The custom originated in a gift or bequest of $£ 50$ made by Mr. Robert Dowe in 1605 .
St. Sepulchre's was partially destroyed in the Great Fire. 1666, the south porch and tower alone remaining of the old church. It has been restored several time since-1738. 1837. 1863 and 1875 . Tower and pinnacles 150 feet high-contains a ring of 10 bells on which number of historic peals have been rung. The old bell that once hung in Newgatc Prison, on the site of which the present Old Bailey now stands, is preserved at Madame Tussaud's.

OBITUARY  MR. GEORGE T. MITCHISON

A LAST LINK WITH HENRY JOHNSON

The many ringing friends of the older generation will learn with regret of the passing of Mr. George T of Mr. George T. Mitchison. of Perry Barr, Birmingham, on December 15 th. within a few days ot his 90th birthday.

Mitch. as he was familiarly known, started his ringing career at an early age. and rang his first peal, Grandsire Triples, at St. John's, Perry Barr, in 1887, at the age of 16 .

A member of St. Martin's Guild, he was a familar figure at the annual Henry Johnson dinner and for a number of years was the only one present to rise in response to the chairman's inquiry, as to . Who remembers and rang with the "Grand Old Man?"
George was not a prolific peal ringer, and did not keep in account. but in fact rang yuite a number of peals up to twelve bells, but Sunday service ringer an inered as a regular Sunday service ringer, an immaculate striker and for his firm handling of beginners, of and for his firm handling of beginners, of uhom many passed through his capable hands.
He was always proud of the fact that he introduced change ringing and taught a band at the neighbouring six-bell tower of Great
Barr. Barr
He was an excellent. organiser and. as hurchwarden. Ringing Master and chorister churchwarden. Ringing Master and chorister he applied his talents to the full. It was with a certain regret that he severed his connection with Perry Barr and joined the Aston Parish Church tand where his valuable assistance to the Sunday Service ringing and the choir was continued
The last few years, unfortunately, had seen George confined to his room. but in full possession of his faculties and with a remarkable memory for rirgers and ringing matters in general: his reminiscences of well over half a century were indeed a delight to listen to.

MR. THOMAS NEWMAN

The death took place on Boxing Day of Mr. Thomas Newman. of Hucclecote, Tommy ' was born at Sandhurst. Gloucester where hol learnt to ring on the six bells, under Walter Pugh. He rang his first peal of 6,000 Douoles in about five methods for Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, 1897.

Soor afterwards he joined the St. Michael's Juniors and the Crypt Youths and rang peals on higher numbers of bells and methods, and it was not long before he called a peal of Stedmar Triples. In the early 1900 s he left Gloucester for London, where he and his wife were in service together. He joined the Cumberlands and rang a lot of peals whth the late J. D. Matthews.
A peal of which he was most proud was the first of Cambridge Maximus for the Cumberlands at Shoreditch, and also those when the Cumberlands were visiting Stroud and Painswick for their annual outing. He rang a peal of Bob Major in a train, and was in the first in a train passing through five counties. He rang in many handbell peals of Stedman Caters and Cinques and also conducted Stedman Caters and Cinques on tower bells.
He returned to Gloucester to live in 1938 and was a regular member of St . Michael's until the church was closed in 1940 . He then rang at St. Mary-de-Crypt and the Cathedral until three years ago. when he had a stroke. Since then he had only rung once although he would come and listen. No record of his peals has been kept
He was buried in Hucclecote churchyard, in the same grave as his wife. who predeceased him ninc years ago.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CHESTERFIELD PARISH CHURCH

Dear Sir,-May I inform all our friends, through the medium of the columns of . The Ringing World,' that our bells at Chesterfield have not been adversly affected by the terrible fire which occurred recently.

I know that many will have heard and read announcements in the public press and T.V.. and will be wondering how the belfry has fared. Apart from a lavish application of grease to the bearings and a new sei of ropes, the upper lower is as usual. Our beautiful ringing room. I regret to say, is ruined. Charred woodwork, blistered peal boards, ceiling and stone walls burned black with heat, not smoke, and the trap-door, with the mahogany table and three chairs. fallen through into church below.

In the opinion of the fire safety office, a few more minutes without discovery and the spire uould have gone. and the main body of the church as well. However, this catastrophe was averted. due to the splendid efforts of the fire brigade. and after two days with scrubbing brush and soap, not excluding backache. the room is again, at least. habitable.

We have not any light or warmth, but ringing by candlelight has been done before and is something of a novelty.

As soon as we are permitted to do so, we shall make a siart on decorating and hope to restore tise room to its former condition. before so very long.-Yours sincerely,

SAM SCATTERGOOD, Ringing Master. Chesicrfield Parish Church.

THE LADY'S DISAPPROVAL

Dear Sir.-I was dismayed to note an absience of five and six bell rings in the Christmas Day broadeast on B.B.C. radio (Home Service). I feel sure that there are many such towers in the country whose standard of ringing is of a higher criterion that those featured in the broadcast. Furthermore. I was appalled at the ringing from Tewkesbury Abbey on New Year's Eve (I.T.V., Midland).-Yours faithfully.

CAROLS HELP BELI FUND

Dear Sir.-Oar bell restoration fund received a most welcome boost, when the Northfleet ringeis came out with their handbells, for three evenings before Christmas. and rang carols.' We collected about $£ 27$. A very noble effort on the pirt of Northfleel-and one that has already given a promise of future help. -Yours truly,

JOHN V. MULLER,

Captain.
St. Peter's. Ash-by-Wrotham.

CHRISTMAS BELLS

Dear Sir.-Owing to having to ring at our own village church from 9 until 9.30 on Christmas morning, the broadcast of bells at 9.10 a.m. on the B.B.C. Home Service was missed.

Is there any ringer who has a lape recorder and recoided this? If so could he please let me know. so that I could send a tape along for a copf.-Yours sincerely.

COLLECTION OF MAJOR METHODS

Dear Sir,-Browsing through the Central Council's Collection of Compositions of Major Methods the other day I came across a fooinote which is so obviously wrong that I feel sure other persons must have noticed it, yet I cannot remember having seen any reference to its incorrectness in "The Ringing World:

The misleading footnote is one page 58 and reads: Any Composition of Suparlative which does not reverse the bells in 5-6 at a courseend may be rung as Spliced Superlative and Cambridge by ringing all full courses CSCXCSC and al! short courses CSSC:

Immediately above this footnote is an arrangement of Spliced Superlative and Cambridge by Mr. H. G. Cashmore, using Pitstow's well known Tiree-Part peal of Superlative for the calling. It could be that a conductor. looking at Mr. Cashmore's peal and then reading the footnote under it, might be tempted to use this easier and more regular arrangement of CSCXCSC to that calling; if he did so the result would be tather disastrous for the peal would then be hopelessly false. with 27 repetitions, involving 108 rows.

Being curious to see what would happen I chose two peals at random from the same collection. one. 5.088 by Arthur Knights, the vther. 5.056 by C. H. Martin, both Superlative and both on page 26 . After applying the formula CSCXCSC I found that 50 rows repeated in the first one and 56 repeated in the second.

A misprint may be the explanation of the wrong information for if the methods are reversed so that the arrangemant is SCSXSCS then the statement will be irue. for both Cambridge and Superlative will then have a clean proof-scale in themsclves and the false courseends hetween the two methods will all he $6-5 \mathrm{~s}$, i.e. 24365 for the 1st lead of Superlative agatinst the $\exists$ nd lead of Cambridge and the fith lead of Cambridge against the 71 h lead of Superlative: 32465 for the 2nd lead of Camhridge against the 3 rd lead of Superlative. and 43265 for the 5 th lead of Superlative against the fith lead of Cambridge. so that any composition of Superlative not having bells revarsed in $5-6$ will run true providing the arrangement SCSXSCS is adhered to throughout with the short courses rung SCCS.

CSCXCSC will run true to any peal of Cambridge with the temors together. that is. 10 Middleton's and its variations.-Yours faithfully.

Pudsey. Yorks

STONY STANTON RINGERS

Dear Sir.-Regarding the biography of Mr . Alfred Ballard in . Personalities of the Exercise No. 50. it is stated that no change ringing band exists at Stoney Stanton, where Mr . Ballard was taught to ring by the late Kev. R, P. Farrow.
I am sure that the ringers of this church are too modest to write to you to say that they probably have more active ringers at this tower than any o:her eight-bell tower in the diocese. It is only fair to point out this error. nearing in mind the excellent work which has been going on in this belfry for several years.
May I also say that the ringers of Barwell were sorry to hear of the passing of the Rev. R. P. Farrow, as he dedicated the bells there after retuning and rehanging in 1934.-Yours faithfully.

THOMAS C. BELTON.

THE PEAL OF MINOR AT PEWSEY, AND CALL CHANGES
Dear Sir.-There are two points in letters in your issue of December 22nd which I should like to take up.
I may have misunderstood his letter, but W. C. West seems to imply that the peal at Pewsey on November 4th should have been credited to th: Salisbury Guild. As general secretary of the Society to which the peal was credited. I would point out that the University of Bristol Society is non-territorial. and since its members belong to various Diocesan Guilds. peals by groups of members are usually credited to the Society. without violating dny unwritten rules. In this case I believe that only one member of the band was also a member of the Salisbury Guild.
It is also my personal opinion that visiting bands shculd credit their peals 10 their home Association. wherever possible. This would seem to give a fairer picture of the position, but it seems that certain organisations may make it a little difficult for visitors to get towers if their peal booking fee and life membership subscription are endangered.

Henry Allen's description of the call changes at Bow also interests me. for I was taught to ring at Dulverton, Somerset. where the method of calling he describes was s:andard practice. as I belicve it is throughout Devon's call change towers. We often laughed at the muddles that a visiting 'scientitic' would get into while ringing with us, and I have since found that there is a great ignorance of the proper way to ring call changes among method ringers. If 12345678 is to be changed to 12354678. the correct call is simply four. five." not 5 to 3 or 5 to 3.4 to 5. 6 to $4^{\text {(it }}$ takes a good breath to gat that in!). or even worse. I have heard ' 6 to 4." The ' Golden Rule' for ringing is simply . know the bell before you. and the bell before that and for calling "call the pair to change places." If everyone plays their part hy looking at the hell before them. this requires much less ropesight than is required for method ringing. and hence allows much more concentration on striking.-Yours sincerely.

PATRICK J, BIRD.

PEAL RINGERS OF 1961
We are in the process of compiling our records of peal ringers of 1961 . Will those who have rung 25 peals or more please send details of numbers rung on tower- or handbells and the number of each conducted.

MINOR AT PEWSEY

Dear Sir. With reference to the peal of Minor rung at Pewsey, Wilts (the home tower of one of the band), by the University of Bristol Sacicty on November 4th. may I thank the honorary secretary of the Salisbury Guild for correcting our records'? The information that it was the first of Minor on the bells came from the Rector of Pewsey. and I apologise for the inaccuracy.-Yours faithfully, A. R. KENCH.

Dear Sir.-In your issue of December 2Ind. under the caption " 50 Years Ago. you published an account of Wm. Pyes 1.000 th peal. This peal was rung at Sepulchre's. Holborn, and not at St. Clement Danes. as stated. -Yours. ete..

FOUR PEALS WITH THE PETERBOROUGH GUILD

The usial Christmas week peal tour in Northants and district，organised by Miss Diana M．Lawless，was only spoilt by the bad weather conditions．An attempt for Cam－ bridge at Oakham lasted for $1 \frac{1}{2}$ hours on Boxing Day，and another for Superlative at Billesdon on December 27th did not go more than a course owing to some people forgetting the blue line．
However，with the arrival of the Surrey enthusiast．things began to liven up and a good peal of Double Norwich was rung at Uppingham in the evening．Ronald Hill captain of Oakham．rang without a mistake to score his first in the method．The journey back to Kettering was made difficult by ice．

The first tower for December 28 ih was the fine Gillett eight，in the equally fine tower at Tichmarsh．and Peter Fleckney did well to ring Yorkshire as his first peal on eight bells． After a fish and chip Junch at Thrapston，a move was made to the tower to ring Cam－ bridge．Here Frank Crozier rang his first peal on eight bells＇inside，＇and Peter Fleckney rang his second peal of Surprise on the same day．A call was made at Cranford to join the local practice night for a course of London
By Friday．December 29th．the snow had arrived and we wondered whether we should all get to Desborough in the morning for Lincolnshire．However，the peal was duly rung，and two having their first course in the method．By this time the snow was falling thick and fast．so it was decided to go to Moulton by bus．However．we only met five，so．after some Stedman Doubles．We went on to Weston Favell，where the Vicar kindly gave us permission to ring．
To get to Kibworth Beauchamp，Leics，on Saturday morning，four of the band travelled by train Three others arrived by car，in very bad weather conditions．but number eight，who should have come from Rothley to complete （Continued at foot of next column）

It is expected that the new 12 bells at Southwell Minster will be ready for ringing ahout June. Towards the cos gave 88.000 .

The peal of Grandsire Caters at Grantham on December 23 rd was conspicuous in that it was the first peal at Grantham by the Sunday service band for 41 years.
Thrussington. Leics. comes inio the peal coiumns again after an absence of 40 years. The las: neal was on April 16ih. 1921. conducted by Mr. Ernest Morris, who was again in the company.

After a break of 30 years Mr. L. E. Towers has rung a pear of Stedman. In this peal, rung at Stoney Stanton, Leics. on Boxing Day. was Mr. Alfied Ballard, who took part in the former.
Mr. Edwin A. Cracknell made a welcome return to peal ringing at Barking. Suffolk. on December 29th. His last peal was in July. 1947: his absence from the peal columns has been through ill-health. The peal was a birthday compliment to Mr. L. G. Brett. Master of the Suffolk Guild. Messrs. Cracknell and A. T. Brett kindly stood in at short notice.

Peals from Mancetter. Warwickshire, are infrequent. and the one rung on December 24ih is claimed to be the first by the local band. The oldest bell in this tower dates back to 135? and the wooden frame, erected in 1751. is still in good condition. This is an anti-clockwise, ground floor ring, with a draught of 55 feet.
After $5 \frac{1}{2}$ years' exile in soulh-east England. Mr. P. W. Cave was glad to be back with his old ringing friends and colleagues at St. Nichoias". Liverpool, at Christmas. He had the pleasure of calling Kenneth Hesketh's first peal of Stedman Caters. Nearly 17 years ago. on Fehruary 3rd. 1945, he called Kenneth's father's first of Stedman Caters at Worsley. His comment is that. Young Kenneth rang as faultlessly as ever his father did. and that is saving something.

BELERY GOSSIP

Godalming has a very young team of ringers in the charge of Miss Elizabeth Stevinson. The youngest is Nicolai Stroud, aged 11, and she very competently conducted a quarter peal of Plain Bob Doubles at Christmastide.

During peals many ringers get blisters on their hands, but during the peal at St. Andrew's, Derby, on December 9th. the treble ringer managed to get one on his fool!

Four of his old pupils rang in a peal at Batheaston, Bath, on December 23rd, to mark the ordination as priest of the Rev. Roger O. Fry.

The band which rang the peal at Holme-on-Spalding-Moor. Yorkshire, would like to record hearty thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dove. for refreshments generously provided afterwards.

Ringers at Dean Prior. Devon. followed their peal for the festival of Christmas with a tea and social evening, during which handbells were introduced.

Mr. A. D. Barker informs us that the name of the 12 bell composer mentioned in our article on 'Compositions of Caters and Cinques (December 29th) was his friend George R. Fardon (not JR.).

During the Christmas octave ringers at Warsop. Notts, attempted a quarter peal for evary service. Only one of the seven attempts wis lost-that at $9.30 \mathrm{a} . \mathrm{m}$. on Christmas Day. Eleven ringers took part. In addition. there was handbell ringing for carols at the services on Christmas Eve and-New Year's Eve.
We have heard of Gayton ringing at Gayton and Tysce ringing at Tysoe, but at Weston Favell on December 30th. Michael R. Harvey nearly rang a peal on a bell dedicated after his namesakc, being cheated out of the efforts to enable Mr. G. F. Roome to complete the circle. The 2nd bell at Weston Favell bears the ininscription: Wm. Harvey: Rectoris. 1683." Rev. Wm. Harvey. sen.. was Rector of the Rarish for 59 years, 1677-1736.

THE RABBITS' GUILD

THE badge of the Rabbit Trippant was proudly displayed in a multitude of lapels when the Guild assembled for the fifth Annual General Meeting. There was also seen a goodly number of Rabbit Coachant badges, the additional honour worn by Rabbit Ringing Masters.
The proceedings opened, as is customary, with the Master's speech. He expressed his keen satisfaction at the thriving state of the Guild, and the continued and increasing evidence that its work is both valuable and valued. On the one hand the Hints for Instructors have been widely studied and occasionally acted upon. On the whole, more care is devoted to preliminary instruction. There has been a perceptible improvement in some quarters in the technique of the stander-behind, some being now so enlightened as actually to explain beforehand how they mean to proceed, a step towards sanity undoubtedly to be placed to the credit of the Guild. A few elite instructors have even set homework. As a result, though our belfries are on the whole well stocked with learners, he expected to see fewer of them, driven by despair of ever making progress, come forward to join the Guild.
On the other hand; the Guild is undoubtedly valued by the Exercise. The New Year message of good will from Father Time in 'The Ringing World' was much appreciated. He regarded also as complimentary to the Guild the kindness, outstanding even among ringers, with which office-bearers especially were received as visitors during the year, and mentioned with particular relish West Wiltshire and West Suffolk, where not only was an expedition planned for each evening but also ringing was specially arranged at both Bury St. Edmunds towers and the occasion prominently acclaimed in the local press. 'It is such events as this which resolve any possible doubt on the honourable position accorded by the Exercise to the Rabbits' Guild.' Further evidence, were any needed, that its rulings are fast gaining canonical value is afforded by the frequency with which is heard such an expression, spoken with evident respect, as 'according to the tenets of the Rabbits' Guild.'
Finally, he said that though the Guild, in accordance with its high calling, must to some extent retain its militant character, the climate now, after its four years of labour, was so altered in favour of the humble rabbit that the Guild could afford in some directions to adopt a more lenient attitude to its mentors and tormentors.

A motion calling for the abolition of the rule which requires Rabbits to resign their membership on ringing a peal was keenly debated. The proposer argued that the distress it causes to aspirants for peal honours is great, and that, in a sense, it tends to thwart the objects for which the Guild works. After much discussion, and in the knowledge that the event must be exceedingly rare, a compromise was reached, and the rule amended to read that members must offer their resignations, but the Peals and Peal Attempts Committee, after investigating the circumstances of the peal and the merit or otherwise of the performance, may recommend that the resignation be not accepted. This decision caused much satisfaction.

The meeting was greatly in favour of the new format of 'The Ringing World.' As a speaker neatly put it: 'In the mood of gentle sentimentality and lush complacency so easily induced by the front page, it gives a painful shock to turn over and be confronted with the Twelve Bell Peals. How much kinder to lead up gradually to the Great Deflation which every Rabbit must each week suffer!'.

A number of Rabbit Ringing Masters warmly supported the Master's remarks on the value of the Hints to Instructors. Several reported particularly favourably on the good effect of relegating the Pons Asinorum (Grandsire Doubles) to a more suitable place in the learner's programme than it often occupies.
Other members commented on the bias towards simplicity and elementary common sense displayed in the Hints, as befits an organisation concerned in the teaching of the inept.

In accordance with the Master's wish for a more pacific aspect of the Guild's activities, it was decided to confer the title of Honorary Patron of the Rabbits' Guild on ringers who have rendered especially valiant service to members, and the first four elections were made. To save the recipients of the honour the possible embarrassment of having to refuse it, they were not consulted beforehand. The order of the names is alphabetical, and has no other significance :-

For his kindly understanding of and sympathy with the Underworld, and his patient attempts to alleviate the hardships of Rabbit Life-Mr. Geoffrey Dodds.

For exhibiting the perfect blend of encouragement and discipline-Mr. Wilfrid Moreton.

For seeing a Rabbit through a quarter peal of Surprise with neither visible wince nor audible groan-Mr. Eric Speake.
For correctly interpreting and generously acting upon the agonised silent petition "Make Speed to save us'-Mr. Richard Speed.

The meeting stood in silence while the sad task of reading the names added to the Dishonorary List (of unhelpers) was carried out. This painful duty casts a momentary shadow over each Annual General Meeting. The list (with towers) is available for inspection of members only.

At the conclusion of the business the meeting adjourned in happy mood to enjoy the Annual Feast, which besides the traditional humble pie included gammon with a liberal supply of sauce and a dish of sour grapes.

ON THE EDGE OF GOBBINLAND or THE BLACKBURN BRANCH ANNUAL MEETING

On the night of January 5th, the rains came and washed away what remained of the snow, which had been playing havoc with communications. The fine but misty day which followed was sufficient to tempt a large number of ringers from East Lancashire to the Blackburn Branch annual meeting at Church Kirk church.
This church, with its ancient tower, dating back to the 13 th century, is delightfully situated ir the heart of Lancashire's land of legend. Looking to the north from the churchyard, across the Dunkenhalgh Estate (the home of the local boggart). and beyond the brickworks, chimneys and Sabden reacle mines. on a clear day there is a fine view of the famous Pendle witch country. Also on the north side, Church has its protection against invasion, the Leeds and Liverpool canal. On the southern side, the Gobbins (as the inhabitants of Oswaldtwistle are known locally) are repelled by obnoxious odours from the nearby chemical works. A cunning feature of the town, which may cause some confusion to 'foreigners,' is the existence of two public timepieces, bath of which show a constant time throughout the day-one even shows a different time on each face! The -reason for this phenomenon is to prevent the townspeople from ageing as rapidly as their neighbours. It is little wonder, then. that Church Kirk never fails to attract a good attendance, whenever a meeting is held there.
In spite of the aforementioned clocks, the two hours of ringing in the afternoon went quikkly. and the ringers retired to a cosy little room in the Thorn Inn, to be greeted by a warm fire, a good tea and four ladies. whose task it was to maintain the supply of food. was opencd by the chairman and Ruiging Master. Mr. Norman Smith, and later closed by his successor. Mr. Walter Wilkinson.

During the meeting, 11 new members were elected. several of them being present. This immediately surpassed the total of 10 for the whole of 1961. The secretary reported on the events of the past year, highlights of which were a film show starring members of the Branch. four peals by bands consisting entirely of Branch members, seven changes of incumbents and an increase in the Branch fund. Mr . Roger Leigh, of Accrington, was elecled to serve on the Association Committee, and Mr. Walter Wilkinson, of Clitheroe, was elected Ringing Master in pli.ce of Mr. Norman Smith. who did not wish to stund for reelection and was duly thanked for his services during the last iwo years

The meeting closed with the usual votes of thanks, and most of those present returned to the belfry. whilst others remained a while to partake of further refreshment. These privileged few were allowed to see the halfgallon glass which is kept in the Thorn for the use of the head ringer. Unfortunately they did not see it in use.
The res of the evening was spent ringing anything from rounds to Spliced Surprise, and there were more than enough to man the ropes when 'time' was called at 9 p.m. J. P.

ACTON SCOTT'S OLD BELLS

Fifteen-year-old schoolgirl Elizabeth Rumbali has recently taken up bellringing at Acton Scott. a village in Shropshire. There are only three bells here, but she informs us that they are probably the only complete ring in Shropshire, except for Bitterby and but for repairs to the frame had remaincd unaltered for 500 years. A new timber frame has now been provided and the bells have been quarter turned. This has ensabled a silence of approximatcly 40 years to he broken.
According 10 'Church Bells of Shropshire' the approximate dale of these three bells is 1350-60. The treble and second were probably by the founder. John of Gloucester, and the third from an offishoot of the foundry, judging by the inscription.
loundry, judging by hope Elizabeth will not confine her ringing to three bells. but advance into ringing tinging on higher numbers,

RECORD LENGTH OF YORKSHIRE ROYAL

Regarding the record length of 16,920 Yorkshire Surprise Royal, rung at Worsley on December 23 rd in 11 hours 14 minutes (sec pages 18 and 25), ws have now received the following report from the umpires:-

As the hotelier had to be 'knocked-up' by the band and not vice-versa, as arranged, they hreakfasted an hour late and in consequence the start of the peal was delayed. The weather was bitterly cold with a cutting wind. but everybody seemed in the best of spirits.
From the start a good pace was maintained and the ringing proceeded with only half a dozen disturbances of thythm, until called round at 16,920 changes, tdue to cramp in one of the baind's hands, brought on by cold neáther.

50 YEARS AGO

'R.W: January 19th, 1912. -
Buried somewnerc beneath the soil of the graveyard of Etchingham Church. in Sussex lies, according to the legend, a peal of bells intended once upon 2 time for the tower. which still has only a single bell to call the faithful to prayer. The story, as far as can be ascertained, is thus related by a writer in "The Globe.' In the early Middle Ages. when the church could be approached by water as well as by land, a ccrlain valiant knight wished to present to it a ring of bells. These bells were cast at a foundry many miles away and brought to the church by watei They arrived ire safety, but through carclessiness or inadvertence they were allowed 10 slide to one side of the hoat during unloading. and in a few moments the vessel listed over ind sank. depositing the bells in the mud at the hottom of the canal. where they are to this day. When he heard of this the donor made a "vow. enchantment. or spell." saving that Etchingham Church should never have more than one bell until the peal he lad given was dragged from the mud by il team of four milk-white oxen. The white oxen do not appear to have been forthcoming. and in later times the canal was filled in.

LAVENHAM'S 150th ANNIVERSARY

On December 23rd. 1811, the six bells of SS. Peter and Paul, Lavenham. Suffolk, were augmented to eight and on December 23 rd . 1961, all ringers who had any connection with Lavenham were invited to a meeting in celebration of the 150th anniversary. Ringers were present from Coulsdon. Surrey. Ruislip, Middlesex. Holbrook. Ipswich. Needham Market, Lakenheath, Buxhall, Preston St. Mary and Newton, Suffolk. The grand ring of bells was soon put to good use.

An excellent tea had been arranged at the 'Swan Hotel,' after which Fred Mortlock, the tower-keeper, welcomed the, as he called them non-resident Lavenham ringers, and said he lad received apologies from Ernie H. Simpson (Shipley). John Euston (Streatham). William Dent (Culchester), Ron Dakin (Bildeston) and Reg Joinson (Anstey. Sussex). He narrated some interesting stories of the tower and ringers, including the time when there was both a married band and a single band in the tower. He concluded by remembering those members now laid to rest since he had teen ringing. These numbered nine. more than a complete band. and he mentioned, in particular. John Poulson and Arthur Symonds, the "father" of the Lavenham band.
The Rector. Canon H. W. S. Cotton, acknowledsed Mr. Mortlock's speech and. in thanking him for making the arrangements, said he could casily write- a book on his memories of the tower and ringers. The Rector also mentioned that he was very pleased to hear the bells ringing at all times. not only on Sundays.

After a general discussion, the ringers once more adjourned to the tower co conclude the evening.

Methods rung: Major-Plain Bob, Kent T.B. Double Norwich, Superlative: TriplesGrandsire and Siedman. The conducting was shared by H. Lister and F. Mortlock.

GUILD of DEVONSHIRE RINGERS Mid-Devon Branch

The annual meeting of the Mid-Devon Branch was held on January 6th at Babbacombe. Toiquay. Ringing on the eight bells started at 2.30 p.m. and ranged from rounds to Stedman Triples. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. H. B. Andrews. Tea was kindly given by the church workers and cerved in the Church Hall. At the business meeting the following new members were announced: T. Ward. C. Mudge and M Wright, of Tor; C. Goss and M. Goss, of Darimouth: A. Stokes and B. Tindall. of Babbacombe. Mr. Newman was elected a nonresident member
The next meeting will be theld at Chudleigis on Suturday. April 7th. if the bells are available. Further ringing took place at Upton.

'TO TRAVEL HOPEFULLY...

The Ashford District of the Kent County Association finished up 1961 by ringing five peals in the last five days of the year. This was no mean achievement considering the intense cold, and the difficulties of transport calused by ice and snow. All the peals started an hour late. but only one attempt, at Saltwood, ended in failure.

There was no sign of life in the frozen marshland village of Brookland, when the first two arrivals reached the famous detached belfry of St. Augustine's. The key was eventually obtained. and Nicholas Davies, whose keenness and enthusiasm are beyond praise, commenced the unenviable task of muffling the bells in a temperature several degrees below freezing.

The bells have been a ring of five since 1685, and the 3rd was cast in the 15 th century. The whecls are enormous, and the frame is built of timber said to have been collected from wreckage from the seashore or floated from wreckage from the seashore or floated down the river Rother. The bells, like the down the river Rother. The bells, like the ringers. were fully muffled. but even so the noise was very loud. The method wisely chosen was Reverse Canterbury Pleasure Bob Doubles, and was conducted by Ian H. Oram. In spite of blisters, and something akin to 'rigor mortis' setting in from the feet upwards, the peal, somewhat to everybody's surprisะ. came round in 2 hours 54 minutes. This was, understandably, the first peal on the bells. but a good rhythm was mainiained throughout.
Peais at All Saints', Woodchurch, are difficult enough at the best of times, but the biggest problem on this occasion was tralnsport. The honorary District secretary's slow. draughty, bui otherwise reliable. old car was pressed into commission, and responded nobly. Loaded down to the back axle with five passengers, hot water bottles, blankets and a bottle of genuine Monte Grappa to beat the cold. it just made it to Woodchurch hefore the back tyre collapsed. By the time this was repaired the 6th member of the band. Nicholas Davies, had walked most of the five miles from Appledore station Undeterred by this he turned in the redoubtable tenor with commendable skill. The youngsters rang well to bring round a pea! in three Minor methods in 2 hours 52 minutes.
After this hard work, something on the lighter side was eagerly anticipated at Little Chart on Friday. December 29th. A good peal in seven Minor methods was rung on this fine light six, but here again the inevitable delay occurred at the start. John Baldwin's car broke down somewhere near Baldwin's car broke down somewhere near Canterbury. Nicholas saved the situation by dashirig across country and hringing fim in just in sime to beai the deadline. The striking throughout wis excellent, except for a slight bewilderment when the conductor sligit bewilderment when the conductor departed from the prearranged order at the departed from the prearranged order at the first change of method, unaccountably saying - Double Oxferd, when the meant © Oxford Treble Bob.'
It is sad to think that the lovely old Church of St. Martin, Cheriton, will soon be engulfed by the dreary mass of tasteless building sprawling out from Folkestone. But even on this bleak Saturday morning. high above the stormy Channel, it still jooked beautiful. The band eventually met in the old Saxon tower, for Yorkshire. The hold-up old Saxon tower, for Yorkshire. The hold-up was due to a missed railway connection. This was due to a missed railway connection. This held. since the war one of the stalwarts of finging in the District, who sailed the same day for Australia.
This almost embarrassing run of success ended at Saltwood in the afternoon. Richard Hough had to walk from Hythe, but otherwise the attempt for seven Minor methods seemed a cert. This was the first team, and included five conductors, but a shift in the fifth extent spelt ruin for the attempt.

The traditional half-muffled peal always attempted at the District's mother Church of St. Mary, Ashford, on New Year's Eve, looked like being stillborn. The blizzard which swept the country on the last day of 1961 almost paralysed transport in East Kent. Fortunaty most of the band lived near. Six of them eventually mustered outside the tower. Agains: all the odds, Bernard Groves got through. and Mrs. T. Cullingworth stood in to complete the band. A well-struck peal of Bob Major, rung half-muffled for the passing of the old year, came round at the rather late but seasonable hour of 11.15 p.m. Nicholas Davies had the well deserved satisfaction of calling his first peal of Major as conductor

All this confirms the truth of the old saying about 'beiter late than never,' and that, contrary to R. L. Stevenson's adage. 'it is better to arrive than to travel hopefully.'

The District's thanks are due to those incumbents and ringers who annually make their bells available for these attempts, to the organisers and bell mufflers, and, some say (though this is doubtful), to the honorary District secretary's bottle of Monte Grappa.

HERTS COUNTY ASSOCIATION  Northern District

The Northern District came to Hitchin on January 6th. for the annual District meeting. Although there wer: not above 20 at any one time. quite a large number came. As i: former years the 'Pictorial' photographer was there. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. Sturdy, with Mr. P. Wells at the organ.
The busiress meeting followed an ample tea, and Mr. G. W. Debenham was chairman. 1961 District secretary read the report for 1961: meet'ngs thad been fairly well supported (though there is still room for improvement), but local members had not heen attracted. Sympathy was expressed with the relatives of the members who had died-Mr. A. Gilbert, a life member from Royston. Mr. E. G. Sanderson. an assoclate member of Norton, and Mr H. Werrett. tower captain of Norton.

There had been a big drop in both peals and quarter peals: 17 peals (21 last year) and 15 quarters ( 37 last year). Mr. G. W. Critchley and Mr. J. R. Castledine were the leading conductors. The secretary urged that more ycarters should be attempted: it is not necessary to wait for a special occasion before an atlempt is made.
Miss J. Sanderson gave a brief report on The Ringing World and the local press. The District balance sheet showed that income was $£^{22} 17 \mathrm{~s}$ Gd.. expenditure $£ 1$ 17s... and the Bell Fund balance was $£ 19$ 13s. 3d:: $£ 10$ of this was to be given to Cottered. where the bells are to be restored carly this year.

Nominations for officers of the Association included: Mr. A. R. Agg, general secretary: Mr F. J. Plummer, honorary treasurer: and Mr. G. W. Critchley. Central Council representative. District elections: Hon. secretary. Mr. E. G. Buck: Ringing Master, Mr. L. B. Scoot: Ringing World and Press representative, Miss J. Sanderson: General Committee, Mrs. A. R. Agg. Mr. L. B. Scoot ; District Committee. Mrs. A. R. Agg. Miss J. Sanderson. Messirs. G. W. Critchley. C. A. S. Harwood. L. B. Marks, C. M. Orme, L. B. Scoot. D Taplin. resolution regarding the government of the Association was passed. The place of the next practice meeting will be Baldock. and not Norton. on Fehruary 3rd. The meeting closed with voles of thanks.

COLLEGE OF CAMPANOLOGY

THE fifth annual report of the College of Campanology announces that the close of a six-year perind will come in August next, when the (third) triennial elections to office will take place. 'It js, with regret that we record that our founder principal. Mr. A. York-Bramble, has intimated his retirement at that time.'
The work of the College during the year had continued quietly. The need of an organisation like the College had been proved in the past five years, and its example was being followed by weekend and one-day courses. The two main needs of the moment were more helpers and more funds to meet costs, particularly of planned publications.
As 10 publicitions, the first part of "The Ringers Manual of Reference had been published in its second edition: the second part - Method Structure in Change Ringing'-was being rewritten. While other parts were the subject of various offers of compilation by members, the College advise the use of extan publications by other authorities, in lieu of parts, as follows: For Part IV, 'Handbells,' C.C.'s publication ; for Part VI,' Conducting. C C.'s publication : for Part VII. Ernest Morris History and Art of Change Ringing.

PERSONNEL OF COLLEGE

One or two changes, due to jilness and other causes, had occurred in office and governorship, but the key personnel remained as follows: President, Ernest Morris ; vice-president, Harry Miles; honorary chaplains, the Revs. G. Thurlow and M. Melville ; honorary consultant (belfries), F. Sharpe; principal. A. York-Bramble ; vice-principal. Richard Speed; registrar, D. Jones: hursar, Surgeon Capt. A Lawrey. Congratulations on particular successes were extended to Mr. Giles B. Thompson, of Manchester, on attaining a student's certificate of merit. with only one point short of the maximum for both oral and practical tests : to Mr. S. Humphriss of Liverpool, for conducting a peal of Grandsire Triples, with seven "firsts" of pupils he trained on College principles; to Mr. A. Mann, for conducting the first handbell peal for the College, with local pupils; to Mr. Ernest Morris, for setting the record with the highest number of peals ever rung by any one ringer.

THE SMITHS  THE STORY OF A RINGING FAMILY By I. N. QUICK

The practice at Hexworth continues. In charge is Joe Smith. Others there are his daughter, Phyllis (21); Henry, her boy friend; John, schoolboy son of Joe; Old William and Young William, his bookish son; Aluce and Rene Browning, 12 -year-old twins; and Old George, the treble ringer.
With these and similar thoughts to bear him company, young William made his way to the secend bell. To the right of him Old George was indulging in the usual preliminaries of preparing himself for the treble, or , the treble for himself-young William was never quite sure which. He never rang any other bell and had no pretentions at being what he called 'a walking biainbox!' But he could certainly ring a treble, thought young William. Nevertheless, he approached it suspiciously, as if he suspected that since he last rang it someone might have altered the length of the rope or interfered with the weight of the bells. He tried it for length, fied a knot in the rope. took it out again and got a box on which to stand. Having finally pushed this on one side with his fort he removed his steel-rimmed spectacles, which he had previously been using to read a borrowed 'Ringing World.' folded them carefully in a red spotted handkerchief which he then placed in his coat nocket. spat methodically upon the gnarled palm of each hand. turned and surveyed the circle and demanded, 'Everybody ready?'
Seeing that everybody had been ready for at least five minutes it might have been thought that Old George's question was a piece of sarcasm if it had not been accompanied by a siare of round-cyed astonishment.
'Look to. Treble's going. Her's gone!' Old cieorge said hastily and they were off.
With Phyllis on the 3rd, John on the 4th and William (senior) and Joe on the back end. the team was a pretty good one and young William was determined not to make a mistake. He counted his places carefully, marking well his signposts and checking his observation points.
Henry sat near enough to offer advice if recessary and followed the path of the second with his eyes and mind. Young William looked the epitome of concentration.

Tieble in 2-3, straight out, single dodge lay behind, double dodge, who was it that said it was impossible to concentrate for more than a few minutes at a time Rubbish! Treble in 5-4. straight in, long work on the front Straigit out behind. treble in $4-5$, double, die, single. straight to the front. Mr. Challen is fond of saying that the 6th at the slart in Cambridge goes straight to the front, whether there are six bells or sixty. Funny thing that! 1 wondei where Mr. Challen gets these odd bits of information. Dodge the treble in 3-4, make thirds. fourths, in to dodge and lead. He also said something the other week about being able to tell by watching the treble whether to make places or run through in 3-4: said it would work on any number of hells going up or coming down. There must he an easier way of ringing methods. I supnose, that having to memorise every blue line: Good heavens! Where im 1? What am I doing? dbutterflies in the tunmyl I'm in 5-6 anyway. I wonder do I have one dodge or two? Two I hope, risk it anyway. Yes. two was right. "There's a divinity that shapes our ends rough : hew them how we will.' That was a bit of luck. Treble here, must be Jong work behind. Mustn't let my mind wander again. Concentrate.... Striking's good. Mr. Smith wouldn't be long telling us if it wasn't. Another "Bob." Can't be many more. Funny name, ", Bob"; wonder why it was called a "Bob." Old George tells a feeble anecdote about a chap called Bob, who was a ringer Took a pal of his up the belfry one practice night. Never mind that now. Dodge 3-4 make 3 rds and 4ths and dodge the treble. Can't be Jong now. Ah! treble in 5-4. That means straight in to long work. This might be it. It must finish when I am making 2nds over the treble. Unless of course it ends when I run in at a Bob,
But this was indeed 'it.' Joe called, 'That's all.' and the bells ran sweetly round. Joe let the rounds run on for a little while. as if to emphasise the good striking or as though he was loath 10 leave such a piece of good ringing, and then he called, 'Stand next tuft!'
They stood.
'Well done, lad,' he said quietly, while Phyllis smiled at him and John nodded
Young William knew it was all worth while. To him the remainder of the practice was merely incidental: he had never felt so good since he scored his first peal, which had been on the treble to Bob Minor.
The night was. however, by no means over, and next the twins were steered through a touch of Plain Bob. conducted by John, in his easy, somewhat casual manner, after Joe had cross-questioned ihem about the alterations had cross-questioned inem about te alterations few hints or given a few reminders, such as: 'Don't forget that if you pass the treble in $3-4$ going out you will pass her in $5-4$ coming in and if you pass her in 4-5 going out you will pass her in $4-3$ coming in. Bobs or Singles won't alter this, nor affect your dodging in $5-6$. but be on the lookout for a different order of bells, coming in to that which you had going out.
Although they were not faullless the twins acquitted themselves quite well. and after the 'touch' was over Joe went across and had a word with them both, re-emphasising certain points he had made hefore the start, and adding a few furiher thoughts that occurred to him. Rounds 'for the lads.' with a few call changes to secure extra bell control, was followed by a touch of 'spliced.' with Old George giumbling to himself about 'this newfangled mcthod-mixin'. although he had rung the treble to the first paal of Spliced Minor for the Guild almost 30 years ago.
It was during one of the intervals that Joe brought up the subject of the Contest Committee meeting, due to be held the following Saturday. They discussed the various towers which were likely to be available and opinions were expressed as to the suitability of some of these and also of the judges. William (senior) told Joe, ' Vote fo: whom you please. excepting for old Joe Broadhead. He's as deaf as a post and ought to have given up judging contests years ago. No doubt he were a good 'un years, ago, hut it must have bzen before my time Reference to the past started Old George on string of reminiscences. Old George. John sometimes poirted out. 'has reached the stage of iife once described by Confucius (I believe) as the "anecdotage." " Tonight. however, found him without an audience as Joe was anxious to get in a 240 of College Exercise before the bells were lowered at 9 o'clock. If the bells had been raised in penny numbers. the lowering of them was always a matter of some importance, even on practice night. After the College Exercise had been brought round, Old George, who had been sitting out, rose and wunt arcoss to his beloved treble and, having disposed of the usual preliminaries, proceeded to shicpherd the peal down, with a look which varied from a quick glance to a fierce scowl, according to the seriousness of the offence, at any ringer who inadvertently broke the rhythm.
'There's as much skill in lowerin' a peal as there is in ringing one,' he would say. 'Pu:s a proper finish to a good job and makes a bad one better. What sounds wuss after a peal than to hear the bells scrambled down as though the ringers were all in a hurry to rush into the nearest pub, or catch a bus or a train? 1t's an insult, that wot it is: an insult! Who was insulted he never troubled to explain.
Old George was in no hurry.
Slowly. deliberately, almost imperceptibly he caressed the bells to the bottom until they were chiming rhythmically and accurately. For a while he held them there; then

Miss this - catch this!'

And, emphasised by the brief silence which preceded it, the last final round echoed into the night. Old George paused and watched the ropes. one or two of which were being urged gently up and down by the dying momentum of the bells; he listened to hear if there should be an extra chime from a still over-active tongue, ready to click his own in disapproval. When it became evident that silence, be it golden or bell-metallic. was indeed reigning above, he nodded his head scveral times in satisfaction, put on his coat and disappeared through the door.
Joe was the last to leave the belfry and after a quick round to ensure that all was in order he put out the light and followed the others down the steps, closing the belfry door tehind him. The ringers, apart from the three boys. who dashed away through the Jych-gate and down the road, filtered out of the churchyard, more or less together, discussing, as usual, various items connected with ringing, although Old George, always an individualist. was deep in a dissertation on the defects of the local football team. which had lost its last four games in succession. His observations. more pungent than edifying, and far from complimentary. were still continuing when, closely followed by William, he turned into the 'Ring o' Bells.' where, no doubt. he enlarged upon them for the benefit of the landlord (who was the chairman of the selection committee) and anyonc else who cared to listen to him.
The group dwindled. Phyllis and Henry turned of ill the direction of the datter's house, with Phyllis saying. 'Shan't be Jong.' and eventuaily father and son arrived home together.

As they opened the front door Mrs. Smith's voice echoed down the passage

He didn't forget his 3-4 places lonight. by the sound of things,' and then after a short pause, 'Which will you have. coffee or tea?'

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CENTRAL COUNCIL VISIT TO CARDIFF Dear Sir,-While in South Wales, during the Christmas vacation. I discovered that the proposed vis:t to the Rhondda Valley, to hear the Trearchy Male Voice Choir, has had little support so far.
Anyone who has heard the choir in any of their many broadcasts on sound radio and television, or any of their records, will know that they are one of the leading choirs in the country. The choir do not as a rule meet a: the holiday period, but are willing to do so on this special occasion.
Also included in the proposed tour is ringing at Pontypridd, Caerphilly and Pentre.
I am sure that anyone who is thinking of coming on the tour will find it a very pleasant and enjoyable one.-Yours, etc.,

aldstralian view on church ATTENDANCE

Deai Sir,-I offer my apologies to your readers if this lette: seems ralher out of date, but copies of 'R.W.' take some weeks to reach Australia.
Your corresponden:, the Rev. D. G Bruining ( $27 / 10 / 61$ ), begain quite a flood of correspondence on ringers attending cluurch services. What has struck me about some of the resulting leliers ( $10 / 11 / 61$ to $24 / 11 / 61$ ) has been the startling self-righteousness, approaching martyrdom, with which some people ring bells. Surely, sir, our conduct with regard to attendance at services is not, as Rural Ringer' $(24 / 11 / 61)$, Mrs. Hodgson ( $10 / 11 / 61$ ) and T. J. Lock $(24 / 11 / 61)$ would have us believe, to be judged by comparison with that of others, but only before the face of Almighty God. Let us not be martyrs about our paltry acts of service for God when we need only consider what His Son did for us. Let every ringer contemplate this sacrifice hefore thinking of his own in terms of ringing time and church attendance
A ringer's du:y. I would suggest. does not merely finish at ringing bells and traiung new ringers. It is his duty, as with every Christian. actively 10 spread the Gospei by word and example to everyone, and not, as T. J. Lock stated $(24 / 11 / 61)$. to leave that entirely to the clergy. That is an idea long ago discounted. but unfortunately still perpetuated. Let us remember that ringing is only a part (though a very important part) of our winess and sarvice to God.-Yours faithfully.

SIX BELLS AND CHRISTMAS BROADCAST

Dear Sir,-Once again there has been an absence of a five- and a six-bell tower in the Christmas Day broadcast. Surely there are such towers worthy of representation in such a programme? I would have thought that the inclusion of these would have given the public an impression of ringing as a whole rather than a favoured part of the whole
Is it fair that one group should be represented by two towers while another group is without representation? Why not have a twelve and a six instead of two twelves and an eight and a five instead of two eights? Perhaps it is a case of Doubles and Minor ringers being the poorer brethren of the Exercise, and therefore not good enough to appear in the same programme as the 'richer' brethren.-Yours faithfully,

ROY H. JONES.
P.S.-We feel certain that financial status did not enter into the selection.-Ed.

ST. PATRICK'S BELL

Dear Sir,-Mr. Morris, in his article on Celtic bells, says they exist in most of the Celtic countries. You can add Brittany. I'm rot sure abou: the Isle of Man. But, regrettably, the exception is Cornwall, the great land of saints. They must have existed. Some of course wert to Brittany, but Mr. Morris shed a new light to me in saying that St. Patrick's. Bell was buried with him. If, as one imagines, that was the normal method, it shows why no Cornish bell exists. For, so far as I know, the burying place of any saint in Cornwall is unknown.
But we have the surname Cloke, which seems to go back in bell history to before the use of surnames. For Den an Clōg or Clok means a sexton : literally, The Bell Man. Is it possible that it goes back even further. to the days of tha saints? The natural instinct of the children would be to call the local saint by that name: just as we, as children, so described the muffir man!-Yours, etc..

RINGING AND CHURCHGOING

Dear Sir.-With regard to Mr. Allen's letter ( $\cdot$ R.W: January 5th). I think that bellringers should stay to at least one service on a Sunday, even if it means getting up earlier in the morning. At our church, the ringers have a special Corporate Communion every third Surday in the month. but invariably only a few urn up. Two ringers in particular, throughout their whole ringing experience, have never heen to one church service. Doesn't this look bad?

The belis should be rung as an 'Overture, to tire service. What would you think if the orchestra. playing in an opera house, walked out ifter the Overture?-Yours faithfully,

GEOFFREY NORRIS.

NEWS FROM CANADA

Mr. Ernest Morris has received, from Fr. Dunstan Massey, O.S.B.. a Christmas card of greetings from the Benedictines, of Westminster Abbey Seminary. Mission City, British Columbia, and a note on the progress of ringing.

The Father writes: 'We are ringing Grandsire Triples with calls and have rung the plain course of Caters a few times. We are also ringing Plain Bob Minor and Major. The Fathers are enjoying Stedman Doubles, which we have just started

We have 17 monks in the Community ringing. In the school we have about 20 boys ringing- 10 of them are plain hunters and the rest beginners! We will soon need a new se: of ropes. I owe a tot to your help in the beginning, when we knew nothing.

Mr. Morris informs us that he taught Fr. Dunstan how to write out and chime Stedman Doubles, and other methods of change ringing, before their tower was built and the bells hung in a frame in the precincis of the Abbey. It is very gratifying to note the progress the monks are making, thanks to the early start and the help given by Mr. Izard, of Victoria, and his band.

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH DIOCESAN GUILD  Changes In The Christchurch District

Mr. A. R. Pargeter, who until Christmas resided in New Milton, Hants, was for 15 years on the mathematics staff, of Taunton's School, Southampton. His departure, to take up a position as senior mathematics master at Blundelf's School, Tiverton. Devon, means that the Winchester and Portsmouth Guikd lose an enthusiastic handbell ringer. Not that Mr. Pargeter neglected the tower-bells, as he was most regular in his attendance at meetings and practices in the Christchurch District, and took part in some successful peal attempts. but his chief delight was in handbell ringing, an enthusiasm for which began curing his tinie at Cambridge. More recently he joined the Southampton University Guild in their practices and in return for his help this Guild have elected him a vice-president.
In Bournemouth he will be much missed by the handbel! ringers, who are endeavouring to retrieve inierest in this branch of the Exercise. Some compensation for the loss of Mr. Parge:er's services comes to the Bournemouit people by the anrival of Mr. Alan A. Price. from Hastings. to live in Southbourne. Mr. Price is a keen ringer, who has attended Christchurch Priory tower and the handbell practices since his arrival.
At Mr. Pargeter's final handbell practica with the Bournemouth group a quarter peal of Plain Bot Minor was rung-A. A. Price 1-2. A. V. Davis 3-4 and A. R. Pargeter (condurtor) $5-6$. Another handbell enthusiast to leave Bournemouth to return to Portsmouth is Alan Buswell, but despite these losses it is hoped that the Bournemouth band of handbeil ringers will soon be figuring in the peal columns of "The Ringing World' again.

OBITUARY

MR. JOHN W. EVANS IN MEMORIAM
The death oî Mr. Jack Evans, of 26, Rosehery Gruve. Prenton, Birkenhead, on December 11 th, removed from Oxton belfry a much ioved figure, whose long life was bound up with the life of Oxton and its parish church.
He was educated at St. Saviour's School and as a boy pumped the organ in the first St. Saviour's Chuich, which, until 1889, stood on the site of the present building. He was taught to handle a bell at Woodchurch, with other members of St. Saviour's Bible Class, and rang at the dedication of Oxton bells on Ascension Day, 1895, and remained a member of the local band until 1960. After his hands could no longer grip a bell rope, he continued to set a fine example of regular worship in church, being only rarely deterred by indisposition or bar weather.
In 1955 he received a presentation from the Wirral Branch of the Chester Diocesan Guild to commemorate 60 years' unbroken ringing service at Oxton. Two days before his death. on his 86th birthday, he attended the Wirral Branch social and expressed very great pleasure at seeing so many young ringers present.
So as he lived he died-quietly in his sleep -and surely it is something more than mere fancy which supposes that the bells were pealing joyfully to welcome him on the other side.
The funeral service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. P. J. Pasterfield, and he was laid to rest at Woodchurch, almost in the shadow of the mother church of Oxton. Oxton and Woodchurch bells were rung halfmuffled prior to the service and interment. An in memoriam peal was rung the following week at Oxton by members of the local band.

MR. W. WELLING

We regret to learn of the death of Mr W. Welling. of Old Windsor, on January 11th. He was 76 yeans of age. A memoir will appear in an early issue.

MR. FREDERICK W. CHAPMAN

With regret we secord the sudden death, while travelling to work on December 19th, of Mr. Frederick William Chapman, of Marbury, Cheshire. He had been a ringer at St. Michael's, Marbury, for 30 years, and it was with great reluctinse that, acting on medical advice, he relinquished his position some twelve months previously. Athough he was not a prolific peal ringer, he was most regular in his attendance for service ringing, and it was chiefly through his influence that Marbury bells were rehung in a steel frame. He will be sadly missed by those who knew him.
The funeral took place on December 22nd, and was conducted by the Vicar, Rev. A. Beaumont. The bells were rung lialf-muffled by T. P. Barlow, A. Molyneux, E. J. Holloway, D. Parker, H. Sutton. D. Allman and R. Pureeli.

THE REV. E. A. LEE

The Rev. E. A. Lee was a mild little priest with a smile that was always evident whenever he met ringers; visiting ringers were always welcome at his Parish Church of Newchurch, near Warrington, and many wonderful peals have been rung here by both Lancashire and Cheshire bands and by joint bands.

The Rector started to ring late in life, but he progressed steadily and was conducting touches of Bob Major at about the time of his death. He delighted in the Bolton Branch monthly meetirgs, especially when it was held at his church, and he saw to it, personally, that the visiting ringers were well received.

A half-muffled peal of the method he could ring was rung to his memory, the band again composed of Lancashire and Cheshire men. He leaves a widow and son Martin (a ringer) and daughter.
Mary the souls of the faithful departed, through the mercy of God, rest in peace.

We hope our Anstralian friends have roted that Mr . Albert J. Lancefield, the well known Kent ringer, sailed on December 30th for Australia. Some years back, Mr. Lancefield visited New Zealand. His presence was simulant to ringing and he conducted at least a peal.
The local band at Warnham, near Horsham, are aga:n back in the news. On Christmas Eve the Sunday service band rang their first quarter for at least 22 years.
The conductor of the quarter of Bob Royal at York Minster had the honour of calling the first quanier in this method rung by Mr. Frank Atkinson, who is in his 80th year.

We have reecived two postal order ( 4 s . and 8s. 6d.) purchased at Station Road, Taunton. These accompanied a peal and a quarter peal. We await instructions as to the disposal of the money.

The Arscolt family have rung a peal and a quarter peal at Selworthy, Somerset. We congratulate this ringing family. For Bernard the occasion was his first peal and for Raymond his first as conductor.

A farewell gift of a Rye pottery table lamp was made on New Year's Eve to Mr. Alan Hicks, who for several years has been captain of Rye ringers. He is moving into Kent to take up a teaching post at Rochester. His departure from $R$ ye is deeply regretted.

Mr. Alec Richardson, the well known blind r:nger at Finchley, was married at Finchley Parish Church on December 16:h. to Miss Ellen Betteridge. who learnt her ringing at Wood Green. Two quarter peals were rung for the occasion-one before and the other after the ceremony. Their ringing friends wish them every happiness in the fuiure.

Every member of the Wentworth. Yorks. band rang in a quarter peal during 1961. Also six of them rang what is believed to be the first local peal on the Parish Church hells. The church handbell ringers toured the village during Christmas and collected $£ 12$ 1s. 5 d .. which was divided eually between the Refugec Aid Work and the Church Belfry Fund.

BELFRY GOSSIP

A new carillon, The Park, Springfield, Illinois, was opened on December 17th, with Raymond Keldermans as carillonneur. The 66 bells are installed in a 132 ft . tower. The largest bell weighs $7 \frac{1}{4}$ tons, and the carillon covers a $5 \frac{1}{6}$ octave range. The tower will be completed in June, 1962.

The first son of Num' is thanked for his letier in Latin and his donation of 2 s .6 d . If has provided 'Vir Optime' no little pleasure and took his memories back 50 years.
Packwood, Warwickshire, ringers are inquiring whether they rang the first quarter in 1962. They started at 12.2 a.m.

There will be no more ringing at Thames Ditton until further notice. The bells have been dismantled by Messrs. John Taylor and Co. for recasting. New fittings will also be provided. The last quarter on the bells was rung half-muffied on New Year's Eve.

Mr. Cyril A. Wratten, of Cheltenham, rang his 200th peal during the Christmas holiday at Stithians. This pcal enabled him, during 1961, to have rung peals of Minimus, Doubles, Minor. Triples, Major, Caters, Royal, Cinques and Maxinus. We doubt if any other ringer can claim such an assortment in one year.
Thurlaston, Leics, has eight enthusiastic young ringers with an average age of 14 . Their Christmas programme included carolling with handbe! 1 s , by which they collected $£ 512 \mathrm{~s}$. for the Church of England Children's Soc:ety, and ringing Bob Minor for the Christmas service at 7 p.m. The Old Yeas was rung out and the New Year heralded with Bob Minor and Grandsire Doubles.

Owd Bater' writes: It's a long way from Crewe to Southgate, London, to ring bells. But we don't go only to ring bells, but to meet people, particularly Odd Fellows and Railwaymen-some of London's pride. To name just a few we are looking forward to seeing- Rodney ('Rolling Stock') Meadows. Charlie Otley. Denis Randall. Bill and Mrs. Critchley. (See Notice of meeting.)

FATHER TIME LOOKS BACK

THE year 1961 was, generally speaking, a happy one for the Exercise. The inflow of young people more or less kept pace with the losses by death, but it remains to be seen whether the entrants to ringing in 1961 will contain personalities such as Albert Walker, Preb. E. V. Cox, J. A. Freeman. G. W. Jeffs, and many others who added distinction and in one case unusual prestige in the person of the Earl of Shaftesbury. We do not know of a peer of the realm in the ranks of Sunday service ringers; we have one or two ringers in 'Burke's Peerage,' but our link with the House of Lords, except on the Episcopal Bench, has been severed. And these young people, who in some areas monopolise our towers and meetings, will probably reach a maturity more advanced than the present generation. It is a healthy and happy sign-and so great is the respect of one Guild for youth that when a ballot was taken on the Guild's future it amended its rules to allow child members to vote. The measure of accomplishment of many of these junior members is a heartening sign. More and more attention is being given to training of youth and instructors. and courses were held at Grantley Hall. Knuston Hall and Missenden Abbey, apart from a number of day courses. Another feature is the huge sale of the Central Council's 'Handbook for Beginners' -a sure indication of the rate of entry. Let's hope all start the right way.
There are three things in particular that make 1961 a year of special interest. The first was the declaration of a national ringing day for the enthronement of the Most Rev. A. Michael Ramsey as 100 th Archbishop of Canterbury on June 27th. An appeal was made by Mr. Frederick Sharpe. president of the Central Council. for a ringing day to be observed, and the response was excellent-very many peals sand quarter peals supplemented the touches rung in cathedrals and churches. We cannot recall such a widespread response previously to honour a dignitary of the Church.

The second great event in our minds was the dedication of the bells of St. Mary-le-Bow. These bells exemplify the spirit of London, and for years the old Bow Bells provided The time signal for the British Broadcasting Corporationwhich incidentally was tampered with during the year. The open meeting at Bow for ringers far and wide has yet to be held. Upon the subject of dedications and augmentations we would particularly mention Salisbury Cathedral. Rhodesia (a completely new ten); St. Michael's, Cornhill; Tamworth, Chichester Cathedral. Tenterden, and in Wales Buckley and Cardizan.

The Ringing World' came into the limelight during the year by reason of its golden jubilee number. The Editorial Committee spent lavishly on the production in order to provide a suitable memento of the occasion (a few copies are still available). The memory of the founder, John Sparkes Goldsmith, was honoured; there was a pilgrimage to his grave, a service in Guildford Cathedral, and a supper and social gathering.
For a number of individuals 1961 saw the consummation of long-standing ambitions. In the forefront of these was the ringing of his 2,000 th peal by Ernest Morris, of Leicester. This prodigious number was accomplished in a span of 55 years, and at 71 Ernest is still blithe and gay. The rate of peal ringing leads one to predict that within ten years there will be others to keep Mr. Morris warm in the exclusive company of the 2,000 -pealers. Two new names have been added to those who have rung 1,000 pealsEdward Jenkins, of St. Michael's, Ashton-under-Lyne, and John Worth. of Macclesfield; and when the latter reached his 1,000 th. Edward Jenkins was one of the band.
The campanile at Loughborough Foundry continued to be the focal point for attempts to ring the extent of Bob Major. There were three attempts. That on July 15 th resulted in a record length of Plain Bob Major being rung. of 32,704 in 15 hours $30 \frac{1}{2}$ minutes, which was conducted by Robert B. Smith, who during 1961 rang more peals than any other ringer (137). The second attempt, by Robert G. Leale's band, was not so conspicuous, extending to only 17.000 , but later in the year the nearest approach to this Everest of ringing was reached by Frank B. Lufkin's band. In $16 \frac{1}{d}$ hours they rang 32,912 changes. From the experience of these attempts there are now quite a number of ringers who believe that it is a practical proposition to ring the 40,320 changes. Judging by the existing enthusiasm, there is no shortage of young men who regard themselves as having the physique and discipline of mind to make the attempt with a reasonable chance of success. Other things are also coming from Loughborough. Almost weekly a peal of Surprise Royal is rung there, and many of these are firsts in the method.
While not attempting to select the most meritorious performance of the year-we will leave others to nominate their choice-we regard the peal of Spliced Surprise Major in five methods, rung silently and non-conducted by eight members of the Central Council on Whit Monday, as being a classic performance that will go down into history. The ladies have also something worthy of a special preenthe peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal at Leicester on May 20th on the 35th anniversary of the peal of Stedman Caters rung by the Ladies' Guild.

PERSONALITIES OF

A real 'live wire' jn the right place. Living in an arca which needs someone to keep it going, this description certainly fits Mr
Geoffrey K. Dodd, of Highclere, Hampshire.

Geoff Dodd was born at Highclere on May 5th. 1932, and attended the village school until the age of 11 . fnishing his education at the Newbury Secondary Boys' School. On leaving he went into the building trade as a brick layer, and is employed by a local firm. In 1945, aged 13, he was taught to handle a bell, in company with a fellow school friend, Brian Stirland, who now lives at Bath. They were taught by Mr. J. F. Smith on the eight bells at Highclere and for the first 12 months rang only call changes.

Later they were invited to attend practices at the neighbouring six-bell tower of Woolton Hill by Henry Lawrenson, new secretary of the Newbury Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild and a ringer at Newbury Parish Church. Here he learnt to hunt the treble to Grandsire Doubles, and in company with Brian Stirland attended practices anywhere within radius of 30 miles. usually travelling by bicycle. They progressed up to ringing Grandsire Triples and Bob Major, by the wise manner of learning the method beforehand, and asking someone to stand behind them to ring it. Within six months of attending Woolton Hill. they were ringing Cambridge Minor, including a number of $720^{\circ}$ s and quarter peals.

Geoff attempted his first peal on April $24 t h$, 1948, when Mr. Albert Diserens, of Reading. arranged a peal of Bob Major at Highclere to enable both boys to ring their first together. Unfortunately it failed through a shift, but after several more failures with other bands Geoff eventually scored his first peal by ringing the treble to Double Norwich at Amesbury. Wilts, on December 18th, 1948. In 1949, he joined the Roving Ringers, who were touring Somerset. and rang his first courses of Cambridge and Yorkshire Royal with them. At a later reunion in Birmingham, he rang his first peal of SurpriseYorkshire Major-at Hanbury, Worcs, on February 4th, 1951, conducted by Arthur Pritchard. A week later he rang his first peal as conductor-Grandsire Doubles-at High-clere. It was the first peal for the other five members of the hand. and the tenor was rung by Mr. Jack Smith. thus enabling Geoff to join the ranks of the few ringers who have called their instructors' first peal.

IN KOREA WITH THE GLOUCESTERS

 Soon after this, Geoff, who had been called for National Service with H.M. Forces inAugust. 1950, embarked with the Hampshire Regiment for Clermany, but he was only there six weeks before being rushed home to join the Gloucestershire Regiment, who were fighting in Korea. His battle training was done in the Plymout? area. and while there he did some ringing with Tom Myers and Bill Simms. This finished with a quarter peal of Stedman Citers at St. Andrew's, before he embarked for Korea in June, 1951. On his demob from the Army in August, 195?, he rejoined the Highclere band. and taught a young team to rine Grandsire Doubles, calling their first peal in this method, with a local hand. on the occasion of a visit by H.M. the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh to Highclere Castle on November 2nd. 1952. This was the first peal on the bells by a local company.

Geoff's present peal total is 270 . of which he has conducted 92. These include the first peal of Minimus ever rung, at Newtown. Hants, in five niethods. to Spliced Surprise Maicr. Geoff is a great organiser of several peals in a day efforts. and arranged four peals in a day in Hants in November, 1956. five peals in a day in April. 1958, three peals of Surprise Major in a day in September, 1958. and four peals of Surprise Major in a day in October. 1960. Anyone who has tried to arrange even two peals in a dav knows prowets!

Amongst the neals of which Genff is particularlv plesser about are one of six Snlicrd Minor Whicin ac called at Yatiendon. Berks, in June. 196t), rung as a memorial to Miss Stella

MR. GEOFFREY K, DODD, Winchester & Portsmouth Diocesan Guild.

Divis, and another of eight Surprise Minor in July. 1960. rung at Goodworth Clatford, Hients. They were rung by a band that had been practising weekly from the beginning of that year, most of whom had worked up from Bob Minor. He is also very pleased with the peal of Grandsire Cinques at Winchester Cathedral rung for the Coronation, and a peal of Yorkshire Royal with the Birmingham band at St. Philip's Cathedral the same year. Within recent years Geoff has developed into a good heavy-bell ringer, and has rung the tenor and conducted peals at Sherborne Abbey, Evesham, Bloxham. Romsey and East Hendred. Two peals of special interest he well remembers! They were two peals of Bob Mino- rung at Hursthourne Priors in March. 1958, and Sydmonton in November. 1958. Both were rung in towers 111 Hampshire where there had been no ringing for ove: 50 years, and which were regarded as unringable! It was only through the hard work which Geoff put into the bells that the peals were at all possible

A DISTRICT SECRETARY

Since January. 1953. Geoff has been secretary of the Andover District, and during this period he has served on the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild executive committee. The District's membership is now over 100, for the first time since jts formation in 19?8. He i.: very grateful for the help given him by the Discrens family in scoring his first peals of B-istol. London and Spliced Surprise, also to Charles H. Kippin for his early peals of Surprise Royal at North Stoneham and St. Michael's. Southampton, and to Reg Rex, for his continued support with peals. although he has not yet been persuaded to take part in a peal of Minimus! Geoff is very pleased with the Newbury Branci peal band. Who have rung peals from Minor to Double Norwich as a complete band: they are good strikers and very keen. On April 14th, 1961. they rang the first Newbuly District peal on the ten bells ait Newbury. Kent T.B. Royal for the Queen's birthday, which Geoff called. Despite several efforts lasting into the last quarter. Geoff has not yet managed to call a peal of Siedman Triples, but he hopes to score one in 196\%. Anothe- ambition is to score a peal of London Royal, and now that these are tecoming more common perhaps this will not be 100 far distant.

On March 26th, 1955. Geoff married Sylvia Stacey. a non-ringer, though she has since 5. and Stephen. aged 2, both being regular attenders at Highclere belfry. where Geoff is now captain. and they sit and watch while

Svivia is well known to visiting ringers. who have stayed at their home, and enjoyed their kind hospitality, prior to some all day peal attemipts. An old cusiom of the band going round the village at Christmas playing carols on handbells has been revived at at Highclere. They had a fine reception at each house last Christmas and collected 12 guineas towards the Cancer Research Fund.

A real enthusiast, who spares no pains in his organisation, Geoff Dodd is a great asset to North Hampshire and the surrounding area. He would be welcome in any area, and the Winchester and Portsmouth Guild are lucky to have him as a member. APACE.

50 YEARS AGO

R.W: January 26th, 1912.-

Of the conductors, many of the old names will be found among those leading the way, but Mr. A. H. Pulling has taken a big jump to the front by calling no fewer than 67 peals in the year. Mr. William Pye. first in 1910 with 45 , was second last year witis 46 , and among others well up in the list are: Messis. B. Prewett with 30, F. Bennett with 28 G. Williams with 25 . J. Motts with 21 and C. Glenn with 20 . ... One other feature of the results of the year to which we must allude is the advance of Miss Edith Parker, who, out of 21 peals rung during 1911. conducted 17. including seven peals of London. four of Superlative, three of Cambridge and three of Stedman. No lady has ever before achieved such distinction in the ringing world. and Miss Parker's accomplishment is one of the most noteworthy performances in a year full of interest in the annals of the Exercise.

REDEDICATION

ST. GILES', ASHTEAD

On January 14th the eight bells of St. Giles' Church, Ashtead. ware rededicated by the Bishop of Guildford. The bells, on which over 300 peals had been rung, had been quarler turned and tuned and rehung in a new metal frame by John Taylor and Co.. of Loughborough. All new fittings had been installed and the bells now have new metal headstocks
The bells had been rehallowed by the Rector of Ashtead. the Rev. G. J. Halsey, on All Saints' Day, but the actual service of rededication was postponed until the Bishop himself could visit Ashtead.
The rededication took place immediately after Matins had finished and following the singing of the ringers' hymn, 'Unchanging God why liveth.' The rededication included the prayer for the proper use of the bells. While the Bishop was returning to the chancel prior to giving his address the bells were rung to rounds.

This was the Bishop's first visit to Ashtead and his sermon, addressed alike to congregation and ringers, will long be remembered by those privileged to be there
Immediately the service was over the bells were rung to change's by the local band, and when the Bishop had changed he came up into the ringing chamber and greeted all the ringers personally. both young and old.
The bells, which were always popular. arc once agdin a first class ring and will be available to visitors. For the information of visitors. who are always welcome, ringing on Sundays is at 10.30 a.m. for Matins, and at 5.45 p.m. for Evensong. Practice night is on Thursday at 8 p.m.

FATHER TIME LOOKS BACK-Continued

The Central Council meeting at Stoke-on Trent was attended by 147 members-a number never before surpassed. Perhaps the main achievement was the definition of a peal of Minimus that would be included in the Council's Analysis-a peal rung only in a 4 -bell tower. This seems to meet the wishes of most of those who disliked the prospect of reading 4-bell peals in "The Ringing World: They are not now really expected-at any rate an elaborate review of the method, its controversies and performances. has been written. The presence at the Council meeting of Mr. G. W. Pipe, from Melbourne, mads the members conscious that vigorous offshoots of the Exercise do exist overseas. There have been other visitors this year from 'down under. and the'r experience of homeland ringing sherid strengthen the standard in the Commonwealtin where towers are very distant

Children's Vote Allowed on Surrey Merger

It was a case of standing room only at St. Saviour's Hall, Guildford, on January 13th, when the Guildford Diocesan Guild balloted on the question of merger with the Surrey Association. Rule 9. para. 2, was amended for the meeting to permit junior members to vote. About five members opposed 'child' membership voting.
The Master (Mr. C. W. Denyer) presided, and with him were Mr. © Russell (honorary secretiry) and Mr. $\mathcal{F} \dot{E}$. Collins (liaison officer of the Surrey Association).

The Master subnitted the motion, which had been drafted by the Masters and secretaries of both bodies, and was read to the meeting by the secretary. The motion stated:

Following exploratory discussions by the sub-committees appointed by both bodies, it has been found possible to propose a common basis of agreement which would allow the merging of the Guildford Diocesan Guild and the Surrey Association. Considerable detailed negotiation would still be necessary to ensure that the new organisation represents the best interests of both memberships, and Gafeguards the traditions of both societies.

- This meeting approves in principle of a merger between the Guildford Diocesan Guild of Church Bell Ringers and the Surrey Association of Change Ringers, subject to a final detailed proposal being worked out, and heing approved by both societies at further Special General Meetings in due course.'
Mr. Denyer made it clear that he was not going to allow the motion to be discussed. There had been plenty of opportunities. he suid. 10 discuss it at District meetings and in the lowers.
Mr. G.
Mr. G. L. Grover asked the Master to he said, merge a diocesan association with an issociation working outside the diocesan area. If they did so they would sink the Guildford Diocesan Guild.
This objection was seconded. but was heavily defeated.
Another quibble raised was that according to the rotice in 'The Ringing World ' only paid up members were entitled to vote. How many. he asked. had paid the current subseriptions for 1962?

The secretary replied that the notice was dated December and referred to 1961 subscriptions.

DIFFERENT OPINIONS

Mr, S. Joyce had a number of complaints. He did not like the votes cast at that meeting being counted after the Surrey Association meeting at Croydon. He thought the result should be announced at both places.

Mr. Denyer: That is what I intend to do.
Mr. Joyce also thought the votes should be counted at a meeting of both committees and the secretaries of the various Districts notified of the resule by post.
The Master replied that the Surrey Association's meeting was fixed after their Guild'sthat was why the votes were to be counted there.
Mr. F. E. Collins: If the Guildford meeting was due to take place after the Surrey Association meeting and votes were then to be counted. they would not find Surrey Association members quibbling.
Mr. Jovce then moved an amendment supporting his views. which was defeated.

Explaining decails of the ballot the Master said the ballot box would be sealed and handed to the Vicar of St. Saviour's for safe keeping until the day of the Croydon meeting, when it would be taken there by officers of the Guild. Guildford Guild would have yellow voting papers and Surrey Association white. The same ballot box would be used.
Miss Oliver thought that each body should have its own ballot box and this was agreed to. The ballot was then proceeded with. the questions being:

I approve in principle the proposal to merge uith the Surrey Association of Change Ringers,' and 'I am against any form of merger with the Surrey Association of Change Ringers.'
The total number of votes cast was 146

THE RAVERS' REUNION

The annual reunion of the Society of Raving Ringers was this year centred on Hitcham, Bucks. where we were the guests of our Ringing Master's parents and a few equally longsuffering local landladies.
On the evening of January 6th. members met at Slough, where we were privileged to join Bill Birmingham's band in practice on the ten, some Cambridge Royal being rung.
On the Saturday morning we got off to a bad start. The minibus being less than half full. w: were given a demonstration of how good the brakes were, and our chief navigator, Michael Ling, had the misfortune to gouge a lump out of his forehead. Being promptly delivered to Maidenhead Hospital. he spent the morning having his forehead stitched up. while the deputy navigator led an unsuspecting crew to Farnham Royal, via divers back lanes. We arrived just in time to ring, and found that Geoff Riglar had met the rest of the party Chalfont St. Peter followed, then Chalfont St. Giles, where Bill Cracknell joined in som: London Minor and a 'Newmarket special ' touch of Spliced Minor came round.

After lunch in Amersham. London and Norwich Surprise were among the methods rung on this good heavy six. Our wounded nevigator now in tow again, the party proceeded to Penn. and then Beaconsfield, where Miss Fletcher met us and joined in some Yorkshire.
Dennis Poole had the bells up ready for us at Marlow, and the highlight of a pleasant hour's ringing here was our first ever course of Bristol at only the second attemnt. Indeed. so elated was our minibus driver that he qose to the bait splendidly. He received a message that the 'strong arm of the law' was downstairs. and wanted to see the chap in charge of the minibus. Alas, he found on reporting. that the constable was a local ringer, and had cnly come along to listen!
Our last tower was High Wycombe, where the familiar figure of Dennis Knox saw that a!l was in order. We didn't manage Cambridge Royal, but finished with a good touch of Grandsire Caters.
The remainder of the evening was spent at Hitcham., recalling the past and looking to the future-in particular the 1962 tour, which will be in North Wales
Sunday morning. assistance was rendered with service ringing at several local towers, and in the afternoon five of the party were in a quarter peal attempt at Iver, to celebrate the christening of a local ringer's daughter. This was unfortunately unsuccessful, but was followed by a ring at Langley, before we once more split up to local towers, and eventually said our farewells.
We would like to thank everyone who made us so welcome, and assisted with arrangements.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, LONG SUTTON

By T. A. BEVIS

I.ONG SUTTON is a preponderantly wealthy and busy Souih Lincolnshire market town. situated 11 i an area renowned for its great churches and highly fertile soil-an area which has been wrested from the sea

History slumbers in and around Long Sutton (formerly known as Sutton St. Mary). A short distance away industrious Romans built at substartial earthen wall to keep out the waters of the Norih Sea. Much later the same relentless waters almost trapped King John, who losi his baggage train and much of his treasure to the sea

The Manor at Long Sutton ance belonged in that time-honoured Lancasirian. John of Gaunt, whose famous symbol. a red rose, is displayed in a window of the church, a huge and remarkable building indeed.

St. Mary's Church is without doubt the oldest and most interesting of the town's buildings. It displays not a few unusual and arrestung features.

The finely proportioned two-storeyed south porch is a splendid 15 ih century addition to the original church, erected at a time when men were still smarting from defeat at the hands of their Noiman masters.

Six hundred years ago, when the zenith of the mason's skill was almost in sight, a eastern corner of the chancel. Inside the church can be seen several monuments, one of which is inscribed, 'Alas, poor Bailey, commemorating a Dr. Bailey who in 1795. was fouly murdered on a road ncar the lown.

SIPIRE OF 162 FEET

Of all its distinguished fea:ures the mast distinctive is the tower and spire-:ogether lopping 162 fect . The former is only just attached to the south-west angle of the south aisle and it carries a facade of lancet arcading. The belfry windows are most unusual, each having two lights without-and three lighis within.

Octagonal turrets at each corner of the tower support pinnacles, which lean inwards to the lead-covered spire, reputed to be the oldest and most perfect of its kina in exislence. Much more could be written of the fine proportions of this stately sentinel. but unfortunately most towers are alike to the majority of bellringers.

This particular steeple contains eight bells of delightful musical qualities. noted for ease of handling. and a well nigh perfect circle of ropes ( 75 feet draught)-factors endearing them to the hearts and wills of many ringers, especially peal ringers. They are rung from the ground floor, an area formerly opened to the four quarters of the compass.

Many years ago five balls could be jeard echoing from the steeple, and the tenor-by Henry Penn-bore the date 1716. This ancient bell worked hard for 170 years. and then, while tolling at the funeral of the then Vicar, Rev. Edward Leigh-Bennell. M.A. on November 13 th. 1886, it could stand no more-and cracked.

Having been recast this bell was restord to its proper place with its fellows. and was inscribed:

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS. - GEORGE SPENCER LEIGH-BENNETT. VICAR
JOHN WILLIAM SWAIN AND JOSEPH CARTWRIGHT CHURCHWARDENS QUEEN VICTORIA'S JUBILEE YEAR, 1887. A newcomer was also welcomed, thus augmenting the ring to six in nuniber. These bells were suspended from a very old and massive aak frame.

THE STORM OF 1934

Over the ycars ringers from near and far entered Long Sutton's handsome campanile and all went well until 1934 . In that year the town experienced a violent thunder storm and while torrential rain lashad deserted strects. a vicious tongue of lightning streaked towards terra firma and alighted amid flames. smoke and dust on the highest building in the distret-the church steeple. Consequently the clock chamber and bell chambe-: were badly hurnt. Following a necessary inspection the old bell frame was declared unsafe, and all further ringing activities, of necessity, were suspended.

Messrs. Taylor and Co. removed the bells. which were recast and two trebles added: an jo on frame was installed and the octave (tenor 15 cwt .0 4r. 2lb, in F) hung on ball bearings. At the same time two new floors were placed in the tower and when all was completed a service of dedication by the Lord Bishop of Lincoln was held on March 7th. 1935.

The widow and family of the late Matthew Henry Proctor gave the new bells. these being appropriately inscribed to the donor's generosity.
mber 11th. 1935
On November 11th. 1935, a local team of ringers rang a peal of over 5,000 changes, it being the first on the octave.

Present captain is Mr. C. A. Watts, whose father held that office in 1910. Many peals have been rung on the bells of St. Mary's. but only a few carly efforts of Minor are recorded in the ringing chamber, the carliest dated

Before taking one's leave of this architecturally famous landmark. it is interesting to observe a small model bell cast from the metal of the original tenor It brings to mind the strenuous activities of that old-time founder, Henry Penn. who. despite the atrocious conditions of travelling in these parts in his day. certainly got around. He surely experienced justifiable satisfaction at being represented at this lovely old church of the Lincolnshire Fenlands.

The secretary's report stated that four towess had rejoined the Association, viz. ## PEAI, RINGERS OF 1961

LETTERS TO

MORE ACIDITY FROM WOOLTON
Dear Sir,- The Ringing World, report on tine Stoke meeting states that the Central Council now choose for the B.B.C. the towers to be heard on Christmas morning. - It may interest your correspondents (pages 3 and 20) to know that I wirole the B.B.C., London, offering the St. Peter's. Woolton. bells for a live bivadcast in any of the standard methods. On hearing that it would have to be recorded. I was a little shocked to hear that it could be edited. To this I stid. 'No.' Reading my - R.W: again. I sce that this is recommended by the Central Council; I therefore had no hesitation in replying "Take no notice of the Central Council: no editing, please.? Do we underistand that no altempt was made to chech the interpretation of the Central Council instruction. until those who shave 10 the interval signal found themselves growing a slub?
Following the Chelmsford meeting, we did rot hezome a leaching tower of the College which lives up to its name, because of the official attitude: Heaven only knows how many towers since closed would have been saved by this vision of instruction. To ctaim to direct tire B.B.C. to towers is indeed an admission of failure and contrary to any decent Christian principle, without considering the commercial one, the not inconsiderable fee for the braadcast.
It is a pity the official report is months away, as some of the towers went much too fast and in others the microphone was badly placed. Could our secret society come out in the open and tell us just what they did? 'The Riaging World' readers should know biforehand the whole programme. Why did they not observe the everyday courtesy of normal life? If the committee for broadcasting cannot he useful, may it become decorative. The fact that London's fine bells are so silent and the fact that Tewkesbury's were a:i the rough side is entirely due to Central Council policy. which works 100 per cent for the snobs of the Exercise.
This may interest your clerical correspondent: Our church seats 560 . Our Rector said to me before Christmas that the cord across the bellringers' seats was being removed and the seats occupied before the ringers came into church: he didn't know what he could do for the bellringers. ## PAYMENTS IN ADVANCE

Dear Sir,-I was amazed and disgusted to see that at meetings in the Canterbury Branch of the Kent County Association in order to secure tea one is expected to pay cash in advance. This is hardly a very Christian attitude or cannot the Canterbury wingers be regarded as being good risks for an outlay of 2s. per head?
My wife and I have just returned from a meeting of the Preston Branch of the Lancashire Association where, at a moment's notice. a splendid iea was provided of meat and potato pie, followed by cakes and pastries, washed down by as many cups of iea as we desired and this free of charge:! Such is the hospitality of the warmhearted people of Lincashire, and our Southern friends would do wall to try and copy.
Was the 2s. stated in the 'R.W: notice the full charge or merely a deposit? Whatever it wat I know I would never attend a meeting under such conditions, and the Canterbury Branch may well be losing members by this policy.-Yours faithfully,
H. DAVID HOLLAND.

Note.-There is nothing anti-Christian in payment in advance, and the Editor and other ringers can speak of generous hospitality in Kent not a whit behind that of Lancashire.Ed.

CREDIT FOR PEALS

Dear Sir,-With reference to Mr. Patrick Bird's letter ('R.W: page 20), my opinion is that peals should be recorded to the Socieiy er Association in which the tower where it is rung is situated.
There may be extenuating circumstances when it is necessary to deviate from such a procedure. In these cases the rules of etiquette should be observed, and the local band should be notitied beforehand.
Only such procedure would avoid a bad feeling in my own tower, and certainly I would not hesitate to make my feelings quite clear to the band concerned.

The point of the Association being disgruntled. I would imagine, would be less acute.-Yours sincerely.

Note.-Apparer.tly, according to reader Price's point of view, non-territorial Associations should not be allowed to ring peals for their own body. Some of these date back before Diocesen and County Guilds werc formed.-Ed.

MR. BALLARD AND STONEY STANTON
Dear. Sir,-May I reply to the comments of Thomas C. Belton on "Personalities of the Exercise No. 50.'

The article referred to siates. $\because .$. but although Stoney Stanton has never had a good change ringing band they always ring regularly for Sunday services.
This is quite different from the statement altributed to the article by Mr. Belton. Obviously the error referred to is with Mr. Beltoir and not with the article.

My brother is well acquainted with the activities of the Stoney Stanton ringers, since until the last two years he was a regular atiender at their weekly practices.
I hope this will correct any wrong impression which may have been given to those who read the correspondence and not the article.-Yours faithfully,
C. W. BALLARD

THE PASSING OF MR. WILLIAM WELLING

60 Years in Choir & Belfry at Old Windsor

F
OR mare than 60 years a chorister and Church. Old Windsor. Mr. William Welling died on January 11th. aged 77. His death has meant a great loss to ringing in the area of the Oxford Diocesan Guild and beyond.

William Welling was born in Long Crendon or April 18th. 1885. His father died when his was very young, so he was brought up by his aunt at Quedgiley, Glos. On h's moiher's remarriage he came to Windsor, and at the age of 11 the joined the choir. of which he remained a niember to the end. Afier leavOld Windsor School, he received his training as a gardener at Windso:. in the employ of Lord Edward Churchill, and iater joined the staff of the Royal Gardens at Windsor Castle, where he remarined until his retirement at the age of 67 in 195?. receiving long service niedals from the Crown.
From the age of 18 he was a member of the belfry at Old Windsor. where he rang his first peal. Grandsire Triples, oll a working kell on December 22nd, 1906. Parker's 12-Part, conducted by J. J. Parker himself. As a nromisirg young ringer Joc Parker gave 'Bill' Welling every encouragement. and Bill alway; had a great affection for the old man, and ofien called his compositions. He was particulasly fond of his One-Part, which he conducted no less than 19 times. In all he rang 20 peals with J. J. Parker. His third peal was Stedman Triples • inside, and his fourth was Jiarker's 12-Part, which he conducted, with Joe Parker in the hand, in November, 1908. Another famous ringer whom he never ceased to praise was Bertram Prewett. Before the Firs: World War he rang 22 peals with Bert Prewett. and Bill always Lamented his death on active service.

PEAL FOR NURSE CAVELL

During World War I he was a gunner in the R.G.A and served in France. In May. 1919. he conducted a fully-muffled peal at Dover. which was in progress when Nurse Cavell's body was brought ashore. Another famous ringer whom the often spoke about was the Rev. F. E. Robinson. with whom he rang five peals. He relates how the reverend gentleman used to fill his mouth with raisins at the shart of a peal, and at intarvals throughout the ringing spat out the pips. If the peal was successful Mr. Robinson wsed to say. "Thank you. gentlemen, for your careful ringing and recite a prayer, but if the attempt failed he meraly donned his coat and went straight out to catch his train. Bill' was proud of the fact that he stood in Mr. Robinson's last peal at Hillingdon.
In a resent visit to Bill Welling the writer learned from him how the standard of ringing was raised in South Bucks and East Berks in the early $1920^{\circ}$ s. Alihough some local ringers could ring Surprise, it was decided to hold special practices at Burnham to bring others to this level. The late George Martin, of Maidenhead. assumed the role of conductor. Following Kent T.B., Superlative was mastered. and peals in this method were arranged until everyone, including spares. had rung his peal. Cambridge was treated in the same way, then London, and finally Bristol. Bill emphasised the value of a concentrated attack on 3 method, and of the need for unselfishness in giving every member his chance. His peal record bears witness to this. and he himself hecame a competent conductor in these advanced methods. Most of these ringers, Cecil Mavne. William Fussell. George Martin and his brother Arthur. Jesse Eldridge. etc., have now passed on, but we still have, happily, Williarm Henley with us.

PROWESS AS AN INSTRUCTOR
In all this long period he kept Old Windsor hells ringing. Though not captain till the death of his old friend, Joe Guttridge, c 1931, he was chief conductor, and time after time saised new bands, several of whose members conducted peals. It was his pract:ce to teach a method; ihen, when the pupil was proficient. to insist on good striking. He alwilys maintained that, while a beginner was grappling with at new method, he had enough to do wishout being nagged about his striking. In all he conducted the first peal of 49 ringers. His two sons both became ringers, but his elder son was killed in World War II in the reireat to Dunkirk.

SPECIAL PERFORMANCES

Bill Welling participated in six 'William peuls. viz.. Grandsire Triples. Stedman Triples, (cond.). Kent T.B. Royal. Double Norwic't Major, Stedman Caters and Cambridge Major. He also conducted Holt's Original, and had rung the following methods r.on-conducted. Stedman Triples. Plain Bob Major, Superlative S. Cambridge S. anu Yorkshire S. Major. In the 1930 s he rang regularly with Mr. Atan Pink. who then lived at Windsor, and participated in a number of new Su:prise Major peals under his conductorship.
In recognition of his service to his church he was a revipient of the Royal Maundy Moncy, and received it at the hands of Her Majesty the Queen at St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle. in 1958, a well deserved honour. Since then he had not enjoyed the best of health. and could only go to the belfry in the summer His lasi peal was a reuntion peal for Mr. Pink's pre-war band in September, 1956. when a new Surprise method. Ripplesmere, was rung at Windsor. In all he rang 536 peals, of which he conducted 121 .

THE FUNERAL

The funeral service was at Old Windsor on January $16: \mathrm{h}$. As the cortege approached the church the bells were rung half-mufled. Being a g-ound floor ring, in a west tower. his body was carried through the ringing chamber, where he had stood through over 100 peals.
The Vicar based his address on the text I Cor. iv. 2, • It is recuuired in stewards that a man be found faithful.' He said that faithful was a word which readily came to mind in the case of Alfred William Welling. It was his fatthfulness which had b:ought so many of inis friends together, and which had earned bim their unqualified respect. His recreations and his in:erests were attached to the Church. and he retained them right to the end. He loved his singing in the choir which he had pursusd for over half a century, and his ring ng he had enjoyed for a similar period -vir:ually the whole of his life. Anyone could take up these pursuits. hut they would be continued thus only by those who knew them to be the ouiward expressions of the worship of God, and performed them to the honour of His Name.
All ihis was in addition to the attraction of his genial and amiable character and behaviour. Although essentially a countryman he served his country well. far from the bounds of his village, as also did his son (who bore the same names) even 10 the extent of making the supreme sacrifice. Many of England's country churches had men like William Welling, devoted to them in their service, but usually they had only one. - Their ways are ways of pleasantness and all their paths are peace.
Following the interment a course of Grandsire Triples in slow tempo was rung over the open grave by A. D. Barker $1-2 . \mathrm{D}$. M. Stone 3-4, F. T. Price 5-6 and E. D. Poole 7-8. The Oxford Diocesan Guild was represenied by Mr. A. D. Barker (general treusurer), and the East Berks and South Bueks Branch by the Rev. E. W. Perkins (Branch chairman) and Miss Doreen Hagu? (Branch secre'ary). Ringers present included h's two oldest ringing friends. Mr. W. Henley (Farnham Royal), with whom he had rung over 240 peals. and Mr. I. Stilwell (Worthing -formerly Windsor). with whom he had rung 153 peals. Messis. A Cross. R. Wawmin. G Coussins. A. Bates and D. M. Stone (Old Windsor). Messrs. A. J. Glass, K. Buzkingham and R. Reid (Windsor). Mr. J. Brooks (Clewer). Mr. W. Birmingham and Miss K. Perkins (Slough). Mess:s. W. H. Coles and F. Price (H-llingdon), Miss K. North, and Messrs E. E. Gosling and R. Blewill (Bovne Hill). Mr J. Norsworthy and Mrs Rolls (Bray). Mr J. E. Camp (Amersham). Mr. E. D. Poole (Marlow), :ind Mr. A. R. Crawfoid (Stoke Poges).
Wreath's were sent hy the followine towers: Old Windsor. Slough, Clewer, Bray. Boyne Hill and one firom the local Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. There were also wreaths from the Vicar, churchwardens and worshippers at the Parish Church. from his colleagues in the choir. from the local Oddfellows Lodge. of which he was a member, and his local Working Men's Club.
A memorial peal was rung with the bells unmuffled (at the V'car's request) at Old Windsor on January 13th. and a quarter peal of Plain Bob Royal at Slough on January 14th included several of his closest ringing friends.
So departs another ou'standing personality from the ringing scene. The Oxford Diocesall Guild has suffered the great loss of a lovat servant, a great teacher and a superlative ringer, but has gained the matchless example of a humble faithful servant of God.

PALUDIAN.

MR. GORDON CAUDWELL

During December the Oxford Diosesan Guild lost by death its senior life member, Mr. Gordon Caudwell. He joined the Guild in 1896. When he learned to ring at East Haghourne. He then joined the Blewbury band for a few years and then went to Cholsey, where he conducted his own first peal in 1908. This was a peal of Grandsire Doubles and there were four 'first peals' in 31.

By 1914 he had moved to Drayton. Berks, where he rang his first peal of Triples. It was not unill the 1920's that he began to take a very active part in peal ringing. He joined the North Berk; band, which at that time was ringing peals regularly in the four 'Standard Methods: under the leadership of A. E. Lock: By 1927 he had joined the band at S:. Nicholas and Sr. Helen ${ }^{-1}$. Abingdon, and he continued a inember of that: band even after he had moved 10 Oxford in the 1930 s. In the late 1930 's he had also become a member of the band which, under the leadership of W. $F$. Judge. Was breaking new ground in Surprise ringing.
After the 1939-1945 War. Gordon Caudwell still maintained his interest in ringing, but.his activities were curtailed first of all by business and later by acuie rheumatism. In all between 1920 and 1940 he had rung approximately 200 peals for the Oxford Guild, all of them in the standard methods, as they were than called, and in pactically all the peals he had rung at the back end. From 1914 until 1956 he was a member of the comm.ttee of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. He always took an active part in the meetings when he was able to be present. He was also an active member of the Oxford Society for many years.
Hesi

Besides being an enthusiastic ringer he had been a keen cyclist in his earlier years and won many cycling trophies. Although not known to many of the younger ganeration of ringers he will be remembered by those who rang with him in the pre-war years as a good companion. and his passing at the age of 85 years will be much regretted.
M.R.C.

MR. JOSEPH TAYLOR

The death took place after a long illness on January 6th of Mr. Joseph Taylor, of Thurlaston. Leirestershire. at the age of 71
He will be greatly missed in the church as he had been a chorister for 60 years. clerk for 25 years and Ringing Master for 35 years. He carried on w.th his duties in the church as his health permittzd, and the tast time he was able 10 ring was on Easter Sunday morning.
Mr. Taylar was not a great peal ringer, but he could always be found in the belfry each Sunday for service ringing.
The funeral took place on January 9th at Thurlaston Church, prior to cremation. The service was at:ended by representatives of all sections of th: life of the church. In the evening 720 changes of Plain Bob Minar were rung half-muffled by the Sunday service hand.
On the following Sunday evaning the bells were rung half-muffied before a memorial service.
He
He can rest in peace knowing that 'my bells,' as he used to call them. will siill continue to ring.

DBITUARY

MR. RICHARD DEAL AN APPRECIATION

With the passing of Dick Deal I feel the end of an era of my immediate ringing circle.

When I was quite young his bluffness and enthusiasm was much in evidence when I was :aken to St. Martin-in-the-Fields and St. Margaiet's, Westminster. His slightly hent figure stays in my memory almost as part of the belfry furniture, when I sat drawing and 'being a good boy' in the corner seat.
He was. as so many of us aspire to be, an "honorary' member of the Ladies" Guild, and was one of the stalwarts who looked after the heavier end ar their meelings.
Although a College Youth of long standing, as Mrs. Deal was a Cumberland, he spent countless ringing and drinking hours in the company of the "wretched Cumberlands." He accompanied his wife to practices regularly and was a very acceptable and pleasant companion on our yearly outings.

In more recent years, although his brusque manner frightered quite a few of the younger ringers his friendship to me was one to be valued. He continued to climb the belfry stairs. but his health was failing and his gameness on the eleventh as St. Martin's was only recently replaced. with regret. when the weight became 100 much for him. Many times he was asked to conduct his favourite method. Grandsire Caters, but more often method. Grandsire caters, but me declined with the remark that he kniw no short touches. only peals.

Two things about Dick I shall always recall. When St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, was reopened after the last war, the tenor, with a cracked gudgeon. was almost impossible to 'keep up,' We had all tried. but realised that it took two to keep it going even in rounds. A strap was added, and with Mrs. Deal in this pesition. his face becoming redder by the minu:e, in deep bulldog tones. his Give us a nound, is a gem to be cherished. The second. his hat. The black bowler that accompanied firm everywhere was more noticeable when tilted afier a thirst-provoking practice.

Dick's death was not perhaps such a shock, for he nad been in ill-health for some time, hut myself and London Cumberlands with me regret the passing of one the "Grand Old Men of Kinging, and extend our deepast sympatity to the widow and son that he leaves. F. J. MATTHEWS.

MR. WILLIAM HENSON

Si. Peter's Church. Market Bosworth, Leics, has lost its oldest ringer. Mr. William Henson, who lied on January Sth, would have been 91 yaars of age next month.

Not a spectacular tinger by some standards. his only claim was a quartar peal of Grandsire Doubles, but for nearly 60 years he was a steady service ringer, until age prevented him from climbing the belfry steps. He thus set an example for all ringers. Old William was also a sidesman for many years.
He was laid to rest at St. Peter's. where he was baptised over 90 years before. Ringers attended his funeral service and a quarter peal. half-muffled, tokened their respect.

APPRECIATIONS OF MR. W. WELLING

It is with profound regret that I learned of the passing of a very dear friend, Bill Welling, of Old Windsor.
Bill was such a quiet, unassuming person that everyone loved and respected him. He was a brilliant and reliable singer and coniuctor.

He was a gifted tutor and never tired of teaching the lads of Old Windsor to ring. He did so much in that quiet way of his to encourage them to become good ringers, and he would cycle miles to meetings and practices with his learners. He would invite them to his home to tea, show them his ringing records and talk ahout ringing to get his Jads really exciled about ringing. There was no end $t 0$ his patience wheri it came to explaining anything about ringing: he had that knack of making it all sound so easy. No, nothing was too much trouble for Bill.

How he loved to tell of the many amusing experiences he had had in the company oi r.ngers such as Bill Fussill, Freddie Goddard. Jack Presion and Billy Parker, and how we enjoyed his siories! He was a great raconteur. How does the writer know all this about Bill? Because he was one of his many Old Windsor lads who came under his influence Windsor lads who came under his influence and his enthusiasm to keep ringing alive, especially in his own tower.

So many of us have good cause to thank God for the life of Bill Welling. for I feel certain that. had it rot heen for Bill, I, for one. would never have been a ringer.
E. E. GOSLING.

' OLD FAITHFUL,

The passing of Mr. W. Welling reminds us of how few of the old 'pioneers' are still with us. For over sixty years he regularly look his place in the local belfry and choir. never missing a service or practice except for 1914-18 war service and occasional indisposition.

His example is another reminder, to me at east, of a rait so often lacked and there is least, of a trait so often lacked and there is little wonder that, to our Vicar, he was known as 'Old Fathful.' His patient and quiet manner attracted many young visiting ringers to the Old Windsor belfry, where they always received sound tuition and consideration.

Bill had an exiraordinary memory and he was always a good conversationist. His reminiscences were always welcomed with interest. No one was ever at terest. No one was ever at a loss in his company. He was a man of his word and his word was his bond.
To me he always seemed to be a link with the past for he could well remember thos. of the 'walking era.' when men would walk miles to a practice or for a peal. Bill was of the "cycle era. In his prime he never thought of using public transport. even if available. Always the bike and to report to him. clad in an overcoat, was unthinkable.

Those were the days of meeting, com: randbells. come bread and chease, come l:quid refreshment. and he was most unhappy if, for some reason, he did not stand his corner.

I am sure that all our sympathy is extended th Mrs. Welling and to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Welling his surviving son and daughter-in-law. Old Windsor.

Universities' Association at Manchester

HEALTHY signs for the future of the Exercise are apparent at the universities! A near record number was present at the annual meeting and dinner of the Association. held at Manchester on January 6 th, when a long list of new members was elected. Distance and weather conditions probably deterred some of the regular attenders, but their place; were filled by many new faces. reducing the average age noticeably

The day's programme began with morning ringing at Ashton-under-Lyne, where both the eight at St. Peter's and the twelve at St. Michael's were tried. Striking at the latter tower improved when confined to ten bells! Sacred Trinity, Salford, used by Manchester University Guild as their practice tower, was visited after lunch and found to be very suitable for that purpose. Some pleasant ringing was also had on the fine Gillett ten at the Cathedral

The service was held at Sacred Trinity, and conducted by the Rector. Canon H. L. Hussey. The Rev. R. D. St. J. Smith, president of the Lancashire Association, preached the sermon and recalled his early ringing days before he was ardanned.
More ringing followed at the Town Hall. where methods up to Cambridge Maximus were rung.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

The vice-president, Mr. W. F. Moreton, presided at the meeting and apologies for absence included one from the president, Mr. Paul Taylor. It was proposed by Mr. R. Speed that the secretary wnite a letter expressing our deep sorrow to him in the loss of his son. A vote of thanks to all concerned with the arrangements was made by Mr. Norman Chaddock, and seconded by Mr. Gwyn Thomas
The statement of accounts was not available, the postal go-slow being the excuse, but the secretary thought a profit of 27 had been made during the year.
No fewer than 48 new members were elected and it was noticeable that the newer universities were strongly represented. Competition for singic bedrooms on next summer's tour at Shrewsbury is expected to produce the desired prompt response to the secretaries' circulars. There will be only seven single rooms; the remaining seven will accommodate from two to seven persons!
The vice-president then made a suggestion to the Noriherners that they hold an illicit dinner of their own every year.
Despite some poor navigation all seventy members cventually found the Hopkinson room oi the University Refectory, where drinks were available and the tables attractively daid for a dinner of prawn cocktail, roast Surrey chicken and peach Melba. Canon H. L. Hussey and the Rev. R. D. St. J. Smith were guests. The loyal toast was honoured with part wine, provided by the Manchester University Socjety.
Mr. Derek Ogden, president of the M.U. Society, proposed 'The continued prosperity and success of U.A: and said how pleased he was 10 welcome members to Manchester. following first mention of the idea ten years ago. He recalled previous U.A. tours he had altended and. in particular, the occasion when he asked a caller at his bedroom door. "Are you a ringer?" He afterwards discovered it was Pat Cannon!

A BLEND OF ALL TYPES

The U.A., he went on, included a blend of all types-from the closed backstroke. open handstroke variety to the open backstroke. cloved handstroke onas. No other Association civered such a broad section or area. and the various University Guilds strived 10 achieve some sort of uniformity among them.
The secretary. Mr. Dermot Roaf, in reply. welcomed an Australian member present. He asked new members to assist his memory by announcing themselves wherever they met him in the fu:ure. He was most grateful for the magnificent festivities and for the excellent evening provided.
The foast to - The Manchester University Guild was proposed by the vice-presirent.

He said he had been very entertained by the guests. ludging by the way Canon Hussey was fascinated by Pcter Border. he thought the two could never have met before. The Canon was overheard to remark to Peter during the dinner. How many pints of that can you drink in a day?"
He recalled the origin of U.A. and the three purposes behind it: to enable members of the two universities to get together to ring peals and just to get logether-they had done this very successfully: the third purpose was to give help to other universities. The U.A. had been very fortunate in its secretaries, each one better than the previous in getting people to do things.
Following the formation of U.A., he continued, University Guilds started sprouting up, Bristol and London almost immediataly. Manchester followed, and since then many more had been formed. He was not saying it was due to U.A. only. that he was pleased about it and soon, he hoped, all would have as thriving a Guild as Manchester.
Mr. John Soames. Ringing Master of M.U. Guild. replied with a welcome to Manchester and hoped members had enjoyed the ringing. This hus the second largest attendance at a U.A. duner, but he warned that the correspondence columns of the 'R.W-' would suffer if North and South got too friendly.
A convivial hour was then spent hefore members dispersed. some staying overnight in Manchester, others encountering fog on their jcurneys. A.R.P.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Tonbridge District

The Tonbridge District held their quarterly meeting, combined with the Kent Branch of the Ladies Guild. at Tunbridge Wells on Janualy foth.
After ringing in the afternoon. members attended a service. conducted by Rev. John Hurst. Over 40 ringers took tea in the Church Hall, after which the business meeting was held. The ohair for the meeting was taken by Mrs. J. Hurst, wife of the Vicar. Among items discussed was a report by Miss D. Colgate of the committee meeting held at Maidstone in November. Mr. B. Jeffrey proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar. for the use of the bells, and Mr. B. Collison. for use of the bells. and Mr. B Ringing was then enjoyed during the remainder of the evening. M.A.L.

Ashford District

About 30 ringers and friends were present for the service and tea at the first quarterly meeting of the year of the Ashford District at Teirerden on January 6th.
The service was conducted by the Vicar. Canon H. Willis. who in his address. said how grateful he was to his ringers and all those Who had contributed to the restoration of the noble sing of bells of this church. Mr. Moffat-Thompson was at the organ. Aftervards tea was enjoyed at 'The Eight Bells.'

The main item on the agenda was the honorary District secretary's report and balance sheet. Peals were slightly down on last year"s record. hut it was seen that membership (just over 200 practising members), service ringing. rumbers of subicribing towers and money remitted to the Association all showed an encouraging trend. The report and halance sheet were adopted on a motion from Mr. S. G. Waters. who coupled this with a vote of thanks to the honorary secretary. Eight new members were elected to the Association.
Thanks were accorded to Canon Willis, for taking the service, making his bells available and ac,ing as chairman, to the organist and 10 Miss Violet Relf and helpers, for the arrangements.
Ringing on the fine eight (tenor 30 cwt .) ranged from rounds to Surprise Major.

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GULLD

The annual meeting of the Central Branch took place at Heckington on January 13th.
The eight bells (tencr 19 cwt .) of St. Andrew's The eight bells (tenor 19 cwt .) of St. Andrew's Church were very much enjoyed by the members and friends present, and the ringing room was greatly admired for its comfort and cleanliness. Ringing was under the direction of the Branch Ringing Master, Mr. J. Millhouse, and included up to Spliced Surprise Mijor.

The Vicar, Canon Rees Jones, conducted the service, and in a welcome to the ringers said sells could be heard far and wide and were a great witness to the Church

Tea in the Village Hall was accompanied by recordings of church- and handbell ringing. The secretary thanked the ladies for providing such an excellent meal.
In the absence of the president, Canon $M$. H. R. Synge, who sent his apologies, the Vicar of Heckington was elected to the chair. Eight new members were elected to the Guild. The balance sheet for 1961 was approved; it showed a slight decrease in paid-up early payment of subscriptions. The Belfry Repair Fund was in a fairly healthy state.

Officers elected included president, Canon M.H. R. Synge; Ringing Master, Mr. J.
Millhouse; secretary and treasurer, Mr. S. A. Millhouse; secretary and treasurer, Mr. S. A. Brant Broughton. Metheringham with Blankrey. Dunholme with Welton, and Ruskington, the annual meeting being at Harmston in Jinuary. 1963.

The Guild secretary, Mr. J. Freeman, spoke of a new report and a possible revicw of subscriptions.
Mr. J. Waiden proposed a vote of thanks to all concerned for making the meeting a success. Ringing was then continued in the lower.

MID-HERTS TOWER GRABBERS IN SOMERSET

Take at least six ringers, and sufficient transport to move them, add a sprinkling of six-bell towers and arrange in order. This is the M.-H.T.G. recipe for an outing, but this the M.-H.T.G. recipe for an outing but this year's New Year outing was complicated by the posial 'go slow' causing a last minute flap. A car in a ditch meant two ringers ever, on Friday morning a car hurtled through cyer, on Friday morning a car hurtled through slush and snow to Digswell, erstwhile hunting ground of its driver, where the nucleus of the party had assembled. In the evening it returne. 1 io Bristol, the recklessness of the driver heing abated by fog, ice and darkness. A strictly non-conducted tour of Bristol who stood in at the last minute. The first tower was Locking, where sallies, slippery with damp, gave us a taste of what we were to meat all day; however, the light six were soon

In the afternoon we set off to tackle them Bleadon bells," which we found easy to hear. and where we added Cambridge to our Lox:on churcit. we arrived in time to admire several features of this 13tia ceniury bu:lding before adding ihree spliced to our successes. Axbridge's only cafe was closed. and a trip to Cheddar produced only fog. ice. a broken down soup vending machine. Next morning, after making our Com-

Mass at Westbury-upon-Trym, satisfying ourselves that it is possitle to make even these bells sing to God's glory. Ringing for Matins at Henbury brought the lour to a

Our thanks are due to Audrey, for arranging

AN OUTING IN SUSSEX  AND SURREY

MANY people would think November an odd time of year for a ringers' outing, but nevertheless a party of eleven spent an enjoyable day on November 4th in Surrey and Sussex. The countryside seemed particularly delightful, bathed in the golden sheen of siutumn.
Easebourne's interesting church, on the edge of Cowdray Park, was the first call, with a pleasant ' Taylorised' octave (tenor 11 cwt 21 lb .), rung from the ground floor. A short run brought us to the market town of Midhurst (with a lumpy six), followed by Stedham, where the bells could benefit from the attention of a bellhanger. The Parish Church of Harting is an impressive building, the chancel roof being especially noteworthy; the bells are lung from the middle of the church.

After a break for lunch, the delightful six (tenor 8-1-12) at Rogate were visited; the bells hang in a wooden turret. Strangers to Milland church should note that it stands just off the A.3, and is about $1 \frac{1}{2}$ miles from its village; a pleasant fing here, though the acoustics are poor. Another chancel cing across the border in Hampshire is at Bramshott, where the Vicar is a ringer, and he told us that his bells are by Thomas Janaway. The second eight of the day was to be found at Grayshott, an excellent product of the Whitechapel Foundry; various methods up to Yorkshire were rung here.

This outing had been particularly planned to include the ten at Haslemere, Surrey, and here Taylors have cast a grand ring; Mr. and Mrs. Bowden met us and joined in the ringing. The local lads had raised their octave for us at Chiddingfold, an easy-going Mears ring.

Following a refreshment pause, we ascended the central tower of All Saints' Church. Willey. and rang Superlative and Grandsire Major on a difficult, odd-struck octave ; the Vicar kindly showed us round his church afterwards. Bramley's six run along merrily, though 'laminated' Kent and Oxford cime to grief. The only heavy ring of the dily was at Godalming ( $\delta, 22 \frac{1}{5}$ cwt.). and the final call was ht Shalford (a very good Taylor ting), where we were pleased for a couple of the local band to join us in a rouch of Stedman, which was continually interrupted by bangs from a lirework parly close by.
The purty extend their grateful thanks to all those incumbents and local ringers who allowed them the use of their bells,
I. H. O .

SUSSEX COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Despite the wintry weather which prevailed on January 6th, the attendance at the combined neeting of the Northern and Western Divisions at Warnham was exceptionally good.
Ringing commenced at 3 o'clock and soon the belfry was full to capacity. The service, taken by the Vicat, the Rev. Michael Newman, was most enjoyable and unusual, in that the ringers' hymn was accompanied by handbells instead of the organ. The young band (trained by Mr. George Francis) are to be congratulated on thei: fins performance.
Fifty sat down to an excellent tea. which has prapared by Mrs. Mainstone and helpers, who also provided coffee and sandwiches during the social. During the evening Mrs. Mainstone was presented with a basket of fruit for her efforts.

The tower was visited again until 7 p.m., when it was time for the social at the Village Hall. Various games were played (one of which bronght a welt known Crawley singer rio 'prommence').
Full marks must be given to Mr. George Francis, for his patience in training his young band. both on handbells and tower-bells, and also for making arrangements for the meeting and social. which proved such a success. Thanks are alsu due to Mr . Leslic Weller and others who ably assisted. also to Miss Janet Roberts, who filled the breach in the absence of the organist.

DURHAM AND NEWCASTLE ASSOCIATION

A social meeting at Chester-le-Street during the Christmas season has become a regular feature of the Durham and Newcastle programme of recent years. This year it took place on January 6 th.
Ringing was confined to the afternoon, and after tea Christmas carols, under the direction of Kenneth Cheeseman, with prayers by the Rector took the place of the normal service.
The ringing competition saw a reversal of the usual roles, where the ordinary ringers had to do the judging from what they heard. The tape recorders developed faults and a 'live broadcast' had to be arranged hurriedly. Fortunately at Chester-le-Street the bells can b; clearly heard from the shelter of the Church Institute. The test required the listeners to say in which order the three distinctive Triples methods-St. Clement's, Grandsire and Stedman-had been rung and to name the bells at fault when some bad rounds were deliberately rung.
These tests earned marks for the members of the two teams, $\mathrm{A}-\mathrm{M}$ and $\mathrm{N}-\mathrm{Z}$, formed from those present and ably captained by Ken Chesseman and Fred Ross.
A story related by Denis Bayles was noisily interrupted at frequent interyals when he mentioned technical terms in ringing. Bells and fittings caused handbells to be sounded, ringing terms a clapping of hands, and names of methods a stamping of feet, with the word that had been used shouted out. The marks were awarded for the first team to react correctly with penalties for errors. This event was a tie at 42 all.
Ir the course of the evening Kenneth Arthur made a preliminary announcement of a oneday course on ringing, which is being arranged to take place at Lumley Castle, near Chester-le-Street, on April 14th. A definite booking has been made for the accommodation and details will shortly be circulated.

Denyer) took the chair for the last time als Ringing Master A report from the District Ringing Master (Mr. Roy Collins) was read, in which he congratulated the District on its progress and lor its high membership. He said the most outstanding tower was Weybridge ; after being such a weak tower it had become a strong one, under Mr. T. Luxford and Commander E. Tindal-Biscoe. He also stressed the value of the keen clergy in the District
Four new members were elected, two from Chobham, one from Esher, and one from East Molesey.
Ringing started again at 6.30 and ended at 8.30 p.m., and included Stedman, Grandsire and Bob Triples, Bob Major, attempts at Cambridge Surprise Major and three attempts at St. Clement's Bob Major.

THE STORY OF A RINGING FAMILY
By I. N. QUICK

Our last instalment dealt with the practice at Hexworth tower, supervised by the head ringer, Joe Smith. Orhers introduced to our readers were Joe's daughter, Phyllis; Henry, her boy friend; John, schoolboy son of Joe: Old William and his bookish son, Young William; Alice and Rene Browning, 12-yearold twins; and Old George, the treble ringer.

THE CONTEST COMMITTEE MEETING
On the evening of the Saturday following the practice at which young William had scored his first 720 of Cambridge, a Guild Committee meeting was held in the vestry of Barnswood Parish Church 10 decide certain details of the annual shield contest to be held several months later: The Vicar of Barnswood, a Guild vice-president. readily gave permission for functions of this kind and, because Barnswood was approximately in the centre of the districi, coupled with the fact that St. Stephen's had a fine ring of eight that were always made available after the meeting, a good turn-up of ringers were usually assured.

Each tower in the district was allowed to send one voling representative to the meeting, and wher Joe arrived there was a fair gathering of ringers present. He took a seat near the back of the room, next to Walter Hardaker of Netherton, a very shortsighted ringer, with a Summerzetshire 'burr' in has voice that had not been effaced after rearly half a century away from his native county. 'Walt.' as he was known, as representative of his tower, was. of course, entitled to a vole, but there was little prospect of his ever taking part in a contest as his entire repertoire, accumulated during nearly 50 years' ringing consisted of the first 12 changes of Bob Minor In this performance he preferred to sing the tenor, although it was his proud boast that his versatility extended to being able to accomplish this length of changes on any one of the six bells in the tower (albeit, he usually fought shy of the third!).

Walt' was what Joe termed 'a seconder,' which being interpreted means that he was one of those persons, unfortunately not unique. who. at a meeting, "second' someone else"s proposition on every available opportunity, although they themselves rarely contribute anything useful to the discussion.
'I'll second that,' he would say, and up would shoot his hand. He was quite prepared to second not only the proposition but the contrary amendment as well. and 2 wise chairman would ignore one or the other. knowing fulf well that 'Walt would frequently have little idea what either was about. His name. in consequence, figured prominantly in the minutes and it was always possible to tell without asking whether he had been in attend ance at tize previous meeting.
He had a peculiar sense of humour and 2 short spasmodic laugh that was quite infectious.
Joe remembered sitting next to him on a bus when returning from a meeting after walt had had 'one or two: When the conductress had come round for the fares. Walt had peered up at her in his shortsighred manner, drawing quite close to her and breathing over her an odour that was certainly not incense.

How much. luv?' he had asked.
Don't "luv" me!" snapped the harassed femak.

I don't. replied Walter, with a burst of laughter that had set the whole bus in an uprowr, including those who had not the least idea what it was all about. Such was the power of his laugh.

Seated on the other side of Joe was Jack Byers, of Renthorpe, a tower which had never yet won the shield although it had been quite close on several accasions. There was Raymond Smithson, an enthusiastic and energetic young ringer from Redbank, Stewart

Marstoi, of Layton-on-the-Wold, and Allen Slater, of Brigion, three towers all of which were capable of winning the shield. Joe also noticed David Walker, of Whetherton, Leslie Owen, of Undercliffe, and David Thomas, of Rosse-on-Ooze, each of whom had been a member of a team that had, at one time or another, taken home in triumph the coveted trophy, altnough he knew that Rosse had been in dire straits these last few years owing to the passing of several older ringers, that Undercliffe were pretty much in the same boat, and, he gathered from conversation prior to the meeting, that David Walker, of Whetherton. who were constantly fall out amongst themselves and patching things up again, was now on the look out to see if he could borrow a couple of ringers from Barnswood, to complete their team for the contest.

The meeting began quietly enough with John Chappell, of Brigton, the president, declaring the meeting open and calling upon Edward Lee, of Redbank, the secretary, to read the minutes of the last committee meeting. Joe always enjoyed listening to Edward's minutes. He contrived somehow. to make the most jejune subjects come to life like Elijah's vision of dried bones, and often added a touch of subtle humour to enrich the drabbest situations although his written word displayed a much wider vocabulary than his spoken one, and Joe had the feeling that Edward compiled his minutes with Roget's Thesaurus at his elbow.

With Edward a meeting was, often as not, a " conclave," "assembly," gathering" or "muster' a vote of thanks was 'received applause,' or, on at least three occasions, - acknowledged with a cacophony of enthusiastic approbation ; whilst a meeting never ended i: 'terminated, or "was brought to successful (or satisfactory) conclusion.' These words and phrases he spoke with great deliberation and they flowed off his tongue like syrup from a tilted treacle-jar. Whether all his audience enjoyed listening to him was a moot poini, but there was no doubt that the reading of the minutes was the highlight of Edward's meetings.

When he had finished, and the last sonorous syllable had died away. the minutes were passed as read (Walt being, of course, the seconder), John Chappell asked. Anything arising out of the minutes?' and paused. looking round the room over the pop of his ing rou

Yes, said Raymond Smithson, of Redbank. I notice that there was a suggestion in the minutes thas inquiries should be set afoo regarding the possibility of including "rise" regarding the possibility of including " rise" and "fall" as part of the competition, and that the matter was left in the hands of the president and secretary. I would be obliged if the meeting could be informed what steps have been taken

There was an uneasy pause
"Er-well!" began John Chappell, "the matter was discussed at some length at the previous mecting, you may remember-:

Since it was I who broached the subject. was the somewhat tart reply, 1 am not likely to forget!"

In that case.' continued John, somewhat nettled and gathering momentum as he went oll. You will be fully aware that the concensus oi opinion was against any alteration in $^{\text {i }}$ the contest procedure, and one almost insuperable obstacle to the implementation of any change being the lack of any qualified judge to-er-judge such a contest. I have made exhaustive inquiries lin fact he had mentioned the subject in an ofthand manner to his wife] and have been unable to find anyone with sufficient knowledge of such contests as to be able to-er-lake on this 'ere contest you keep on about.'

But, didn't the Guild once have such a contest some 15 or 20 years ago?' asked Raymond.

Aye, that it did,' interposed old Jack Byers. of Renthorpe, his grey imperial quivering with indignation at the very thought of it. John Threadwall and Albert Snade, from Suttin's Bottom., were t'judges, an' a fine mess they made 0 , it. Got a system out, so they said, for judging $t$ 'rise an fall which, when they used it, worked out so that the quicker a team got 'em up and dropped em down, the less faults they got. We wad $a^{\circ}$ wan that ere contest 'cos we had less faults than enybody else "ceptin' for t'rise an' fall, an' we took five minutes up an' five minutes down. like we allus does at home, an' they gav' us more faults nor enybody else. We want a diff'rent system to that. Rise an' fall indeed!' And ine looked round the company for corroboration. and many were the sympathetic murmurs he received, for quite a few of the older members could still remember the injustice of that contest when Renthorpe had been 'cheated, out of the shield on the only occasion on which they had ever won it.
Raymond may have been the voice crying in the wilderness. bu. he was not yet crippled by laryngitis. Jack Byers' interpolation was something that he had heard before and it was evident to Joe that Raymond had, to use another metaphor, all his guns primed and his powder dry. In fact. thought Joe. his powder-kegs were pretty well waterproofalmost, but not quite hermetically sealed.

We are always sorry to hear of a miscarriage of justice,' he said dryly, 'but because a mistake was made once is no reason why it should be repeated. Surely we all recognise that a good rise and fall are as necessary as good ringing in between. I have heard Mr Bvers himself say that, since the introduction of contests inco the Guild, some 25 years ago, the standard of striking has inproved tremendously throughout the area. I think we are all aware of the necessity for a corresponding increase in the standard of rising and falling. and I suggest that if we introduced this into our contests we should attain our objective. I believe, also. that the standard of judging, and judges, has advanced since the days of John Threadwall and Albert Snade, and I think is would be interesting to learn what Henry Hammerton and James Hargreaves had to say to Mr. Chappell when he approached them on this subject.
This was a pretty good broadside as Raymond guessed that John had never spoken to these two well known judges on this particular subject. John made a few incoherent noises and was slowly rising to his feet when Edward Lee came to his rescue

- We approached Mr. Hammerton and Mr Hargreaves:' he said. rapidly standing up. 'and neither of the gentlemen had had any experience jn judging such a contest, although Mr. Hargreaves did say that he would get in touch with a ringing friend of his in the south of England, where, I believe, such contests are quite common. However. we have heard nothing further from this source.

Personally, I think we should leave the matter until we have further information.
There were murmurs of approval from the assembled company and a shout of, " 1 'll second that! from Wialter, It was obvious that Raymond was fighting a losing battle: doggedly and determinedly, but a losing one nevertheless.
Joe rose to his feet and began to speak Raymond looked up hopefully and the company fell silent. It was a source of permanent surprise to Joe that people always listened so carefully and respectfully to what he said in the Guild discussions. The truth was that he didn't realise the value that many people placed on his opinions nor that he had quite reputation throughout the Guild for levelheaded judgment and clear thinking.

Mr. Chairman and fellow ringers.' began Joe, I have listened with great interest to the various points of view put forward this afternoon, and although I can't say that I am in complete agreement with the suggestion advanced by Mr. Smithson I feel, notwithslanding. that there is a great deal that is worthy in the idea of introducing " rise and fall " into our contests, and that at any rate it ought to be given a trial once more. Guild. some of whom, like Raymond here, are advancing at a rate caluculated to leave many of the odder ringers, such as myself, far behind, and I think it would be unfair to shackle their enthusiasm.'

Let us be quite frank with ourselves, he continued, "and admit that in most cases the reason we are opposed to many of the new ideas, including this, is because we have grown accustomed to the old routine and resent being prised out of the familiar groove. It has been suggested that the reason why such contests are not held is because we have no judges who are capable of judging such a contest or are unfamiliar with them. To the first suggestion I would quote Mr. Hammerton and Mr Hargreaves, who have already been mentioned this afternoon. names familiar to many ringers beyond the confines of our Guild as judges of high repute, and with regard to the second I would propose that (a) our excellent secretary writes a letter to "The Ringing World "asking for information on this subject, which I am sure would soon be forthcoming. and tha: (b) the matter is placed on the agenda of the Annual Meeting in January, and that both Mr. Hammerton and Mr. Hargreaves be approached for a reappraisal of the position, and that they are both invited to express their views at that meeting.

After further discussion the proposal was adopied. not with very good grace by one or two people, but adopted it was nevertheless.

Sixty-Six Years Ago

Mr. S. Flint, of 39. Sefton Lane. Maghull. Liverpool. is the only survivor of the band of eight members of the Liverpool Diocesan Guild. who rang a peal of Grandsire Triples at Ormskirk Parish Church on February 11th. 1896. He was then 17 years of age.

Lancashire ringers might recognise some of the names of the band: S. Flint 1. J. Scholican $\frac{2}{5}$. J. Taylor 3. W. Fairclough 4. J. Pilkington 5. W. J. Taylor 6. W. Bentham (cond.) 7, J. R. Parks 8.

NORTH STAFFS ASSOCIATION

Despite the cold winds and the icy downpour, the annual meeting of the North Staffs Association was attended by a record number of members- 72 were entertained to tea by the Rector of Stoke, Preb F. A. R. Chapman.

Ringing at the Parish Church commenced at 2.30 p.m. and continued until 5 p.m. The service was taken by the Rev. H. Harper, who deputised for the Rector

The business meeting followed immediately after tea, with the president (the Ven. Geo. Youell) in the chair. Four new ringing members ware elected and Mr. W. Anthony Adams, J.P., was elected honorary life member. Mr. G. W. Biddulph (chairman) thanked the Archdeacon for his continued interest and support, and also thanked the Rector for the use of the bells and for providing tea again this year.

The company then returned to the belfry and ringing (from rounds to Bristol Surprise Major) continued until 9 p.m.

A BYGONE VETERANS' PEAL

Mr. E. H. Williams. of Sampford Arundel near Wellington, Somerset forwards us a cutting from *The Devon and Somerset News' of October 26th, 1933, recording a peal of Stedman Triples rung at St. Olave's. Hart Street, London. E.C., to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Mr. Ernest Bishop's work as a bellringer.
An unusual thing was that the ages of the band varied from 71 to 82 years. After ringing for 100 minutes a rope broke. There was a delay of 10 minutes and a fresh start was made, and the paal successfully rung.
The band consisted of Challis $\mathbf{F}$. Winney (aged 76). of Fulham (conductor): William T. Pates (81). Cheltenham: Ernest Bishop (71). Swindon: W. H. Smith (72). Caversham. Reading: Robert H. Brundle (82). Ipswich: Francis E. Dawe (75). Woking: James George (80). Birmingham; Walter Prime (78), Dalston

MORE BELFRY GOSSIP

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Critchley on ringing their 300 th peal together. For years they have been leading peal ringers, but unrecorded in our columns. There arse, however. others in the Hertfordshire Association who count their annual tally!
To the memory of Mr. Harry Edge, of Much Wenlock, secretary of the Bridgnorth Branch of the Hereford Diocesan Guild, the members of Claverley, Salop, band attempled a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples with the the bells half-muffled. It was regretted that the attempt failed after half an hour of good ringing.
An excellent article on the bells of St . Michael's and All Angels', Ashton-under-Lyne, appeared in a recent issue of 'The Ashton Reporter ; written by Mr. J. Cassidy. It was on these bells that the record peal of 12,240 Kent Treble Bob Maximus was rung on April 17th. 1911. As a boy. Mr. Cassidy met Mr. Samuel Wood, the conductor of that peal, and was allowed to enter the belfry during practice rights.
The oldest past member of the Central Council is Mr. Charles Wiltshire, who recently celebrated his 961h birthday; he is living with his daughter. Mrs. George Alam, R.R.3. Nansonville. Quebec. The band at St. Mary's Bas:lica, Sydney. N.S.W.. under Mr. T. W. Goodyer. are miking rapid progress, This wek thiree of their quarter peals-Single Oxford Bob Triples. Double Oxford Bob Triples and Norwich Surprise Miror. They have not lost a quarier peal since last Sep.ember. Miss W. A. Nichols is believed to be the first Australian A. Nichols is believed to be the firs lidy to ring a quarter of Surprise.

The pzal of Superlative Surprise rung at Worsley, Lancs. on December 19th was Royal and, not Major as published on page 25.
Six lady members of the Sapcote, Leics. Sunday service band rang a quarter peal of Cambridge Surprise Minor on January 10th.
Mr. Nicholas J. Davies rang his 50th peal on the bell upon which he was taught to ring, the fifth at St. Alphege's Church, Canterbury.
The peal rung at Hillingdon on January 13th was noteworthy for the fact that the ringer of the eighth was exactly four times the age of the ringer of the fourth (88 and 22). Both birthdays occurred this week-end.
The in memoriam quarter peal of Plain Bob Royal for Mr. William Welling, of Old Windsor, rung on January 14th, was the 100 th quarier peal on the bells since their augmentation to ten :n P950; of these 34 were 10 bell quarters.
The still active veteran of St. Mary's. Usk, tower is Mr. Edgar Luff, who is now in his 81 st year. For 35 years the has boen ringing at this tower. In honour of his golden wedding his fellow ringers rang a quarter peal of Grandsire Doubles on January 14th.
Two courses from the end of the peal of Siedman Caiers at Hillingdon on January 13:h. Reuben Sanders hesitated to dodge. Afterwards, someone said that was the first time he could remember over many years Reuben ever making the slighlest mistake. Fancy not making a mistake until your 88th birthday. A ribute to Reuben's all-round excellence as a ringer and an example to us all.

GOSSIP

 Wigston, Leics. will be at a very early age a 1.000 pealer. He is now 23 years 5 months and his just rung his 500th peal. His contribution towards this total during 1961 was 113 .Mr. Malcolm Phipps informs us that his first peal on ten bells was Yorkshire Royal at Grantham and not. as inadvertenily stuied, at Rotherham (page 9), which was his first of Caters.
Mr. Stanley Shipp, of Sutton, made a welcome return to peai ringing at Haddenham, Cambridgeshire, on January 13th. Ringing with his usual efficiency, a good peal was scored.
In succession to the late Mr. G. W. Jeffs, Mr. E. B:llings, of 61, Melville Streci, Northampton, has been appointed secretary and :reasurer of the Peterborough Diocesan Guild.
During the 'coming of age' peal for Mr. John Hall. at Broughton, he visited the church and being unable to enter the ringing chamber left a note of appreciation and six bottles of champagne. The ringers gladly toasted his coming of age!
Comments our Sussex correspondent re the social at Warnham: 'During the dancing some of the more mature male members demonsirated the fact that they could handle a bell in the tower far better than a belle on the dance flowr.'
Mr. D. S. Johnson, conductor of the quarter pea! at Walkington, East Yorks, on January 12th. congratulates the newly-formed band on its high standard of striking. He is confident that with hard work and the same enthusjasm a wonderful future awaits this young band.
The Durham and Newcastle Diocesan Association has lost its patron, the Very Rev. N. M. Kennaby, who has accepted an imprtant post on the staff of the new Archbishop of Canterbury. A farewell peal of Stedman Caters was rung at Newcastle Cathedral. Cinques were planned, but because of 'flu the peal was reduced to one on ten bells.

DEDICATED TO THE EXERCISE

SO much is taken for granted these days that few give credit to the dedicated lives of many District secretaries and Ringing Masters. This is well illustrated -in fact it could be repeated in almost every Guild's area-by what happened at Wellesbourne, Warwickshire, where the Southern District of the Coventry Diocesan Guild held a meeting on January 6th.

For three weeks the elements had done their damndest to wreck the plans. Almost three weeks of fog and cold. followed by a week of snow, ice and freeze-up, preceded January 6 th. And who were the unsung heroes? First the clergy, in this case the Rev. R. G. Stanton, who two days before the meeting wondered if it would be possible to hold it, but said nothing. The day came; some snow had melted, and there he was with a ready welcome and smiling apologies for the weather.
Such was fate that almost minute-to-minute changes had to be made in the programme. Ringing had not been long in progress before the church began to fill with smoke as if some pagan offering was being made. It was the heating system feeling the strain of the severe weather; and alas, as the smoke cleared so did the heat in the church. Arrangements for the service to be transferred to the hall were made, and by service time the hall was warm and cosy. Mr. Stanton's apologies were unnecessary.

We men are apt to take the services of the ladies for granted. At Wellesbourne there were Miss Pitcher. Miss McDonaugh. Mrs. Bamford and Mrs. Hitchman: they are just four of a thousand others up and down the country; they are the unsung heroes. The meeting and social had been arranged. Miss Pitcher's mother, the kingpin of all successful local events, fell sick. The snow fell, the pipes of the hall froze and burst, and the only things that did heat up were the telephone wires! Thank goodness, they held out, for by now the village was nearly cut off by snow and the author was in the helpless position of being entirely dependent upon the unsung heroes at the other end.
The day came: the snow began to melt; the pipes were repaired. But how many would be coming? Guesses ranged from one to 50 ; the gamble succeeded, and 50 hungry ringers sat down to a wonderful tea in a warm hall: instead of bursting pipes it was a case of bursting ringers! Two hours before it seemed impossible. God bless all ladies dedicated to feeding hungry ringers.
Can the young ones be included in those dedicated to the art? Fifty per cent. of those attending this Guild's meetings could be classified as young, and at this meeting it was 90 per cent. The boys and girls came from miles around-cycling, walking. by bus and by car-through melting snow and a risk of fog.

They all had a good ring; they all attended the service. And didn't they make a go of that social evening! You should have scen them! Young John Penn, from Salford Priors, some 18 miles away. provided the music, and the youngsters certainly rewarded him by their sheer enthusiasm. Where did they come from? From towers where the captain is an organiser as well as a dedicated teacher.

All District secretaries and Ringing Masters are, unfortunately, forcibly brought in touch with silent belfries. The reason? 'Well, the young ones are just not interested,' is the reply. Fiddlesticks! It is nearer the truth to say: 'It's the old 'uns who have no interest in teaching.' A lack of patience and a reluctance to allow a younger member of the band to teach is often the reason.
I am resolved, if I reach the stage of finding teaching a nervous hardship, to hand over the job to a younger member of my band rather than let the team die off into silence. As captains we have a duty to do to our beginners. If we don't constantly bring new blood into the band we are failing in our job-we are deceiving our priest.
Listen to a recent pop tune by Cliff Richard. 'The Young Ones ' (and for once the words on the recording are audible). We would do well to keep some of them in mind. Let me leave this thought with you-

- Let not vour shadow fall for long periods upen the waiting beginners, but rather stand firmly bethind them, and open up the mysteries of the Exercise to them.'

LEADING PEAL RINGERS OF 1961

$\mathrm{M}^{1}$R. ROBERT B. SMITH, of Loughborough, heads the list of peal ringers for 1961 with the exceptional total of 137 . Of these he conducted 43 and among them was the record length of 32.912 of Plain Bob Major. He has had excluded the peal of Maximus at Leicester, in which the composition was found to be false,
Two other ringers also passed the century mark in John M. Jelley, of Wigston, Leics, and Bernard F. L. Groves. the enthusiastic Kent ringer
The leading conductors were John R. Mayne of Hasrow, and Brian G. Warwick. secretary of the Leicester Diocesan Guild. Each had called 61 peals, a very high number.
According to records submitted, Miss Carol Fernley, of Norbury, Hazel Grove, Cheshire is the leading lady ringer with 54 peals. Prominent in the list is Miss B. Gillian Schofield, of Bradford Cathedral, with 34
Among the young ringers is Master Kenti Ward (15), of Slough. He rang 28 peals and conducted three (Yorkshire Surprise Major 2) It is unusual to have in the list a father and son. The Warrilows, of Stafford, appear, Robert. the son, with 45 and Richard, the father, 36.

HOLY ROSARY CATHEDRAL

Dear Sir-Will you please correct that the Holy Rosary Cathedral is in Vancouver, British Columbia, and not New Westminster

For years this tower has lost visiting ringers due to the inaccuracies on the reported location of this church; the previous details in 'Dove" are quite inaccurate, but the undersigned conducted considerable carrespondence with Mr. Dove last May, and the whole of the Canadian towers have been brought up to date for his third issue. Every tower has been visited. and every one with a band has been rung at by the undersigned. There remains one inaccuracy, and that is a recent change in the practice night at the Holy Rosary Cathedral in Vancouver from Tuesdays to alternate Mondays and Wednesdays-which, incidentally, is, together with a drastic curtailment of ringing practice recenily ipposed by the Church athorities, sounding the death knell of future ringing in Vancouver.-Yours sincerely.

THE MESSAGE OF THE BELLS
In connection with the dedication of the bells of Salisbury Cathedral, Rhodesia. the following was quoted by the Bishop of Mashonaland from a letter written 'to him by the anonymous donor of the bells in his address at the ceremony of dedication

I don't think some sections (of public opinion) here understand the patience and the timc that is needed to bring about the dasting and happy solution of the problem with which your purt of Africa is faced. whicl is being sought for so sincerely by so many. I am sure that such a solution will be found in the end. and I hope each bell will. for centuries, go on ringing out its own individual message-FAITH: TRUTH: UNDERSTANDING: GENTLENESS: HUMILITY: LOYALTY: GRATITUDE: COURAGE: WISDOM: and LOVE. The largest bell. LOVE, carries the most importint message, and perhaps its voice may find an echo in the hearts of those who hear.
The bells are stamped with the English Rose and the Rhodesian Flame Lily, and incribed with their names in the order as scribed with their names in the order

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

WINCHESTER & PORTSMOUTH DIOCESAN GUILD

Andover District

As is customary when the Andover District's annual meeting is held at Whitchurch. the bells of Hurstbourne Priors are available in the dfternoon. This was so on January 13 th. These bells are a real challenge and those who tried them found that plenty of effort was required to ring even rounds.
The service at All Hallows', Whitchurch. was conducted by the Rev. Hamilton Lloyd (Vicar). and was followed by tea and busimess meeting in the Parish Room. For the latter. Mr. A. W. Alliston presided, and atmong things discussed was the transfer of towers from one District to another. It was felt that this should solely depend on the views of the ringers in the towers in question and then referred to the annual meeting of the Guild.

A grant of five guincas was made towards the cost of rehanging Whitchurch bells. The job should be completed hefore the next District annual meeting there in 1963. The next quarterly meeting was fixed for Longparish on March 24th, with Hurstbourne Priors and St. Mary Bourne after tea. After the usual votes of thanks the ringers returned to the tower where the highlight was a course of Bristol.

BALDOCK RINGERS' DINNER

The Baldock Guild of Ringers enjoyed an informal dinner at The Star on January $20 t \mathrm{~h}$. The Rector, Canon F. C. Brenchley, thanked the ringers for all the time and energy they spent during the year. and expressed his pleasure that no ringers had been lost during the three-month silence. The tower is now safe. though not finished. All the money raised has been spent, but work is to continue and a loan may be obtained.

Mr. E. G. Buck. the tower caplain, emphasised that more teaching was necessary. and thanked the Vicar and ringers of Norton for their hospitality during the dime when Buldock's bells were silent. Mr. H. Stuart Bonnett said that Ashwell was now bell conscious' and that much of the success was due to the loan of Buldock's hindbells. He told also that the Rector of Ashwell was using the handbells as a dominant part of a special anthem for handbells. organ. drums and at horn which he had writern and which would be performed at Easter.
Handhells ringing in various methods made a pleasant eddition to the evening's entertainment.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CHURCH ATTENDANCE IN VILLAGES

Dear Sir,-Many years ago we had a new Rector who put it quite plainly, Go to each service you ring for or leave the bells alone. Well, some of our ringers were stockmen on farms and could sometimes just make it to ring in their mucky boots, and we were glad to have them. but I doubt if they would have been very welcome at the service. So we aH but one tied our ropes and left. The one man out was the Rector's gardener. and he, jn1 those days, had to stay on or perhaps leave his job, so for six manths there were no service or wedoing bells. He had to teach a new band. and it was not long before the Rector found out his mistake.

We had another Rector. When we were slipping a bit he would come into the belfry and say. Do try and come to the services a little more often.' That made a big difference; we used to go.

I never go in the mornings, and when I go down the path boldly and see the kate-comers I feel like saying. Going to the second house?" In our band we have an organist. two in the choir and two sidesmen, and all the others help to keep our churchyard tidy. I remember reading in the 'R.W.' of a meeting in the North a few years ago. when the Archbishop of Canterbury, then Archbishop of York. said that service ringing was an act of worship in itself.
I quite agree we should attend one service, but it is not always possible.- Yours sincerely,

THE SURREY MERGER

Dear Sir.-I write as a member of botit the Surrey Association and Guildford Guild and have rung peals for both. but reside in Surrey, outside the Guildford Diocesan boundary.

I am an ardinary ringing member of the former, and non-resident lire member of the Guildford Guild.

Unless my information is unreliable this merger was first mooted by a few Guildford Guild members in one small area who objected to paying two ordinary member's subscriptions each year. So far so good, but I cannot help ashing myself what would happen if those ringers who. too. are members of both. but reside in the actual area of the Diocese of Guitdford, or are regular members of a band attached to a tower in the Diocese of Guildford. continued to pay ordinary member's subscriptions to their home Guild. and claimed to be non-resident members of the Surrey Aswociation after making sure that their subscription position wis 'au fait' with Surrey Association rules.
What I would rather see would be for one of the provincial Diocesan Guilds to sponsor and get adopted (if possible), at Central Council level. a recommendation that all ringing organisations. with the exception of those strictly nonterritorial Societies. i.e. College Youths. Cumberlands. Ladies Guild, and the like. be Diocesan.-Yours, etc..

RINGERS• HYMNS

Dear Sir-At the present moment I am compiling a collection of ringers hymns. I would be very much obliged if any of your readers, knowing of such hymns, could let me have the words and tunes. If the tune is iu any of the standard hymn books the name will suffice. Thank you.-Yours faithfully. ANDREW J. STRATHDEE.

BROADCASTING OF BELL MUSIC

Dear Sir. - I should like to express my support of Mr. Arthur Farrand in his remarks about the broadcast of bell music on Christmas morning. As he states, it was an enjoyuble broadcast. and he is quite right in that at least one six-bell tower should have been included. and I hope that those responsible will. make a note of this for next Christmas marning. If the B.B.C. are at a loss to know what to do about this, well, Arthur is the lad to put them on the right track!
I would add further to this, and state that it is my opinion that there ought to be very much more bell music on our radio and television than there is at present; and not only at Christmas time. but throughout the year. I do not think that the B.B.C. devotes above 60 minutes to bell music in 12 months, which if one takes their average broadcasts as 15 hours daily, is a proportion of 5.475 to 1 !
Tune ringing on handbells was noticeably absent from the B.B.C.'s Christmas programmes, and there can be no excuse at all for this when so many bands of handbell ringers throughout England and Wales tour therr parishes and ring in their own parish churches. at this season. On Sunday, December 17th. I attended the annual service of nine lessons and carols at St. Thomas' Church, Norbury (Hazel Grove), Stockport. The handbell ringers played the accompaniment to three carols, the tower-hell ingers gave us a touch of Grandsire Tiiples on handbells. and with lovely singing by the choir and a packed congregation in this grand old church 1 thought what a wonderful opportunity for a television broadcast on the English way of celebratiug Christmas had been missed! B.B.C., rlease note for 1962!
To revert to the Christmas broadcast, I listened carefully to the bells of Bethlehem which, to me, appeared to strike rounds just once, and I reckon there are five bells, with tenor note 'E,' here.-Yours sincerely, Shaw. Oldham.

TIMING OF BOW BROADCAST

Dear Sir--Referring to the Bow bells broadcast, a friend of mine has sent me these figures, which certainly amplify the protest: Total time bells audible
Time (ringing) obscured by Dimbleby blather

67 secs.

Went into changes after
35 secs
Fading commenced after 57 secs i.e is heard 20 secs. rounds and 2 secs. Cinques-in a 20 -minute programme.

Besides which, my correspondent (a ringer in South Bucks) writes

Apart from the lack of ringing, the emphasis of the programme was not on Bow bells '-although it was progrimmed as. Bow Bells. I concur.-Yours sincerely.

PEAL AT PEWSEY

Dear $\operatorname{Sir}$, Further 10 my letter in your issuc of December 22nd, I make the following observations for the information of Mr. Patrick Bird. general secretary of the University of Bristol Society
The bells at Pewsey have been going rough for some time and three years ago a belfry inspector from the Salisbury Diocesan Guild visited the tower and made a report on the condition of the bells. Later the bell founders took over and carried out certain recastings and restorations. Two grants were made by the Guild towards the fund to meet the cost, and the bells were duly rededicated.
It was the prerogative of the Salisbury Guild to ring a peal of thanksgiving for the restoration. This was taken out of their hands entirely by the band who rang the peal on November 4 th . I am sorry that Mr. Bird endorsed this taste of bad manners and lack of zourtesy to the Salisbury Guild.

I am also sorry that Mr. Bird should mention peal booking fecs and life membership subscriptions. This savoured of veiled sarcasm and does not merit an answer. Yours truly,
W. C. WEST

APSLEY SURPRISE MAJOR  PEAL WITHDRAWN

Dear Sir,-It is with deep regret that I have to inform you, and the Exercise, that the peal Oi Apsley Surprise Major rung at Sherfield English on October 28th, 1961. for the Winches:er and Portsmouth Diocesan Guild was false.
This was brought to my attention by Mr . Stephen Ivin. whose composition of 5,184 Jersey Surprise Major was used, viz.:

NAMING OF MINIMUS PEALS

Dear Sir,-In answe: to Mr. Geoffrey Dodds fiuming of Minimus methods, in his article:A Review of Minimus.: I do not mind what these methods are called. I called them the names I felt fitted them best. However, if Mr. Dodds would like to compile a list of rames for these methods and get them printed in the 'R.W.' then these names could be the "official " ones for the future. I do not mind what methods are called, so long as there is only 'one' name for each method.- Yours faithfully,

DOUBLES RINGING

Dear Sir,-May I be allowed to state that I agree entirely with Roy H. Jones' Jetter to the 'R.W.' ( $19 / 1 / 62$ ); in fact, I beg to add more.

Over past years I have noticed in Jetters to the "R.W.' unmistakable signs of ' Doubles doesn't count' attitude. Surprised as some may be to learn. Doubles ringers are part of the Exercise: they still have the same aims, as regards good striking. as the rest and, more important, they also ring for services. just like Surprise Maximus enthusiasts (the parable of the widow's mite is relevant here).
Noiody disagrees that five-bell singing is, rampanologically speaking, inferior to that on rampanogicilumbers. but it is, from the the higher numbers, but which is more important), equal in all respects.
Five-bell ringers are not, as one well known aentleman recently remarked in a jetter 10 the :R.W: jealous of their colleagues who ring in the higher numbers; in most eases their ambitions are very modest. but this doesint alter the fact that they are ringers, serving God and serving Him just as well as any other. And is it not the Christian's aim to serve God more than anything else?-Yours sincerely,
" PETER BELL.'
PS-I think a five-bell tower broadcast would be more representative of ringing as a whole.- P. B.'

About 40 ringers attended. The service was conducted b: the Rector (the Rev. Mr. Hamilton), and tea prepared hy the ladies of Awliscombe. At the meeting, with Mr. $\mathbf{H}$. Woodley in the chair, members stood in silence for the late Mr G. Burrows. Certificales were presented to three Dunkeswell members and one new member elected.
Ringing included Plain Bob. Grandsire and Siedman Doubles, Bob Minor and Kent T.B. Minor.

SIXTY YEARS A RINGER

MR. C. KNOWLES, Sampford Arundel.
Mr. C. Knowles was born in the Devonshire village of Withleigh 86 years ago and learned to ring on nearby Calverleigh's five bells in h:s early twenties. He and his friends were determined to ring 'Scientific' and, having no books and no teacher, they memorised 120 changes of Grandsire Doubles and rang it triumphantly for the Rev. Maitland Kelly, then presiden: of the Devon Guild, when he came to lest them. Suspicious of such perfect striking he made them change round, but he could not faut them; they had each learned the woik of every bell. A benefactor was so pleased with their progress that he gave a sixth bell to Calverlcigh Church.

- Charlie K Kowles learned to ring the hard way. Determined to master Stedman, he used $t 0 \mathrm{cy}$ le to Milverton ( 20 miles) every Sunday morning. riding back after service along the dusty, iwisting lanes. He once cycled to Melksham for a peal, and semembers that on the way home he got off at Rockwell Green and watched them lay a silver coin under the cornerstone of the tower of All Saints' Churcli.

His family moved to Cullompton, where he rang for six years. and then early in 1914 he went to live in Tiverton. He joined up when war broke out and his wife took his place in the tower of St. Peicr's. Invalided out of the Army after four years he rang continuously at St. Pe:cr's for 15 years. after which he became licensee of the Beam Bridga Hotel, Sampford Arundel. The ringers of Holy Cross Church, Sampford Arundel. . were then, as they still are. a call change band. Their five bells were augmenied by a new treble in 1958, making a light ring of six (tenor 8 cwt .). Mi. Knowles rings it every Sunday morning.

A local band is struggling to learn method ringing. under the auspices of the Stevens family and Mr. Stanley Bristow. When weather permits. Mr. Knowles comes to help. Long may be cio so. E.M.W.

THE SMITHS THE STORY OF A RINGING FAMILY By I. N. QUICK

Our last instalment dealt with the opening stages of the Guild committee meeting to decide conditions of the anmual shield contest. Joe Smith, head ringer of Hexworth. suc: ceeded with his resolution that rise and fall be introduced as an experiment. Others at the meeting included Walter Hardaker, of Netherton; Jack Byers, of Renthorpe; Raymond Smithson, of Redbank; Stewart Marston, of Layton-on-the-Wold; David Walker, of Whetherton; Leslie Owen, of Undercliffe; and David Thomas, of Rosse-on-Ooze.
Seeing that the election of judges had, in view of the previous discussions become a mere formality, the next jtem on the agenda, viz., 'the selection of a tower for the contest.' was quickly open for discussion.
'What about Harmsley?' asked Allen Slater, of Brigton.
Allen was a rawboned mountain of a man. who stood well over six feet and possessed long sinewy limbs and bulging biceps. Following Allen on to a bell meant either unfastening string of knots (for Brigton still clung to 'Yorkshire ends.' and the shortening of a ropeend was a mystery that Allen had never attempted to solve). or collecting all the spare boxes in the ringing chamber in order to reach the backstroke.
If Jo hadn't known the ingenious nature and honast character of this blue-eyed giant he would have thought there was some ulterior motive in his suggestion, for Harmsley Church, Ihough it may have boasted a Norman nave that was the pride of the diocese and a squarc, squat tower of the same period that gazed serenely across the valley like a comfortable old lady unruffled by time and events, had a ringing chamber contained therein that was as spacious as a Dutch barnand about as comfortable to ring in. Furthermore, the bellfounders or whoever had been responsible for the design and installation of the bells. impressed, no doubt by the majestic architectural scale of their surroundings. had supplied Harmsley with a ring of bells in similar generous proportions. Ponderous and slow. the sound of them echoed down the valley like the music of some gigantic, celestial organ.
But the ringing of the bells was an Herculean task suitable for a team of Brobdingnagians. None of the bells was easy to ring. but the tenor was renowned for its difficuly. Succeeding generations had gradually increased its estimated weight, a phenomenon not unknown at other towers, where the true weight of a bell is unknown, until now it was reputed to be vario is weights between 15 cwt . and $2 \frac{1}{2}$ tons. More than one ringer who had taken hold of it ("it," because the feminine gender would be ludicrously inappropriate) to ring a touch at a meeting had found himself dangling like a pupjet at the end of a string unable to pull the bell into motion. and it was now generally conceded that it was best left alone by anyone under 14 stone.
Allen was. of course, one of the few men within a ratius of 20 miles whe could ring it. Another was John Cole, the local tenor man. 15 stone if he was an ounce. who must have had sadistic tendencies. seeing that he always made sure that the bell had three times the amount of "set' that any selfrespecting bell should have.
Several poople looked up in alarm at Allen's question, although they needn't have worried: there wasn't the least danger of Harmsley heing selected: collapsing through overexhaustion was not a popular Saturday afternoon pastime indulged in by the assembled company.
David Walker favoured Undercliffe. and said so. This was hardly surprising since the church was only about two miles from Whetherton. David's home tower. and he with two or three more of the Whetherton band attended the Undercliffe practices quite fiequantly. Even with the two ringers that David hoped to collect from Barnswood, the Whetherion team would still be in a strong position, for Undercliffe bells were light and iricky and the best bands found it difficult to settle down quickly in a contest unless they had had a good deal of previous practice there. Undercliffe had a diminutive tower with a tiny belfry, rendered even smaller by a protruding clock case, a ceiling so low that Allen Slater tapped his knuckles against the beams on the backstroke. and a diabolical third bell. the rope of which was believed to pass through an S-shaped drainpipe and which gave a vicious kick every other stroke as if to emphasise the fact.
The Whetherton team usually did well at this tower and had won quite a few of the contests that had been held there, a fact well remembered by many of the ringers present.

Jchn Chappell butted in.
Seting that we would prefer to have a tower where it is unlikely that that tower will, for some reason or other, not be entering a team in the contest, I wonder if someone would care to extend an invitation to us? and he looked straight at Walter Hardaker, whilst the majority of ringers present, despite his double negative. followed suit.
Poor Walter. who had been waiting patiently to second someone's proposition, suddenly found himself the centre of attraction. Now Walter was the only active Guild member of the Netherton company: other ringers there were who met Sunday mornings and Sunday mights to help him to ring the first twelve of Bab Minor ( What is the tune that the ringers are always playing at our tower?' a Netherton business aquaintance once asked Joe). but meetings, even at their own tower, they nevei attended. although they met regularly every Wednesday night at 7.30 p.m. 'to practise.'
Consequently, all the arrangements for ring ing functions were left in the hands of Walter, and preparing for the Guild contest was no pushove:: Walter knew, he had done it before: many times!
He gazed around him. somewhat helplessly, in his shortsighted manner.
'I'm always pleased to help.' he said. ' but. as you know. the bells are getting the worse for wear, and I can't get up among them nowa-days-my rheumatics, you know-and they really could do with overhauling. I should think that it will be knee deep in birds' nests up there nowadays. too. There's nobody to do it if I don't do it.'
All this was, of course, perfectly true, Netherton was one of those towers where the spiral staircase ended when it reached the ringing chamber. A ladder. or more correctly flight of stairs. which, when not in use, sprawled diagonally across one side of the belfry, had. When required, to be manoeuvred into position with the top end resting against a beam which ran across the centre of the ceiling above. This operation demanded hoth experience and patience, not to mention brute strength. and was fraught with danger: one slip or miscalculation and the whole contraption which must have weighed several hundredweights would have come crashing to the floor, and nobody in their proper senses would stand within several feet of its direct line of attack.

Having got the thing into position one mounted the steps in order to slide back (by means of handles bolted to the underside) two massive trapdoors which formed a cood quarter of the ceiling and which would have made pretty effective emergency rafts for a goodly portion of the crew of the Queen Mary.
This accomplished. one then gazed upwards into the mouth of the fifth bell, which. of course, had previously been lowered if necessary. The final phase of the operation required a pecular kind of agility usually acquired and demonstrated by acrobats or contortionists on view at circuses or witnessed on the lelevision in certain command parformances. It involved worming and twisting in semi-darkness past the sliding mechanism and round the underlip of the bell and clambering upwards using the wheel, the crossbraces of the frame, the side of the bell and whatever projections or protuberances could be grasped on the spur of the moment. until with a sense of fulfilment such as has been felt by no other human being. save perhaps by Sir Edmund Hilary when he reached the summit of Mount Everest, one eventually stood triumphant on top of the bell-frame.
This triumph of mind (and muscle) over matter was, of course. never achieved without cost, and a person who had only barked both his shins or removed the tops of his knuckles of both hands was considered to have got off lightly. The return journey was much less hazardous, providing. of course. one ignored the advice of some wit in the belfry who shouted up that the quickest way down was to 'shut one's eyes and walk about!'
Walter, who, as he rightly said, had ' never bin up there for some yurs now: had an arrangement with the local joiner, whereby the latter would replace broken stays at three days' noiice. Now wise to the procedure, the joiner kept a supply of stays an hand and had a posse of men well trained in handling the steps and the trapdoors. On being questioned by the treasurer of the Church Council as to the excessive cost of replacing a stay he pointed out that the time spent could be itemised as follows:

To replacing broken stay
$\frac{1}{4} \mathrm{hr}$.
To fixing steps. opening trapdoors. clearing debris in order to reach the stay. closing trapdoors after replacing stay, and replacing steps after closing trapuloor
$2 \frac{1}{4}$ hrs.
Total $2 \frac{1}{2} \mathrm{hrs}$.
Seeing that the whole operation usually entailed the services of two men and a boy, the breaking of a stay at Netherton was a costly business
Walter therefore felt he was on a pretty good thing when he spoke of the condition of the bells. Bellringers. however, are quite futhless.
-That's all right, said Raymond cheerfully. Ill bring Donald Russell over and we'll go over them: clean the lot out, check em. lighten all the nuts and grease 'em, same as we did at Wadsworth last year, and he grinned encouragingly at Walter

Walter looked as if he didn't know whether the offer of putting the bells and the bell chamber in some semblance of order was worth the trouble he would have to undergo in making preparations for the contest.

Perhaps," he pleaded, in order to gain a little time in which to consider the latest development. : there is some other tower with more suitable bells that would like io hold the contest?' and he peered hopefully around.

Everybody looked at one another

Many of the towers represented were automatically excluded as they were contemplating entering a team. and the rules clearly stated that no ringer was allowed to ring a contest held in his own tower. Of the others, some were on the outer fringe of the Guild area. which made ihen undesirable owing to the distance that certain teams would have 10 travel. whilst the bells of others. like Harmsley and Undercliffe, were not really suitable for contest ringing. Several other towers were suggested, discussed and, for various reasons, one by one eliminated. Walter felt the circle sarrowing If he had to accept the ine vitable at least he was determined. he told himself. to accep: it with good grace. giving the im. pression (he hoped) that it was not the inevitable he was accepting.

Time is short gentlemen, he said, standing up and facing his tormentors bravely, 'and to cut short the discussion it would give me great pleasure to extend to the Goild an invitation to hold the annual shield contest at Netherton,' and he sit down with patient resignation.

Gentlemen, said John Chappell sentiently, as though the passibility of a contest at Netherton was something that had never. until that moment, entered his mind. "you have all heard what our good friend Walter has had to say. In view of this generous offer I have great pleasure in moving that we hold our annual shield contest at Netherton.'
This was duly seconded-not this time by Walter-and there being, rather surprisingly, no counter proposition was passed uninimously

The meeting closed shortly afterwards and the ringers made their way round to the tower door. On his way there Joe was overtaken by Raymond.

Thanks for helping me out,' he said to Joe. It would have been all over if you hadn't spoken.'

That's all right. Raymond." esplizd Joe. - Anyway, it's to our advantage: Hexworth were always better than Redbank at rising and falling.'

They both laughed. Then R tymond became serious. He stood on one side to allow Joe to enter the belfry door.

Yes.' he said, as the bells above began to peal out. 'it will be a good thing for Redbank. We shall have to pay some attention to rising and falling if the contest includes it. We must be one of the mosi slovenly teams in the Guild at this subject. Yes, it will be a good thing.
'So long as the modern generation.' thought Joe to himself. 'can produce lads like Raymond. there isn't much wrong with it after all!"

OBITUARY

MR. A. KING

AN APPRECIATION

Alfred King, whose death occurred on December 19th, was known to ringers in all parts of the British isles.
A man of unimpeachable integrity, friendly and sincere, he possessed the ability to express fimiself with remarkable clarity, and will be long remembered by his many friends.
As a ringer he was an excellent bellhandler, and rang a great variety of methods. Possessing great natural gifts, he would have distinguished himself in any field of activity. and it was a happy day for bellringing in Bedfordshire and particularly at Luton Parish Church, when, 60 years ago, he became interested in the art of change ringing. His great energy and enthusiasm in those early years did much to further the cause of campanology. He served Luton Parish Church faithfully for 60 years, during which time he was a most regular attender and always punctual. He was for 45 years the tower secretary.
He joined the Bedfordshire Association in 1903. and in 1920 was elected a vice-president. a position he held for the remainder of his life. He was secretary of the Luton District for eight years, and for 16 years he served the Association as a Central Council representative.
Mr. King considered Sunday service ringing his first duty, and always lived up to this ideal. whilst on practice nights he was ever helpful and considerate to those who lacked his ability and experience. He also enjoyed an occasional peal, and his great versatility is shown in the following list of his peals:
Minor. 4 methods 1. 7 methods 1.
Triples.-Gnandsire 9 (conducted 6), Stedman 16.

Maior.-Plain Bob 7 (3), Little Bob 1, Kent T.B. 5 (2). Oxford T.B. 1. Double Narwich 13. Cambridge Surprise 7, Superlative S. 4, Bristol S 1. London S. 1.
Caters.-Grandsire 1, Stedman 4.

Royal-Plain Bob 2, Kent T.B. 1. Camhridge Surprise 2.

Total 79 (11).

MR. A. E. PARSONS

AN APPRECIATION
The following appreciation is received of Mr. A. E. Parsons, of Staveley, Derbyshire :

- Having served God and his church for many years in the work of a bellringer and sidesman. Mr. A. E. Parsons is sadly missed He was always in his place, especially in the belfry until prevented by ill-health, and his capabilities and willingness to teach others will make his place difficult to fill 'A muffled peal was attempted to his memory, but unfortunately was lost after an hour's good ringing. We all pray that he has found rest in God's eternal home. along with his wife who died only ten weeks ago.'

HEREFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

A very successful and enjoyable annual meeting of the Kington District was held at Weobley on January fith, where the ages of those present ranged from 11 to 82 years. The afternoon's ringing was followed by the Guild's form of service. conducted by the Rev. H. T Rooke (Vicar), with Mrs. Rooke as organist.

After tea, the business meeting was held at the Vicarage, with the Vicar in the chair. The secretary (Mr. Jabez Preece) reported a successful yzar, with increased membership and good attendances at meetings. Four peals and three quarter peals had been rung in the District. Four members qualified for certificates for full membership. The District officers were re-elected, the secretary starting fis 38 th year in office. Next meeting. Old Radnor. April 28th; monthly practice. Dilwyn, i.) March.

More ringers arrived during the evening and at one time about 40 were gathered in the tower. A short touch was rung by a ladies' team

Is this the answer to ensuring a future band in a tower? Ai Spalding within the last 10 months no fewer than five babjes have arrived to members of the tower, but with one boy and four girls will it be under petticoat government," Perhaps someone who keeps records will tell us if this is one?
Silver wedding bells were to be heard at Ringwood. Hants. on January 20 th in honour of the $2 \sin$ anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. F. J Marshallsay.
With a peal of Triples at Cannock, Staffs, Mr Peter J. Barker completed Grandsire from Doubles to Cinques. It is unusual to meet a ringer who reserves Triples for the last peal of the family.
Another Australian compliment-Walkerville Surp:ise Major. This was rung at Quedgeley. Glos, on January 20th and in it participated the South Australian, Brian Cox. The composition of the peal was the same as that for Turramurra Surprise, which appeared in the 'R.W.' of October 13 th Last (page 692).
At Claybrooke. Leics, a peal of Claybrooke Surprise Major was rung on January 13th. I ast December, hecause of a Jate start owing to trouble with the conductor's car, a third of the pal was rung. This time everybody arrived on time, and apart from a few minor slips the peal progressed smoothly.
There will be no more ringing at Kingsclere, Hants, until, it is expected, just before Easter. The bells are now dismantled, to be rehung on ball bearings. The frame is also to be stiffened up and the ring augmented to eight by the addition of two new trebles. When the usual Thursday practice is resumed, visitors will be very welcome.
The parish of Staifold, Hitchin, was fortunate when the Rev. Mr. Bullock was inducted to the living last October, as he and his son and daughter are keen ringers. After an inspection by the bell founders (Messrs. John Taylor and Co.) at very short notice, the bells were rung for Christmas after a lapse of over nine years. Mr. Philip Mehew reports that learners are now being taught.

BELFRY GOSSIP

 Fenner. who has recently received al cheque for tion from worshippers and friends at Mayfield Parish Church. Sussex, as an appreciation of Jong and faithful service. This ircludes 75 years in the choir, 56 years as a bellringer and 48 years as parish clerk. The Chichester Diocesan Leaflet comments: This may well be a record.We hear of signs of progress in West Cumberkind. A Surprise prictice was held at W'orking:on last Saturday.
We are asked to correct a statement regarding the captaincy of Godalming tower. The captain is Supt. R. J. S. Hugley.
The announcement recently that Brian Cox was on his way back to Australia is premature. We learn that he is returning at the end of February.
The peal rung at Warsop, Notts, on December 15th and printed on page 11 (' R.W. January 5 th) was rung for the Southwell Diocesan Guild.
There was a happy gathering after the peal at Loddoil. Norfolk, on January 13 th in honour of the engagement of Tony Roberts and Janel M. Copling. The engaged couple and Mrs. Copling kindly provided refreshments.
For many years a ringer in the D.stford District of Kent, Mr. John Wheadon celebrated his 90th birthday on January 4th. Several years ago, he moved to his son's tome at Wilmslow, Cheshire. Mr. Wheadon's cheerful and unobitrusive manner has led to his making a large number of friends in this District. Mrs. Wheadon was 89 in December. A highlight of the Bristol University dinner last Saturday was the presentation of a cheque for $£ 5$ to Mr. Ralph G. Edwards by Mr. A. Patrick Cannon in settlement of the bet regarding the ringing of St. George's. Bristol, tenor to a peal. Might we suggest that the cheque to a peal. Might we suggest that the cheque The Ringing World.' An appropriate heading would be "The King is dead, long live the King.'

ARE WE RECEDING?

IS the number of bellringers in the service of the Church receding? The question is prompted by the figures The Ringing World ' published last week. culled from 'Facts and Figures' relating to the Church of England for the year ending December 31st, 1958. These parochial returns for the Provinces of Canterbury and York give the total number of ringers at 42,446 . A return compiled two years previously gave a total of 46,848 ; in other words there was a decline of over 4,000 .
The ringers the Central Council of Church Bell Ringers are concerned with are those who ring for the services of the Church Sunday by Sunday and are in membership with a Guild or Association affiliated to them. The man chiming or 'clocking' the bell Sunday by Sunday is not classified by us as a ringer. There are 17.986 parochial churches in the two provinces, while the number of churches possessing a ring of five or more bells is slightly over 5,200 (we shall have a more precise figure when the new Dove's is published). It can be assumed, therefore, that there are a number of solitary ringers included in the return, and those capable of ringing, say, rounds would not total more than 35,000 . On the other hand there are a number of ringers who would have escaped this census when it was taken by local clergy-those not connected with a particular church, and probably those in universities and colleges who while giving their services at different churches might not be absorbed into the full parochial life of a parish. There are also those belonging to the Roman Catholic Church and Nonconformists.

The Central Council has not since the last war published any figures relating to the strength of affiliated Societies. From time to time the paid-up membership of a Guild or Society is published in the annual report, and although the Exercise is statistically-minded as regards the type of peals rung, there is no endeavour to check membership. Could it be that they are warned by the punishment that befell David, as recorded in the Old Testament, when he had a census of the people?
Some might say that the figures the Church of England has published are of no value; that there are too many uncertain elements in the return. For example, out of the 42,446 ringers 8,219 are classified as paid. The writer is classified as a 'paid' ringer. The Parochial Church Council of his church has for years paid 15 gns. to its ringers. This sum and more is spent on an annual supper to ringers, their wives and ringing and church friends. We feel certain that there are many others who are so classified, and they are quite different from the man who gets $£ 3$ or $£ 5$ a year for ringing the single bell for service. Another unusual thing is the big increase in the number of paid ringers-from 4,979 to 8,219 . The report gives the impression that one in five of those who ring on Sundays are professionals. But then there are at least 10,000 churches without a ring of bells, and many of the 8,000 paid might be working on their own.

A question frequently addressed to the Editor is the number of women ringers. The return gives 9,618 , and while the total number of ringers has declined the number of women ringers in the two years has increased by 336. This points to the fact that more women are becoming interested in ringing; but they are not more than a quarter of the total number of ringers.
As to individual totals of dioceses, the largest is Exeter with 2,811 ringers. This number is divided between two organisations, the Guild of Devonshire Ringers and the Devon Association. Next comes the Oxford Diocese with 2,608 ringers. The Oxford Diocesan Guild has never claimed in recent years to have a membership of 2,000 , but it has been estimated at between 1,600 and 1,800 . Another very high one is the Bath and Wells with 2,389 , and the membership of that Association is round about the same as the Oxford Diocesan Guild.

While it is difficult to give a true comparison concerning the Kent County Association as it serves three dioceses, something useful may be gained. The Canterbury Diocese has 1,322 ringers and the Rochester Diocese 753, giving a total of 2,075 . There is also a part of Kent in the Southwark Diocese and part of Canterbury in Surrey. Kent County Association just tops the thousand mark as regards membership, so it seems evident that there are still prospects for recruiting.
There are, however, a number of ringing Societies that impose a qualification for membership, such as ability to ring a 720 or even a quarter peal. The Yorkshire Association is one of these, and its area embraces the three Ridings into which the county is divided for administrative purposes. The C. of E. return for the dioceses in the county is York 888. Bradford 248, Ripon 411, Sheffield 351 and Wakefield 499 , making a total of 2,397 . The Yorkshire Association has a membership round about the thousand mark, indicating a wide difference. It must not be forgotten that there are at least six other territorial Associations in the county of broad acres, where membership conditions are not so stringent and activities are more local in character.
'Facts and Figures' is a mine of information for those who love statistics. There are tables on almost every conceivable subject connected with the Church of England. Two things, however, seemed lacking - the number of clergy of the Church who are change-ringers and the number of change-ringers. There is a differentiation between organists and choirmasters: why not with ringers-those who ring and those who toll the bell?

BRISTOL UNIVERSITY SOCIETY AT DINNER

1'HE annual dinner and reunion of the Bristol University Society, held in the enior Common Room of the University on Senior Common Room of the University on by 121 past and present members and friends The president (Dr. R. J. Brocklehurst) had sitting on his right the Bishop of Bristol (the Rt. Rev. O. S. Tomkins) and on his left the Master (Mr. Ian C. Maycock). During the meal the Master took wine with Past Masters present, and these included Miss Pat Bourn. Messrs. lvor Trueman, David Marshall, David Hejghton, John Baldwin, Roy Blackler and Patrick I. Bird. Later Miss Judith Atkinson, the secretary, paid a similar compliment to her predecessors in office. These present were the Misses Jane Cook and Mary Bliss. Messrs lan Maycock. P. I. Bird. D. Heighton, M Sprackling, Brian Wylde and C. Blundell.
The toasts of "The Queen " and "The Churoh were honoured on the call of the president. As this was the first time the Bishop had attended a dinner of the Society he acceded to a request to speak.

The Bishop confessed that he knew nothing of the theory or art they practised. He only once had to handle a bell гope that might the regarded as dangerous, when he was dedicating two sets of bells in the adjoining parishes of Minty and Oaksey. On that occasion a man was standing by to make sure that nothing went wrong.
The Bishop said he could speak with appreciation for those who listened and for the parishioners who. without their service, would neglect the heritage they had. He thanked the members of the University Society for their service-for mingling with the ringers of the parishes and restoring enthusiasm in parishes where it had grown weak.

In a happy speech the secretary proposed The Visitors.' She expressed her appreciation of the presence of the Bishop, for sparing the time 10 be with them after his return from the World Council of Churches in Delhi. She introduced Mr. T. W. White as 'that strange person who adds footnotes to difficult correspondence in "The Ringing World."

In a welcome to Mr. A. Bennett. who, she said, was hardly a visitor. she commented that they were inviting him in his new capacity as Master. Vic Perrins, as secretary of the Bristol City Branch. was also greeted and there was ia "thank you' for Dr. Hudson, in standing in for the Rector of St. Michael's (the Rev. V. Jones) and giving the address at the service.
While the Masters of Oxford and Cambridge Universities were unible to be with them they welcomed the Masters of London, Southampton, Liverpool (for the first time), Nottingham and Birmingham. She thought their week-end tour in Wiltshire and Dorset last term was a great success, although it seemed to have rained solidly the whole time.
The company included many Bristol City ringers and Miss Atkinson mentioned how very fortunate they were to have their help and support. 'The greatest advantage of belonging to their Society," she said, "is that not only are there so many towers in and around to which we can go but also that we always feel welcome wherever we go. Many of the city ringers gave up much of their time to helping us and Albert Tyler, in particular, is always ready with advice and helpful suggestions. Without their help many of the Society's achievements would not have been possible.
A DEBT TO THE UNIVERSITY SOCIETIES
Mr. T. W. White, who replied, reminded the company of the debt the Exercise, as a whole. owed to the old University Societies. It was from men who advanced-some learned their ringing as members of the University Societres-that great territorial and Diocesan Societies, with over 1.000 members, originally stemmed in that period of the dato seventies and eighties. Among the founders were Canon Du Boulay Hill, Winchester Guild: Mr. Philott and the Rev. C. P. D. Davies, Gloucester and Bristol Association: C. W. H. Griffiths. Bath and Wells: that almost legendary figure, Father Robinson, the Oxford Diocesan Guild; the Troyte family, the Guild of Devonshire Ringers, and also a Troyte in the early years of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild. These played a noble part in the creation of organised ringing societies in their areas and in bringing about belfry reforms. From Cambridge University there also came outstanding personalities, like the Rev. H. Law James. the first Master of the Rev. H. Law James. the
There were three ways in particular that the Universily Societies of this day and generation had made their great contribution. Mr. White cited first the missionary enterprise of Miss Enid Lloyd Roberts, a former Master of their Society in South Australia. and the reward oi her instruction at Adelaide Cathedral. They looked to members to act as missionaries, both in this country and overseas Another was in the matter of teaching. Mr A. York-Bramble had brought out new ideas and new terms in regard to neaching through the College of Campanology, and while a number did not see eye to eye with him it had a stimulating effect on the territorial guilds and associations, and also on the Central Council. It must not be assumed that these associations had done nothing about organised teaching. as both the Bath and Wells and the Lancashire Association had their own handbooks. and some Guilds special instructors, but the result was that very much more thought was given to the subject and weekend and day courses have been held in different parts of the country.
The big drive to increase Sunday service ringing mainly originated from a groun of University members. The prepuration of the Survey was no light undertaking and in that direction the work of Mr. Philip Gray was very valuable

GRAND LOT OF PEOPLE

The Master of the newly-founded Liverpool Society, Mr. Peter Bennett. proposed the toast of 'The Bristol University Society.' He wished to say what a grand lot the members were, and he only hoped that the Liverpool University Society would be like them in 20 years' time. Mr. Ian Maycock, the Master, replied to the toast. He said that from last year's dinner the Society continued to make progress for the rest of the academic year. In July they lost three ringers who formed the backbone of the Society and included the only two who could be called conductors. In October they had four new ringers and some learners so that numbers were about equal. Last year everybody improved except in striking.
Throughout the year they had always rung at St. Michael's for Sunday services and also for a lot of Supday services at Ohrist Church. It was hoped that the ringing at Christ Church would improve their eight- and ten-hell striking. They had attempted a lot of quarter peals. but had scored a fair number of hem
Since the last dinner day the Society had rung seven peals-six in Minor and Stedman Cinques. In these there were four furst peals and two firsts as conductors. The only service ringing he had not mentioned was at the Cathedral. where they were allowed to ring for University services.
They had held two cycle and coach outings and a combined outing with Southampton University. The summer tour was held in the Wye Valley. As to the activities of Cupid Cupid $V$ had been elected and was working very hard. He wished to congratulate. on their engagements. Christopher Tyndale-Biscoe and Dorothy Stafford. Edward Mould and Christine Collett. Michael Austin and Wendy Evans, also Pat Bird and Mary Clarke on their marriage and Alan and Pauline Smith on the birth of a daughter
The dinner was preceded by the annusi service, held at St. Michael's Church. The singing was led by a choir of past and present members and the service was conducted by the Vicar. the Rev. Vivian Jones, Dr. G. Hudson gave the address. A full programme of ringing was arranged on the Saturday and Sunday.

Cumberlands Increase Steepleage

1 N extremely successful meeting was enjoyed by the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths when members met for their annual neeting at St. Martin-in-the-Fields on JanLary 20 th.
During the afternoon the bells of St. John's, Waterloo Road. and St. Giles-in-the-Fields were heard to some very good ringing, and both towers were crowded to the door.
After some 50 people had enjoyed the tea provided by the canteen at St. Martin's the members assembled at the Vestry Hall for the business meeting.
In his opening remarks, the Master, Mr. D. Beresford, welcomed the large gathering present and expressed the hope that the business would be carried out as smoothly as the fternoon's ringing.
The, secretary (Mr. F. J. Mathews), in his report, said that the Society had lost three members through death during the past year: Mr. L. Baybutt, who, though residing in India for many years, had at one time heen a regular member of the St. Martin's band and a member of the Society for 36 years, Mr. T. Newman. also a member of the band at St. Martin's and of the Society for 42 years. and Mr. B. Cornell. of St. Albans, also a member for many years

SEVEN PEALS

Eleven new members, however, were elected during the last year against 16 in the previous 12 months, and although only seven peals had been rung in the year they included two - firsts' far the Society, that of Pudsey Royal and Glasgow, and a large number for individual members. The peal list was: Eight Spliced Major (Gravesend), four Spliced Major (Erith). Yorkshire Royal (Bedford). Stedman Triples (Erith), Pudsey Royal (Reading). Glasgow Major (Great Baddow) and London Major (Caythorpe).

Quarterly meetings of last year were held at Waterloo Road and Westminster in April. Mortlake and Putney in July, Southgate in September, and at Cripplegate and Bishopsgate in company with the Middlesex County Association.
Owing to continued jnactivity at St . Martin's, practices had been held at other towers every week during the year. The progress of the band had been maintained and the number of methods now rung successfully and the high quality of the striking were the subject of very favourable comment in other dinging circles.
The Master and the secretary had visited the British Museum in December, 1961, to investigate the possibility of rewriting the history of the Society. The matter was still in hand.

The treasurer had to report a slight loss over the year and although the expenses in question were non-recurrent it was felt that an increase in revenue was desired, in view of the possible cost of the projected republication of the history. At the previous annual general meeting notice was given of the possibility of raising the steepleage charge to 6 d .. and this resolution was again taken up when it was put 10 the members. It was passed to take effect immediately

MASTER RE-ELECTED

The officers of the Society elected at the meeting were as follows: Master. Mr. D.
Heresford: honorary secretary, Mr. F. J. Matthews : senjor steward, Miss D. Deverell junior steward. Mr. P. Beresford; Irustees, Messrs. T. H. Francis and P. Beresford: the duties of dinner secretary to be vested in the honorary secretary Quarterly meetings for the coming year would be held on April 14th. July 14th and September 15 th, the venues to be decided.

A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr . E. A. Barnett to the ladies. for their exccilent Ica, and the Master recorded his thanks to the incumbents of St. John's. Waterloo Road. and St. Giles-in-the-Fields for the use of the bells, and the Vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields for the lue of the hall for the meeting.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE CHRISTMAS BROADCAST

Dear Sir,-It would appear from "The Ringing World' and conversations with various ringers that, so far as the quatity of the ringing was concerned, there was little 10 complain about. The same also applies to the previous year's broadcast.

Although the programme in past years has included excellent ringing there is no doubt that. taken as a whole, the last two broadcasts have been better, with an absence of bad ringing, a longer time (more than double) on the air for each tower, and improved presentation by the B.B.C. This has been achieved by co-operation and hard work by the bands concerned, members of the broidcasting committee and the B.B.C
It is right and helpful to all concerned that singers should express their views on this subject in . The Ringing World, and it is understandable that disappointment should be expressed that no six-bell tower was included in 1691.

I have no wish to anticipate the report of the T.V. and Broadcasting Committee, but the misrepresentations of Mr. E. L. Humphriss should not go unchallenged.

As the North Regional representative, I was consulted by the B.B.C. as regards a tower to represent the North Region and was asked fo- an opinion of Woolton bells and band. My reply included the following points :
(1) The Northern section of the Region (Durham and Newcastle area) was due for consideration.
(2) There was a desire for a six-bell tower to be represented, as about half the rings of beils in the British Isles are rings of six.
(3) An impartial and favourable report on Woolton bells and ringing.
In making their final choice of tower the B.B.C. have to take into account many factors, some unknown to us, but I have no doubt that they will note sympathetically the requests for six-bell towers to be represented in the future.
Being an interested party. Mr. Humphriss would have done better not to criticise the B.B.C. and other towers which took part in the broadcast, nor to pose as an adviser to the clergy as to how to fill their churches.
If all the churches with six or more bells took turns to broadcast on Christmas Day, each church's turn would only come round about once every 800 years. I understand that several of Woolton's ringers have broadcast from Liverpool at least once hefore so that in this respect Mr. Humphriss has heen a little greedy.
The idea that the fee for broadcasting is an attraction is a new one, and one which apparently has so far only occurred to Mr. Humphriss.-Yours. etc.,

NORMAN CHADDOCK.
Rotherham, Yorkshire.

108 PAID 2s.

Dear Sir.-At the last meeting at Ospringe, in the Canterbury District, 108 members atlended tea, mostly paying 2 s . in advance; those who sent their numbers only, paid at the tea lable and were not turned away without their tea. This does not look as if the meetings in the Canterbury District are diminishing in numbers.
I wonder if the ringers in Cheshire have to give free leas to get enough members to ring. -Yours faithfully.
F. C. FARNSWORTH, secretary.
Orpringe Ringers.

PAYMENT IN ADVANCE

Dear Sir ,-The correspondence columns of our journal. 'The Ringing World,' often contains some fairly good specimens of nonsense, but surely the effusions over the signature of H. David Holland, Sale, Cheshire, in your issue oi January 26th, must rank above all others in the realm of ridiculous piffle.
It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Holland attended the tea provided for a meeting of the Preston Branch of the Lancashire Association. They wene instantly provided with an unlimited supply of meat and potato pie, cakes and pastries, accompanied by ' $x$ ' cups of tea, and they were not even asked to contribute a single penny towards the cost of such a delectable feast.
Later Mr. Holland reads the advertisement of a meeting of the Canterbury District of the Kent County Association, requesting payment of 2 s . in advance from members intendjng to take tea. This advertisement fills $\mathbf{M r}$. Holland with so much amazement and disgust that he is impelled to call the attention of all your readers to the 'unchristianlike, attitude or the Canterbury District, warning the erring men of Kent that he will never attend one of their meetings unless they mend their 'unchristianlike ways, and asserting that the District may be losing members as a result of a misguided policy.
Let me assure Mr. Holland that in Kent we are quite content and well satisfied with the efficiency and Christian spirit of the officers and members of the Canterbury District. The Kent Association 1961 report states that the average attendance at the meetings of this District was 59, excluding the A.G.M., at which the number may be well over 150, and very happy meetings they all are.. The figures hardly indicate that the members are dissatisfied with the arrangements made by their District officers, so why should poor Mr. Holland be filled with disgust-about something which does not concern him at all.
In his disgust and amazement Mr. Holland overlooked the fact that all the notable ringers' societies demand payment beforehand for their annual dinner tickets, that they have done so for years and years. and that they would probably find themselves in a very pretty muddle if they neglected to do so. Mr. Holland overlooked too that the members of an association are entitled to conduct their own affairs in the manner which seems best to them. without incurring uninvited criticism and disparaging terms such as 'unchristian.'
However, it is more than likely that by this time Mr. Holland has realised what a foolish mistake he made in sending such a ridiculous letter to the Press. May I suggest to him that he should keep a sharp lookout on the bookstalls for a little book entitled. How to mind your own business.'-Yours faithfully.

JOHN WILLIS,
Vice-president and Chairman, Kent County Association.

Dear Sir,-I was distressed to read a letter to you from H. David Holland attacking the Canterbury District of the Kent County Association. I consider Mr. Holland must have written it without thought. I have been visiting this area of Kent for many years, and have found the hospitality and kindness of the ringers all over the District extremely generous.
Kent District officials who work hard for our pleasure require all the help that one can give them instead of harsh criticism. and I anticipate that their actions have been taken by agreement with their members. which they will keep or change with experience in the interest of their members. The last time I went to one of their meetings. I found a friend had arranged for and paid for my tea. It is not unchristian to do things for other folk. whether it be free, paid for in part, beforehand or at the time. I would suggest it js, to be smug or to say because you don't agree you won't take part.

1 wonder how a tea can be provided at a moment's notice. My experience is jt takes time and hard work and is not without worry if the number attending is not known.-Yours faithfully,

FRANK B. LUFKIN.

BATHEASTON CHURCH TOWER

Dear Sir,-Readers of 'The Ringing World ' will no doubt have seen reports of a peal rung at Batheaston on December 23rd last year, and also a note in the January 26th issue that these bells were singing again after seven years silence.
This revival of ringing here was short lived and the bells are once again out of order, this time following a serious fire on the evening of January 20th, which gutted the ringing chamber (taking with it the peal boards recording the other seven peals rung here between 1907 and 1937), and the clock room above. The firemen did a wonderful job in difficult circumstances and managed to save the bells, frame and timber supports.
This has come as a bitter blow to the band at Twerton, who had spent many evenings working on the bells making them safe to be rung again and then. following inspections of both tower and bells, had begun to teach some locals to handle the bells. The hells do not go very well although on ball bearings. as they are hung in the lop of a tall lower which rocks like a ship at sea and causes the bells to drop.

There is one thing, we are by no means beaten and will try once again after conditions are made safe, after which visiting ringers will, I know, be made most welcome to come and sample this ring.-Yours sincerely, ALAN F. LEE (Bath Branch Secretary).
Twerton-on-Avon.

THE PEAL AT PEWSEY

Dear Sir,-As one of the band who rang the peal of Minor at Pewsey, I should like to point out to Mr. Price ('R.W.' page 53) that this peal was tung with the knowledge and approval both of the Jocal band and the Rector of the parish. As has already been stated. one of the members of the band is also a member of the local band.-Yours faithfully.
Bristol.
S. M. J. YOUNG.

OFFER OF RECORDING

Dear Sir.-Last Whit Monday morning I made a tape recording of the first half hour of the peal of Spliced Surprise Major in five methods rung silent and non-conducted. If any ringer would like a copy I would be pleased to oblige.-Yours faithfully.

ERYRI NOT A SURPRISE METHOD

Dear Sir,-Congratulations to Peter Border and the band who rang the peal of Eryri at Birmingham. I have always considered this a very beautiful method (and difficult!), and am very glad to see it has been rung again.
The method, however, should not be termed Surprise.' The treble has a double-dodging hunt, so it is not in the Surprise class. What is wanted is a new class name, but nobody as yet has produced one which can hold its owil against the name 'Surprise': and the class which includes Eryri thas a longer lead and could therefore include more complex methods. I would suggest 'Double Surprise,' though I can see obvious objections Readers might be interested to hear a little about the method. It is an extension of Bristol. Bankes James produced Bristol, and Eryri as a curiosity. He gave it its peculiar name (he was a Welshman); but as he never thought it would be rung, and was too false to get a 5,000 with normal courses only. he never tried to produce a composition. The Oxhey band. under George R. Price, practised it before World War I; they could not get a composition and rever seem to have thought of applying to Bankes James for one.
In 1935 Harold Cashmore obtained his peal by parting the tenors in one course. The peal was rung at Bushey at. I believe, the third attempt, in November. 1935.
It was rung and published as "Eryri Major.' Bunkes James has very pleased at its revival and thoroughly agreed that it sloould not be called 'Surprise,' and I am sure his opinion should be respected
The definition of Surprise which we now use was due to him. It now seems simple to us: but some sixty years ago the best brains of the Exercise could not think out a definition which would include the then known and accepted "Surprise" methods, London, Cambridge and Superlative. Only Bankes James had thought it out for himself and was producing regukar methods. Others were turning out the sort. of thing one can find in the and of Corrigan's Collection under 'Irregular Methody' and calling them 'Surprise,' None of them are, and most of them are horrors.

I have a composition by Bankes James of a peal of Eryri and Bristol, spliced in full courses, about half of each. He sent it suggesting we should ring it in hand '! It has not been rung: if anyone wants to go for it I will willingly send it.-Yours, etc.

LEICESTER DIOCESAN GUILD  Melton District

The Melton Mowbray's annual District meeting was purposely arranged for Asfordby Parish Church ( 6 bells) instead of Melton, in order to attract five- and six-bell ringers, but only about 30 members attended. Nevertheless. a good variety of methods were rung before the service. conducted by the Rector.

Owing to the retirement of the chairman and secretary, it was necessary at the business meeting, which followed tea, to elect new officers. Mr. $\mathbb{F}$. Williams is the new chairman and Mrs. M. Stimson the honorary secretary. Elected to the committee were Messrs. T. Templeton and R. Cook. Miss B. Smith and Mrs. D. Day were appointed to the Entertainment Committec. Grateful thanks were extended to Mr. R. Manton and Mr. Templeton, the retising chairman, and secretary, for their services to the District

Various other matters were discussed before the meeting adjourned to the tower.

AN APPEAL FROM WESTERN AUSTRALIA

The following letter has been received by the Master of the Ancient Society of College Youths from the Rev. Leslie J. Evans. St. Aidan's Rectory, 5, Camberwell Street. Eas Victoria Park. Western Australia.
Dear Sir, - I have been in Western Australia for the past six years. during which time I have tried, unsuccessfully, to procure a set of handbells for the parish youth.

These bells are not obtainable in this country. I have also tried to obtain them through the medium of "The Church Times" and 'The Church of England Newspaper,' but with no avail.
I read about your Society, a few days ago, in H. V. Morton's "Ghosts of London." and felt that. if anybody could help us, you could.

We would very much appreciate a set of handbells as a gift if anyone was so inclined. Alternatively, we would be prepared to pay a reasonable amount for a second-hand set.
This is a surburban artisan parish of approximately 1,600 Anglican families, about three miles from the centre of the city of Perth, Western Australia. I work the parish single-handed, but have a good team of lay workers. and come vigarous parish organisa-dions-girls, boys, youths and women

I am sure that handbell ringing would prove to be a very acceptable and profitable activity for the youth of the parish. and having contact with your Ancient Society would be a wonderful link between this parish and the - Old Country.

I trust you will be able to help us in this our need.-Yours faithfully.
Parish Priest. LESLIE J. EVANS,

SURPRISE MINOR NAMES

Dear Sir,-Last year I obtirined cleven Surprise Minor methods, but was told that they have all been rung to peals and renamed. I enclose their motation, wondering if any reader can help me regarding their new names.-Yours faithfully

LINCOLN DIOCESAN GUILD
Although fewer towers were represented than usual, over 80 members and friends attended the annual meeting and dinner of the West Lindsey Branch, held at the Old Hall, Gainsborough, on January $20: h$. Ringing on the bells of the Parish Church preceded the Guild service, which was conducted by the Vicar (Canon J. E. Roberts).

After an excellent dinner, the president took the chair for the business meeting at which the following officers were elected: Canon J. E. Roberts (president), Mr. C. H. Baker (vicepresident). Mr. G. L. A. Lunn (secretary and treasurer), Mr. G. E. Feirn (Ringing Master), Mr. J. M. Blaikie (Guild representative), Messrs. J. M. Blaikie and M. L. Mann (auditors). Mr. M. L. Mann (' Ringing World correspondent)

In his report, the secretary said that the Branch had a piid up membership of 100 , but as the Guild quota had taken the whole of the 4s. subscription. the financial position was not as good as last year. The Ringing Master said that the previous year's level of peal ring ing had not been maintained, and only four pcals had been rung in 1961.
Commenting on the increased Guild quotis levied in 1961, the Guild secretary (Mr. J. Freeman) sitid that consideration would have to be given to increasing the subscription, and the subject would be on the agenda at the annual meeting in April.
The prize-silver cup given by Mr . G. Bingham, in memory of his father, for 50 years a ringer at Willingham-was much admired. It was agreed that representatives from each tower should meet and discuss with Branch officers the basis on which the cup should be awarded.

Six new members wers elected, and the meeting paid tribute 10 the memory of Messrs. G. Hudson. C. Hooten and E. W Till. who had died during the year. Meetings arranged for 1962 wers March 3rd. Union May 1913. Epworth: July 21st. Broughton Sepiember 29th. Haxev: November 19th. Blyton. It was also decided that the Branch outing should be to Oxford on July 14th.
The rest of the evening was devoted 10 party games and dancing, under the direction of Messrs. D. G. Crosby and H. Dove, who also assisted Misses K. Yardley, P. Cox and Mr. R. Croshy in humorous sketches, which were much enjoyed.

AN UNUSUAL PEAL-IN AN UNUSUAL TOWER

The 13 th century Church of SS. Peter and Paul. Rothersthorpe. some four miles from Northampton. was the scene of an unusual paal in the saddle-back tower on the festival of the Conversion of St. Paul-which coincided with the enthronement of Dr. Cyril Eastaugh as the new Bishop of Peterborough
In honour of the festival it was decided $t 0$ ring St. Paul's Doubles, and also because the church partly dedicated to St. Paul Graham C. Paul was given the chance to make this the occasion for his first peal as a conductor.

Graham (son of a ringer father) carried the job through in masterly style; half-way came up in the quick time of 1 hour 11 minutesthe tapping going like clockwork, and both the tenorman and fourth were having to work to keep the pace and ensure even strik ing. This was the quickest peal on the bells (2 hours 24 minutes) and afterwards there were handshakes for Graham
The bells are a comparatively modern five, by Gillett and Johnston. made on their five-toned principle, in 1914. They ware made from the metal of four larger bells which had done service in the tower since 1638. and had a tenar of 14 cwt . The present tenor is 11 cwt 3 qr. 14 lb

MR. ALFRED HAZZARD

Members of the Chew Deanery of the Bath and Wells Association learned with much sorrow that Alfred Hazzard (lovingly known by all as "Laddic") had been called to higher service on January 18th. He was 58 years of age.
Apart from being a loyal bellringer. Which art he learnt at Tickenham and continued at his home tower of Winford. he was a devoted worker for the church, serving Winford for four years as churchwarden, and not easy ones at that. owing to the long illness and subsequent death of the late Vicar. "Laddie carried on unselfishly even during his own 15 months of illness.

Reference was made to this unselfish devotion to duty by the Rev. H. T. Bennett. of Chew Stoke, in his address at the memorial service.
The service was conducted by Reader Roberts, from Bristol, and the lessons were read by Mr. Waterman and Reader H. A. Price (Yatton).
Prior to the service the bells were rung half-muffled by ringers from Winford, Wrington, Chew Magna. Farmborough, Yatton, Kewstoke, Nailsea, Wraxall, Long Ashton. Our sympathy is with his widow and daughter and son-in-law.

MR. RICHARD FRANCIS DEAL

It was with a sad heart that I heard of the passing on January 5 th of my old friend, Richazd F. Dzal, after a long illness which he patiently bore, sustained and encouraged by the love and devotion of Mrs. Deal.

I have had the pleasure of knowing the Deals for over 30 years, and have spent many happy ringing hours with them. When first meeting Dick I confess I was taken aback by his bluntness, specially towards youngsters who were not inclined to keep their proper place, but soon found that when one really got to know him he could be most pleasant company.
Countless tales he would tell of old London ringers. when many a delightful hour I spent in his and Mrs. Deal's company, at Kimberley Avenue. where there was always a warm welcome for everyone.
Dick never kept any records of his peal ringing activities, but his peal total must have been considerable, including several long lengths. In all his achievements he gave nothing but his best. On one occasion the was heard to say that he considered he held the record for the number of false long neals as, I believe. he rang, apart from that famous long peal of Stedman Cinques at Southwark Cathedral. several progressive lengths of Treble Bob. all of which were afterwards proved false. Of approximately 50 peals I personally rang with him, two especially come quickly to mind-Cambridge Surprise. Royal quickly to mind-Cambridge Surprise Royal his old friend. Reuben Sanders. on the tenor. end Grandsire Cinques at Saffion Walden when he rang the 11 th.
Although Stedman was his favourite method. he always enjoyed Grandsire Caters and Cinques, and in this field he proved himself of most able composer. His compositions of peals of Grandsire Caters are amongst the hest ever produced. and will no douht he rung as long as this method is practised. He had a long association with the College Youths and St. Paul's. where he was a mem-her for over 30 years. One of his. greatest joys was ringing each Sunday at the Caihedral which he loved so much. When in his prime it was an education to see him ringing the eleventh with so much ease. He was also connecied with ringing at Westminster Abhey and. as is the custom, his body was taken on the evening of January 10th in:o St. George's Chapel, where after a most impressive service. conducted by Canon M . S. Stancliffe, and which was concluded by a course of Siedman Triples 'in hand rung by Messrs. J. Chilcott. M. Chilcott, W. T. Cook and M. P. Moreton, it remained ihroughout the night. It speaks of the esteem in which he was held in ringing circles that up to 60 ringers attended to pay their last respects. The next day we bade the last farewell at a short service in the Crematorium Chapel at the City of London Cemelery, which was conducted by the Rev. G. R. Dunstan. of Westminster Abbey, and which was attended by Mrs. Deal. his son Arthur, and other relatives and friends, amongst whom was Mr. Arthur Barker, who learnt to ring with Dick at Islington many years ago.

On January 20 ih , as a last tribute, the memhers of St. Paul's Cathedral Guild of Ringers rang four courses of Stedman Cinques with the bells half-muffled.
Yes, we in London and Essex will miss him greatly, but although he is no longer with us, he has left many happy and wonderful memories which, to me. will never fade.
J. H. CRAMPION.

AN APPRECIATION

Described by Matthew (Matt) A. Wood, as the young man with the gruff voice,' and so truly named Francis, with a helping hand for deserving and undeserving alike, but most of these have preceded him.
Some of the veterans will miss him NOAH BITTE.

MR. HARRY EDGE

Mr. Harry Edge, who died on January 6th atier a serious illness at the age of 54 , was captain of the Much Wenlock band, secretary of the Bridgnorth Branch of the Hereford Diocesan Guild, and a member of the Shropshire Association.
Harry will be missed by many Midland members as he had a gift for organisation, and his work for the Hereford Guild was beyond praise.

His motto in life was 'What can I do for others. not what can I do for myself. This recognition was in evidence by the large congregation who attended the funeral service on January 10th at Much Wenlock.
Many ringers and fellow employees of the M.E.B. Power Station at Buildwas, where he was employed. were present. together with representatives of the local organisations in vitich he took an active part.
Harry enjoyed his rirging, whether it was a peal or a quarter paal, but ahove all he loved his Sunday service ringing because he loved his church.

May he rest in peace.
H. G. T.

MR. SAMUEL JONFS

The many ringers from all parts of the country who have visited Eccleston to ring on the fine eight bells will remember Mr . Samuel Jones, who invariably met the party and conducted its members to the ringing chamber. His warm welcome could always be taken as a foregone conclusion. For the members of the Chester Diocesan Guild his birthday in December had been an occasion for a peal and a party, and details of such a celebration, some five weeks ago, have already been recorded in these pages. Now he has left us. He died peacefully at his home near the church on January 27 th, aged 93.

At the age of $10, \mathrm{Mr}$. Jones had the misfortune to lose his left hand in an accident, but this did not deter him from joining the Pulford Society of Change Ringers in January, 1885. He was then 17 years of age and three years later he rang the treble to a penl of Minor in seven methods. In 1893 he married and moved to Eccleston, where he attached himself to the band which rang on the six bells in the old church. A few years later this building was demolished to make way for a new church, which was dedicated in 1900 and furnished with the heavy eight now so well known.

When these bells were first used in $1908, \mathrm{Mr}$. Jones became towerkeeper, and in this capacity met most of the well known ringers of the last half century. As his three sons grew up they were taught to ring and in celebration of his 79th birthday Sam rang the fifth at Eccleston in a quarter peal of Grandsire, in which all three sons took part and which was conducted by the eldest-Mr. Sam Jones junior. He rang his last peal at Eccleston on the occasion of his 86 th birthday on December 11 th, 1954 , but continued to ring for services and on practice evenings for several years.
At the funeral service, taken by the Rector, the Rev. E. B. Jones, on January 30th, many present and past members of the village, together with ringers from a wide area. assembled to pay their last respects to one whose name had been synonymous with Eccleston and its bells for so long. As his mortal remains were laid in the churchyard muffled bells rang solemnly from the tower.
J. W. C.

MR. C. WILLSHIRE

We regret to learn that Mr . Charles Willshire. formerly of Guildford, and the oldest past member of the Central Council (1903-1913), died on January 2Ist, two weeks after his 96 th birthday. He was living in Quebec, Canadi, with his daughter.

MR. H. K. WHITE
The death occurred suddenly on January 28th of Mr. H. Keith White, chairman of the Ringing Society of St. Andrew's, East Hagbourne, Berks.

Mr. White had held this office since it was first started 34 years ago, and up until the time of his death was a regular Sunday service ringer at St. Andrew's.
He will be greatly missed at Hagbourne, and also throughout the North Berks Branch of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. L. E.C.

Boston's Crowning Glory

By T. A. Bevis

' Play Uppe, Play Uppe, O Boston Bells'

THREE busy highways bear the traveller to Boston and, no matter which way he approaches, England's most famous church tower will fill his eyes with a stately, incredulous vision. and bid him welcome to a town indelibly written in the illustrious pages of this country's history.

Boston is a port of great renown. Through the courage of fearless men who were fired with those qualities allied to imagination and inspiration, it sent its name across the seas to faraway Australia. The Atlantic Ocean heard it from the lips of those seafaring adventurers, the Puritan emigrants who, in 1630, planted their footsteps in those of the Pilgrim Fathers, and set their course in a westerly direction to found a new Boston-in the State of Massachusetts, U.S.A. The young town far exceeds the old in size and importance, but the latter is for ever a place of pilgrimage for our cousins across the sea.

The heautiful medizval church has a seemingly unusual dedication, honouring St. Botolph, a Saxon monk, whose home was at Iken in Suffolk. A traveller of untiring stamina, both spiritually and physically. Botolph's fame quickly spread throughout the land and his name is even honoured in the wintry Scandinavian wastes. There are about 80 English churches dedicated to him, but none are as breathtakingly fine as that at Boston.

OVERLOOKS ONE-THIRD OF LINCOLNSHIRE
The tower and lantern at first glance resemble the well-known campanile at Bruges, Belgium. Boston's splendid sentinel-502 years of age-thrusts its airy and graceful proportions in poetical symmetry $272 \frac{1}{2}$ feet into the windswept sky and overlooks a third of Lincolnshire, bringing into its domain the triple towers of Lincoln Cathedral. 30 miles away.

Completed in 1460. England's finest lantern tower stands firmly upon foundations 36 feet deep, begun in 1309. The windows of this architectural gem are remarkable in themselves, the west window being one of the largest in the country. High in the heavens, elaborate flying buttresses spring at the elegant lantern, as if to prevent it from floating away.

The tower, of course, is popularly known the world over as 'The Stump,' an unfair and ludicrous title, and in the writer's opinion a slight to the skill and genius of its 14 th and 15 th century builders, who intended their work to convey to the mind a great deal more than that incongruous suggestion. If ever the Gothic flowered in such singular, unrestricted manner, then it blossomed at its best at Boston.

Standing in the middle of the floor within the tower is an inspiration in itself: the searching eye perceives the loftiest stone groining in the land-with the exception of that at Liverpool Cathedral- 137 feet high: the keystone in the centre of the groin is said to weigh more than five tons.

The tower contains 25 bells-not really surprising when one considers that a sentinel such as this will usually lend itself admirably to a carillonneur's talents: strangely, however, Boston has never enjoyed success with its carillons.

Ancient documents reveal that bells have sounded from St. Botolph's Church since the 14th century. Several bells were added to those of medirval origin between 1708-9 to form a ring of eight.
In 1867 a carillon of 36 small bells was installed by Van Aerschodt, a Belgium founder. rut u.ss considered unsatisfactory. Consequently, in 1897 this carillon was melted down to provide four bells for the quarter chimes. It was from this particular carillon that Gillest and Bland. clockmakers of Croydon, designed their first automatic carillon machine. which was soon to fall into disuse.

THE 1931 AUGMENTATION
At the time of the Great Restoration in 1931. 12 bells had a home in the tower, eight of which were ringable, with a tenor weighing 28 cwt . and four activated by the clock. It was decided at the time of this expensive andertaking to augment the ring by adding a pair of trebles together with the subsequent recasting of other bells by Messrs. J. Taylor, of Loughborough. the new ring of ten having a tenor turning the scales at 21 cwt . 1 qr .10 lb . in the key of E flat. At the same time the clock bells were recast. hours being sounded on the tenor of the ring.
The treble is inscribed: "Play Uppe. Play Uppe. O Boston Bells,' and the second comes out with • Ring Out The False, Ring In The True.' At the rear the tenor informs the inquire: that -This peal of 10 bells was cast from the former peal of eight at the joint expense of the people of Boston. Mass., U.S.A.: and Boston, Lincs. Most appropriately it bears two shields on which appear the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes respectively (the stripes located in the wrong side of the stars). This American flavour is a fitting testimony to the generosity of our brethren across the sea. When pians were in the process of being draun up for the renovation of the tower it was naturally understandable that donations to speed that prodigious lask be invited from Boston's twin in the United States.
How did the New World respond? Under the efficient and enthusiastic leadership of Allan Forbes, chairman' of the Restoration Committee of Boston. Mass, a magnificent response built up a fund to the final sune of $$ 50.000$. that amount being carried to the Old Town Restoration Committee by representative of the American Committec.

THE NEW CARILLON
In 1951, I1 hells were added to the four clock bells to form a new carillon. which is housed in a steel frame among the bells hung for ringing. The 15 smaller bells played tunes five times a day at 3 -hourly intervals, and were synchronised with an electric clock, installed in 1933. They are fitted with an electropneumatic playing apparatus situated in the church library, this operated either by a music-roll player or from a keyboard. The apparatus is not in use at the present time.
Boston's second carillon was provided by a bequest of the late Councillor Mrs. E. I. Mawer. and was cast at Loughborough. Mr. W. E. Clarke. captain of the ringers, thas rung the bells at St . Botolph's since 1932 , and he has one ambition. to ring three peals more in order to 'circle' the tower.
Mr. Clarke escorted the writer over the incredulous mass of stone and mortar and explained during a tiring climb to the ringing chamber that although young folk were in the process of being trained in the rudiments of campanology. the physical exercise involved in the ascent to the tower was certainly not welcomed by elderly ringers!
The ringing chamber, nearly 140 feet high, is one of the few spaces beloved by ringers which has no windows. It is 24 feet square and has walls 6 feet 4 jnches thick.
Projecting from the centre of the floor is ai egg-shaped dome, being the highest elevation of the lower groining. Through a trapdoor in the "egg, one enjoys (?) a remarkable view of the ground floar far below.
At one time eight beams spanned an area above the ringers heads, lighting heing provided by candles, and the bells hung anticlockwise. Furthermore, by inclining their heads the ringers were able to observe their instruments in action!-not to mention the resultant noise Bobs and singles were displayed by the conductor in the form of hand motions.

The present circle is quite good; nevertheless, three ropes of the ring-raised in a steel frame at a level of 12 feet higher than the original eight-are in-line.

During the removal of those ancient beams a brass tablet came to light which is particudarly interesting for its grammar and spelling:

- 1832. These trees growed at Thirlby near Bousn and pur hup by W. Piket. J. Piket, E. Piket and J. Piket, joiners; J. Paddinson, plummer. The old leams was chestnut and was up near five hundred years.'

PEALS

Twenty-eight peals have materialised on the ten bells and 110 quarter peals have been rung between January 12th, 1933, and June 27th, 1961. Details are given below (quarter peals in parentheses): Grandsire Triples 1 (56). Bob Major 5 (21). Bob Royal 7 (17), Grandsire Caters 3 (11). Stedman Caters 5, Siedman Triples (1), Kent T.B. Royal 2, Kent T.B. Major 1 (3), Cambridge Surprise Royal 3, Yorkshire Surprise Royal 1, Canteihury Pleasure Major (1).
The first peal in the tower is next recorded (all performers have expired). (Hereford singers, carefully observe the final line of footnote!):

Heywood's Transposition of Thurstans. Four-Part.
Believed to be the first peal on the bells and was rung at the 13 th attempt. HEREFORD IS NOTHING TO BOSTON.

Boston Church cannot fail to lend impact upon man's spiritual strength, however unstable -it is so impressive. The fane occupies a personal place in the hearts of men and women the world over, and in that respect it is thereby immortal for it is an image one does not-indeed cannot-forget. And there is always Jean Inglelow's poem of the flood disaster of 1571:

- The old Mayor climbed the belfry tower,

The ringers Jang by two, by three;

- Pull if ye never pulled before;

Good ringers, pull your best," quoth he
"Play uppe, play uppe, O Boston bells!
Play all your changes, all your swells,
Play uppe "The Brides of Enderby '?"

THE SUFFOLK GUILD

Strong comment was made at the annual meeting of the West Central District held at Palgrave on January 20th, that out of a District memhership of 59 only 10 ventured to attend the annual meeting.

Thanks to visitors, the attendance was larger than 10 , and 23 were counted at the service, conducted by the Rector (the Rev. G. Westbrooke). This was followed by an an excelient tea provided by Mrs. Westbrooke and her helpers who, at the opening of the business meeting, were thanked by the chairman (Mr. L. Last).
This attendance problem was very much the theme of the meeting and in conclusion the chairman made these comments on the Suffolk Guild: How can the Guild Commbitee fulfil its functions if it doesn't meet? : get new and active members; use education centres to further knowledge of the art. The officers-Messrs. L. Last (chairman), H. A. Mitson (secretary) and R. E. Lester treasurer)-were re-elected: Messrs. W. S. Girling, E. Cracknell and A. Cook, committee members; R. E. Lester, Guild Committee.

Ringing was at Redgrave and Palgrave in the afternoon and Palgrave and Thrandeston in the evening.

KENT COUNTY ASSOCIATION  Lewisham District

The first quarterly meeting of the year for the Lewisham District of the Kent County Association was held at St. John's. Deptford. on January 27th and was attended by between 60 and 70 members and friends. Ringing was under the leadership of Mr. I. H. Oram. District Ringing Master, and the service was conducted by the Vicar, the Rev. Norman Dunning.

Mr. E. A. Barnett took the chair at the business meeting. where usual matters received consideration. During the course of the meeting 35 new members were elected.

The band who rang in the quarier peal at Arundel in honour of the silver wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk would like to congratulate Mrs. Anne Daughtrey on ringing her first quarter peal. Mrs. Daughtrey has been deaf since childhood and has only recently been taught to ring by her husband, Jack, who is the tower captain. Her two daughters have recently taken up the art and are showing great promise.Miss M. Mills, of 3, Downs Villas, Stebbing, is the new secretary of the Northern District of the Essex Association.

BELFRY

Has any other Association a Malayan member? The Essex Association has elected Miss Chan Low as a probationary member.

Real feelings of regret were felt by the band who attempted the peal at Downton, Wilts, on January 27th in honour of the 80th birthday of Canon C. Carew Cox. The attempt was lost only five courses from home.

When two Districts of the Suffolk Guild held a dinner at Cockfield, arrangements were made for the A.A. 10 signpost the route. This recognition of ringers' gatherings is much appreciated.

Advantage was taken by Mr. David Lloyd, of Bridgend, Glam, while attending a course at Colchester, to ring his first quarter peal. This was at the Church of St. Leonard-at-theHythe on January 28th.

The peal of Cambridge Maximus at Ashton-under-Lyne was Mr. John Worth's 50th peal in the method. With this peal, Mr. Basil Jones and Mr. Edward Jenkins have now rung 300 peals together, and Mr. Jenkins has rung al! 13 bells in this tower to peals.

Three pupils and three staff of a Priory Boys' School, Shrewsbury, rang 120 Bob Doubles for the beginning-of-term service at St. Chad's. There has been regular ringing for this service for several terms now and band has changed several times. It is hoped that the present team will attempt a quarter peal before the end of the year.

GOSSIP

A new reçord in Surprise Minor ringing has been established by Essex ringers. A peal in 50 Surprise Minor methods, conducted by Mr. Howard W. Egglestone, was rung at Stisted on January 26 th .

Another ringer for Australia-Miss Peggy Williamson, ot Lammas, Norfolk. She rang in her farewell peal of Doubles on January 28th.

The peal of Ashford Surprise Major rung at Willesden on January 18th was for the Middlesex County Association and not, as erroneously printed for the London Counties Association. The error is regretted.

An attempt was made at Peterborough to ring a quarter peal before the service of enthronement of the new Bishop, the Rt. Rev. Cyril Easthaugh. Unfortunately the third rope broke after the fourth course. Amends were made by a successful quarter after the service.

John and Enid Scott, formerly of Luton and Beaconsfield towers, now resident at Farnham Royal, Bucks, have a son (Christopher), born on January 28 th . An anticipatory 'quarter at Great Kimble, Bucks, was lost, due to a switch.

The peal of Bob Major at Whitchurch, Shropshire, recently was the 25 th peal for Mr. R. E. Morris, Hodnet area secretary. The bells go a lot better than people think, and apart from some half-dozen dodges missed the striking was excellent throughout.
The peal of Spliced Surprise Minor rung at Helmdon, Northants, was the first to be rung for the Towcester Branch, and it is hoped that it is the forerunner of many more. Because of a power cut in the village, which lasted over three hours, the peal was rung by candle-light.

Mr. F. E. Dukes presents his readers with another attractive issue of "The Irish Bell News.' It is good value for its annual subscription of 2 s . 6d., now due for 1962 . The current issue mentions the visit of Miss Iris Lemare, of York Minster, to Dublin. where she attended a practice at SS. Augustine and John's, Dublin.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

DORCHESTER BRANCH

Some 60 members attended the annual meeting of the Dorchester Branch, held at St Peter's, Dorchester. on January 20th. An hour's ringing preceded the service, conducted by the Rector (Rev. K. W. Meiklejohn), at which Canon E. B. Brooks (vice-chairman) read the lesson, and the Rev. C. E. C. Brinkworth (chairman) gave the address. Younger members of St. Peter's, Dorchester, ringers constituted the choir

The meeting followed tea, and the Branch chairman welcomed the Master of the Guild (the Rev. R. N. Longridge), and also remarked on the encouraging presence of so many young ringers and hoped they would long continue to be members of the Guild.
In his report. the hon'srary secretary, Mr R. H. Duke, said that the average attendance at meetings was 39, about equal to previous years. The deaths of three former members were recorded-Archdeacon J. C. Chute for some years vice-chairman of the Branch). Mr J. Squire (one time captain of St. Peter's, Dorchester, and Deputy Ringing Master of the Branch) and the Rev. R. P. Farrow (former vice-chai:man). The members stood in silence in respect of their memory.

Repuirs to Si. Peter's. Dorchester. tower had been carried oul, but there was still more to be done. The bells ware now ringing again after five months' enforced silence. The bells of Charminster had been augmented to eight and were an excellent ground floor ring. The hells at Abhotshury were being overhauled and the tenor recast. and the bells at Longbredy had heen put in order and a treble had been added. This made another tower in the Branch area.
Officers elected were: Chairman, the Rev. C. E. C. Brinkworth: vice-chairman, Canon Mr. R. H. Duke: Ringing Master, Mr. J. W. Rose: Deputy Ringing Masters. Mr. A. J Slade. Mr. E. H. Amey: honorary assistant secretary. Miss B. J. Dyke. Eleven new members were elected.

Mectings for 1962 werg provisionally fixed for April 7th. Litton Chenev: Julv 7th, Cattistock: September 15th, Abbotsbury. SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD Evensong at the annual meeting of the Newark District at Newark on January 20:h was poorly supported. only 15 pzople being present. The Vicar (Canon J. H. D. Grinter) conducted the same, and afterwards not only joined the company at tea but presided at the business meeting.

The financial stute was shown to be quite sound. though several members are somewhat dilatory at paying their subscriptions, In Yer report for the year, the honorary District secretary (Mrs. B. N. Reed) expressed disappointment that Southwell Minster bells were still at the foundry. However. Mr. George Foster had some fresh news: thai work had started on the belfry floor and it was hoped the bells would be back in the tower by May or June.
Two new members were elected and a viespiesident. Mr. Harold Green. landlord of the Vine Hotel. the venue for Newarks annual dinner last November. Mr. F. W. Middinner last November. Mr. F. W. Midwinter and Mrs. C. W. Reed were re-elected chairman and honorary secretary respectivelv with a change in Ringing Master, Mr. F. G. Hooper

The meeting was closed with the customary votes of thanks. with special mention of Mr. Midwinter and his lady helpers for organising the ample tea. The company was swelled sufficiently in the tower in the evening to ring Cambridge S. Royal. Beginners were noticeably lacking, and only one lot of rounds was rung during the whole of the ringing time. a most unusual occurrence at anv meet

SALISBURY BRANCH ANNUAL MEETING:
The Master of the Guild (the Rev. R. H. Longridge) was present at the annual meeting of the Salisbury Branch on January 27th, and read the lesson at the service, which was conducied by Canon P. J. Hayes, Vicar of St. Thomas'. The Rev. W. Uphill (Guild librarian) and the Rev. Roger Kelly were also present, and it was thus the first time within memory that as many as four clergy were at the Branch annual meeting. Twenty-five members of the Branch were at tea with visitors from Fordingbridge. Wimborne and Wareham, including Bill Shute. New members elected were: Adrian Lucas, Neil Skelton. Peter Bryant, C. Baverstock. Mrs. F. Harris. Anne Rowson. Angela Williams. Mr. and Mrs. R. Jones, also Mrs. C. Kippin (non-resident)

The officers were all re-elecled for a further year, with the exception of E. Haines. who did not wish to continue as a Ringing Master (there are still three!).

Grants from the Bell Restoration Fund were voled. five guineas to Chitterne and three guineas to Semley: £5 t,oing already promised to Sarum St. Martin.

The quarterly meetings for 1962 (subject to confirmation) will be: April 28th. Ludgershall; July 28th. Hinden: October 27th, Downton. The experiment of monthly practice meetings will be tried during this year. on the fourth Siturday of each month except December. A list of towers was surgested by the committee, and the first one will be at Britford on Fehruary 24th. Notice will be published in "The Ring:ng World.'

More visitors arrived in the evening and ringing. up to Surprise methods, was enjoyed both at St. Thomas' and St. Paul's

GUILDFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

The annual meeting of the Farnham District was held at Farnham on January 20th. when about 60 ringers attended. A wide variety of methods was rung

The chair for the business meeting was taken by the Guild Ringing Master (Mr. C. W. Denyer). It was reported that the District merbership had increased and that there had been an improvement in the attendance at both meetings and practices. A successful innovation during the year was a District striking competition. The position in the centrial nucleus of towers was satisfactory. hut some of the outlying towers were experiencing difficulties. especially in respect of practice difficul nights.
nights. hallot was required for the post of District secretary and Mr. P. Treble was elected. Mr. C. W. Denyer was nominated as a vice-president, and Major E, J. Bragg as Ringing Master of the Guildford Guild Seventeen new Guild members were elected.
Major Bragg suggested that each District of the Guild should make itself responsible for the provision of a bell for Guildford Cathedral This would involve each tower in raising approximately $£ \geq 0$ in the course of a year or two.

BELLS THAT HAVE MADE HISTORY  By ERNEST MORRIS

The oldest bell in the Southern California collection, assembled by the late Frank A. Miller in the Mission Inn at Riverside, was the Russian bell from the Island of Attu, near Alaska.
For a hundred years it was in the Russian Catholic Church on the island, when it was hung by the missionary priests of the Greek Orthodox Church, who were sent by Catherine of Russia to convert the Eskimo of Alaska to the Greek Catholic religion. In the early days of the Spanish exploration of the southwest , if the Spaniards had not been successful in claiming California as a part of New Spain it. with the lands to the north. would have fallen inio the hands of the Russians. It was in 186? that Russia transferred to the United States ali its possessions in America.
The bell is broken and has a gaping hole, not caused, however, from rough usage. It was highly veherated by the scant seltlement of natives at Attu. who were broken-hearted when the bell could no longer call them to their devotions. About forty years ago, when the temperature was many degrees below zero, two pieces dropped from the bell as it was being tolled for prayers. A boat, which called once a vear at the island, brought away the silenced bell with the heartfelt plea of the natives to exchange it for a new one. This the shio's captain was able to do, taking in its place another bell of excellent tone. but lacking in the interesting history and age-old appearance possessed by its predecessor.

LONG CLAWSON'S BELLS

We have recently had a visit from Mr. Wm. Smith, of Turramurra. Sydney. Australia. which recalls a peal rung on the five bells in the central tower of Long Clawson. Leics. which church is dedicated to St. Remigius. Of these five bells Nichols. the historian. writes:

- The inhabitants have a tradition that one of the Bozons went into France (but whether Edward III or Henry V. they know no:) and among othei speils, brought thence four great bells. which he hung up in this church. The present fourth is an ancient one yet called the Bozon's bell. In 1631 the great bell of Grantham being cracked. the Burgesses of Grantham qave the men of Clauston their cracked bell and twenty pounds in money for Clauston great bell. which was exactly the same note which they wanted. thus the biggest of Bozon's great bells went to Grantham With the metal of Grantham's cracked bell and the aforesaid $£ \geq 0$ the inhabitants of Clauston procured two ne.v bells. being the first and third of their present peal and thus they came to have their five irstead of four bells.'
With reference to this tradition it may be slated that the founder of the fourth hell was Johannes de Yorke. It is hardly probable that Bozon brought four great bells from France. but not improbable that he brought a quantily of spoil, and from the proceeds of a portion of that paid for four new bells for the church here. As they now stand. the tour bells are: Treble and tenor bv $T$. Hedrerslev. of No:tingham. 1782: second by Hugh Watts. 1631: third by H. Oldfield. 1608 : fnurth. Johannes de Yorke. r. 1400/1450. Weight of tenor 17 cwt . 1 gr .121 b .

MR. W. WELLING AN APPRECIATION

May I pay my tribute to Bill Welling and my great regret at his passing. My acquaintanceship with Bill Welling was during the closing months of the 1918 war, when wo were both stationed at Dover. At that time there was almost a complete servicemen's band stationed at Dover. The names I remember most are the late Harry Price of Stratford-on-Avon, and W. H. P. Meltin, of Witham, whose passing a short time ago I noticed with equal regret. How on Sunday evening we used to meet at the Parish Church and ring for services, often without any locals at all. After the service, perhaps after a visit to the barracks. Bill to Dover Castle, myself further up the hill to the Duke of York School.
How well I remember one Sunday evening the Rector coming to the tower and asking $u$, if we could come and ring if peace was declared. On the morning of November 11th, 1918. an order came to me that I was to report to Dover Parrish Church at once. There I found Bill Welling and the rest. After ringing for a long time we spent the afternoon among the crowds. And what a place Dover was that day! In the evening we met again o start for what we hoped would be the first all-servicemen's peal, Bill Welling calling the bobs. Unfortunately the excitement of the day beat us, for after two hours it 'went west.
wonder if any other members of that band 'are still ringing? After the Armistice we began to break up. I left in December, and so only met Bill Welling very infrequently since. When we did meet most of our talk was of Dover. It is in suth circumstances that one has memories that one doesni forget, and my memory is of my friendship with Bill Welling at that rime

MR. HAROLD G. JENNEY

With the passing of Mr. Harold G. Jenney, Leicester Cathedral Society has lost its oldest member. As Ringing Master, I should like to mily tribute to a well loved and respected member of our band. He was a gentleman in every sense, and a very sincere friend.
Harold had not enjoyed good health for some time. but until the end of November he was a regular ringer at the Cathedral.
We thank God for the life of Harold George Jenney, and the example he has left with us. Our love and sympathy go to Mrs. Jenney and her family.

ALL TYPES OF WORK : INSPECTIONS WITHOUT Charge or obligation

The Ringing World ' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor unt!! his death in 1942.

QUARTER PEALS HAVE A STORY TO TELL

AN examination of our weekly quarter peal page well repays the time spent. Not only is it a mine of information as to the personal events in life such as births, engagements, marriages and deaths, but it repays the time spent as an indication of the trend of ringing and the number of new entrants into the Exercise.
There were published in 'The Ringing World ' in the last six months of 1961 no fewer than 1,650 quarter peals. These were made up of Minimus 1, Doubles 612, Minor 448, Tripies 341. Major 170, Caters 55, Royal 19 and Cinques 4.
These quarter peals were rung in 868 different towers. 'First quarters' were claimed by 450 ringers. This might at first sight be regarded as a satisfactory standard of recruitment, that 900 people in a year had passed an initial hurdle towards proficiency. But if the normal wastage is to be made good almost double that number is required. It is interesting to observe that 67 conductors called their first quarter and no fewer than ten bands were ringing their first quarter.
Stanwell, Middlesex, with 34, had the highest number scored, followed by Holme Pierrepont, Notts (17), Rayleigh, Essex (16), and St. Clement Danes' and Putney (14 each). The Stanwell band had rung quarters for three different services on the same day, but at Holme Pierrepont the writer believes that there is normally only one service oll a Sunday. Practically all the quarter peals rung by the above-named bands were for Sunday services.
Nearly 50 per cent., or 851 of the quarters, were rung on Sundays and 89 others were for special mid-week services of one form or another. The number of towers in which quarters have been rung on Sundays totalled only 464. Many of these were rung by visiting bands, as there are quite a number of people - as an examination of the columns will show-who frequently on Sundays ring elsewhere than in their own church. For example, St. Clement Danes' does not have a resident band, but applications are made to the ringer in charge of the R.A.F. church to ring for a particular service. This seems to be a happy arrangement. and bands travel a considerable distance for the privilege.
Because quarters were only rung in 464 towers on a Sunday it cannot be assumed that there are less than 500 Sunday service bands capable of ringing a quarter peal. One reason is the time factor, through more than one service being held close together. Another is that not all ringers have a desire for quarter peals. In shurches in the heart of Birmingham most of the Sunday service ringers are recruited from peal ringers, and it is very rare to read of a quarter being rung at St. Martin's or Birmingham Cathedral.

As there is a hard core of peal ringers who most weeks make an attempt, so there are bands of quarter peal ringers who go out on Sundays. There is the advantage of being a quarter peal ringer in that the enjoyment of achievement can be associated with Sunday service ringing, whereas with peals there is a limitation in the number of towers available on a Sunday. In London the opportunities for service quarters are many, whereas for peals on a weekday the facilities are extremely limited. Those who follow the peal columns note the distances travelled by ringers to find a tower for their Saturday peal. The bands are very much the same-probably drawn from 12 to 16 ringers. To find a Saturday afternoon peal band drawn from the same tower is indeed rare.

Many who ring in quarters have not the fitness to stand in a three-hour peal. On the other hand, one is never too old or too young to start, for first quarters were rung during the six months under review by a ringer 75 years old and also two 12 -year-olds. There was also one 13 -year-old conductor. It is because the Editor feels that quarter peals have a definite and important niche in the Exercise that a page or more is allocated to them each week. Some Guilds and Associations keep records of quarter peals. In New South Wales points are given for quarters and peals-one for a quarter and five for a peal, and periodically a points table appears in 'Ringing Towers.'

The Central Council give complete freedom to what is rung in quarters. Even if cover bells are introduced no questions are asked. They are not, in any serise, subjected to the same official scrutiny as peals. (Perhaps the Rabbits' Guild at their next convention might give the subject their consideration.) On the other hand, there is not the same care taken in the publication of quarter peals. The Editor has not the time to deal with all the queries that arise from copy submitted. What is required is place, name of church only if there are two or more churches in the town, date. number of changes and method, differentiating between Doubles. Minor, Triples and Major. Regarding multimethod quarters, only the number is published. Generally speaking. Christian names are only given with women and men of the same surname with the same initials. It will bo noted that wherever possible all yuarters are published in the same form., name of ringer preceding number of bell.

The Editor asks that when quarter peals are submitted. those from separate towers should be written on separate sheets of paper. He abominates the arrival of a quarter peal rung six months before, and assures readers that the fault in most of these lies not with the Post Office. Another unpopular act is to write them on the back or at the bottom of a peal report, necessitating time being spent in copying.

Finally, the Editor expresses his indebtedness to Mr. H. W. Cox, of Saxilby, Lincoln, who undertook the analysis, which was no light job.

PERTH, W.A., BELLS RING OUT AGAIN

AFTER being clocked for 30 years, the bells of St. George's Cathedral, Perth. Western Australia, rang out for evening service on December 10th. During the service the priest-in-charge. the Rev. Warwick Bastin, outlined the history of the hells. which were hung in 1911 and are believed to be the last ring cast by Warners. An enrolment service was held for the re-formed St. George's Cathedrat Bellringing Society.
Rounds were rung on the front six on Christmas morning at 5 oclock and call changes for the 6 a.m. Communion service. To ensure that a band was available some of the ringers spent the night in a room next to the tower,

University of London Society at Dinner

UNIVERSITY dinners seem to be becoming a rash these days, with the growth of University Socicties. However. they are a very pleasant rash for those taking part, and that of the University of London Society on January 20th was no exception.
Ringing had been enjoyed at an adventurous variecy of lowers during the day, including such places as Southwark Cathedral and St. Margaret's, Westminster. Several eminent members considered the Society had acquitted itself surprisingly well: while a spectator at St. Margaret's commented on one touch, 'Eh. the opening claplers were better than the closing chapters." We leave judgment to those who were there to listen.
Your chronicler was there to listen at dinner, held in the Ayrton Hall of Imperial College. Over seventy of us heard the rumbles of satisfaction and animated conversation throughout an excellent meal. We heard the president. Philip Gray, welcome us by siying it had been touch and go whether we or the demolition squad got into the hall first, since that side of Imperial Institute Read was being redeveloped. We heard David Robinson propose (as he put it) an untoustable toast:
The church. The Church is the spiritual hody of all Christian people, past. present and future. and is a holy thing. not the object of a pagan rite. So he must needs restrict i: to the hicrarchy of their Mother, the Church of England, without whose aid and encouragement' English bellringing would not exist.
In reply we heard and were entertained royally by the Rev. Canon Mortlock. Rector of St. Vedast's, who is a well known and well travelied representative of the Church of England. In agreeing with David's remarks. he told us of his audience once with an Eastern Metropolitan Bishop. In silence he was shown to his seat: in silence the great man entered and ascended his thronelike chair: in silence was Turkish delight passed round a preliminary. Then His Beatitude asked. 'I trust His Majesty the King is well?' Canon Mortlock went on to speak of the new urgency in the ecumenical movement. He had been in Rome just before Lord Fisher's visit. and on a tour of the Vatican was assured how ordinary the coming visit would be-in merely the 'lowest category.' How different was the event! Again, at New Delhi. the pattern of the fulure was forcefully foreshadowed by the numbers and vigour of the Eastern Christians.

So we passed on to the rest of the evening. William Cook, Master of the Ancient Society, proposed the health of our Society in his usual masterly fashion, and our Master. Paul Cattermole. gave a satisfactory medical report: Robin Trebilcock proposed The Guests. mentioning especially Canon Mortlock. Rev. M. Dean (Rector of St. Olave's), and particularly two who unfortunately could not comeMr. Hughes and Rev. Mr. Miller. former Rector of St. Olavc's, who would shortly he leaving for Austratia. Hilary Murrhead. Master of the Cambridge University Guild replied in name for all these guests, but in another sense echoed all our thanks to each other for mutual entertainment and enjoyment.

And to you. readers who were not there -and are probably bored by these reports appearing like spots on the skin of The Ringing World , (as it were, symptoms of the rash)-maybe you are lucky that your chronicler has lost his notes. At least you may read this spot as a sign of a vigorous Society, hungrily looking forward to the year ahead until sts next annual dinner though not much sleep was possible due to mosquitoes.
The first annual meeting of the Society was held at 31, Stanley Street, Mi, Lawley, on January 24 th . Ten members were present and the opening prayers were led by the chairman, Mr. Laith Reynolds, who, while in Sydney in October, 1961. was taught to handle. raise and lower a bell, and within a month passed on some of his limited knowledge to other members. It was due to his efforts that the legend which had grown up. that the tower was unsafe, was killed.
Officers elecled were: Captain, Laith Reynolds : vice-captain, Robert Cooke; secretary, Miss Marylyn Chambers; Ringing Master, Brian Lawes. The subscription was fixed at & 1 and 10 s. for students. It was also agreed that all wedding fees should go to the Association's funds.
A general discussion followed, ranging from maintenance of fittings and painting the iron frame to ordering ' The Ringing World,' 'Ringing Towers' and handbooks of instruction. During the evening refreshments were served and thanks were accorded to Hugh Nankivell and family for providing such a good spread.

Miss Chambers, the secretary, is a young Australian, 16 years of age, who. whilst on holiday in Essex for three months last year, was taught to ring and hefore leaving for nome rang at quarler of Grandsire Doubles it Ingrave on Octobar 8th. She is at present the only lady member. Despite the distance of 1.752 miles from the nearest lower, two men-bers-Hugh Nankivell and Basil Potts-recsived rounds experience recently whilst in Melbourne and Adelaide respectively.
The Ringing Master, Brian Lawes, was, until January, 1961. a member of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild and had rung several quarters around Salisbury, ranging from Grandsire and Cambridge Minor to Double Norwich. He remembers with affection the patient guidance of Herbert Abrahams and Ronald Marlow.

St. George's Society hope to see some visiting ringers from the Eastern States during the Commonwealth Games to he held in Perth during the last week in November. Normal ringing times at the Cathedral are Sundays $3.30-5$ p.m. and $6.30-7.30$ p.m.. Mondays $6-8$ p.m.

A WARNING FROM GATESHEAD

Persons in charge of towers containing peal boards or other item. of historical interest should take a warning from the recent incident at St. Mary's. Gateshcad. Co. Durlam. A board recording a peal of Grandsire 'Tripples' rung in 1790 . and also mentioning one rung in 1794. complete with an ornate frame. was exhibited in the Shipley Art Gallery, Gateshead. After the exhibition it was brought hack to the church. hut instead of being placed in the belfry was left against the inside wall at the base of the lower.
A $£ 12.000$ restoration and redecoration scheme was in progress at the church Recently Mr. Bob Telford. a local ringer. discovered the 1790 peal board on the builders subbish heap outside the church. The hoard which has now been returned to the belfry appears to be undamaged, although rathe mudstained. but the frame has heen smashed into approximately six pieces.
So take heed all those who have charge of similat items and guard them jealously when any builders or people with Cromwellian tendencies are around.

Lamberhurst, Kent. tower has recently been visited by an architect and a bell hanger with measuring instruments. An inspection wa made while the bells were being rung and the decision is that no tinging is to take place until the tower has been strengthened. Just before the war, cracks appeared in the tower and although the tower was strengthened by a local huilder it was declared unsafe by the architect

A BET ON A PEAL

Dear Sir, -I was very surprised to see in The Ringing World' of February 2nd. that Mr. R. G. Edwards presented a cheque for $£ 5$ to Mr. A. P. Cannon, in settlement of the bet regarding the ringing of St . George's. Bristol. tenor to a peal. I was even more surprised to read that the cheque ought to be framed!

To try to ring a peal by turning a heavy tenor in is one thing. and to have a bet on the performance is another. This sort of thing does nothing 10 maintain the high standard of ringing. On the contrary, I would be inclined to think that it lowered the standard to that found in betting shops and on the racecourse. Betting in ringing circles, whether meant as a joke or not, ought not to be tolerated. Finally, rivalry is one thing, but the passing of E 5 is another.
I hope that this is only an isolated case!Yours sincerely,

Note.-Although Mr. Ralph Edwards received a cheque for $£ 5$ from his friend Mr . Cannon, he assured the Editor that the cheque would not be cashed.-Ed.

PAID RINGERS

Dear Sir.-Having read with some interest The ringing statistics on page 76 of R.W. a yuery arises. What exactly is a puid ringer? The answer seems obvious, but is it? Did the compilers include such cases is the following: A church was dedicated in 1897, all completely new. with its bells. A band was formed. The then churchwardens allocated il sum of money with two objects (1) to pay the Guild subscriptions of the ringers. and (2) 10 help finance the ringers annual outing, this latter to avoid collecting from the congregation. as was and still is done for the choir boys’ annual treat.
The amount of money and the two objects remain the same today, 65 years later. no one has complained about this. It would be interesting to know your readers' views, and information, loo. should any one know the absis on which these statistics were compiled. -Yours faithfully.

THEY WERE RECORDED

Dear Sir,-With reference to Mr. Ogden's letter ( R.W: February 2nd). there was tune ringing on handbells at Christmas, just 14 notes during the programme 'The Countryside at Christmas." Home Service, 1.10 p.m., on Christmas Eve.
On December 141 h our curate informed me that the B.B.C. wished to take a recording of four handbells for the above programme. This wals fixed for Monday evening (18th). We met at 7 p.m... but the engineer did not turn up until 8 p.m. We recorded ihree carols in the street. then went inside to hear the play back. Owing to technical difficulties with the tape recorder this procedure was twice repeated and there was no time left to go out into the parish.
On Christmas Eve we and all our friends had our ears glued to our wireless sets, and all we heard over the air was half of one verso of 'Once in Royal David's City. Although the B.B.C. sent a cheque for $£ 3$ 3s nlaking our contribution to the Mentally Handicapped Children up to $£ 203$ s., it was most disappointing.-Yours. etc
Wadhurst, Sussex.

EVERCREECH SIGNAL ON B.B.C.
Dear Sir,-May I refer, to those who are pressing for better treatment of ringing by the B.B.C., another of their Philistine practices which appears not to have been mentioned.
Each Sunday morning, if I hurry home from 8 o clock Commumion, 1 can tune in the West Light Progress. in time to get several minutes of a fixed tone oscillator which finishes at 8.50 a.m. There usually follows anything up to $2 \frac{1}{2}$ minutes complete silence, and then one of a series of beautifully recorded endings of peals (by Evercreech)-just the thing io set one's standards high for the morning service ring. But, more often than not. the ringing is faded. or cut out, just a few seconds before rounds come up
On Jan. 28 th . Stedman Caters came home into $1234567 \ldots$ the last three blows heing replaced by a hideous grating sound. followed by ever such a cheerful fellow wishing us Good morning -mine was ruined.
It seems such a simple matter for records used in this way to be graduated, to allow time to run to a proper finish. and, once set going. they should be played out to a finish. If we are to have unfinished snatches of ringing would it not be better for these to come from the middle of touches, and not from just near the end?
I have recordings of the endings of the last two peals of Cinques it Winchester Cathedral. which I was minded to send to the B.B.C.. hut before doing so I would like advice from those who have done so in the past. as to the conditions one may impose on their use. once the B.B.C. has them.- Yours sincerely.
Winchester.

CHRISTMAS RINGING

Dear Sir.- 1 found Mr. Humphriss' letler about the Christmas ringing and other miscellaneous subjects quite fascinating-as a puzzle that is-but perhaps he meant it that way.
What point is there is waiting a month before writing a long harangue about a broadcast from your own tower. especially when, by ringing standards, it was both competent and enjoyable to the listener? Why this passion io criticise everyone connected with the pro gramme's presentation from the B.B.C. downwards? No doubt the Broadcasting Committee will deal with the criticisms levelled at jt , but where does Mr. Humphriss get the idea that details of the ringing were not given beforehand Doesn't he take 'The Ringing World '? Lastly. this P.S. about the 'South.' (Where do you draw the line, by the way?) I'm sure it came as a big disappointment to us to miss Queens 'how it should be done.' I'll bet this amused a few of our call change friends in Devon and Cornwall.
In the meantime, I suppose the sest of us will have to seek what solace we can in listening to Evercreech on Sunday mornings. but there again perhaps this ringing doen not conform with Mr. Humphriss' ideas of ' how it should be done.'-Yours sincerely.
Backwell, Somerset.
JOHN BRAIN.

BROADCASTING 35 YEARS AGO

Dear Sir.-Further to ' Broadcasting of bell music': I have just laid thands on 'The Radio Times: of exactly 35 years ago. when the 'wireless was just five years old. Station 2LO (London) and 5XX (Daventry) were able to give seven minutes of the hells of St . Botolph's, Bishopsgatc. preceding Sunday evening service.
There's something to be said for the old days, when wireless was just the cat's whisker -Yours. etc.. VICTOR SHEPPARD.

NEW DUFFIELD

Dear Sir,-Following on the publication of the Plain Court I have received a number of requests for information about the calling.
We use a 6 ths place bob ('long sixths') at the Parting of the Eights; the bells in 7.8 continue dodging. At a single these bells lie still and then dodge the other way. Numbering the Parting of the Eights, as for the Sixes in Stedman. bobs can be called at 3, 4 , 5.6. without affecting the tenors. A bob at home also keeps the tenors together, but if extends the course by an Eight. Also a pair of bobs made by 8 and 7 in succession keeps them together, but cuts out the course end. (This touch can be brought round by calling two Homs bobs.)
The following are some standard callings:
2 Courses.-A single on any pair, repeated: or singles at 3 and 6, repeated; or bobs at 3-4. or 4-5, or 5-6, repeated.

Courses.-A bob at any calling position, twice repeated; or bobs and 3 and 6 , twice repeated.
4 Courses. - Bob at 4. single at 5 , repeated three times. (Or S4, B5.) Similarly at 3-4, or 5-6.

5 Courses.-Bobs at 3 and 5, repeated four times.
$1: 280$. - The five courses can be used as the basis of a quarter peal, by omitting the bobs in the last course and substituting a single at 3. (Part end 343156.) Repeat the whole three limes.
The pair of bobs on 8 and 7 referred to above. combined with two homes, can be ussed in conjunction witli many of the standard callings to give much greater variety.-Yours faithfully,

FALSE COURSE HEADS

Dear Si , -The withdrawal of the peal of Apsky Surprise by Mr. T. Chapman once again illustrates the ineptitude of publishing the F.C.H.'s of methods without giving details of the leads in which the falseness occurs. Jersey and Apsley have the same lead head order and the same F.C.H.s, but the falseness occurs in different leads: thus, a peal of Jersey is not alutomatically true to Apsley.
The undersigned hive, in a previous letter, indicated a way in which the full falseness may be written down just as bricfly as by the present system of writing F.C.H.s only. We give below two compositions (which we derived, hut do not claim to have been the first to do so). The first is true to Apsicy, and the second to both Apsley and Jersey.

DIOCESES AS RINGING BOUNDARIES

Dear Sir,-Your correspondent 'B. Sharp would like to see adopted, at Central Council level, a recommendation that all ringing organisations except the non-territorial Societies be Diocesan
The Central Council surely could never contemplate such unwarranted interference in the domestic affairs of its supporting associations. Any bona fide ringing association which complies with the stated requirements for membership must be free to affilate to the Council without interference or dictation as to its status or constitution.

Apart from this consideration, there are examples where it would not be practicable to disband an existing County Association for the dubious purpose of forming Diocesan Guilds. Our position in Kent will perhaps serve as an illustration.
We are fortunate to have a well founded and reasonably efficient Association. in which we of this generation are benefiting very considerably in many ways from the skill and forethought of those who have gone before. The Association operates in six districts, without reference in any way to ecclesiastical boundaries. but formed entirely on a geographical basis.
This is as well, since our ecclesiastical houndaries are quaintly erratic, although, of course, very interesting historically. Incidentally, there are many places which, through the ages, have shunted from one to the other of the two ancient dioceses in the county. An anomaly which survives should concern your correspondent •B. Sharp' since the Archdeaconry of Croydon is mainly in the county of Surrey, but is in the Diocese of Canterbury From a ringing point of view Croydon and Margate would hardly fit well together for purposes of organisation!
The six-bell tower at West Wickham, some mile or so inside the Kent boundary with Surrey, is in the Diocese of Canterbury, being the only tower with bells in that diocese in that part of Kent. This tower is in the Lewisham Distric-as is Beckenham, of which borough West Wickham is now pirt. Beckenham, of course, is in the Diocese of Rochester It is perhaps convenient to think of several towers in this district all within a very few miles of each other-West Wickham (Canterbury). Bromley. Bromley Common. Beckenham and Hayes (all Diocese of Rochester). Penge (Diocese of Rochester. but a separale urhin district from Beckenham, which it adjoins and in the London postal areat, and I.ewisham (separate London borough-London postal district-Diocese of Southwark) Except that, alas. there is not much daing it Penge these days. the ringers from these towers have always consorled together since the towers are all so close

In any case. what would your correspondent do with the towers which were formerly in the county of Kent and Diocese of Rochester, but which now are in the I.ondon rostal areat and Dioces of Southwark. namely Woolwich. Deptford, Greenwich. Lewishan (already mentioned), Eltham and Lee (where, alas, the bells are now unringable)?
Although the fortunes of these towers have varied with the years they have been second to none in their loyalty to the Kent County Association. producing in their time such worthies as William J. Jeffries (who would have known how to deal with people who want to tamper with rules and constitutions). George II. Daynes, the gratidson of the man who called the first peal ever rung for the Association, and Harry Warnett, who like the Other two was a leading exponent of Holt's Original and whose regular iootsteps between the Coach and Horses and Si. Mary's, Lewisham, must have marked the path of what was subsequently to become the first illuminated zebra crossing in the country.

The planners would no doubt say these towers should be looked after by the London County Association and North Southwark Diocesan Guild or some newly formed Southwark Diocesan Guild. The towers concerned might be a bit chary of that-there is no Diocese of North Southwark anyway, and although the Association which bears that name has always been hospitably received in most of the towers in question, it has hardly offered itself as a substitute for the Kent County Association, which, where appropriate. has made grants from the Belfry Repair and Benevolent funds and has organised regular meetings in these towers in due turn with the rest of the Lewisham District.

To summarise, we have all the Diocese of Rochester, not quite all the Diocese of Canterbury, a small part of the Diocese of Southwark. If some brave soul. particularly someone outside the clearly defined area of operation of the Association, wants to start a carving up operation he will be in for a lively time!-Yours truly,
P. A. CORBY

LOLGHBOROUGH COLLEGE MAJOR

Dear Sir.-In submitting the first full peal of No. 281 in the C.C. Collection of Plain Major methods. and naming it Loughborough College Major. it is necessary to point out that two leads of this method have already been used in each of two peals of Spliced Plain Major ( ${ }^{6}$ R.W.' 1960. page 763, and R.W.' 1961. page 343). where it was referred lo by the name 'Smith.
I would have been content to use the name bestowed by the Spliced band had I not wished (a) to test the issue of who has the official option of naming a method, those who ring the first peal of a method. or those who first use it in a peal, or on some other ground altogether, and (b) to replace what I considered to be a very unsuitable name. as I have already stated in correspondence at the time the original Spliced peal was rung.
The band who rang the peal of Loughborough College at Loughborough Foundry are prepared to be overruled in this matter, and 10 enter our peal as one of Smith College (must 'Imperial' be added too?). bui hope that our name will stand. Smith's College might be better: there is a very famous singer of that name at Loughhorough College, though he does not claim to own the place yct. and in any case he is not the Smith after whom the method was originally named!
In fairness it must be admitted that some younger members of our band thought that such a trivial departure from Crayford College ought not to receive the honour of being named after such a worthy institution as Loughborough College, hut this is not unusual. as an even more trivial departure from Reverse Bob is named after a famous cathedral city
Another objection to our name is the risk of confusion with Loughborough Bob Major (C.C.C. 34), but I do not think this is likely: we already have Minor methods named Canterbury Surprisc. Canterbury Detight and Canterbury Pleasure with no confusion.lours truly.

RECOGNISING OUR FRIENDS?

Dear Sir. - I wish to say how much I am enjoying 'The Smiths,' and congratulate the author on the cleverly described characters and events, in which we can recognise our friends and ourselves. The letter from Edward Lee. in Feb. 9th issue, adds even mare realism to the story. Please keep it going as long as possible.-Yours sincerely
O. U. T. SLOW.

Note-While thanking O. U. T. Slow for his letter the Editor assures him that all characters in 'The Smiths' are fictitious. The author does not intend to delineate any individual, but incidents do háppen in belfries which are common to many and these might be narrated without particular reference to a special tower or incident.-Ed.

RULING ASKED FOR

Dear Sir.-I notice that there is only one Fifths Place Little, method in the C.C. Collection of Plain Major methods. Here arz two interesting ones, in the first of which the back work is similar to that in Si. Clement's.
(1) $\times 185638 \quad 56$-2nds P.L.E
(2) $5618 \times 3658-8$ ths P.L.E.

What is the C.C. ruling on a method where the treble goes out to thirds place only. I believe there is onlv one, as follows:

| $\overline{213465}$ | 312564 | 312564 |

Two Districts Hold A Combined Dinner

Two Districts of the Sunralk Guild-the North-West and South-West-combined 10 hold the:r first dinner at Coskfield on January 27th. All of the 77 ringers and friends voted the dinner and social afterwards a great success.

Proceedings started with afternoon ringing at Lavenham and here assembled ringers from Lavenham, Diss, Bures, Rougham, Glemsford, Euston, Fordham, Little Horksley, Norwich, Hartest, Clare, Holkham, Preston, East Harling. Elveden and Radlett (Herts). Methods rung were Plain Bob, Grandsire, Stedmin and St Clement's. Afterwards the company found their waly, with the assistance of special A.A. signs, 10 Cockfield Institute for the dinner. Here they were greeted with the sound of Rougham bells from Mr. Wright's recorder and the company was swelled by ringers from the Stowmarket area. Mildenhall, West Stow, and also East Africa. It was a very jolly crowd. over whom Mr. L. E. Last, of Hoxne, presided.
A toast was proposed by Mr. Nolan Golden to 'The Suffolk Guild.' and Mr. Edward Danisls. of Rougham, belfry, replied. Mr. John Ivings, of Euston. proposed 'The gave an amusing reply. He said when in the company of ringers he began to wonder whether they thought the bells and belfry the most essential part of the church. Mention was made of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, of East Africa, who were at the dinner, and it was hoped that their search for bells for their new church in East Africa would be fruitful.
The chairman mentioned that Mr. Arthu: C. Rolfe, a keen ringer, is at present in hospital. and the gathering sent him their bist wishes for a speedy recovery.

After the dinner entertainment was provided by several District ringers. Miss Rosemary Greaves, of Rougham, gave two songs and a piano solo: the Ivings family, of Euston tower, rang handbell tunes, with dexterity, on four bells each. (To a beginner who has difficulty in coping with one tower bell. their peformance was marvellous.) Henry and John Ivings rang (four bells each) Plain Bob Major and Miss Rosemary Seabrook (Clare). Roger Palmer (Fordham). Nolan Golden (Norwich) and Len Last (Diss) rang Grandsire Triples. Richard Seabrook raised much laughter with his Suffolk Alphabet on Ringers and Ringing. particularly when he mentioned ringers who were present. Studenis from Chadiacre Agricultural College added songs and choruses to the entertainment. and dances and games, under the direction of D. L. Alderton (Great Barton). brought the evening to a pleasant end at 11 o'clock.

Thanks were accorded to the committee who organised the dinner and social evening. They were Miss E. Cansdale and Mr. A. Cansdale. on behalf of the Sudbury District. Mrs. Ivings. the Misses D. Reeve and June Wright. Messrs. D. Alderton and L.es Wright, representing the Bury St. Edmunds District. Mr. Wright acted as chairman. and Miss $G$ Reeve as secretary.

SURREY ASSOCIATION

Whether it was the attraction of Beddington and Carshalton bells or the opportunity to take part in several ballots, some 90 member and friends arrived for the District annual meeting on Jan. 27th at Beddington. During the afternoon the pleasant ring of 10 was kept busy by relays of ringers whose talents varied beiween rounds and Cambridge Royal: Mr. F. E. Collins being in charge of proceedings. At 4.15 the Association's form of service was led by the curate, after which the darge company adjourned to Carshalton for tea and the business meeting. Mr. Jennings, the local captain, had organjsed an excellent tea with the help of the fairer members of his band. But even they were surprised at the number who turned up. At tea the ringers were joined by the Rector of Carshalton, who welcomed all to the parish. He also expressed the hope that it would not be 30 years before the Associatión visited Carshalton azain.

The committee's and treasurer's reports were both accepted by the members. Funds had increased over the year by a modest $£ 713 \mathrm{~s}$.; new resident members and two non-resident members were then elected.

In the ballot for District Master, Mr, F. E. Collins emerged the victor, and thus continues to hold office for a further year. Mr. Layton was re-elected auditor after a ballot, and Miss M. Lewis, Mr. N. Bagworth and Mr. H. N. Pitstow were elected committee members. The honorary secretary, Mr. W. Parrott, was returned unopposed, as was Mr. N. Steere for the new post of assistant secretary.

A larger programme than usual was proposed for 1962 , and there are to be two practice neetings, in addition to the usual quarterly and joint meetings. The committee's proposals in the matter of the striking competition was rejected by 28 votes to 26; bands may continue to ring according to the wishes of the captain. instead of a set touch as the committee wished. The collection for the bell fund amounted to $£ 24 \mathrm{~s}$. 8 d .

It is usual for meetings to end with votes of thanks. but the ringers had overstepped their time and had to clear the hall for an old time dance, so the gratitude of the company to Mr. Jennings and his band at tea and the thanks to the retiring officials were not formally expressed, but were nevertheless sincerely felt.

THE SUFFOLK GUILD  North-East District

The annual meeting of the N.E. District of the Suffolk Guild was held at Bungay on JanLary 27th. The bells were used during the afternoon and evening to a variety of methods. including Grandsire Triples, Cambridge and Bob Major. A service was conducted by the Rev. G. J. Tarris, after which tea was served. At the business meeting. presided over by Mr . P. Bedford, the committee was te-elected. Mr. Bedford welcomed the members present and said it was a pity that the bells were in such a rough condition.

The next meeting will take place at Saxmundham on February 24th. and the next quarterly meeting at Tunstall and Blaxhall on April 7th, if the bells are available.

STEEPLEKEEPERS' CORNER

By H. D. STOCK

T has often been stated that we in this country are a nation of shopkeepers, but all things being equal I think it would be also fair to say thas we are a nation of steeplekeepers. For surely there can be no other that can boast as many bell towers, as we know them. With rare exception it can be safely assumed most of our belfries have in their ringing companies at least one member who has the ringer / carpenter / mechanic / painter and decorator outlook. Well now, I know for a fact that the more conscientious a steeplekeeper is, the better the belfry conditions all round are!

The months of January and February are appropriate for a spot of spring cleaning, and no better place to commence is the top. Number one priority is, of course, the roof, more especially with regard to roofed towers.
Towers or steeples being usually in high places, they naturally take the brunt of mother nature's' onslaughts. This then is the time to cast a ferretlike eye under the roof, for the purpose of marking or at least noting any telltales of damp that perchance shows itself.

Have you cleaned the roof gutters lately?
Should it be that a leak is traced, then the churchwardens are the first to be 'got at,' also the incumbent-and with much technical diplomacy as possible, please!

This talk of leaks seminds me of a rather interesting stary I heard some time ago, concerning Koss-on-Wye. It would appear that there lived an old gentleman from Ross whose home was unfortunately situated over the top of a hill and out of vision of the town. However, in the course of time he became a man of substance and then considered that if Ross spire was heightened he would at least be still in touch with native haunts. so to speak. He apparently financed this scheme and the spire was extended stone upon stone. This job of work was, in its way, jolly fine. but as the years went by the apex became porous and a leak developed. By a thousand to one chance the tenor headstock lay pretty well central to the tower and so for years it was the receiver of a dripping bombardment. Since the last war the tenors have been rehung. and I understand that it was necessary to splice quite a quantity of new elm into the tenor stock, due to the inevitable wet rot.

Not a very inspiring story, but there you are!
Next month-something about bell frames.

THE CUMBE FHHERE was a larger attendance than in recent year; at the annual dinner of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths. held at the Euston Tavern on February 3rd. A happy evening wasspent. The Mister (Mr. D. Beresford) was able to report a progressive year, and to the delight of his guests arranged a handbell titbit in the form of al course of London Surprise Major. The band consisted of E. A. Barnett 1-2. Miss J. Beresford 3-4, D. Beresford 5-6 and P. Beresford 7-8.

An excellent meal was followed by the toast of "The Queen." and then a Past Master of the Society, Mr. Peter N. Bond. who is a theological student at Rochester, proposed the loast of 'The Church:' The question of attending the seryices for which we ring, he said, had heen raised in "The Ringing World. and he had been following the correspondence. Previously, he had looked at the question from a layman's point of view, but recently he had considered it from a priest's view. He still found that he came down quite largely on the rather liberal side.

I am quite certain.' continued Mr. Peter Bond. if was incumbent of a parish which had hells, I would not expect the ringers to attend every service for which they rang, but I think it is reasonable to ask them to attend at least one service on a Sunday. Providing we attend whenever possible, then we can look on our ringing for service as our special act of worship. done for God's glory. Only if we look on ringing in that light can we regard it as a vocation.
The reply was from the Rev. Gordon Blacktop. Vicar of Thames Ditton, who said out of the five time he had altended their dinners, he had replied to the roast of .The Church on three occasions. As this was the third time of asking it was time he caught the 'bride or the belle.' (Laughter.)

THE CHURCH CARED FOR THEM

Withia the Church it was a joy to know there was a company such as ringers, who were prepared to lay their sacrifice into the lap of Mother Church and it was perfectly true that the Church cared for them as they cared for the Church.
Thames Ditton bells had gone away and they were now looking al one another on a Sunday and saying. 'Isn't it quiet.'. He wished them much pleasure in their ringing and the joy of feeling that they were doing their hest in the service of God

The taast of "The Society" was proposed hy Mr. E. A. Barnett, who said there was a tendency to think of the Cumberlands as just one more London Society (perhaps too many). If they did think on those lines the fact that half the band of Lincoln Cathedral were with them that night shattered any such suggestion. They could also claim to be a great democratic society. The presence of certain oflicers of the Ladies" Guild proved that nobody had ever been disqualified $b$ :cause of sex.
They welcomed everybody $t 0$ their ranks. They did not, however. have College Youths. Between them and the College Youths there was a slighi difference. Others might join them immediately, whereas a College Youth must spand 12 months in the wilderness. Furthermore. the Cumberlands were so democratic that it was within the bounds of possibility that there was in that room someone who might be the first dady Master of the Society.

Continuing Mr. Barnett said he supposed they could truly siny they were not quite so stifiled in the art of public retations as their friends at l.udgate Hill. The story came to his mind of a certain member of their Society who wats called in at the last minute to ring in a peal that was lost in the last lead. The organiser. Stafford Green, wrote a letter to this man asking. 'Are you a C.Y.?' and Jim wrote back. 'Yes.' Later on they met and Stafford said. I did not know you were a Stafford said. I did not know you were a said in your letter "C.Y."-Cumberland Youth." He had the thing in the tight perspec-

Mr. Barnett concluded that he was very proud to be a member of their Society and all what they did to help it to prosper would be for their own and posterity s benefit.

NOT ALWAYS DEMOCRATIC

The Master, in reply, said the Society had not always been democratic. He had been looking at some of the original rules of the Society. One slated. A ringer having been told to stand to a rope shall forfeit sixpence if he does not do so.' Another read. A ringer shall be appointed to a rope by the Master, or in the absence of the Master by the Senior Steward, or in the absence of the Senior Steward by he who knows hest.?

We have tried very hard to build up the Society in London, said Mr. Beresford. Many of you will recollect that a short time ago the Master was decrying apathy. Now they had a large number of people coming from Lincoln. Lichfield and Birmingham, and it was wonderful to see the spirit huild up for the Socicty.

The Society has had in the last few years a rather hard time. particularly the last two years, when we have been without our headquarters at Si. Martin's. Let me assure you. the Society is not dead; it has built up a strong nucleus. We have beld practices each week with 16 or 17 present, and we want our quarterly meetings to be strong so that we can return the gevture from our friends outside London

Palwise we have not had as successful a vear as las: year. We have had one or two peils worthy of note-a peal of London Major at Caythorpe. by our lincoln friends. and may I suggest to other friends of the Society outside of London to stir up enthusiasm for the Socicly
The Society had rung a neal of Glangow for the lirsi time and a peal of Pudsey Royal. and they ware invited to go 10 Bedford to commenorate a peal rung in 1761. He was pleased to say that they were successful in that attempt.
The Master expressed his gratitude to friends at Clerkenwell and St. Giles-in-theFields in allowing the society to go there for practices. They were also grateful for the excellent relationship existing between their Socicty and the College Youths. There was no truth in the rumour that they had increased their steepleage in order to make a take-over bid for the College Youths. (Laughter.) He believed that the Cumberlands could offer to any young fellow in Lon don the best opportunity-almost in the country-for advancement.

Mr. Ian Oram proposed the toast of "The Visiiors,' and Mr. W. T. Cook, in reply, said he was very pleased to hear of the progreso the Cumberland Youths were making. the Surprise methods they were ringing at their practices and that Shoreditch bells were now back again. He hoped it would not be long hefore they hid St. Martin's. He would like to see the Cumberlands put on a performance on 12 bells, like the College Youths.

I think. said the Master of the Ancient Society, 'that we do ring well for Sunday services at Si. Paul's. Cripplegate, and Cornhill, but our ringing is capable of improvement. It does not matter how well you think you are doing, you can still do better and unless we are ringing as well as we can we are wasting our time.

The Master: We hope that when we have our 12 -bell ringing of the standard of the College Youths, their standard on eight will be as good as ours.

The Editor also replied
Songs were sung by Ann Boon (soprano) and Ray Large (baritone), with Mary Towersey as accompanist. Before the evening concluded the Master. in a vote of thanks. not only mentioned the artistes bui also Jack Phillips for arranging to meet them at Cornhill. Jewry and Cripplegate. and the Vicar of Stepney for allowing them to ring on that delightful ten. Thanks were also accorded to Mr. ZassOgilvie, for the excellent arrangements.

MR. HAROLD G. JENNEY
It is with deep regret that I have 10 report the death of Harold Jenney. for just over 50 vears at ringer at Leicester Cathedral.

A native of Ripley, Derbyshire, he settled in Leicester in 1911, on joining the Police Force there. He soon made contact with the ringers, and before the 1914 war rang peals of Stednvin and Double Norwich. After the war was over he was one of the band that moved icicester ringing out of the doldrums into the Surprise class and during that period took part in the first peal of Cambridge Surprise Royal to be rung for the old Midland Countie: Association and several other Surprise Royal methods that were rung for the first time. He was also in the band that lang the first peals of London and Bristol by Leicestershire ringers.

Other outstanding peals at this time were 10.400 Superlative at the Bell Foundry, and 7.008 and 13.440 Cambridge Major at Stoney Stanton. After the second war he took part in many of the peals of Surpris? Maximus that were rung at Leicester, under the leadership of Harold J. Poole. Over the last few years his peals had not heen many, hut he was always regular for servies, ringing and practice, and he will be sadly missed.
^ member of the Police Guild since its inception. he was one of the first members of the committee, and later held the offices of honorary secretary and president. He took part in several of the peale rung for the Police Guild.

He was a man of the highest integrity, and of a quiet demeanour, always ready to give advice and if trouble at any time arose could he depended upon to bring peace. He spoke good of all men and ill of none. and in over half a century in the belfry no one could say that he had spoken a word in anger. It was a privilege and pleasure to have known him.

Failing health kept him from the belfry for the past two months, and on January 10 th he was taken to hospital, where he passed peacefully away on January 30th at the age of 80 years.

DBITUARY

The funeral service was held in Leicester Cathedral on February 2nd, at which many ringers were present, including representatives of the Police Guild. At the end of the service an impressive course of Grandsire Triples was slowly rung on handbells by H. B. Bowley, Mrs. P. J. Staniforth. P. J. Staniforth and B. J. Warwick.. The deepest sympathy of all ringers will be extended to his widow and family in their loss.

MR. CHARLES WILLSHIRE

Probably the oldest living change ringer died on June 21st at Mansonville. Quebec. Canada. in the person of Mr . Charles Willshire, who was 96 on January 2nd last.

Mr. Willshire was born at Birchington, Kent. and was taught to ring at Quex Park, about 1884. It was here on May 22nd, 1885, that he rang his first peal (Grandsire Triples), and his second peal the following day. His first peal of Treble Bob Major was rung at Gillingham on June 7th. 1890. when he was a member ot the Sittinghourne tower, and was conducted by G. Lindoff. In all he rang 26 L peals.

In 1890 he went to Sistingbourne, and finally in 1896 to Guildford and became a member of the Holy Trinity band, ringing froquently with the late J. S. Goldsmith. On December 26th. 1900, he rook part in three peals. Double Norwich at Holy Trinity. Guildford. and Walton-on-Thames. and Stedman Triples at St. Nicolas'. Guildford. Most of his peals at Guildford were rung in association with the late Mr. A. H. Pulling. He was also an accomplished handbell ringer.

From 1903-13 he was chairman of the Guildford District of the Winchester Diocesan Guild. He also represented the Guild on the Central Council and attended four meetings.
It was a surprise to his many friends when he and his wife and daughter decided to emigrate to Canada in 1913. They went to Montreal, and it was here that Mrs, WiHshire died in 1916. He afterwards made his home with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Allam. In 1957, upon Mr. Allam's retirement, they went to live at Mansonville. Quebec, and it was then that his health hegan to fail. Although he had lived in Canida for such a long period the maintained his interest in peal ringing and his letters home indicated his close interest in the Exercise. He was buried in Mount Royal Cemeiery, Montreal, with his wife.

MR. E. G. L. COWARD

We regret to record the death of Mr . Edward G. L. Coward, tower captain at Dorking. who died suddenly on February 8th. He was an excellent captain and 2 good friend.

MR. FRED WATKINSON

With regret we record the death of Mr. Fred Watkinson. aged 82, a well known South Yorkshire ringer and Past Master at Handsworth.

Mr. R. Roger Siavory corrects the footnote to the peal of Siedman Cinques rung at Winchester Caihedral on January Gth It was not the first 12-hell peal for the Guild by an entrely resident band. This honour was achieved by the Christchurch Priory Sunday service band on November 22nd, 1933, when 5,038 Grandsire Cinques was rung in 3 hours 11 minutes. The Winchester peal was, however, the first of Stedman C:nques for the Guild by an entirely resident band.
Could any reader send the Editor the figures of St. David's Doubles?
The peal of Bob Major at Whitchurch recently was the 25 th peal of R. E. Morris, of Hodnet, Shropshire.

Two quarter peals rung at Queenborough, Kent, in recent weeks have been attributed to Leicestershire. The error is regretted.

We learn that Mr. John F. W. Read, who was formerly at Ipoh, Malaya, is leaving Carlton-on-Trent shortly for Calcutta. A farehell quarter to him was rung at Sutton-onTrent on February 3rd.

Eight of the 12 bells of Tewkesbury Abbey have been lowered from 120 feet up the tower to the ground floor by Messrs. A. Fidler and K J. Jones. They are to be taken to Messrs. John Taylor and Co.'s foundry for recasting.

An attempt for a peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major was lost in the 22nd course at Lyme Regis Parish Church on January 27th, much to the disappointment of the band. It was to have been an 80 th birthday (January 26th) compliment to Canon C. Carew Cox, past president of the Salisbury Diocesan Guild and former vicar of Lyme Regis.
Two different bands rang peals at Stoke-onTern. Shropshire, in honour of the birthday of Mrs. F. Morgan, the wife of the tower captain. The band conducted by Mr. Harry W. Howard ask that through 'The Ringing World' thanks may be expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Morgan for the excellent meal provided for them after the pal.

GOSSIP

A senior member of a well known family of Fenland bellringers, John Moore, of March, has been ringing the bells of St . Wendreda's Church for 60 years. To commemorate this worthy achievement Jack, turned the tenor in to a quacter peal of Plain Bob. He has always jnsisted on slow ringing so as to bring out the beauty of the bells, and he is a stickler for good striking. Sound in wind and $\operatorname{limb}$, Mr. Moore rang the tenor as well as ever and an excellent quarter resulted. His ambition: to ring a quarter of Treble Bob and a half-peal. His motto: "Good riaging is music ; band ringing-physic!"

Sible Hedingham, Essex, ringers welcome back Mr. R. Rayner, after more than a quarter of a century away from the tower. He has already rung a quarter peal with remarkable accuracy.

Recently we gave a report of Mr. B. D. Price's electric change ringing machine. The machine has rung its first quarter peal ( 1,264 Plain Bob Major) at Lord Weymouth School, Warminster, Wilts. It was conducted by Nicholas R. Webber under the watchful eye of Mr. Price.

Mr. Jim Quinney, the popular secretary of the Cambridge Youths, has had a spate of bad luck. His shop and post office was raided by thieves, he had a bad motor accident and recently a sudden illness which necessitated his being sent to hospital. He is now making good progress and his fellow Youths hope that he will soon be with them again.
Great Glen, Leics, handbell ringers raised $£ 107$ 12s. by their Christmas collection. This collection brings the total raised since 1926 to over $\mathbb{L} 1,000$. Societies benefiting this year are: Dr. Barnardo's Homes £25, Wjreless for the Blind $£ 20$, National Spastics Society, Imperial Cancer Research, National Children's Home. Church of England's Children's Society $£ 10$ each. Great Glen Evergreen Club and League of Friends, Stretton Hall $£ 5$ each; Bell Repair Fund $£ 7$.

Mr. Albert G. Harrison, hon@rary secretary of St. Mary's ringers, Diss, jnforms us that they are waiting for an estimate for the rehanging of their tenor which at present is not going 100 well. The frame is good and the other bells go fairly well. Weekly practices are being held. hut ihere will be no peal ringing until the tower is attended to.
Twelve-year-old Deborah Yeates. of Jesmond. and 13 -year-old Michael Maughan. of Whickham. together scored their first peals on the heavy 19 cwt. six at Cramlington. Northumherland, on February 3rd. Their performances were up to the high standard which the Durham and Newcastle Association try to maintain and it is hoped that their next peal will be of Surprise Major

- R.W.' February 2nd, 1912.-

In these days, when the augmentation of bells seems an almost daily occurrence, it is certainly strange to hear of a peal of eight heing reduced to six. Yet this is what has happened at Brigg, in Lincolnshire. A correspondent informs us that the reason is that the church authorities and others who thad the matter in hand were afraid they would not be able to raise sufficient money to carry out necessary restoration to the church and bells, and. therefore, the two trebles were sold to help to defray the expenses. It now turns out that after the whole thing is completed there will be a balance in hand of nearly &100.... We have before now remarked upon instances of where, in days gone by, the bells of a church have been disposed of to buy an organ. and not long ago there was recalled the case of Sholbeach. where the poor and silly people sold the bells to buy a steeple. Brigg has done something almost as bad hy selling two bells when there was no need for such a drastic step.
R.W.' February 9th. 1912.-

The twelve bells of Great St. Mary's. Cambridge, have been rehung at a cost of $£ 400$. which includes new frame-work. fittings and girders, and the recasting of the two treble bells to be in tune with the other ten. It is intended that in future the bells shall be rung rather less than hefore in full term: peals and ringing of any length will take place only in vacations. except on very special occasions. 'It is to be hoped.' says 'The Church Times. - that in making these alterations in the amount of ringing the Vicar is not yielding too much to the somewhat factitious agitation which has been carried on against the bells in the Cambridge Press: some of the writers were found 10 be going on complaining of the disturbance caused to their rest and slumbers long after the bells had been taken away last term for the recasting!" Another example of the frequently unscrupulous opposition to ringing.

SHOPSHIRE ASSOCIATION

The Shropshire Association held its A.G.M. o1 January 27th at Shrewsbury. Wrackwardine and St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, were open in the afternoon. The service at St. Chad's was conducted by the Vicas, and the Bishop of Shrewshury gave a short address. The Bishop also presided over the business meeting.
The Deputy Ringing Master, R. H. Newton, and on: of the trustees. E. Fox, did not stand for re-election, and C. Smith (Oswestry) and W. Hayward (Hodnet) were elected for the two respective jobs without opposition. Three new area secrearies, who had been co-opted by the committee since the last A.G.M in help cope with the increised work created by the expansion of the Association, had their appointments ratified. They are T. R. Davies (Eilesmere area). R. E. Morris (Hodnet area) and H.R. Toogood (Shifnal area). No other changes were made.

The Ringing Master. H. Poyner, hegan his repori for 1961 by referring to the death on Jonuary th of Harry Edge. tower captain at Much Wenlock. who had been a keen member of the Association for many years.

Twenty-five peals had been rung during 1961; there were eight first pealers and one first as conductor. The ring of six at Hope Bowdle-" had heen rehung. and so had a ring of three at Acton Scott. Further rehanging work and augmentations were under consideration at other towers in the country. The duplicated report issued free to memFers contained for the first time a comprehensive list of towers. Practice nights. methods lung and other details were included as well.
The badges had been produced by Dowker's.
Birmingham firm, to the design on view the 1961 A.G.M., and 103 had so far been sold at the original estimation of 3s. 6d. each. Details of the Association outing in late August were described by its organiser, H. R. Toozood. The inclusive cost for a week's ringing holiday in Somerset is expected to be £ 10 per person.
After the meeting some transparencies of local towers and characters were projected. Further ringing followed at St. Mary's and at Atcham.

SIR HENRY TULSE AND CHRISTCHURCH

MR. Fred Price has been searching for carly history of Christchurch Priory bells, and has found the name of 'Henry Tulse ' as a signatory to a contract between 'The Assembly of Sixteen' (Corporation of Christchurch) and a Mr. Burden, of New Sarum, for the casting of three bells.

When he lived in Birmingham, Mr. Price rang regularly with Ald. A. Paddon Smith, and when the alderman was elected Lord Mayor of Birmingham in 1951 he was also Muster of the St. Martin's Guild. It was then stated that that was the second time in history for a lord mayor to be Master of a Guild of ringers, the other occasion being when Sir Henry Tulse was Lord Mayor of London in 1684, and also that year Master of the Ancient Society of College Youths.

In the hope of identifying the Lord Mayor with Christchurch Priory, Mr. Price approached the librarian of the Guildhall Library, London. A genealogical search into the Tulse family reveals that Sir Henry Tulse's grandfather was William Tulse of Avon (New Forest), gent., who married Rebecca, dau. of Thomas Urry of Thorley, Isle of Wight. His father was Wm. Tulse of Avon. gent., burgess at Southampton, who had a brother, Henry, of whom there is no record.

The librarian writes to Mr. Price: 'It would seem from this that the Christchurch Priory signature could well have been either the future Lord Mayor of London or his uncle. I am sorry that I can add no further information about either, and if no local information is forthcoming I cannot see how this identity can be definitely established. The Southampton connections of the Lord Mayor certainly suggest the likelihood of a close connection.'

The Guildhall Library obtained information aboút the Tulse family from Vol. 14 of The Transactions of the Cumberland and Westmorland Antiquarian Society, 1897, in an article on the Winders of Lorton, as a cousin (Sarah) married into the Winder family. Mr. Price is hoping that some reader of 'The Ringing World' is able to help him to establish definitely the link of Sir Henry Tulse with Christchurch.

ARE YOU A SQUARE?

$\mathbf{Y}$ES, 90 per cent. of you are! How oflen do you catch hold for a touch and find that Tom has caught holdor Dick, or Harry? Poor old Tom is deaf; he still pulls the same as he used to 20 years ago: they used to sound all right then, should be all right now - but it isn't. Dick. of course, never could strike: nice chap, wouldn't upset him for the world; leads wide at hand, pushes the bells right up in a heap as far back as the tenor. Strikes bang on top of you and in fact could bash anybody, anywhere. Harry, of course. can't ring 'inside,' so he bumps the tenor. To really appreciate him you want to ring round the back end. You come down happily to lead to find the tenor so late that he's pinched your place and you can't get your lead in.

How does the tenor sound to you on the B.B.C. interval signal-good? Well! well!! well!!!

You've met 'em - but are you sure you're not one yourself? Do you hear the treble lead? Do you wince when you make a bad blow, or do you find people making unexplained faces at you? Yes, you're right. they're in pain, and, brother, it's your fault, you're in the 90 per cent.

It's all very frustrating. If you really want to upset anybody tell them they're a rotten driver. And if you want to lose your best friend tell him he's a bad striker.

Why can't he hear the bad blow? It's a mystery to me. You ain't got cloth ears -or have you? And don't flatter yourself you're perfect because you can conduct, or splice 20 methods. I rang a peal on 12 recently. Before we got going the conductor said: 'Come on now, let's have some decent rounds.' A good omen, you might think. You're wrong - it was terrible. The treble and second rang at an 8 -bell pace all the way through. Nobody said anything. nobody wanted to hurt anybody's feelings-bah! And the pitiful thing is that he may well read this and it will never for a moment enter his rlrythmless head that it's his ringing I'm talking about. That's the trouble, you don't even know you're a square.

I'm getting old now, and seltish and irascible. I want to know who is in the band before I ring a peal. Three hours is too long to put up with your sort of ringing. And it's no good saying I ought to help the youngsters along. You're no youngster-you've been a bad striker for 20 years. Yes, I mean you, dear reader, all 90 per cent. of you.

ANON.

YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION

THHE winter general meeting of the Association was held at St. Chad's. Far Heading. ley, Leeds. on January 20th, when, favoured by excellent weather, the attendance was well above average. each of the Districts being well represented. Good use was made of the fine ring of bells, and following the statutory committee meeting a fully choral service took place, conducted by the Vicar, who also joined the visitors at the excellent tea that followed
At the business meeting the chair was daken by the president (Archdeacon C. O. Ellison), who welcomed members and friends to Far Headingley.
In moving a vote of thanks to the Vicar and churchwardens for the ise of the bells and enjoyable service and the choir for their much appreciated attendance, the president said that not only were their best thanks due, but gratitude also, having regard to the fact that permission and facilities to hold the meeting had readily been given after it had not been found possible to arrange the meeting at Leeds. as had been suggested.
In acknowledgment, the Vicar said he was delighted to welcome so large a gathering, and hoped all had enjoyed themselves so far, and would continue to do so. He thought ringers did much good work for the Church. and he felt it appropriate to arrange a fully choral service. He would most willingly pass on the vote of thanks and kind expressions of appreciation to his churchwardens.
A similar vote of thanks to the local company, and the ladies who had so ably presided at the tea tables, was unanimously accorded on the motion of Mr. W. Barton, seconded by Mr. L. Drake. Mr. A. Johnson replied, saying that arrangements had been a combined effort to try and ensure success.

The general secretary said that financially it was also a success, and had indeed worked out almost in accordance with their own estimate. The Bradford Cathedral company had derived much pleasure in arranging the dinner, and were hoth pleased and gratified by the response. The president congratulated all concerned with the arrangements. which were of a very high standard and befittimg the occision. It was unanimously agreed to accept an invitation from Mr. H. WalkeL, president of the York Minster Society, to hold this year's dinner at York on October 13th.
On behalf of the committee. Mr. V Bottomley moved that the maximum individual grant from the Bell Repair Fund be increased from $£ 5$ to $£ 10$, an approved cases, Morris, who had now held office for 24 years, with distinction. The thanks and gratitude of the Association were due to Mr. Morris for his services over so long a period, and he was pleased to announce that Mr. Morris had once again agreed to stand for election at the annual meeting in May.

The following new members were elected on the motion of Mr. W. F. Marston, seconded by Mr. N. Chaddock: Dr. Donald H. Niblett (Leeds). R. Gordon Corby (Wakefield) and Eric Dobson (Doncaster). The president drew attention to the course in bellringing due to take place at Grantley Hall Adult College. near Ripon. from April 27th-29th inclusive.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

MORE COMPLAINTS FROM MR. HUMPHRISS
Dear Sir,-May I thank Mr. Brain for his letter: Mr. Chaddock sees fit to distract with a derogatory personal reference and then forgets about it. A number of speakers at the Stoke meeting were not at all happy about the Chrisimas broadcast; Mr. Brain puts his finger on the trouble; he is quite right, it is the presentation that is wrong. The C.C committee says. and Mr. Chaddock repeats, that the last two broadcasts have been better but neither adds that the recording engineer will spend up to two hours to get about four minutes broadcast material. Who does Mr . Chaddock charge with misrepresentation? The C.C. members for years criticised adversely the live broadcast. preparing the ground for their take over?
What nonsense for Mr. Chaddock to state that the fee interests only me. I first took a band for an audition in the middle 1920's; our fee was $\pm 55 \mathrm{~s}$. I am sorry to read that Mr . Bassett, 37 years later. received only $£ 33 \mathrm{~s}$ Our fee now is in double figures. My old friend. the late G. R. Newton. rang me more than once to make up his band in the 20 's. Because the ringers' fee was not handed oveto the ringers some of his band would not ring. The late Dean Dwelly insisted on my charging the B.B.C. for 24 ringers for the first Christmas broadeast from Liverpool some ten years ago. Incidentally. I found we were 25 on Christmas morning.
Mr. Chaddock is wrong in writing that any of the young Woolton band have previously broadcast. I taught a band of boys to ring in a broadcast from Manchester some eight years ago: in both cases I sat back and listened. and for this Mr. Chaddock tells us that I am greedy. I would remind him that I am not in the bellringers' tea correspondence. I feel very strongly about Mr. Chaddock reporting on us to the B.B.C. Was your information third hand. Mr. Chaddock. and could your method of obtaining this information be called spying? I want to know. Before charging me with posing, Mr Chaddock. why did you not find out if'I was: you could have done so, you know, for the cost of a stamp. or do you prefer making false charges. then making inquiries?
Yes. Mr. Brain, I do read. The Ringing World. Mo you read 'The Radio Times'? I expected a litile more in the ' R.W.'. now we have a committee to select for and advise the B.B.C. Who copied from whom? I do appreciate Mr. Brain's humour and the excellent presentation of news by the Editor. but Queens is a milestone in our training, that was why I wanted them in. Our bells are 20 cwt. tenor with a very false struck fifth: my interest is in teaching bands to ring in say iwo years. I wanted practical experience of ihis improvement the Stoke Council approved. Now I know and I am disgusted that a C.C. committee should even mention it, knowing as they know the history of the last 15 years I regrel. Mr. Editor. your finding, from your caption. acid in my letter, I am afraid I wrongly allowed anger to creep in at this end. - Yours faithfully

Woolton. Lancs.
A correspondent informs us that the ropes have been renloved from the six bells at Monewden. Suffolk, and Ellacombe apparalus fitted These bells were cast by Mears and Stainbank in January. 1923.

LATE NEWS
We regret to report the death suddenly on February 1 lih of Mr. Herbert Worsfold, of Slough, aged 72 .

BELLS THAT MADE HISTORY

Dear Sir ,-I was very interested to read the article by Mr. Ernest Marris in your issue of February 9th, especially the section telling part oí the story of the bells at Long Clawson, Leicestershire.
His quotation from Nichols' great work The History of Leicestershire' of the local tradition that in the reign of Charles I the church folk of Clawson exchanged their great bell for a cracked bell and $\pm 20$ from the church at Grantham may have some foundation in fact.
Can any of the ringers at Grantham give information from their church records? (The great bell of Grantham is given as 32 cwt.) -Yours, elc.,
W. SMITH.

Long Clawson, Leics.

Dear Sir.-Mr. Ernest Morris' account of Bells that made history, and reference to a bell of Johannes de Yorke (who was Mayor of Leicester in 1370) rather intrigues me to ask if $1400-1450$ is the correct period of that founder's work at the tower referred to?
If he was Mayor of Leicester in 1370, it seems unlikely that he would be casting bells as late as 1950.
There is in Northants (at Great Billing) three bells. the tenor of $13 \frac{1}{2}-14 . \mathrm{cwt}_{\text {: }}$ which is a Johannes de York bell, inscribed in large Gothic lettering Johes Zorke. Up to the Last century there was another (a single bell) a Clopton, on the Northants-Hunts border, also by this founder, whose bells must now be very rare.
That ai Great Billing is a fine specimen of mediæval casting-a maiden bell. The other two are of later date-the second, believed by one of the sons of the first Thomas Newcombe, who died in 1520 , a bell of 1534, and the treble at Billing being one of the first bells Alexandre Rigby, of Stamford. cast, dated 1684.-Yours, etc.,
P. AMOS.

SAFFRON WALDEN BELLS

Dear Sir - The ring of 12 bells will be rededicated by the Bishop of Colchester on Saturday, June 30th-our Great Ringing Day. I am now making arrangements for lunch and tea for all visitors. As it is difficult to hire a hall at this time of the year, owing, to weddings and local social events. I am anxious to make early arrangements.
Will all ringers and friends who intend coming for this great event notify me as soon as possible. Outing secretaries might consider a visit to our tower, and will receive a hearty welcome.-Yours faithfully,

MISS SNOWDON

Dear Sir,-The many ringers who have benefited from the Snowdon Series of ringing books will be saddened to learn that Miss Snowdon, of Cartmel, Lancs, has been obliged to give up her home. and is now residing at Boarbank Nursing Home. Grange-over-Sands. Miss Snowdon, in spite of her advancing years is wonderfully alert and cheerful, and is keenly interested in anything appertaining to bells in general. 1 feel sure she would appreciate a cheery letter from ringing friends.-Yours elc..
A. ELCGAR.

THE PEWSEY PEAL

Dear Sir.-We would like to clear up, once and for all. any misunderstanding about the Pewsey peal.
Mr. Edward Mould, a local ringer, also a member of our Society, approached the tower captain and Rector-incidentally also a ringer -on the day of the rededication about : possible local peal attempt. They told him that an attempt by the local band would be out of the question for some time. whereupon Mr. Mould asked if he could bring some of his friends from Bristol University to ring a celebration peal. Both the Rector and the Pewsey ringers were very pleased that this could be done. especially as Mr. Mould and his fiancee would then be able to ring. Since none of the band were members of the Salisbury Guild, the obvious solution was to ring the peal for the University of Bristol Society.
We have been in conlact with the Rector who says that the peal was rung with his full permission and goodwill. He never imagined that the welcome contribution made hy the Guild constituted a right to them to ring the first peal. This is a view with which we entirely sympathise, for if any prerogative' was ever involved, then surely this lay within the village in the hands of the Rector. since it was the village which raised most of the restoration fund.
If any 'strings' were to be attached to the Guild's donation, then surely this should have been pointed out at the time it was made. As far as we know the Guild had made no application for the bells before the rededication.
Bearing these facts in mind we feel that there can be absolutely no reason to accuse us of bad manners or lack of courtesy to the S.D.G.R.-Yours sincerely.

> PATRICK J. BIRD
> (Gen. Sec. U.B.S.C.R.).
> ANTONY R. KENCH
> (Conductor of the peal).
P.S.-I must apologise to Mr. West ( ${ }^{\text {R }}$ R.W. page 75) 'if my so-called veiled sarcasm caused offence. as these remarks were in no may directed at the S.D.G.R. over the Pewsey peal, but represented my own personal views of the general situation regarding peals rung in 'foreign' territory by other territorial Associations.-P. J. B.

TIMING OF BOW BROADCAST

Dear Sir,-There was an error in the figures supplied by me to Mr. Birmingham and quoted by him in 'The Ringing World,' February 2nd. concerning the Bow broadcast. Somehow, ten precious seconds of Cinques were 'lost' in the original timing, possibly due to misreading the waich. The times given below were taken to the nearest half second from a tape recording, recorded and played back on the same lecorder, which has excellent tape speed stability.
Rounds obscured by Mr. Dimbleby for 35 secs. Changes begun after $55 \frac{1}{2}$ secs
Fading commenced after approximately 67 secs Fading commenced after approximately 67 secs. Total time the bells were audible at all 761 secs. i.e. the ringing not marred by talking or fading consisted of $20 \frac{1}{2}$ secs. rounds and 11 secs. Cinques.
I apologise to Mr. Birmingham for the mistake. Had I known the figures were being published I would have checked them
These corrections are of course. of purely academic interest and do not materially affect our complaint against the B.B.C. It would not have been unreasonable in a programme of this nature for the bells to have been heard for three to five minutes at least. Had the previous interviewing been more to the noint this would have been possible in the 20 minute programme.-Yours truly,
P. G. HARRIS.

SOME UNRECORDED RINGERS
Dear Sir,-I believe that your fears for a decline in the number of bellringers may be unfounded.
Naturally, the C. of E. 'Facts and Figures' cannot be based on anything else but paper relurns. How could it be known, for example, that the six bells of Grinton in Swaledale started ringing last year after a lapse of a decade or more, and that the ringers are all local boy and girl teenagers (except the undersigned)?

We have told nobody; we are not paid; we do not (and don't particularly want to) tigure in any returns; and we belong to no outside association as yet.

In fact we have absolutely no pretensions at all, except to ring the bells for Sunday services, and this we do with great enthusiasm, though with limited skill.

I suppose we ought to have ambitions to ring a peal of 5.040 Plain Hob Minor, join the nearest outside association, or make a tour of other towers. Perhaps some day we shall do all three things. But that day is a long way off, and our progress is slow. We feel that anyway we are performing one useful function (perhaps our main one) and that the rest can come later.

I am sure that there must be quite a number of other bands like ours, unrecorded in any way and therefore unknown 10 ' Facts and Figures'-or indeed to anybody else outside ihe immediate neighbourhood.
If this is so. then the picture you painted will be brighter than you had supposed. Let us hope so-Yours faithfully,
F. T. C. WILLIAMS

IDENTITY OF SURPRISE, MINOR METHODS

Dear Sir- I think I may be of some help to Mr. Herschell, whose letter, on page 92, asked for information regarding certain Surprise Minor methods. as I have come across six of the twelve methods he mentioned.

Seven Surprise Minor was first rung to a neal under the name of Fryerning in July, 1960 Thames Surprise was name Hathern Surprise, which was given as 6ths place Sedlescombe, when the first peal was rung in February, 1960. In the sime month the first peal of Redbourne Surprise Minor was rung, which Mr. Herschell gives as Welland. Shannon Surprise was given ihe name Blunsdon, when a peal in the method was rung in March, 1960 . Avon Surprise, lirst peal in July. 1960. was nemed Brentford, and Medway was named Cranford. rung to a peal in May, 1960.-Yours faithfully.
P. T. DALE.

Disley, Cheshire.

Dear Sir-I have information on some of the Surpise Minor methods which Mr. Herschell asks about.
Thimes was rung to a peal at Hathern on 27-2-1960 and called Hathern.
Clyde was rung to a peal as Caithness, but I have no note of the place or date.
Shannon was rung to a peal on 5-2-60 at Blunsdon. Wilts, and called Blunsdon.
Humber has been rung to a peal as Flamstead.
The first liree were clained as 'firsts in the melhod.' hut I do not know whether the last one was so claimed.-Yours faithfully,

MICHAEL J. BANGHAM.

DOUBLE SHIPWAY

Dear Sir,-With reference to Mr. Price's letter on page 91, giving the correct name of - New Duffield' as 'King's Norton Pleasure, the other method he gives as Kidderminster - Major' or 'Premier' has an older name. It is the Double form of 'Shipway's Principle.' 1 expect some of your readers will remember Mr. York-Bramble's abortive attempt to introduce Shipway's principle under the name of Steadfast, even attempting to get a Central Council ruling on the matter.
I discovered Double Shipway myself one evening, when "mucking about with figures," and sent it to Mr. Albert Relf to see if there was a name for it, mentioning that it seemed the proper way to adapt Stedman to an even number of bells. I also asked if he thought it could be rung to a peal. His reply was that he could not name it, but it had probably been composed before, when several attempts were being made to get an acceptable form of Stedmin on even numbers. He did not think jt could be rung to a peal as there was a large number of false course ends to the plain course.

The Rev. D. J Shearlock (curate) conducted the service, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. P. Flather, of Fordingbridge.

The annual meeting followed a splendid tea, which was prepared and served in the Church Hall by the lady members of the Guild, under the direction of Mrs. A. V. Davis.

At the commencement of the meeting, the chairman of the District, Mr. Fred Price welcomed visitars from Southampton, Fawley and Dorchester.
In his annual report, the chairman referred to the loss by death of the following members of the District: The Rev. H. Cooksley (Vicar of Lyndhurst). Mr. Martin Stewart, Mr. W. H. Godfrey, Mr. W. Fowler and Mrs E. Turns, M.B.E. As a mark of respect for these members the company stood in silence.
Mr. Price also reported that a number of clergy, who had always given their full support to the Guild. had left the District to take up new appointments. Among these were Canon Price, Vicar of Christchurch, who had now become the Dean of Hereford: the Rev J. L. Featherstonc. Vicar of St. John's. ## MR. KEITH WHITE us With the passing of Keith White, at the age of 65 years, many of us, and the village in general, have lost a very loyal friend and servant.

All his life he had been a real bit of Hagbourne and the only time he left the village was on active service during the 1914-18 War. Throughout the last war he devoted ali his spare time to Civil Defence. All through his life Keith had been happy and content to enjoy the simple life of Hagbourne and surrounding villages. His business was marked by his loyal service throughout the district and secured him many friends.
From his boyhood days he had been a keen player and supporter of all sporting events. He played football and cricket for the village cluh. and in these two sections he took over the treasurership from his father and carried it on till recent years. He, joined the Bowls Club at its formation in 1937 and became a trustec when the club was formed in 1946 on its present site. He also served the club as chairman and president. The uennis club was another venture he started.
Great service he had given to Hagbourne as parish councillor, school manager and memof Didcot Hospkil Committec. For many years he gave quiet and unassuming help to his wife in her valuable work with the Conservative Association.
For over 50 years he was a churcit bellringer and a member of the Oxford Diocesan Guild. It is at this moment that I must express my deep sincere thanks to Keith for the good companionship and very loyal support he gave to me over the past 35 years, the two of us working together as chairman and foreman of that very happy society, the Hagbourne Ringers. This work we enjoyed together in complete and happy harmony, which I am sure has jesulted in a such a gond relationship between the ringers and the church we serve. Right up to the last ringers' supper on January 23 rd, Keith carried out his duties in the faithful way We shall always remember
With our love and sympathy to Mrs. White and relatives, we conclude with thank God for the life of Keith White; Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'
A. H. WEBB and the Ringers.

MR. E. E. FLKINS
With the sudden passing of Mr. Ernest Edward (Ted) Elkins. Wellow (near Bath) has lost a very faithful member of its hand.
Ted was a railway guard and the church was filled to capacity for the memorial service with fellow employees. villagers from both Wellow and Midford (where Ted lived), and ringers from Norton St. Philip, Widcombe, Iwerton and the local company.
Reference was made by the Vicar, the Rev Ralph Thomas to the unselfish devotion to duty of Ted to Sunday service ringing and on practice nights on the bells that he loved so much.
Our sympathy is extended to his widow, Mabel, who is also a ringer at Wellow.

MR. E. G. L. COWARD AN APPRECIATION

The Exercise thas been sadly dismembered with the untimely passing of Ted Coward.
He was a splendid ringer, a God-fearing man, who spent most of his time and energy encouraging Sunday service ringing. Since the war he had helped to form bands at Ashtead and Dorking, and had done a considerable amount of work quietly in the Southern District of the Surrey Association.

The blind folk with whom he worked, teaching them the trade of brush making, were also greally grieved at their loss. So dedicated was he that he would often call in during his holiday, to make sure they were all right.
Although dismayed. we are all thankful for the life of such an exemplary Sunday service ringer.

TAYNTON RINGERS LOSE A FRIEND

By the death of Admiral Thomas Drummond Gilberi, a former churchwarden of St. John's, Taynton, Oxon. on January 24th, at the age of 91 . the local ringers have lost a sincere friend.
He was one of the churchwardens at the time Taynton bells were rehung and augmented to six in 1937 and his name was inscribed on the old treble which was recast and is now the third. He always liked to hear the bells ringing, ${ }^{*}$ and often inquired who the ringers were. Due to his long service in the Royal Navy, no doubt, he was very keen that the bells should be rung and the flag hoisted for royal occasions.
The funeral took place at Taynton on January 26th, and in the evening a quarter peal of Minor ( 720 Cambridge Surprise and 720 Plain Bob) was rung half-muffled to his memory by: W. J. Dixon 1, F. W. Goden 2, M. C. F. Collett 3, B. J. Hall 4, D. Kay Adkins (cond.) 5, T. W. Timms 6

SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

Some 50 ringers attended the Sheffield and District mceting at Handsworth, with Treeton hells also available during the afternoon. Methods up to London and Bristol Surprise Major were rung.
Canon Fernaby, the Rector, who presided at the business meeting, after extending cordial welcome to those present. expressed appreciation of his own ringers and the hard work put in by his Ringing Master, Mr. J. J. 1. Gilhert, who had 'carried the torch' since the retirement of Mr Fred Watkinson many years ago. The meeting heard with regret yeat Mr. Watkinson, who is now 83, was in the City General Hospital recovering from an operation. A message of good wishes was sent to him from the meeting.
The Society proposed to hold a day's outing in the summer. Next meeting, Ranmore, March 3rd.

TADCASTER, YORKS.-On Feb. 4ih, 1,260 Grandsire Triples: C. Banton (first quarter and attempt) 1. E. Lindley 2. P. Harrison 3, W. Hick (cond.) 4. W. Stad 5, C. Sollitt 6. J. Harrison 7, A. Barker 8. For the commissioning service of the Christian Stewardship Campaign.

South Wales District

The annual meeting of the South Wales District was held at St. Mary's, Swansea, on January 27 th. This meeting attracted a large crowd of ringers, drawn from a very wide area, and included some 22 ladies
The service, held in the Lady Chapel, was conducled by Canon Harry Williams, who warmly welcomed the Guild and expressed his delight at seeirtg so many young people present.
An excellent tea was served in the Parish Room, prepared by Mrs. Whitworth and the Swansea ringers. Mr. R. E. Coles sincerely thanked these kind people. Canon Williams and the organist were thanked on behalf of the Ladies Guild by Miss Dilys Hulbert.

At the business meeting an encouraging report for 1961 was given. Fifteen new members had been elected during that year and three meetings had been held, including a joint meeting with the Western District at Penarth. Miss Hazel Way was elected vicepresident and Mrs. Jarcqueline King re-elected secretary. Committee members elected were: Mrs. Bruten. Mrs. Whitworth. Mrs. James, Mrs. Coles ind Miss Rosemarie Jones. Five new members were elected from Sketty, Eardislea and Ebbw Vale.

The suggested programme of meetings for the year was: Bristal on June 2nd, Bedwellity on July 16th and Cowbridge on October 6th.

Southern District's Annual Meeting

A cold hut fine early spring dily made the visit of the Southern District to Frensham and Farnham for the annual meeting most enjoyable. The ringing in the four standard methods. with rounds for beginners, included several well struck touches.

At the business meeting, Mrs. Hawthorne, of Thames Ditton, was elected vice-president for the ensuing year, with Mrs. Christine Harbutt (20, The Strect. Ashtead. Surrey) to continue as secretary. Mectings for the following year were discussed, and it was agreed to try to visit Alton, Hants, in early May. It was to be hoped that more members would try 10 attend at deast one District meeting each year, as the membership now stood at 54, the highest for several years.

Joe Smith, head ringer of Hexworth tower. faces a milestone in his career-his $1(0)$ th peal The pros and cons of this momentous occasion are discussed with his wife, Annie, his accomplished daughter, Phyllis, and his schoolboy son, John.

THE HUNDREDTH PEAL

Joe, who was never a prolific peal ringer, always regarded a peal more as a means to an end than an end in itself. The purpose of it peal, he maintained, if not rung for some specific purpose such as an induction, a holy day celebration, wedding, funeral (haltmuffled). anniversary or similar occasion, should be to gain mastery in striking and method ringing, over a more extended period than was possible on a practice night, so that Sundily service ringing to the glory of God could be performed to a greater degree of perfection. In spite of the high ideals expressed in this resolution he was not, however, averse to ringing a peal for pure pleasure, and had rung quite a few which had heen, in the words of a namesake of his that once appeared in the footnote of a peal. 'Rung for the love of the art.' There were no afterthought footnotes in his peals, and he sometimes encountered opposition from disgruntled ringers who wanted to tag on some personal appendage to a recently completed peal. and although he knew that in this particular respect he was regarded as 'stub born' oi 'obtuse, he stuck to his guns.

The peal was not arranged for that purpose.' he tald a ringer, whose first-born had arrived the previous day and wanted this, momentous event announced to the fraternity in at footnote to a peal that had just been rung. Much as I would like to lill with joy ihe hearts of thousands of ringers, it would be wrong to say that the peal had been arranged with that end in view
He ignored both protests and entreaties, and was most annoyed later to discover in Belfry Gossip that the peal had been rung to welcome a son and heir to the ringer of the sccond.'
'Joe liked all his peals to be 'good 'uns.' 'A peal.' he slated on one occasion, 'should be the culmination of the joint efforts of the ringers concerned. the target at which previous practice has been aimed. the finished product of master craftsmen." He would not tolerate slipshod ringing in the peals in which he rang: each one was a polished gem of rare heauty.

Don't you think: asked Phyllis. who was fond of arguing with her father. "that in peal Wouldn't it be better father a perfectionist? Woukn't it be better, father, if you compromised a little? Your standards would still be higher than most people's. even if you fowered them somewhat. A lot of young ringers enjoy ringing peals, they love to see their names in the peal columns of "The Ringing World." they gloat over their sising peal totals. Why condemn them for doing that which they enjoy? After all, they aie hurting no one and they could be doing far worie things!

Goodness me, lass, I. don't condemn them. I am only too happy 10 encourage them. So long as they don't acquire a distorted sense of values and it don't become a question of a pearl at iny price," they can ring a peal every day of the week so far as I am concerned. But I have seen too many ringers pushed into peals before they were ready for them, as though being able to ring a peal was the be-all and end-all of ringing.

A peal." observed John. looking up from a massive tome on Atomic Physics that he had horrowed from the school library, 'may be regarded. I think as "The Concise Campanological Calibrator." as it is frequently used. rightly or wrongly, to measure the progress either of individuals or teams. It is like the 11 -plus examination: not perfect by any means, but difficult to replace by a better system. simply because it is doubtful whether a better system exists.
"In an examination, pointed out his father, it is possible to measure standards of achievement. There is no guarantee on seeing a peal published in " The Ringing World ${ }^{\text {' }}$ that any standard has been reached, apart from the mechods rung.'

That isn't true,' said Mrs. Smith. "Surely the names of the ringers who took part is sufficient guarantee on many occasions that a high standard of ringing has been reached, otherwise the peal would have been stopped long before it reached the publication stage. No one knowing you, for instance, would doubt for a moment that any peal in which you had taken part was anything but a good one:

Thank you, mum.' laughed Joe. 'But there, you see, you have hit the nail on the head. for the gutrantee holds good only for anyonz wo knows me and realises that I wouldn't continue ringing in a peal that didn't measure up to my siandards.

Which is where l came in,' said Phyllis. Have you got this week's "Ringing World" please, so that I can enter your last peal in your peal folio?'

This question was addressed to her father Ever since his first peal Joe had kept record in a separate folio. He had typed eacir peal out carefully, tapping away as was his Hont, with the forefinger of each hand, and with furrowed brow and anxious eye, he bestowed on the operation more concentration than the average conductor requires for calling Holt's Original. It had always been his practice to wait until 'The Ringing World was published and then to use the published peal as a copy. Because of his aversion to typing he often put off the evil moment until - a more convenient time,' with the inevitable result that when he was ready for : The Ringing World, it was not ready for him.

Anybody seen "The Ringing World " for October 10th?' he would ask.

Where did you put it after you had looked at it?' Annie would inquire. 'If only you would keep them all logether on the shelf under the wireless.

If only... Joe would mutter beneath his breath.

Didn't I see it on top of the piano under Beethoven?: Phyllis would chime in. and Joe would sigh and walk into the room only to discover that the 'R.W. "under Beethoven" was for October 17th. Why was it on these occasions one could always find the one hefore and the one after?

And then he would look. for the fourth time through the pile of papers that were 'on the shelf under the wireless:' and being unsuccessful repeat the process on the pile half behind and half under the cushion on the easy chair. After looking in the piano stool. in John's school's satchei and through all the drawers oi the sideboard and the pigeonholes of the bureau. he would declare someone must have i: the fire with it and then sink exhausted into an easy chair.
At which juncture Annie would put down her mon. walk acrosis and look carefully through the pile of Ringing Worlds on the shelf under the wireless. unearth the elusive paper and walking across to Joc silently place it on his lap.
Things were different now. Since Phyllis had taken over. any peals which Joe rang were entered in the folio on the Sunday following the publication of 'The Ringing World' which contained the peal. Furthermore. in her methodical and systematic manner she had indexed and classified her father's collection. listing the churches, methods and ringers contained therein. In answer to Phyllis' question Joe produced 'The Ringing World' and handed it over and soon the typewriter was tapping merrily, and the job quickly finished As she put the folio back in the top, lefthand drawer of the bureau Phyllis remarked "Only two more to you: hundied now, dad.
'Eh?' said Joe, looking up from the Sunday paper. 'Only two more?' and he rose and the folio from the drawer, examined it carefully and then replaced it.

So there is, he murmured, 'so there is. and he scratched his head in wonder.

That means, said Phyllis, "that the peal you tre ringing at Undercliffe next Siturday will be the 99ih.
'And.' continued Annie, 'the one following that will be the hundredth Mathematics, it may be observed: said John, is no longer the prerogative of the upper classes. Even females of the proletariat.

He was silenced by a well aimed cushion.
Have you arranged any peals after the one at Undercliffe?! asked Annie.
Joe , shook his head.
She turned to Phyllis. "What was the date of his first peal?'
Her daughter took the folio out of the drawer again and consulted it. November 27th, 1936,' she announced.

November 27th?' Mrs. Smith looked at the calendar. Why, that's a fortnight next Monday. It will be 25 years to the day since tic rang his first peal. Now just think of that.

When you go down to church tonight. she went on, turning to Joe. just fix a peal up with William and Old George. George will be only too pleased to ring the treble. Then, Henry and you three will complete the team. What were the methods he rang in his firs: peal?* The last question was addressed to Phyllis.

Oh, it was Plain Boh Minor. answered Phyllis. glancing at the folio. Annie grunted.

We want some:hing better than that for the hundredth peal,' she said. 'What about the seven Surprise methods from "Standard Methods ", You've been going to ring those in a peal for a long time now.

- Yes,' Annie continued. 'you are all familiar with the London and Cambridge work, and you were ringing Chester only the other wesk. If you make a special point of practising the methods the next two Wednesday: you shouldn't have a great deal of difficulty. Tell William and Henry to look up the methods in good time.

Thanks.' said Joe dryly. 'I think that about fixes everything
The sarcasm in his voice was wasted on Annie.

- Oh no it doesn't,' she continued blandly, I'll prepare a bit of a spread and then you can bring them all along after the peal. Old George wonit mind that, I know.
Of this. Joe was quite well aware. Annie's idea of "a bit of a spread was coloured by her experience as a maid in her younger days the local squire's residence. Squirc Tregarthy had been a traditionalist and if bis crumbling estates could not sustain a retinue of servants as heretofore, he still clung grimly to the pale shadow's of his family's former glory. Annie could still remember the sumpuous dinners, the roaring log fire. the silver plate and candlelight, when the locsal doctor. the solicitor, the mine-owner. with their respecLive wives. together with an odd collection of faded gentry. gathered in the great hall.
Annie could not supply the silver plate, and used candles only when the shortcomings of the electric supply compelled her to do so. hu her dinners were no mere pale imitations of those prepared by the squire's cook. and Phyllis herself was ahle to supply more modern exotic dishes, some of which had heen ushered in with the advent of the refrigerator.
"We mustn't farget." said John, that Con. Dewitt's " Travellers "Mave arranged to 25th. two days before your attempt 'Yes. One o'clock, isn't it?' asked Phyllis. Joe nodded.
'I'll mention it to Josh.' said Phyllis. ' but I don't think there is anything else on. I forgotten

Josh' was, of course, her employer Josiah Bertram, who was a good sort, but rather nompeus. It would be as simple for Joe to - mention it' to the Vicar as it was for Phyllis 10 ask the Vicar's warden, but the latter method made Josiah happy, and did nobody method me

No objection was ever raised by the inhabitants of the village. whatever amount of ringing was done : in fact most of them took 1 lively interest in all kinds of local aotivity, whether it was football, cricket, bellringing or the darts and domino knock-out compotition. It was in matters such as these, Joe thought, that small communities scored over large ones. He knew of a well known ringer whose name, which figured prominently in "The Ringing World.' was known throughout the land wherever ringers met and who had rung for at least 25 years at a cathedral church in a large town. One Saturday afternoon, when Guild meeting was being held at his tower. he was walking in the precincts of the cathedral listening to the bells when he encountered one of the wardens.

Bells sound nice,' said the latter conversa-ionally. 'Something going on?'
Yes, it's the monthly Guild meeting.'
Oh, and are you a ringer?'
Some excuse may be offered for the man as he had only been a warden for a mere two or three years, although he ought even then to have recognised one of his own ringers, who was, after all, a fairly frequeni attender at the church services.
It was unthinkable that such a thing should happen in a comparatively small place such as Hexworth. Here, in fact, not only would the warden have been familiar with the ringer, hut would also have been able to supply his life history and delineate his family tree. In Hexworth the ringing functions were as much common property as the football or cricket fixtures and it was not uncommon for Joe to be accosted in the street by someone who would ask such questions as:

Did you get your peal last Saturday?'
How. did you fare at the contest last week?' $0^{-}$even.
' D'ye think young Harry will make a ringer then? I hear he broke a stay last week!' (Continued next column)

DONCASTER AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

The best annual meeting for the past few years was the general verdiot of the meeting at St. George 's, Doncaster, on January 27th. The younger generation was in the majority and it was the young team (leader $F$. Newsome) at Adwick-le-Street, previously a silent tower, who received the 'Walker' Cup for Sunday service ringing. The presentation was made by Canon Jowett, who had conducted the service before tea.

In expressing appreciation to the officials for their good work during the year and to the Canon for his services. Mr. F. Brunt said if one took a look round the room 'the dying art' was never so much alive. The ladies who provided tea in the Memorial Hall were also thanked.

Ringing ranged from rounds to Cambridge Major, finishing at 9 p.m. with Cambridge Minor on the back six (tenor 30 cwt .)

Consequently in arranging any ringing that was outside the normal sequence of church services, although formal permission was always asked, it was really only necessary to ensure that the ringing did not collide with any 'extra' services. In this connection Annie could give a fairly accurate forecast of any wedding Jikely to take place during the next few months. although occasionally even her calculations misfired as when, for instance, Robert Wilkinson and Harriet Jones were married by special licence (a procedure that Annie regarded with some suspicion), whilst Joe. being the only undertaker in the village, could generally manage to arrange the times of funerals to the mutual satisfaction of ringers and mourners!

That evening in the belfry he arranged his team (as stipulated by Annie) for Monday, 27th, and asked the members thereof, with the excenlion of Old George, to study the methods, ready for the following practice night.

At Grundisburgh it was hoped 10 cclebrate the 75th hirthday of Mr. James Ben-

BELFRY nett (February 15 th) with his 1,500 th peal. It was a bitter disappointment when members of the band heard that Jim has been compelled to withdraw from ringing. In January, severe rheumatic attacks in both arms and shoulders developed, and he was in considerable pain when he rang his 1,299 th peal. A course of hospital therapy has brought some relief. His many friends at home and abroad wish him a quick return to good health.

Mr. H. J. Eldred, of Ealing, celebrated his 80th hirthday on Saturday, February 17th. His many ringing friends wish him many more years and many more quarter peals.
Congratulations are extended to Alan Barber on his first peal at Swaffham Prior, Cambs. - Long may he continue ringing in his present enthusiastic manner,' writes his conductor.
Every year. Mr. and Mrs. Butt provide a welcome spread to Twerton peal ringers visiting Dunkerton. This year's peal was a ruby wedding compliment to them, and the "Thank you' was extra special.

After a break of two years, Mr. Norman Harding has been appointed captain of St . Margaret's, King's Lynn, The Rev. Giles Galley is now priest-in-charge of St. Nicholas', King's Lynn, and he has been duly welcomed by a peal.
Through the tenor rope fraying about half way, a peal attempt to mark tho 40 th anniversary of the first peal at Scothern, Lincs, was lost. Alter the rope had been repaired a quarter peal was rung. Ringing the third was Mr. C. V. Cade, who rang the same bell in the peal 40 years ago.
The Misses Philippa and Elaine Dixon, daughters of the Rev. J. H. S. Dixon (Vicar of Abingdon) and Mrs. Dixon, selected Cambridge Surprise Major for their first peal, and according to the conductor, Mr. Alan Pink, both rang well. Their mother is also learning to ring, so the Oxford Diocesan Guild may have another mother-and-iwo-daughters peal.

GOSSIP

 ringers and joined by girls from the focal High school surst quarter. The school hand ring every Sunday morning from 10 to 10.30 before the 'regulars' take over. The pupils also join the older ringers when called upon and attend on practice nights.Mr. F. Fowler jun., of Stourton, Warminster, thanks readers who offered to copy 'Christmas Bells'; a recording has now been obtained. He asks if there are recordings of St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey and St. Clement Danes' (with oranges and lemons chimes).

Mr. Wm. Smith, of Turramurra, New South Wales, who is living at Holwell Lodge, Melton Mowbray, writes: 'I am deeply impressed with the warmth and sincerity of the welcome given to me in so many towers, and have decided to stay in England for the coming summer.

Having been ringing as a newly-formed band for 18 months, East Meon ringers now manage Grandsire Triples most Sundays. With valuable assistance from the Petersfield ringers, even the youngest members of the band, quite a number of whom are not yet 14 years old, can now ring Grandsire Doubles and are advancing to the stage of ringing their first quarter.

The peal at Burton Latimer, Northants, on February 3rd, was Mrs. Enid Watson's first for 11 years. During this time she has become the mother of three children and taught the eldest to ring. Her previous peal was Yorkshire at Olney, Bucks, in September, 1950. Her husbanu has still to catch up with her by ringing a peal of London Surprise Major.

Work on Waltham Abbey bells was started by Messrs. John Taylor, of Loughborough, in January, and includes the rehanging of four bells on ball-bearings. Unfortunately, when the headstock of the tenth was removed, a crack was discovered across the top of the bell. An order was given for its recasting, and the bell is now at the foundry. Due to the extra work. the bells will not be back for Easter as was originally planned

GUILD of DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

The annual meeting of the S.W. Branch was held at Emmanuel Church, Plymouth, on February 3rd, and was a great success, nearly 60 ringers being present from the Branch, with visitors from various parts of Devon and Cornwall, and one visitor from Somerset. Various methods were rung during the afternoon and evening, and rounds for the beginners.'
The service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. P. Young), assisted by the Rev. T. McCabe (curate). The Vicar extended a very hearty welcome to all the ringers, particularly to Preb. Andrews, Vicar of Chithehampton and president of the Guild. Mr. Young said he was brought up in the neighbouring parish to Chittlehampton, where his father was then the vicar. In his address the Vicar said he felt the message of the bells was 'to call the faithful.' 'to call the unheeding,' and 'a reminder to the sick that they were being remembered in the prayers of the church. An excellent lea was supervised by $\mathbf{M}$ Sims (wife of the captain of Emmanuel)
The business meeting was presided over by the chairman, Mr. H. H. Thomas (Emmanuel). Mr. T. G. Myers (St. Andrew's), honorary secretary, treasurer and Ringing Mastor, gave a very encouraging report as secretary and as treasurer. Twenty-seven quarter peals had been rung, and 15 peals. A record was created by Miss Yvonne Porter (St. Andrew's), who, although laid up for two months following an emergency operation for appendicitis, had rung at 114 new churches, and taken part in three peals and six quarter peals during the Mr. Very hearty thanks were accorded to Mr. Myers for all he does for the Branch.

Miss Priscilla Drake and Mr. B. T. H. Perry, both of Emmanuel, were presented with their Guild certificates by the Vicar. Four the Lifton area-Messrs. Freese, Pearce. Mead and Glover
All the officers were re-elected, viz.: Mr. H H. Thomas, chairman for the 12th year; Mr T, G. Myers, to his three offices for something like the 17th year; Mr. J. P. Sims (Emmanuel), Mr. R. Bould (Tavistock) and Mr. D. Wheeler (St. Andrew's) to the General Committee. Mr Wheeler was elected to a vacancy caused by Mr. W. G. Lavers heing now a vice-president of the Guild. Mr. Owen Thomas (Emmanuel), auditor, and $\mathrm{Mr} . \mathrm{H} . \mathrm{H}$. Thomas, press officer. Mr. T. G. Myers moved sincere thanks to ali the incumbents who had entertained the quarter peals and peals. The ringing of quarter peals as a means to encourage hetter striking was emphasised. It was also stated that to ring quarter peals on Sundays. except an occasional one, where there were 15 or 16 ringers. and 7 or 8 would not be required. was not felt to be helpful.

The Vicar and the Rev. T. McCabe and Messrs. Clarke and Metherell (churchwardens at Emmanuel) joined the party at tea and for the meeting, and they were thanked for their interest. Thanks were also accorded to Mr . Grant Arnold (organist), to Mr. J. P. Sims (captain). with the ever ready help of Mr. W. Collier for ensuring the ropes and everything was in order, and to the ladies for their united efforts in providing tea.

ST. MARY'S, STOKE D'ABERNON, RING

UNTIL a few months ago, this was probably one of the less popular rings of bells in the Diocese of Guildford. Its transformation into an effective and efficient light ring of six, which is the pride of the parish, is a lesson to incumbents and ringers to persevere in the face of difficulties. It is also a tribute to the Whitechapel Bell Foundry, who carried out the rehabilitation, including the casting of the new additional treble; with a tenor of just under 4 cwt ., it was the lightest ring they could remember handling and so presented a challenge to them, which they gladly accepted.

The existing bells were an assorted lot. The treble and tenor (both memorial bells) were new. cast in 1955 by Gillett and Johnston. The third was a 19 th century Warner bell. The fourth was cast about 1450 by the famous woman bellfounder of Croydon, Joanna Sturdy-and named Joanna after her. The second was cast by James Elldridge, of Chertsey, in 1687.

There was nothing wrong with the bells themselves; chimed or struck with a hammer, they responded freely and vibrated well. The second was the weakest of them and to this day is less audible than the others in the ringing chamber, though no weakness is discernible outside the tower. The ancient Joanna speaks after five centuries with a fine, clear voice in no way inferior to that of a modern bell. But. when rung. their effect was dismal in the extreme. The treble muffled herself and was inaudible both inside and outside the tower; two, threc and four double-clappered continually-none rang on and there was no incentive to accurate striking, for however the bells were struck they sounded just the same.

There were some ancillary problems. The belfry is no more than twelve fect square and open to the weather: for the little shingled wooden spire above it is a false one and the bells are. in effect. hung above the leaded roof of the tower proper. sounding through a continuous opening at the base of the spire--yct the steel angle frame butted so closely against this structure that no maintenance of some parts of it was possible. A large clock below dictated the run of the ropes. Last, but not least, there was a very inexperienced band, the tower captain himself having only been ringing a couple of years.
The key to the whole situation lay in the fittings, for the original bellfounders had produced a completely misguided solution to the problem of how to make light bells handle well: they had equipped them with fittings suited to bells much heavier. The headstocks were not merely too heavy, but made the bells swing at the wrong radius. The wheels were not mercly too large, but the spokes and rims were standard for bells three times the weight. The effect of all this was to slow down the speed of rotation indeed, but to slow it down in such a way as to upset the clappering completely; the clappers lay on the bells, and in addition the clapper balls were badly graded.
In an attempt to synchronise clapper action with bel! movement. the clappers were counterbalanced: when this proved unsatisfactory, pieces were added to the flights-the treble, in particular. looked like an ironmonger's advertisement. There were even lead weights serewed to the wheels.
A donor had offered a new memorial bell. It could onlv be a new treble, and even that would be a tight squeeze in the tiny belfry. The casting of this was entrusted to the Whitechapel Foundry, and at the same time it was decided to have frame and bells out completely and deal with the lot. The frame was to be shot-blasted and specially treated, so that maintenance could be forgotten about for many years, and for good measure self-aligning ball bearings would be installed, together with new lightweight ropes. The old chicken wire in the belfry openings was ripped out in favour of a plated steel mesh of great hardness, guaranteed to last as long as the bell frame-there had been enough trouble with unwanted ironmongery and birds' nests were not wanted.

So much for incidentals. For the bells themselves, Whitechapel decided to make the new treble (barely 1 cwt.) the guinea pig. If this could be made to handle and clapper well, the rest would follow. They were left to get on with the job and the operation was a brilliant success.

A week before Christmas, in a dense fog, those ringers who could struggle to the tower assembled to try out the new ring. The first impression was one of extreme fright. The new ropes, not yet adjusted for length. felt like lengths of elastic and on the front three there seemed to be nothing on the end of them. The new treble's slider was sticking and set on a hair's breadth. Even the bellhanger (a redoubtable City church ringer) was in trouble with his bell. But undeniably each bell spoke out loudly and clearly, clappered correctly and rang on as she was intended to. The new treble produced a high-pitched. silvery note of great sweetness: the remainder had been retuned and sounded most harmonious. Within 24 hours the first stretch had already gone from the ropes, the steeplekeeper had taken them up and the teenage ringers were rapidly mastering the handling of them. A formidable band from the Guildford Guild arrived hotfoot to see what we had got and were loud in their praises; and at the same time we ourselves were able to listen to the bells from outside the tower.
The effect excceded our wildest expectations. Over the churchyard, fields and villages in this ancient place, where people have worshipped for over a thousand years, the bells. led by the high. clear voice of the new treble, sang with great sweetness and complete harmony. Even their range was considerably increased. Many ringers will traditionally prefer heavy bells, but the music of this light ring is unique and, in some changes, produces a haunting effect that makes a tremendous impression. To produce this effect it is necessary to keep the rate of striking down and not let the bells run away with themselves: with control becoming hourly more certain, this was easily achieved and has already become habitual.
Before seven on Christmas morning the bells were ringing for service for the first time and the good people of the parish as the experts had been-were delighted with them. The moral is that no bells are past getling into good order and even the smallest of towers can have a satisfying ring.
One final touch. Something could be made of the opensided belfry, which would allow a view of the bells, if properly lit. So floodlights were installed in the hollow steeple; and now, on dark winter mornings and at winter Evensong, the congregation. on their they way into church. can see bells and wheels revolving while the ringers ply their ropes. On New Year's Eve. when the church roof was snow-covered. the silhouctles of Joanna and her younger brethren were thrown ubon it as on a screen. swineing from handsiroke in harkstroke, holding up, hurrying down to lead. In the cold, bright night people stopped to watch: there was no doubt that the parish had a ring of hells.

ST. DAVID'S DIOCESAN GUILD

Successful First Annual Dinner

RINGERS from Tenby, St. David's, Car tended the first annual dinner of the St . David's Guild at the Cliff Hotel. Gwbert-onSea, Cardigan, on February 17th.
Cardigan hells were rung in the afternoon and the Mayor and Mayoress visiled the tower and were welcomed by the Vicar of Cardigan and the capiain of the tower ( R . Pateman) They also joined the ringers for tea during a break in the ringing.
The guests at the dinner were the Lord Lieutenant of Cardiganshire (Capt. J. Hext Lewes), accompanied. in the unavoidable absence of Mrs. Hexi Lewes, by Mrs. Ponsonby Lewes, and the Mayor of Cardigan (Councillor I. J. C. Radley) and Mrs. Radley. Over 50 guests sat down to the dinner and enjoyed ncing afterwards.
The Lord Lieutenant. in proposing the toast of 'The Guild.' admitted to being completely unable to talk about ringing, but, nevertheless was delighted to attend such a gathering. He felt that the ringing of church bells was an important part of worship and wished the Guild every success in its efforts to, increase the knowledge of the art. He was particularly pleased to record that Cardigan had its own hells in the Church of St. Mary, and this was due almost entirely to the untiring work of the Vicar (the Rev. J. E. Jones).
In responding the Master of the Guild (Mr Gwyn Thomas) said that hefore 1946 the Guild did not exist and that occasion was the first time the members had been able to gather and drink the health of the Guild. Before 1946 there was no opportunity of attending Guild meetings except those of the Swansea and Brecon Guild and he was particularly pleased to welcome Arthur Hoare. secretary of that Guild, and the others who had journeyed from Swansea to the dinner. Another member he was delighted to see present was Harry Jenkins, captain of Tenby tower and one of the founder members of the Guild. He thanked the captain of Cardigan tower for first of all pushing the idea of the dinncr and for organising the evening.
Proposing the toast of 'The Guests, Mr. Richard Warburton (Ringing Master) said he hoped it was the first of many similar occasions. It was, he felt, an excellent ide.d to meet, with their honoured guests and friends. under such circumstances. Such support was very encouraging and would, he felt sure, help the St. David's Guild to grow.
Responding, the Mayor of Cardigan, in a witty speech, said as a churchman he had heard bells sung on many occasions and could tell if they were being rung correctly. Until that afternoon, however, he had never actually seen bells and had no idea what went on in the tower. He was pleased to remark that Cardigan bells, only a short while after the restoration of the ring, sounded well and obviously much effort was being put into the training of ringers in the locality.
Before dinner commenced a plain course of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells by Messrs. Heare and Richards (Swansea and Brecon Guild) and Thomas and Warburton (St. David's Guild).
The Master of the Guild read a letter of apology for absence from the president of the Guild, the Bishop of St. David's (Dr. J. R Richards). Grace was said by the Vicar of Cardigun and the loyal toust proposed by Mr. R. Pateman, who also performed the duties of toastmaster.

BEDFORDSHIRE ASSOCIATION

A successful meeting of the Biggleswade District was held at Clifton on February 10ih. when over 30 ringers were present. including several learners. Evensong was taken by Rev E. Hall, and then tea followied in the Church Hall.
The Rector took the chair for a brief business meeting, which was followed by more ring'ng, with Mr. G. Mayes as Ringing Master.
Next meeting, Sandy, March 10th

MR. HAROLD S. PEACOCK,

 Ely Diocesan Guild.Ona of the most important members of any Association is the general secretary. The general welfare of the members is in his hands. and the amount of enthusiasm he displays is often reflected in other people. In this respect the Ely Diocesan Guild is very fortunate, because in Mr. Harold S. Peacock, of Huntingdon, who has been general secretary or the Guild since 1959, they have a really hard-working enthusiast. In addition to his secretarial duties, Harold makes a practice of visiting every District at their monthly meetings during the year, and for most weeks of the year he visits struggling bands, and endeavours to help and instruct. At the Easter Monday annual meeting. he arranges for a large number of towers to be open. and gladly welcomes visitors from a very wide area. He usually has a typewritten sheet of directions as to the best route to get to the various towers, which is much appreciated by all.

Harold Peacock was born on September 1lih, 1919, in the same house in which he lives at present, with his mother, and was cducated at the Huntingdon C. of E. School. Like many other ringers, he started his service to the Church by joining the choir of All Saints*, Huntingdon, in 1927, and is still a keen member, as well as being at sidesman and a member of the Church Council for the last 16 years. He learnt to ring about 1930 , but up to 1939 there was very little method ringing done in the lower and change ringing was only practised in half-pulls from cards.

During the war, he saw service with the Royal Marines for six years, and was demobbed in 1945. with the rank of sergeant Upon refurning to civilian life. Je decided not to follow his previous trade of gents tailoring and outfitting salesman, owing to the coupon difficulties, so went omnibus driving In 1946, Harold started to get All Saints hells ringing again, helped by three others, who had done some method ringing. Soon word hent round by 'jungle telegraph' to St. lves, uhere lived that great 'spade-worker.' the late Frank Warrington. Very soon Frank was over io help, and bringing others, and it was not long before Bob Minor was under way. This great help and advice was always available until Frank Warrington's death in 1955.
Harold rang his first peal at All Saints' on November 5 th. 1947. when he rang the treble to Boh Minor, conducted by Frank Warrington. with other first pealers, and he scored hi: 'first as conductor' at Caxton. Cambs. on July 14th. 1954, in three methods. Up to date, his peal total is 188 , of which he has conducted 16, in Minor and Doubles methods. Although he says he has no great performances is record. Harold has, nevertheless. rung a large number of Surprise Minor peals in up to 12 methods. and several peals of Cambridge Major. One item of interest was that, when Prince Charles was born. along with two other ringers. he scored a peal each night of the week. from Monday to Friday, and attended the District meeting on the Saturday! He has not been so active of late with peals. owing to his job as a Hunts County ambulance driver
Before becoming general secretary and teasurer, Harold served the Ely Diocesan Guild as the Hunts District secretary from 1951-59, and during this time he saw the numher of resident members in his District rise from the middle 60's to over 100, fully paid up. Another record he is proud of is that whilst he was the District secretary, and indeed to the present day. he has never missed District meeting. Every year he arranges the annual tour of the Hunts District, and he has represented the Ely Diocesan Guild on the Central Council since 1954. He is very keen on ringing quarter peals for Sunday service, and keeps records of all. along with all 720 s, and he is never happier than when arranging a first peal for his recruits, and ringing with them

Other hobbies in which Harold has indulged include badminton. a game which he enjoyed with great gusto. He founded a club at All Saints' shorily after the war, but al:hough the club is still going strong, he has retired gracefully for the present, if not for good. Gardening is also a great favourite. both vegetable and flower. In the summer time he can often be found about $6 \mathrm{a} . \mathrm{m}$. on his allotment, which is two miles from his house, so that he can find time to visit a tower for practice in the evening.

Altogether Harold is a faithful servant of his Guild, who sets an excellent example to his members. By his regular attendance at all functions, and by his keenness for instruction. coupled with his methodical manner of conducting his secretarial duties. there is no doubt that he will ensure that the Ely Diocesan Guild will continue to flourish in a mainly rural area

APACE.

EASTBOURNE RINGERS' SOCIAL

On the occasion of the ringers social on February 17th. the Church Room at St. Saviour's, Eastbourne, at one time resembled farmyard. Any slartled passer-by would have been later reassured, however, when the sounds of fun and games gave way to the more familiar one of Grandsire Triples 'it hand.

The predominance of you:h at the 35 strong gathering reflected the age of the up-andcoming band. But just a few over-30's were observed shuffling for a favourable position in the musical chairs or cheating outrageously at charades.

The new Vicar. Rev. Mr. Whiting, welcomed visitors and thanked the, ringers for their service to the church. Tom Barlow, the excellent M.C., fully deserved the cheers he received at the end of an enjoyable evning

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

AUSTRALIA'S IMPORTANT YEAR

Dear Sir,-Here, 'down under.' we are,

 tope. about to enter an important phase in our ringing history. This year should see the extension of the Australian Association from its inception point of New South Wales to include all Australian States and towers. Also. the Cathedral here (St. Paul's. Melbourne) is about to open an appeal to improve the fabric. and a portion of this hals been set aside for the rehanging of the bells. Further, this year should see the resumption of regular ringing at the Anglicin Cathedral at Perth. Western Australia. A team is being trained. members of which we occasionally see in Melbourne. and are able to help accordingly. They have got a new set ofropes and progress is apparently quite rapid. ropes and progress

DIOCESAN BOUNDARIES

Dear Sir.-Mr. Corby tells us nothing we did not know about the anomalies of the Kent Association's 'territory.' That was not the main intention of my letter, neither was it main intention, of my letter, neither was it signed 'Cotton' or 'Clore.' I have no intensigned of making take over bids.
I submit, nevertheless. that much good could be done in the way of long term policy if some arrangement could be made whereby ia lower belonged to its own Diocesan Guild. if lower belonged to its own Diocesan Guild. if there was one, and if not there was everything in favour of decentralisation on that basis.
My suggestion of Central Council action was solely in the way of reconstruction. The Central Council is sometimes like the United Nations, authority with little or no power," Nut its objects are most daudable.-Yours. etc B. SHARP.'

EVERCREECH BELLS

Dear Sir.-I am in complete agreement with Mr. W. A. Haythorne regarding the shortness of time allowed by the B.B.C. for the recordings of the beautiful bells of Evercreech on Sunday mornings.
How frustrating and infuriating it is to switch on the wireless at $8.50 \mathrm{a} . \mathrm{m}$, to hear no:hing but a buzz, then a prolonged silence and then, just when one is beginning to wonder and then, just when one is beginning to wonder if there is going to be any time left for them. the hells come on for the odd minute O: iwo. only as Mr. Haythorne states, to he rejected quite often before they come into rounds.
Surely the B.B.C. wouldn't reject a Frank Sinatra record with five words still to go, so why, oh why, give these melodious bells this undeserved treatment?
How nice it would be to switch on at 8.45 a.m. and hear up to ten to fifteen minutes of the bells, as surely that was the idea when the recordings were made.
Wake up B.B.C., and let's have the job done properly, please!-Yours sincerely, EDWIN P. KING.

Dear Sir.-I wonder if Mr. Dove would like to know of another four-bell tower. The ring in question is at Stockton-on-the-Forest. ring in question is at Stockton-on-the-Forest.
near York. The bells are rung from the ground near York. The beths are rung from although when I visited the church ahout two weeks ago I discovered that the tying up knots were stiff and thus probably meaning that the bells weren't rung. It seems, from a photograph in the vestry, that the tower and spire are recent (within the last $30-40$ years, 1 should say) additions. Orizinally, the church should say additions. Originally, the church had a western bell-cote with two bells.had a western bell-cote with two bells.

COMPLAINT OVER BELLS 572 YEARS AGO

It would seem that Daventry had a very keen team of ringers even as long ago as 1390, according to the following from The Daventry Express' of January 21st, 1893.
© In 1390-1 a controversy arose between the Prior and Convent, "parsons of the Parish Church set within the same Priory and the good folks of the sume town, parishioners of the said Parish Church," the former alleging that the latter rang the Church bells so early before the hour of rising. so often, and in such manner, that they the said prior and convent, nere disscised and disturhed of their rest, and the less disposed to do Divine Service the day following. Considering they rose at midnight for Matins, and the latter complaining that the Prior and Convent made chase, and re-chase, with their carts and carriages through the Churchyard, claiming to have a way for their ease.

This case was decided in the presence of the Right Mighty Prince John, Duke of Guyenne and Lancaster, at Kenilworth on the 18th of March in the fourteenth year of Richard 11 reign. that the said parishioners should ring in the morning One Covenabull peele and ringing with one bell, at the levacon of the sacrament of the same mass. three knellings only afore the rising of the said Prior and Convent aforesaid and that the Prior and Convent shall have a way as of ancient time through the Churchyard. as their business shall require without disturbing Divine Service and that the gate of the churchyard to bc shut and with two locks and keys locked. One key to be in the keeping of the Prior of the Convent, the other in the care of the parishioners.'

One wonders what a 'Covenabull peele' was. and whether there is reference elsewhere to such a 'peele. . The possibility of its being a corruption of 'Conventual' seems to be discounted, as it was to take place 'afore the rising' of the Prior and Convent.

BRAMPTON TO HAVE SIX BELLS

The ring of bells at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene. - Brampton. Huntingdon, will shortly be auginented to six hy the addition of a treble, and a brighter note will sound from a treble, and a brighter note will sound from the tower upon which Samuel Pepys must have gazed many times.

On February 8th a party of ringers and other members of the church were present at the casting of this bell at the Whitechapel Foundry. The bell weighs approximitely $5 \frac{1}{2}$ cwt . and will fit in with a tenor of 14 cwt .. in the key of $F$ nalural. It was named the Magdatene bell by Miss E. Lenton, an esteemed niember of a well known family in the parish, who expressed the hope that she may ring to the glory of God for many years.
A special feature of the occasion was the presence of an I.T.V. camera. In the following evening's showing of Apglia News a good view of the pouring of the metal was shown and the excitement of the occasion was apparent.
It was a most interesting ceremony and one which will remain for a long time in the memory of those who were privileged to witness it.

The date of the tenor is 1631 and is inscribed James Keene. The treble is dated 1605 , and it is thought that the third also dates from that year. The second was recast by Mears and Stainbunk in 1934, and the fourth was cast in 1741.

ARCHDEACONRY OF STAFFORD SOCIETY

It was a pleasant change for members to visit their own county town for the winter meeting on January 27th, which turned out to be a beautiful day.
Having conducted the Society's form of Evensong in St. Mary's Church, the Rector joined the Jarge gathering of ringers and friends who filled the nearby hall for tea. After the meal members heard with regret that Mr. Derek Tranter had resigned the post of Society honorary secretary as a sudden promotion in his work necessitated his living in Leicester. He announced that Mr. Clive M. Smith, of Lichfield, had temporarily underlaken to fulfil this lask until the annual meeting in June, and ringers are asked to communicate with him with regard to Society matters. Mr. Tranter was thanked by the members for all he had done for the Society during his term of office and all best wishes go to Derek, Monica and their family for the future. The Rector of Stafford, the organist and not least the local band's lady helpers were thanked for all they had done to make this meeting so enjoyable.
Ringing took place on the ring of ten bells housed in the octagonal tower of St. Mary's Church, under the watchful eye of the Ringing Master, Mr. James S. Eastwood. All tastes were 'catered' for, from rounds and Queens on ten to more advanced methods. The 'titbit' of the day was the half course of Yorkshire Royal sung during the evening.

BEVERLEY AND DISTRICT

A significant feature in the East Riding of Yorkshire during 1691 was the continued growing interest shown by the younger generation. At the annual meeting of the Beverley and District Society at Holy Trinity Church, Hull, on February 10th, it was reported that 34 new members had been elected, an early breaking of the record figure of 30 new members in 1960 . These have been predominantly teenagers, and their enthusiasm is reflected in the increase to 41 in the average attendance at the monthly meetings. The Society's membership now stands at 149 . Sixty-four ringers attended the meeting, from 17 towers in Yorkshire and Lincolnshire. Visitors included Australian Brian Cox, who was paying a short visit to Reverley and the East Riding. The ringers were welcomed by the Vicar, Canon R. lliff, during a shost service which included an anthem sung by members of the choir and a plain course of Grandsire Triples on handbells.
At the business meeting the chair was taken by the vice-president. Mr. H. Parker (Bridlington), in the absence through indisposition of the president, Mr. A. E. Sellers (Beverley). The policy of holding meetings at rarely visited towers had been continued, with meetings at North Ferriby and Burstwick, after intervals of 12 and 9 years respectively. The new ring at Holme-on-Spalding-Moor had also been visited for the first time.
Mr. D. Johnson presented the Ringing Master's report, stating that 10 peals and 26 quarter peals had been rung for the peal, and 12 first quarter peals had been rung. Outstianding amongst the Society's peals here Plain Bob Royal, 12 Minor methods and 16 Doubles methods: Mr. Johnscul warned against a falling off in the standard of striking in the enthusiasm for ringing new methods. and stressed the necessity of good striking for Sunday service ringing.
The vole of thanks to the local clergy and company was proposed by the Society's chaplain, Rev. G. Storer. The retiring officers and committee were reelected, with Mr. J. Singleton (Hessle) being elected to a vacancy Singleton (Hessle)

MR. EDWARD G. L. COWARD

It was a great shock to his many ringing friends to hear of the passing of Mr. Edward G. L. Coward, captain of the St. Martin's, Dorking, ringers, suddenly on February 8th, at the early age of 53 . He had seemed his usual cheerful self at the previous Monday practice, and his last touch in his own tower was a course of London Minor, with four of the local band. On the Tuesday he had stood in an attempt for a quarter peal of Stedman Caters at Reigate, and this was his last ring.
On returning from work on the Thursday evening, he complained to his wife of having a pain in his chest. He went to bed, and within two hours he was dead. We in Dorking will miss him very much, both for his friendship and excellent leadership as caplain since 1957, and also his conscientious loyalty to anything connected with the church, including anyything con

Ted Coward. as he was known to his Surrey friends, and "Copper" to his West Country friends, was a true Wiltshireman, having been born in Mere on December 23rd, 1908, where he was taught to ring about 1921. His first peal was Grandsire Doubles at Zeals, on September 25th, 1926, conducted by his friend, Bill Shute, with whom he did a great amount of ringing. To make progress in that part of the country, one had to travel. and this Ted gladly did. usually by cycle and motor cycle, and his first 50 peals were rung in no fewer than 42 different towers in Somerset. Wilts and Dorset. In 1931 he became associated with the Somerset 'Wednesday' band, which met for peals and practice in different towers, and he was always very pleased when talking about two peal tours he had in Somerset in 1931 and 1932, when he rang several Surprise peals. under the conductorship of such men as George Pye, George Williams, Bill Cave and Frank Perrens. On August 30th, 1931, he rang his first peal of London Major at Dibden, Hants, followed by another at St. Martin's, Salisbury, on November 21st, the same year, both conducted by George Williams. One peal of which he was jusily proud was ringing the treble to the first peal of Major at Sherborne Abbey, on December 20th, 1930 . In March, 1939, he conducted a peal of Doubles $i_{i 1}$ four methods on handbells, in which Mrs. Coward rang 5-6.
Ted's trade was brushmaking, which he learnt at the Hill Brush Co., Mere, and where he was formerly a foreman. When war was declared, he was called up into the R.A.F., serving in the Military Police in Austria, Italy and Sicily. While stationed in the LonItaly and Sicily. While stationed in the Lonof Grandsire Triples, and one of Bob Major, all conducted by Ernest C. S. Turner. In 1948 he moved to Leatherhead, Surrey, to become an instructor in brushmaking at the Royal School for the Blind. In this work Ted was eminently suitable. His patience and interest with his pupils were always appreciated. He joined the local band, and rang several peals in the neighbourhood. including Yorkshire Royal. In 1935 he moved to Dorking, and was elected captain in 1957. Ted was always keen on instructing others. and would do anything to help beginners. A fine handler of a bell himself. one of his fivourite axioms, which helped to improve the ringing, was to place neople on the hells most suited to them, rather than let them catch hold in a haphazard manner. He always believed in simple touches for Sunday service, so as to get better striking.

On April 14th. 1956, Ted took part in the first and only peal of Cobham Surprise

Royal, rung at Leatherhead, and conducled by Albent Harman. This is not a Cambridge or Yorkshire variation, and the blue line is distinctly tricky. His last peal was one he conducted at Nutficld, in two methods of Doubles on April 19th, 1961, and this brought his total of peals to 181, including five on handbells. He had conducted 13. His penls was rung in 111 different lowers. He was proud of being a member of the College Youths, for whom he rang six peals. including Stedman Cinques at Southwark Cathedrad on April 15th. 1932. On a few occasions, he hau been privileged to deputise at St. Paul's Cathedral for Sunday service. Ted was always oi a modest disposition, shunning the limelight, and his work was always done as a service for others.

The funeral, which was fully chorall, took place at St. Martin's, Dorking. on Fehruary 13 th. and was attended by a large gathering of friends and relatives, including some 30 Surrey ringers, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Targett, of Chilcompton, Somerset. About 50 of his pupils from the Blind School were present. and also five of his former works colleagues from the Hill Brush Co. at Mere, with Mr. Jack Paul. who also represented Mere ringers, and the Salisbury Diocesan Guild. In his address, the Vicar. Canon K. D. Evans, spoke of the thought that Ted always had for others. At the committal service in the Dorking Cemetery four of his friends rang a course of Grandsire Triples over the grave-F. Oakshott 1-2, F. E. Roberts 3-4, Rev. E: B. Wood 5-6 and A. P. Cannon $7-8$, and in the evening a well-struck half-muffled quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung at the Parish Church, in the slow time of 55 minutes, by the local band, assisted by Frank Oakshott. Muffled touches were also rung at Mere the same evening. There were many floral tributes.

The deepest sympathy is extended to his widow and three children, Brian (a ringer), Lloyd and Heather. We have lost a good friend and a fine ringer, but he has left behind him a practical example of Christianity. May he rest in peace.

APPRECIATIONS

FROM SURREY

'An excellent capiain and a good friend,' said "The Ringing World.' How true.

It was a great shock to learn of the death of Ted at such a young age, after ringing with him at his District's annual meeting only the previous week. He was a friend of all, especially young ringers, always keen to help them in their ringing and a great believer in promoting the enthusiasm of young people by voting them into tower and Guild offices. Ted gave a real welcome to visitors to Dorking, and was always willing to help struggling bands in their practices and quarter peals. He was a keen churchman, which influenced his life to the extent that no one was ever heard saying anything but good of him, and he was dedicated to his work

One of his remaining ambitions in peal ringing was to ring 42 Doubles methods. Loyalty to his office of captain of Dorking was shown on one occasion by his refusing In attempt at Sunday afternoon peal in 21 methods. the first stepping stone, unless it methods, the first stepping stone, unless it could be guaranteed that he would be back could be guaranteed that he would be back in time for evening ringing. The order: of importance be attached to the various aspects of ringing is an example to us all. A tragic loss to the Guildford Guild-we will rementber him.

FROM SOMERSET

The news of the sudden passing of Mr. Edward 'Copper' Coward brings back a flood of memories of ringing days prior to the war, when he lived in his native Mere.

Under the wing of that great enthusiast. Bill Shute, and later under the guidance of J. T. Dyke, 'Copper' became a first class ringer and conductor. Our first peal together was of Grandsire Triples at Evercreech in 1927, and later in 1931 at Bradpole. He conducted his first of Major by calling a peal of Plain Bob, it being his first touch as conductor in the method. From 1929 to 1939 he took part in Bill Shute's Bank Holiday tours.

When the 'Wednesday' band was formed in 1931. in mid-Somerset, he was a founder members. During these years we rang quite a number of peals together to say nothing of the vas: number that fell by the waysids. In the early 1930 's he was invited to join in one of the late Canon Coleridge's Somerset peal tours, and rang his first peals of Surprise Major in exemplary fashion. As he matured he settled down to become an excellent tutor and did yeoman service in the Nortin Dorset Branch as a Ringing Master and in training local bands.

Copper, was truly a man of many parts Besides his ringing interest he was a keen chorister and an excellent musician, being a very keen bandsman, and above all he was a splendid and sincere churchman in every sense. In all things he undertook his aim was always perfection. He had no use for the slipshod and carcless type, nor was he backward in making this known to the culprit, without fear or favour, in that delighiful Wilishire accent we knew so well. Although he hud lived in Surrey for some years his visits to friends in the West were real occisions, and he never tired of talking of our days together. It was fitting that the funeral service was attended by another close friend and member of the 'Wednesday' band, Fred Targett, of Midsomer Norton
The passing of 'Copper' Coward leaves us the poorer in the loss of his person, but the example of his enthusiasm. earnestness and forthright character will ever remain with us.

Evercreech.

Mr. Herbert Worsfold

The death occurred suddenly on February 11 th of Mr. Herbert Worsfold, of Slough Bucks, aged 72 years. Originally a member of the band at Egham, Surrey, he did his early ringing in that area, and rang a few peals of Grandsire Triples in the 1920's. His chief 'guide' was William Welling (who also died this year), and Mr. Welling conducted his first peal at Wraysbury. Bucks, in July, 1925.
In 1928, Mr. Worsfold moved to Slougn. where he was buyer for a large drapery store, which firm he served for 33 years and, although officially retired, he still went to help during the busy part of the week

Bert, Worsfold was not a great ringer; as his work precluded his attendances at meet ings and peal attempts, but prior to World War II he was a most regular Sunday ringer at Slough Parish Church. Since the war one saw little of him in the belfry, partly becaus: of his wife's long illness. Only a fortnight before his death he spoke of his lonenight before his death he spoke of his loneliness since his wife's decease, a year or so ago, and said he was thinking of taking up ringing again, but it was not to be! He always maintained his interest in ringing, and one never met him without his opening up that subject. Domiciled between Slough and Burnham. he was a regutar worshipper at Burnham church.
Mr. William Henley and Mr. W. Birmingham represented the Slough bellringers at his funeral. Memorial quarter peals were rung at Windsor and Slough.

BIRMINGHAM UNIVERSITY SOCIETY OUTING

For its first outing of the year the Birmingham University Society spent a day among the sands:one towers of Staffordshire and Shropshire. A fleet of Fords left the Union at 11.15 a.m. and brough: us to Halesowen, where a notice asking us to support the rope fund, was found soon after the rope of the sixth had given up at the end of a course of Bob Major; however, a splice was effected in time to give us all a chance to sample the enjoyable eight. On then to Kinver, where we lunched on sandwiches and flasks of coffee. The sound of these bells running round to Cambridge welcomed Pe:e Warren, who joined us at this point, with his venerable vehicle.
St. Mary's. Enville, has a magnificent tower, with bells to match. even if the ropes were a hit long. A sack produced for Pat to kneel on whilst ringing the sixth disclosed a crate of beer bottles, and a polite notice in the corner asked us to sefrain from smoking in the belfry for fear of blowing up the lawn mower!
The policeman who directed us to St .
Marys. Bridgnorth. was rather bewildered to Mary's, Bridgnorth. was rather bewildered to see a, whole convoy of vehicles execute ad use of the light eight before walking up to St. Leonard's. the interior of which showed an interesting contrast with St. Mary's. Some good music was produced on the fine heavier eight.

We had some trouble locating the lights at Claverley, but eventually the Vicar located us, and made us welcome. Later he directed us to our last tower of the day. Wombourn, where the belfry is reached by a ladder.
Our thanks are due to all the incumbents and Ringing Masters for the use of their bells. and to our drivers who got us to all the towers on time.

OBITUARY

MR. CHARLES WILLSHIRE AN APPRECIATION

Mr. A. C. Hazeldine writes: The ohituary of Mr. Charles Willshire does not give an adequate idea of his enthusiasm and the importance of his impact on change ringing in portiance of his impact on change ringing in Guildford and West Surrey. When he arrived in 1896 there was an active band at St. Nicolas', Guildford recently bereaved of two leading members-Mr. F. Benne:t and Mr. F W. J. Rees. Those remaining were inadequately led by Mr. J. J. Jones and an employee of his, Mr. Frank Blondell.
The position at Holy Trinity was worse: the bells were nearly unringable. and such ringing as was possible was call changes. The hand included the late Mr. A. H. Pulling. With the arrival of Canon Grant from Aylesford, where he might have met Mr. Willshire. repairs to the frame and fittings were put in hand. Mr. Willshire was an expert insiructor and his influence on the young ringers at Holy Trinity and Sc. Nicolas resulted that at Holy Trinity there was a band able to ring a peal when the repairs were completed. The "ell known Holv Trinity hand of that time was largely Mr. Willshire's creation. and of the old members only Mr. Henry Hu:ton is now alive.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD  Marlborough Branch  Over 40 ringers were attracted, on February

 17th. to the Marlborough Branch meeting at Aldbourne-the home tower of the popular secretary and chairman of the Branch (Arthur Palmer and George Newman). These bells, the only ringable octave in the Branch's area, will be the magnet of peal ringers, as vast improvements have been made to ringing arrangements. Instead of a ground floor ring, the long draught has been more than halved by ringing over 30 feet up in the clock tower.There was an hour's ringing on the smoothgoing bells before the service, conducted by the Vicar (the Rev. C. C. Perry), with Mr. J. Taylor as organist. The company were afterwards guests of Mr. and Mrs. Keen, of Aldbourne, to tea. They and the Vicar were heartily thanked and afterwards touches were rung on handbells, cast at Aldbourne and believed to be over 200 years old. A collection was given to the Belfry Fund. Ringing continued in the evening and ranged from rounds to Cambridge Surprise. W.A.E.

Devizes Branch

A successful meeting of the Davizes Branch was held at Bromham on February 10th. Over 40 people attended the service, conducted by the Vicar, and afterwards partook of an excellent tea, served by the ladies and friends of the local band.
The fine ring of six was put to good use, the methods rung ranging from rounds to Canibridge and London.

50 YEARS AGO

- R.W.' February 23rd, 1912.-

A correspondent invites us to appeal to those who do a great deal of peal ringing to give a little of their time in visiting towers where beginners are struggling to make headway in the art. He says: 'I see every week the same names occurring, sometimes ringing two peals in the week. Although I have every admiration for the skill of these men it seems to me that if they spent some of their time in assisting some of us beginners they would b. doing still more to further the cause of ringing. There is no doubt that the art would henetit if a few more of the experts were to give their services in assisting those on the I. wer rungs of the campanological ladder!

- R.W.' March 8th. 1912. -

Birmingham can boast of two of the most remarkable products in the ringing Exercise. One is Mr. John Car:er's ringing machine, the ingenuity of which is so extraordiaary that it almost passes belief. It will ring the extent or any number of changes on any number of or any number of changes on any number of - yet to be devised: it will print all thie changes or only the course ends as it rings them, according to desire ; it will print the diagram of the method and record the number of changes rung.
The other remarkable product is Mr. Harry Withers. the man who, without having seen the figures of the peal. took down correctly all the course ends of the record peal of l.ondon Surprise, and who 'called' a peal of Superlative while standing outside the tower and pressing an electric button which rang a bell $u p$ in the ringing chamber when the bobs had to be made.

UNIVERSITY OF WALES SOCIETY'

The annual 'Rag Week' tour was held in the Marches of Herefordshire on February 15 th and 16th. The tour was based on 'The Woodlands,' Glasbury-on-Wre, overlooking the pinnacled tower of St. Peter's.
The tour began with a quarter peal of Doubles at Clifford on the Thursday evening. Luckily the Vicar's tape recorder ran out just before a bad patch at the end of the quarter! Ringing at Glasbury and Talgarth, where we were most grateful to the local ringers for allowing us to join their practice, ended the day.
On the Friday we rang at Clyro, Whitney Bredwardine, Tyberton (where we were joined by the Rev., and Mrs. Richards) and Madley before stopping for lunch. At Madley, one, who shall be nameless, managed to lasso a bench with her rope, causing considerable cons:ernation amongst the assembled company. In the gale we were all amused to see the hands of Madley clock 'speeding, around its face. After lunch there followed ringing at Eaton Bishop. Kingstone, Ewyas Harold and Abbey Dorc.
The highlights of the tour were probably a course of Cambridge on the beautifully-toned bells at Madley, and some perfect Stedman at Ewyas Harold. The church at Abbey Dore, once a Cistercian abbey, with its anticlockwise six and flickering lamplight, proved a fitting end to the tour. Its huge area and great stone altar, its almost awful majesty, made ii well worth the trouble of finding.
The A.G.M. was held later in the evening at Pe.erchurch. where the following elections were made: Master, 1962-63, Colin A. Lewis (Aberystwyth); secretary, Miss Gillian E. Graney (Aberystwyth); college secretaries to be decided at the next meeting. Mr. P. K. Else and Mr. J. G. Sutton, boih of Aberystwyth, were admitted to the Society. It was decided to add the following regulation to the conslitution: The Master and Secretary, or Chairman of the previous meeting and Secretary. shall have power to alter the venue of meetings and tours if, in thair view. necessary: The summer tour will take the form of a week-end trip towards the end of the long vacation. The venue will be decided by the Master, secretary and college secretaries.
The tour was attended by representatives of Aberystwyth and Lampeter Ringing ranged from rounds to Surprise Minor.
We should like to thank all the incumbents and tower captains for allowing us to use thelr bells, and especially the incumbents of Glashury and Whitney, for their kindness in providing refreshments.

THE THEORY OF CHANGE RINGING   Some Elementaty Points

   Some Elementaty Points}

By A. W. T. CLEAVER

The principles upon which the production of changes is based are very simple, much simpler than many ringers realise. Some knowledge of these matters is not only of great interest for its own sake, but can be of considerable practical help. Unfortunately the subject is confused by the various meanings given to some of the technical terms. In these notes only old established terms are used, but an attempt is made to clarify their meanings.

THE PRODUCTION OF CHANGES

The term 'change' is apt to be used ambiguously. It should properly refer to the difference between any one combination and its predecessor or successor: the combination atself is better referred to as a 'row,' at least for theoretical purposes.

Successive rows are produced by reversing the positions of adjacent pairs of bells. Adjacent pairs only are reversed because of the practical difficulties of moving a bell by more than one place at a time. As an example consider the production of changes on four bells.

(I)

Starting with rounds we first reverse the positions of the first two and the last two bells, 1 and 2 and 3 and 3 . A repetition of this process would bring us back to rounds so for the next change the first bell in the row is Ieft undisturbed and the next pair is reversed. This obliges us to leave the last bell in the row where it was as well. The operation for the next change is the same as that for the first, for the fourth change the same as that for the second and so on until we finally return to rounds. the row from which we started. In (I) the pairs of bells which are reversed are shown by crosses. The procedure is universal in change ringing; the varioumethods, as will be shown later, are all produced in this way, the difference between them being in the selaction of the bells reversed or left undisturbed

On odd numbers of bells the procedure is the same except that one bell must always be left alone.

For the first change the first and second pairs of bells were reversed. Jeaving the last one alone. Repeating this would return us to rounds so for the next change the first bell is left and the remaining two pairs reversed, and so on. On larger numbers of bells the procedure is the same except that there are a greater number of pairs to reverse, On any even number two bells must be left alone for each alternate change; on any odd number one bell must be so treated in each change.

METHODS
The maximum number of possible combinations on four bells (the extent) is the number known to mathematicians as Fictorial 4 (4!) which is equal to $4 \times 3 \times 2 \times 1=24$. In the diagram of changes on four bells (I) rounds reappeared after only eight changes; eight different rows were produced. How are the other 16 oblained? Suppose the procedure of diagram ( 1 ) is repeated with on alteration.

This making of second's place has caused the other two bells to execute a dodge. The method is, of course, Bob Minimus. The treble bell is not affected by this variation in the means by which the changes are produced, in each of the three leads shown above it follows the same plain hunting puth among the other (working) bells.
There are other ways of achieving the same result, e.g..

Rounds has again reappeared after 24 changes but the fourth change in (I) has been altered instead by leaving the third and lourth bells undisturbed rather than the first and fourth, causing the bells in $1-2$ to dodge. The treble still pursues its plain huntirg path and the method will be recognised as Reverse Bon Minimus. Both alterations can be incorporated; the resulting method is Double Boh Minimus.
If the procedure shown in (I) is applied to six beils rounds reappear after 12 changes.

This is the plain course of Bob Minor. five leads each containing 12 sows making 60 in all. Once again the making of second's place has caused the other working bells to dodge whilst the treble continues to plain hunt. For the present we will leave the question of obtaining the whole extent and Jook a little moie deeply into the construction of methods on six bells.
In Minimus (four bell changes) there are only two changes where it is possible to introduce alterations in the bells we choose to leave undisturbed (the place making bells) without either affecting the plain hunting treble or causing any bell to stay in one place for more than two sows in succession. In Minor the choice is far less restricted. We might. for instance. decide to alter (V) by making first's and fourth's place at the second change giving Before going any further there is another factor to be kept in mind: methods should be sy mmetrical. In the example above (VII first's and fourth's place were made at the second change. To make the lead symmetrical the same places must be made at the second change from the end.

This is the complete lead. Note that the beginning and end are also determined by the principle of summetry. In a treble dominated method the lead contains two rows with the treble in each position and each halflead one such row. The halfleads are arranged like the object and image in a mirror placed on the line between them. Hence the places in the second half occur in the reverse order to that in which they occur in the first.

HERTFORD COUNTY ASSOCIATION

St. Albans District

The annual District meeting was held at St. Albans on January 20th. At St. Peter's during the afternoon 46 people, including members from about half the District's towers. had the pleasure of ringing Cambridge Royal, standard methods and rounds. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Ferguson.
After an excellent tea. served by local ringers and their wives, the president, Mr. G W. Seaman. acted as chairman at the business meeting. The company stodd in silence remembering members who had passed away during 1961 . They were Messis. J. 1. Kentish. F. W. Brinklow. W. Hill, B. A. Cornell and a friend at Tewin, Mr. C. Jeeves. A suggestion for the next meeting to be held at Hatfield was accepted. Many new members were elected.

In her report, the secretary (Mrs. Coburn) said that there had been a good attendance at meetings during 1961 and an addition of 25 new members. Attendance for Sunday service ringing had been goed. hut members should remember the jeason behind their ringing activities. She concluded by thanking members for their support and hoped that the improvement in District affairs would continue during 1962. A statement of accounts was read.
A proposal by Mr. G. W. Debenham that officers should be re-elected 'en bloc' was accepted. The officers are: Honorary secretary and treasurer, Mrs. M. A. Coburn : Ringing Master, Mr. G. Penney: District Committee, Messrs. G. Penney, G. Dodds, F. Jacklin. J. Cull, S. Huckle. Mrs. M. A. Cohurn and Miss C. Rimmer: General Committee. Messrs. G. Dodds and F. Jacklin: 'R.W.' represent:1tive, Miss C. Rimmer. Mr. H. V. Frost (St. Albans) was nominated as president of the Association.

Much discussion was caused by a comnittee recommendation to alter the name of the Association slightly and ope of the rules concerning the object of the Exercise. The committee propositions, that a list of special methods, coupled with a list of towers to suit all stages of advancement. be used in 1962, and that the March meeting, should be replaced by a visit to Carter's Ringing Machine were adopted. Mr. G. . Penney thanked the District for its support at meetings. and Mr. S. Huckle proposed a vote of thanks to the Vicar for the use of the bells and the ladies for an excellent tea.

CIRENCESTER GOLDEN WEDDING

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lewis, of 31. Chester Street. Cirencester, Gios, who celebrated their golden wedding on February 15 th.
Owing to a slight attack of thrombosis about 18 months ago, Mr. Lewis cannot climb the 92 steps at Cirencester Parish Church, where he has given many years of faithful service. He does, however, ring at Watermoor for services and practices.

On February 17th Mr. Lewis collected a band from some of his oldest ringing friends and at Holy Trinity, Watermoor, they rang a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples. The band consisted of W. H. Hayward 1. W, A. Godwin 2. H. L. Cooke 3. E. H. Jefferies 4, F. J. Lewis jun. (cond.) 5. P. Morgans 6, P. J. Lewis (grandson) 7, W. Wrigley 8. The quarter was followed by a touch of Stedman Triples, conducted by Mr. F. J. Lewis sen.
Later the ringers were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis at their home when handbells were brought into use.

EAST GRINSTEAD GUILD

The 9th annual dinner of the East Grinstead and District Guild was held at 'The Culverden Arms. Tunbridge Wells, on February 10 th. After last year's poor support, the organisers had some doubts, but with plenty of push and propaganda 50 tickets (the limit of seating) were sold and the 'best ever' resulted.
An excellent meal put everyone in the right mood for the speeches and entertainment.
When the loyal toast had been drunk, Mr. B. V. Collison gave a welcome to the president, thanking him for his interest and support. The Rev. J. R. Missen, in reply, was in his most jovial mood, amusing the company with jokes and anecdotes, but he was very sincere when he thanked the fingers for their service to the church, stressing the fact that the clergy were very conscious of the effort and loyally of their local bands.
The Guild chairman, Mr. B. E. Jeffrey, welcomed members who lived out of the Guild area. He proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. E. J. Ladd and Margaret, for the hard work that they had put in. in arranging the dinner, and to Mr. R. latge for arranging the entertainment.
While the tables were being cleared the handbeils were put to good use by Mrs. F. I. Hairs, Miss H. Oakshett. Miss M. Ladd and Messrs. F. I. Hairs, E. J. Ladd and G. Fry
For the entertainment, Mr. R. Large. with friends from Tonbridge, sang songs. duets and a quartet, with dancing by another young lady, all accompanied by Mrs. E. J. Ladd at the piano. George Fry entertained with his monologues, and later Godfrey Fitzhugh took over at the piano for musical chairs, etc.
The president won first prize in the raffle (a bottle of whisky), he also held the second and third winning tickets. but refused prizes. Ten-thirty came all too soon, and the party broke up after the singing of 'Auld Lang Syne.'

Reference to the first wireless in The Ringing World (page 107 ) prompls a reader who still has a cat's whisker set to ask: Is it by now vintage or 'veteran'? What is vintage or veteran anyway? As an example -a motor-bike to be veteran has to be one made before Becember 31st, 1914 . To be vintage it must be manufactured before December 31st, 1930. After that it is of no historic value as a show-piece, say the rules of the Vintage Club. And for bells? - veteran' up to 1600 . and ' vintage, up to 1750 , contends the writer. Anyone disagree?
Mr. John S. Walton has now rung Stedman from Doubles to Cinques.
The peal rung at Adlington, Lancs, on January 27 th (see page 113) was Grandsire and not Stedman Triples.
The Leatherhcad District have submitted two nominations for the post of Guildford Guild Master, which Mr. C. W. Denyer is vacating They are Messrs. Harold N. Pitstow and Douglas May.

There were several sightseers during a peal at Wolvercote, Oxon, on February 17 hh . One became so engrossed that he watched for about 20 minutes and before leaving wrote out a cheque for two guineas for the ringers. This has been paid into one of the Wolvercole Bell Funds.

There was another husbands and wives gettogether at Heptonstall, Yorks, on Sunday, February 18 th, when four married couples rang a peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major.

Mr. Derek Tranter, secretary of the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford, has resigned his appointment on being promoted to a post at Leicester. Mr. Clive M. Smith. of Lichfield, is acting as secretary temporarily until the Society's annual meeting in June.
Thanking the Editor for giving so much space to news from Australia, New Zealand, Canada and South Africa, Mr. William Smith, of Turramurra, Sydney. writes. 'We all share your excellent journal which. like the string of a necklace. links us all in one big fellowship.'

GOSSIP

 Mr. Tom Briggs, of Somerby, Leics, has rung his first quarter at the age of 84 . Starting at Oakham, Rutland, hefore the turn oit the century, Mr. Briggs travelled widely, including South Africa, where he learnt to drive a motor-car in 1903. He returned to live at Somerby and became the conductor of the local band, who rang only Grandsire Doubles. He is now keen to ring a quarter of Grandsire Triples at his native Oakham and, writes our correspondent, 'I think there will be no peace until he has done just that.'We are sorry to learn that Mr. John Worth has been confined to his room for nearly a month. His many friends hope that before long he will be back in the belfry.
Essex ringers, conducted by Mr. Howard J. Egglestone, have now reached 60 methods of Spliced Minor to a peal. This was rung at Stisted on February 16th and constitutes most methods yet rung to a peal. Congratulations!
Messrs. P. J. Staniforth and Alfred Ballard have rung Yorkshire Surprise from Major to Maximus on both hand-and tower bells. This was achieved by their participating in the first peal of Yorkshire Maximus ever rung in hand 'at Leicester on February 13th.
Mr. Harold Gorton, of Bolton, who has been ringing for 58 years, is anxious to find out who put in the old frame at Deane Church, Bolion. He has a cutting, dated August 2nd, 1873, from 'The Bolton Chronicle recording that when the bells were hung by Messrs. J. Taylor, the frame, dated 1688 , was taken out.
St. Martin's Guild for the Diocese of Birmingham has been dogged with misfortune in their peal attempts to honour the installation of the new Provost (Bishop G. Sinker) on February 17 th. On the day of his installation a peal of Cambridge Surprise. Maximus was rung. One of the ringers, Mr. Rodney Pipe. had spotted that the composition was false, and a check with the conductor revealed that it would have been true to Yorkshire, but not to Cambridge. A second attemp:, the following Thursday, was 'sunk' after three hours' ringing.

SURREY-GUILDFORD MERGER IS OFF

The proposed merger is off. At the end of the special general meeting of the Surrcy Association at St. John's. Croydon, on February 24th. the votes of boih Societies were counted and the result was:
Guildford Diocesan Guild For $\begin{aligned} & \text { Fgainst Totals } \\ & 195\end{aligned}$ $\begin{array}{lllll}\text { Guildford Diocesan Guild } & 19 & 125 & 144 \\ \text { Surrey Association } & 38 & 39 & 77\end{array}$
This meeting was the climax of two years work. Following moves in the Leatherhead District. the Guildford Guild had passed a resolution at their March. 1960, A.G.M., which initiated proceedings. Two committees had been set up. and by February 1961. had agreed on a common basis for the new Society. The proposals were publicised, and special general meetings of both societies were ballot whether a merger should take place. Identical resolutions were to be put. and the votes of both Societies counted at the same time at the second of the two meetings. Seventy-five per cent of members present and voting in favour in each Society were required for a change.

The Guildford Guild had held their meeting at Guildford on January 13th (reported on page 51 of 'The Ringing World '). and now the outcome was awailed with excitement.
It is not often that issues of this kind have to be decided in the Exercise. and everyone at Saturday's meeting was conscious of a sense of history. The mood was set by the Vicar at service, taking as his theme the Apostles service, of Matthias to replace Judas. from Acts $i$. 15. It was heightened at the meeting, when Mr. Collins and Mr. Denyer paid tributes to the late Ted Coward, whose tragi= death is a loss indeed to the Guild and the Association. The merger was very much to his heart, and had he been present members would have been surely influenced by him.
The Master, Mr. F. E. Darby, offered time for discussion, but. sensing the atmosphere, warned members that he would allow only two minutes per speaker. If anything, this only served to increase tension. But. remarkably, no one had anylhing to say, and laughter and good humour returned as Messrs. Collins and Parrott proposed that we get on with it. So. in a few more minutes. the white ballot papers had been issued. and the votes cast and counted.
The ballot of each Society was announced by its own Master: Mr. Denyer first. Mr. Darby second. Now we knew what most had guessed.
Both emphasised. as a postscript, the good relations between the two Societies. and knew they would continue. It was right to press an issue such as this to its conclusion, so as to clear the air of argument and to help members realise more the value of their own Society. The Guild at least had achieved a record membership in 1961 !
The deed done, members returned either homewards through the icy east wind. or to resume ringing on St. John's twelve bells in the usual congenial ringers company-as if nothing extraordinary had happened F. E. R.

Lancashire ringing has had a big loss by the death of Mr. Percy H. Derbyshire. who. for over 60 years, rang at St. Mark's. Worsley. He was vice-president of the Lancashire AssoHe was vice-president of the Lancashire Association in 1958, and a life member.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS'

'Twas Sunday morn on a dull winter's day As to the church I made my way. Prospects for ringing were poor. I knew, For our captain was off on a Firemen's do. I arrived at the tower a little bit date, Bad habit of mine. I'm sad to relate. I really must try to mend my ways As they d already started bells to raise.

As I slipped into belfry, I had quite a start For several strangers were taking part. They appeared quite at home at handling ropes Perhaps they ring changes,' were our hopes.
'Doubles,' says leader, '4.6,8 behind.' Their limitations attempting to find. They join in gladly: Grandsire Triples, too,
And very soon Stedman, they are pulling us And very soon Stedman, they are pulling us through.
Twas obvious now. these chaps from the blue Were no ordinary ringers like me and you; Our man-in-charge then a wise step took. Will you put your names in Visitors' Book? As they started to write all necks were craned And sure enough they were all ringers famed. Pat Cannon. Wilf Williams and Edwards, R. G. Illustrious names, to mention just three.

It certainly was a thrill to ring
Atongside the famous Tenor King-
From conducting peals of Maximus,
I wonder what Wilfred thought of us?
Our skipper. of course, felt he could scream At having missed this ringing cream. Really," he said. "it's hardly fair,
When my absence is so very rare.'
There's a moral in this jittle tale:
When you're tired and feeling stale.
The weather's bad. you've a cold in the head And are tempted to sit by the fire instead.
Just brace yourself! to your duty repair
There may be a treat awaiting you there.
'The famous' may next be to your tower led As they dropped from heaven on Portisliead!

PEALS AND THE PUBLIC

HOW does the public respond to bells? Morcover, what is the attitude of the man in the street to the bellringer? One feels obliged at the outset to inquire as to whether the present generation of non-ringers are as sympathetic towards hells and bellringers as their forefathers of 50 or 60 years ago. Obviously not!

Happily, the art of ringing bells has made rapid and energetic strides during the past 50 years. Unhappily, as the intricacies of change ringing increase and bellringers become more skilled, the uninitiated listener seemingly develops a coldness, a more distant attitude; even hostile reactions are directed against bells and their handlers.

Are we not overdoing it?

The age in which we live has given birth to a thousand-andone discordant and harmful vibrations; industry, highways, offices, and even the very heavens contribute in ever-increasing measure to the raucous volume of everyday life.

Noise is a veritable curse inherited from, and aided and abetted by, spectacular advancement in all aspects of life. Frankly, people are glad to withdraw to the quietness of their homes-and that is not always possible-that they might escape for a little while the din of the outside world. Then, in the comfort of the home, bells are heard to ring... Turning an ivory knob will not end it.

Not so many years ago when skies were empty of foreign bodies, and highways emitted a horsy aroma, it was, I am told. a real pleasure to listen to the pealing of bells. Faces were bright, eyes shone and displayed genuine satisfaction after a hard but healthy day's work. No television, no record player...open the window and welcome the sound of the bells...bread and cheese for supper... and so to bed and early to rise. Silence became monotonous, and the sonorous changes of Kent Treble Bob provided southing deviation to the mind.

How many peals have been rung in your lower during the past 12 months (if in a populated area)? Three? Six? Nine? Cast an eye over the next few lines...

Two/three peals, well spaced: Reasonable.

Four/five: Pushing it a bit.
Six/eight: (Unwilling listener) "Those - bells."
Eight/ten: (Unwilling listener) "We must really see the Vicar about this.' Hostility towards the bellringers.

Eleven or more: Watch out?

Amusing? Maybe.

It he?ps, of course, if bells are muted and if arrangements exist by which belfry louvres can he closed. but how many churches are thus equipped:

Let it be admitted: the majority of non-ringers display considerable concern when they are subjected to a session of three hours' consistent ringing.

A few, usually elderly folk, speak fondly of bells; the massnow let's be honest lolerate bells. They climatise themselves with the habits of bellringers. They are aware that bells are usually rung between 10 and $11 \mathrm{a} . \mathrm{m}$. and 5.30 and $6.30 \mathrm{p} . \mathrm{m}$. cach Sunday before service time. They also adjust themselves to a certain evening of the week when ringers congregate for practice.

Any other occasion when bells ring, for weddings, mectings and on outings, the cry is heard that the long-suffering public are being ill-treated. 'It is unfair,' they claim. But it is the lengthy peal which hurts most!

Ban peals! What would happen then? The Exercise would undoubtedly suffer an irreparable blow. One thing would emerge: a large percentage of ringers desirous of recording as many peals as possible for personal reasons would more than likely degenerate as far as Church and companological interests are concerned. This would be the acid test - a means of distinguishment between those who are loyal to the Church and those who are loyal unto themselves.

Logically speaking, peals must be rung. But must they be legion and therefore damnable to our voluntary vocation? Is it necessary that dwellings in the precincts of a church be subjected to the 'meaningless' sound of bells engaged in peals seven or eight times a year?

Have you a guilty conscience ?

A friend of the writer, waiting for the arrival of a team shortly before a peal attempt at a church near where a housing estate had been developed, said: "In a way I'm looking forward to this peal. but hate to think that some people over there will despise us for our efforts.'

Bellringing cannot be likened to a game of bowls. Bells intrude...but they are meant to. In mediaval times they were an essential part of life to the laity; they exist to call, to remind. to exhort. At least one bell is inscribed, 'I praise the true God.' Alas, who really cares in these days?

It is only natural that the bellringer will uphold and defend the noble traditions and qualities embodied in his ancient art. He will argue the obvious necessity of ringing peals, but let him not forget that the man in the street has every right to insist that "timeless, lengths are hideous, unreasonable and nerve-racking to say the least. To be subjected to that cacaphony of sound , once a month is assuredly most unfair.

The times in which we live can and will create enthusiasm. but this should be tempered by patience, consideration, and, where necessary, moderation.

A ringer must learn to give and take. lest in future ycars the frailty of human endurance, unnaturally excited by rigorous applications allied to modern progress and its ill-gotten. irrepressible accompaniment of noise, urges him to take much and give little.

74th HENRY JOHNSON COMMEMORATION DINNER

BIRMINGHAM is still a Mecca for ringers ard the 74th annual "Henry Johnson"隹 Imperial Hotel. Birmingham, on February 24th, drew visitors from as far afield as Neweastle-upon-Tyne. This year's chairman was Mr. Edgar C. Shepherd, perhaps an appropriate choice, as with retirement from the teaching profession Jater this year, he might reside outside the Diocese of Birmingham.

After the toast of 'H.M. the Queen,' the chairman read the apologies, and these included a telegram from Mr. Stan Mason, from California, stating. Best wishes for a successful evening.' He said they would all remember Mr. Mason as a very fine bellringer and some of them would recall that famous peal of Cambridge Maximus at Exeter, in which he took part with Mr. Wilfrid Williams. Mr. Shepherd said he was sorry that their old friend. Mr. Frank Smallwood, was not too well and his doctor would not let him travel very far.
Proposing the toast of "The Church and State, Mr. Frank E. Haynes said in the toast he would prefer to look at the Church from the point of view of ringers. They all knew that they were servants of the Church and proud to be so. They were also in the unique position that in their service to the Churcil they indulged in their favourite hobby. Many of them, in addition to ringing on Sundays, lang a number of peals throughout the year. How often did they read in letters to "Tbe Ringing World' suggestions that peal ringers were not displaying Christian virtues.

PEAL RINGERS' VIRTUES

Mr. Haynes maintained that peal ringers displayed Christian virtues. They displayed patience in standing for three to three and a half hours at the end of a rope, waiting for the end to come. He felt also that peal ringing developed tolerance when XYZ had not struck one blow properly. Peal ringing also encouraged a spirit of forgiveness, when, after $3 t$ hours of good ringing. they put on their coats. paid a shilling to the Bell Rope Fund and 'The Ringing World 'and were then told that the peal was false.

- I do feel.' concluded Mr. Haynes, "that the Church and State are trying to make things too simple. The State makes everything casy with State aid and welfare aid, and even the Churih has come down to simplifying the services. altering Jong words and encouraging children to attend Holy Communion services that they may try to get people to understand more about it.

The Provost of Birmingham (the Rt. Rev. George Sinker), who replied, thanked the St. Martin's Guild for the peal of Cambridge Surprise Maximus rung the prevjous Saturday at his installation. He said he knew nothing that was more fun, as he said in his sermon at his insiallation, than in being a Christian. When he was ringing the bell at his induction he hoped he tolled enough times for the rest of his life. In Australia, someone asked him where he was going to die. He replied, 'I hope to lay my bones in England eventually,' but he could now say, 'I hope to lay my bones in Birmingham.'

MEMORIES OF HENRY JOHNSON

The toast of "The memory of the late Henry Johnson' was submitted by Ald. A. Paddon Smith, who said there was very ittle one could say to add to what had been said to the memory of Henry Johason. He himself had paid tribute in years gone by and so had many others. He never knew himhe was a bit too young-but he had had opportunities of talking to many who knew him and one was George Mitchison, who was 92 when he died. George Mitchison told him that when very young he took part in a peal that Henry Johnson was conducting. The striking was poor. Henry Johnson after a time set his bell and went over to him and said. 'What brings you here? You cannot ring your bell. Get some practioe and then come and ring a peal.'

MR. EDGAR C. SHEPHERD.
Jolinson, said the Alderman, was a wonder ful man: a wonderful conductor who never lost a. peal through a conductor's fault. He was one of the first to introduce the turning caurse in Stedman Caters and Cinques at the middle and not the end. He composed many peals of Stedman Cinques and rang a peal of Stedman Cinques of 9,238 changes on his 72nd birthday in 1881

In 1889, to celebrate his 80th birthday, invitations to a. banquet were issued by Sir Arthur Heywood to all officials of ringing societies and prominent ringers throughout the country. This gathering was perhaps the most representative ever held and from it emanated the present Council of Church Bellringers.

Johnson died the following year, Jan. 7th, 1890, and was buried at Aston. Many of them had looked at the swane and they were grateful to Canon Warman, Vicar of Aston, for his care of it. The inscription on the stone reads:

This stone is erocted by the Ringers of England in grateful memory of Henty Johnson. to whose ability and enthusidsm the art of change-ringing is widely indebted.
Born at Lichfield, February 28th, 1809 Died at Aston, January 2nd, 1890
Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy migitt.'

FRIGHTENING EXPERIENCE

Mr. Thomas J. Warner, of Solihull, proposed the toast of "Continued Prosperity to the Sr. Martin's Guild and recalled that it was more than 30 years ago that be at tended his first Henry Johnson dinner. To a young ringer from a suburban church it was rather a frightening experience to ring at St . Martin's in those days. If he made a mistake and incurred the displeasure of those ringing at the heavy end, they would continute 10 ring with one hand and with the olher belabour the unfortunate individual.

The toast "Continued Prosperity" asked a question. For St. Martin's Guild only the hest ringing was good enough and who was There in the ringing Exercise who always mave his best? They had lost one who was like Henry Johnson-a man who was always ready to help: nobody could be more helpful than Albert Walker.
There were three standards by which they could judge their prosperity. Was it by their Sunday service ringing, because he believed that bolis were provided for calling people to church? Was it by training new recruits to become established riagers, because it was important that new recruits should be brought in? Was the Ringing Master satisfied tha those brought in were receiving good instruc tion? Was the Guild thriving as regarded peals? It was a pleassant thought thit at Birmingham the regular peal ringers were good service singers. Another point was how much support was given to hat dinner by members of the Guild? He felt there were too many Guild members who did not come. I: should not be the annual headache for the Guild secretary; it was a matter that should be attended to in local towers.

They all appreciated very much the thoroughness of their officers in the way the Guild worked. They did not know whether among their young ringers there was not : Henry Johnson of tomorrow, but they knew that among the older singers there were Henry Johnsons who pulled their weight.

The reply to the toast came from the chairman, who said when they looked at the history of the Society, which went back nearly 200 years, they were astonished at the number of people connected with the Society and the vast variety of characteristics. There were such people as Samuel Roberts. Thurstans, Lates and Henry Cooper, a silversmith at the time the silver cup of the Guild was lost.

ALBERT WALKER

Since they last met they had lost George Mitchison, the last of the people, who knew Henry Johnson, and the great friend of all of them-Albert Walker. Albert really was a very astonishing, man. His grasp of Stedman was simply amazing as well as his indomitable courage-he was always, prepared to siy, "Well have another go.' He was one of those people who not only made the lot of the beginner tolerant but helped him to progress, particularly in the field of conducting. Albert knew what it was to be without a conductor. When he started at St. Martin's, there was no conductor; he struggled hard to make certain that there was always a conductor there. He was certainly the friend of all the ringing Exercise.

Mr. Warner. in his speech, had touched on three important things-Sunday service ringing. recruiting and peal ringing-upon which depended continued prosperity, About Sunday service ringing they had heard a great deal about church attendance. He would commend to them the article by Canon Carew Cox, in the issue of 'The Ringing World' of December 8 th, in which he stated that to one had a right to lake part in service ringing unless he believed it was part of the service but they knew it was not always possible for ringers to attend every service

OUTSIDE INFLUENCE

The second question was an interesting one. Recently he was reading the history of the old Holt Society at Aston, about 1880-81. The Holts only rang in their own tower, rang a number of peals and existed for 10 years In 1889 the Holt Society and the St. Martin's Youths met in Birmingham and the reason for amalgamation was that the St. Martin's Youths should give more help outside its own tower It meant that the influence of the Society was becoming available to people in other parts of the diocese and they knew the impact at Solihull. where the new band there recejved considerable help from Si. Martin's Guild. Out of this came the St. Martin's Guild for the Diocese of Birmingham
Speaking of peal ringing, Mr. Sluepherd said not very long ago the laid the privilege of ringing in a peal of Cambridge Maximus and discovered at the finish that it was false. That was not the end, they went for another peal of Maximus and lost that after three hours They had rung for $6 \frac{1}{2}$ hours without a peal. There was not the slightest grudge against anybody; they all accepted the situation.

The Master of the Guild, Mr. Richard C: Ingram, proposed the toast of "The Visitors. - We have,' he said. 'many old friends and some new ones with them. To the new Provost they extended a sincere weloome and they were also plaased to see Canon and Mrs Warman. who had been with them on many occasions. Their visitors included a strong contingent from Newcastle upon Tyne and Mr. Herbert C. Spencer, who was now spending his time in Devonshire.

A witty reply came from Mr. Geoffrey Flecher. organist. and choirmaster at St. Martin's, Birmingham.
The concluding toast, that of 'The Ringing World. was proposed by Mr. Frederick Ross. The Editor, in his reply, paid tribute to the memory of Albert Walker, whom he regarded as the Henry Johnson of our day and generation. The jubilee year had been a good one for their journal. There was plenty of gold in the jubilee issue and it sold well. Financially, 1961 had been a satisfactory year for "The Ringing World.
A touch of Stedman Caters was rung by J. C. Millhouse $1-2$. F. W. Perrens ${ }^{3-1}$. F. E. Haynes 9-10.

NOTTINGHAM UNIVERSITY DINNER

PREPARATIONS for our dinner seem to have been going on for so long now that it hardly seems possible that the long-awaited day has come and gone. We considered ourselves very optimistic at the outset in hoping that we might be able to persuade a few more people to join us than we did last year. Miraculously, however, the demand for tickets surpassed even our wildest dreams, and, all told. just over a hundred people were present in the Odeon Cinema Restaurant, Nottingham, on February 17th, after an excellent day's ringing in local churches. Unfortunately, our president, Mr. Paul Taylor, and Mrs. Taylor, and the Rev. J. N. D. Perkins, chaplain to the Society, were prevented from coming by illness.
The Master, Mr. David Friend, proposed the toast of "The Queen : and then, after a short pause, called upon Mr. Gordon Halls to propose the toast of "The Society This, Mr. Halls proceeded to do in timehonoured fashion. his speech being largely irrelevant but highly amusing and altogether most enjoyable.

Mr. Roy Tiffin, who replied, dwelt briefly on the activities of the Society during the year. Before concluding, he said that it was felt that the Master of the Society, in common with those of some other University Societies, should have a chain of office; and that one had duly been acquired. On behalf of the Society, he presented Mr. Friend with a small red barrel, mounted on a chain.

The Master, in his reply, thanked Mr Tiffin and the Society for the gift. In proposing the toast of "The Visitors,' he welcomed our guests, particularly those from other universities, some of whom had travelled from as far away as Southampton.
A humorous replied came from Mr. Denis Carlisle. who said he felt hardly qualified to do so, as he was not only a past student of this university. but had also rung with members of the Society on numerous occasions. He also apologised for the Mr. Halls' speech, which he claimed to have written as well as his own. This may well have been true, since the company showed every sign of having enjoyed both equally.

The speeches over, a general movement was made towards the bar, where there was ample opportunity to meet friends old and new.

It was then announced that a team, suitably equipped with handbells and appropriately numbered cards. would give a demonstration of change ringing. The ringers stood in a line, each in the position in which he was to ring. Despite the convivality of the cvening. this proceeded fairly smoothly, and members of the company were invited io try iteir hands at this somewhat energetic pastime. Finally, a race was staged between two teams the result being a dead heat for all concerned.
By this time the evening was drawing to a close, but not before a group from Derby, ably led by Messrs. Halls and Carlisle, had entertained with a song of their own composition The singers appeared to enjoy this as well as their audience, so everyone was well pleased
On this happy nole the evening came to a) end, leaving us with only two tasks-the first, and rather more immediate, being to drag ourselves home to a well deserved rest: and the second being to start thinking about our third annual dinner.
B. D. M.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

Loddon was again the venue for the Eastern Branch annual meeting on February 10th. The service was conducted by the Vicat, Canon C. R. Niaham, and the organist was Mr. Spurgeon.
At the business meeting, altended by the Association president (Mr. Nolan Golden) and the Ringing Master (Mr. H. W. Barrett), the following were elected to offices: Mr. E. R Goate, chairman; Mr. P. G. W. Newstead secretary; Mr. G. G. Walpole, Ringing Master ; Miss D. Lidbetter and Mr. W. B Duncan. as Branch representatives on the Association Standing Committee, and Messrs C Bailey. A. W. Bird, T. Brock, J. Forder and J. Gorrod, committee.

Dates chosen for meetings in 1962 were June 2nd. September 22nd and December 1st with February 16th. 1963. for the Branch annual meeting. The June meeting will be held at Lowestoft. subject to sitisfactory arrangements being made.
The belfry election, prior to a peal at Great Yarmouth last Boxing Day, was ratified and Wendy Hilton Barbara Hodder. Brenda Sampson, Stephen High and Michael Solomon were elected to ringing membership.

A discussion took place on the possibility of the Branch participating in a proposed Association striking competition and the outcome was that the Kessingland and Norton bands were prepared to enter such a contest.

The secretary was instructed to write a letter to the oldest member of the Branch, Mr. R. E. Browne, of Loddon, on the occasion of his 90th birthday, as jt was unfortunately not possible for him to attend the meeting The chairman welcomed several Suffolk ringers to the meeting and also said how pleased they were to have Miss Doris Lidbetter with them once again, she having recoyered from her accident last summer

The president suggested the Branch consider holding practice mcotings as some other branches were doing. Mr, G. Walpole thanked Canon Ninham for allowing Norton tingers to practise at Loddon whilst their own bells were unringable because of tower rebuilding Hork.
Votes of thanks were accorded Canou Ninham, Mr. Spurgeon, Mr. Bailey the verger) and Mr and Mrs. H. W. Barrett, who with their other lady helpers provided the usua] splendid tea

BOSTON BELLS

Dear Sir ,-I should like to add a personal note to the account of Boston bells. During the restoration of the tower in 1931, I was called in by the Rev. H. Law James to advise about the bells. I spent a week-end at Surfleet in September of that year, and we went over to Boston on the Saturday. I appreciated at once why there had been so many altempts before the only peal was rung. The ringers stood in a ditch round the vault and could see Jittle but the head and arms of the ringers on the opposite side of the tower. There was much movement of the tower and the noise was appalling, as there was no intermediate floor below the hells. The problem was to overcome these three difficulties.
First to reduce the movement of the tower 1 suggested that the metal of the eight bells be recast into ten, seducing the weight of the tenor from 28 cwt . to about 21 cwt , giving a 25 per cent reduction in the lorjzontal force exerted by the tenor. I was also sure that if the new frame was suitably designed, particularly with regard to the position of the ropes, a much greater reduction was possible in the combined horizontal force set up by the uhole ring. Of this I felt so confident that I proposed raising the bell frame another 8 feet in spite of the fact that. other things heing equill, this would add about 14 per cent to the movement of the tower at the level of the bell frame. Raising the bell frame hy 8 feet would allow the floor to the 'diteh' 10 he raised by 4 fect and a sound insulating flowr to be placed about 4 feet below the hell frame.
There remained one difliculty. Above the level of the old bell frame the tower walls are much thinner. So I proposed that, as concrete bands round the tower were being used to bind it together, a concrete structure should be built up from the thicker walls to support the boll framc. My suggestions were approved by the architect and were substagtially carried out.-Yours, etc.,

EDWIN H. LEWIS.

'FACTS AND FIGURES'

Dear Sir,-As one of such a band as Mr Williams refers to in the penultimate paragraph of his letter on page 124, I can support his proposition that . Facts and Figures may give quite a wrong impression of the situation.

I don't know what figures were returned from this parjsh; I was not consulted. The facts are the Rector at that time had little knowledge of ringing and less interest. The front three bells of our six were chimed by two men, one of whom could ring rounds. On the Rector's retirement a band was formed 13 months ago with boys and a, master from a boarding school in the parish and, except during school holidays, all the bells have been rung for every service since March 26th. The rounds rung at the induction of a new Rector a month ago were adjudged first class by several competent listeners. Only one boy has been lost to us, but not to ringing, for after leaving the school he Jhis continued to ring in London.

Now. thanks to the headmaster's enthusiastic support. the help of Ripon Cathedral band and that of a ringer from St. Mary's. Ipswich. who has been posted to a nearby R.A.F. station, we are hopefully embarking on change ringing.

Those published statistics may be figures, but I subnuit they are not facts.-Yours faithfully,
A. BASHFORTH.

SURPRISE MINOR METHODS

Dear Sir,-With reference to the request of Mr. D. S. Herschell in your issue of February 91 h, I can supply the new names of five of the methods mentioned.

Clyde S. Minor has been renamed Caithness S. Minor.

Humber S. Minor has been renamed Flamstead S. Minor.
Shannon $\mathbf{S}$. Minor has been renamed Blunsdon S. Minor.
Thames. S. Minor has been renamed Hathern S. Minor.

Welland S. Minor has been renamed Redbourn S. Minor.
The seconds place varjation of Hathern S . Minor has also been rung to a peal as Sedlescombe S. Minor.-Yours faithfully.

BOW BROADCAST NOT EXCLUSIVE TO RINGERS

Dear Sir,-In mecent editions of "The Ringing World there have been complaints about the length of time Bow bells were audible in the B.B.C. bruadeast on December 20th. Those complaining are forgetting that the broadcast was for the benefit of both the general public and us ringers.

The public were prohably just as interested in hearing how the bells have been brought back to life after 22 years' silence (which was the actual object of the programme) as they were in hearing the bells ringing.

As far as the Stedman Cinques was concerned, we doubt if the public cared whether they heard Stedman or plain, ordinary rounds. We also think that the public were more than satisfied with $76 \frac{1}{2}$ seconds of ringing, regardless of how much was obscured by Mr. Dimbleby.-Yours truly,

M. J. UPHILI.ALAN R. MILLIDGE.

Pulney, S.W.

GRATITUDE FOR B.B.C. FADEOUT

Dear Sir,-It would appear from the letters published in the columns of "The Ringing World' on February 2nd and 23rd, from Messrs. Birmingham and Harris, that some toad timing (probably with a punch-drunk alarm clock) or faulty second-hand reporting, has been inflicted upon us. In fact, Mr. Birmingham would have us believe that the College Youths are capable of ringing four or five changes of Stedman Cinques in 2 seconds (to the nearest $\frac{1}{2}$ second).
Speaking for one who actually heard the braideast and for those ringing friends of mine who heard my recording of it the next day, I think the Exercise should be very grateful to the B.B.C. (and Mr. Dimbleby) for fading the ringing out when they did.-Yours faithfully.

EVERCREECH AND THE B.B.C

Dear Sir,-Whether as a result of your printing my letter or otherwise I know not, but today (February 25th) Double Norwich was allowed to run to a proper finish. Let us hope this ushers in a more informed use of ringing by the B.B.C.-Yours sincerely,
W. O. HAYTHORNE.

THE PEWSEY PEAL

Dear Sir, -In answer to Mr. Bird, who wrote they would like to clear up, once and for all, any misunderstanding about the above peal, may I point out that as far as I am concerned my first letter was quite clear and to the point; what has been written since he has brought upon his own head.

Application was made to the Rector (who holds the dignified office of Archdeacon of Wilts, a vice-president of the S.D.G.R. and is a practical ringer), who granted the request: the co-operation of the local ringers was also obtained. It does not seem apparent that the leader of the peal band informed the Rector that the peal would he recorded for the U.B. Sooiety. I have a letter from the Rector before me. dated 29/1/62, in which he writes: .. 1 am sorry to hear that the peal rung by the Bristol University ringers was not recorded for the Guild. I expect these young ringers bad no knowledge of this procedure, and I ask you to accept my apology on their behalf.'
Mr. Bird's reference to donations with 'stringrs ' made hy my Guild is most insulting to a Guild which is celebrating its 80 th anniversary, 80 years of steady progress, on September 14th, 1962.
One other point-the first report received was that one ringer was a member of the Salisbury Guild. I could not find any record of such. Later it was siated no ringer was a nember; this inconsistency does not promote confidence in whit you read later.

In conclusion, may I sy this foreign (to use Mr. Bird's own word) invasion would not be popular in any Guild or Association. least of all is it welcome in, the Sulisbury Diocesan Guild area. Yours sincerely.

ORIGINAL SINGLES

1)ear Sir,- I was father amazed when 1 picked up my 'Ringing World' (February 23 rd) and found an item on page 122, entitled Miscellaneous Performance.' As far as I am concerned if three ringers wish to make themselves a laughing stock then it is up to them, although I rather pity the people in the neighbourhood of Botley Church. Hampshire, in having 10 tolerate three bells ringing for 2 hours 17 minutes.

However, if three people wish to act as these three did. I wish that they would not associate themselves with a learned body and Guild like the Southampton University Guild and thus bring the latter into disrepute. I think I can vorce the opinion of the majority of the members of this Guild, in disassociating themselves with this ridiculous exhibition, and I hope that the three concerned no longer consider themselves as amhassidurs for the S.U.G.C.R. until they decide to "grow up" and act in an adult manner-Mours farthfully, Enfield, Middlesex.

REDCLIIFE SURPRISE, ROYAI

Dear Sir--Because of a stupid mistake on my part the composition of the peal of Redcliffe Surprise Royal published in you: issuc of February 16th is false.

The Jaugh is certainly on me! I discovered. on being invited to make up the hand. that the method was not, as had been thought, clean proof. but had two F.C.H. I very carefully removed the internal falseness from the composition. but in so doing introduced repetition of one lead.

The moral is one which has often been stated: that it is a dangerous practice to adjust an existing composition to fit a different fulvencss.
hope the hand will accept the sincere apologics of, and forgive, one whose face iv very red.-Yours sincerely.

ROSS PARISH CHURCH SPIRE

AND BELIS

Dear Sir.-I was very amused when I read M-. Stock's article in a recent issue of The Ringing World,' page 109 , regarding Ross-on-Wye spire and bells. It would have been much better if Mr. Stock had got his facts right before he started to wrile something about which he knew very little.

Ross spire (now one of the finest in this country) was severely damaged in a gale about the end of the 17 th century. The top portion had to he taken down. It was heightened when it was restored through the generosity of John Kyrle, the Man of Ross, who lived in the town of Ross, opposite the old Market House. His house is now a chemist shop and. The Ross Gazette' book shop. This henevolent gentleman also gave the tenor bell. which hears the inscription. John Kyrle, of Ross. gave this bell, 1695. Recast 1771 .'
It was said by old Ross ringers that John Kyrle went to Rudhall's foundry at Gloucester to see his bell cast, taking with him a silver goblet which he threw into the melting pot. This grand old gentleman died in 1724, aged 88 years.
In 1951, the weathercock on the spire was seen to vibrate more than usual when the bells were ringing. Steeplejacks were called in to examine the spire. They revealed cracks in the apox. These were caused by the corrosion and expansion of the iron rod supporting the weathercock. The following year the top 25 feet of stonework was takell down and rebuilt with new stone; the iron rod being replaced by a copper one.

Slight rot did occur in the crown of the headstock of the tenor, but it is very doubtful if this wids caused by the dripping bombardment from the apex. as Mr. Stock seems to imagine, as this bell is not dead centre in the lower: she is 2 feet (approx.) nearer the south and east walls.
It is very likely that it was caused by the rain driving in through a lancet hole in the lop of the spire. There are four lancet holes in the top of the spire which are open to the weather, one of these being on the south side.
In the early thirties al! the wheels and headstocks were painted with a grey lead paint, the rot in the tenor headstock was removed and the hole filled with putty. This work was done by the tower foremin, who was a blacksmith in this town. The rot was not neglected and left for the bell hangers to find when they arrived iwenty years later.

The two tenors were not rehung. Both were quarter turned and fitted with new chappers. It was then found necessary 10 splice a piece of elm $14^{\prime \prime} \times 6 t^{\prime \prime} \times 3^{\prime \prime}$ into the crown of the headstock on the tenor (not a large quantity, Mr. Stock). It is hardly noticeable in this massive headstock.
None of the bells has been rehung since 1881. In that year the whole peal was rehung in a new oak frame by George Day and Son, of Eye, Suffolk.-Yours sincerely.

JOHN J. WEBB.

A REVIEW Ol MINIMUS

Dear Sir-As I hoped. my article, 'Al Review of Minimus,' has drawn some conlments, although one or two replies should still be outstanding.

To Mr. Edward R. Venn ('R.W.' January 26th), thank you for pointing out my omission of the peal at North Aston on January 21 st , 1961. It was published in the middle of a large number rung for the Oxford Diocesan Guild that week. This now makes seven tower-bell peals on four in 1961-all rung before the C.C. meeting.

To Mr. Geoffrey R. Drew (' R.W.' February 2nd), thank you for so graciously allowing me a carte blanche in the naming of Minimus methods. I had hoped that a member of the C.C. Melhods Committee would have written to confirm or correct the raming of the methods. I agree that there shall be only one name for each method, but it should be the correct one, based on the Doubles or Minor extension. In the absence of "official" objections, I claim the naming given in the - R.W' for December 29th, 1961 , and January Sth.. 1962, as correct. Summarised by place notation, those so far rung in peals are:-

N.B.-No. 4 is renamed from 'St. Martin's.'

No other method has been rung to a peal (apart from 'Kent Treble Bob'). I am still curious to know what 'Speichley Bob" was.
Lastly, in commenting on last year's C.C. Decision on peals. I mentioned a lault in its wording and that the loophole of " 3 , or 2 tower bells" will no doubt be firmly closed if anyone is fool enough to try il!' 1 see that the Exercise now has three such fools at Southampton University. They are M. Malcolm Powcll, Jeffrey R. Goodenough and Hugh N. Evans and they apparently did not even try reverse hunting! Four hell peals were accepted to encourage four-bell ringers. This lo: encourages no one!-Yours faithfully,

OXFORD UNIVERSITY DINNER

TWHE Oxford University Society held is annual dinner on February 3rd in the Founder's Library, New College. The afternoon had been occupied by ringing in eleven towers and a service, held at St. Mary the Virgin, the University church.

Ringing commenced at Carfax about noon where numbers so greatly increased that many had to wait several minutes before even reaching the staircase. The congestion was, perhaps, a little-relieved when ringing started at St. Mary Magdalene, half-an-hour later.
Performances during the afternoon varied from tower to tower, though nowhere was very good ringing achieved. Merton College and St Mary the Virgin ( 27 cwt. six) were the greatest challenges and a fast course of Plain Bob at the latter was doomed to early failure. However, an enjoyathle course of London was rung there as a service touch.
A. very enjoyable dinner was provided by the staff of New College for the large number of ringers, guests and friends. The first speech was made by Mr. Raymond Crawfurd, steeplekceper of the Socicty, who, in proposing the toast of 'The Church,' found rhyme but little Teason in the activities of the O.U.S. The O.U.S. was pleased to see so many clergymen present. especially the president, Canon C. Elliot Wigg, and the new Vicar of St. Mary the Virgin, who conducted the service and replied to the toast. Bells, he felt, were pleasant enough from a distance, but he admitted that he envied those who were able to ring them without fear of bodily harm.

The toast of 'The Guests' was proposed by Mr. Andrew Thompson, who welcomed especially Dr. Jahn Spice, so well known in the O.U.S. and one of their vice-presidents. Unfortunately the 'Mother Superior' of the Cambridge University Guild was unable to attend, but she was well represented. In fact her deputy, Mr. Hough, secretary of C.U.G., replied, congratulating the O.U.S. on its performances.

- The toast of "The Socicty ' was proposed by Dr. John Spice, an ex-Master, who felt that the O.U.S. might turn ils sittention to four matters. He would like to see an increase in the amount of handbell ringing done by the Society. A centre such as Cambridge had might be found in the rooms of a hachelor, or if necessary a married don, where a written history of the O.U.S. could be kept. Lastly, was it not possible to start ringing again at St. Peter's in the East? He remembered that pigeon droppings could be sold for a handsome profit.
In reply. the Master, Mr. John Purey. pointed out that St. Peter's tower was unfit for ringing now, but that Dr. Spice's other proposals would be carefully considered. For his specch he had drawn heavily on the Master's reports. which were a mine of information. The O.U.S. had not been too successfui in peal ringing recently, but had at letast rung several guarters, one designed to show that Stedman need not be musical. Perhaps the Society was the only one to have rung Plain Bob standing in line, changing position by stepping sideways!
We were pleased to sce a number of visitors ringing with us on the following Sunday and tope that they enjoyed the whole weekend as well as the dinner itself.

DBITUARY

MR. PERCY H. DERBYSHIRE

An outstanding personality in Lancashire ringing was Mr. Percy H. Derbyshire, of Beesley Green. Worsley, whose death occurred at the age of 83 .
Introduced to rjnging by his father, when his voice broke. Percy rang regularly at St. Mark's. Worsley, for over 60 years, being captain for 50 years. Along with his brothers, the Ridyard family and the Potters, of St. Paul's, Walkden, these two bands were the backbone of higher method ringing in Lancashire. He joined the Lancashire Association in 1896. and his faithfulness over long years was recognised by his election as a vice-president and to life membership. In all he rang 141 peals. In dater years he rang the 9th bell.
Many ringers owe a great deal to Percy for getting permission to ring peals at St . Mark's. The 15,000 Cambridge and recently the 16,000 Yorkshire were rung there; there was no person as enthusiastic as Percy for those performances. A great pleasure to him in latter years was a 'conference' with the Rector at the Rectory, 9.30 a.m.. every Saturday. A chat, followed by a cup of te:t.

He and most of the ringers were employed on the Earl of Ellesmere's estate. Some years ago the workmen on the estate did not commence work promptly at 1 p.m. after lunch and when remonsitated with about it their excuse was they hadn't heard the Hall clock strike " 1 ", so the Earl had the clock altered o strike ' 13 .
When the Hallowas closed Percy retrieved the clock and had it installed in the tower of St. Mark's. It has a heautiful dial and still strikes ' 13 .' His wife predeceased him only by a few weeks. Early February would have seen their diamond wedding anniversary.
He was laid to rest in "his" churchyard on February 3 rd. A very large number of ringers attended from Lancashire and Cheshire, including the president. Rev. R. D. St. John Smith. Several peals were rung to his memory,
P.C.

MR. R. J. WHITFORD

Mr. Reginald John Whitford, of 96, Ash Road. Aldershot, died peacefully in his sleep on February 23rd, aged 57 years. Although he had heen attending the doctor recently his death was unexpected and a severe shock to his family and many friends. He leaves a widow. a son. William Jahn, and a son-in-law and daughter. Mr. and Mrs. W. Abbott. in bereavement.

Reg learned to ring at South Perrott. near Beaminster. Dorset. under the late Mr. Hervey Beams. and moved to Aldershot in the late $20 \%$. He joined the Aldershot tower, where his progress was quick. and he rang his first peal in 1930. In 1936 he married Mis Nancic Denver, younger daughter of Mr. W. Denyer. the Aldershot lower captain at that time. and so became a nember of a well known ringing family.

At the funeral of Mr. Whitford on February 26th, the bells of the Parish Church were rung half-muffled before and after the service, and at the graveside in Aldershot Cemetery course of Grandsire Triples on handbells was rung over the open grave.

MR. WILIIAM G. GIGG

With deep regret we record the sudden passing of Mr. William G. Gigg, who collapsed and died in the belfry while preparing to ring for morning service on Sunday, February 18th, at St. James' Church, Taunton.

Mr . Gigg had been a member of the Bath and Wells Association for over 40 years. Ringing Master of the Taunton Branch for 15 vears and had heen a ringer at $\mathrm{St}^{\text {. James }}$ Taunton. for 36 years, being in charge of the tower since the last war. His peal list was not a long one: he rang in about 160 . but the total contains many that were progressive landmarks in his time. His interest in church affairs was not confined to bellringing, as since 1935 he had been a member of St. James' Parochial Church Council, and also a sides.

The funeral service was held at Chedzoy on February 22nd, and was attended by many ringers. It was conducted by the Recior, the Rev. Basil Bazell, assisted ty the Rev. R. O. Fry, of Yeovil. The decpest sympathy of all ringers will he extended to his widow and family in their loss.
A. H. R.

EDWARD G. L. COWARD

AN APPRECIATION

I was very shocked and grieved to read the announcement of the passing of Mr. E. G. L. Coward, of Dorking, and formerly of Mere. Wilts. In paying tribute to his memory I would like to assure his wife and family that they are not alone in feeling such a great loss.

Ted ' Coward and I first became acquainted during the last war in 1940, when we were both serving in the R.A.F. near London. At this time, the ban on tower-bell ringing was in force, but during off-duty periods we travelled together to many of the handbell gatherings in the vicinity and enjoyed the hospitality of some of the local ringing enthusiasts, including the late G. M. Kilby (of Eastco:e). the Late Jack Thomas (Enfield). the late Eric B. Hartley (Wembley) and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Botham (now in S. Africa).
George Kilby's home, 'Bell Haven,' was certainly a haven of rest for us and we enjoyed many happy hours there, practising our frandtell ringing and listening to George's many stories of London ringers and ringing. It was here that we achieved our first and only peal together when, in 1942. we rang Holt's Original with the late Ernie Turner conducting Turner M. Kilby 1-2. K. Arthur 3-4. E. C. S. Turner S-6. E. G. L. Coward 7-8. Sad to say, three of these ringers have now passed

When, in 1942. I was was posted overseas. I thought my association with. Ted was at an end, but fate had it otherwise and one day in 1944 I was confronted by Ted's broad grin when I turned the corner of a street in the small town of San Severo in S. Italy, where my Wing was based. The joy of our unexpected meeting was mutual and we were not slow in getting round to the subject of bells. During our stay here we raised a few Italian eyebrows when we made excursions to survey the bells jn some of the local church towers and joined in the regular 'clanging.

Ted Coward was a most genial companion and I am only sorry I was never able to meet him again after the war. although we did keep in touch by means of the grapevine.' As another has said, he was a dedicated man both to ringing and his employment, and we can only be thankful to God for his fine example and service.
K. ARTHUR.

232 YEARS AGO

The first peal of 5.000 changes known to have been rung in leicester is recorded thus in 'The Norwich Gazette' of the dite February 23 rd. 1730.-

This morning upon the celebrated peal of St. Margaret's. Leicester. was rung by the Leicester Scholars the whole peal of $$ .040$ Triples in 3 hours 6 minutes and 27 seconds to the great satisfaction of all the hearers: and (save one hell) the same was performed upon the best peal of 8 in England: and considering the length of pull, the weight of the bells (the tenor heing $32^{2}$ hundred) and short space of time in which the same was rung, its one of the greatest performances that has been heard in this age: except by the College Youths and London Scholars. the only performers in Enghind. to whom all preference in this art must be given. and who have rung much longer peals on greater number of bells.'
The first peal on the new bells of St Margaret's after restoration in 1922 was also 5.040 Grandsire Triples and was rung on February 23 rd of that year. conducted by Ernest Morris.
To mark this double anniversary-on Fehruary 23 rd of this year a further 5,040 Grandsire Triples was rung. also conducted by Ernest Morris.

THE THEORY OF CHANGE RINGING

LEAD END VARIATIONS
In previous diagrams leads have been shown ending with the treble at lead for two rows. This is very commonly done. but is not strictly correct as the second of these two rows rarely the next lead head. The practice arises because we normally go off into changes at handstroke and return to rounds at backstroke. The treble leads are hand and back so that the theoretically correct presentation. which ends with a handstroke row, is less convenient for learning a method.
If we define a method by the changes from the lead head to the lead end we must look more closely at the change connecting the lead end and lead head. If the treble is 10 be undisturbed there are, on six bells, three places in which bells can be left alone at this change. 2nds, 4 ths and 6ths. There is another principle that the place made in this change shall be ither that next to the treble (2nds) or that larthest from it, 6ths in this case. Thus a method may have two lead end varia. tions. Let us apply these two porsibilities to the method in diagram (VIII).

Both these varjations will give a plain course of five leads in the same way as Bob Minor (VI). Both contain exactly the same rows, but occurring. in a different order in the course. They are Single Court Minor (a) and Oxford Bob Minor (b). If the complete course is written out and the 'blue lines' compared they wil! be found to be identical, except when the treble is at lead: in Oxford Bob the bells in 3-4 and 5-6 dodge whilst in Single Court they plain hunt. There are many such pairs of methods. College Single and St. Clement's Double Court and Hereward Bob for instance. A knowledge of this relationship can be of great practical value: if one is familiar with the blue line of Double Court it is only a question of knowing where one is at the lead end and iead head to be able to ring Hereward. In some methods one of these variations bring: up rounds at the end of the first lead. Bob Minor for example. Such a variation is of limited practical value. In the case of Bob Miner it is known as Original Minor.

HALFLEAD VARIATIONS

Methods can have one other sort of variation. What about the change connecting the twe halves of the lead? Clearly this belongs to neither half. but stands by jtsclf in an analogous manner to the change joining the lead end to the lead head.
In the examples of Minor methods described up 10 now. Boh Minor and Singl Courl/Oxford Bob. The hells left undisturbed at this change have been that in 6ibs (the treble) and that at lead. We have. of course. to leave the treble undisturbed in 6ths place. but we are not restricted to leaving the bell at lead alone as well, that in 3rds or 5ths place would serve the purpose. The selection of the bell to be left alone is governed by another principle. that is that the lead ends and (hence the lead heads) should be those of the plain course of Boh Minor though they need not appear in the same order
In the case of some methods the halflead end row is one from which it is possible 10 change to the halflead head in two ways: there is a choice of places even allowing for the restriction due to the natural lead end principle.

Diagram (X) shows two such halflead variations. The places made are given alongside showing that the relation between them is analogous to that between two lead end variations. Some combinations of places are such that the basic method can have four variations, two halflead variations each with its own lead end variation. The combination above is one of these: (a) with 6ths place at the lead end is Double Court and 2nds Hereward Bob whilst (b) similarly is London Bob or Double Oxford Bob
This particular combination of places shows one more feature of note. the halflead itself is symmetrical.

HERTS COUNTY ASSOCIATION

St. Albans District

A pleasant day and a good ring of ten astracted a good number of District members and friends to a meeting at Hatfield on February 17th. During the afternoon Cambridge Royal, Yorkshire Major, standard methods on the ten beits and rounds for the many beginners were rung. However. the course of Litle Bob Royal (it was probably ery good!) for the service was 'drowned' by an unexpected voluntary by the organ!
After the service, conducted by the Rev. J. Stow, the company had tea in the old Palace (belonging to previous Bishops of Hatfield when Hatfield was head of the Diocese), which lent a very pleasant atmosphere to the proceedings. Ait the business meeting it was decided that the April meeting was to be held jointly with the Eastern District on the 14 th at Bengeo if possible, the March meeting being replaced by a visit to Carter's Ringing Machine. A résume of the general committee meeting proceedings was given by Mr. Geoffrey Dodds. Mr. Gerald Penney thanked the local ringers for an excellent tea and the Rector for his kind hospitality and efficient chairmanship at the meeling same as 3 rds and 6 ths counted, as usual from the front. The paint ' $O$ ' is sometimes described as a Centre of Symmetry. If the places made at the changes immediately before and after the halflead are also symmetrical in this particular way then the method is a " Double " method. In Double Oxford 2nds place is made at the lead end and 5ths at the half lead. The work, as shown by the blue line, is the same 'from the back' as it is 'from the front.'

Some ringers stayed at the Palace to ndmire this old building. while the rest enjoyed further ringing consisting of standard methods and rounds.

THE LADIES' GUILD

Midland District

A very successful meeting was held jointly with the Sherwood Youths at St. Mary's, Nottingham, on January 27th. The ladies held their moeting before tea in the Institute. 25 ladies attending.
The vice-president, in her report. said that meetings could be better supported than they had been. The secretary, in her report, said five meetings had been held during the year and at each one the numbers of ladies attending thad gradually increased. Twelve new members had been elected during the year. The election of eight new members was then made.
Mrs. Staniforth was elected vice-president and in her remarks thanked Mrs. Thompson for all the work and support she had put in since the formation of the District, in 1946. The secretary was re-elected. The District Committee consists of Mrs. R. Hill (Oakham), Miss S. Chesterton (Aylestone). Mrs. Bennett (Radcliffe-on-Trent) and Mrs. Hartley (Lcicester).

Miss Thompson. of Nottingham, was nominated for president of the Ladies' Guild, and the other general officers and Central Council representatives were re-elected. Miss Thompson and Miss Rhodes were elected to serve on the General Committec.

The meeting asked that the secretary express sympathy with Mrs. Deal in her recent sad loss.
The next meeting had previously been fixed for March 17th at Birstall. These bells were now out of commission, awaiting the attention of the bell hangers, so the meeting would be held at Sileby, Lsics. Other diary dates are May 19th, Oakham, and September 15th. Mansficld.

A company of 50 sat down to an excellent tea provided by the ladies of the Sherwood Youths and the Ladies' Guild.

- Peals on four handbells or less shall not be recognised, reads a decision accepted at the last Central Council meeting BELFRY ast Central Council this hecause we have hald submitted to us at handbell peal of Minimus rung by Robert E. Master-Curtis 1-2 and Thomas R. Christie 3-4, of Milton Abbey School, Blandford, Dorset. The attempt was made in the Benedictine Abbey Church of St. Sampson. Last year was the centenary of the back five bells in the Abbey, but no celebration was possible because the bells are unringable. Master-Curtis and Christie are now teaching a new band from scratch at Hilton.

The Grantley Hall course which the Yorkshire Association are holding is full and there is quite a long reserve list.
The Parochial Church Council of St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, have decided to place an order with John Taylor and Co. for a sharp second bell.
The ringer of the fourth bell in the peal at Worsley on February 19th (sce paige 148) should read Stanley Anderton and not Atkinson.

Our congratulations to the Christchurch Cathedral Society, New Zenland, on ringing a peal of Grandsire Doubles. Peals are rare in New Zealand and make good reading.

A long silence as regards quarter peals was broken at Easthampstead. Berks, on February 25th, when 1,260 Plain Bob Minor was rung by the local band. It is many years since the locals have reached this competence.

Shortly leaving for Tasmania, where she has laken an appointment as a nursing sister is Miss B. Fox, of Dunholme, Lincs. She rang in a half peal staged as a farewell to a loyal ringer of the church.'

Officers for 1962 at St. Leonard's Church, Heston, are: Captain, Mr. P. Ruch; vicecapiain, Mr. S. Porter; secretaries, the Misses G. Bareset and F. Pocock. The band have 15 ordinary and eight honarary members. Practices take place on Tuesdays from 7.45-9 p.m.. and Sunday ringing is at 10 a.m. and p.m., and $5.45 \mathrm{p} . \mathrm{m}$.

Mr. B. J. Lawes, who rings at Perth Cathedral, W.A., informs us that Mr. Albert Lancelield has accepted a maintenance engineering post in Perth and proposes to stay there until after the Commonwealth Games in November. Duc to Mr. Lancefield's presence, Original on four bells was practised during the Sunday afternoon and rung for evening service, thus making a commencement of chango ringing in Perth. Mr. Lawes hopes that the band will be ringing Minor before Mr. Lancefield leaves for New Zealand, as the keenness of the ringers makes this seem likely. He sends his regards to old ringing friends at St. Thomas Church, Salisbury.
The peal rung at West Wickham, Kent, reported on page 131 was of 5,040 Grandsire Minor and not Doubles. The error is regretted.

Most tragedies are reflected in our columns At Rotherham a quarter peal was rung to the memory of Mrs. Shirley Hill, wife of the Rev Colin Hill. She was buried under rubble when the roof of Wincobank Vicarage, Shefficld, collapsed during the storm. Until recently Mr Hill was senior curate at Rotherham and Mrs Hill was greatly respected by her many friends there.
After a lengthy Jay-off since October 30th. 1961, due to the tower of the Loughborough Bell Foundry being repaired and a subsequent revision of the band, the 'Mondayites' make a reappearance with another new Royal method-Noseley Surprise Royal. This neal enabled the new tenor man (A. James Poynor) to join the rather select few who have completed the alphabet to Surprise Royal peals.

Members of the Eastbourne Parish Church Society chimed for half an hour the three ancient bells (c. 1640) in the Norman Church of SS. Simon and Jude, East Dean, Sussex, when the Bishop of Lewes attended on February 25th to dedicate an extension of the nave. The bells are hung for ringing, but the ropes proved too short-hence the chiming. They refute any suggestion that this was a preliminary towards get ting the Central Council to recognise peals of Singles.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

WEST DORSET BRANCH

About 35 ringers attended the LangfordBeams memorial meeting at Bradpole on February 24th. The bells were raised in peal at 3 p.m. and Grandsire and Stedman Triples were rung. The Guild service was conducted. and the address given, by the Vicar. Tea, was given and served by the very promising young band of Bradpole ringers.
The Rev. J. S. Arthur, who presided at the business meeting, said a few words about the Rev. C. F. Langford and T. Hervey Beams, whose life work was remembered at this meeting. A letter was read from Thorncombe stating that they were unable to have a faculty granted for their new sixth bell, a s the existing frame was touching the south wall. It was decided 10 run a coach from West Dorset to Salisbury on May 12 th , and to ring at two towers on the return journey.
The following new nembers were elected: Rev. J. H. A. Charles (Vicar of Lyme Regis) and the whole of the new Bradpole band, I. Andrews, A. Case, M. Bonney, D. Ellery, D. Gay, M. Hiller, D. Tizzard, and Misses A. Moore and J. Newing.
Mr. Paul Kelly, District Commissioner of Kilifi, Kenya, showed some excellent coloured slides giving a background history of the new church built at Kilifi, and mentioned his great hopes that a ring of five bells would be placed in the tower. He also thanked the branch for their donation.

CLEVELAND & N. YORKSHIRE ASSOCIATION

The fine ring of eight at St. Cuthbert's, Darlington. was kept going to a variety of methods during the afternoon of February 17th. Members of the Association were joined for their meeting by several ringers from neighbouring Associations, their presence being warmly welcomed.
After an excellent tea, to which the younger members present did ample justice, the party adjourned to sample the well known eight at St. John's Church. Among the methods rung during the day were Lincolnshire, London and Superlative Surprise Major (attempts at splicing. however. not coming up to expectatimns). Kent Treble Rubb, Duffield and Stedman Triples. Plain Bob Minor and Major, logether willa rounds for beginners.

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF CHURCH BELL RINGERS

The Ringing World' was founded in the year 1911 by John Sparkes Goldsmith, who remained its proprietor and editor until his death in 1942.
No. 2656 Vol. LVIII

TEE recent and timely letter from Mr. C. W. Woolley on the subject of Eryri brings a reminder of two things. One is that we are often ignorant of (and indeed indifferent to) the origins of the methods we ring and the background upon which they first appeared. The second is that some small reflection may lead us to consider afresh, or to comprehend for the first time, the genius of Edward Bankes James. For it may be, in these days of ringing opulence, that the name means to the young practitioner nothing, to the older generation something that we have taken for granted for so long a period that the brilliance of the man's achievements have become obscured or forgotten.

Bankes James and his notable brother, Law James, were born at Gloucester, where their father was a minor canon of the Cathedral and Rector of St. Michael's. Both young men went to Cambridge and. later, both of them took Holy Orders. They were responsible for the formation of the Society of St. Michael's Juniors at Gloucester, brought a powerful influence to bear on the fortunes and activities of the Cambridge University Guild, and entered very searchingly into the problems of method construction and composition. Both were competent ringers and both were brilliant theorists, but there were differences in their impact on the ringing Exercise. H. L. carried his views forcibly, almost aggressively, into public; E. B. was restrained and at times almost hesitant. H. L., it might be said, elbowed his way through a discussion or dispute; E. B. often hovered on the outskirts of the fray, so that eventually his intellectual intervention was virtually decisive. H. L. was the battering ram: E. B. was the still small voice.

Early in the ' 90 's the Yorkshiremen were at war with the Central Council. These wonderfully competent 6 -bell ringers, championed by the powerful influence of William Snowdon and supported by the robust character of George Bolland, asserted and reasserted their right to ring in their multi-method peals 14360 's; and against this practice the Council had set its face. The battle was long and furious, and when both sides had exhausted themselves with every conceivable argument for and against, it was the gentle voice of Bankes James that calmly pointed out that all this fuss was quite unnecessary because 14 different methods could be rung with case in seven true extents by a very simple process. The revelation was so staggering in its simplicity that it was quite a long time before either side really caught the impact.
Again, when Arthur Craven published what he called Yorkshire Surprise, it was Bankes James who pointed out that if Mr. Craven would arrange for 7th's place to be made when the treble lay behind he would have a much better method. Craven did so and turned what we now know as Belgrave into what we now call Yorkshire; and E. B. was right.

When, in 1894, St. Michael's Juniors entertained the Exercise (and set all the purists by the ears) by ringing a peal of Double Norwich Caters, it was Bankes James who thought out the 3rds place bob and composed the peal; and when the argument between Law James and John Carter arose over Darlaston Bob Caters, once again it was E. B. who intervened with that masterly exposition on the converting of Major methods to Caters methods. It was in the course of this short thesis that he compassed the following delightful epigram: 'I am perfectly aware that it is written in the law that the sins of the fathers shall descend on the children, but I know of no argument to show that the children should submit to the punishment if they have it in their power to escape from it.'
This is typical Bankes James : the delight in the fanciful turn of phrase, a joy repeated and multiplied in his experiments in the unusual. So we find the originator of the classical symmetry of Bristol carrying the plan of his work on to the complicated and astonishing development of Eryri; we know him as the inventor of the Little methods and as the source of a great flow of notable compositions. Yet this great master of construction could amuse himself with 'The B.N.,' a rather inferior campanological joke, an impish twist from the sublime to the ridiculous that might have delighted George Bernard Shaw, if Shaw could have comprehended change-ringing.
Readers who care (and have the opportunity) to turn to 'The Ringing World ' of April 6th, 1917, will find an account of a tour by E. B. J. and his schoolboys. In the accompanying photograph will be found the pictures of Tommy Minor, Johnnie, Tommy Major, 'L. B..' Jacky, Biddy and Phiz. Time must inevitably have wrought changes in Tommy and Co., but if we should ever have their recollections of their naster we might find new and interesting light shed upon one who was among the great intellectuals of the Exercise, and one to whom we owe no small debt.

Another Successful Derbyshire Dinner

'THE Derbyshire annual dinner and social is rapidly promising to become one of the most popular events in the ringing calendar. Despite removal to much larger premises there were many who were disappointed in not gaining admission this year to what was, in the opinion of those who attended, the best yet, and over 150 ringers and friends from all purts of Derbyshire enjoyed a very happy evening.

There is no doubt that the success of this function is the result of very hard wark put in by Gordon Halls and Denis Carlisle, aided and abetted by their newest recruit, David Marshall, and it would see that no sooner one dinner is over they immediately commence planning the next. The Derbyshire Association owes a great debt to this trio, for they have, during the Jast 12 months, also completcly reorganised the finances of the Association, and put them on a sound basis.

After an excellent meal, Mr. J. F. Smallwood introduced the guest speaker, Mr C. K. Lewis, of the Chester Diocesan Guild. He described Mr. Lewis as one of the Central Council's 'back room' boys and referred to his invaluable work on the Methods Committee. Derbyshire, too, had its 'back room boys, in the shape of the 'Derbyshire twins and their accomplice from Sawley. These three were no respecters of persons and they could be guaranteed successfully to deflate reputations which had taken a lifetime to build up.

Mr. Lewis. who was warmly received, spoke of the history of Derby during the last 500 years or so, referring to Izaak Walton and Dovedale, and to King Alfred, famous for culinary inattention and musical ability, who thought so much of Derby that, by the treaty of Wedmore, he gave it to the Danes Its potential value, however. was recognised by Ethelfreda, a Saxon lady, who won it back Five hundred and seven years ago Lord Peverell was disinherited and his estates forfeited to the Crown for poisoning the Earl of Chester.

PATENTLY FALSE

There might be persons present that night who might feel inclined 10 poison him ( Mr . Lewis). when he informed them that a certain peal of Redcliffe Surprise Royal was patently false, due to his carelessness-even Carlisle and Halls could have done no worse. Connected with Derbyshire was Sir Arthur Heywood, who founded the Central Council, and he sometimes wondered whether Sir Arthur would approve of our attempts to shackle oursolves with complicated rules and regulations. whilst up and down the country rings of bells lie derelict or only partly used

Surveys and committees could do little-it was the man on the spot and the Association who could really help. Sir Arthur composed a method (Duffield) to surpass all methods. which stands as a monument to all method builders of how perfection can be boring in the extreme. Mr. Lewis referred to a certain ' exile' who hearing of a young Association in need of education in the values of Stedman, decided to leave London and go to live among the barbarians in Derbyshire! (We wonder who this could be?)

CAPITA MAGNISSIMUS

Serious business over, all formality was then abandoned, and the latest winner of this award was duly invested. First the Derbyshire Choir was assembled, and, conducted by Mr R Carlisle. of Basford, and accompanied by a jazz band, they sang very lustily the Capita Magnissimus' anthem, the first verse being:

Capita Magnissimus is the badge of uselessness,
The citation we unfold leaves no grain of truth untold.
It is given quite unswerving.
To the member most deserving
He whose head is larger than the rest
Wears the medal proudly on his chest!
Mr. John Murfin, of Etwall, was then called forward and Gordon. Halls presented the medal. The reasons given for conferring this high honour were:-

1. An excessive excellence in ringing.
2. An excessive number of bells in you peals.
An excessive usc of belfrymanship.
An excessive extravagance in your attire.
An excessive size of head!
This year, dancing gave place to games, and the younger members (and not so young) thoroughly enjoyed an assortment of dances, which. of course, included the "twist.' An which, of course, included the twist. An enjoyable.

LEARNERS' MEETING AT ELLAND

On February 24th a learners' meeting was arranged at Elland, and the bells were raised at $2.15 \mathrm{p} . \mathrm{m}$. in readiness for a busy afternoon. A talk was given on bell handling, and one or two faults which learners may have, and then everyone had a ring of rounds on eight.

At three o'clock, a short talk was given by the Ringing Master of the Archdeaconry of Halifax Guild. on simple method construction, hunting. dodging and place making. etc.. and each person was put through plain hunting, many for the first time. Some Plain Bob was rung, and then at 4.40 the bells were lowered and a bus was caught to Brighouse for tea, which had been prepared by the ladies of Brighouse Parish Church.
Further ringing followed until nine oclack Further ringing followed until nine oclock, and the day was rounded off with handbells. The day was rounded off with handbells. first of many, was considered to be a great success, and enjoyed by all. The attendance throughout the day averaged about 30

THREE PEALS IN A DAY

It was a cold. dull morning when eight ringers from Kent. Surrey and Sussex met at Coleman's Hatch to attempt the first of three peals in a day.
The bells, a good light Gillett eight, were soon raised and at $9.10 \mathrm{a} . \mathrm{m}$. they were to be heard echoing across the fields and valleys to Double Norwich. A good peal resulied, ably conducted by Errie Ladd from the seventh.
Then a ride to East Grinstead for a hurried lunch, which rather upset the time for the next peal at Turner's Hill. However. when we arrived at the tower we found that Fred Roberts had kindly raised the bells. A fairly fast peal of Kent was rung anü was apparently listened to at various times by local district ringers. who approved of the striking. This peal notched up Ernie's 375th.

After a hurried tea Balcombe was reached at about 6 p.m., where Colin Tester called Bob Major from the seventh. To our Northern and Midland friends this was only a moderate day's ringing as compared with their record lengths, but to us this was a great milestone, and we soon hope to ring four in a day. Special credit must go to Olive Tester, who rang well throughout and seemed the least tired of us all. F.H.H.

50 YEARS AGO  R.W.' March 15th, 1912.TAKES THE BISCUIT

Of all the performances which have come under our notice we think the following 'takes the biscuit.' It appeared in a docal paper under the heading of Norton Fitzwarren, but unfortunately the date of the issue was not sent us by the correspondent who forwarded the cutling. Without doubt, however, the young band are miaking progress

On Thursday evening the young band of ringers rang out for the first time after a short training by Mr. Edwin Elson, who with his great ability got them through some good work. Methods rung: Rounds, Queens, Tittums, Elton's Delight, Sweaty's Pleasure. Arney's Failure. Hurdle Surprise, Newby's Slow Course. Seaby's Quick Work. Howit's Change Course: also about 1.579 rounds of firing. which was very good. The young band are to be congratulated on their excellent performance."

LONDON COUNTY ASSOCIATION

IN spite of a rather biting east wind on

February 24th, nearly 60 ringers assembled at the A.B.C. Restaurant, Bishopsgate. for the annual general meeting of the London County Association. In the afternoon ringing took place at St. Vedast's, Foster Lane, and St Botolph's. Bishopsgate; it being the Association's first visit to St. Vedast's for very many years
At the meeting members were pleased to re-elect Mr. T. H. Taffender as Master for his 50th successive year. Unfortunately he was unable to take the chair as he was in hospital at Epsom, but a letter from his son, Mr. John Taffender, was read to say how delighted his father was that he had again been nominated. Flight Lieutenant Ronald Dunn the Master's grandson and a member of the Association, ertorsed the words of the letter and thanked the meeting for re-electing him.
For the post of Deputy Master, Mr. W. G Wilson was elected by a small majority over
Mr . C. W. Ottley, to take the place of Mr $\mathrm{Mr} . \mathrm{C} . \mathrm{W}$. Ottley, to take the place of Mr.
F . P. Mead, who felt that his business commit ments would not allow his re-election. Other officers were elected as follows: General secretary, M. H. W. Rogers: assistant secretarses Miss M. Powell and Mr. L. W. Bullock: treasurer and librarian. Mr. J. H. Lott ; sentor steward, Mr. C. M. Meyer: junior steward. Miss V. Dupre; trustees, Mr. C. W. Ottley and Mr. J. A. Hales. The accounts were presented by Mr. A. D. Barker, one of the auditors, and showed satisfactory balances.
In his report the Deputy Master said that rine successful meetings had been held in 1961 in various parts of London and that five peals had been rung for the Association. He thanked Mr. C. M. Meyer for continuing the Master's work of organising Sunday ringing at various towers in London whici had no band of their own. Mr. R. Newman said how much the visits to Holloway delighted the congregation there.

The Deputy Master then asked the meeting to stand in remembrance of members of the Association who had passed away in 1961. and also for Mrs. T. H. Taffender, the Master's wife
After the secretary had outlined the proposed programme of meetings for the ensuing year, the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the incumbents and Ringing Masters of the towers open. Further ringing then took place at the Association's origina: headquarters, St James", Clerkenwell.

DEATH OF MR. HUGH MACKINDER

By the death of Mr. Hugh Mackinder, West Wickham. Kent, has lost the founder of its change-ringing band. Up to 1931 ringing had been carried out on the five bells by a callchange band, which resigned, and after some months Mr. Mackinder decided to end the silence although knowing nothing of ringing, and persuaded some of his friends to meet him in the belfry. With help from neighbouring ringers (and principally from Mr. Roy Mowforth, then living in Hayes and now in Staffordshire) this band progressed to change-ringing, and a year later scored a quarter peal with no outside assistance
From the beginning. Hugh Mackinder was one of the keenest members, showing enthusiasm usually associated with much younger ringers, and took part in several peals on six and eight bells, including the first of Minor at West Wickham, when the bells were increased to six in 1939.

Shortly after his retirement in 1947 he became greatly troubled with arthritis. and to his hitter disappointment hecame unable to ring, although his interest. particularly in the Kenit County Association and the College Youths (which he joined in 1933), never waned.

At the end of January he had to enter Mayday Hospital. Croydon, but he never recovered and died on March 5th. a few days after his 82 nd birthday. The funeral service, conducted hy the Rector, was held in West Wickham Parish Church on March 9 ih . followed by cremation at Elmers End Cemetery, Beckenham. (Other Ohits page 173)

BELLS THAT HAVE MADE HISTORY
Dear Sir,-In reply to Mr. P. Amos (page 123). I did not say Johannes de York was Mayor of Leicester-he was not; it was Johannes de Stafford who held that position. I have traced the latter's history so far as is possible from all sources available-thus

He is mentioned in . The Register of Freeman of Leicester 1338-9 during the time of William de Cloune, Mayor (12-3 Edw. II1).
In 'Mayor's Accounts,' 1340-1 is this entry: - Paid to Will. Brid and John of Stafford for their expenses at parliament, and for scrutinizing a tally... 10s.'

In Tallage Rolls, April 13th, 1354, 'Joh-deStafford. belleyetre.'

In Mayor's List. John of Stafford occurs 1366-7, 1370-1, 1381-2
In Burgesses of Parliament his name occurs: May 41t. 1366 ; November 21st. 1373 ; November 5th. 1380: April 29th, 1384.

John of Stafford witnesses (with others) and signs conveyances and other deeds up to 1392 . Mayor's Accounts, 1361-2, 'received on loan 20 s .' (among others) of John of Stafford for a certain present to the Duke of Lancaster being made with the consent of the community of the town.'
Mayor's Accounts, 1372-3, 'arrears of John of Stafford, late Miyor. 9s. 4!d.': 1373-4, t3 4 s . to John of Stafford and John Peterbarough for 16 days being at Parliament of London. viz. 4s. a day.'
The tenor bell of All Saints, Leicester, is inscribed:

IHOHANNES-DE-STAFFORD-FECIT -ME-IN-HONORE-BE-MARIE.' (The letter $S$ is reversed in each case.)

That John of Stafford was the founder and not the donor of the bell is shown by there being a similar inscription in the same form of letters. etc., on the 3rd bell of St. Hibbald's, Scawby, near Brigg, Lincs:
I.H.C.+ MARIA - IHOHANNES - DE -STAFFORDE-FECIT-ME.'
We learn from the Fabric Roll of York Minster that a founder of that name was living A.D. 1371: under that date occurs the following entry among many relating to the cost of bells:-

- Et in una Magna Campanã per Johannem de Stafford ex convencione operanda. £6-13-4.'
From these facts we may. safely infer that John of Stafford was a bellifounder and, from the number of bells still found in Leicestershire, his foundry was in Leicester. As shown above he has Mayor of Leicester three times. Bells with his cross and stops and lettering are found at Aylestone, Beeby, Dalby Parva, Glen Magna, Loddington, Ratby, Shenton and Thrussington. The fact that some thirty bells of this type are found in and around Leicestershire clearly points 10 their being cast in Leicester and we therefore assume that they may be assigned to the 'belleyetre' of 1338-1354.
The Aylestone bell was given by William Resevour, whose date is about 1412, and more significant still. two more of these bells at Morley (Derbyshire) are known to have been given by John Statham. whose brass in that church is dated 1454. It is clear that on the evidence of this brass the bells must be ascribed to the isth century, and ceven if we extend the carcer of John of Stafford to the latest recorded date of 1392. it is stil! too carly for the Morley bells. A career, begun in 1338 , can hardly be prolonged heyond 1400. if so late. There may, however, have been a second John of Stafford (son?) for in Barrow's Chronology it states:

1412. Two new bells put up in St. Peter's Church cast by Maisters Staflord making three bells.

Again Barrow gives the following interesting item:
1491 Roger-de-Stafford the last of the family of bellfounders in the town, died well stricken in years, and was buried in Saynt Peter's Church, and was succeeded in the Arte and Craft of belle foundynge by one William Millers, his son-in-law.
There is a very interesting bell at Sproxton, Leics, bearing the inscription

+ IHOHANNES - DE - YORKE - ME - FECIT - IN - HONORE - BEATA MARIE' (and below) 'IHESVS - NAZARENVS - REX - IVDEORVM:

There are a number of bells in and around by the same founder, using the same lettering, cross and stops, but this is the only one giving the founder's name. The number of his bells remaining, considering their antiquity, leads to the inference that Johannes de York supplied many more in the county long since, for various reasons, recast.
If this be so, he, probably had his foundry in Leicester, at least for it time, even if not a perminent resident, but of this we cannot be certain. A foundry was in full work at York early in the 14th cenlury, by Richard Tunnoc, a bailiff of the city in 1320-1. The well known bell founder's window in York Minster was either erected by him or to his memory. It is not unlikely that Johannes de York learned his art from that foundry, which passed through several hands during that century.-Yours, etc.,

ERNEST MORRIS.

PEALS AT LEEDS, KENT

Dear Sir.-I have compiled a list, for Mr. Alec Fry. of Leeds, of the peals rung at St. Nicholas, Leeds, Kent, from The History and Art of Change Ringing, and the Kent County Associations reports.
According to these records, James Barham rang 61 peals there, and four were rung by the College Youths, and the K.C.A. reports give 90 to the piesent date, making a total of 155 .

Is there any other record available of peals that have been rung at this tower? If so I would be grateful for this information. - Yours faithfully,
T. E. SONE.

Castle Hill.
Brenchley, Kent.

BOX BELLS FOR CHIMING ONLY

Dear Sir,-For Mr. Dove's information the ring of four bells at Box, Wilts, is chiming only.
The bells were a ringing peal of 5 until 1937. when they were recast as four and hung on metal bars supported by the old frame.

I believe there was some local opposition to the bells. as the church is in a very low position: the louvres are actually lower than some of the nearby houses.-Yours faithfully,
R. EYLES (Mrs.).

PEAL AT SOU!TH WIGSTON, LEICS

Dear Sir. - Mr. Walter Ayre, the convener of the Peals Analysis Committee, has drawn attention to a peal rung at St. Thomas' South Wigston, Leics, on Feb. 6ih. 1961. conducted by John M. Jelley, and which was published on page 123 of 'The Ringing World' as a peal of 5.088 London Surprise Major.
This peal should have been recorded as a peal of 5,088 Yorkshire Surprise Major.Yours faithfully,

BRIAN G. WARWICK,
Ringing Master.
South Wigston, Leics.

Joe Smith, head ringer of Hexworth, is planning to ring his 100 th peal. Characters: Annie, his wife; Phyllis, daughter; Henry, her boy friend; John Smith; George Challen, retired colliery manager; Old William and Young William, his scholarly son; twin girls Alice and Rene Browning.
On the following two practice nights several ouches of Chester Surprise were rung together with a few plain courses of some of the other methods that they thought required some revision. The peal at Undercliffe having proved successful all that now remained was to ring the hundredth peal, and Joe, on the Wednesday practice night which preceded the peal attempt on the Monday, sat discussing their prospects with William.

- I myself shall be three-quarters of the way there,' pointed out William. 'Your hundredth will be my seventy-fifth.;

The three boys had been listening to the conversation between William and Joe with incredulous ears and Harry asked Joe

- Are you really going to ring, your hundredth peal next week, Mr. Smith?
' I am going to try-with the assistance of five other ringers, of course, replied Joe.
'Coo!' breathed Harry, his eyes sparkling with admiration. 'I bet you will be the first ringer ever to ring a hundred peals, won't you, Mr. Smith?'

Joe smiled.

- Not really. One very famous ringer called Mr. Ernest Morris has rung well over two thousand peals, and if you read your "Ringing World" you will discover that several people reach a total of one hundred in one year, every year that passes, whilst totals of between 50 and 70 are fairly common.
Mr. Challen, who had been distening to the conversation chipped in Peal ringing, Harry m'lad, is a pastime indulged in far more in some parts of the country than in others. The part in which you live happens to be one of those where peal ringing hasn't become such an obsession. No, that's not the right word. Shall we say that peal ringing in this locality isn't very fashionable. In our Guild there have been only two or three regular Guild members who have scored a century since it was formed over half a century ago. So, you see, if the attempt next week is successful it will be quile an event after all.'

Young Harry, who had evidently been doing a little mental calculation, remarked:
'One hundred peals a year, why that's two peals a week. Do these people do it for a living, Mr. Challen?'

No,' chuckled Mr. Challen. 'There are no professional ringers, Harry. The only people who make a living out of bellringing, so far as I am aware, are the bellfounders. So, you see. when you leave school you will have to find another occupation.?

They must be big, strong men to ring two peals a week!' observed young Tom.

- Oh, indeed they are,' interpolated John. One might almost describe them as a race apart.'
'Ape-like they are, he said, and simian,
Instead of normal men and wimian.'
Great creatures with barrel chests covered with hair, who live in wattle and daub huts. and feed on cold cabbage and raw meat.;
Tom's face expressed eloquent doubt as to the validity of this explanation.
'There are, I believe,' said Phyllis, with great seriousness, 'only one or two in captivity.

Joe nodded a profound agreement.
Tom looked from one to the other, hardly knowing what to think until he detected the beginnings of a smile on Joe's face.
'Garn!' he exploded contemptuously, 'I wonder what you think I am?'
The day that Con. Dewitt's 'Travellers were due to attempt the peal at Hexworth was also the day of the Guild meeting at Brigton. Joe arranged to finish work at 12 o'clock sharp, so that he could wash and change, have lunch and be at the church in order to meet the ringers.

After I have seen that they are properly settled,' he told Annie. 'I shall slip on to Cribbing's Long Row and have a look at those repairs that the young squire asked me to attend to. I shall probably catch the 2.30 bus to Barnswood and go on to Brigton from there. What are the others doing?-I have sent word in for the usual four teas.'

Phyllis is going back, to the office to finish some work for "Josh," and she and Henry (and. I believe, John too) will be coming along in "Alice," was Mrs. Smith's rejoinder. "It will not be much before tea though, as Henry says he would like to finish off that window frame ready for Monday morning, and he reckons it will take him at least a couple of hours.

Alice ' was a pre-war Morris, a maid-of-allwork, that had triumphantly borne the family to all corners of the British Isles on excursions and holidays, but was also used for transporting the materials and equipment connected with Joe's business. It could often be seen chugging along quite happily, enveloped in a cloud of sleam, with floor-banrds poking out of its windows. battens and scaffold-poles lashed to its roof-rack and sacks of sand and cement sticking out of its boot.
As Joe was setting off he met John in the yard who told him that he would come later with Phyllis and Henry but was first going down to his friend, Ian, until about half-past three.
When Joe arrived at the church, three of the visitors were already there, having travelled, apparently, in the battered old wreck of a car that was drawn up outside the lych gate. He was about to make some joke to the effect that he had realised they were approaching a short time before when all the windows in the village began rattling, but refrained as he thought it possible that he might offend the young man who was polishing the bonnet of the mechanical monstrosity with a good deal of affection and a dirty yellow duster.

Whilst this young man, who wore a bright red, polo-necked pullover, several sizes too big, and was addressed, Joe discovered later, by his companions as 'Billy, performed his labour of love, his two fellow ringers poured over a road map with (almost) the same intensity as young William had studied his Cambridge Surprise diagram. They all looked up as Joe arrived and he introduced himself. Their names were familiar to him owing to their frequent appeanance in 'The Ringing World.' Billy would have interested young Harry as he had topped the fifty mark in peal ringing for the last three years: the others were hardly less famous.
During the ensuing conversation it transpired that the three ringers were attempting to ring three peals in one day, having already rung one at Parkston during the morning, and had arranged to meet five other ringer Manstone round about 5 o'clock to att a peal of Yorkshire Surprise Major. had made all arrangements and they $b$ brought sandwiches with them which they is tended to eat en route. Meanwhile, as th awaited the arrival of the remainder of team, they discussed with Joe the best mel of reaching Manstone by road, and the fo of them examined the road map traced the route with his forefinger.

He paused as his finger came to Brigton.
There is a Guild meeting at Brigton toda? he said. 'I don't suppose you will hat time to call? No? Pity, seeing that you be passing through. I am going there mys after you have got seitled down.'

There was the sound of a car. approachir and a gleaming apparition of cellulose a: chromium pulled up and two people alighte one very tall and the other very short, bo of whom were older than the three ringe already there. Billy looked at them inquiringt
'Hello, Lofty, where's Jack?'
Lofty. the driver of the car, who was. & you may well imagine. the taller of the 1 m . shrugged his choulders and spread out hands.

He was taken ill at the Jast minute. came along in the hope that we should be able to get one of the local ringers complete the team.'

They all looked at Joe.
I'll drop you off at Brigton as we pass through.' offered Billy.

I'm sorry,' replied Joe, 'but I have a busi. ness appointment at half-past one.' Which, if not strictly true. was near enough for practicai purposes. Joe knew that the examination of the property repairs could very well wail until another day. What he did not wan to do was to ruin the arrangements he had made, or rather that Annie had made, for his hundredth peal.

Is there anyone else?' inquired Billy, "IU run you round in the car if necessary.
'It would perhaps be quicker to go il mine.' said Lofty. 'We would like to ring the peal to-day:"

Billy grinned. 'At least, mine doesn't re. quire a horn!' he retorted. Joe jumped inte the car with Lofty, thinking furiously. It was no use asking Mr. Challen-he had refused for several years now-to take part in a pea. Phyllis and Henry he knew were both occupied Perhaps William, father or son, would oblige Which way?' asked Lofty.
Joe directed him towards William's homestead.

Sorry.' said William's wife. 'he doesni arrive home for his dinner until about: quarter to two on Saturdays. Mr. Smith.'
Of course. Joe thought to himself, I ought to have remembered that.
'What about young William?'
He had gone on a cross-country run and hadn't arrived home.
'He said he would be home hetween half. past one and two o'clock. Is there aily message I can give them, Mr. Smith?'

No, it doesn't matter,' replied Joe
He , returned to the car. 'Nothing doing there, he said.

The next port of call was at Lan's, John'? friend, but both the boys had disappeared.

They went out together about five minutes ago." said Ian's mother. " Be back in an hour." they said. but you know what boys are. Shall I tell John you want him when he returns?'
'No. it's of no importance.' said Joe
What next? George would be of no use. as Lofty's friend. it appeared, was also restricted to treble ringing.
For a moment he toyed with the idea of asking one of the twins to attempt to ring "inside" to Bob Minor, but rejected it. It uasn't fair either to the twins or the visitors. (Continued next page)

Sorry,' he said to Lofty, 'you seem to be t of luck.
They returned to the church and reported the sad state of affairs. It was twenty minutes past one. He looked at the five dejected figures and reflected how quickly a fine piece of organisation can go astray; indeed, The best laid plans of mice and men- Much thought and preparation must have been expended in order to make plans dovetail; ktters, postcards, acceptances, rejections, rearrangements; only those, he told himself, who have tried to fix up such tours or outings can have any idea of the time and trouble insolved.

Suddenly an jdea buzzed in his brain. He rejected it violently, but it returned with even greater persistence. Like the lazy gardener with his plot, he turned it over in his mind, and then he re-examined it; he turned it jnside out and inside in and re-reexamined it.
' I wonder?' he mused aloud.
Five heads turned in his direction; in five pairs of eyes he saw a gleam of hope.
'Listen to me,', said Joe. 'I have a proposition to make.
They listened.

ESSEX ASSOCIATION

South-Western District

The annual meeting of the South-Western District was held at Brentwood on January 13th and, as is usual with the annual meeting of this District, it was exceptionally well attended, there being well over 100 members piesent.
The comparatively long climb to the ringing chamber and its smallness does not make Brentwood an jdeal tower for a meeting of such proportions, but this in no way detracted from the cordiality of the welcome. This meeting had been originally intended for Hornchurch, but the ringing chamber there was still not ready and Messrs. Sitch and Pryke, of Brentwood, had stepped in at short notice.
The meeting followed jts usual pattern, the Association form of service being conducted by the Vicar, after the service the tea and finally the business meeting at which the Association's general secretary look the chair, and rather lengthy agenda was successfully negotiated. Mr. J. H. Crampion was not seeking re-election as Master and his place was filled by the popular erstwhile secretary of the District, Mr. C. E. Willmington. There, were two nominations to fill the 'wide gap' Jeft by Mr . Willmington-Mr. L. Woods and Mr. M. Hallett. The members agreed to a show of hands and the new secretary was Mr. M: Hallett, 180, Downhall Road, Rayleigh. The District voted in favour of an increase in the subscriptions of ringing members and particulars of the District outing and visit to Great Ringing Day at Saffron Walden were discussed. And so, with thanks to all those at Brentwood who had made the afternoon so pleasant and memorable, the meeting broke up with the earnest hope that once again next year Hornchurch would be able to enter the rota of District annual general meetings.

MR. ROLAND BRAGG

The death of Mr. Roland Bragg, of Solihull, Warwichshire, severs an important link with the St. Alphege ringers of the last century. When in the 90 s , Mr. Geoffrey Martineau reorganised and revitalised the belfry of the parish church one of his chief aims was to interest younger men of the village and to enlist them in the band.

Among those drawn into the circle at the beginnipg of this century was Mr. Roland Bragg He was one of the sons of Charles Bragg, builder, and founder of the well-known firm, and after being educated at Waverley Grammar School, Birmingham, he entered his father's business. In later years he was in partnership with two of his brothers and became one of the principals of the firm. His connection with the Church of St. Alphege began in the choir, was extended into the belfry, and was perpetuated in his close association with the greater part. of the work of repair and restoration carried out in the last 60 years on the fabric of this lovely building.

Roland Bragg soon came to the fore in the tower and speedily became Geoffrey Martineau's right-hand man. He was an excellent ringer and striker, particularly round the back end, and as bob caller and conductor he was very safe. It was indeed chiefly due to his competence that Caters ringing rose to such a height of excellence, and it was his encouragement and interest that secured a succession of good conductors. He was a born leader, kindly, competent, and with a quiet authority that commanded respect.
The influx of young men round about the year 1906 was the direct result of his influence and widespread friendships, and it is interesting to note how the great chain of Braggs continued ta man the tower. On his 21 st birthday, in October, 1906, Roland called the first peal on the bells by an entirely local band. It was Taylor's Six-Part, and he followed this up four years later by conducting Parker's Twelve-Part half-muffled at the death of King Edward VII.

He served with distinction in the Royal Marine Light Infantry during the first world war, and afterwards returned to assist Geoffrey Martineau in the revival of ringing in his home tower. The work of these two gentlemen, and the influence they were able to exert, brought about the recasting of the ten bells of St. Alphege's in 1931, and from that year until his incapacitation by illness in 1943 Roland held active office as Ringing Master. During the 19 years of his enforced inactivity he had been closely associated with the belfry and all its doings, and it was the pleasant custom for him to entertain the ringers at his house every Christmas Eve.

The funeral on March 6 th was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. Harry Hartley, who spoke feelingly of Roland's close connection with, and valuable services to, the Parish Church. He spoke of him as a deeply religious man, generous in the giving of gifts both material and spiritual, and one whose indomitable courage had risen superior to his physical disability.

Before the cortege left the church a course of Grandsire Triples was rung on handbells by $V$.
W. Rigg 1-2, H. Bragg 3-4, E. C. Shepherd 5-6, C. Bragg 7-8. In the evening a quarter peal of Grandsire Triples was rung on the bells of the Parish Church by R. Cann 1, Jill Palmer 2, C. Dale 3, V. W. Rigg 4, E. C. Shepherd (conductor) 5,'T. Warner 6, H. H. Fearn 7, G. Palmer 8.

MR. WILLIAM DENT

It is with regret that we report the passing on February 14th, after a short illness, of Mr William Dent, of Colchester, at the age of 73 years.
A native of Lavenham, he was taught to ring in 1906 by the late Arthur Symonds, and rang his first peal at Lavenham in 1908. He was a regular Sunday service ringer there until he left about 1914. While at Lavenham he rang 27 peals, including the first handbell peal of Major to be rung there.
On moving to Colchester he joined the staff of the Royal Eastern Counties Institution as an instructor in craftwork to handicap child-ren-work requiring the qualities of patience and understanding, which he undoubtedly possessed.
Later on he became a regular ringer at St. Peter's, Colchester, under the leadership of Mr. E. P. Duffield, with whom he rang several peals in the 1930's, including Cambridge and Superlative S. Major.
A reliable ringer and steady striker in the standard methods, he was particularly fond of handbell ringing, and while at Colchester rang in several peals of Plain Bob and Kent T.B. "in hand; including the first handbell peal in Colchester and also the first of Royal, both conducted by the late William Keeble.
In 1939 he went as instructor to the Royal Victoria School for the Blind at Benwell, Newcastle upon Tyne, where he remained until he retired in 1950, his work there with blind boys being highly appreciated. His years of retirement were spent in Colchester.

Unfo-tunately he kept no complete record of his peals, but they must number well over a hundred on tower- and handbells. Of a kindly, unassuming disposition, he leaves a widow and married daughter to mourn his passing. To them, we in Colchester extend our sincere sympathy in their great loss.

SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT SOCIETY

For the first time in its history, the Sheffield and District Society have elected a lady as president-lect-Mrs. E. D. Kelly. The annual meeting was at Ranmore on March 3rd, when Mr. F. Brunt took over from Mr. F. Cardwell as president. Other changes in officers were: Mr. D. Armstrong, assistant secretary, and Mr. S. Armeson, assistant Ringing Master. A tour of Derbyshire in July was suggested for the summer outing. The very cold weather kept the attendance down to 26 , revertheless a large variety of methods ranging from Plain Bob Royal to Bristol Surprise Major was rung.

MEMORIES OF  LAST SEPTEMBER

Friends Of The Exercise In Cornwall

MOST of the countryside around Exeter drew a veil of mist over itself, nut this not enough to deter the members of the Was not enough to deter the members of the meeting place, the Kings Arms, from the invasion on September 1st last year. Victory was announced appropritely by the ringing of East Budleigh bells.
To the great disappointment of everyone Mr. C. Savage, the founder member, was unable to come, but had to see us off on Saturday morning. He was much missed On our way to Truro we rang at Okehampton, an eight which is not easy to strike well, then Lezant, a pleasant six, with lunch afterwards. Ir was then that we found that skittles is not Jean Sanderson's game, and it was wise to stay beyond the range of the little ball!
Stoke Climsland has a most attractive church with good bells and a quaint memorial which asks that in death the deceased may find that 'rest which in life I could never have.' We continued to Liskeard's clean looking tower which contains a nice slow-going eight and three clocks in the ringing chamber, sone of which seemed to be right, then to St. Austell. famed for its tower's sculptured figures and for the carved bench ends against the walls of the tower.

THE ONLY ' V '
On Sunday there was ringing at Truro Cathedral, and at Kenwyn, this latter being justly renowned for its hospitality, and in the afternoon we were able to ring at the only ' $V$ ' in Dove. Veryan. This is at very pleasant six, alibough the ropes were rather long for comfort. Probus' tall green lichenencrusted tower was next, and the octave was well worth the climb up the tallest tower in Cornwall. We were most fortunate in being given permission for a quarter of Grandsire at the Cathedral in the evening, and it sounded magnificent. In the meantime seamstresses and apple-pie-bed-makers had not neglected their duties at the hotel.
The non-peal ringers decided that they were going to have a pull at the peal towers. On Monday they hastened to Phillack, rang and left the peal attempters to do their best We hoped that the dedication of St. Felicitas would prove apt, but it did not. the peal being lost. Lelant has a proud church on the sandy dunes and delightful bells hang there. Zennor is out in some bleak scenery, a sturdy, dark. thick-walled church with steps down into the tower. The six here feel heavy-going for their weight, but what can you expect of a place of which it was once soid that the cow ate the bell rope? Though this story is also attributed to Morvah.

DING DONG

Somewhere in this area is a hamlet with a most significant name of Ding Dong-at least we saw the signpost for it and some of $u$ s were tempted to explore further, but Madron : popular octave called. Sennen, the most westerly church in England, is rather plain to look at. and the light six is fair enough. but not outstanding. Permission had heen obtained that day for us 10 ring at Gulval, a oleasant octave with a ninth bell kept in the churchyard. Ferns grow inside the tower at Paul. and there are doubts about the safety of the floor. hut we rang the six hells, which feel heavier than one would expect. I always feel that Penzance seems most like a ten bell tower. though it has actually a good solid heavy octave.
There were great hopes for Tuesday's peal attempt at Carbis Bay, hut in the words of the song sung by some friends of the Essex Association. to the tune of 'John Brown's body. .
The Friends are ringing Double Norwich Roy 1 at Carbis Bay.
Friends are ringing Double Norwich Roy'l at Carbis Bay,
Friends are ringing Double Norwich Roy'l at Carbis Bay,
But they don't know how to make the bob!' At least, that's one version of the reason for losing the peal.

Towednack was very much appreciated by those who rang there, and after lunch everyone tackled Camborne's short eight. Tuckingmill has a reddish tower which looks short and squat from the road, but there is still a fair climb to the merry eight. At Redruth we went downstairs to the base of the towerwhen we had found it-rang and returned to the Brookdale Hotel for dinner, and afterwards the Essex ringers produced topical songs to fi: the occasion and that classic, 'At the name of Wilfred.

WATER PISTOLS!
There is usually some utterly memorable thing about each S.F.E. holiday. On Wednes day we knew-it was water pistols! The star may be blamed on John Gilbert, but hefor long many of the members were fully armed and had a dampening influence on all who passed within range.
In general we were lucky with the weatheWednesday and Thursday being particularly good. St. Anthony-in-Meneage, with a delightful 12 cwt . cight. was the tower for the peal attempt of Cornwall. This came to grief, but I do not believe that it was due to the effects of the night before. Thase not standing in the peal went to the southernmost church in England. Landewednack, and also fitted in a grab at Mullion Church
St. Keverne was said to have cursed the inhabitants of the village of that name, saying that no metal will run within sound of these bells. We did not have time to test this, we rang them and went on to Manaccan, one of the two churches with a fig tree growing in the south wall. Here six ringers stood back to back to ring. St. Mawgan-in-Meneage is the home of that fascinating little memorial tablet Shall we all dye?
We shall dye al
All dye shall we Dye all we shall.
We left that lovely little six and went to the distinctive Georgian church of Helston, then on to another nice little six at Constantine, where John Gilbert's car was sabotaged again: fortunately no damage was done.

A PEAL AT LAST!

A peal of Stedman Triples at Probus was successful, to everyone's delight. for it gave Brian Cox. from Austradia. his first on eight Owing to a misunderstanding only four turned up at St. Wenn-an unscheduled grab. Does it count if four bells of a six bell tower are rung? St. Mawgan-in-Pydar would have been a handsome tower to ring a peal in, but permission had had to be withdrawn.
The scarch for St. Eval was prolonged and exciting, jnvolving one grey Austin van in a cross-country trip over fields with cattle in them. Although the map readers were criticised it was not really their fault, as the mapis do not show the effect of the airfield upon the local roads. At St. Columb Major there are archways cut through the base of the tower. The distinction between St. Columb Major and St. Columb Minor should be the number of bells. but both towers have eight. At Major one climbs a little nearer. and the tenor is two cwt heavier: at Minor one ring from the ground floor and enjoys (?) the full benefit of a tower 100 feet ligh and a tenor of only 10 cwt

ROBBED BY BROKEN ROPE

On Saturday we had to worik our way east wards again, with a peal attempt at Cardyn ham. These bells sound much heavier than their weight of nearly $15 \mathrm{cWt} .$. and perhap they were, because to everyone's disappon? ment a rope broke. Many years ago a specill bequest in a will required a branch from an oak to be placed among the pinnacles each year at St. Neot. The bells were the most disappointing of the tour. St. Cleer was fitted in, where there is a six with long and spring ropes and some excellent stained glass.
We arrived early at the Cathedral of ine Moor, Altarnon, with its wonderful carving. and had time 10 sit on the bridge enjoying the sunlight (and refilling the water pistols hefore ringing the octave. Then on our way over the Moor we met the Lethbridge Hunt. They were hacking 10 another covert (or whatever the appropriate local place is) and made a brave picture in the sunlight. The thin sound of the horn was audible a long time after they hatd vanished.
We rang at Milton Abbott and on the lovely slow and heavy octave of Tavistock, and the famous Widecombe-in-the-Moor. There we were met by the Vicar. formerly of Crich. Derbys, who welcomed us and let us make merry on these delightful bells. Buckland-in-the-Moor glowed golden in the setting sunight. We discovered the stay was missing from one of the bells the hard way and a rope broke, so while it was being repaired one the last of the big water pistol battles wa fought, and peace descended only after had rung these excellent bells and headed for East Budleigh again.
In an account like this it is difficult to avoid just making a catalogue of place names and a repetition of rings and weights to be found in Dove's invaluable Guild. Naturally, rounds upwards to some' very complicated Surpris methods were rung, and it was a pity that more of the peal attempts were not successful. hut many people were able to ring at fifty towers or more in that week, and there were no serious mishaps. The highest tribute should o paid to Frank Mack. the organiser, to there were no hitches, even when plans had be altered at the last minute, and even when he had to be away himself. ## STARTING A WORLD TOUR

A dinner was held on March 3rd at th fircwell to Patricia and Michael Simpion, who ati ihe elld of the month, are leaving for Canada. They propose to stay in Canada for two years ot so before moving on to Australi. for a similar period and then making ther way home via Ncw Zealand and Africa.
Pat. who began ringing at Grantham 1955. has rung some 15 peals up to Superlati Major and Erin Caters. She steadfast refuses to ring on twelve bells, though perfectl able to do so. Michael. a ringer for 15 year and with 40 odd peals to his credit. has such scruples, as may be seen from the peal columns, and on March 3rd completed the Cambridge group. with a peal of Royal a Grantham, where he has been tower captain Grantham, where he has for the past two years.
The band at Grantham will be hard hit by the loss of two of its most valuabie members hut all join in wishing them good luck. safe voyaging, good tower snatching and au revoir

10 & 12 BELL COMPOSITIONS

Dear Sir.-After looking over the new Central Council publication on Compositions of Stedman, one wonders why all the peals are so conventional, in that the course ends are all Tittum or Handstroke Home. This seems to be the case in general with Grandsire Cater peals, though not with quarters. In Srowdon's 'Grandsire' several arrangements of the heavy bells have been given, with quite pleasing results. though in a quarter the time is all too short to assess its real worth. In Stedman the breaking-up of the coursing order does bring up different arrangements, hut one position has been neglected, the Backstroke Home. To my mind, the 67890 roll-up at backstroke seems in phase with the backstroke 9780 of the Tittums, while ears and mind have to be readjusted to appreciate the 76980 of the Handstroke Home.

I know that we cannot always have the best of all worlds. but a peal of Grandsire Caters (more so than Stedman) with the first third in the Backstroke, the middle in the Tittums and the final part in the Handstroke. incorporating in each the best courses, would, in my opinion, sound very fine.

To be honest. I've actually ricd to get one in Grandsire, but after several good-looking compositions turned up false ftwo with only one lead duplicated) I gave up, duc to the amount of work required to prove them.
As a matter of fact. the round-at-back touches of Stedman Caters in the Ringers' Diary (and when, oh when are we to have a fresh selection of touches and/or methods) are very enjoyable Sunday service ringing. especially with another course or so singled into the homing course: though we have to go 10 Mr . E. Shepherd's admirable handbook for some original touches of Grandsire. And the first touch of Erin Caters published I have yet to see.-Yours sincerely,

DENNIS A. FRITH.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

Devizes. Branch

The 40 or so people who attended the Branch meeting at West Lavington on March 10 th spent a very enjoyable time. Methods from rounds to Cambridge were rung on the fine six.
The service was taken by the Vicar, who gave us a very interesting sermon: he drew comparisons between our English art of ringing and that which prevails in other countries, including the bells of Bethlehem. At one time he was responsible for getting these bells on the air at. the precise moment for the Christmas broadcast: this involved the use of relays of small boys. Those of us who have heard the clamour of these bells can imagine the anxiety which he must have known.

Tea was served by the ladies of the local band in the beautiful Manor House, by the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Holloway.

After tea, many took the opportunity to ring on the six at Erlstoke. These light bells, which are rung from a very small chamber, call for a high degree of handling, as those who rang Stedman and Plain Bob soon discovered.

A RINGER'S HYMN

(Based upon the 95th Psalm) By PERCY AMOS Sung to the tune set to Hymn 390, English Hymnal: Firmly I believe and truly.

1. In the strength of our salvation

Let us heartily rejoice,
To the God of all creation
Hearts with minds and hands and voice.
2. For He is the Lord our Saviour Harden not your hearts this day.
Hear his voice from tower and steeple Ours his call to come and pray.
3. Kneel before the Lord your maker At this call o'er land or sea.
Both He made for our thanksgiving All the world where'er we be.
4. Gladly, Lord, with Psalms we offer To thy servants here around.
Touching minds and hearts who pray nol Or the sinful world abound.
5. On his day of Resurrection Fail we not that call partake.
Or the sacraments He gave us Left to all for his dear sake.

BELFRY

 brought him into contact with people outside his own area, will receive congratulations upon his appointment as Vicar of Abercarn, Newport, Mon. According to Dove's, St. Luke's, Abercarn, has eight bells with a tenor of 12 cwt. 1 qr. 13 lb ., for chiming only.A correspondent asks us for details of the Empingham Handbell Ringers.
A correspondent calls attention that Defford, Worcestershire, has a 4 -bell tower. The bells were cast by Carrs, of Smethwick.
Those who are going to Cardift next Whitsun for the Central Council meeting will note with pleasure that the first peal of Surprise has been rung by a band composed of residents in the Cardiff area. This was also the first peal of Yorkshire for the Association by a resident band.
Leaving for Aden is Mr. Ronald A. Wright, of Clapham Park, S.W., who is serving with the R.A.F. He took part in a farewell peal of Rutland Surprise Major at Atherstone, Warwickshire, on February 24th. A safe journey and a speedy return!

Reading that Robert Bolt stood in a peal at Todmorden has reminded a reader of a unique occasion when the Rev. Peter Bolt and Mr. George Nutt (former Mayor of Northampton) stood together on the same platform. Perhaps one day we shall hear of Mr. Anthony Queen. Mr. John King and Mr. Albert Prince in the same peal attempt!

As a thanksgiving for the life of Jeremy Grimes, 'members of the Abingdon School Campanological Society, with the help of Miss Cross, attempted a guarter peal in three methods at St. Nicholas Church, Abingdon, on March 2nd. Unfortunately, after the first 720 the attempt failed. Those taking part were Miss M. R. Cross, Clifford Carter, Christopher Dean, Martin Tarran-Jones, Alexander Rowson and Christopher Rowson. Another attempt is planned in the near future.

GOSSIP

 Church, Higher Walton, Lancs, of Mr. John Taberner was justly recognised by a peal on February 24th. For the past ten years he has been chief ringer. This is only one section of his service to the church, as he has been on the Parochial Church Council for 40 years and only missed one meeting, a sidesman since 1919 and a churchwarden for 27 years. 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'Mr. and Mrs. John Betts are thanked by the band who rang the peal at Harrietsham, Kent, for their hospitality after the ringing.
Going overseas to Southern Rhodesia is Colin Stevenson, of Cranford, Middlesex. We assure him that a cordial welcome awaits him at Salisbury Cathedral.

Criticising ' B . A.'s' ' article on Stoke D'Abernon bells, Mr. David C. Brookes, of 4, Redgrave Road, Putney, writes: ' Don't blame Gillett's hanging to cover up your inability to handle Stoke D'Abernon bells; I found them perfectly all right last summer.;
A loss to Kent ringing is the departure of Miss Kathleen M. Yeo, of Tenterden, who is now living at 16 , Granville Road, Clacton-onSea. A quarter peal was specially arranged and rung at High Halden by Tenterden ringers as a farewell gesture.

Mr. Douglas A. R. May (21), of East Clandon, is the new Master of the Guildford Diocesan Guild. He is the youngest Master of a Diocesan Guild or Association. His election was by ballot on Saturday. Other nominees were Messrs. H. N. Pitstow and Frank E. Hawthorne.
Mr. Tom Stephens, Master of the Llandaff and Monmouth Association, is in Ebbw Vale General Hospital. During the recent cold weather he slipped on an icy patch and injured his knee, which has necessitated an operation. Although progressing favourably, it will be some time before he is walking again. His many friends, through 'The Ringing World,' send their good wishes.

SUSSEX SURPRISE, or - WE DIDN'T EXPECT TO SEE YOU TO-DAY

Saturday, January 20th, was not a good day, so far as the weather was concerned, for a ringing outing in the Kent and Sussex countryside. but after a few precursory grumbles (directed mainly towards the organiser for his choice of day) a party set out in a Dormobile from Croydon.
The first scheduled stop was Speldhurst. where we were joined by three friends from Chelstield who had battled their way by car through a slight drizzle in order to be with us at the start. Two of our party had rung a peal at Speldhurst on Boxing Day so were able to direct us to the tenor and treble. since the local secretary had not accompanied us into the tower. Successful courses of Cambridge and London were rung

We all admired Wadhurst, with its attractive ground floor ringing room and gay blue sallies on the ends of long lengths of elastic. The bells are a newish Taylor eight, and after we had accustomed ourselves to the high coefficient of restitution of the ropes they sounded splendid to Stedman, Double Norwich and Bristol.
Continuing on, we found ourselves at Ticehurst, our only six of the day. Ringing here was rather limited, but a course of Norwich Surprise was brought round. Our party was completed at the last tower before lunch. Hawkhurst, when we were joined by a young man who had been allowed the doubtful privilege of working for most of the morning. Methods rung here ranged from Grandsire to 5 -Spliced Surprise.

Afternoon ringing commenced with Bristol on the pleasant octave in the large central tower of Rye Church. After this, we rang what seemed to be a quarter peal of Double Norwich, although in fact the conductor managed to bring the touch round in just over 15 minutes! Thus our time at Rye expired, and we hurtled into Hastings to ring at All Saints:
We soon had this loud but pleasant and easygoing eight tapping round to Stedman and Cambridge, but when we came to ring Bob Major our treble ringer broke the stay after two whole pulls! We stood. and put our staybreaker on the second, counselling him to take more care. but before going into changes he accorded that bell exactly the same treatment as the treble! He was then asked by our captain, kindly but firmly, if he would mind sitting that one out. After profuse apologies to the local secretary, who took this unhappy episode very well, we retired in some confusion from the tower

At Christ Church, Hastings, we found a very pleasant belfry, where we rang Stedman, Pudsey and London

Our last tower of the day was Battle, which is not inappropriately named, and we were glad to learn that these bells are shortly to be rehung. However. we enjoyed our ring there and. despite the hard work. courses of Yorkshire. Superlative and Cambridge were successfully brought round.

A most enjoyable day thus came to a close. except, of course, for the usual refreshment and handbell ringing on the way home. The band extend their grateful thanks to all the incumhents and to the various local ringers who net them.

REMINISCENCES OF E.V.R.

1. JOHN BRADNEY (of Shifnal)

I first met John Bradney at the annual meeting at Shrewsbury in 1912. He was a rather slight man of about average height and wore a short 'imperial' beard (a little like the late King George $\mathbf{V}$ ).

He was an architect. a bachelor, and lived with his sister, Miss Bradney, as the Stome House, Shifnal, not far past the island going into the town centre on the left-hand side.

It was said of him that he 'raked Shifnal ringing out of the fire,' and no doubt he restored it to something of its former glory. They could ring Grandsire Triples with really clockwork precision. Bradney called several peals (Carter's and Taylor's), also Hubbard's TenPart of Boh Triples; also Haycox. Page and Hyde all called peals.

Bradney was very friendly with John Carter and W. H. Goddern, the latter employed on the staff of Barwell's Bell and Brass Foundry in Great Hampton Street, Birmingham. They came over from time to time and rang peals composed and conducted by John Carter
Carter had an ambition to call one of his peals of Stedman at each of the three eights in that area-Bridgnorth, Coalbrookdale and Shifnal. He did this and gave them each a black marble tablet with gold lettering: the one at Shifnal also records a peal of Grandsire.

Bradney spent a lot of money on his ringers: from time to time he took them to Aberystwyith, where they would attempt a peal at Llanhadarn Fawr, on the outskirts of the town. He nearly always had an expert (Carter, Short, Groves and the like) to call it. They went to Barmouth about 1908. and Short called Parker's Twelve-Part.

MISSUS, BRING ME MY GUN
Bradney was fond of telling how, in the following year, he spent a few days holiday there. and on going into a tobacconist's shop and getling into conversation with the shopkeeper about the beauty of the place was asked ' You've been here before, sir?' 'Yes,' replied Bradney, "I was here last year with a team of bellringers." 'Oh,' said the shopkeeper, "are you one of those who rang for three hours?" Yes., answered Bradney, proudly; whereupon the man whipped round and called to his wife: 'Missus. bring me my gun!
Bradney rang abedut 50 peals; those rung for the Salop Guild are recorded in the peal book He look part in an 'old man's peal' at Aston on May 2nd. 1914. The combined ages being 653 years 10 months. Although by no means a strongly-built man. he favoured the 'back end' and rang the ninth in this peal on the old ten5.003 Grandsire Caters, composed and conduc ted by his old friend John Carter.

He left Shifnal not long before World War I and went to live at Penn, near Wolverhampton thereafter the Shifnal ringing went down: they seemed to me as 'sheep without a shepherd. He composed a peal of Bob Major and asked C. R. Lilley to call it ; this was after he hadd left Shifnal

A band of Bradney's "lads' rang Taylor's Six-Part, with George Haycox as conductor The average age was 20 years, and all the band were bachelors resident in the parish. In August. 1924. Mr. Bradney and his sister canke with us on a ringing tour of Devon, but he did not ring himself as he was then getting too shaky. He died a year or two later.

MORE BELFRY GOSSIP

Toltenham High School for Girls was fortunate in drawing sufficient talent from pas pupils and staff to ring'a quarter peal of Plain Bob Minor, with two cover bells, for the school's centenary service, at which the sermon was preached by the Bishop of Willesden. The present school was represented by Margaret Varlcy, who rang before and after the service. and it is to be hoped that she will soon be ringing quarter peals Litle Wittenham, Berks, formed its band on February 25th. 1961. On February 18th the first quarter was rung, with four firsts. Three of the band had their first lesson on Febrtary 25 th and the treble ringer on June 24th.

A TOWER CAPTAIN REPORTS

OUR band has been in existence for over five years now, but we are still very much in the 'struggling' stage. We manage to ring call-changes-usually on five or six, only occasionally on eight - on most Sunday evenings; but although there are 20,000 people in the parish the band is only ten strong. As many of our members are still at school they have to put homework before coming to practices, so that the hoped-for progress to change-ringing is very slow to materialise.
We held our 'annual general' the other day, and the Master's report for the year did not make exactly cheerful reading. Although the standard of striking in call-changes was continuing to improve, and there had been more Sundays during the year when all eight bells had been rung than previously, and although plain courses of Grandsire Doubles had been rung on practice nights with some success, he had to report that membership of the band had fallen and no new recruits had been made. Practices had been so poorly attended that it had been virtually impossible to maintain any progress in change-ringing.
He went on as follows:-
' If we are not to fizzle out, it is up to every member who feels that we are doing a useful job by ringing the bells to remind people of the services of the church to consider very seriously the following suggestions:-
'(1) Recruitment.-How about making a "New Year" resolution to try to persuade at least one person to take up ringing during the year?
'(2) Practices.- "I don't think I'll go ringing tonightit's too cold, and there's a programme on the TV I don't want to miss." Or: "What's the point of my going tonight? There'll only be two or three there anyway-not enough to ring." Do such considerations ever stop you from coming to practices? What about the people you are letting down, some of whom may have had some distance to travel? I fully realise that, for some of you, homework must come first, but I still feel that the practices could be better attended. The result would be more progress, which would lead to more interesting ringing.
'(3) Self improvement.-Within a radius of five miles from here, you can find a practice every evening of the week. There is a meeting somewhere not too far away nearly every Saturday afternoon and evening. The facilities for advancement in this area are almost unparalleled anywhere else in the country. What use are you making of them?
' I do hope you will consider these points, and will continue to support this band by coming to ring as often as you can. I repeat that I believe this to be a very well worth while activity; I know that many people in the parish really do like to hear the bells being rung on Sundays, and I hope we can continue to ring them. Thank you for your support during the past year.' W. T.C.

a PIECE OF CAKE

$\mathbf{A}^{7}$T half past eight on Monday morn, With every step I took a yawn, Until on leading to the hall
I saw what, upon the postman's call,
A package left, three inch by two,
With silvered bells, church and horseshoe,
Nuptial bliss for two, but who?
The postage flap bore o'er its sheen
Three pictures there of our dear Queen,
But what was this encircled there
Made me grope for easy chair?
Yes! second looks could not deny
Wilmslow, Chesh, brought forth a sigh,
And quick as flash to make quite surc
The address I scanned to learn much more,
One glance, to fantasy of thought
Banana commas, full stops bold me brought,
No! surely not, it could not be,
Was this the last that we should see
Of a Cheshire gent on iron steed?
No more a festival of mead.
No more in accent loud and clear
Three, four dodge, no, chaps, I fear.
That will not do for me, please stand.
Let's retire right now to the "Bird in Hand,"
And come to try another day.'
No more at inquest hold his sway
Beside the loss from many bars
Must this upset conjunctioned stars,
And whilst presiding in the chair,
Would we be denied - 'twould not be fair.
Must we be left with potted ferns
And not hear more of Robbie Burns;
Must the other corners of the land
Be denied the music of his hand.
And if in need of some solace
Can we no more in phone box place
Four coins there and listen to
A few more golden words from you.
Conjecture done I slashed the band
To see who's led him by the hand.
The reason's clear. with loaded holster
He'd slept with it beneath his bolster.
So that in dreams beneath the moon
His future queen he'd see, he'd horrowed it off June.

BELL FRAMES

By HEADSTOCK

$\mathrm{I}^{>}$Y friend I. Ron Clapper and I were having a quiet word or two recently about the year's coming programme of maintenance.. He said that after putting it off for several years he felt 1962 really must be the deadline for a repaint to his frame. So what more could I do (I owed him a pint) than to encourage his good and brave intentions?
After several moments of quictness whilst we did justice to the local brew, he broke silence by saying he wished his bell frame was of timber so that painting would be unnecessary. I consoled him in his great trouble by reminding him that paint taken in large amounts is not half so bad as creosote in small quantities.

What one may gain in big bell wheels is perhaps lost in small pulleys, so to speak, and so it is with bell frames. On the one hand a good old friendly oak job is decidedly more sociable an object than a cold, merciless metal product. You know what I mean, i.e., the former won't at least make crafty-lype lunges at us bell men when we are not looking, whereas in the latter case just try and get away with a mid-week clapper greasing without loss of skin; these metal types are just too smart-for me, anyway.
P.S. to all this: There is very much to be said in many instances for metal bell frames even so, and as it happens my own pride and joy falls happily into this category.

Whatever type of frame may be in one's care, be it wood, metal or composite (wood and metal), the month of March would be an ideal time really to examine it all over with the aid of a strong running lead lamp and spanners (not forgetting a silent keen-type assistant), if only to knock the established rust oft here and there. If this is the year for a scrape and paint programme, then all this month might well be set aside for the job, then in April the paint can go on in a conscience-clean atmosphere, and we all know what I mean by that-I hope. Frames with bells set in plain bearings especially will need a good brushing over round by the brasses with paraffin or turpentine substitute where the oil or grease has been claimed by gravity, and should the slider be affected with the stuff then that too should be well scraped clean.
Just a word or iwo of mutual advice-1 speak from experience. The recently-elected or con-missioned 'bell maintenance operative' who has not as yet done a 'scrape and paint' would be advised to start well wrapped up, to the neck, complete with old beret (to pull down over cars) and back pocket in overalls containing personal hand-cleaning ray with previouslyadded turps or paraflin, not forgelting a small pocket torch in the event of electric power failure or bulb breakage.
If any fellow bell man is wondering why this work is being done so early in the year, then my answer is that whilst we are the sort of people to do these jobs, we are also the sort that has often got a fair-sized garden to dig or house to paint, and though the tenuptation is there to put it off, when the time comes it's pretty well impossible to puil both sorts of tasks in at the same time. i.e., paint round the house and/or paist bell frames.
When I write of this frame painting I refer, of course, to the wheels and roller boxes and any other item that is normally painted: they must all go under the cleaning up process of a really good, first-class bit of wire brushing.
Having arrived at the condition for actually painting in April time. it will be recommended to again equip onesclf with overalls, hat and rag, und I think a good quality ?" brush is just about right.
There are some weaknesses in painting to heware of: for instance, see to it that the underside of headstocks, underside of castings and clappers are painted: but I reckon the prize one is when, after having completed painting the job and having reached the door or latehkey one is just congratulating oneself on a - fire station' result when with holy horror, there it is-the complete unfinished, unpainted underside of all girders!

PERSONALITIES OF THE EXERCISE-55

MR. JOHN J. F. ROPER,  St. Paul's Cathedral Society, Melbourne, Australia.

Only those ringers who have visited or lived in Australia can appreciate the vast distances which have to be covered to visit any tower other than one's own. To give some examples -Melbourne to Adelajde is 500 miles, to Perth is 1,700 miles, to Maryborough is 1,000 miles and to Sydney is 600 miles! It is obvious therefore, that progress in change ringing can only be made by the united efforts of a local company, helped, in a few cases, by the presence of English-born ringers.
One of the most enthusiastic Australian born ringers is Mr. John J. F. Roper, captain of St. Paul's Cathedral, Melbourne, and he has the distinction of having rung in more peals in Australia than anyone, his total being 22. out of a grand total of 91 peals rung in the continent. He is very grateful to Messrs. Philip Gray and George Pipe for helping him to reach this total. One of the greatest problems is the cost of travel, and the time to make the long journeys to other towers. Recently John Roper went with three other ringers to visit St. Peter's Cathedral. Adelaide, where Miss Enid Lloyd-Roberts is doing such good work. They went for the week-end, and the fares for the four alone came to $£ 47$ 10s.! So inter-tower visits must be few and far between.

Jack Roper, as he is known amongst his friends, was born on August 30th, 1915, at St. Kilda, a suburb of Melbourne. He was educited at a suburban State school and at Wesley College, a Church controlled public school, and follows the occupation of manager of a painting and signwriting firm. He learnt to ring in 1931 at St. Paul's Cathedral, and was taught by any of the ringers who were active at the time. Foremost amongsit these was Mr . Jack Spencer, who bas now retired from ringing, but who has just returned from a trip to England, when he visited his old tower and friends, whom he left to go to Australia some 40 odd years ago. As a lad of 18 , Jack well remembers the visit of the English, touring party When the in 1934 Adventure peal of Gisited Melbourne in 1934 to ring at peal of Grand-sire Cingues, and the js the only ringer left it $\mathrm{Si}^{\text {. Paul's who was present on that unique }}$ occasion. They all had a marvellous time fogether, and the recalls meeting Jack Goldsmith. the Rev. E. Bunkes James, and Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Richardson, as well as others who showed them what singing really was like.
When Philip and Joan Gray went to Australia in 1952 , Jack could only ring Grandsire. but with the addition of Valerie Willard and Barbara Beeson it was not long before he and others were ringing Plain Bob and Stedman. The same year, 1952, saw Jack scorjng his first peal, Grandsire Triples at St. Paul's Cathedral, conducted by Philip Gray. He was naturally very thrilled when he rang Stedman Triples in 1953, and Grandsire Caters in 1954. Later in 1957, with the arrival of George and Diana Pipe, he rang Kent Minor the same year, and Kent Major in 1959. This was followed in 1960 by Cambridge Minor, and Double Norwich in 1961, in which Miss Monica Collins, of Guildford, took part, both peals conducted by George Pipe, and these being the first in the method outside the British Isles.
Jack is of powerful build, being 6ft. 1 in tall, and weighing $16 \frac{1}{2}$ stone, and is well equipped to ring round the back end. To have rung peals on some very bad going bells has given him much satisfaction, if not much pleasure! He rang the 7th at Ballarat (some 70 miles from Melbourne), which is renowned for its bad "go,' and he also took part in it fully muffled peal on the bells of St. Patrick's R.C. Cathedral, Melbourne, at the time of the death of Pope Pius XII. This was the only peal on the bells. cast by Murphy, of Dublin.
At the present time, Jack is captain of St Paul's Cathedral Society, and this is the second period that he has been privileged to hold this office. He was elected captain when Philip Gray went home in 1955, and remained in office until he stood down for George Pips a couple of years ago. He again accepted the position this year, becuuse George felt that, owing to a lot of business commitments, he could not give sufficient time to the job.
One of the things that pleases Jack is the fact that he has continued ringing, even when things have become very black, and has always done his best to encourage anybody and everybody who has helped him keep the bells going over the years. There are several rings of bells in the country area, mast of which 'go' very badly, but which are kept going by men and women who struggle on year after year, without much hope of doing any more than ring call changes and plain courses of simple methods. The main thing to do is to keep the bells sung, and they all get a great deal of pleasure out of the service they maintain for God and His Church, and the good fellowship with one another.
Jack feels it would be wonderful to have another party of English ringers to visit them in the near future, and they would certainly offer a welcome which would be remembered! He is positive that all Australian ringers would derive great benetits from such a trip, and they would love to meet anyone who could make the visit, and friendships would be formed that would last as long as thoso made in 1934.
Jack's wife started to ring some 3 or 4 years ago, and she is stcadily improving, being determined to become a reasonable singer before very long. They have two children, a daughter aged 15 , and a son who is 11 . He is a boy chorister in the Cathedral, and thus makes three of their family of four who are serving the Church in some way.
Working under difficult conditions, which would daunt many in this country, Jack Roper is one of those keen Australian ringers who are striving to keep ringing alive in that great continent. Backed by other enthusiasis, he is determined to see that the art shall continue to flourjsh "down under." There could be no finer tonic than the news that a party of English riagers might visit them within the next 2 or 3 years. The visit would do good on both sides, and would be another unforgettible experience. This part of our Commonwealth deserves cvery encouragement, and it is 10 the sinverely hoped that they will get it in a practical form

APACE.

UNTELL

From an American reader:-

How can you unring a bell. Or order the ink to its well? If a heart has been broken By some word that's spoken, How can you, then, untell? By DON WHEELDIN.

YOUTH AT THE HELM IN GUILDFORD GUILD

Guildford Diocesan Guild at its annual mecting at St. Saviour's Hall, Guildford, on March 11 th, attended by 160 ringers, elected Mr. Douglas A. R. May, of East Clandon, as Master, in succession to Mr. Charles W. Denyer, of Farnham, who had held the office for four years. The election was by ballot. Others nominated were Mr. Frank E. Hawthorne (Thames Ditton) and Mr. Harold N. Pitstow. of Banstead. A nomination in favour of Supt. R. J. G. Hagley (Godalming) was withdrawn.
The retiring Master, who presided. presented to the Guild a badge of office for the Master -a medallion of a bell. suspended on blue ribbon. At the conclusion of the ordinary business he installed the new Master, who was warmly congratulated. Among those who extended greetings to him was Mr. F. E. Collins on behalf of the Surrey Association.

CATHEDRAL BELLS

The bells of Guildford Cathedral figured prominently on the agenda. The annual report referred to the Pulling memorial bell - resting in the south ambulatory, witnessing to the fact that a ring of bells is contemplated when the building makes it possible.' This bell cost $£ 56917 \mathrm{~s}$. 4 d .. and after paying for it there remained $£ 67$ 6s. 6d. in the Cathedral Bell Fund.

Major E. J. Bragg (Aldershot) suggested that each of the four Districts should provide a bell for the Cathedral. It would be a matter of two years at deast before the bells were in the tower of the Cathedral, and it would be necessary for each tower to raise on an average $£ 30$, as $£ 250$ was the average price of a bell with fittings. The Farnham and Guildford Districts had each agreed to provide a bell.

The Master pointed out that with regard to the Leatherhead and Chertsey Districts the decision could noi be taken at that meeting. It would be for the respective Districts to decide.

NOT PAYING WAY
The Guild is worried over ils finances. The Master, after reporting that the Guild voted 126 to 19 against a merger with the Surrey Association, regretted that the Guild was not paying its way on a 2 s . 6 d . subscription. They could not afford to pay their Central Council representatives full expenses and they got a lot of their printing done below cost. The Executive Committer recommended that the subscription be increased to 3s. Gd. and junjor members from 1s. to 2s. as fiom January 1st next year. Old age pensioners were not expected to pay a subscription provided they had heen members for three years. The resolution agreeing to increuse the subscription was carried on the proposition of Mr. W. Viggers (Aldershot). seconded by Mr. Peter G. Sherwood (Ash).

Mr. G. L. Grover had been asked by the Executive Commituee to propose a resolution to wind up the Benevolent Fund, following a remark he made at the Shalford meeting. ' I am not 'wholeheartedly in favour of it,' he said. "and I cannot propose the resolution with any degree of enthusiasm. When you vote upon it you will weigh against the cash requirements of the Guild a fact that 1 am very conscious of, that the people who gave it out of kindness of heart did not expect it to be applied to the General Fund of the Guild.'
Upon the Master's suggestion the winding u, of the fund was deleted from the agenda. Permission was given for the Guild to borrow from the Benevolent Fund, which had a credit halance of 1141 , but this, on all amendment from Mr. C. W. Mundiy (Ewell). was limited to $\dot{50}$ ) to he repaid by January. 1964.

THF, MASTER AND MRS. JILL MAY.

A MOMENTOUS YEAR

The report referred to 1961 as a momentous and historic year-one of the brightest on fecord. Many events claimed the services of the diocesan ringers and bells rang out on each occasion. Peals, quarter peals, touches, call changes or rounds-according to capabili-ties-were rung for the enthronement of the Archbishop of Canterbury and their own Bishop. Perhaps the most thrilling and inspiring event was the consecration of the Cathedral or the Holy Spirit at Stag Hill.

The courage and foresight of John S. Goldsmith in 1911, when the published the first issue of "The Ringing World," was praised by many ringers throughout the country when the golden jubilee was celebrated. We entertained many ringers from various parts of the country, arranged the pilgrimage to Mr . Goldsmith's grave at Pyrford, the Iinging at many churches, the service of Evensong at the Cathedral (attended by 200 of our fraternity) and the supper and entertainment in the evening. We are proud to be associated with Mr . Goldsmith's venture and are grateful to his memory and for what the did for the Guildford Guild as its first secretary.
The peal recorder's report stated that 1961 was the most successful year since the war as 43 peals hid been rung for the Guild, an increase of 12 on 1960. They were rung by 123 lingers in 24 different methods or numbers of methods, in 29 towers and with 20 different conductors. Miss Marilyn Gibbs dad conducted her first peal at Ashiead

The report gave membership as 626 ringing and 91 honorary, and a comment was maybe the merger question has had an uplifting effect upon our ringing membership, for it had ju'mped by 80 . with late subscriptions paid after December 31st.:

OFFICERS ELECTED

Officers elected were: Honorary secretary and treasurer, Mr. S. Russell; assiskant hon. secretary. Mrs. G. Chapman: honorary auditor, Mr. P. G. Sherwood; librarian. Mr. A. C. Hazelden; peal recorder, Major Bragg; badge secretary. Mr. G. S. Joyce: liaison officers, Messrs. F. E. Collins and J. F. M. Maybrey.
Mr. Arthur Smith, who had resigned the secretaryship of the Leatherhead District, which he had held for 31 vears, was elected a vicepresident. and a similar thonour was conferred on the retiring Master.

Arising from the annual report, the meeting remembered the following members who had died since the last meeting: Messrs. E. Coward (Dorking), Bert' Chaffey (Windlesham), Mrs. J. Corbett (Bagshot), Messis. A. Croucher and R. J. Whitford (Aldershot).
Mr. T. W. White moved the Guild's appreciation of Mr. C. W. Denyer for his services as Master during the past four years, which was carried unanimously. Mr. E. Warner proposed a resolution of thanks to the Rev. W. L. White for conducting the service in St Saviour's Church and to Mrs. White and her helpers for providing the tea.
Ringing took place in the Guildford churches during the afternoon and evening.

50 YEARS AGO

"R.W." March 22nd, 1912-
Yet another strike! This time it is the bellringers of Godalming. Surrey. Their action is due to the allegations of the Godalming Church Finance Committee-through whom the ringers are paid $£ \geq 4$ a year (in lieu of former Christmas Boxes) for their serviceswho allege that the ringing is not satisfactory. The churchwardens received from the committee the following resolution, which had heen passed unanimously. That the churchwardens be informed that there is great dissatisfaction at the bellinging, and the committee give notice that, unless there is a marked improvement, they may withhold the whole or pirt of the grant another year. Mr. $G$ Manfield, the captain, in a letter to the secretary of the committec, replied that the ringers desired an explanation of the letter. "as this is the first time in my recollection, from my 40 years of ringing, that there has been any complaint of the ringing.'

WURKINGTUN, CUMBERLAND.-On March Ath, 1,260 Plain Bob Minor: A. J. Duan 1, Mrs. L. Boumphrey 2. J. H. McTear 3. H. Byrom 4, L. Boumphrey (cond.) 5. T. H. Wilson 6. By the Sunday serice band as a compliment to Mr, and Mrs. R. Robinsod on the birth of a daughter.

(a) Propased by Mr. P. A. Corby, seconded by Mr. J. R. Cooper:-

That the Conditions Required for Peals as laid down on page 19 of the Council's Handbook be amended by the addition of the following:-
"A peal shall be rung with five or more changing bells."
The following amendment, proposed by Mrs. P. J. Staniforth. seconded by Miss M. R. Cross. was carried:-

- That peals of Minimus on tower bells may be recognised in towers that contain four bells only. Peals on four handbells or less should not be recognised."
The motion, as amended, was carried. (b) Proposed by Mr . R. S. Anderson, seconded by Mr. E. H. Edge:-
- That this Council takes note of the present trend of ecclesiastical architecture in that no tower capable of containing a peal of bells to be rung traditionally is incorporated in new churches, nor is any provision made for the addition of a tower; and urges the Royal Institute of British Architects and all diocesan authorities to bo mindful of the essentially English art of bell ringing and ensure in their design for new churches that the voice of the Church through the bells is not lost to future generations. This Council accordingly instructs the Towers and Belfries Committee to prepare a paper for submission to the appropriate authorities and keep the matter under review.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PERFORMANCES ON THREF BELLS
Dear Sir,-I have been asked whether the recent 5,040 on three bells should be regarded as a peal or a miscellaneous performance.

It is quite true that the wording of the motion eventually passed at Stoke does not specifically exolude tower-bell peals on less than four bells. This is a loophole which was apparent to a number of members at the time.

Nevertheless, unless and until the Council categorically agrees to accept such efforts as peals it would, I think, be entirely contrary to the spirit of the motion-and, it would appear, to the feelings of ringers generallyto publish them as peals.

If the Council should later decide in their favour they could, as in the case of fourbell peals of a certain kind, be, as it were, reinstated retrospectively. - Yours faithfully,

E. A. BARNETT,

Honorary Secretary,
Central Council of Church Bell Ringers.

TAKEN TO TASK

Dear Sir,-I was most surprised at Mr. Geoffrey Dodds' letter ( $9 / 3 / 62$ ), in which he refers to "threc fools" for the S.U.G.R., who have rung the first three-bell peal. Such comment ill becomes an honorary patron of the Rabbits' Guild-renowned for his four-bell research.

When the principle that a change may be repeated in a peal is accepted, then surely a peal can be rung on any number under seven bells.

The three ringers concerned have scored a 'first.' Perhaps an odd first, but 'compleiing the alphabet ' and 'silent peals' might also be considered odd.

No doubt it was monotonous. So are seven jdentical extents of Plain Bob Minor-but this is a 'recognised' peal.

One can say standards are being lowered. One can also say standards are being raised. Actually the whole field is being explored.

Perhaps Mr. Dodds and Mr. M. V. White (9/3/62) should be more tolerant and certainly less vehement.-Yours faithfully,

Sandy, Beds.
L. B. JEFFERIES.

COVENABLE PEAL

Dear Sir,-Your correspondent 'P.C.' in Complaint over bells 572 years ago' (page 139) wonders what a 'Convenabull peele' was.
In a dictionary of mine, printed in 1706 , appears the following:

Coverable or Convenable (O.L.T.)-Convenient sujtable, or fit."
O.L.T., by the way, means * Old Law Term.' - Yours faithinally.

Willesbarough. Kent.

Mr. G. W. Pipe gave a résumé of ringing in Australia, where he would soon be returning. This was received with great interest and Mr . Pipe was warmly applauded at the conclusion.
After the meeting the members were the guests of the Lord Mayor of Stoke at tea.

Dear Sir,-I hesitate for obvious reasons to get myself' involved in the indignant verbal brawl that has unfortunately arisen over the Pewsey peal, but certain sentiments in that correspondence do seem strange and force me to make two observations.

Firstly, for two years I was Master of a Universiny Socicty and arranged and rang a number of peals for jt. Never on a single occasion was I criticised for ringing a peal for the Socjety in a tower affiliated to a territorial association. I remember distinctly the generous happy welcome received in Somerset in 1958, to say nothing of the happy relations we always had, and still have with other Societies in London and the Home Counties! Now, just supposing, in years to come, the Bishop offered me a living with a ring of bells and my London friends asked me if they could attempt a peal on them. What could I say? How would it sound to those who supported? me so loyally in the City if I had to reply: 'Well, yes, I'd love you to come, but I'm afraid my Guild doesn't allow it.'

Secondly, do your strictures, Mr. West, apply to other non-territorial associations? Would you res.rd it peal rung by the College Youths in the same light? This we must know very soon. Would you criticise for the same reason a peal at Pewsey by the president and Master of the Salisbury Guild, Archdeacon Plaxton. myself and two athers for the Guild of Clerical Ringers?- Yours sincerely,

Salisbury.

EXCHANGE OF GRANTHAM TENOR

Dear Sir, - With reference to the letter in 'The Ringing World' of February 23 rd from W. Smith. of Long Clawson, I have made various inquiries in Grantham with regard to the exchange of Grantham tenor bell with that of Long Clawson, but I have not been able to throw any more light on the subject.
The church records here, concerning such things as the bells only go back about as far as the beginning of this century. We have some older records, but only concerning births, marriages and deaths. I then contacted the local librarian, but he was not able to tel! me anything that I did not know already, i.e. that the only reference the can find is in Nichals' 'Histary of Leicestershire.' He is, however, pursuing the matter and will let us know if he can find out anything else. He appears very interested in this legend and has asked that he be informed if we do succeed in finding out anything else. Perhaps Mr. Smith would tell us if there are any references. in Long Clawson records or perhaps Mr. Ernest Morris could enlighten us further in this connection.

After visiting the Jibrary I also contacted the Town Clerk's Department. where there are some old records concerning the borough and the church of Grantham, but unfortunately most of sheir papers are not indexed and I was unable to find any reference to this matter at all.-Yours faithfully.

PEAI. RINGING IN KENT

Dear Sir-According to . Dowe there are some 208 rings of bells, five and upwards, in Kent. In 1960. 144 peals were rung in the county, in 1961 rather more. This averages about one every 18 months per tower.
Many churches are in parks or otherwise remote from the villages they serve; in many the louvres are well boarded up: in some the bells are noisy-too noisy. In cases where the public consider they suffer from peals. they make sufficient fuss so that the number of peals is restricted voluntarily or compulsorily.

When, at an annual meeting. I thanked our Rector for so kindly dealing with all the complaints on our behalf he said there had not been any-and this in a tower where peal ringing was once more or less taboo for 20 years, because of the risk of complaints!
Having all these things in mind I think your correspondent. T. A. B., is talking through his hat.-Yours faithfully, Sevenoaks.

Dear Sir,-In some recent correspondence on this subject, with particular reference to "New Duffield' and (in Mr. A. H. Kemp's letter in the issue of February 23rd, 1962, page 124) 10 "Shipway's Principle,' my name is given is one who attempted to introduce the latte mechod "under the name of "Steadfast," ever attempting to get a Central Council ruling on the matter.
I regret to say this is not quite the truth of the case; and as such matters may be considered as of importance. in technological principle at any rate, and as memories are short and younger generations have only the dater comment before them, I would like to make the following factual observations:-

1. One of my two main interests in ringing, as many know, is the investigation and study of method structure leading to design which I began some forty years ago. It has been my policy not to make statements lightly, or without careful consideration, on the fundamentals of this subject. The name given to the method in question is 'Stedfast,' not ' Steadfast.'

I did not attempt (indeed there was no need) to "introduce "Shipway s Principle to the Exercise, under that or any other name ; for he himself had already introduced it during his lifetime.
3. I did not 'attempt to get a Central Council ruling on the matter. But I did issuc a challenge to the Methods Commititee of that time (April, 1950), to disprove a categoric statement I had made on the similarity of structure of Stedman and Stedfast, and the dissimilarity of Stedman and Shipway's Principle: particularly as to the mode of hunting-direct and retrograde-in comparable "sets, i.e. quick sets and slow sets. Furthermore, I questioned whether specific pal compositions in Stedfast. then produced at my request by Mr. A. J. Pitman, and apparently inapplicable to Shipway's Principle, did not indicate a palpable difference between the two method forms. The challenge. backed by a five guinea cheque offered to any ringing cause to be named by. The Ringing World Editorial Committee, was never taken up. And there the matter has remained

I have always maintained that there is wide field of exploration in method design; and by this I do not mean only in forms of Surprise methods-but rather in forms fundamentally new in structure, of both odd- and even-stage types of design: for example, as in the group type I called 'Hybrid, and which is again at tracting attention, I understand. Such out-of-the-rut ' interest is an encouraging stimulus to the method designer, and prompts one to refer. in concluding, to the Surprise Royal method included as "Selby" in the spliced peal by that accomplished band. under Wilfrid Moreton. at Rotherham on November 11 th last. This is reported on page 813 of the R.W: of December 1st, 1961. and a footnote gives the method's row-code as of my design It is. in fact. The Royal stage of a complete family of stages of the Bristol Surprise pattern. It was eventually evolved after an analytical study of the Bristol method. begun in the 1920's.-Yours very druly.

GUILDFORI GUM.D BADGES

Dear Sir.-Several week ago I asked for information concerning the supply of badges. for the Guildford Diocesan Guild. To this I had 16 replies. all giving useful information and have settled with one of the firms mentioned for our badges. May I thank all those ringers who wrote and gave me the information. Several of them asked for details of the offer which we were going to accept. and I shall be replying individually to these letters.
It is of interest that no one mentioned the firm which caused our troubles. so that the one or two who asked if their firm was the difficult one may rest assured. Incidentally, the quotations for a certain one of our badges varied from 3s. 11d. to 21s. $6 \mathrm{~d} .!$
The Guidd badges will shortly be in full supply.-Yours sincerely,

G. S. JOYCE.

Honorary Badge Secretary.
Guildford Diocesan Guild.

SANDHURST, KENT, RESTORATION

It is hoped that the six bells of St. Nicholas', Sandhurst, Kent. will soon ring out again after a silence of some thirteen years.
The tower is being restored and a square turret rebuilt. This turret was a later addition, no doubt intended to rival similar appendages on other church towers in the district. Unfortunately the brickwork was raised on a wooden beam which has now become rotten.
The floor heneath the bells has been renewed and the new boards rest on stout new beams of African hardwood. Above this the sturdy existing bell frame has been re-erected and awaits the return of the bells, which are receiving attention at the Loughborough Bell Foundry.
There is much local interest in the work and on a recent Sunday morning at the invitation of the Rector, Rev. Anthony Harbottle, and churchwarden, L&.-Col. O. G. A. Phillips, Mr. P. A. Corby, of Sevenoaks, talked to members of the congregation about bells and singing, and with the assistance of members of his family rang changes on handbells.
Sandhurst church is somewhat remote from the village. but it is hoped that an interested congregation will provide an enthusiastic team of ringers keen to man the hells and to learn the intricacies of change ringing.
The completion of the wark is eagerly awaited.

HEREFORD DIOCESAN GUILD

To commemorate the 50th year of membership of the Guild by Mr. Richard Bethell, the Bromyard District held its annual meeting at his native village, Bredenbury, on February 24th. Mr. Bethell lives in the house where he was born 71 years ago and, in addition to being a ringer, he is clerk to the Parochial Church Council and maintains the churchyard immaculately.

The service, conducted by the Vicar (Rev. R. K. Canning) included Mr. Bethell's favourite hymn, "Fill Thou my life, O Lord my God." Visitors were present from Bridgnorth. Nonthampton and Oxford, and the day finished with the celebration supper, prepared by the Vicar's wife and her helpers. There were speeches of congratulation and Mr. Bethell was presented with a framed photograph of himself.

SPALDING RINGERS' DINNER

The Spalding ringers had a change of venue for their annual meeting this year, when they met at the White Hart Hotel on March 1st. The Vicar, Rev. D. G. Jakeman, presided. assisted by Mr. E. T. Chapman, secrelary and treasurer, and Mr. J. G. Ames, captain. The main item was the need for more recruits in the tower. All agreed a special effort should be made during 1962, among the youth organisations, to find suitable talent. All officers were re-elected for the coming year.

Afterwards the ringers were joined by their wives. friends and churchwardens, and an excellent meal was served. This was followed by various games and competitions, organised by Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Chapman, Touches on handbells completed the evening's entertainment. A vote of thanks to the Vicar, churchwardens and P.C.C. was expressed by Mr. J. G. Ames.

OBITUARY

MR. A. WENBAN
With the passing of Mr. Arthur Wenban, St. Lawrence's, Seal Chart. Kent, has lost a much loved captain and faithful ringer. He had been a ringer at St . Lawrence's for 58 years and a member of the Kent C.A. since 1908. He had rung several peals, but kept no records. As far as it is known all his peals were rung at Seal Chart. He had also rung several quarter peals in surrounding six bell towers.
At the funeral service the local band and visiting ringers rang the bells half-muffled before and after the service. A course of Grandsire Doubles was rung over the open grave by Mr. G. Fry, Mr. W. Dobbie and Mrs. Carby.

Ringers who paid their last respects came from Seal, Ightham, Sevenaaks, Tonbridge and Hadlow.

It is probably unique that the son of a bishop should call a peal in his father's Cathedral. This took place at Llandaff Cathedral on March 10th. The conductor and arranger of a peal of Plain Bob Royal was Nicholas $W$. $H$. Simon, the 15 -year-old elder son of the Right Rev. William Glyn Hughes Simon, Lord Bishop of Llandaff.
Mr. Geo. S. Deas has now 'oircled the tower, at Gateshead to pealls.
The ringer of the treble in the quarter peal at Bexley, Kent, was K. Medhurst and not K. Noy as submitted.

Bristol College of Science and Technology has through its Students' Union founded a Guild of Ringers.
All the band who rang in a peal at Sapcote, Leics, on March 10th were taught to handle a bell in this tower and are members of the Sunday service band.
A happy coincidence with the first visit of the Central Council to Wales is the return of Mr. Donald G. Clift after 26 years of exile. He has secured a senior staff appointment with. 'The Western Mail,' Cardiff. For the past 14 years he has been a member of 'The Daily Mail's' communications organisation, which has taken him all over Europe.
Mr. C. A. Bassett, who has been honorary secretary of the East Grinstead Guild for 22 years, has resigned. The Guild's appreciation to him was expressed at the annual meeting on March 10th, when he was presented with a cigarette case, lighter and illuminated address. Miss Margaret E. Ladd, of 4, William Street, Tunbridge Wells, is the new honorary secretary.
Members of the Tewkesbury Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Association, when they attended the meeting at Tirley on March 10th. were intrigued by the remarkable clock in the tower, which was made from pieces of agricultural implements and machinery by John Carter. a Tirley cnaftsman, in 1918. Several members climbed an iron ladder to look at 'the works' before the bells were raised for ringing.

BELFRY GOSSIP

The quarter peal of Royal rung at St. Andrew's, Plymouth, on March 11.th was the first quarter of Royal on the bells and the first of Royal for all the band. This is rather odd as seven of those taking part had rung pials of Royal. Of the 31 peals on the bells, 12 have been Royad, viz., Cambridge 1, Yorkshire 2 and Plain Bob 9.

We note that a quarter peal of Minor was rung at the opening of the Surrey Assizes at Kingston-on-Thames. How many Assize services today have regular ringing?
Handbell ringing has recently been revived in Bristol. It is hoped that the quarters rung will be the forerunner of better things to come.
Mr. J. T. Barrett, of Beaminster, Dorset, informs us that among the applications for tape recordings of Silverdale bells was one from Mr. E. E. Lee, of Vancouver, B.C.
We regret to learn that Mr. H. J. Eldred, of Ealing, whose 80ith birthday was mentioned in this column last month, died on March 15th. Shortly after 'The Ringing World' was taken over by the Central Council he acted as accountant.
Miss Barbara D. Marsh proved her usefulness as secretary of the Nottingham University Society by contributing recently an entertaining report to 'The Ringing World' of the Society's annual dinner. Now she has made a spectacular entry into the ranks of peal ringers by scoring her first peal from the fourth in Cambridge Surprise Major. There are others who have started their peal ringing with a Surprise method, but they are not many.
Miss Jane King, of Coalpit Heath, near Bristol, who started ringing last September, was able to celebrate her 18 ch birthday on March 17 th by ringing her first quarter peal at Alveston. She goes to Oxford University next October to read social studies. With her quickness to learn she should make rapid ringing progress with the Oxford University Society.

MORE ABOUT E.B.J.

MY grateful thanks to E. C. S. for his excellent article on Bankes James (E. B. J.). I knew both the James brothers well. Both did much in formulating the rules governing ringing; they were leaders at a time when the art was being put on a sound, scientific basis. Both have left behind the results of much solid work; but it was E. B. who had the bright ideas, the sudden flashes of brilliance, many of which have left their mark right down to the present time.
At the end of his article, E. C. S. mentions the account of a tour by E. B. and his schoolboys in the Easter holidays of 1917. None of those mentioned are now ringing, but one, at least, of his former pupils can recall memories of those days; for, as a small boy, I went to the same school at the beginning of the following year.
We practised on handbells (double-handed) before breakfast every day, starting with Bob Minor. I have a letter from E. B. to my father, giving news of our first 720 ( ${ }^{\circ} .$. and my first, incidentally, as conductor," E. B. wrote). For this he gave me a crown piece, which I still have. Later we rang Single and Double Court, and Treble Bob, and then went on to Bob Major. I can only marvel at his patience! Only two of his pupils ever carried on with ringing after leaving school; and of those two, I believe I am the only one who now rings regularly.
Towards the end of my time he tork me out to various meetings and practices. I remember particularly a montrly practice at Curdridge, under George Williams, where I rang my first course of Cambridge. Also a regular Sunday afternoon outing: we would walk some three miles to Titchfield, through the tiny village of Crofton (after which he named a Surprise method with seven false coursessee Corrigan). Tea was taken at The Bugle, and then followed service ringing, attempts for a 720 of Cambridge Minor, eventually successful. Then a waiting taxi would whirl us back to school just in time for evening chapel. E. B. was chaplain, so they could not start without him!

I well remember an incident at school which gives an example of one of E. B.'s brilliant ideas. I took him a Minor method, in which 4ths place was made at every alternate whole pull; the treble thus plain hunted up to 5-6, where it did treble bob work. (The method was subsequently put into the C.C. Collection and named 'Yaxley.') I asked rim what it was, and if it was any good. He explained that it was a method of the 'Alliance' class; that this class had been rung to Major, but was no good for Minor as it would not produce the extent (and why). Just as he was handing it back, he exclaimed: 'Stay a minute-this will splice with Little Bob!' So. in a flash, the whole idea of splicing Alliance with Little methods was born. Note also in the collection his very ingenious 'Seafield Alliance ' (named after the school), in which the treble dodges in 1-2 and 5-6, spliced with 'Very Little Court.' in which it just makes thirds and fourths.
E. B. was a great chess player. When one of the world chess masters visited Portsmouth and played some 30 simultaneous games against the local club, E. B. was the only one to defeat him. E. B. laid an ingenious trap which looked so like a blunder on his part that the great man actually laughed as he fell into it.

When I first went to the school he used to play blindfold (that is, without looking at the board), and I was employed to move for him. He always won. On one occasion he was interrupted in the middle of a game and had to talk to a visitor for half-an-hour. He resumed the game without even looking at the board, and won as usual.

When we played I only beat him very occasionally, and that not before he was getting old and long past his best. One such game took place in a hotel in Westerham, where he was staying for a few days. We had no men, so he went to the cash desk and obtained much change; we used different coins for the various pieces, one side heads and the other tails. After some half-an-hour, apart from all the money on the board we each had a little pile of captures. Bingo was not in vogue in those days, but it must have looked for all the world like a frightful gambling game.
Perhaps he will be remembered best for his definition of 'Surprise.' Perhaps for Bristol (of which he used to say: ' I did not compose it-it was there, and I discovered it.'). Then there are the Little methods; and Granta Treble Bob (and variations), a means of keeping the tenors out of the slow in Kent. Among his ' jokes ' are Qualis (Latin: What is it?), in which alternate leads of Major and Triples are rung; and Over and Nether Wallop, a splice of two Little Alliance Minor methods. And one must not forget his idea of ringing Minor in blocks of several 720 's, first used for Cambridge; nor his remarkable 'Silchester Surprise,' which he posed as a problem in composition to the Exercise, and in which his peals, in short courses, succeed, in keeping the tenors together throughout.

Of the Central Council, E. B. used to say that it should not tell ringers what they ought or ought not to ring. Ringers would find out for themselves what was best; the best would live, the worst would die a natural death. How right he was! In recent years the Council itself has recognised this and relaxed a number of its 'rules,' yet there has been no spate of rubbish, and ringing is developing on generally orthodox lines.

Some of E. B.'s own ideas have not been taken up, or have died; some because they are too simple for the modern taste. Many of them, however. are very much alive.

The 12 Bell Towers of Birmingham  By EDGAR C. SHEPHERD

WOR all that the first peal by St. Martin's Youths is recorded at St. Philip's Church, the headyuarters and spiritual home of the Society rest at St. Martin's Church, and in any review of ringing at this church during the last two hundred years there passes before us a long and impressive cavalcade of men and events. This exciting procession presents not only the building of a noble tradition, but also impacts that have affected in no small degree the life and growth of the ringing Exercise.

The bells of St. Martin's Church were made into twelve in 1772, and in the following year the Society rang its first twelve-bell peal, Grandsire Cinques. and seven years later scored its first of Maximus. The year 1786 was notable for the visit of the College Youths. an enterprise in which William Jones hoped both to heal some of the breaches in the London Society and to help on the sales of his book, 'Clavis.' Unhappily the peal attempts at St. Martin's failed dismally and the subsequent quarrelling finally ended any hope of healing the thirty-year breach between the two companies of College Youths.

By 1820 there was a first rate band at the Bull Ring and two fine peals were rung. The first was 7,200 Treble Bob Maximus and the second 6,600 Stedman Cinques, both conducted by Thomas Thursians. Thomas Day tells us that the first attempt for the Cinques failed and that Joseph Riley promised a howl of punch per man when success came. The peal was rung at the next attempt, and doubtless the punch was disposed of without previous practice. There were, among these men, some we feel we should very much like to have known: William Bennet (the brass founder). Thomas Worrall (the tall. square-shouldered upholsterer). Thomas Chapman (the jeweller from St. Paul's Square) and Alexander Sanders (the sexton), who got into trouble for making income out of letting pews in the church.
These were the days of notable characters: Hensy Cooper. the competent but somewhat unscrupulous composer and conductor, associuted in the minds of many with the vanishing of the silver prize cup: Elijah Roberts. whose wonderful feals of tapping handbell: astonished the country: and the redoubtable Samuel Lawrence. nearly 32 stone in weight and a fine heavy bell ringer. This generation of talented ringers passed with great suddenness soon after 1820 , and the burden of sustaining and reviving ringing in Birmingham rested on Hopkins and the young Henry Johnson.
There followed the struggle for Stedman Triples, with Thomas Thurstans and the ingenious Isaac Lates straining every nerve to be the first to solve the strange enigma and produce the required peal with ordinary hobs and singles. The honour fell to Thurstans. The famous Four-Part came into being and Johnson called it at St. Martin's Church on May 18 th. 1846 . Lates was buried in St. Philip's churchyard, close to the tower; Thurstans went to a pauper's grave.

Henry Johnson increased in stature and influence. famous as a leader and composer. friend of Sir Arthur Heywond and held in the highest regard throughout the whole of the land. Together with John Day he brought about the successful restoration of the bells at St Martin's, and called 9.238 Stedman Cinques of his own composing at that tower on his 7ind birthdav. Great as had been the reputation and leadership of Riley. Cooper and Hopkins, there had been none of the standing of Johnson. nor was there any to follow with such authority until the time of Albert Walker.
The heginning of the present century was marked by the great peal of 11.111 Stedman Cinques. a record that remained unhroken for some forty years. Fighleen months tater the St. Martin's Guild rang at King's Norton the record length 14.112 London Surprise Major. a peal in which no actual Birminglam man took part. At St. Martin's at this time the Sunday service ringing was far from flourishine. Steriman Coters was rune more oflen than Stedman Cinques, and there was even the lack of a conductor for touches of

THE PARISH CHURCH OF ST. MARTIN
Caters. It wals the coming of the small but dynamic figure of Albert Walker, returning to his nutive town from Taunton, that brought a fresh brecze to blow away from the belfry some of the stuffiness that had accumulated. Little as the may have realised it, his mission wis clear, and he was destined to play a major part in tho growth of enterprise and competence that was to make Stedman Cinques at the Bull Ring the very acme of excellence and to draw to that tower a vast pilgrimage of ringers for their first peals on twelve bells.
The period between the two World Wars saw the first Surprise Maximus, a great stream of excellent peals of Stedman Cinques on St.

Martin's bells, and the rise of the briHiant handbell bands. The silent peal of Stedman Cinques 'in hand' and the 5,055 Stedman Sextuples marked out these men as supreme in this field. The fast 20 years have seen a great expansion of Surprise ringing, and although the Cathedral tower has easily taken the kad in the outpouring of peals, St Martin's has had jts share of the glory, Pudsey Surprise and the first peals of Lindsey and Pontefract ever rung being among the successes.
The three Birmingham twelve-bell towers are closely related, in friendship and historical association. hut it is the dark St. Martin's lower, pointing upwards amid tho great glass boxes of the modern age, that is the headquarters of the ancient Guild, and that seems to hold in its embrace the transactions and traditions of all the ringers of the great city of Birmingham.

EAST GRINSTEAD GUILD

The 35th annual meeting of the East Grinstead Guild was held at Coleman's Hatch on March 10 th, with an attendance of 40 The service was conducted by the Guild's president, the Rev. J. R. Missen. with Miss Oakshett as organist. In his address, the president caused quite a few suppressed giggles but made his point that the person who works steadfastly in the background make: a bigger mark than the one who puts on a big show
At the business meeling, three new members were elected, and all the officers were re-elected with the exception of the secretary. On behalf of the Guild, the president presented Mr , C A. Bassett with a cigarette case and lighter together with an illuminated address containing all the signatures of those who had subscribed in recognition of his 22 years' service as Guild secretary. After Mr. Bassett had suitably replied, Miss M. E. Ladd was elected as his successor.
The chairman announced that as the May meeting fell on the same day as the Sussex annual, this meeting would be dropped, so that the Guild's many Sussex members could go to Brighton. On behalf of the county, Mrs. F. I. Hairs thanked the Guild for this gesture It was agreed that the summer outing should the held on September 8th, with a trip into Essex. February 9ith was fixed as the date of the next dinner. to he held at Tunbridge Wells: arrangements were left in the capable hand: of those who had made the 1962 dinner such a success. A small sub-committee was appointed to revise the rules, with a view to their reprinting.
The collection at the service, amounting to £1 9s. 10d., was handed over to the Coleman's Hatch Church heating fund. At the conclusion of the business. Mr. C. W. Hancock thanked all those who had made the meeting such a success.

ANOTHER TEN-BELL RING FOR LINCOLNSHIRE

Included in the present programme of restomation work at St. James' Parish Church. Grimshy. is the augmentation of the present ring of eight bells to one of ten.

The bells will be taken down in May and sent to the Whitechapel Foundry for re. tuming. Two new trebles are to he provided. and it is honed that the ring of 10 will bc installed in time for Christmas.

The bells are at present hung in an oak frame. which is supported by eight lengths of timber, carrying their weight down to the stone corbels seen from the floor of the church.
Over the years the supporting timber has become flexible so that the bell frame vibrates, The bell frame is to te taken out daring the summer, and concrete supporting structures will replace the timber supports. One of the new bells to be cast has been presented as a memorial to Mr. Charles Hand.
The bells are part of the church restoration scheme estimated to cost $£ 15,000$. lowards which the sum of $£ 11.500$ bas been raised.

DOVE'S ' GUIDE'-A SUGGESTION

Dear Sir--Having just received my copy of the third edition of the 'Guide, I feel that Mr. Dove should be congratulated by the whole Exercise on his excellent production, and thanked for the enormous amount of hard work that must have gone into its compilation I should. however, like to put forward two suggestions. which. I feel. would be in the interest of ringers generally.
Firstly, on page 147 of the 'Guide' there is an appeal by Mr. Dove for any alterations to be notified to him, in anticipation of a fourth edition. To enable those who are keen enough to keep their third editions up to date, would it not be a good idea to publish such alterations. say monthly, in .The Ringing World '?
Sccondly, the 'Guide' is, I think, one of the more important ringing publications, and I am sure that no one would like it to cease publication. Therefore, I would suggest that some time in the future the work of compiling and publishing it be taken over by the Central Council, in much the same way as "The Ringing World.

Perhaps Mr. Dove would like to comment on these suggestions.-Yours faithfullv
R. C. KIPPIN.

SHIPWAY MINOR

Dear Sir ,-I was interested to read the recent correspondence concerning New Duffield and Double Shipway. The following method, which 1 have been told is Shipway Minor, may be of imterest to six-bell ringers. It would appear to be a logical adaptation of Stedman's principle for even numbers. I have used the same start as in Stedman, j.e. in the middle of a quick eight, but I do not know if this is correct. The plain course lasts for 96 changes

PEALS OF CATERS AND CINQUES

Dear Sir,-It is refreshing in these days to find someone genuinely interested in the construction of peals of Caters and Cinques, and Mr. Frith's letter in your issue of March 16 th contains some matter worthy of consideration.
It is true, indeed, that most peals of Caters and Cinques follow the conventional plan, but it must be remembered that two hundred years of experiment have given this plan a years of experiment have given this plan a been found so universally satisfying as Tittums and Handstroke Home. This is particularly so in the case of Stedman.

It may be observed, however, that the construction and rhythms of Grandsire Caters invite experiment in a variety of musical placings of 6789, and there are plenty of these experiments in circulation. Mr. Frith's expressed desire for a peal of Grandsire Caters containing one-third Handstroke Home and one-third Backstroke Home may not be easy (or possible) to gratify. Seeing that the handstroke blows of one are the backstroke blows of the other. it will be apparent that the use of hoth positions in the same composition must be limited. and it is doubtful if sixteen courses of each will be mutually exclusive.
But if this cannot be had, something very hear it is available. I have by me a very attractive 5.021 Grandsire Caters. given 10 me some years ago by Richard F. Deal. It has, roughly speaking, four quarters: the first, 12 courses of Backstroke Home. the second, 16 courses of Tittums with the 5 th in fifths. the third, 13 courses of Tittums with the 6 th in fifths. and the last, 12 courses of true Handstroke Home.

Dick was a very astute manipulator of Caters, and in this excellent composition the student will find it instructive to study how falseness has been avoided by the ingenious device of excluding the 4 th and 5th from fifths place in the 6789 positions and by similarly debarring the 2nd and 3rd from sixths place at the Handstroke Home course ends.
If Mr. Frith would care for a copy of this peal and will write to me I will send along the figures
With reference to Erin Caters. I have some notes in preparation, and will, with your permission, sir, submit some touches for publication in the near future.- Yours sincerely, EDGAR C. SHEPHERD.

BOX BELLS

Dear Sir,-Mrs. Eyles is, I fear, incorrect in most of her facts (page 171), concerning the above.
There were only four bells here in 1937 when the treble and tenor (not the whole ring) were recast
According to Watters' Church Bells of Wiltshire,' 'there were four bells in 1553 and the frame is probably older still, and this bears no indication of cver containing more than four bells.

From the dreadful condition of both the frame and fittings in 1937 it is quite obvious that ringing could not have taken place within living memory and the bells had been suspended from girders to take the weight off the old frame.
It is a debatable point whether these could be classed as an unringable "ring" or a they cannot be rung.-Yours faithfully,
R. H. DOVE.

HOLY ROSARY CATHEDRAL,

 VANCOUVERDear Sir ,-The letter published by you in your February 2nd issue, page 74, headed Holy Rosary Cathedral,' contains a few mnaccuracies in the last sentence. The statement that gives me most concern is the final one, whereby the impression is given that the bells of Holy Rosary Cathedral will soon be silent because of the church authorities' restriction of ringing practice. It is fair to say that two ringers have been unable to attend because of said restrictions, but five most enthusiastic ringers have joined the group, and are being helped and encouraged by the remaining loyal change ringers. It is anticipated and believed that, far from the death knell being sounded, this society of change ringers will continue to grow and flourish.-Yours sincerely.

BELLS OF DEFFORD

Dear Sir,-Your correspondent who wrote stating that the four bells at Defford, Worcestershire, are by Carr, of Smethwick, is slightly in error. The 1 st and 4th are, but the 2nd was cast by H. Farmer, of Gloucester, in 1604, and the 3 rd was probably the Jast hell cast by M. Bagley, at Evesham, in 1689 . -Yours faithtully,

ARTHUR G. JOHP.

ARTHUR G. JOHP.

SOME WORCESTERSHIRE BELLS

Dear Sir,-May I submit a few comments 0.1 the new edition of Dove's Guide.

Droitwich, St. Andrew.-Probably the most historically interesting octave in the county, dating from 1631 to 1759 ; seven of these bolls are on the church floor. They are stacked one inside another so that the inscriptions cannot now be read. Only the fifth is in the tower. used as a clock bell. For ringers organising a tour in the area, ut is worth while to note that Si. Augustine's, Dodderhill, is in the borough of Droitwich.
Elmiey Lovett, St. Michael-Of this six, the fourth is badly cracked. The other five are just about ringable, but go very badly.

Although not in the Guide, the four at St. James', Defford, are ringable, as are the medizval four at AII Saints', Spetchley, although ropes must be taken. The Pendock bells are hung dead, and Holt's are chimed only. The tower at Himbleton is reputed to be unsafe for ringing and the second at Throckmorton is said to be broken.

I realise that these are only minor points and congratulate Mr. Dove on his high standard of accuracy . Yours, etc.,

PAUL CATTERMOLE.
St. Peter's, Droitwich Spa.

FOURTH OF MARCH DAY AT APPLETON, 1962

- FOURTH of March on the 3rd this year,' by most people, but it was certainly true of the North Berkshire village of Appleton, where this day was duly remembered and celebrated for the 144th time. In the morning a good peal of Grandsire Caters was scored, conducted by Brian White, and including in the band Mr. Tom Newman, who was a member of the band that rang 16,271 Grandsire Caters at Appleton in 1932, but had not been back there tor the last 29 years. Afterwards Frank White was host at a splendid lunch, provided for the peal ringers.

The tower was kept open for about three hours during the afternoon and all who came had their chance to ring on these famous bells, although as time progressed more people seemed to favour the warmth and welcome of 'The Plough,' The dinner, held for the second time in the Village Hall, with the Rector, the Rev. A. Tindal-Hart, in the chair, again proved the ability of Mr. and Mrs. Randall from 'The Plough' to provide a meal guaranteed to satisfy even the hungriest of ringers. Our thanks are due to them for their contribution to the success of the day.
The toast of 'The Church' was proposed by Mr. W. Hibbert, who drew attention to the recessity for ringers to remember their debt to the Church and to support it to the best of their ability. In his reply, the Rector bemoaned the lack of women amongst the officials of the Church of England, especially as they did so muoh of the day-to-day work associated with a parish. He was ever grateful to the ringers at Appleton for the part they played in the life of the church there, and conscious of the honour of being Rector of a parish so famous for its bellringing tradition. Mr. Fred Sharpe paid tribute to the singers and benefactors of Appleton, who had, over the years, provided and maintained so much that could be enjoyed and appreciated today. He also told a little of the recent activities of the Central Council. A broad hint was dropped that it would be rather nice if the bells were rung again 'for a long time,' in the not too distant future. His toast 'The Appleton Society,' coupled with the name of Frank White, was received with acclamation.
Frank white was called up to make 'some sort of a reply.' As considerable merriment was derived from his speech, mostly at the expense of the writers of this article, they will refrain from passing further comment for fear of bsing accused of getting their own back.
Visitors from London, Bedford, Bristol, Cornwall, and all stations to Launton, were welcomed by Mr. W. R. White, who hoped that everyone would have an enjoyable evening (as if there was any chance of this not being the case!). Due to the absence of Mr. A. A. Hughes. of Whitechapel, the response to the toast of 'The Visitors ' was made by Sir Basil Blackwell, who congratulated himself on having his name on one famous peal board in the belfry, due to no effort on his own part, but by happening to be churchwarden at the time. He hoped that this, if nothing else, would qualify him for a memorial peal when the occasion arose.
The rest of the evening was spent in the usual Fourth of March style. The old and much loved songs: tune ringing on handbells; lapping (is the ability to do this so beautifully implanted in the White family by nature?); more peals were arranged in a couple of hours than could possibly be rung in the next twelve months (at the rate of approximately two ringers per rope, it would appear). As Mr. Sharpe said earlier in the evening, all roads home go via Appleton. All the 90 or so people present will, without doubt, join in saying 'Thank you, Appleton.'

MR. E. L. LITTLEWOOD

Ringers of the Leicester Diocesan Guild regretted to hear of the sudden death on March 12th of Mr. Evander Lacey Littlewood, of Asfordby, aged 88 years. 'Vandy,' as he was affectionately known, atiended the District meeting at Hoby, the previous Saturday, and in the evening had played dominoes with the Leicester boys. On Sunday he did his usual stoking at the Parish Church, and also at the Methodist Church. He attended both services and in the evening chimed the trebles for Evensong.
For 72 years ' Vandy ' had rung at Asfordby, starting at the age of 16 , when one had to wait one's turn to ring as there were plenty of ringers. The first national occasion for which he rang was Queen Victoria's golden jubilee (1887) and he could claim to have rung for every royal occasion since then.
He was made a member of the Goscote Society of Change Ringers in 1889; he was also a member of the Midland Counties and the Leicester Diocesan Guilds. Although he had never rung a peal he had taken part in many quarters and one half peal. "Vandy was one of the team of enthusiasts who formed a change ringing band in the early 1920 's. under the leadership of Mr. Hugh Bell. This band struggled on until it could ring all the standard methods up to Treble Boh and Cambridge. He had conducted 720's of Cambridge and his handling of the treble in Treble Bob was very good.
The funeral was on Thursday, March 15 th, the coffin having rested in the church overnight. A Requiem Mass was said at 9.15 a.m. and at the funeral service later ringers from Asfordby and Melton were present. Interment was in the churchyard, which he had cared for, for years. A quarter peal of Grandsire with the bells half-muffled was rung after the service by J. H. Cook 1. Mrs D. Day 2, H. Clayton 3. J. L. Day 4, R, H. Cook (cond.) 5, K. J. Panter 6.
J. H. C.

WEMBDUN, SOMERSET.-On March 12th, i.260 Giandsire Doubles: M. Warren (first quarter) I, F Phillips 2, O. Pole 3. C. Clarke 4, F. Sweet (cond.) 5. C. Sweet 6. Rung half-muffied as a tribute to Mr. W. R. Kent, of Woolavington.

MR. ARTHUR LEWIS

To have one's memorial kept green in the hearts of a much younger generation is a privilege not given to many, but it can be said of a veteran ringer of Caldicot, Monmouthshire, Mr. Arthur Lewis, whose funeral took place at Caldicot Parish Church on Wednesday, March 14th. The service was conducted by the Vicar, who is himself a ringer, and the half-muffled ringing before and after the service was performed by a band which included one of 'Mr. Lewis' contemporaries, and also ringers of a much younger age.
Mr. Lewis became Master of the Llandaff Association in 1915, and had been responsible for much progress in the art of change ringing at Caldicot. His death, at the age of 90 , breaks a link with a flourishing era of ringing at Caldicat. He worked as gardener at Caldicot Vicarage under four incumbents.
The Llandaff and Monmouth Association was represented at the funeral by Mrs. J. S. King, secretary of the Monmouth Branch. A wreath was sent from the ringers of Caldicot and Chepstow towers.
'Grant him, O Lord. eternal rest.' R.H.

MR. H. J. ELDRED AN APPRECIATION

His many friends will have seen with regret the announcement last week of the death on March 15th of Mr. Herbert J. Eldred. Coming so soon after his eightieth birthday, at which time he appeared to be in good health, his passing was a great shock to his family and to those who had recently been ringing with him. Indeed. he was in the tower at Si. Clement Danes' on the preceding Sunday, though he did not ring.
Bert was one of those men whose passing is a serious loss to us all. He started ringing in 1913 and rang his first peal in 1921. But he was not a great peal ringer-he probably had a total of about 40 peals, mainly in the standard methods. But he was a good enough ringer and striker to ring the treble to a number of Surprise Major peals with the famous William Pye band of the twenties.
He had close associations with Finchley, with Barnet and with Norfolk, before settling in Ealing. In all of these places he made friends and was a model service ringer. Always present and always punctual, to a Ringing Master he was the ideal member of the bandalways ready to volunteer, be it to ring rounds or something simple for beginners, to try something more difficult, or just simply to sit out because he could see that there was present enough people to ring without him. In the last few years he had rung regularly for services at Ealing and elsewhere in the London suburbs, often ringing quarter peals morning and evening. He will be missed at the annual veterans meeting, where he was greatly liked and, alchough some of us may be fortunate enough to help one day to maintain the numbers at this annual gathering, we cannot hope to take his place.
Soon after the war Bert had close associations with our journal for some years as, while living at Gorleston, he helped with the books for the 'R.W.'
Ringers were represented at the cremation at Mortlake on March 19th, by Messrs. A. W. Coles, S. Croft, A. M. Stacey and W. G Wilson, and among the floral tributes were flowers from the Middlesex Association, the St. Mary's. Ealing, ringers, Messrs. A. Fulwell and A. M. Stacey, and from the band at Christ the Saviour, Ealing. A half-muffled quarter peal was rung at St. Mary's, Ealing, on the evening of the funeral as a tribute to his memory.
There is now on Sundays an empty space in the belfry and an empiy seat in a certain vehicle. but there is a greater vod in the hearts of his friends. Our deep sympathy is extended to his family, especially to his son. John. and daughter, Olive.

Dalinghoo.-One bell here now, and one here in 1912, so it is a long time since there were four. Raven records tne inscriptions on four in his book on Suffalk bells, published in 1890, but none of them is even by the same founder as the present one, Miles Graye, of Colchester, 1622. So it is somewhat of a mystery as to what became of them and why a secondhand bell was needed.

Tostock.-Tenor $5 \frac{1}{2}$ cwt., $31 \frac{13}{\frac{3}{3}} \mathrm{in}$. diameter. Third cracked in crown. All are just about to be lowered to the ground for satety, while funds are raised for their overhaul.

KENT'S FOUR BELL TOWERS

By NICHOLAS J. DAVIES

For the purpose of those ringers who, like me, have been lortunate enough to obtain the 3rd edition of Dove,' and who are desirous of knowing a little more about the conditions prevailing in the four bell towers listed in the Appendix, I append shorit notes concerning those in Kent with which I am acquainted.

Addington, St. Margaret, 6 cwt.-On the church floor, awajting augmentation to 6 and rehanging in a new frame.

Adisham, Holy Innocents, 8 cwt . in B flatFront three on floor, tenor hung dead for chiming only.

Alkham, St. Anthony, 8 cwt - Rung quite regularly by local band.
Bicknor, St. James, $1 \frac{1}{2}$ cwit.-All steel bells; probably o.k., but $n 10$ corroborative information.

Bishopsbourne, St. Mary, 7 cwt. in B flat minor.-All clocked-tower very big, but frame equally scanty and weak Canterbury, St. George, $12 \frac{1}{2}$ cwt.-Together with clock bell formed a chime (Ellacombe) of five in a minor key. All were destroyed during the last war, and have not been replaced.

Canterbury, St. Mary Northgate, 7 cwt.Taken down and sold some years ago when the church was deconsecrated; they are now doing service, so $I$ am told, at Lagos Cathedral. (Can anyone verify this?)
Challock, SS. Cosmas and Damian, 12 cwt . in $F$ sharp. Two bells only now remain, hung for chiming only; the treble and 2 nd were irretrievably lost when the church was restored in 1955.

Fordwich. St. Mary, 7 cwt .-Rung up to within the last decade or two; now not so owing to reputedly unsafe bell frame.

Isle of Grain, St. James, 4-1-12 in D.Evidently quite all right, and singable, with minor adjustments.

Harbledown, St. Nicholas, $5 \frac{1}{2}$ cwt.-Frame definitely weak, safe to chime only.

Ickham, St. John, 8 cwt .-Third belf split; all totally unringable, and only clocked. Frame

THE LADIES' GUILD  Western District

The Western District held its annual meeting at St. Andrew's, Burnham-on-Sea, on March 10th. Ringing reached Cambridge Major, and the service was conducted by Preb. Parnell. The Young Wives provided tea in the Church Hall, and this was followed by the business meeting. Officers elected were: Vice-president, Mrs. K. Smith; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. H. Kingcott ; committee, Mrs. Palfrey, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. De Jong and Miss Johnson; Central Committee representatives, Mrs. Bennett and Miss Johnson.
The retiring vice-president (Mrs. Palfrey) commented on the success of the evening practices which have been held, and hoped through this success more people would attend the quarterly meetings.

Mrs. A. Short, Chiltern Polden, was elected to start quarter peals and evening practices in the Bridgwater area. Any ladies interested in this project please contact her.
H. M. K.
badly decayed; bells have probably never been removed trom tne tower since they were put in, in 1641!!
East Langdon, St. Augustine, 6 cwt. in C.Rehung by Allred Boweus in the 20 s , and quite ringabie.

Newnham, SS. Peter and Paul, 7 cwt . in B. -Last rehung c. ${ }^{1860 \text {. Quite ringable, apart }}$ from thumping from ine worn bearings, which require seplacing.
Plumstead, St. Nicholas, 7-1-18 in A.-Third recast and all rehung by the Whitechapel Foundry in 1958; presumably quite all rjgnt. (Thus tower is listed under 'London.') sevington, St. Mary, 9 cwt. in A.-Last rung about 30 years ago. Weak frame now necessitates eniming only, but restorative scheme has been afoot during recent years.
Staple, St. James, 12 cwt.-Beils clocked, but general condition not known to me. Interesting old tower clock here.
Waltham, St. Bartholomew, $8 \frac{1}{2} \mathrm{cwt}$. in A. Appeared to be quite all right with minor ajjustments, but trame is locally reputed to be unsafe. Unusual tuning ( $2-5$ th of an octave).
Westwell, St. Mary, $12 \frac{1}{2}$ cwt. in F.-Third bell split, but others seem o.k., including frame. Have been rung wathin living memory and could probably be rung again, with minor repairs. Tenor a beautifully toned, mediæval bell.
Wormshill, St. Giles, $5+\mathrm{cwt}$.-Treble and tenor are steel bells; no other information, but probably o.k.

I am sure that many ringers throughout the Exercise would like to hear something more of the condition of four-bell towers in other counties, and I suggest that a representative from each county should submit a smill report, such as the one above, regarding their respective 4-bell towers, so that the Appendix in the back of Dove may be converted to something more than just a list of names.
I would also like to take this opportunity of congratulating Mr. Dove on his latest success and to thank him for incorporating most of the large list of corrections to the 2nd edition that I sent him.

AN UNFORGETTABLE CHARACTER

By T. A. BEVIS

HENRY WILLIAM GIDDINGS was a sou of endearing charm. He was poor in the material sense of the word, but this same quality had bestowed upon his frail figure that prized possession of a few, a spiritua rearness to his Creator which shone through hazed eves to envelope all his friends
His loyalty and devotedness to his church were manifest in many ways, and his duties as verger were carried out with such zeal and devotion that even now-four years after his passing the church at March is much the poorer from his marked absence.

Mr. Giddings was a bellringer and, apart from his duties in preparing the sanctuary for the service of Holy Communion and making ready the church for morning and evening worship, his love and desire to be with his fellow ringers formed, I believe, his greatest aspirations.
Henry Giddings was a poet of some local repute and many of his lines in verse have appeared in print; his versatile and acute pen displayed that talent in a most remarkable and forceful way and consisted largely of appeals, legends and prayers appertaining to bellingers and bellringing, most of which were composed at times of illness-it was then that his great love of bells was made evident such as in this particular line: 'Oh, to climb the belfry stair, and meet my brother ringers there.'
A familiar and likeable personality of the town, Henry Giddings served for a time in His Majesty's Forces during the First World War, but was discharged due to a condition relating to his feet, and from that time until his death his peculiar style of walking-or shufting -was an object of curiosity to most people.
It was his feet which in their semarkable way set the enthusiastic novice on an unusual and novel road in nursuit of campanological knowledge. Henry would lead youngsters into the church, insisting upon reverence and quietness on entering the fane and, occupying a position on the scarlet carpet in the nave, would proceed to trace a pattern in the pupils' minds of the plain course of Bob Minor, each step of those ungainly feet representing the path of a particular bell-usually the secondand a step backwards indicating a dodge. Facing about the verger would approach a pew two paces, "Whole blow behind,' he would say, then he would proceed to 'run in' six paces to the west. waving amazed onlookers out of the way.

The century has produced a legion of desirable and undesirable dance steps, but never before, surely, has method been applied to that pastime. Henry appropriately called it The Plain Bob Waltz
Yet strangely enough. it had its desired effect. Aided by a sheet of paper on which Mr. Giddings had thoughtfully written 60 cows of changes, the learner observed, marked and inwardly digested, usually quickly applying his theory of unique inspiration 10 practice.

Despite his readiness 10 assimilate figures. patterns and all manner of technical terms interwoven with the art, Henry Giddings found it distressingly difficult to ring a course of Plain Bob. It was well-nigh impossible for him to complete 120 changes even with helpbut those changes. when finally brought round were to him a considerable achievement. and his friends would delight with him in his sushained efforts. The possessor of that gift which gave him hours of pleasure, patiently reaching others in theory, yet somehow that same knowledge forsook him when his hand fell upon a rope. He was a most conscientious tower keeper and the same air of happiness prevailed whether he was engaged in winding the church clock (no light task) or sweeping down the tower's 84 steps.
For several years Mr. Giddings served the Ely Diocesan Association in the capacity of District secretary, until ill-health necessitated his relinquishment of this work
He lived with his wife in a small cottage which had kept the church company for over 200 years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Giddings had experienced difficult times, but philosophic Henry declared that trying seasons in one's earthly lif: were essential if the steel was to he finely tempered for God's sensitive and power hands.

Children loved him, and it was therefore only natural to find the sage counsellor 'over the road 'instructing young people at the Sunday school. It was within this building on one occasion that the finest tribute was paid to him-in his unavoidable absence.
A child of tender years was asked to give her example of a noble Christian, the teacher quite expecting to be provided with an illustration of one of the many illustrious Bible characters. Without hesitation the little girl replied: 'Mr. Giddings:'
He loved good music and next to the bell was familiar with the flute, an instrument from which he derived much pleasure. Whenever the church clock was about to chime-or his own quaint musical timepiece about to speak -Henry would hush the conversationalist until the last ethereal note had 'given wing to heaven.'

Oh, there are numerous instances in which appreciative friends remember him. The Rector, who, affectionately called Mr. Giddings his 'Curate,' on making an inquiry appertaining to a forthcoming burial was diligently escorted around the church cemetery by the verger. who was also gravedigger. Indicating the resting places of various people, Henry explained. 'I've got old Mrs. - over there, and I put poor old - who had 12 children, here, and Tom - near yonder bush.... just as though he had them all tucked up in bed!
Mr. Giddings' last few weeks were, for him, a trial indeed. Not once was he heard to complain, and as usual the 'old church' was constantly in his mind. His wife had expired and for over a year independent Henry lived by himself in his cottage.

There came a day which necessitated his immediate removal to hospital, and the writer who visited him was informed by the patient who was fully aware of his deteriorating condition, that he (Mr. Giddings) was no longer the man we knew. Once a man-twice a child: said he, half apologetically. But those experienced far-seeing eyes. though beholding the decline of man's physical slature. were more assured than ever of the vibrant and undying nature of the spirit.
Although afflicted with an incurable and wasting disease Henry Giddings continued to carry out his duties to the uttermost. The Rector had occasion to inquire of the verger's undiminished knowledge concerning a function to be held at the church. and accordingly approached the sick man as he lay in bed.
Henry was troubled on the departure of the clergyman for he believed that the Rector had misunderstood him. Mr. Giddings at that time was very seriously ill: notwithstanding this. he cose from his bed in his daughter" home, and proceeded on a long and tedious journey to the church-one-and-half-miles away

The faithful 'Curate' was conveyed home by car, in an exhausted condition. A little while later, listening to the Westminster chimes of his old mantelpiece clock, he passed over to the other side.
His were those qualities of a quiet. unassuming Christian gentleman, and he lives in the memories of those who were happily acquainted with the man-altogether in unforgettable and lovable character.

GLOUCESTER AND BRISTOL ASSOCIATION

Tewkesbury Branch

Those who attended the Tewkesbury Branch meeting to ring on Tirley's fine ring of 6 bells on March 10th were complimented by the Vicar (the Rev. L. J. Stanford) on their singing during the service. He also welcomed the Branch to Tirley.
An excellent tea was served in the Village Hall, and was followed by the business meeting. The accounts for 1961 were approved three new members were elected, and the date for the annual outing was fined for September 15 th. Mr. Cyri! Wratten talked about the Association's affiliation scheme. He pointed out that if a lower asked for instructors then local ringers would be needed, and he asked members to consider very carefully whether they would be prepared to help.
Further ringing brought the meeting to a close.

Stow-on-the-Wold Branch

The March quarterly meeting of the Stow-on-the-Wold Branch was held at Bourton-on-the-Water on March 17 th. Ringing commenced at 3 p.m. and touches of Grandsire and Stedman Triples, Bob Major and Kent Treble Bob were rung.
A short service, conducted by the Rector
(the Rev. C. H. Pickthorn), was well attended and included visitors from Stratford-on-Avon, Mickleton. St. Ambrose's, Bristol, Broadway, St. Giles. Packwood, Warwicks, and Abingdon, Berks.

At the business meeting the Branch ohairman and Rural Dean (Rev. L. W. Potter) presided. supported by Mr. F. Ewins (Ringing Master) and Mr. L. C. Dowdeswell (secretary).
In a debate on whether ringers should attend divine service after ringing, the Rector of Stow-on-the-Wold (the Rev.r. I. C. Heron) said that when ringers had rung for divine service that in itself was an act of worship. and he saw no reason why ringers should stay for service after ringing
The Rector of Bourton-on-the Water (Rev C H. Pickthorn) said that one of the rules in his tower stated that ringers should at tend service after ringing. As the rule was framed some 250 years ago and that times tad changed the saw no reason why that rule should be enforced. The Rural Dean (Rey. L. W. Potter) took the view that ringers should at tend service after ringing. It was unanimously carrjed that more ringers be asked to attend services.

To mark the occasion of the 50th anniver. sary of the Central Flying School at R A F. Little Rissington. on July 7th, which would be attended by Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Morher it was decided to ring the hells of Grea
Rissing 隹
Church as part of the celebrations.

WEDDING BELLS AT EPPING

Two members of the Essex Association were married at the Church of St. John the Baptist Epping, on March 17 hh . They were Miss Barbara Moclelland, of Epping, and Mr. T. G Barbara MoClelland, of Epping, and Mr. T. G
Mitchell. of Brook Street. Brentwood. The attendants were Mrs. R. Burrell, friend of the bride. and Miss J. McClelland, bride's sister, tho is also a ringer
The bells were rung before and after the service by members from Epping. South Weald Loughton and Leytonstone. The bride and bridegroom were photographed in the belfry with their ringing friends.

THE THEORY OF

TREBLE BOB METHODS
Up to now we have assumed that the plain hunting, path of the reble was inviolate. There is no season why the treble should follow that rather than any other sort of fixed path, or even that it should follow a fixed path at all, unless we so decide. Treble Bob methods form a large and, on eight and more bells, expanding group of methods. The treble follows a fixed path which is a combination of dodging and hunting, as shown in the skeleton lead below.

Precisely the same rules about symmetry and places at half lead and lead end apply to this type as to 'plain' methods. To avoid repeating rows occurring it is clearly necessary to introduce more 'internal' places. To see how this is done we will examine one of the simplest Treble Bob methods, Oxford Treble Bob.

Starting from rounds, as in diagram (I), all three pairs have been reversed. For the next change two bells must be left undisturbed. owing to the treble's path. these cannot be the first and last. In Oxford the 3rd and 4th are left. For the third change all three pairs can be reversed and for the fourth the first and last bells left alone. For the fifth change again all three pairs are reversed, but for the sixth the treble's path again limits the choice of bells to be left undisturbed. In Oxford the 1 st and 2 nd are selected. The next section is constructed similarly to complete the half lead shown in diagram (XIII). The next half lead is, of course, the reverse of this following the principle of symmetry. Sixths place is made at the lead end and the while process sepeated four times to give a plain course of five leads, as for Bob Minor (VI). Each lead contains twice as many rows as a lead of a plain method. Treble Bob methods may have lead end and halflead variations in the same way as plain methods.
In diagram (XIII) lines have been drawn dividing the half lead into blocks of four rows. These blocks are called sections, the lines being drawn at the cross-sections. These crosssections are the only changes where (in Oxford) the first and last bells were left undisturbed. It would have been possible to leave other bells alone at each of these changes; at the $2-3$ cross-section, the 4 th could have been left alone instead of the 61 h , and at the $4-5$ cross-section the 3 rd instead of the 1st. Treble Bob Minor methods are subdivided into four types according to the places made (i.e., bells left undisturbed) at these two cross-sections.
Cross-section Cross-section Type

| $1 & 6$ | $1 & 6$ | Treble Bob |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
| $1 & 6$ | $3 & 6$ | Thirds Placo Delight |
| $1 & 4$ | $1 & 6$ | Fourths Place Delight |
| $1 & 4$ | $3 & 6$ | Surprise |

The nomenclature of these types is apt to be confusing; they are all Treble Bob in the sense that the treble follows the same path. The names only refer to the places made at these particular positions. The title "Surprise, for instance, does not, as is frequently supposed, mean that a method is necessarily difficult. that be continued.

A hard luck story comes from Devonshire. Eight members of the Guild of Devonshire Ringers attempted J R. Pritchard's 5,056 Plain Bob Major on March 14 th on the fine eight at Stokeclimsland, and with only the 2nd and treble to lead and the single to be called, the tenor rope parted and put an untimely end to the ringing. Those taking part stood as follows: Miss M. A. Shepherd (first attempt for a peal) 1, A. W. Myers 2, F. E Day 3, D. R. Bould 4, H. Stacey 5, H. F ${ }_{8}$ Myers 6, W. G. Lavers 7, T. G. Myers (cond.) 8. The ringing was to the memory of $G$. Harry Myers, who passed to higher service on March 14th, 1960.
Mr. James Bennett is back home from hospital at Hillerest, Ipswich Road, Grundisburgh. Alas, he tells us that he 'can't hold a pen.' We hope to hear soon that he can hold a rope.
A wrong title was given to Bradford Cathedral in the repont of a peal of London Surprise Royal on page 193. It should be the Cathedral Church of St. Peter and not as printed.
Items found after the Yorkshire Association's meeting at Northowram on March 17th included a bag of cotton wool balls and one front door key. Apply W. G. Turner, 4, Marldon Road, Northowram, Halifax.
Assize ringing also takes place at Worcester Cathedral, writes Mr. D. Beacham in reply to our query. The Cathedral bells are always rung before and after the service attended by the Judge of Assize.
The American Guild of English Handbell Ringers have prepared a roster of their 1962 members. Among the 'foreign' members are Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Hughes and Mrs. Jennifer Lambe, of Broadhempston, Totnes, Devon.
A.B.C. Television are broadcasting the bells of Malvern Priory and Coventry Cathedral priar to 11 a.m. Matins on Sundays, April 1st and May 27th respectively. York Minster hells are to be broadcast by them on April 22nd.

With the peal of Stedman Caters at Loughborough Bell Foundry tower, Mr. Ernest Morris completed 333 peals on these bells. This is the greatest number any individual ringer has rung in one tower. The methods comprised Doubles, Minor, Triples, Major, Caters, Royal and in various lengths from an exact 5,000 to 13,440 .
'The Beginners' Handbook' is out of print. An order has been placed for another edition of 5,000 copies.
Miss Shepherd, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar C. Shepherd, of Solihull, has accepted an appointment as English Mistress at Marlborough Grammar School.
A ringer attending a Rotary Olub lunch at Ilkeston, Derbyshire, on March 19th sends us the menu for the sweet: 'Arctic Surprise o: Blackcurrant. Tart and Cream.' A bit dubious about this new method, he decided to stick to the latter Wo like the story of the young lady who said to the sales assistant: 'Have you a greeting card to tell someone that you're not going to send him any more greeting cards?' We would like to think that it was not necessary for us to send a reminder to some of our subscribers that we are not going to send them any more 'Ringing Worlds.'

When members of the Irish Association applied for the bells of Doneraile for an evening peal attempt, they received the following answer from the tower secretary: 'You may have the bells. No time limit, only be finished by 111 a.m. Sunday in time for morning service.' The peal party successfully completed their peal with just 12 hours to spare!
Another hard luck story comes from Brighton: At St. Nicholas' Church a peal of Bob Major was lost after three hours, through a broken clapper. The sympathy of the band was extended to the Sussex veteran, Mr. Harry Stalham, as the attempt was in honour of his 90 birthday. He had rung the sixth without a mistake, after an unsuccessful attempt for superlative.

MORE BELFRY GOSSIP

At 150, Narborough Road South, Leicester, the scene of so many intrepid handbell peals, a peal of York Surprise Maximus we rung on March 13th, conducted by Mr. Peter J. Staniforth. This was the first peal of Maximus to be rung in the method on handbells

Thanking Mr. Webb for his detailed account of Ross Church spire and giving the correct version of the 'Man of Ross,' 'H. D. Stock writes that he in no way intended to cast a slight upon the splendid building and/or its succession through the years of its excellent ringers.
Readers of this column (page 144) will be pleased to learn that Mr. T. Briggs (aged 84) has rung his first quarter of Grandsire Triples in his native town, Oakham. Let there be peace now, writes our correspondent. 'It gave all those taking part great satisfaction to see the joy in his face afterwards.

BARNSLEY DISTRICT SOCIETY

Nine towers were represented at the monthly meeting of the Barnsley & District Society held at Thrybergh, near Rotherham, on March 10th. The Rector (the Rev. G. K. Dixon), who presided at the business meeting, gave everyone a warm welcome. Four new members were elected. The route of the outing was changed 10 Southport. The vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. Pygolt (Thornhill), scconded by Miss Pat Lockwood (Ossctt).
Next meeting: South Kirkby

SOUTHWELL DIOCESAN GUILD

Newark District

The Newark meeting. held at Elston on March 17th, was the best attended for some time. and it was especially pleasing to see more of the younger elereent present. A little difficulty was experienced by some on the six bells; however, a good cross-section of methods was rung. and everyone was well catered for.
Due to the indisposition of the Vicar, the curate (the Rev. Mr. Beaumont) conducted the service, and the one hymn was lustily rendered. Perhaps this accounted for the plates being rapidly emptied afterwards in the Village Hall. and the number of cups of tea consumed.
Mr. F. W. Midwinter, the chairman, quickly dispensed with the preliminary business at the mecting in order to leave plenty of time to discuss the main item on the agenda-the formation of the fifth District within the Guild in the south of the county. The Guild Guild, in the south of the county. The Guild general secretary. Mr. W. L. Exton, had already saised the proposition at the annual committee meeting, and since the Nottingham and Newark Districts were the two involved, it had been decided that they should discuss it at their own meetings. It was proposed that 12 towers be taken from the overlarge Nottingham District and four from the Newark. Several members voiced opinions as to the advantage or otherwise of the formation: a vote was taken which-came down in favour of the proposition going forward to the annuall Guild meoting.

The business was wound up with votes of thanks to all concerned in making the meeting a success, and ringing followed until 8 o'clock. Coddington and Barnby are the towers for the next meeting, with District cup contest ringing at Barnby.

THE IRISH ASSOCIATION Southern District

The annual meeting of the Southern District was held in Cork on St. Patrick's Day (March 17 th) and was attended by 70 bellringers, representing Bandon, Cork, Doneraile, Limerick (Mt. St. Alphonsus' and St. Mary's Cathedral) and Walerford. Visitors included Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dukes, Sandra and Edwin Dukes and Mr. J. T. Dunwoody.

The bells of St. Finbarre's Cathedral were put to good use during the morning and afternoon, when touches of Plain Bob were rung as well as call changes. The contest for the R. R. Cherry' Cup was held during the afternoon and competed for by four teams. The result was as follows: Bandon 9 faults (winners), St. Mary's Cathedral, Limerick, 18 faults. St. Finburre's Cathedral 23 faults, and Doneraile 37 faults. All rang call changes
The Metropole Hotel, Cork, provided an excellent lunch before the business meeting, and the newly consecrated Bishop of Ossory (the Right Rev. H. R. McAdoo) who, until a week previously was Dean of Cork, welcomed the visitors. The chairman, Ms. Cyril Galbraith, thanked his Lordship and congratulated him his elevation to the Bench of Bishops,
The election of officers resulted as follows: Chairman. Mr. C. Galbrath (Limerick) ; Ringing Master. Mr. T. McDonald (Cork); secretary and treasurer, Mr. G. Bingham (Limerick); assistant secretary, Mr. P. Hanley (Limerick)

Bandon was sclected for the 1963 meeting
Grectings were brought by Mr. F. E. Dukes on behalf of the. Executive Council: Mrs. Dukes on behall of the Eastern District, and Mr. J. T. Dunwoady from the Northern District. Good wishes were extended to Mr. A. Bell (Waterford), on his recovery from serious injury in an explosion last year, and to Mr. David Benson (Limerick) who had been ill.

The Bishop of Cork (the Right Rev. G. Perdue). presided at tea and gave some cheerful advice to the assembly. His Lordship took up ringing shortly after his arrival in Cork, and spoke of the welcome he received the night he moved into the Palace, with the ringing of the Cathedral bells. He presented both the Cherry Cup and attendance shield to Mr. The olficial for the Bandon Society.
The official proccedings concluded at 7 p.m., after which six neople who had not had enough ringing set out on a 30 mile journcy to Doneraile. At 8.15 P.m. a peal attempt in honour of Mr. Bogan's election as president of the Association was set in motion and was brought round at about 10.55 p.m.

Over thirty members and friends attended the meeting at Haverhill on March 17th. short service was conducted by Rev. E. A. Graves, with lessons read by Mr. G. Adams and Miss E. Cansdale. followed by an excellent tea given by the Parochial Church Council. At the business mecting, presided over by the Vicar members were in favour of having another dinner and social combined with the North West District, although later in the year. The Ringing Master reported that six peals had been rung during 1961, as against twelve the previous year. The secretary stated that there was an average attendance at meetings during 1961 of 25 ( 16 Distriot members out of the paying 100 members). It was decided to have a practice meeting at Long Melford on either May 5th or 12th Next quarterly mueting: June 16th at Great Thurlow, subject to permission.

50 YEARS AGO

Anon " writes, with regard to church officers as singers: 'At a village in Bucks, there is a band cupable of ringing, and who do occasionally ring, a peal of Stedman Triples, composed of churchwarden, sidesmen and choristers. As it diversion may perhaps be pardoned in view of the recent scurrilous altacks on ringers gencrally as to their sobriety, etc., it is interesting to note that every single one of this band is the owner of freehold property, in each steadier lot of men it would be difficult to find anywhere:

DOVE'S AGAIN

ALREADY there has been a brisk sale of the third edition of 'A Bellringer's Guide to the Church Bells of Britain,' and there is no question that the demand will be continuous. Mr. Ronald H. Dove's contribution to the Exercise is outstanding, and his latest edition of the Guide is an essential companion to all ringers who travel. In most ringers' libraries it is a much-thumbed book.

The Guide has perhaps an even greater contribution to make-it is a summary of rings that are pealable the world over. The comparison between the second and third edi-tions-an approximate space of five years-is of interest:

| 12-bell towers | $\ldots$ | Second  Edition | Third  Edition |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| 10-bell | $\ldots$ | $\ldots$ | 160 | 164 |
| 9-bell | $"$ | $\ldots$ | 1 | 1 |
| 8-bell | $"$ | $\ldots$ | 1,523 | 1.537 |
| 7-bell | $"$ | $\ldots$ | 1 | 0 |
| 6-bell | $"$ | $\ldots$ | 2,488 | 2,521 |
| 5-bell | $"$ | $\ldots$ | 980 | 938 |
|  | Total | $\ldots$ | 5,208 | 5,220 |

Wales and Monmouthshire have an increase of two to 170. There is one additional ring of ten (Chepstow), two additional eights (Flint, St. Mary's, Swansea, and Newton Nottage) and one less six. Scotland has one more ring, bringing the total to 14. This is a five at Fettes College, Edinburgh. The Irish list now totals 34, the addition being the Roman Catholic Cathedral at Thurles, Tipperary, a ring of eight with a tenor of 29 cwt .; but these bells are only chimed.
The overseas list of towers is increased by three to 57. The newcomers are the ring of ten at Salisbury Cathedral. Southern Rhodesia, the eight at St. Paul's, Burwood, N.S.W.; Canada also has an increase of one-the eight at Calgary, Alberta.

Rings of 12 bells in England have increased by four. Bow Bells are back again, and a new ring with a 13th bell replaces the war loss at Great Yarmouth. Holy Trinity, Hull, with metal from the demolished ring at St. James', has two new trebles. The Rudhall eight at Southwell Cathedral is being recast and will provide Nottinghamshire with its first 12 -bell tower.

A net increase of five is reported by Mr. Dove in regard to rings of ten bells in the British Isles. Two of these concern cathedrals. At Gloucester two trebles, once in the former Church of St. Michael, Gloucester, have been added, the other bells of this ring of ten having been sold. The other is Portsmouth-again treble additions-but a ring warmly praised. Through the initiative of the Rev. A. E. Roberts, Carbis Bay is the second ten in Cornwall. Much local work went into the creation of the ten at Feltham; others are at Tamworth and Fareham.

There are seven new rings of eight bells, including three war loss replacements-St. Lawrence Jewry, St. Mary's, Swansea, and St. Andrew's, Holborn. Others are Atherstone, Warwicks; Hucknall, Notts; Calgary, Alberta; and Burwood, N.S.W. Augmentations to eight included the former 7-bell tower at Goldhanger, Essex, 14 previous 6 -bell towers and one 5 -bell tower, Alton (Staffs). Losses include the derelict octave from St. James', Hull, and the once popular ring at Bishop Ryder's Church, Birmingham, which has been demolished. The latter bells are at present stored at Loughborough Foundry awaiting a new home. Bristol Cathedral has acquired the ring of eight from the Temple Church.
Thirty-one 5-bell towers in 28 counties have had a sixth added, while a further 22 new rings of six have been created from lesser numbers. Nottinghamshire heads the list with six new rings, an increase of 16 per cent., while Yorkshire has had four rings of three increased to six and Lincolnshire three rings of four bells made up to six. Two sixes have been lost within the past five years. Five of the bells of St. Mary Magdalene's, Thetford, have been sold, while the bells of the derelict church of Holy Trinity, Canning Town, have been promised to a new church at Harlow New Town.
While the number of 5 -bell towers has dwindled still further, there have been ten new rings. Some of these are very light-Eriswell, Suffolk ( 3 cwt .16 lb .), Wansford, Northants ( 2 cwt .3 qr .16 lb .), and Fettes College ( 2 cwt . 1 qr. 13 lb.$)$. Wansford has replaced Foot's Cray as having the lightest five in a church.

Which is the county for bells? Devonshire still holds that position with 370 rings. Following are Somerset 326. Yorkshire 256, Suffolk 239, Kent 210 and Norfolk 209.

One of Mr. Dove's greatest difficulties is keeping his information up to date. Any change, such as a practice night, should be notified. A post card to him, at 26 , Sycamore Avenue, Leeds, 8 , will suffice.
New to this edition is an Appendix devoted to 4 -bell towers. There have already been in 'The Ringing World, valuable contributions on the state of many of these bells, and eventually the ringable and unringable will be generally known. The Guide is obtainable from W. H. Viggers, 37, Highfield Gardens, Aldershot. Price 9s. 6d. (postage 9d. extra); more expensive copies 12s. 6d. and 15s. (interleaved, postage 1s.).

The 12 Bell Towers of Birmingham-St. Philip's Cathedral

By EDGAR C. SHEPHERD

$\mathrm{S}^{\mathrm{T}}$T. PHILIP'S Cathedral, Birmingham, the youngest of the three twelve-bell towers in the city, has the distinction of recording the first known peal by the Society of St. Martin's Youths. The church was built, in 'Mr. Phillip's Barley Close.' early in the 18 th century; the building contractor was a certain William Shakespear. and the architect was Thomas Archer. of Umberslade, in the County of Warwick. Archer held an important post at the court of Queen Anne and at least two appointments under the Government. As an architect he had designed three London churches. and his work was marked by vigorous design and a liking for unusual steeples and cupolas. At St. Philip's his work is refined and restrained, and his tower, with its concave sides and voluted octagon supporting the dome and cupola, is a beautiful piece of work.
The tower was not completed until after 1725, and it is recorded that George I gave $$ 600$ to assist in the work. Joseph Smith, of Edgbaston, supplied one or two bells for the new church, and by 1727 had made the ring into a full octave. Twenty-three years later this ring was replaced by a new ten, tenor 29 cwt .. from Thomas Lester.

The significant history of St. Philip's may be said to fall broadly into four periods: the 18 ti century period, the reign of Chattell, the Carter interlude, and the renaissance under George Fearn in the 1940's.
Ringing at St. Philip's in the 18 th century is chiefly notable for the peal of Bob Major rung in 1755. conducted mostly probably by Andrew Peake. When Peake left Birmingham he was succeeded as conductor by John Archer. There is no evidence to connect this Archer with the Umberslade family, but he was undoubtedly an accomplished ringer and composer, and he called Grandsire Caters of his own composing. Before the end of the century two more peals of Grandsire Caters are recorded at St. Philip's, and we may note that in each case two men were needed for the tenor.
The first really notable epoch came with the arrival of William Chattell, one of the mast able. one of the most remarkable and one of the most erratic exponents of the art that Birmingham has ever seen. He was a native of Irthlingborough. learnt his ringing $a_{i}$ Leicester, and early in 1833 roamed the south and west of England in search of work as a baker. He arrived in Birmingham in May. 1833, quite destitute and without resources, to find work with Mr. Perks, a flour dealer in Charlotte Street. Having made dhimself known to the ringers of the town he speedily proved his worth on a rope, and as a conductor. and it was not long betore he secured control of the tower at St . Philip's.

Here he gathered round him a company of young men. and he was tireless in teaching and training them. Among his pupils were John Day, one of the most honoured and respected members of the Society of St . Martin's Youths, and the brilliant John Perks. son of Chattell's old master. In the company at this time. too,- were some young men whose ethics were not so soundly based. and John Day has told us, among others, of the flashy and rather shifty Thomas Bingham, who hid for some days in the tower of St. Martin's Church while the sheriff's officer was searching the town for him.
This was a period of great ringing activity, marred only by Chattell's uncouth behaviour and his quarrels with Hopkins and Johnson at St. Martin's. There is no room for doubt. however. that Chattell brought ringing in the lown from a very low ebb 10 a flood of prosperity. John Day had a tremendous respect for the baker's ability and inexhaustible energy in teaching beginners, and goes so far as to suggest that but for him ringing in Birmingham might have suffered extinction.
The well deserved rame of John Carter in the reatm of method construction and composition is apt to blind us to his ability as a practical ringer and conductor. It is true to say. nevertheless, that the inventor of the first ringing machine, this master manipulator of figures, was also a first rate ringer and leader of men. In the 1880's he gathered round him at St. Philip's a very active band of young ringers, formed the Birmingham and District Amalgamated Society, and led that company to the ringing of 62 peals on towerand handbells without ten years. The elders at St. Martin's regarded this enterprise and activity first with benevolent patronage, then with some apprehension, and lastly with a certain amount of dislike.

Fortunately there was never the strong antagonism of the days of Chattell. Carter was of a temperament different from that of the irascible baker, and he took care to try to preserve amicable relations with the Bull Ring. In this he was in the main successful although we find it recorded that the Ringing Master of St. Martin's Guild did at one time venture to suggest that the promising young men at St. Philip's must not forget they owed a duty to the old established Society. The Birmingham and District Amalgamated Society served its purpose and passed out of existence but it must be agreed that once again, as in Chattell's time. St. Philip's made an important and valuable contribution to the living growth of ringing in Birmingham.
The third great epoch at the Cathedral Church began with the coming of George E. Fearn. and his service as Ringing Master at the tower has been the new ten provided in 1937 and the generous gift of Mr. Frank B. Yates that added two trebles to give the city a very beautiful ring of twelve. Under the energetic leadership of Mr. Fearn the last fifteen years have heard from this tower a tremendous outpouring of peals, and among them some notable performances. A large number of new Sucprise methods on eight have been interspersed with numerous peals of Maximus, among them being the first ever rung of Prittlewell and Solihull. The first peal of London Royal by St. Martin's Guild was rung in this tower, and this method has now taken its place in the ordinary repentorre of the company. Thursday night is the peal night at St. Philip's, and many are the visitors who come to join the "permanent officials' and to avail themselves of Mr. Fearn's unfailing hospitality.
There is no longer any division between St. Philip's and St. Martin's, and still, as of old. the Cathedral makes an inestimable contribution to the health and progress of ringing in the city of Birmingham and far around.

WILF'S TOUR

Although the sun was shining there was a threat of snow in the sky as six ringers assembled at Petersfield station on March 3rd. For weeks this small group had eagerly anticipated this outing.
The first tower was 70 miles away, at Gillingham, Dorset. Here, three local ringers met us and the eight bells of St. Mary the Virgin's Church were soon being raised more or less in peal. with David Hughes fighting desperately with the 25 cwt. tenor. After a couple of very moderate touches of Grandsire Triples, an attempt at Stedman and a short touch of Grandsire Doubles we left for Holy Trinity Church, Shaftesbury.

This was to be our first attempt at a quanter peal and it was a blow to find that the enor bell was minus a rope. Grandsire Doubles on five faiked after 20 minutes and the bells were being rung down when the rope of the second fell around the shoulders or Brian Kercher.
A good lunch, and in a better frame of mind we drove to Motcombe (St. Mary's), where we were to make our second quarter peal attempt-alas. after 30 minutes Wilf Davison's bell dropped as the rope jumped the wheel. We had smiled knowingly when the verger had warned us that this might happen-it was his turn to smile when we had to stand.

On once more to Donhead St. Mary, a bit noisy. but at last a successful quarter peal of Plain Bob and Grandsire Doubles, the conductor nearly losing his voice. As we drove back to Shaftesbury, we felt our luck was changing. We were ahead of schedule and after tea it was decided to 'grab' an extra tower. St. James' Churoh was only two minutes away and we were soan climbing the worn stone steps. Coats off and ready to ring up. 'Treble's going-gone': Brian Kercher's face was a picture when the rope of the third fell. once more, around his shoulders. At Tishury (St. John Bipt.) we were informed by the Vicar that there was no stay on the third and after a couple of short touches we left for Wilton, our last tower.

Touches of Grandsire Doubles and Boh Minor completed our singing and we all drove home feeling tired but in excellent spirits.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PEALS AND THE PUBLIC

Dear Sir.-With reference to the article 'Peals and the Public.' in which it was stated that too many peals are harmful to the Exercise, as far as the relationship between bellringers and laymen is concerned, I beg to inform Mr. Corby that my assertions are based on known facts.

The writer is aware of at least two steeples in which peals have been banned, following complaints. At one the local company of ringers were agreeable to go easy with their ringing activitles, and it seemed for a time that the bells were tolerated reasonably, well by the public at large, until a visiting team of peal ringers, some well known and capable, attempted a peal on those particular bells. this failing after a prolonged struggle. The incumbent (realising his mistake) was afterwards inundated with complaints, and even now, four or five years later, that tower in question is under public fire.

It was much the same at the other church I had in mind. In this cast a glut of peals materialised, in addition to the bells being rung on every conceivable occasion. Curtailed ringing activities was the result.
I am aware of the gaze of 'putty faces '-as well as bright countenances-and have felt the edge of icy tongues from those who tartly voice their opinions of various meetings when - bells intermittently clatter away from 3 till 9 p.m..

Agrced. there are many churches favourably positioned. in which bells give no cause for complaint. There are equally as many which are not jdeally situated. Closed louvres are not entirely satisfactory in completely obliterating the sound of bells from residences in close proximity to a church.

It is my sincere hope that I will not be branded as a 'John Bunyan'-an enthusiastic ringer who dater regarded the ringing of bells as evil. I love bellringing and trust that in a suitable and reasonable manner my interests in that voluntary and pleasurable vocation will receive satisfaction, bearing in mind at the same time that one man's meat is another man's poison, and not forgetting a certain gentleman and his wife who, on learning that the bells of the church near their abode would be ringing at considerable jength, put on their hats and coats and drove away for the duration of the 'ordeal.' Incidentally, I do not wear a hat.-Yours faithfully.

March, Cambs.

WARNERS' LAST RING OF BELLS

Dear Sir,-Your correspondent in 'The Ringing World of February 16th, regarding the ring of bells at St. George's Cathedral, Perth. Western Australia, mentions that they are believed to be the last ring cast by Messrs. Warners, of London. I would like to correct this belief.
In the years prior to the First World War. John Warner and Son were very active in the field of recasting, rehanging and the supply of new rings. In fact. the firm had so many commitments in 1913 that the restoration of Henbury's bells had to be postponed for six months so that outstanding orders could be dealt with.

Such activity began to diminish during the war years until in 1921, following the casting and hanging of eight betls from an original ring of six at Mangotsfield. near Bristol. the ring of six at Mangotsfield. near Bristol, the firm went into liquidation.- Yours sincerely, Henbury, Bristol. J. A. BENNETT.

FALSENESS IN DOUBLE PRINCIPLES

Deat Sir.-The method 'Double Shipway' on page 124 is a member of a class of methods prossessing some remarkable qualities. One can state definitely that any method of the class, having more than a certain number of changes in its plain course, is pealable. The class of methods is defined by these double principles in which doubleness is induced by symmetry about the middle point of each change. For example, in Major, 3 rds place is balanced by 3 rds from the back (i.e. 6ths), in the same change.

The symmetry of the methods establishes a correspondence between certain pairs of bells, namely, between each bell and its 'image' in the line of symmetry. Clearly, if one bell occupies the image position of another, then a number of symmetrical operations by place-making can only cause these bells to occupy similarly related positions. Starting from rounds, in Major, the 8 and 1 , 7 and 2, 6 and 3,5 and 4 are pairs of image bells, and this relationship cannot bo altered by symmetrical operations.

Let us now consider how the symmetry will affect the false course ends of each method. We will suppose that the 7 and 8 are to be uraffected by calls, or that they will retain their plain course positions. Thus, it is only possible for any two particular changes to sepeat if the 7 and 8 occupy the same positions in each. Without loss of generality, one may consider two changes, A and B, say, of the plain course, and assume that 7 and 8 occupy the same positions in each. In some course with course end P, say. A will appear as $B$, or vice versa. $P$ is then a false course end of the method.

Now, A is obtained from B by a series of symmetric operations (which must add up to a symmetric operation). Clearly. since $\mathbf{P}$ is representative of this operation. $\dot{P}$ itself must $b=$ symmetrical. Thus the false course ends must belong to the group of symmetrical course ends.
The 7 and 8 are in their home positions in the felse course ends, and therefore, by the symmetry relationship, so must their image bells 2 and 1 respectively.
Hence $P$ must be one of the course ends:
12436578
4635
6453
6543
5634
5364
3546
This system of false course ends has a 90 course solution.
As a result of the above considerations one may state for any method of the class:-
(a) The false course ends must be drawn The false course ends mus only from the above table.
(b) Provided the 6, 7 and 8 are unaffected by calls. and only bobs are used, each method has a clean proof seale.
(c) Provided the plain course of the method has more than 56 changes, a peal is oblainable.
(d) In a, b, c, "the method" may be replaced by 'combination of methods, provided the combination is true in itself.
Thesc are far-reaching conclusions, which may be modified to accommodate any even number of bells. The class of methods considered is by no means empty. It embraces Original. Duffield, "Double Shipway, etc: As a more complicated example of the class. I give the figures of one division of Major. Royal and Maximus of an unnamed principle:

$\underline{2143658709 T E}$

One notic above mothes that Double Shipway' and the proof scale using common bobs, have a clean unaffected.
Another interesting question is the extension of a Major method of this class to higher numbers. Would its extension necessarily be a member of the class, and does the division setain the same length? The answer to both these questions in the example I have given is 'Yes.' In the case of 'Double Shipway this is open to doubt, and the two questions are clearly related to one another. However that is another story:-Yours faithfully,

A THANK YOU TO MR. DOVE

Dear Sir.- Once again the time has come to congratulate Mr. R. H. Dove on a fine production-I refer, of course. to the third edition of his Guide." Only those who have had the task of organising a ringing outing can fully appreciate the value of this work However, as each edition comes out, the Editor of 'The Ringing World' is inundated with information correcting errors in the "Guide" and supplying additional information on towers.
Surely much of this giving of information after the 'Guide' has been published could be omitted if the various territorial and diocesan ringing associations did their job They should either produce up-to-date reponts, in which is given correct information on every tower in their areas, or failing that, knowing that Mr. Dove was preparing another edition of the 'Guide.' furnish him with details of all the towers in their areas. This would greatly facilitate Mr. Dove's task, and also spare him the heartbreak of reading these omissions and corrections after having put in so much time and energy in order to give the Exercise this invaluable book.-Yours faithfuily,

GEOFFREY D. ARMITAGE.

BLAME THE RINGING WORLD

Dear Sir, -With all due respect to my friend Mr. Ernest Morris as to who was Mayor of Leicester in 1370, John-de-Stafford or Johannes-de-Yorke (and I do not doubt his record findings for the former). I have seen it stated in 'The Ringing World' in past years. under Mr. Morris' name. that Johannes-de-Yorke was Mayor of Leicester in 1370. Maybe this was a slip-up due to human elements, or maybe it was a printer's error. like one in "The Ringing World ' where a peal of Plain Bob Minor is published as a peal of Plain Bob Major, at Twyford, Leics. where the tenor in past peals has been given as 6 cwt . 3 qr. 2016 , but is this time given as 6 cwt .2 gr .22 lb . Which is it?-Yours, etc.,

Cambridge University

$\mathrm{O}^{2}$$O^{\mathrm{N}}$ March 1oth the annual dimer of the Cambridge University Guild of Change Ringers was held in the Hall of Selwyn College.
The morning of Dinner Day has been found by experience to be as good a time as any for losing peals, and this year was no exception. One band went well out of earshot to Hilgay, in Norfolk, and had the decency to lose Yorkshire Major after some two and a half hours. The other band showed unseemly persistence at five spliced at Trumpington until an unscheduled funeral solved the problem for them.
The weather, too, was much what we have come to expect on Dinner Day, and an intermittent drizzle accompanied our labours. Nevertheless a good number, both of the Guild and of our visitors, turned up to ring at St. Bene't's, which was the first tower of the afternoon. The attendance was even more creditable since, at this time of day, many of the more obvious Guild landmarks were elsewhere.
The ringing chamber at St. Andrew's was also very full, until people dashed off to snatch a cup of tea and a crumpet before snatching Great St. Mary's bells. Here access became Iemporarily difficult as the family of an older member seemed evenly distributed between the bottom and the top of the staircase. Ringing on the twelve was ultimately quite good. and it was widely noticed that the shint-tails of one of our more recently married members remained in situ throughout the performance!
Energies were flagging a little when we got to the Roman Catholic Church and the bells presented their usual challenge, but some of the more familiar faces had turned up and the ringing was quite ambitious and successful. Meanwhile, six unsung heroes were solemnly ringing Doubles out at Chesterton.

MEMORIAL LOVING CUP

When we forgathered for dinner, the president welcomed the guests and read apologies and good wishes from several. well known members who were absent. He found some difficulty in dealing with fine silver loving ucp, тесеntly purchased as a memorial to our late president, Canon Blyth, and made several inequitable suggestions before proposing a workable system for its circulation. Even this was hampered by a demonstration that some animals are more equal than others
Paul Williamson, in proposing the toast of 'The Guild,' sketched for us the inroads of the ladies into our activities after 68 years of safety. The danger was emphasised by the fact that the first lady to ring in a Guild peal became his wife. He welcomed Hilary Muirhead, as Master, however, and wondered how long it would be before we had a lady president.
In her reply, Hilary bewailed the unsuitability of a woman's voice for the belfry and the reluctance of touches to come round. Nevertheless, the Guild's progress during the year was satisfactory and handbell ringing had again a regular place in its activities She thanked the Vicar and P.C.C. of St.
Andrew's for the provision of new ropes, and Andrew's for the provision of new ropes, and was. amused by a crossword clue. Good advice to campanologists, which proved to be. 'All pull together.'

Richard Hough, the Secretary, proposed the toast of 'The Guests,' 'a mullitude which no man could number,' and bade them all welcome. whether they were from other University Societies or, nearer at hand, from the Cambridge Youths. He thanked the Master for her gallant work in a snowbound peal at St. Neots, but supported Paul bound peal at St. Neots, but supported Paul Williamson's observations by pointing out that we had, in fact, two lady officers this year.

Guild's Dinner Day

But at the same time the Guild had recovered many of its former virtues, and he was pleased to report that it was once again on a solid and regular liquid foundation. Richard added his sympathy with John Pusey, Master of the Oxford University Society, who had so often had to reply to his speeches
John Pusey felt that he had a poor supporting cast from Oxford and suggested that he and Hilary might, as graduabes, justly hand the job of Mastership to those who had less work to do. He revealed the duplicity of several of do. He revealed the duplicity of several of Cambridge, as the occasion suited them, and gave formal notice to the Exercise of Overshafi, a method which is heard at its best when rung on 1,4 and 8 of an eight situated over the entrance to the Bank Underground Station. While slightly suspicious of the contents of the loving cup, he thanked the Cambridge Guild for their hospitality.
That his suspicions were unfounded was proved by the good attendance at ringing early the following morning. As the visitors gradually left Cambridge during the day it was agreed that Dinner Day had once again been a pleasing and successful occasion, so due to the excellent arrangements made by the residents.

NORWICH DIOCESAN ASSOCIATION

Over forty members and friends. representing 17 towers, attended the annual meeting of the Western Branch at Swaftham on Feb. 24th. The bells were first rung for a wedding, and then to a variety of methods to suit all tastes and capabilities.
Divine service was conducted by the Vicar, Rev. J. Burridge, who, prior to his address, extended a very cordial welcome to all present. The Rev. G. Galley read the lesson. The organist was Miss Granville-Smith, who is 91 organist was Miss Granville-Smith, who is 91 in the Church Rooms by the wives and friends of the Jocal band.

At the business meeting all the officers were elected, with Rev. Giles Galley (chairman), Mr. T. Owen (Ringing Master), and Mr. C. Tovell (secretary). Two new members were elected. The next quarterly meeting is to be held at North Elmham on May 26th, and an evening practice meeting is being arranged at Necton on Wednesday, April 25th.

Our thanks are due to the Vicar for the use of the bells and conducting the service, also to the organist, and to the ladies for providing tea.

SURREY ASSOCIATION

Fine but chilly weather favoured the Northern District at its practice meeting on March 24th, held at Wimbledon and Putney This was the first such meeting since June, 1959, when a Surprise practice was held at Kingston. The Association's striking showed room for improvement, when tested in a variety of methods, on the "not too easy" Wimbledon bells. but the afternoon's ringing was concluded with a fine touch of Bristol by the more experienced ringers.

The service at Putncy was taken by the curate, the organ being played by his wife. Thirty-five ringers and friends sat down to an excellent tea, prepared by the local band. Appetites satisfied and thirsts quenched, a good standard of striking was then maintained on Putney bells untif 8 p.m. Methods rung included a gallant but unsuccessful attempt at Spliced Surprise.

A further practice meeting will be held at Church Church. Mitcham, and Merton. on May 26th.

LIVERPOOL UNIVERSITY'S FIRST DINNER

THE fact that Liverpool University Society doubled its membership this year induced the committee to arrange the Society's first dinner, which was held at Prenton Hotel, Birkenhead, on March 16 th. The sale of tickets exceeded expectations and, while most of the visitors were local, there were present some from as far afield as Hull University and Glamorgan.
After an excellent meal the president, Mr Geoffrey Pullin, proposed the loyal toast. and also ' The Church.' Mr. Peter Bennett (Ringing Master) in proposing the toast of "The Visitors,' expressed his gratification at the large attendance. With a small Society, he said, visitors were essential for a successful function and he hoped to see them all again in future years.
A humorous reply came from Mr. Jack Coyne, assistant secretary of the University Chemical Society. After a few derogatory remarks about engineers (of which the Society is mainly composed), he said, although the was not a ringer himself, he first heard of the Society when it was rumoured they were ettempting to abduct Big Ben last Panto Day.
'LEARNERS SHOULD NOT BE PUSHED
Before the next toast, 'The Visitors,' proposed by Mr. Alexander Martin, secretary of the Wirral Branch of the Chester Diocesan Guild, a touch of Bob Minor was tung on handbells by Messrs. Fielden. Pullin and Cooper. Mr. Martin said the Wirral Branch was proud of its connection with the universities. as they had taught at least two Masters of Cambridge University and one of London. He warned the Society that the standard of striking at universities was usually poor, and if good striking was to be obtained learners should not be pushed. He thanked the Society for helping to make both ringing and social functions of the Wirral Branch a success.

Mr. Frank Anderton, a past secretary, replied and thanked Mr. Martin for his advice, and the help he had given in arranging the dinner. The Wirral ringers, he said. had always made the Society very welcome, especially when he was a fresher.
After the tables were cleared, entertainment in the form of tune ringing on handbells was provided by Misses Arrowsmith and Chandler and Messrs, Rogers, Shea and Jenner. In addition, the charming Miss Margaret Chambers gave the company some delightfu! renderings of songs from 'West Side Story" and "South Pacific." For the rest of the evening songs, old and new, were sung

When the evening came to an end, it was generally felt that this first dinner had been a social success, and it can only be hoped that next year another successful dinner will be held on an even larger scale.

THE THEORY OF CHANGE RINGING

LARGER NUMBERS OF BELLS
For simplicity, six bells has been the largest number considered so far. Methods on eight, ten or any even number of bells are constructed according to exactly the same principles. Clearly the more bells the greater the number of possible different combinations there are of places which can be made, and the longer the plain courses produced.

ODD NUMBERS OF BELLS
Apart from a brief mention of the production of changes on five bells (II), we have, so far, confined our attention to even numbers. The same general principles apply, but one or two points peculiar to odd bell ringing must be discussed.
Diagram (XIV) is (II) continued until rounds reappears.

Rounds has reappeared after 10 changes and, as before. we have the problem of producing the extent, factorial 5, i.e. 120 changes On four bells we tried making 2 nds place when the treble was at lead and so produced Bob Minimus, whose plain course is the extent ( 24 changes). If this procedure is applied to (XIV) the result is

Note that making 2 nds place has compelled the making of 5ths place at the same time ; we shall comment further on this later. (XV) is the plain course of Bob Doubles and runs to 40 changes. As with Bob Minor we shall postpone consideration of ways and means of obtaining the whole extent for the time being and look briefly at the construction of Doubles methods in general. bearing in mind the principles described for Minor. First symmetry.

(XVI)
(XVI) is Bob Doubles written out as we wrote Single Court Minor in (VIII) and clearly the rule is obeyed. Similarly with the place made at the lead end/head change. As the method is Plain Bob the rule about the lead end row being one of those of the Plain Bob method must be satisfied. So far so good, but what about Grandsire? Here is the first lead as it is usually written.

> | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 |

| (XVII) |  |  |  |  |

The rules seem, at first sight, to be honoured in the breach rather than the observance. But, Grandsire is the simplest example of a particular type of odd-bell method, which is different from even-bell methods in one very important respect. The plain course contains two plain hunting bells, the treble and second. There are thus only three 'working' bells, unlike Bob Doubles which has four and only three leads instead of four in the plain course. Here is the first lead again bearing this in mind.

|  | VIII) |

This lead is perfectly symmetrical, the 3 rds place coming at the lead end/lead head change as does the 2nds in Plain Bob. Grandsire Doubles is really Bob Minimus with two hunt bells instead of one. The other two rules apply in a modified form. At the lead end 3rds or the extreme place must be made and the lead end row in any similar method must be one of those of the plain course of Grandsire.

Stedman is an example of a method which has no 'fixed ' treble. All the bells are working bells. It is primarily an odd-bell method although it was, many years ago, adapted for singing on even numbers. The method is based on changes on 3 bells. These six possible sows may be produced in two ways.

(XIX)

Notice that the order in which the rows occur in (b) is the reverse of that in (a). If we rang these rows starting in the usual way from rounds the leading in (a) would be the normal hand and back, but in (b) it would be back and hand. Stedman Doubles is buile up by making the bells in 4-5 double dodge whilst these six changes are rung (a) and (b) alternately. The 'Quick' six is (a) and the 'Slow' six (b). The sixes are linked by a change (the parting of the sixes) where Sths place is made.

In the diagram of the plain course of Stedman Doubles above rounds has been made the fourth row of a quick six. It is often stated that this is to make the "go-off" the same as Grandsire. This is only partly true. The main reason for this start is to preserve the symmetry of the course as a whole. As it is shown in (XX) the course is symmetrical about the half-way change (the dotted line) in the same way as that of a method with a fixed hunt bell. From this point of view starting a: the fourth row of a slow six would be equally satisfactory. The quick six is preferred since the other would require the treblo to start unconventionally by making one further blow at lead.

Methods for seven, nine and 11 bells follow exactly the same principles as those just described for Doubles. Stedman on larger numbers keeps the same three-bell work, with dodging in 6-7, 8-9 and 10-11, according to the number of bells.

CORRECTION

Mr. Ranald W. M. Clouston desires to make a correction in his article Rings of Four Bells in Suffolk' (page 205). He writes that it is Stuston tower which is badly split, not the tenor.

THE SMITHS

THE STORY OF A RINGING FAMILY

The next peal Joe Smith, head ringer of Hexworth, rings will be his $100 t h$. The local hand had been practising for the occasion. A visiting band arrive one short for a pealone of three in a day. A frantic search follows for another ringer without success. Joe steps into the breach. Characters include Annie, Joe's wife; Phyllis, daughter; Henry, her boy friend; John, Joe's son; George, Old William and Young William.
The peal came round after two hours and forty-eight minutes, at exactly eighteen minutes past four. It was a good peal and Joe, who rang the third, was quite satisfied with the standard of the ringing throughout. The bells were quickly, but accurately, lowered in peal and at 27 minutes past four Joe was seated in the back of which Billy described as "my ancient chariot, and on his way to Brigton, Lofty and his friend disappeared in the Lofly and his friend disappeared in the opposite direction. The three young men produced a pile of sandwiches which they began to demolish with startling rapidity, Billy, who was driving, contributing undeterred to who was driving,

Conversation was carried on in spasms between (or rather through) mouthfuls of bread, butter and roast beef of old England. liberally plastered with mustard, so that they could, as one of them put it. 'enjoy a hot meal at minimum expense.' Meanwhile, the 'ancient chariot' rattled and groaned its way through back lanes and byways. By the time the sandwiches had been washed down by some anæmic looking fluid, generously described by Billy as "tea,' but perhaps more accurately referred to by his companions as ' witches' brew, which they drank out of a large flask in turn, it being manifestly impossible to pour it into any receptacle smaller than a bucket under such unstable conditions, they had arrived at Brigton.

Joe dismounted and the three ringers thanked him for his assistance, waved goodbye, and, with much coughing and splutiering, the car disappeared down the street behind for rather in front of a cloud of greyish-blue haze that issued from its own exhaust.

Joe had just time to have a ring before tea. which was more than could be said for Phyllis, John and Henry, who arrived just as it was starting, having been detained by a window-frame which had taken longer to 'finish off' than expected.
On the way home that night in 'Alice,' Henry said. "They were a little late in starting the peal today, but the striking sounded very good whenever I heard it. I wonder what methods they were ringing.
The last statement being purely rhetorical. Joe thought it wise to ignore it.

Why did you want to see me, father?' asked John. Mrs. Green said you'd been round asking for me.

- Oh. they were a ringer short at first. answered Joe. 'I just wanted to make sure there was someone handy, in case they didn't get made up. I had already been round to from work.

I wouldn't have William's job for a nsion, he went on. out in all kinds of pension,' he went on, 'out in all kinds of weather. (William was a milkman.) Still he doesn't seem to mind. and he keeps healthy enough. I suppose it's better than being cooped up in an office.'
'Oh. I don't know,' said Phyllis, 'I'm quite me the wide open spaces-:

Seeing that your "Josh's" job is to make a fortune out of the wide open spaees, that you speak of so superciliously, began John, you speak of so

- A confectioner doesn't have to like all the cake he sells-:
And having got the 'bairns' well away from the subject of ringing in general and the afternoon's peal in particular, which had been his intention in the first place, Joe settled himself comfortably in his seat and reached for his pipe and matches.

On Monday evening. November 27th, the team gathered in the belfry at about 5.30, Joe having locked the door at the bottom of the sleps after everybody had gone up. Having raised the bells and, before they started ringing, while the rest of the rings were waiting for Old George to make his usual, final adjustments to his rope, Joe discussed the order of the methods which they were to ring.

We will start with Chester,' he said, 'and get that out of the way, follow that with Canterbury, which is Chester and London, and then Carlisle, which is Chester and Cambridge. We shall then have finished with Chester lead ends, which we seem to have found the mest awkward, although I think everyone is familiar with them now. After that we shall ring London itself, whioh is the only one of the seven with London laad ends. The remainder have all got Cambridge lead ends: Beverley, which is Cimbridge and Chester; York, which is Cambridge and London, and, then, if we get so far, Cambridge Surprise itself. Is everybody happy about that? Good! Let's have a decent peal.

George was now ready and the team slood to, with Phyllis and John on the second and third, Henry on the fourth and William and Joe on the last two. After they had rung rounds for a few minutes, Joe asked: 'Everybody all right?' and receiving no answer glanced quickly round the circle and called: Go, Chester!' He glanced at his wristlet watch; it was $5.45 \mathrm{p} . \mathrm{m}$.
Annie heard them go off into changes and then busied herself making final preparations. Occasionally, during the midst of these she walked to the door and listened to the bells tapping merrily away. The striking was good and they were maintaining a good rhythm. and she smiled and nodded contentedly to herself. She was a wee bit anxious as she sliced the ham and the brisket and turned round the rabbit pie in the oven, cut bread and buttered jt, brought cakes, tarts and buns out of tins in which they had been concealed, carried a varied assortment of pickles and condiments out of the pantry, put finishing touches on gaily coloured and succulent looking trifles, and finally produced an enormous iced and decorated cake, which had six Jittle silver bells on the top that tinkled at a touch, and the words ' 100 peals;' printed in red icing across its top surface. This she placed on the sideboard, where it looked magnificent (she told herself), surrounded as its was by bowls of fruit: golden pyramids of oranges and tangerines, bunches of black grapes and mounds of russet apples. There was a decanter of sherry and, in a corner, a case of Old George's favourite bottled ale,
As the time grew near for the bells to come round she went to the door and back several times and listened anxiously. and it was, in fact. on one of these occasions that she heard the bells come into rounds. She looked at the clock: 8.33 ; two hours and 48 minutes. for like Joe, she had noted the time of starting. She replaced the big copper kettle on the fire and filled the electric one

Slightly more than ten minutes afterwards the six ringers arrived and the room became a scene of noise and bustle. She congratulated them on ringing a good peal and began to direct them to their seats.

Aye, Annie, lass, it wor a very good peal. said George warming his hands in front of the fire, for the night was cold. 'That's a sight for sore eyes. he continued, looking over his shoulder, whilst still warming his hands. 'Will ye be having another tableful like that when Joe rings his two hundredth?

I hope not.' said John. 'if it means that I have to fast for a week heforehand in order that you might have a good feed!'

Here. commanded his mother, 'you get the big brown teapot from the side lable and (fi'l it with water from the copper kettle the tea in the pot, and let me have less of your cheek or you will be on short rations for At which dire threat as well.
At which dire threat John pretended to be stricken with mortal fear and rushed hither and thither to fulfil his mother's bidding, during the process of which he nearly knocked a tray of glasses out of Phyllis' hands, whereupon she boxed his ears and told him ' not to he so daft.'
And eventually they were all sitting down and Annie was disembowelling the rabbit pie and, at first, they were all talking together and passing the bread or the condiments or the pickles ar the mustard or enjoying a listle more ham, brisket or rabbit pie, or even a pickled walnut or a sausage neatly bayoneted with a cocktail stick, or maybe having another cup of tea or finding room for another dish of triffe, or just one more cake, until gradually the mountains of food and good things were reduced considerably in size and the pace slackened and the conversation, which had eased off temporarily, began, like the bottled ale and demonade, to flow once more, and the wine was poured and everybody drank to Joe's hundredth peal and wished him many more of the same ilk, and a warmth that was not entirely due to the fire blazing in the grate, or the carbo-hydrates in the respective digestive systems, suffused the room and its occupants, for surely the joy of ringing is only surpassed by the companionship which grows out of it and the sense of achievement that comes with ringing one's hundredth pead is as naught compared with the friendships made in climbing the long ladder to the top.

Then were the ' tea things' cleared away to be piled, I fear, in a precarious pyramid in the back kitchen sink, to be 'washed up' later and the pipes were lit and cigarettes passed round, and they all gathered round the fire which Joe stirred absent-mindedly now and again with a brass-handled poker as he remembered with William and Old George (or was reminded of by Annie) some of the peals they had rung together during the last 25 years, and while the older ones talked the younger ones sat and listened and smiled at the jokes or were suitably impressed by the past performances or present wisdam of the narrators.

MISS SHIRLEY PARSONS' WEDDING

Ringers from Norfolk. Cheltenham. Gloucester, London and Leicester converged on Havant. Hants, on March 17th for the wedding of Miss Shirley M. Parsons and Mr. Geoffrey R Drew. of Cheltenham. A half peal of Bob Major was rung in the morning by guests and conducted by the best man, Peter T. Hur combe. of Gloucester. The visiting ringers also joined the regular Havant service band in ring before and after the wedding service methods rung included Cambridge. Kent. Stedman and Plain Bob.
The bride was given in marriage by her father. Mr. C. E. Parsons, who is also a ringer at Havant. She wore a full-length dress of white satin and flock nylon. with a head dress of roses and a short veil, and carried a bouquet of carnations and freesia. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. D. B. Marsh. and two small bridesmaids. Zoe Wilard and Caroline Herbert
The fully choral service was conducted by the Rector, Canon P. N. Duke-Baker, who afterwards made a speech at the reception. in which he said that he understood bells were referred to as she, so no doubt the bridegroom was used to handling awkward "she's"! Mr. and Mrs. Drew, who met on a ringing tour in 1960. did not (contrary to some of their guests' expectations) have a peal ringing honeymoon. but toured France in their bubble car. The car had been liberally decorated by the bridegroom's colleagues at Smith's with confetti, and remarks in lipstick, but further threatened additions had been avoided thanks to the captain of the Havant ringers (Mr. Morgan Marshall), who kindly provided a hide-out in one of his barns.
For the present Mr. and Mrs. Drew are living in Shirley's former flat. 45, Scott House, Cheltenham. and are. of course, always pleased to see ringing friends there.

OBITUARY

MR. F. J. RUMENS
The death of Mr. Francis John Rumens, of Chicago, U.S.A., on March 11th, at the age of 76. removes a former well known London ringer. His interest in ringing started in 1902, and in 1908 he answered the call of Dr. Nichols, of Boston, U.S.A., for ringers to emigrate to Chicago for the purpose of starting a band at the University, where a ring of bells had just been installed. It was found impossible to get the students interested so all ideas of creating a band of ringers had to be abandoned.

Frank, however, retained his interest till the last, through correspondence with his brother in London. He rang only two peals, the first (Kent T.B. Major) at St. Saviour's. Walthamstow. conducted by the late William Keeble, in 1907, and the other, Stedman Triples, conducted by the late C. T. Coles. during a visit he paid to England in 1912. He last visited this country in 1955. when he took part in the Sunday ringing at St. Mary's, Walthamstow.

MR. JOHN POLLARD

The Southern Branch of the Lincoln Guild lost one its oldest members in the death of Mr. John Pollard, of Dyke, near Bourne, who died suddenly on March 24th. He was ringing as usual for service on the Sunday before and it was a great shock to know he would be no more.
Jack. as he was always called. was 76 years old and his cheerful and ready wit will be missed by many. Although he never rang any bell but the treble he had rung quite a number of peals, including many Surprise peals with Mr. J. W. Lake.

The funeral service was at Bourne on March 27th. when several ringers and friends paid tribute to a grand old friend. In the evening a good peal of Minor was rung half-muffled to his memory.

MR. PERCY JAGO

Mr. Percy Jago, who died on March 27th at the age of 83 , had been captain of the ringers at St. Martin and St. Meriadoc, Camborne, Cornwall, for no less than 55 years. He had rung regularly every Sunday up to a few weeks before his death.
As one of the older generation of Cornish ringers he had been brought up in the tradition of rounds and call changes, but he accepted the introduction of method ringing and gave every encouragement to the younger generation of ringers; in fact he sought to master it himself and had rung the treble to two or three quarter peals of Grandsire Doubles.

After such a record of long service it was only to be expected that at his funeral the Rector of Camborne (Canon G. F. Sandfield) should speak of his devotion to his church, and he said that Percy Jago had carried out one of the loveliest of duties in the church by sounding the alert Sunday by Sunday. His had been a great example to everyone, and he had been a devoted servant of the church in every way. The Camborne ringers were well represented and included Mr. E. Sanders (vicecaptain) and Miss Thelma Richards (secretary). Also present were Mr. W. H. Sanders (Tuckingmill) and the Rev. A. S. Roberts (Penzance Branch secretary).

AN APPRECIATION

Many years ago I met 'Bert' at Barnet. We found our mutual interests in East Anglia, when he said he came from King's Lynn. Later he moved to Ealing, and by the good interest of W. Wilson, with advantage of 'Wheels.' he came with us often. He was very pleased with the date touch at Slough last year, and we hope it was appropriate for us to ring the quarter from Parker's OnePart to his memory at Streatham. We remember his example.

JOHN EUSTON.

THE LADIES' GUILD Midand District

The meeting of the Midland District, held on March 17 th at Sileby. Leics, was well supported, over 40 sitting down to tea and 19 ladies attending. Ringing during the afternoon on the heavy eight ranged from rounds to Bristol Surprise, finishing with a touch of Stedman Triples by an all dadies band, prior to the service. The service was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. Mr. Hunting), a great friend of ringers, and the singing was ably led by six volunteer choristers. Mrs. Staniforth. president, read the lesson, and Mr. Draper, who had made the arrangements for the meeting, took the collection.
An excellent tea was served in the School Room, and immediately afterwards six locad youngsters, trained by Mr. Michael White, of Sileby, gave a demonstration of tune ringing on handbells. The president thanked the team and congratulated them on their effort.

At the meeting Mrs. Staniforth took the chair and welcomed the ladies and new members. Three new members were elected, viz Miss Monica Moore (Leicester University), Miss Rosemary White and Miss Elizabeth Baldwin (Sileby). After discussion, the secretary was asked do obtain details of the cost of running a minibus or coach to Darlington for the A.G.M. in July, as several members were interested in attending.

Next meeting: Oakham, Rutland. May 19th.
W. M. W.

Mr. John Willis. of Folkestane, chairman of the Kent County Association, is in the Royal Victoria Hospital. Dover, after undergoing a minor operation. He is making good progress and hopes to be back ringing again progress

It was intended that the quarter peal rung at Finchley on March 24th as a wedding compliment to Michael Carter and Patricia Banks should be followed by another immediately after the ceremony, but this was prevented by another wedding. Mike, who has just returned from Hong Kong, is one of Finchley's earlier band of learners. His wife had taken up ringing during his absence and on the occasion of his first visit back to the tower she surprised him by ringing the treble to Grandsire. Ringers of Finchley and neighbouring towers wish them every happiness.
The memorial ring of five bells, wheels and frames from Braywood Church, Berks, are offered for sale on demolition of. the church.
The peal at St. Peter's, Farnborough, Hants, on March 24th, is believed to be only the third on the bells. It was rung by members of the Sunday service band.
The new treble added to the ring at Stoke D'Abernon Church, Surrey, was dedicated at Matins on March 25 th. A quarter peal was rung immediately afterwards and on the new rung Miss Carol Harrison scored her first quarter.
It was most appropriate that the peal of London Surprise Major for the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. B. Worthington was rung at St. Peter's, Netherseale, as the patranage of the Jiving of Seale has been held by the Worthington family for many years.
Mrs. F. I. Hairs, of Groombridge, Sussex, returns to the peal columns after a long absence. After the peal at Tunbridge Wells on March 24th she was congratulated upon ringing what is believed to be the first peal together by a grandmother and granddaughter -an ambition of almost nine years.
Miss Jane King, of Frampion Cotterell. near Bristol, is not going to Oxford University but to Radcliffe Infirmary, with the object of becoming a nurse. She apologises for any false impression that might have arisen. We wish her a happy training at the Radcliffe and sufficient leisure to improve her ringing.

BELFRY

GOSSIP of Plain Bob Ma, who rang his first peal inside at Campsall, Yorks. The conductor, Mr. Leslie M. Woodhead, writes that David should be congratulated upon his excellent ringing in the peal. We do.
Mr. C. W. Denyer has been elected a churchwarden of Farnham Parish Church.
Front page picture of 'The Church Times ' of March 23 rd is of the secretary of the Central Council, the assistant secretary and their daughter Jean.
With the peal in seven methods at Lutton on March 19th, George R. G. Butler became the first to 'circle' this tower, containing the lightest six in Lincolnshire.
A very good peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major was rung at East Grinstead, Sussex, on March 24th which enabled Mr. Frank Hicks to 'circle the tower.' Afterwards he and Mrs. Hicks hospitably entertained the band, who through 'The Ringing World' desire to return thanks.
The Bucks police have notified the owner of the red Hillman PYW 727 that he had committed an offence by leaving his car outside the parish hall at Slough without lights on February 24th. He wonders how many more ringers attending he joint meeting and social committed the same offence that evening.
'The Morpoth Herald' in a feature article tells of the campaign to restore the bells of the Watch Tower in 1951 as the town's contribution to the Festival of Britain. Much of the information about the early history of these bells was taken from Miss Jennie Armstrong's scrapbook.
The American Guild of English Handbell Ringers held a 'handbell directors' workshop' at the Riverside Church recently. This we would call an instructors' course. Instead of an interval for coffee between the morning sessions there was a break for 'cider and doughnuts.'-a new combination for most English singers.

FOUR BELL TOWERS IN CORNWALL

Dear Sir,-I feel a ward or two about the four-bell lowers of Cornwall may be of interest.

The Church of St. Buryan, four miles from Land's End, has a splendid tall tower visible over a wide area. The bells must be ane of the heaviest fours in the country, the tenor, I believe, being over a ton in weight. Regrettably, since their installation, these bells appear to have been rung very litule and are now derelict. with their wheels falling apart and the fittings generally rather decayed. I feel the Rev. Arthur Roberts, of Carbis Bay, may be able to give a little more information.
St. Clement is situated about $1 \frac{1}{2}$ miles from the centre of Truro. The four fine Taylor bells were restored since the last war, and hang in a steel six-bell frame, complete with modern fittings, and are in perfect ringing order. Regrettably, the present incumbent appears to have little or no ambition to have the bells augmented to six Across the river from St. Clement, but about 5 miles from Truro by road, stands the Church of St. Michael. Penkevil. The village itself is little more than some half dozen cottages, but the church is almost cathedral like in its proportions. The fine tower, capable of housing a ring of ten, contains four bells, and these must be unique among four bell rings, as they hang in an eight bell frame, and are themselves treble, third, fifth and seventh of an octave. There is, however, no recard of there ever having been a ring of eight in this tower. The empty tenor pit would be large enough to accommodate a bell of 20 cwt . or more.

Although the frame and fittings are not in the best of condition, the bells can be rung without too much danger to dife and limb. The tower also forms a nesting place fo several fine owls, and it is rather dismore of these birds sitting on the window ledge, surveying activities with unblinking gaze. Of the two remaining towers, St. Pinnock and Treneglas, I know nothing, except that a non-ringer friend tells me that there are ropes on the bells at St. Pinnock, near Liskeard; so one would assume they are ringable. As for Treneglas, near Launceston. perhaps one of the East Cornwall ringers could offer information as to their condition

Mr . Dove is to be heartily congratulated on his third edition and I feel that if information could be forthcoming regarding the remaining four-bell towers, e.g. weight of tenor, possible practice night, etc., it would make a possible fourth edition even more interesting, and also encourage ringers to visit these towers, and make the local ringers feel they are definitely part of the Exercise
I would also suggest that as much information as possible be gathered regarding the - unringable' towers. I feel that many of these may be the result of merely local opinion. or in some cases the result of an "unringable parson.' It may well be that in many of these towers the bells could be rung after a little amateur bellhanging and tightening of frame bolts. etc
We have many ringing visitors 'from England' during the summer season, and if anyone wishing to ring at St . Clement and/or St. Michael's. Penkevil, would care to contact me in advance $I$ will be pleased to make the necessary arrangements. -Yours faithfully. 3. Benson Road, R. A. SOUTHWOOD

ANOTHER TOWER CAPTAIN REPORTS

OUR band has been in existence for nearly three years now. We can look back on quite a lot accomplished and look forward to much that it is in our power to achieve. All our members except two are still at school, and last Sunday we rang two quarter peals, one for the morning service and one after evening service.
But let us start at the beginning. This is a village of 2,500 people and six very difficult bells. The tenor is about $14 / 15 \mathrm{cwt}$. but rings like a ton or more. Three years ago the tower had no ringers at all, or rather there were ringers in the village but none of them had any interest in ringing. The bells were rung at Easter and Whitsun, but very little more. Attempts to assemble a band for Sunday service ringing from the old ringers in the village failed completely, so a fresh line of approach was taken by training the young. We captured our first potential trainee by inviting him to the tower to watch the bells being rung for a wedding (it was a specially invited band that day), and then taking him up to the belfry to watch the bells at close quarters (a perfectly safe procedure in our tower, which is huge), to be suitably impressed by the deafening noise. He brought his friends along and we had another and another, and very soon the ringing practice on Thursday became the most popular amusement for the youth of the village. It was a bit trying for the captain, who at one time had as many as 18 on his hands at different stages in the art of handling a bell.

It wasn't long before we started regular Sunday morning ringing, and a few months later Sunday evening as well. It was an honour to be allowed to ring on Sunday, and we almost always were able to ring the six bells. Some of the boys, aged at the time 13 or 14 , began to be quite good, and the first start of method ringing was made by teaching them plain hunting on five. The village must have suffered but they bore it in a good cause-in fact we got a few compliments.

It should be remembered that as a struggling band we had two great handicaps. One was the bells ... known to be difficult, and certainly not the best bells to train 11-year-old girls and boys on. The other was the fact that we had no real expert. Our captain, although full of enthusiasm, was not an expert ringer. He was capable of elementary change-ringing but not able to spot where the others were going wrong and to put them right by a quick direction. However, luck favoured us. A visitor dropped in onc evening while actually on his way to another tower.

He was a very proficient ringer, though not particularly experienced in, training the young. He began to come to us with great regularity, and with his help we began to ring Grandsire, plain courses of Doubles, and then touches. He also did another invaluable thing which the captain. through pressure of other duties, was unable to do--he began to take the boys about to other towers, and they progressed by leaps and bounds.

The captain, too, began to have ideas. It had been quite obvious to him from the start that the bells should be rehung on ball-bearings and, more important still, that the movement should be taken out of the frame. As a member of the Parochial Church Council, he put the case for the bells and got permission to obtain an estimate for the work. To cut a long story short, the next step was that the parish embarked on a Christian Stewardship campaign with highly successful results. The captain was given the authority to put the work in hand, but in the meantime we had been having more ideas. Our village ought to have a ring of eight.
Well, the bells have been out of action for some time now; and by Easter or shortly after will be ringing again after rehanging, with two more trebles added. As for the band, we have weeded out those who were not really interested; we have about 12, but all dead keen. We have rung four quarter peals but. best of all. the bells have rung for Sunday service every Sunday for the last three years. and every Sunday evening for two-and-a-half years. We have a long way to go, but at least we can say that bell ringing is not a dying art.
Since writing this article our band has rung its first quarter peal of Bob Minor.
J. P.

SALISBURY DIOCESAN GUILD

There was a good attendance at the quarterly meeting of the Marlborough Branch held at Pewsey on March 17th. In cantrast to the controversy which has raged in recent weeks over the peal rung by the Bristol band at this tower, all was peace and good fellowship, and a pleasant afternoon and evening was spent on this smooth and recently overhauled ring of six.
The Rector (Archdeacon Plaxton), who is a vice-president of the Guild, took part in a short touch before conducting the Guild service. The curate (the Rev. O. J. Newnham) acted as organist.
The business meeting followed an enjoyable tea. and, subject to permission, the next three monthly meetings will be at Collingbourne Kingston. Ogbourne and Chisledon, in that order. The Weston-super-Mare area was most favoured for the annual outing. Mr. G. Newman, who presided thanked the Rector for the use of the bells, the organist and Mr . Price for the tea arrangements.

Ringing was then resumed. A noteworthy feature was the high proportion of young people present. a fact which augurs well for the future of the Exercise.

100 PEALS OF MAXIMUS

MR. GEORGE E. SYMONDS

That a man should retain his physical and mental powers and ring Cambridge Surprise Maximus at the age of 86 is extraordinary, yet my old friend and colleague George Symonds did this on March 31st, when he rang the 5th at St. Mary-le-Tower, Ipswich. to a peal with all his old precision and ability.
It was his 100 th of Maximus, and in ringing it he accomplished a long cherished ambition, helped by C. W. Pipe, who has organised several recent attempts. (Incidentally, the writer has rung with him in 76 of these peals.) A list is given helow in which it will be noted there are 15 different methods and he has conducted one or more peals in each of them. Although he lives a long way from St. Mary-le-Tower, he is most regular at services and practice ringing, and it has to be very bad weather to keep him away.

JOINT MEETING AT DRIGHLINGTON

Upwards of 40 people attended the joint meeting of the Leeds and District Society and the Archdeaconry of Halifax Guild in the fine tower at Drighlington on March 31st. The bells were kept going in a variety of methods and after tea both Societies held their despective business meetings in the tower.

Mr. Irvin Slack, on behalf of both Societies. thanked the Vicar and churchwardens for permission to hold the meeting. Mr. Paul Birkett seconded and Mr. Maturice Brown replied on behalf of the local company, Mr. W. E. Dransfield. of Almondbury, donated $£ 1$ to the Leeds and District Society in appreciation of the many happy hours he had spent at their meeting Next meeting (annual) of the Leeds and District Sooiety. St. Chad's, Headingley. April 28ih. All members are requested to be present.

SUGGESTIONS FOR HOLY WEEK  By HEADSTOCK

This month of April will include Holy Week, during which time many of our towers wilı remain silent until Easter Day. Now - yours truly considers this provides an opportunity for 'bell maintenance operatives ' to do those little jobs that otherwise get put aside.

For instance, with regard to bell boltsit is easy enough to put a spanner to them when it takes one's fancy. but how effective now is the leather-type washer on the inside of the bell!

1 have a friend whose bells were restored since the war, and since that time he has been a zealous steepleman. especially with the spanner. The instructions he received were to the effect that a spanner to all nuts periodically was the thing. so he carried this through to the detter.

Recently. however, he found nuts on some bell bolts had run to the end of the thread and thus (if only in theory) were not "pulling their weight. To add to the problem these bolts were so badly headed that he was unable to loosen them either.

To overcome this snag, it was suggesied that he took out the clappers of bells so affected. then very gradually loosen the other bolts to enable the weight of the bell to rest on the offending bolts. This little trick enabled the bolts to be taken out. The threads were extended with dies. the leather washers replaced with new ones and other bolts treated in a similar manner.

'R.W.' April 12th, 1912.-
A good many attempts have been made from time to time in recent years for a pead of Major on the fine peal of bells at Tenterden, but it has been reserved to men from Jocal towers to be the first to score-a peal of Bob Major being rung on Monday. The previous peal of Major was of Oxford Treble Bob. rung by the Leeds ringers in 1771. witin two men on the tenor. and in which the famou; James Barham took part. Monday's performance-after a lapse of over 140 yearsis the first time on record that the tenor has been rung through a peal by one man.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

BYGONE PERSONALITIES

Dear Sir,-The recent leading articles about the Rev. E. Bankes James make very interesting reading to those of us who belong to more recent generations of ringers. and they serve to emphasise the lack of published biographical matter on so many of the brilliant and colourful ringers of the early part of this century.
Few of us are fortunate enough to possess complete collections of 'The Bell News' and The Ringing World,' but fewer still as years pass have personal recollections of such people as the Pye brothers, Washbrook, Lindoff, Robinson (Rev.), Heywood. Knights. George. The ringing Press can furnish details of the peals they rang and that alone can stir the imagination, but it does not give us much of a picture of the men themselves. We read occasional snippets of some of them. indeed we have even had a few attempts to do more in articles on "Ringers I have known,' but there seems to have been no great effort to collate information into more complete biographies. The nearest thing I can remember was the excellent series of articles in the golden jubilee issue of 'The Ringing World. Could we not have more of this kind of thing than has appeared in the past? Another point raised by the articles is this whole subject of the development of ringing in the last 60 years and the 'discovery' of new methods. The origin of Bristol is fairly well known, but that of Yorkshire, which has, after all. come to be included in the - Standard Method Class. was new, at least to me. Whilst we have in the Snowdon series histories of the old standard methods, there is no published history of the standard methods that are coming more and more to replace them-the Surprise methods. except for an extremely inadequate book which was marred by the author's prejudice and is long outdated. There has been no official publication of a collection of Surprise Major. Royal and Maximus methods, and with the Corrigan Collections so long out of print. surely it is time this was rectified.-Yours sincerely,

PATRICK I. CHAPMAN.

Daventry. Northants.

Note.-The Central Council's Biographies Committee has a substantial record of old ringers. Perhaps extracts from these volumes might be prepared for publication.-Ed.

TRANSPORTATION OF BELLS

Dear Sir,-I am doing some research into the transportation of church bells during the late Middle Ages and the Early Modern periods. I would be very grateful if any of your readers could inform me of original records-lists of accounts, literary descriptions or drawings. engravings and prints-of the movement of bells by both coastal and inland navigation, and by road.-Yours faithfully,

WORMSHILL-NOT A FOUR BELL TOWER

Dear Sir,-May I offer a correction to Mr N J. Davies' article 'Kent's Four Bell Towers (page 205).
Wormshill (St. Giles') must be deleted from the list.
The four bells together with the frame were removed from the tower some time ago. One of the bells was rehung 'dead,' the remaining three being, I believe, disposed of for scrap during last year.-Yours faithfully.

TACT TOWARDS BEGINNERS

Dear Sir,-May I, sir, express a desire for a jitide more tact, under certain conditions, to be shown to the ardent beginner striving to advance in our art.

On occasions a young hopeful has stood in as a visitor at some other Branch quarterly meeting to gain experience in the handling of a strange bell, amangst other equally strange ringers. The bell itself does nat perform in quite the same way as the accustomed one in the home tower the faces are different; the rope positions are different, and somehow the rope positions are different, and somehow the for perfection; or perhaps the position lost completely.

While it will! be appreciated that this is frustrating and annoying to the advanced perfectionist, I humbly suggest that much harm is done by being suddenly ordered to stand and some cutting remarks directed at the young nopeful, which probably sends him. or her. home, wondering whether the eflorls to achieve something higher is worth while.

At the tea and meeting visitors are warmly welcomed by the chairman, but shortly afterwards isn't it a mockery that, in the consecrated tower. someone lets annoyance overcome tact. and possibly at least dampens the learner's keenness, or at most drives him from the church, determined not to put up with it, and so a would-be servant is lost to the church.
I suggesit that the Exercise would be better served by the few who are liable to an outburst if they bore in mind that we all have to climb the same ladder to get higher, but not all have the same ability or opportunity, and a little more restraint be used with those whose level of attainment is completely unknown. It might take a very long time in the home tower to undo the harm done in this way-probably quite unintentionally and without sufficient thought.-Yours sincerely,

JOHN SAGE

DOVE'S GUIDE'

Dear Sir.-Since I am asked to comment upon his proposal to give away my work (page 203). I would like to mention one little detail which Mr. Kippin has apparently overlooked, and that is that the 'Guide' doesn't happen to be his to give away.
If I were considering giving away anyone else's property, or my own for that matter, I would be inclined to find out beforehand if the recipient would accept it.

As it happens the Central Council was offered the material, but has made it abundantly clear on more than one occasion that it had not the slightest interest in it and, quite literally, it would not have it as a gift. -Yours faithfully.

FOUR-BELL TOWERS IN BRECONSHIRE
Dear Sir.-The following information about four-bell towers in Breconshire might be of some value to your readers:
Cathedine.-Frame too loose for ringing. Crickadarn.-No ropes, should be ringable. Garthbrengy. - No ropes. ringable.
Llandefalle. Part of frame missing chimed. Llanfihangel-Talyllyn.-Reported quite ringable.
Llangasty.-Anti-clockwise, in good condition.
Llanhamlach.-No information.
This information is correct at the date of writing (April 1st).-Yours faithfurly.

ERIN CATERS

Dear Sir,-Referring to a letter from Mr. Dennis A. Frith in your issue of March 16 th, in which he says that he has never seen published a touch of Erin Caters, as far as I remember I cannot say that I have seen one myself. I enclose a selection of touches of Erin Caters.

Funthermore, on request I would be glad to furnish a larger selection, including peals if necessary, also touches and peals of Triples and Cinques in the method.

May I add that the first peals of Erin Triples and Caters were rung in this district and conducted by that wizard of Stedman. William H . Barber. Incidentally, if Mr. Frith is tired of the conventional touches of Stedman Caters and Cinques, I would suggest he tries something on the short course, principle, which provides great interest and variety.Yours faithfully,

JOHN ANDERSON.

PLUMSTEAD AND CLAPHAM COMMON
Dear Sir--Plumstead bells were rehung dead' for chiming only.
For those interested there is a four on Clapham Common; these are 'clocked' and no longer ringable.
This letter may save some fruitless journeys. -Sincerely yours,

ERNEST J. ROWE

MR. PETER

Dear Sir,-I am sure that the thanks of all singers (especially those interested in the smaller numbers of bells, especially rings of four!) are due to Messrs. Davis and Clouston four!) are due to Messrs. Davis and Clouston towers in Kent and Suffolk, published in 'The Ringing World.' Having a certain amount of intormation concerning other four-bell towers, in which I have either rung or have inspected the bells, I append the details herewith, in case anyone should be interested.
First, concerning the Kent four-bell towers; Wormshill tower now has only two bells, as the steel treble and tenor have been sold; this intormation was given to me by the ringers at Frinsted, with whioh parish Wormshill is united. Then re St. James', Grain, this ring of four is certainly in very good condition, and nangs in a good solid six-bell frame-unfortunately the other two bells have never materıalised. I have visited Bicknor Church, but was unable to get up to see the four steel bells; I did chime two of them, and the tone is horrible! They are fitted with cart ropes, without either sally or tail end, just a large knot at the end of the very thick rope! Whether or not they are ringable I could not be sure.

Other counties:

Essex.-Margaretting.-Hung in a magnificent wooden tower. The bells, all preReformation, were rehung, sometime in the 1930's, in ball bearings in a new five bell frame, the old four bell frame remaining in position above the ring, whioh is in excellent going order.
Gloucestershire.-Stanley St. Leonard.-This is a six-bell tower, mentioned as such on page 69 of the new edition of the 'Guide.'
Hampshire. - Breamore. - Hung in the wooden turret atop a fine Saxon central tower, they are in an excellent condition, being suspended in a Taylor metal frame. Ringing takes place from the chancel floor, with long rope draught, although rope guides are provided.
Kingsworthy. - In fair going order, hung on plain bearings in wooden frame. Interesting small ringers' gallery here. Tenor 10 cwt . approximately.
Newton.-Also in fair going order; at least one peal recently rung here. Tenor 7 cwt . approximately.
Weyhill.-Hung dead in small western turret. Tenor 5 cwt. approximately.

Leicestershire.-Burrough on the Hill.-An excellent ring of four, rehung by Taylors in ball bearings and steel frame bells also possibly recast at same time. Tenor approximately 7 cwit. Local band.
Lincolnshire.-Great Coates.-In very poor condition; old wooden frame now in bad condition, also some fittings broken. Tenor locally reputed 19 cwt. (!) actually around 9 cert, Healing.-To be hung dead with Ellacombe hammers.
Ingoldmells, Leasingham, Mumby, at least, are all derelict.

Lincoln St. Mary-le-Wigford:-Saxon tower: old ring. Nos. 2-5 of a six, hung in ball bearines in Taylor metal frame. Good order. Stallingborough.- Not included in list. An old ring, Nos. 2-5 of a six, hung in steel frame by Taylor. In excellent ringing order, local band. Tenor about 6 cwt ., and space for another bell Tealby.-In good ringing order, hung in sixbell frame. Tenor 12 cwt. approximately. Welby.-Also in excellent condition, very small tower indeed. Tenor 6 cwt . approximately.

Norfolk.-Wiggenhall St. German. - Hung dead for chiming only.
Rutland.-Braunston.-In excellent ringing order, hung in six bell frame. Tenor about 10 cwt .

BOND'S FOUR BELL COMMENTS

Shropshire. - Baschurch. - In fair going order, also in six-bell frame, old plain bearings. Tenor locally reputed 20 cwt. (?) and go' would certainly confirm this!
Surrey. - Outwood.-In excellent ringing order, although very long unguided rope draught. Tenor about 7 cwt.

Sussex.-Ashburnham.-Derelict.

Beddingham.-Also virtually derelict; old and decrepit wooden frame and bearings. Bells were rung (approximately!) to rounds some years ago.
Bury-Only three bells hung-and only chimed. One bell on floor.
Flimwell.-These bells were ringable pre-war, but tower now said to be unsafe on account of bombs which fell nearby. Wooden frame, plain bearings. tenor approximately 7 cwt .

Graftham.-Wooden frame, plain bearings, probably ringing with difficulty. Not inspected owing to difficulty of access to bell chamber.
Lodsworth. - Rung from west porch. Wooden frame, approximately ringable. Tenor Lewes, St. Thomas.-Virtually derelict.

Oving.-As above; frame forms part of supporting beams of spire
Slindon.-In quite good going order. Small tower, tenor 7 cwt.

Trotton.-In good going order, hung in steel $H$ frame, now in need of repainting. Space for two itrebles. Tenor 6 cwt, approximately.
Wartling.-Only three bells hung, and chimed only. One bell on church floor.
Yapton.-In good going order, despite leaning tower. All four recast by Gillett and Johnston after fire in tower in 1909 and rehung in six-bell H frame.
Yorkshire.-Flamborough.-In good ringing order, and rung regularly by local band. Hung by Taylor; tower only built approximately 1910. Very good ringers' gallery. I trust that these details may be found useful and interesting, and that others may be able to furnish details of other four-bell towers. Also I would like to add my congratulations to Mr. Dove, on his latest success, to those of Mr. Davies; such a work as this is certainly a wonderful production.-Yours sincerely, Speldhurst.

REMINISCENCES OF E.V.R.

(2) GEORGE BYOLIN.

St. Alkmund's, Shrewsbury
It is now 50 years sinco I first rang with George Byolin. He was caretaker of the Shirehall, and head ringer at St. Alkmund's, where he had easily the most 'scientific' band in the town.

St. Mary's were call-changers, as they are today. The captain then was Joseph Wynn, who lived in Butcher Row and worked at Cock's tannery, which has ibeen closed some years and the chimney stack demolished.

St. Chad's only rang a little Grandsire with several covers. John Wall. a caterer, of Claremont Street, was captain, and a man named Ernest Jones used to instruct: he later went to Liverpool where he joined the St. Nicholas' company.

George Byolin had an excellent band at St. Alkmund's, Stedman Triples being their favourite method, which they rang at a smart pace on the light eight there.

Byolin did a little instruction work outside the town in former years, having taught bands at Wem and Montford. He was an expert conductor of Grandsire Triples and called a number of peals in the town and neighbourhood. Though he enjoyed nothing better than calling touches of Stedman, making his calls with aocuracy and precision, he never called the full extent.

They had several attempts at a peal without success. C. R. Lilley came to Shrewsbury in 1912 or 1913 and attached himself to the St. Alkmund's band, and on February 17th, 1913. ho called Heywood's variation with the local band. It was the first peal of Stedman Triples in the town and was half-muffled for Captain Scott and party, who perished in the Antarctic.
Not long afterwards the Vicar (Rev. Mi:Roach) closed the tower for ringing; there were several tales going about at the time as to why this was, but the mostly dikely is that it was due to the severe oscillation of the spire. though I don't think it rocked any more then than it ever did.
The band then moved over to St. Chad's, where they found the bells in rather poor shape, and it was due to the great enthusiasmi and drive of Lilley that the bells were all recast and rehung by Taylor's and rededicated in the following year.

A year or so dater Mr. Roach left St. Alkmund's and his place was taken by the Rev. F. Tennison, who had at one time been clerical secretary to the Society for the Archdeaconry of Stafford. He arrived at an opportune time, for the greatly esteemed Rev. H B. Beckwith, who had been secretary of the Salop Guild for some years, had left the county for Harrogate. Lilley persuaded Mr. Tennison to take on the work, and also got permission to hold fortnightly practices at St. Alkmund's.

So in addition to the Friday practice at St. Chad's, there were practices at St. Alkmund's and St. Julian's, on alternate Tuesdays. Incidentally, I rang my first course of Kent Major at St. Alkmund's, and my first course of Cambridge Minor at St. Julian's (now there is no ringing at either).

NO SHIRTS AT ST. CHAD'S

I ann aware that some members of the Exercise do not care to read about the unruly goings on which were the rule in some belfries 100 years ago, but I think I may be excused for repeating this one told me by Mr. Byolin, as I think it about takes the biscuit.
When Mr. Byolin was a boy, he asked his father, who was himself a ringer at St. Alkmund's, to take him up to St. Chad's to watch the ringing, as they were ringing for the Mayor
Now in those days there was a "stoney" band (call-changes friends please excuse the term) at St. Chad's, who used to 'knock 'em round 'for the few odd coppers they got out of it. On this day they had a lad carrying beer up to the tower in the church water jugs. and he had slopped it on the stairs. They found the ringers arguing about politics and one challenged another to a fight. "All right,' said the one challenged. 'I'Jl fight you, but no ripping shirts, mind. The other agreed, and pulling off his coat it was seen he hadn't a shirt to his back!

So,' said Byolin, 'you can see what a set they were.
It would be 1923 or 1924 when George Byolin died, and St. Chad's ringers rang a half-muffled peal of Double Norwich on the front eight for him, conducted by $C$. $R$. Lilley. Two of the young band who rang in that peal are now well known members of the Exercise (John W. Griffiths, of Chester, and W. Bertram Kynaston, of Swindon).

The 12 Bell Towers of Birmingham

By EDGAR C. SHEPHERD

TYHE tower and spire of Aston Parish Church date from the 15 th century, and were practically unaltered when the great restoration of the church took place in 1880. In proportion and dignity they excel, even in a district noted for beautiful towers, and while they seem to have been built under the influence of the group of craftsinen associated with the work at King's Norton, Coleshill and Yardley, all spires of great distinction, Aston presents features that surpass them all. The cower stands 110 feet high and the spire adds another 90 feet. To the north of the church the former quiet water meadows of Witton and Hamstead have been swallowed up in the march of bricks and concrete, and the view from the tower embraces vast industrial wilderness: to the south the tower looks across to two notable battle-grounds, Aston Hall where, three hundred years ago, there was some considerable dispute between Roundheads and Cavaliers, and Villa Park, where Aston Villa have, for many years, engaged in struggles which, if less bloodthirsty, have been at least as relentless.

The inventory of 1552 showed that there were five bells in the tower, and it was not until 1775 that they were made into eight. At about this time the notable family of Shorts was farming at Witton. They seem to have been ringers and rang on the old five, brother, father and son, but it was for the grandson. Joshua, to bring fame to Aston. He it was who conducted the great peal of 15.360 Bob Major on Aston bells in October, 1793. himself being under thirty years of age and the rest of the band much younger. The peal was arranged so that it could be called round at any number up to 20.000, and at 15,000 inquiry was made of the band whether or not to make it the full peal. William Hassall, singing the 7 th, replied, 'No, Josh! bring them round: This peal superseded one of 14.224 in the same method, conducted by Charles Shuter, an attempt for 15,000 that had to be brought round owing to the indisposition of one of the band.
Joshua Short was a notable character. Henry Johnson described him to John Day as a stout-built muscular man with a very small voice. It was his custom to gather round him in his office parties of young ringers for handbell practice, and it was the custom to lap the bells, that is, to ring changes by passing the bells from hand to hand, a system very popular at that time. Despite a 1a:her inordinate liking for genial company and conviviality, and that at the expense of his business. he was a very fine ringer and was deservedly popular. Some seven years ago St. Martin's Guild acquired from a descendint of the family a fine oil painting of Joshua Short, and that valuable relic hangs ill the ringing chamber at Aston.

The record length of Bob Major was rung for the Holt Society of Aston. and before this society faded into obscurity the bells at the church were made into ten. Short and Hassall were instrumental in getting the 4 th and the tenor recast, and both men subscribed liberally towards the cost of two trebles. Day had no great opinion of the tenor at Aston, and in his Memoirs bluntly expresses regret that at that time there was no Chattell to send the bell back to the foundry.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, ASTON.
The Holt Society, as is mentioned above, came to an end, but only for the time being. Towards the end of the 19th century William Kent, another indefatigable teacher of beginners, made an effort to revive the Society. At the third attempt he was successful. building up from a band of young ringers who had rung no peals a very able company, thoroughly at home on tower bells or handbells. From 1882 to 1889 the Holt Society rang forty-one peals, and this despite the fact that at times the tower was closed for lengthy periods. As the Society was resuscitated in 1879, the president was W. Kent, the secretary T. J. Hemming, and the treasurer W. Ansell. The Society was by no means exclusive. It included men of St .

Martin's Youths and the Birmingham Amalgamated Society, and in its peal records ws find the names of Carter, Witchell, Russam, Bastable and Henry Johnson junior. The most notable of its performances was undoubtedly the handbell peal of Stedman Cinques rung by T. Russam, W. Kent, T. Miller. H. Bastable, B. Witchell and H. Johnson jun. It was the first handbell peal of Stedman Cinques to be rung outside London, and it had a further distinction. The composition, by Henry Johnson senior, turned the bells from Tittums to Handstroke Home halfway through the peal, and it was the first peal of Stedman Cinques to be rung on this plan.
The revival of the old Holt Society was brought about by William Kent's desire to have a society based on the tower at Aston. In the year 1889, however, there was an overhauling of ringing affairs in Birmingham and its surround, and at a meeting of St. Martin's Youths two important decisions were arrived at. The first was an agreement to amalgamate the Holt Society with the St. Martin's company; the second was to abandon the name 'St. Martin's Youths and adopt the title the Society now holds. The second of these changes was more important than the first and more significant than would at first sight appear. It meant (and this was expressed at the meeting) that the Society felt the desire to extend its influence, its activities, and its practical help to all towers in the diocese; and so from this date much of the exclusiveness ol St. Martin's tower vanished. The Holt Society. one feels, was an important factor in bringing about this desirable change.

Most of the old tombstones in Aston churchyard have been removed or laid low. One stone stands erect. It is that of Henry Johnson, set up to his memory by the ringers of England. Johnson began his ringing career at Aston, and his stone serves to remind us of the important part Aston has played in the ringing history of the Midlands and of the unifying influence of Johnson in uniting this fine old church so closely with the fortunes of St. Martin's Guild.

OBITUARY

MR. G. H. WILLIAMS
After an illness of nearly 12 months, Mr. G. H. Williams, of 31, Ringswell Avenue, Heavitree, Exeter, died on March 24th, in his 89th year.
A great lover of bells, although very deaf in later years, he continued to ring at Heaviiree Parish Church up to the end of 1960, and after that mairtained his interest in the Exercise through *The Ringing World.'

He learned in the old Perry Barr Church, Birmingham, at the age of 15, and for more than 70 years he was an aotive ringer. Among the belfries in which he spent many happy hours were Coleshill (Warwicks), Handsworth. Edgbaston and St. Martin's, Birmingham, and Newbury (Berks), for two years. In recent years he had made his home with his son-inlaw and daughter (Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Clarke) at Heavitree.

A half-muffled quarter peal was rung at Heavitree on March 29th and at Coleshill on April 1st.

PROFESSOR DODGE AND THE NEW MINOR BOOK

Abstract

ANOTHER INTERVIEW Last week as I was passing the Professor's domicile I noticed a candle flickering in his cell. This reminded me that it was a long time since I had seen him. so taking the bull by the horns I lifted it up and let it bang down on the door. (One has to be careful not to trap one's fingers in this peculiar knocker.)

Professor Dodge came to the door and let me in grumbling to himself meanwhile about - being disturbed by half-wits who had nothing better to do.

What have you been doing this long time past?' I asked turning a deaf ear to his imprecations. 'Old readers of "The Ringing World" will have forgotten all about you and new ones be unaware of your existence.'

- I have been abroad,' he replied, 'but I have had your precious "Ringing World " forwarded to me. It. amuses me to see the frivolous material that interests some people ("The Smiths" for example), and to discover from the letters what simple things upset others.
'Have you been busy? With ringing matters, I mean.'
' Not particularly. I wrote for and received the new Minor book and have made a few notes upon it.'

And what is your opinion on this book?
Nice clear print!' he said. 'It fulfils a long-felt want and it is useful to have the names of the Alriance and Special Alliance methods. I think. whilst they were at it, they, might have added the two or three "New" Alliance methods and the two "New" Littie methods, which were rung in the Spliced Minor record on handbells. I am not so sure that in their desire to make the' "Spliced" section as comprehensive as possible they have not had to sacrifice too much to clarity. The earlier editions are much easier to follow and one almost needs a degree in mathematics in order to understand this one!'

Of course,' he went on, 'there is room for a separate book on the subject of Minor Splicing, although whether it would pay for itself is a moot point. There has not been one since Fidler's, which must be at least 30 years old now. Great advances have been made since then and many interesting and useful 720 's, some of which would be required by intending record breakers or should be a vailable to students of the subject, are not in print except in back editions of the "R.W.".

Do you think that the collection of callings (other than spliced) is adequate?'

- Oh yes. I was pleased to notice that a sufficient supply of $720^{\circ}$ s for Cambridge Surprise has been given with the tenors the "right way " without having to eke out with Bankes James horrible system. One thing I would like to have seen was the origin of each 720 placed at the head of it where this was known. This. I think. would have interested many ringers. Also the place-notation of some of the (now) discarded methods such as Woodbine. Duke of York. New London, etc., as such methods are still rung and from an historical point of view are worth preserving.
' What you want." I said, ' is an encyclopadia on six-bell methods; where do you think the space is coming from?'
'The Alliance methods could be condensed by place notation, or in some other way, he pointed out. After all, they are used by only a small section of six-bell ringers and to most they are only of academic interest.'

Perhaps,' I said sarcastically, 'you should have been on the Methods Committee.
' Worse things could have happened!' he said, with his usual modesty.

- Has anything else engaged your attention recently?' I asked, thinking it was about time the subjeot was changed.
'Yes.' he replied. 'I came across a notebook recently which I found of considerable interest. I have reason to believe it belonged to a person called Joseph E. Sykes.

The four-month-old cocker spaniel of Mr. E W. Izard, of 980, Arundel Drive, Victoria. British Columbia, ringing the door bell of his residence. It is claimed that the dog is the youngest bellringer. He takes quite an interest in the Cathedral bells, and goes to the belfry on practice nights and also on Sundays. He also listens to the recording of the Cathedral bells. The bell he is ringing was formerly on a Canadian frigate.
"And who. I might ask, was Joseph E. Sykes?

The Professor picked up a typewritten letter
This." he said. "is from a mutuad friend of ours who knew him: I will read one or two extracts. Listen
" Joseph E. Sykes was a curious, but somewhat colourful character. A tall man, with a ginger beard; his forte in ringing seemed to be turning tenors in to peal of Treble Bob Major of which the rang. and conducted, a good number. He was attached to Almondbury tower. Later he went to live at Marsden."

There were streaks of unorthodoxy. stubbornness, and a queer form of humour in his make-up. For instance, while most ringers are content to ring peals with as few changes as possible over 5.000 , he liked to call long ones (not record lengths) and several of this peals of T.B. Major are of 5,400 upwards, even up to 7,000 odd. He would start to call a peal of this sort without letting the rest of the band know what they were i. 1.
"As you are aware, a member of the College Youths cannot be a member of the Royal Cumberlands, and vice versa. Yet, alongside each other in Marsden tower there were, at one time, two certificates of membership, each bearing the name of Joseph E.

Sykes: one a College Youth certificate, the other a Cumberland!!

Joseph Sykes was a gas engineer of some kind. He must have been a knowledgeable man in his profession for the travelled extensively, not only in this country but to various parts of the world, erecting or fixing gas plants. He was a frequent contributor to the columns of 'The Ringing World,' particularly when he was abroad. He used to search around for bells and then write of his experiences. He used to pseudonym Uncle Joe.' His articles were bright and witty, and were good to read and he became very friendly with Jack Goldsmith. the editor of "The Ringing World.',

- In Ernest Morris' book 'The History and Art of Change Ringing' there is a photograph of a bell in Manchuria with a footnote to the effect that Uncle Joe Sykes can be seen near the bell. This is the same J. E. Sykes but you will learn dittle of his appearance from the photograph as it is difficult to make out which is Joe and which is foliage. That same photograph appeared in "The Ringing World' along with an article on his travels at the time Joe was in that country."

There was a tragic end to his life, he was found dead inside a gas retort (I believe it was) in Denmark. His name appears in the obituary list in the Yorkshire Association report of 1928-29.
I was fascinated with this information and told Mr. Dodge so.

But you sounded.' I said, 'as though there was some doubt as to whether the notebook was his.

Yes, the covers have been removed at sometime and the name of the owner, if there was one, has disappeared. In its place somehas written, " 19 Century. Collection of Six Bell Methods by a Yorkshire Ringer." The hook contains, in addition to methods, many 720 's and touches. some of which are original some variations of others and still others where the source is quoted. Many of these touches and 720's are initialled J. E.S. or signed Jos E. Sykes. Some with the Latin tag 'fecit.' which means, as you are no doubt aware. " I did it" or "all my own work" or words to thit effect.
I have been unable to obtain a specimen of J. E. Sykes ${ }^{-1}$ handwriting in order to compare it with that of the notebook. Perhaps someone will come forward with a sample. I haven't time now to go into detail about the contents of the book. but I will, if you are interested. go into it at a later date.
I assured the Professor that I should be delighted to hear his instructive comments on the book and feel sure that many others will regard this. as 1 do. as a treat in store. H.C.

THE LADIES' GUILD  Central District

The rush of " beat the tax weddings at Hendon Parish Church on March 31st delayed ringing until the evening on the occasion of the annual meeting of the Central District. Tea in the Church House was followed by the business meeting, at which the District vice-president, Mrs. Lock, reported with regret the illness of Mrs. Oatway and mentioned she was in hospital. The secretary was asked to convey to Mrs. Oatway the meeting's best wishes for a speedy recovery.
As a prelude to the establishment of a new District in Devon and Cornwall. the meeting agreed to the election of 20 new new members of the Guild in that District and wished the venture every success.
The officers for the ensuing year were elected-being in the main the same as last year-and nominations made for Guild officers. The next District annual, will be held at Stamford Hill and the invitation of the Kent District to a joint meeting at Bromley on June 30 th was accepted. Thanks were extended to the Rev. C. E. Welch and Miss Foreman for arranging the meeting. Ringing started at 6 p.m. There was not the quantity of ringers present that was hoped for. but the quality was all that could be desired. and scme good ringing was enjoyed until 8.15 p.rm

KING'S NORTON MAJOR

(' New Duffield ')

THE COMPOSITION AND PROOF
By B. D. PRICE and T. G. HAWKINS

1. As with Stedman, King's Norton can be pricked in shortened form by writing athe first and last rows of each eight only. When written in this way, all the bells appear to be plain hunting unless a call is made-a good check on accuracy.
2. The dodging pairs as they appear in the first row-and therefore in the last rowof each eight can be called, as in Stedman, the characteristic of the eight. For convenience of comparing. it is suggested that the row beginning with the lower number, whether it is the first row or the last row, should give the characterjstic.
3. For each characteristic, the remaining four bells can appear in 24 different ways: but these 24 ways occur only in three mutually exclusive sets of eight, such that if one 'Four' of a set appears, all the fours of the set appear with it. The three sets are as follows, taking the 3456 of rounds as a basis. Each set may appear inverted, giving six sets for every characteristic.

| :--- | :--- | :--- |
| 3546 | 4356 | 5436 |
| 5364 | 3465 | 4563 |
| 5634 | 3645 | 4653 |
| 6543 | 6354 | 6435 |
| 6453 | 6534 | 6345 |
| 4635 | 5643 | 3654 |
| 4365 | 5463 | 3564 |

An eight may start, with any four, but only the others fours of its set will follow, either in the order shown, or in inverse order, and the dodging bells will be associated with the same rows of each set. Consequently an eight containing a four from one set cannot be false with an eight containing a four from another set.
4. The problem is how to tell on sight whether any two fours come from the same set or not. The answer is that the different sets may be distinguished by the coursing orders-i.e. of the centre four behls.

The characteristic is taken as the lower numerical set of dodging bells-whether this is the first row or last row of an eight is immaterial. The coursing order of the centre four bells is noted systematically, by running the eye over positions $3,5,6,4$, in cyclic order, picking up the bell lowest in numerical order, and noting them in order starting with the lowest. Here are two examples:

A 12345678 Characteristic Coursing Order  214365871278  3564

Here, 12345678 and 21436587 are the first and last rows of an eight. 1278 is chasen for the characteristic, because it is lower numerically than 2187, and not because it appears first. Then in the row with 12-78, the centre four bells have coursing 'order $3,5,6,4$, 3... and this is written down starting with the lowest number.

1825 / 3476
Here the last row is numerically lower, and the coursing order is read in 6734, and written down starting with 3 .
5. The proof of a composition now reduces to two simple orerations. (1) Mark all eights having the same characteristic, whether this is the first row or the last. (2) In each of the similar characteristic rows, read the coursing order of the centre four bells. and write it down beginning with the lowest number.
Any repetition of the C.O. reveals falseness.
6. If the tenors are kept togother, the work of (1) is very much reduced, for it is then ondy necessary to look at the corresponding eights of each course to detect like characteristics but in addition the thirds eights must be cross-checked with the seventh eights, for in these the tenors occupy the same relative positions.
7. The mathematically-minded will see that this proof gives in effect to each eight a unique label, consisting of two sets of four digits. The first four digits are the characteristic, and the second four are the coursing order of the middle bells. The first four can appear in $8 \mathrm{P}_{4}=1,680$ ways, but as each is paired with its inverse, the number of different eights is 840 . For every characteristic, the remaining four bells can appear in 24 ways, but as these indicate coursing order, any one way plus its three cyclic arrangements represents only one coursing order, so the 24 ways comprise only six different coursing orders. $840 \times 16$ gives 5,040 different 'labels, each of which represents an eight, giving the extent 40,320 .

Oxford has its own city church-St. Martin and All Saints' - where the Mayor, aldermen and burgesses atten daughter of burgesses attend regularly. The Penelope Elizabeth Harrison, was married this church on March 31st. It was felt that a wedding of this significance justified a peal in a tower where peals are infrequent, and Mr . Alan R. Pink successfully called one of Yorkshire Surprise Major.
Another Assize service where special ringing takes place is that held in Durham Cathedral.
The address of Mr. S. Foskett is still 38, Miller Road, Bedford, and not 28 as published in the last issue.
St. Peter's, Staines, band ask for compositions of quarter peals of Spliced Grandsire and Oxford Bob Triples and Erin Triples.
Mr. Harvey E. Burrill, who now resides at Bourne, Lincs, has 'returned to the fold' and rung another peal after an absence of over 22 years. He is a great help to the local band who are instructing several learners
When a quarter peal of Plain Bab Major was rung at Ewell, Surrey, as a farewell tribute to Mr. J. H. A. Miller, the choirmaster, every member except the treble ringer, who was ringing her first quarter, had a connection with the choir.
The latest venture of the Ladies' Guild is to try to form a Branch for Devon and Cornwall. The inaugural meeting on May 5th will be held at Buckfast Abbey, which in jtself is a big attraction. That great organiser of Devonshire ringing, Mr. A. L. Bennett, is lending a helping hand.

Kingsclere's band have progressed from Grandsire Doubles to Bob Major in a little under three months. Conducted by Mr. Geoffrey K. Dodd, this band rang a quarter of Plain Bob Major at Sydmonton, Hants, on bells that were previously unringable. A quarter of this type advances Sunday service ringing far more than one of Spliced Surprise with a band drawn from a number of different towers.

GOSSIP

 Bob Malor at st. Nicholas 25 th was a crowning achievement for the young band. With the exception of Mr. J. L. Garner-Hayward, the conductor, they had not seen the inside of a bell chamber until the bells were rehung three years ago. Since formation this band has maintained a very good Sunday service record of morning and evening ringing. The quarter is believed to be the first of Bob Major ever rung by a local Sunday band at this church.Overheard in Wiltshire recently: "Bow bells have been rung on "self-alighting barbarians (self-aligning ball bearings)'!

The peal at Hutton, Essex (page 211), was conducted by William T. Hill and not Raymond G. Jones.

The peal of Double Norwich Court Bob Major at East Grinstead on March 24th was rung for the Sussex County Association.

Next week's 'Ringing World' will be published on Thursday. In consequence deadline for Notices-first post Monday.

The congratulations of the Ealing ringers and the 'second Sunday morning' St. Clement Danes' band are offered to Mr. Fred Ranson, one of the regulars, and to Mrs. Ranson, on their golden wedding anniversary on April 7th.

An enthusiastic new band is operating at Filton, Glos. After 14 months of ringing the first quarter peal has been rung by some of the members for the first anniversary of the dedication of the extension to St. Peter's Church
Four potential parsons and two potential teachers rang a quarter peal at Compton Chamberlayne. Wilts, on March 25th. Although these bells are listed as unringable they go very well. There are 45 students at Salisbury Theological College and at least 14 of them are either ringing or learning to ring. Weekly practices are held on Wednesday afternoons, generally at Britford, but recently South Newton and Coombe Bissett have been visited. Handling is taught at St. Paul's, Salisbury.

RINGING ON A VICTORY

By the Rev. J. G. M. Scott

IN the year 1799, the churchwardens of our parish, casting up their account, made the entry-
Item, Pd the Ringers on Nelson's victory 5s. 0d.

The Battle of the Nile took place a long, long way from our village in the valley and our church on the hill; by the time the slow communications of those days had brought the news to the Dolphin Inn at the cross-roads, and the wardens had the ringers spread the news to the scattered farms and cottages of the parish, the smoke and wreckage of the battle were long cleared away, and the casualties either buried or recovering. Anyway, Bonaparte's army was in another continent, and marching away from our islands towards India. What made the wardens spend their hard-won shillings and the ringers put our three old bells going so gaily?

The measure of a victory lies in three things: the power of the enemy, the danger from which the victors are freed and the stature of the victorious leader. Our ringers rang for the Nile, and the wardens paid up gladly, because Napoleon had swallowed all Europe, and even the most ignorant Englishman knew that we were to be his next victims, though his devious plan might lead him to strike first eastwards; because conquest by him meant the loss of freedom, of our heritage and of our self-respect, and because in Nelson they saw a man who though a giant in spirit was small in body, and a man they could call one of themselves.
Our Easter ringing is 'ringing on a victory, and although it was won as many miles away as the Nile and far further off in time it is, judged by the same standards, the greatest victory of all. The enemy is the greatest-the Last Enemy, with whom even the Napoleons and the Nelsons of the world must reckon, no less than the peasant and the coolie . . .

> Sceptre and Crown Must tumble down And in the dust be equal made With the poor crooked scythe and spade.

Before the Easter victory was won. men feared Death with good reason: his power was absolute, and it extended over every man born of woman. While he held sway the end for everyone was extinction; Heaven and eternal life were for God and the angels; for man there was nothing beyond the grave, no hope of glory. But now the last enemy is crushed and his power destroyed; he is still there, but those who belong to his conqueror's side have no fear of him, and can look him in the face with confidence. And his conqueror is the greatest of all, and yet one of us -the Son of Man, who in his victory has raised humanity again to the place from which it fell so far.
There are some who are still afraid of the last enemy; there are others-more, perhaps-who take his defeat for granted, not realising how grim he used to be, or how hard-fought the battle which ended his reign. We will pray as we 'take hold' on Easter Day that they may hear, and know that we are 'ringing on a victory,' and worship Christ, who won it.

GOING UP AND COMING DOWN

STANDING in the main street of Grimsby the other day, at my back was a supermarket, going up, and in front St. Andrew's Church, going down. The tower was about half-way down, and I thought of the many happy hours I had, over the years, spent there. It contained a ring of eight with a tenor of $15 \frac{3}{4} \mathrm{cwt}$.-a quiet and compact tower to ring in.

I recall the many famous ringers who have visited St. Andrew's. It was here that Ernest Morris rang his first peal-one of Grandsire Triples, and his father and younger brother often paid visits while on holiday at Cleethorpes. There were Tom Tebbutt and Phyllis Hare, and later with her that well-loved ringer Harold Poole. We knew well in Grimsby at that time Fred Dexter, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Richardson, of Surfleet, and hosts of others. A few of the old band are with us: J. B. Budd is still going strong, and also the writer and Arthur Pashley, who are now at St. James'. Steven Bloomfield lives at Barton-on-Humber, and Ralph Long, of the Sheffield Cathedral band, is one of the Long family who had close associations with St. Andrew's.

The church is only about 100 years old, and the bells have been sent to London to be stored until required. The site, which includes the church hall, has been cleared. A smaller modern church with a brick tower is to replace the old St. Andrew's Church, and the bells are to be hung 'dead.' Perhaps in the future it will be 'one going up.'

BELLS RUNG FOR THE HUNTING SEASON

The 'Leicester Mercury' of March 21st. in its feature 'More news of 1862,' quotes from the 'Leicester Journal' of that year a case that came before the magistrates as to who had authority to ring the church bells at Thurnb)-the vicar or the churchwardens.
The report, as summarised by David
After several cases of disobedience from his wardens the Vicar of Thurnby, the Rev. J. R. Redhead. had apparently finally forbidden the bells of the church to be rung on 'improper occasions ' such as heralding the start of a new hunting season as had been the custom.
Accordingly he sent a letter to churchwarden, Mr. David Waite, on the eve of a meeting of the hounds, warning him that if the bells were rung on the morning of the meet, legal proceedings would result.
Mr. Waite reacted by going to the church on the morning in question with three of his fellow ringers, including the parish clerk, the very man who had borne the Vicar's letter of warning to Waite. On arriving at the church they found that the door had been secured by the Vicar, who had placed a piece of wood across the door

LOCAL CONSTABLE HELPED

This difficulty was overcome by the simple expedient of asking the local constable to remove the wood. In all innocence and acknowledging the supposed authority of the churchwardens the officer complied with Waite's request and prized off the fastening.

Soon afterwards the Rev. J. R. Redhead arrived at the church to find his way barred too, this time by the men he tried to prevent entering; they had locked the door from within. Let me in or take the consequences, shouted the embarrassed clergyman His answer came from inside: ' We are willing to take the consequences.'
So the Vicar hurried off to find the district superintendent of police, a search which took him two hours. In the meantime the bells had been ringing out and the hunt had gathered.

The matter was put into the hands of lawyers and. to judge by the length of the case as reported down two whole columns of the journal's densely packed broadsheet. the lawyers were glad of such an opportunity to gather fat fees by their vertosity.

NOT TO SEEK PUNISHMENT

Defence and prosecution counsels were having an eloquent set-to when the Vicar suddenly stood up and explained that he had come to the court not to seek punishment, but to know for certain whether he had the right to ring the bells. whether the wardens had the right to ring the bells or whether they both had the right to ring the bells.

Clearly upset. the Rev. J. R. Redhead told the court: 'Up to the start of the present hunting season the churchwardens and myself have been on good terms and it was during a slight misunderstanding that I began to interfere with them as to bellringing.
Mr. Haxby, the defending counsel, was delighted. He emphasised that the matter under discussion was one of ascertaining a right and not of passing judgment on a wrong

There was no precedent for trial by a magistrates' court of a case like the present one. he said: it was neither a criminal matter nor a civil matter, but a matter for a higher ecclesiastical court. The accused men should be dismissed, he told the bench.
On the contrary, exclaimed the prosecution, and urged the bench to remember the ' Si . George's in the East Act ' concerning damage to sacred property. The defence retorted that the act did not apply to the case, only to 'diabolical nuisances.'
But this time both the magistrates and the ' intent listeners' were well out of their depths. The case was dismissed as beyond the competence of the court and the affair ended temporarily as a Mr. Miles stood up and shoured his objection to be arrested as an accessory when all he had done was organise a metting of the hounds.

A Ringing Romance

MISS Shirley M. Parsons and Mr. Geoffrey R. Drew cutting their wedding cake after their marriage at Havant on March 17th Their romance started when they met at Loughborough Bell Foundry on June 11th, 1960, a: the start of Joe Roast's ringing taur of Derbyshire. Two days later they rang their first peal together-Bristol Surprise Major at Tidworth, and so far they have rung together in 49 peals. Both are members of the Society of Royal Cumberland Youths.

Geoffrey learnt to ring at Great Ryburgh, Norfolk. in 1953, and rang the first of his 146 peals at Sculthorpe on June 5th, 1955. Apprenticed as a dental mechanic, the served three years in the R.A.F. (two at Singapore away from ringing). He is now working as an aircraft instrument assembler at Cheltenham.
Although the daughter of a ringer, it was not until Stirley went to Cheltenham in 1953 to becorme a civil servant that she learned to to beconge a civil servant that she fer first peal. Stedman Triples. was ruing on January 2 2ind. 1955. at Bishop's Cleeve. conducted by the late Mr . John Thomas, and to date she has 129 peals to her credit. She and Geoffrey are members of Chelienham Parish Church band.

HALIFAX AND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION

The meeting of the Association at Cawthorne 0.1 April 7th was most encouraging: 12 towers were represented. 30 members enjoyed the tea provided by the local company and there were provided oy the lecal class. Standard methods. Cambridge Surprise and some irregulars were rung under the able Ringing Master, Mr. Trevor Tarbatt, of Shelley.
The Vicar of Cawthorne kindly acted as chairman for the meeting, and a minute's silence was observed in respect of Mr. Ben Booth. who died suddenly. The meeting favoured New Mill as the venue for the annual meeting and prize contest. A circular letter asking far support for the Kilifi Church Bell Fund was referred. after discussion, to the annual meeting, subject so the proviso that the funds of the Association should not be touched.

ST. ALBANS RINGERS VISIT THE CAMPANAMUTAPHONE

Instead of the usual Saturday meeting, on

 March 17th St. Albans District's members went to wonder at the Carter Campanamutaphone in the Science Museum in S. Kensington.An early arrival proved fortunate as some of the party showed great enthusiasm for models of early locomotives and steam turbine engines! The party was split into two groups for demonstrations by Mr. Douglas Hughes. who had previously set the machine to ring Stedman Cinques, and listened in awe to the machine controlled handbells ringing a bob course called by Mr. Hughes.
An explanation of the workings of the machine would take far too long here, but mainly it consists of cranks. eccentrics. a squirrel cage mechanism and two sets (for handstroke and backstroke changes) of levers of thinteen rows each (eleven for the changes and two for bobs and singles). The electric motor to drive it and the operation of the bell hammers are the only electrical intrusions to this piece of mechanical genius.
During the afternoon touches of D.N.C.B. Major and London Surprise Major were also rung (the latter called by one of the party). The effect of the machine on our ringers was staggering. It was most amusing to watch heads. fect or fingers sympathising with the mashine!
Ringing at St. Luke's, Chelsea (10), St. Mary Abbots' (10) and St. Mary's. Putney (8). followed and consisted of rounds. standard methods. Bristol and an amazingly good halfcourse of Cambridge Royal (probably due to the effect of the machine) at St. Mary Abbots'
Thanks to the organiser (Mrs. Coburn), to Mr. Hughes and the Science Museum were dceply felt by all concerned.

GUILD of DEVONSHIRE RINGERS

The Mid-Devon Branch's meeting at Chudleigh on April 7th was most successful, with 70 sitting down to an excellent tea in the Conservative Club. This followed the service, conducted by the Vicar. He and the ladies responsible for the iea were thanked by Mrs. D. E. Hood, who presided.
A vote of sympathy was extended to Rev. Fs her Oswald Mowan, of Buckfast Abbey. regarding his serious accident in Rome, and apologies were received from Mrs. A. M Allin and Mr. B. E. Bartlett. both of Torquay. Miss Mary Russell. of Newton Abbot, was elected to fill a vacancy on the General Committee in place of Mr. W. J. Harvey, of Torquay, who had removed to Topsham.

Certificates were presented by the Vicar to the Misses M. Rushby, P. Pell and J. Rudd. and also Dr. Ghent.
Arising out of a discussion on the Guild's Bells Restoration, a proposal was put forward and carried that all Branches with balances of over $£ 10$ should send all moneys above that amount to this fund.
Next meeting: Widecombe-in-the-Moor on Saturday, July 28 th (subject to permission).
Further ringing followed in the tower. while others visited Ideford.

50 YEARS AGO

'R.W.' April 19th, 1912 -
At the Easter Vestry, at St. Margaret's. Lee, S.E.. the Rector (the Rev. R. Meddings) was asked why the bells had not been rung on the last two Sundays. He replied that he had desired that they should be rung for evening service as well as morning, hut his request had been refused. He had therefore no course open but to terminate all existing arrangements. It was his intention to seek for a leam of ringers who would ring both morning and evening on Sundays, and who, after ringing the congregation to churah, would themselves attend the services
The Rector has since appointed Mr. Edward E. Richards, of 8. Maidstone Hill, Greenwich. to the care of the tower and bells, and it is hoped that ringers attached 10 neighbouring belfries will assist him occasionally in his endeavours to form and educate a young band.

Assize and

THERE is in Siafford a very close link be1 tween Church and State that has existed for many years; not only are the bells of the Parish Church of St. Mary rung for the Assizes on the instruction of the High Sheriff, but also on other occasions during the year by order of the Mayor and Corporation.
On each of the three occasions during the year that the Assize is held the bells are rung on Commission Day, this being the day on which the judge or judges arrive in the town. preceding the opening of the court. The bells are rung from 12.30 to $1.30 \mathrm{p} . \mathrm{m}$. on this day and again in the evening for one hour.
Before the Assize Court is opened the judges attend the State service held in Sr. Mary's Church. walking bewigged and in their scarlet robes from their lodgings, accompanied by the High Sheriff. his deputy and chaplain, the Mayor and Corporation, with the Town Clerk. This procession is preceded by mounted and foot police. For this service the bells are usually rung for 45 minutes.
EXTRA RINGING FOR LATE ARRIVAL
Looking through past records. dating from the early part of the century, I find that it was customary to ring the bells from 12.30 to $1.30 \mathrm{p.m}$. on Commission Day, as now, but the second ringing took place at the actual time of the arrival of the judge: this was also for an hour. On February 23rd, 1909, we read. 'That owing to the late arrival of the Lord Chief Justice an extra hour's ringing was ordered.' For the Assize held on June 24th. 1909, and again for the Assize held on November 1lth, 1909. we read that the bells were rung on Commission Day, but for the Assize service on each occasion were chimed. It would probably be on the second occasion that exception to the chiming was taken by a barrister attending the court, who was a bell ringer and who dater became the Lord Chief Justice of Ireland. Knowing that the bells should have been rung he made his complaint. which must have had the desired effect for no mention is again made of the bells being chimed.
During the time of the June Assize in 1951 an extensive scheme for cleaning the stone in progress and it was not possible to hold in progress and it was not possible to hold the Assize service there. The service was therefore iransferred to the beautiful Norman Church of St. Chad. There are only two bells hung dead' in the tower of this church, so the bells of St. Mary's were rung for this service. This made history, for there is no Mther recorded incident of the bells of St Mary's Church being rung for a service that was to be held in another church.
I mentioned before that the Mayor and Corporation also have an interest in the ringing of the bells and on their instructions the ringers attend to ring on the following occasions during the year: the birthday of the Sovereign, the birthday of the Prince of wales, the 'making' of the Mayor, the ringing the New old Year and the ringing in of the New Year.

7 a.m. RINGING

Until 1939 the first ringing of the day for the Royal birthdays was at $6 \mathrm{a} . \mathrm{m}$. and conevening for an hour. Now the morning evening for an hour.
ringing is from 7 a.m.
The ringing of the bells by order of the Corporation goes back many years. I quote extracts from Stafford Corporation Cash Book. 1807-1840, in connection with the ringin the the bells for victories by our Armies the Napoleonic Wars.

PEAL ATTEMPT CANCELLED

In these more recent years it is recorded that by order of the Mayor and Corporation he bells were rung on November 20th. 1947. To honour the wedding of Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth to the Duke of Edinburgh
June 2nd. 1953. The Coronation of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. To open the Official Programme the bells were rung from 8.45 a.m. -9.45 a.m.

October 27 th. 1953 . Visit of Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother. The bells were rung from 4 p.m. -5 p.m

November 2nd 1955. Visit of Queen Elizabeth II and His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh. On this occasion a peal attempt had been arranged, but was cancelled by the Town Clerk on the authority of the Mayor and the Lord Lieutenant of the County. A quarter peal of Stedman Triples was rung nstead.
February 19th. 1960. Birth of a Royal Prince (Prince Charles). In the evening of this day a quarter peal of Grandsire Caters was rung

COUNCIL APPOINT WARDEN
Another interest with Church and State is the appointing by the Corporation of the People's Warden for St. Mary's Church. A special meeting of the Borough Council is called on St. Thomas' Day, December 21st, for this purpose. It is the only business transacted at this meeting. Maybe in both the ringing of the bells and in the appointment of the People's Warden we have here in Stafford something that is unique, maintaining tradition over the years without a break except for the ringing of the bells when the ban on bell ringing was imposed.

IN THE BLEAK MID-WINTER

'1HE morning of March 3rd was absolutely glorious: the sun shone brightly and hinted at the coming spring as a group of ringers converged on the scattered Sussex village of Twineham, a few miles from Haywards Heath.
One of the oldest brick-built churches in Sussex. St. Peter's, Twineham, possesses a ring of five bells, the third and fourth of which were cast by John Tonne, at some time between 1522 and 1544 . These, according to the church guide. are two of the oldest bells in Sussex, and the 4th bears a large medallion of Henry VIII. Mears and Stainbank restored things in 1912. The bells go well and we were pleased to learn that a very enthusiastic band of youngsters was in almost daily training for a special occasion-ihe visit of the Bishop. We were grateful to Mr. Piper, one of the churchwardens, and his wife, who entertained us to coffee and biscuits.
It was at Brighton that spring reverted back to winter and snow began to fall. Cheerfully we rang on the two rings of ten, but we were disappointed at both churches, especially at St. Peter's, where we would have welcomed more noise. The bells were good, but we felt we had been robbed of their music. Ringing at St. Nicholas' included a course of Superlative on the back eight for Mr. Harry Stalham. It is not only veteran cars which are attracted to Brighton: veteran ringers are there too, for at the age of about 90 years Mr. Stalham is still ringing the occasional Mr. Stainam is still ringing the occasional Halfway House, we passed St. Paul's Church with its curious wooden-topped tower, which now contains only two bells. It is worthy Mark's Church is ringable and has been rung Mark's Church is ringable and has been for a wedding within the last two years.

After a ring at Aldrington, a drive through the snow took us to Upper Beeding. The sight of four cars processing ponderously around an oval-shaped housing estate must have caused merriment to those residents who watched wonderingly from their windows, but signs. like bobs. are sometimes missed. Mr . and Mrs. Phil Corby and family had arrived the two trebles. one of which was stayless and one of which was sliderless. Having pushed the ropes through the ringing room again, we found ourselves unable to close the trap door between ringing room and bell chamber, and whilst ringing was in progress we felt we were able to sympathise with the victim of "The Nine Tailors.' Two of the bells, the fifth and the seventh, go rather badly and hard work is needed to produce good ringing.

The glory of the Norman work at Steyning was a joy to behold. At one time there was a central tower here, but the present western structure replaced the former tower in about 1600 . The eight bells are good for their weight (almost 12 cwt.) and a large circle helps to make for rather steady ringing. Methods rung here included Bristol.

The local cafe is unaccustomed to an influx of visitors in this season and we presume our trade was welcomed.

The Sussex countryside was very peaceful beneath a generous carpet of snow, and before ringing at Findon some people played snowbadls. Until 1958, when Mears and Stainbank added two trebles, there was an unringable ring of four in this lonely church. one of them from the itinerant John Tonne in about 1530. There is now a really delightful six and the founders are to be congratulated on their achievement here. Calls at Goring-bySea (Mr. Dove: note that the wall notice gives the tenor weight as $17 \mathrm{cwt}, 2$ gr. 3 lb .) and Angmering brought us to Arundel. hame of the Duke of Norfolk. We remarked at the extensive bell inscriptions which incorporate the Duke's titles and we were intrigued by the ascent to this central tower. The eastern end of the church belongs to the Duke's family (which is Roman Catholic) and this is divided from the rest of the church by a brick wall just east of the tower. The altar is thus underneath the central tower, and to ascend this one first passes behind the altar.
Our last call was at Pulborough, where Messrs. Taylor restored the bells in 1960 We enjoyed these bells and ended our day's ringing in good style by ringing Yorkshire.
The journey home was to be exciting and difficult despite the fact that it had stopped snowing. Travelling sideways up Edenbridge hill may be thrilling. but it is dangerous. Despite the weather. it proved to he an enjoyable day. We extend our grateful thanks to local ringers and incumbents and not least to

THE IN AND OUT OF COURSE
Before discussing how to obtain extents of Doubles and Minor one further topic must be introduced.
In mathematics two different sorts of numbers are encountered, viz. 'even' and 'odd.' Similarly we have two different sorts of rows in change ringing which are usually termed 'in course' and 'out of course.' If one, three, five, or any odd number of pairs of bells in an 'in course' row are reversed the resulting row is 'out of course' and if an even number of pairs are reversed the result remains ' in course.' Conventionally, rounds is an 'in course' row so that an 'in course. row is one which can be produced from rounds (or from which rounds can be produced) only by reversing an even number of pairs of bells.

The number 57, for instance, is an odd number and no matter how it is produced it is always an odd number. The same principle applies in change ringing; an 'in course' row is always an 'in course, row, wherever it occurs. The row 53214 is 'out of course'; we can convert it to rounds or produce it from sounds in many ways, but it will always be necessary to reverse an odd number of pairs.

| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| 52314 |  | 52314 |  | 13254 |

|  |  | 52314 |  |  |
|  |  | 53214 |  |  |
|  |  | (XXI) |  |  |

We have transformed 53214 into rounds in 7,5 and 3 operations, in each of which one pair was reversed. Similarly producing 53214 from rounds required seven operations. No matter how hard we tried, an odd number of operations. each involving the reversal of one pair, would always be necessary.
Let us now return to the methods we have described and analyse the nature of the rows they produce.

(XXII) (a), (b) and (c) are diagrams (I), (III) and (IV) with the in course and out of course rows marks + and - respectively. Where two pairs of bells were revensed in a change the row produced is the same nature as jts predecessor, but where only one pair was reversed determines the pattern of the in makes no difference where the places are made, tho number of pairs of bells which are reversed the nature is changed. Notice that it reversed determins the pattern of the in and out of course.

| Plain Bob | London Biob (XXIII) | Oxford T.B |

The pattern of the in and out of course in this selection of six bell methods is similar to that on four bells. In fact, on any even number of bells it is generally similar, pairs of rows of like nature occurring together. This follows from the fact that to produce changes on an even number of bells we have to make places in alternate changes. In describing Treble Bob methods we only consider Oxtord Treble Bob in any detail. Kent Treble Bob, which is probably more popular than Oxford nowadays, differs from it only in the arrangement of the 3-4 places.

| (XXIV) |

In Kent (XXIV) there are two rows where places are made instead of the one in Oxford and these places are made 'wrong,' i.e. back and hand instead of handstroke and backstroke. This has upset the pattern of in and out of course rows so that where these places are made we do not have pairs of the same nature occurring together

Wrong places (sometimes also called 'backhanders') are by no means uncommon particularly in Surprise methods and always cause the pattern of the nature of the rows to depart from the regular 'two in-two out' succession.
The pattern on 8. 10 and 12 bells is similar to that on 4 and 6.

Five bells.

On odd numbers the pattern is quite different. On five bells the changes all involve reversing two pairs, they are 'double ' changes and hence the name. In Grandsire this is so throughout. the plain course, but in Bob Doubles there is one very impontant exception; the lead end change is a single change so that the nature of the rows in a lead is the opposite of that in the preceding and succeeding leads. Grandsire is a pure Doubles method whereas Plain Bob is not
The pattern on larger odd numbers of bells does not always resemble that on five bells.

(XXVI)

On seven bells three pairs are reversed at each change (triple changes) so that alternate rows are similar in nature; on nine, the succession is the same as in Doubles since four pairs are reversed every time. Caters is a corruption of the French 'quatre' which explains the spelling 'quators' and 'cators. which are sometimes to be seen on old peal boards. Eleven bell changes require five pairs to be reversed; the name Cinques again being derived from the French.
One more point must be made before leaving the subject of the in and out of course. In mathematics exactly half the numbers from 1 to 20, say, are even and half are odd. Similarly of the 24 possible different rows on four bells or the 120 different sows on five bells half are in course and half out of course. In Grandsire Doubles all the rows in the plain course were the same nature-in course. Clearly then some means has to be found of producing the out of course rows before the extent can be obtained. In Bob Minor rows of both natures occurred in the plain course, but this was still a long way from the whole extent of 720 rows. This leads to the next topic to be discussed.

OBITUARY

MR. W. J. CLOUGH
The death of Mr. Walter J. Clough, aged 59, of Burbage. Leics. in Hinckley and District Hospital on Friday, March 30th. was a great shock to all who attended the District meeting at Croft the previous Saturday and rang with him at both services the following day. He was taken ill on the Tuesday
He learned to ring on the old five at Burbage in 1920, and joined the Midland Counties Association in 1926. Regular in his attendance for Sunday service ringing and practices. he never got beyond plain methods. Of his 25 peals, three were Grandsire Triples on handbells.
The Rector (the Rev. W. Grimwood) conduoled the funeral service at St. Catherine's Church, Burbage, on April 4th. At the con clusion a course of Grandsire Triples was rung 'in hand' by Michael E. Brown 1-4 Frank K. Measures 3-4, Alfred Ballard 5-b. Ralph Mayne 7-8. Wreaths included tributes from St. Catherine's ringers and Leicester Diocesan Guild.

Wadter was a hachelor and lived with his unmarried sister. Alice, who wishes to express her thanks for the messages of sympathy an floral tributes.

LETTERS TO

STRIKING AT UNIVERSITIES
Dear Sir,-It was with some interest that I read, in the account of Liverpool University's first dinner, another of Mr. Alexander Martin's pronouncements on subjects about which he has little knowledge. He is reported as having - warned the Socjety that the standard of striking at universities was usually poor; and if good striking was to be obtained learners should not be pushed.'

Mr. Martin's first remark is, I feel, most damaging and entirely without foundation. Fursher, I would suggest that the best teaching of ringing in all its stages is to be found in the universities, where good striking is the only criterion of success, thanks to the lead offered us by such admirable teachers as Mr. Wilfrid Moreton.

Finally, I conside? that the Wirral District is the supreme example of a place where too many youngsters get too much encouragement and. although everyone is happy, no good striking results.-Yours faithfully.

DOUBLE SHIPWAY

Dear Sir,-I am very glad to read in Mr. Baldwin's letter thet Double Shipway is pealable, along with other similar even bell principles, although the condition that 6,7 and 8 must be kept close together may make composition difficult. There is also a difficulty in some of these principles, where a quick eight or six follows a slow one, to find a bob to fit across the division without causing three blows in one place. This occurs with Double Shipway, when a sixth place bob is made. This disability disappears when it is extended $t 0$ Royal by the addition of dodging places in $9-10$ and an eighths place bab. (This extension causes it to lose its true 'double' character.)
Its best form appears to be in Maximus, with dodging in 12-, 3-4. Four-bell work in 5, 6, 7, 8. and dodging in 9-10, 11-12.

Mr . Baldwin suggests that there are quite a number of even-bell principles which are pealoble, so I suggest that composers might investigate this new or neglected old field of methods. They may be able to bring in changes that are not possible in plain, Treble Bob and Surprise, with the fixed path of the treble and tenors together. Quite a number of these principles may splice.
I would like to take this opportunity to apologise to Mr. Yark-Bramble for any misstatement I made in my letter giving my version of Double Shipway. It was meant as a passing remark on the controversy and not as an attack on Mr. York-Bramble in person. - Yours sincerely, Hawkhurst, Kent.

FOUR-BELL TOWERS IN CORNWALLST. BURYAN
Dear Sir,-I will gladly enlarge on Bob Southwood's reference to St. Buryan tower and Solls. It would have been a pleasure to have given him the information to include in his details under the above heading by way of a little gratitude for his enthusiasm and contribution to Cornish ringing generally.
St. Buryan's fine 90 ft . tower originally had three bells cast, respectively, in 1681,1638 and 1738 , the second being cast by Roger Purdue. In 1901 a rather unusual augmentation was carried out, the treble being retuned, the second and third recast, and a tenor added, the respeotive weights being, approximately, 8 cwt., 12 cwt., 16 cwt. and $23 \frac{1}{2}$ cwt. The work was done by Messrs. Warner and Son, and the bells were hung for ringing in an iron frame with rew fittings. In short, a completely new job. The work was paid for by the late Mr. J. H. Dennis, the inscription on the new tenor recording the fact as follows: - This bell was given by James Hawke Dennis, a benefactor to St. Buryan Church, to commemorate the accession of King Edward VII, A.D. 1901 . Richard James Martyn, MA.. Rector.' Mr. Dennis was a Cornishman who had lived at Redruth, bur was then living at Grenehurst Park, Surrey. At about the same time he commemorated the passing of Queen Victoria (January 22nd, 1901 ) by giving $£ 15,000$ to provide the great central fower and spire of Truro, Cathedral which is called "Victoria Tower.'
Although St. Buryan bells are hung for ringing no one can give any information as In whother they were ever rung or not. They are at present chimed, and the tradition connected with them is that they cry 'Who killed poor Joe.' No doubt their heavy metal is of great solemnity. When or whether these interesting bells will ever be ringable or augmented is doubtful at present. Recently the Rector (Rev. C. V. Lawson) undertook a fairly comprehensive restoration of the church. at one time a collegiate foundation, and some £2,000 has been spent on the tower. New beams have been placed under the bell frame, and the tower is at the moment being repointed. It is too much to hope for restoration of the bells or an augmentation.-Yours faithfully,
A. S. ROBERTS (Rev.).

Carbis Bay.

SOME DEVON UNRINGABLES

Dear Sir-As far as my own knowledge goes some unringables in this part of Devon are Ashprington, near Totnes, North Huish, near South Brent, Blackawton, near Dartmouth, and Ermington, near Ivybridge. In the two last cases I think that the question of restoration is in the air. Littlehempston, near Totnes, also has a ring of five in an iron frame, on ball bearings, and room for a new treble, but apart from this the tower itself is in a very filthy condition inside, and these bells could probably be rung again after some cleaning up and the provision of a set of ropes. I quite remember greasing the bearings there in 1952.-Yours faithfully, Buckfastleigh, Devon.

10 and 12 BELL COMPOSITIONS

Dear Sir, - In reply to Mr. Frith's letter (page 175) I agree that most compositions of Caters and Cinques are based on a conventional plan, and I would very much like to see published more compositions which move the back bells to produce course ends such as 579680 . $479680,974680,975680$ in Caters and 79E80T and E9780T in Cinques. One such composition of Grandsire Caters composed by Albert M. Tyler was published (see page 611, Vol. LVII of 'R.W.').

With regard to Mr. Frith's suggestion of a peal of Grandsire Caters in three parts introducing course ends 67890 , I would like to point out the following: If the best courses of the handstroke home position are rung, i.e. all the 658790 's, then surely it is impossible to ring the best courses of the backstroke home position, i.e. 567890's. The latter changes, i.e. 567890 's, will be rung at the handstroke jeads of the treble, in the leads preceding the handstroke home course ends $658790^{\prime}$ 's. Thus if all the 567890 's and 658790 course ends are to be rung in a peal then it is obvious, for example, that either 234658790 or 423567890 . but 110 t both, must be brought up with a Bob. This is not always easy to produce and is often impossible. Re touches of Erin Caters, I have worked out the following: 101

THE SMITHS  THE STORY OF A RINGING FAMILY  By I. N. QUICK

The big spread, prepared by Annie Smith, wife of Joe Smith, had been consumed by a band who, with one exception, thought they had rung in Joe's 100 th peal. It was the time for reminiscences: would those reminiscences contain a confession that Joe rang his 100th peal with a band of visiting ringers?
They heard, too, how Norman Jackson, of Rosse-on-Ooze, had been ringing in a peal on a hot and sultry midsummer day, how he had been wearing a new white shirt and a pair of new red, blue and yellow braces, for he was going to a 'posh' dinner with his wife after the peal, and how the sweat had soaked his shirt, for he was ringing the tenor at Parkston, long before they were rehung; "and you remember what a brute that was'; and how the dye from the braces had turned his shirt into a replica of the well known coat of a certain Joseph, of Biblical fame, and how he certain Joseph, of Biblical fame, ant how he obtain a new shirt before he met his wife at a prearranged time.
Also remembered was the peal attempt that had come to grief when the only light, a single gas jet, had grown dimmer and dimmer, until the ringers looked like shadowy wraiths merging into the background, how when one or two started to fumble another of them had called out, 'Keep going, you're not afraid of the dark, are you?' how they had ultimately to 'stand' owing to the practically total darkness, and how as the last man set his bell the gas had flared up with an uncanny brilliance.
The story was also recounted of a team that visited a tower to ring a peal and owing to some oversight or misunderstanding the head ringer, who should have met them, did not appear, and how, having waited for some little while they had gone to the Vicarage, which was near the church, and, having explained the situation to the Vicar's wife, had been loaned the belfry key; how, being now short of time. they had risen the bells, rung the peal and lowered them without resting in between, and on descending the steps they were met by the head ringer who had informed them that there was no stay on the second bell!

Then Old George told the story of 'John, an enthusiastic ringer, 'who was never known to knock.' Sunday morning, Sunday evening. practice night peals-the lot! But John began to have trouble with his arms; pins and needles' first, and then a curious numbness As John couldn't allow this stupid ailment to interfere with his ringing he went to see his doctor, who poked him here and prodded thim there, ' and, believe me, there was plenty of John to prod and poke!' He looked down his throat with his instrument and listened in with that. but after a lengthy examination confessed himself beaten and packed John off to the hospital. Here the process was repeated and a long white doctor with a short name, assisted by a short black doctor with a long one, diagnosed John's trouble as some kind of muscular affliction and sent him along to the physiotherapist for treatment. After reading through the sheaf of notes supplied by the two doctors, the physiotherapist nodded her head profoundly and said to John, 'Now, we'll soon have you better. I want you to carry out this exercise I am giving you, four times every morning and three times every night. Raise your arms straight above your head and then lower them!'

She was rather nonplussed, and changed the exercise when John gently explained that lhe performed such an exercise several hundred times. sometimes several thousand times, every week!
So anecdote followed anecdote, each one that was tald reminding someone else of another either because of some similarity, or same difference, in the story, so that each member of the party (the older ones that is ; the younger end were quite content to sit and listen) watted his iurn to add his quota to the seemingly endless string, and time slipped past as it is apt to do when we are occupied or interested or happy. until the grandfather clock down the hall boomed out the three-quarter hour and William realised that midnight was approaching.

Well, it's no use, I have to be up early in the marning. No lying in bed for me! he said. And before anyone had the chance to reply to the implications of this remark, he added. 'I must have my beauty sleep.'

Not that you require it,' said Phyllis, with an impish grim that belied the gallantry of her words.
' Now, lass, I never was no oil painting. My old gran'mother used to say, "'Ansome is as 'ansome does," an' she looked at me pityingly like. As soon as my whiskers pitarted to sprout I grew a tash to cover part of my face. I even tried a beard once, but I looked so much like a picture of Bluebeard that I ロne气 caw in a book that I got rid of it, I hardly think that the 'tash is an improvement, but I've got so used to it now that I should feel half-naked without it, especially since the hair started disappearing from the top of my head.'
Old George, who was practically bald, said: Aye, ye'll soon be in my school, William. If it's any consolation to ye, allus remember that ye'll never see a bald-headed donkey!
'And don't forget.' Joe reminded them as the grandfather clock reminded them that a new day had started and they prepared to depart, 'that it's Wednesday night tomorrow night. I would like to ring the 720 with eight spliced plain methods in it, if possible.
